NUMBER 33

Warning To Merchants

We have been advised by the Texas Press Association that the customary crop of transient salesmen are operating in Texas, selling advertising specialties to local merchants in towns over the state.

Some of these salesmen sell merchants space at two or three times the local newspapers regular rates, then offer it to local publishers at their regular rates; some of them sell space in newspapers, collect for it and that is the last that is ever heard of them.

Another racket of the fly by night salesmen is to sell cartoon advertising with the promise that the cost of the cartoons include the running of the cartoon in the newspaper, which it very seldom does.

In the past we have had these kind of salesmen work in our town and they take your advertising money, and you get nothing in return for it.

When an advertising salesman of any kind, who is not a representative of the Santa Anna News, calls on you, we suggest that you telephone us for confirmation. Most likely when you tell him you are going to call us, he will leave or tell you there is no need to do so that he has already made a contract with the local newspaper. We suggest that you telephone us anyway, because he has most likely not even been in the newspaper office.

We strongly advise every merchant in Santa Anna to be very careful about signing any contracts with unauthorized salesmen, and that you check with us when a high-pressure ad salesman comes along. It will save you money - and will keep your money at home.

Christians and Law Lesson for August 19, 1951

AMERICANS are not noted for their respect for law. Sometimes big business is the reason. In a certain southern state there are two countries through which run some main highways.

Dr. Foreman's state has laws against overloading trucks; it has laws against speeding. There is an honest state police department. But although various arrests have been made, the head of the police department reports that in those two counties they never yet have been able to secure a single conviction in the courts. Why?

Who Is to Blame? SOMETIMES police is to blame. That is to say, a man wants to get, or to hold, office, so eagerly that he will ignore or defy the law in order to keep his little place in the sun.

There is another county where a policeman shot a law-breaker resisting arrest and attempting to shoot the officer. The county judge tried to make three successive grand juries indict the policeman, but after looking into the facts they all refused.

Here was the interesting spectacle of a judge on the bench (elected there) trying to make the law work against itself, trying to force a grand jury to indict an innocent man. The thing was, the policeman was from out of the county, but the man he killed, being a bootlegger, had many friends who were also friends of the judge.

We Get What We Deserve BUT we can't blame big business, or mean politics, for the lawlessness of America. If individuals respected the law, if every man respected the law just as he wants others to respect it, we could handle business and we could get rid of dishonest politicians.

An official high in federal circles, who had had plenty of opportunity to observe, remarked last spring, speaking of controls, that every one wants the other man controlled, everybody wants to control somebody else, but nobody wants to be controlled.

That's just the trouble. We can make all the laws we please, but so long as we are the kind of people who will not respect a law if it cramps our own style, then we need not be surprised at the sort of thing a senate crime committee digs up.

No Government Is Perfect

Wanted By F.B.I.

JAMES EDWARD JACKSON, JR.

ARTICLE THREE The FBI requested alert citizens and law enforcement agencies to be on the lookout for James Edward Jackson, Jr., Southern Regional Director of the Communist Party, USA, who was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury at New York, New York, on June 29, 1951, on a charge of conspiracy to advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

Age 37, born October 29, 1914, in Richmond, Virginia. Height, 160 pounds. Build, muscular. Hair, black, curly, bald in front. Eyes, brown. Race, Negro. Nationality, American. Scars and marks, small scar on outer corner of right eye.

Education received at Doctor's College at Howard University of Washington, D. C. He has resided in Richmond, Virginia; Washington, D. C.; Arlington, Virginia; and in Birmingham, Alabama.

He has been employed as a street labor organizer, writer and lecturer. He is described as well-groomed and neat in appearance. He sometimes wears a mustache.

Any person having information which may assist in locating James Edward Jackson, Jr., is requested to immediately notify the local FBI office.

Any person who starts out with a crossword puzzle in the morning, and optimistically hopes to finish it by noon.

Some of the modern steps that bankers exercise everything in discretion.

Enlighten the shades on a dark past makes it easier to find a bright future.

A woman's promise to be on time carries a lot of weight.

MANY of us try to excuse ourselves by saying that the government is inefficient or even crooked, and that the laws are unfair. Christians, certainly, can see very easily the failings of both government and law. But Christians ought to be the very persons to set the example of respect for law and government.

Consider the New Testament. Hardly a single Christian mentioned in that book had the least thing to do with making the laws of those times. The government was from the top down, the exact opposite of democracy. None of the early Christians could vote or hold office.

The government, whether in Palestine or in Rome, was in non-Christian hands. The laws lacked a good deal of being wholly just and fair.

Nevertheless, Jesus and Paul and Peter, all of whom suffered from the laws of their times, urged men to pay tribute (taxes) to Caesar, to support the magistrates, to obey the laws. Even a selfish, money-hungry and often cruel government like that of Rome deserved support.

Jesus and Paul alike remind us that we rely on government for protection; that government, in spite of all exceptions, is on the side of good men, not against them.

If we had no government we should miss it and want it. St. Peter, writing to Christians who were actually being persecuted by the government, urged them nevertheless to be loyal to the authorities. There may come times—indeed, human nature being what it is, such times are bound to come—when a government proves so corrupt and unjust that it deserves to fall; but even then the way out is not the way of lawlessness. Reforms come best from the law-abiding, not the law-defying.

DEFENSE CONSIDERS OFF DUTY PLAN

The Defense Department is considering a plan which may permit military personnel to work in essential civilian activities while on pass or leave or during other regular off duty periods. This was announced by Defense Secretary Marshall as he refused a request by Senator Young of North Dakota to grant servicemen emergency furloughs to help out in harvests. Gen. Marshall said the Defense Department did not feel justified in using the armed forces as a pool to meet civilian manpower needs.

COOK DISCOVERS NEW USE FOR SHELL CASE

Shell cases have been used in Korea for everything from making paths to building plush foxholes but Sgt. Anderson Ellison has come up with a new one. Ellison is cook in the 15th Infantry, and when he recently lost his rolling pin he knew exactly what to do. The nearest tank was glad to donate a 76mm shell case, and the biscuits continued to roll out. "Works almost as good as the real thing," said Ellison.

officials to caution livestockmen in the eastern part of the Red River Valley to be especially vigilant against skunk invasions of barns and outhouses.

The rabies morbidity report is something new in disease control. Modeled after the method used to keep tabs on cases of human communicable diseases, it is part of the general protection the state health agency is providing.

Texans Urged To Kill Skunks Now

Austin - Texas farmers and ranchers in the Red River Valley region and in Southwest and Central Texas have been warned to begin killing skunks - lots of them - before cold weather brings an increase in rabies cases. The grim warning is contained in an animal morbidity report compiled by the State Department of Health. The idea is to pin point rabies infested areas as warning to people in adjacent areas.

State Health Officer George W. Cox said Texas had areas "bigger than most states" which are completely free of rabies. "From now on we're going to call our shots by county of occurrence. It isn't going to be Texas rabies' any more," the health official declared.

"Livestock owners ... should have active skunk killing programs, especially in the Red River Valley area, when winter approaches and skunks hole up with livestock in dilapidated barns," the report cautioned.

Current focal points of skunk rabies are, the report indicated, in Harris, Matagorda, Fort Bend, and Lavaca Counties. Another focus exists in the region of Comal and Hays Counties, and in Central Texas in Travis, Bell, Coryell, Lampasas, and McLennan Counties.

"The trend is eastward in Central Texas," the report said. Titus and Hopkins, an area hit hard last year, continues to have a serious problem, causing health officials to caution livestockmen in the eastern part of the Red River Valley to be especially vigilant against skunk invasions of barns and outhouses.

The rabies morbidity report is something new in disease control. Modeled after the method used to keep tabs on cases of human communicable diseases, it is part of the general protection the state health agency is providing.

For July the report shows: 77 dogs, 6 foxes, 6 cats, 4 skunks, 4 calves, 3 pigs, 2 civit cats, and 1 cow were diagnosed as rabid at the state Bureau of Laboratories.

Bexar and Harris Counties were hardest hit during July. Each reported one case of dog rabies each day of the month.

Editor Attends Press Convention At Sweetwater

Your editor spent last Friday in Sweetwater, attending the 21st Annual Convention of the West Texas Press Association. This was the first time for this writer to attend the meeting of the members of the West Texas Press.

We met at the Blue Bonnet Hotel for a very interesting and instructive program. The Friday program consisted of a welcome to Sweetwater by their Board of City Development; the Secretary's report; "Ourselves as others see us" by Mrs. J. M. Walker of Plainview, and believe you me - she told us how others see us - especially the women; then how the OPS affects printers of the West Texas area; a luncheon on the roof garden of the hotel; and in the afternoon various phrases of newspaper work.

The meeting was all very interesting and we hope that it will help us improve your newspaper. At least we picked up several good ideas, and now it is up to us to put them in effect.

Health Talks

Just as there are certain types of coal which burn faster than others, there are certain kinds of food which can be burned up faster than others to keep the fires going in the body, the fires that mean power and energy. If you are building a coal fire that you want to last for a long time and burn slowly, you use one type of coal but if you want a fast, hot fire you use another type of coal.

Food is fuel for the body. There are three big classifications of foods: fats, proteins and carbohydrates. Fat burns more slowly than the other two types, meaning they are present longer in the body a longer time before they are used up, making them available for fuel. Fats, therefore, have more calories than proteins and carbohydrates when you eat the same amounts of each of those three classes of foods.

Calories are a unit of heat. Fats might be considered as those sources of body fuel which burn the slowest, therefore, provide more units of heat than either proteins or carbohydrates, and therefore fats have more calories (more heat units) than the other type of foods.

All kinds of oils, shortenings, butter and butter substitutes make up the big bulk of fats, of course. Carbohydrates are for the most part the fruits and vegetable foods. And proteins are found in largest amounts in meats and nuts and dairy products.

Since milk and milk products contain all three classes of foods (fats, proteins and carbohydrates), these are considered about the most nearly perfect foods. Yet those classes are so intermingled in the milk products that when a reducing diet is undertaken it's hard to separate the fats from the others and there is usually some cutback on milk products along with fat foods.

Whatever type diet is undertaken, it must be remembered that there are basic needs of the body and some of the "basic seven" foods must be included either in food or by substitute methods prescribed by your doctor.

Therefore, a reducing diet which would have your doctor's approval would include milk and milk products as well as a small amount of fat because those are part of the daily needs of the body. The only approved reducing diets which can be undertaken without strictest medical attention are those that merely cut down on amounts of food you eat; you must eat the foods necessary for the upkeep of all parts of your body but you must eat less of those foods which your body has stored.

Fat is the class of food that is stored most when bulges and bulk attest to overweight. If the fuel intake every day is less than the body needs, then that stored fat will be brought into usage, reducing the bulk and bulges eventually. But if the body is deprived of other needs, such as minerals and vitamins, then it cannot function as well as it should and the stored fat will probably not be used up as it should be. The quality of food becomes especially important when the quantity must be reduced. Foods of high quality may be defined as those possessing the necessary minerals and vitamins.

How would such a reducing diet look, one containing quality but less quantity food? For a person who was normal in every respect except for being 20 pounds overweight, such a regime of eating the three meals in one day might run something like this:

Breakfast — half grapefruit, soft-boiled egg, one slice of buttered whole wheat toast, cup of coffee and two tablespoons of cream, with no sugar.

Lunch (or supper if served at night) — small thin slice of cold ham, half cup green beans, five or six sticks each of raw celery and carrots, two halves of canned pears, half pint of milk, slice of buttered whole wheat bread, cup of tea with lemon.

Dinner — cup of broth, small piece of roast beef, half cup of mashed potato, half cup of new cabbage, sliced tomato, half pint milk, slice of buttered whole wheat bread, and sliced orange for dessert.

Such a menu as that during the day will provide the body with milk, fruits, bread, potato, vegetables, meats and food fats as outlined in the "basic seven" foods needed every day for proper health. The same menu day after day would become unappetizing, of course. You would need substitutions in such a basic diet that would provide the necessary elements for health and cut down on fuel foods sufficiently for some of that stored up fuel to be brought into play and reduce weight.

U. S. To Give Added Attention To Child Labor Law

Fort Worth. — Now that the opening of school is just around the corner, officials of the U. S. Department of Labor here are planning to do all they can to see that illegal employment does not interfere with youthful education.

They point out that in enacting the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act Congress made it unlawful to employ children under 16 years of age in agriculture during school hours if the farm products go into interstate or foreign commerce.

P. D. Riley, supervisor of the Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Divisions of the Labor Department here, says that the law applies to local resident children as well as to migratory alien children — but not to the farmer's own children working on their parent's farm.

By "school hours" is meant those hours when school is in session for the district where the child under 16 is currently living, he explained. The penalty for violation of the law is a maximum fine of $10,000 or as much as six months imprisonment, or both.

Farmers themselves are responsible, he said, if they employ under-age children during school hours. That includes children hired either as individuals or as part of a family group directed by labor contractors, processors, or others.

"When school is in session, all children belong in school and not in the fields — we are going to do our best to see that they are not illegally employed and so kept out of school," he declared.

If a local school is closed for several days during peak harvest, it would not be considered as being in session at that time. Furthermore, he said, the Federal law sets no minimum age for the employment of children in agriculture before or after school hours on any school day, or at any time on school holidays, or during school vacations.

But when school bell rings on a regular school day, children of school age are expected to be in school, he said.

Price Clinic To Be Held In Coleman Tuesday, August 21

The Fort Worth OPS has announced a "Price Clinic" for local merchants in Coleman, Tuesday, August 21, 1951.

The clinic will begin at 9:00 a. m. in the Chamber of Commerce office and is intended for all businessmen regardless of their type of business, said Ellis H. Boyd, district OPS director.

"We are making ever effort to supply the business community with down-to-earth information about the price stabilization program and the regulations affecting them," Boyd said.

At the same time, Boyd announced several changes in the price regulations which are now in effect.

He stated that the OPS has amended its general manufacturing CPR 22 by excluding from its definition of a manufacturer persons who merely rebuild, recondition, renovate, or renew a used commodity. For example, Boyd said, engine rebuilders are not covered by the regulation.

"Other OPS actions place ceiling prices on lubricants and greases and on asphalt, and asphalt products," he said. "CPR 63 establishes ceiling prices on wholesales of lubricating oils, petroleum and other petroleum products while CPR 66 sets ceiling prices on asphalt and asphalt products."

The OPS official said also that a regulation having more effect on the cost of living has been issued placing the 1951 pack of canned salmon under ceiling prices. The prices stipulated in the regulation are generally lower than under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, he stated.

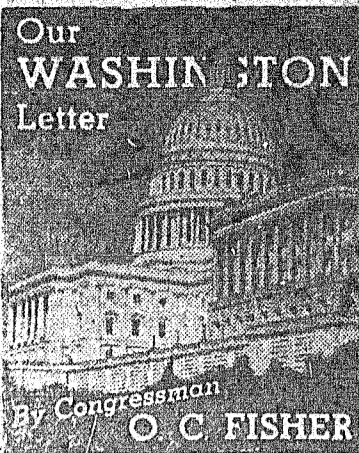

You'll always find that the man of the hour has made his plans for years.

Most vacationists go away for a little change and come back with a lot less.

Wouldn't it be nice if it took as long to spend money as it does to save it.

Even in big cities we notice that every little movement has a candidate all its own.

Maby the meek haven't inherited the earth but they sure have inherited most of it's bills.

WITH THE TEMPO OF THE preparedness program gaining momentum, the House last week voted the largest peacetime appropriation of funds for the national defense in American history. The figure for this fiscal year is $56 billion, and there is more to come. An additional $4 1/2 billion will soon be provided for land acquisition, activation and reactivation of training camps over the nation and around the world. In addition, there is the request for some $7 billion for helping arm the Atlantic Pact armies.

So we are faced with the problem of national defense in the one hand and of national sol-veny on the other. In terms of actual expenditure it is estimated that we will spend about $39 billion during the current fiscal year as compared with $19 billion in the last year. Commitments for additional procurement contracts are expected.

By the way of a brief breakdown, it may be of interest to note that of the vast amount to be spent this year 49% will be for major procurement and production; operation and maintenance calls for 20%; military personnel for about 17%; acquisition of land and construction, 8%; research and development, 3%.

The program is to be built around a 3 1/2 million-man armed force, including about 1,550,000 in the army, 800,000 in the navy, with 1,162 ships; 175,000 in the Marine Corps; and an Air Force of about 1,061,000 working toward a goal of 95 wings. About 1,400,000 civilian personnel will support this expansion, a reduction of about 75,000 under military requests.

Roughly $30 billion will be spent during the year for procurement of planes, ships, tanks, artillery, ammunition and guided missiles. A billion and a half will be expended for research and development in the race for better and improved war-making equipment. THE BIG PROBLEM NOW will be for the Congress to ferret out waste and extravagance and through committee investigations to keep a close watch in just how the money is spent in an attempt to protect this gigantic investment by the taxpayers in the future defense and security of the nation.

Visitors in the Mrs. G. C. Daniels home recently were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Smith, Sue and Tim, of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Coffee and Cicle from Silver Valley, and Mrs. E. J. Smith of Wichita Falls.
