Council approves purchase of office

By JOANNA GALLMAN Journal staff writer

Muleshoe City Council members Tuesday cast the deciding vote on a resolution to apply revenue from the sale of the current Bailey Central Appraisal District office toward the purchase a new office.

Councilmen unanimously approved the resolution, giving the district permission to purchase the vacant Bank of America building on south Main at a cost of $65,000.

The proposal required approval from three-fourths of the district's voting entities to pass.

Muleshoe ISD and Three Way High School passed the resolution last month. Bailey County Commissioners, however, refused the proposal June 28, and passed their own resolution to approve only the sale of the old appraisal office.

In other business, Council members took little action concerning the search for a new city manager.

Councilmen appointed City

Secretary Mary Hicks to assemble notebooks of several applications to the position for the Council. Hicks said the Council will be meeting frequently to review the applicants.

The resignation of current City Manager Dave Marr will become effective Aug. 15.

Council members also tabled a motion to accept bids on a paving project in the "flats," located on the north side of the railroad tracks near Allsup's. Bids on the project were reopened July 11.

Councilmen believed the bids of $379,643.50 and $314,603.44 were above the budget for the project, and opted to delay any decision on the project until Marr requests additional state funding.

Previous bids of $399,115.50 and $355,377.40 were rejected by the Council June 13.

The Council unanimously passed a resolution to rename

One architect, two construc- ity tion managers, and 16 various subcontractors are working to complete one of the largest renovation projects Lazbuddie High School has undergone since its establishment in the 1930s.

Joe and Eustolia Rank have learned the meaning of community.

After a fire demolished their home and all their possessions July 8, residents of Muleshoe have donated clothes, furniture, and money to the family.

"Muleshoe has been really great," said Eustolia, who added that one Muleshoe man even provided she, her husband and two children with a new home.

"He let us move in without any rent," Rank said. "We'll start paying next month. It was very kind of him. It's a cute little home - we love it."

Rank, who is an employee of Town and Country Convenience Store, said that more than $400 has been collected in a donation jar in the store, while clothes and furniture continue to pour in.

"I'm still getting calls from people wanting me to pick up stuff," she said. "They're still going to Town and Country and giving me stuff - and believe me, it really helps "

Church groups from Farwell and Lazbuddie and the American Red Cross have donated clothing and money to the family.

Rank said they have almost everything they need, with the exception of an electric stove, two beds, and a chest of drawers.

"But we've gotten so much help," Rank said. "The people around here are really, really great."

Clovis Music Festival to featureWade Hayes, Valli, Bellamy Brothers

The history of Rock and Roll will be visited once again on July 26 and 27 in Clovis, NM as festivities begin for the 10th Annual Clovis Music Festival.

Clovis is the home to the original Norman Petty Studios which influenced the entire world of Rock and Roll with the sound of the Norman Petty Trio, Buddy Holly and the Crickets, and the Fireballs.

The Music Festival was founded by the late Vi Petty in 1985 to honor the contributions of her husband, Norman Petty to the history of Rock and Roll. It was in the Norman Petty Studios that the great Buddy Holly and the Crickets first honed that unique sound that has mystified millions of fans around the world. It was Norman Petty that first took Buddy and the Crickets across the sea to England. It was there that a whole generation of Rock-n-Rollers were influenced by Holly, including a couple of lads from Liverpool who went on to write their own chapter in the history of Rock and Roll — namely Paul McCartney and John Lennon.

The 1996 edition of the Clovis Music Festival has put together a blend of old and new to commemorate the beginning of the Norman Petty Sound. Two concerts have been scheduled for Friday and Saturday Nights of the Festival. Friday night's line up begins with the return to the Festival of the Fireballs.

The 10th Annual Clovis Music Festival is sponsored in part by Sunwest Bank of Clovis, Citizen's Bank of Clovis, Lewis was honored for his contributions to the dental profession, as well as his involvement in his community.

The Wall of Honor is housed in the Presbyterian Dental Clinic of the Community Health Center of Lubbock, where dental care is provided to the under-privileged. It serves as an area where accomplishments and contributions of dental society members are commemorated with as director and prseident of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce, Chairman of the Steering committee of the Economic Development Forum, and board member of the Muleshoe Area Industrial Foundation.

He has served as trustee and president of the Muleshoe Independent School District, and chairman of the Bailey County Hospital Authority and hospital district.

Rural addressing a step toward enhanced 9-1-1

By JOANNA GALLMAN Journal staff writer

Street addresses and house numbers could be in the future for Bailey County residents who live outside the Muleshoe City limits.

The Bailey County Sheriff's Department, in cooperation with Five Area Telephone Coop., has devised a plan that would divide the county into blocks similar to those in town.

Sheriff Jerry Hicks said that even people who live out in the county will eventually have house numbers and street addresses.

Spurred by the implementation of 9-1-1 services in Bailey County and the need for efficiency in emergencies, work on the project began two years ago.

Clay Kidd, an employee of Five Area, and Don Carter, a Bailey County deputy, constructed a map designating road, block and house numbers throughout the entire county.

"We physically drove every road in the entire county and numbered them and gave each house a number, " Kidd said, adding that the system, once complete, will be sent to South Plains Area Governments (SPAG) for approval.

"It goes in stages," Kidd said. "It's going kind of slow right now because people move in and out. But we nearly have all the house and road numbers ready to turn into SPAG.'

The dirt roads in the county were numbered from the northwest corner of the county and according to the direction they run.

Roads that run north and south are numbered with three digits, with the last digit representing a tenth of mile. For instance, a road with the number 4 would indicate that it impression will you leave on our environment?

The first step in learning how to protect our environment is to learn to appreciate what we have.

Take a close look at the environment around you. It's very special and it takes special attention and care to keep it that way. That's why, since 1961, we've utilized recycled effluent, or waste water, rather than fresh drinking water in our cooling towers.

You, too, can help preserve our environment and natural resources by cleaning up litter, recycling, and by making Smart Energy Choices". Consider energy efficiency when purchasing a new electric appliance. Weatherize your home. Conserve energy where you can.

And never forget where you live. The impression you leave will be a lasting one.

Some Floods Are Caused By "Leaky Faucets"

We all have times when the winds and waves of sorrow or pain or perplexity threaten to swamp us and send the vessels of our lives to the bottom. When those winds howl, we recognize the threat. It's no fun to ride out a storm.

But I'm convinced that it is not always the stormy downpour of pain that capsizes lives; it is something more akin to the "drip, drip, drip" of a leaky faucet. One incessant drip at a time until the ship is about to go down and the crew hardly saw it coming.

Drip. It's another medical bill. Drip. Now it's the car.

Drip. Now it's the car

Drip. Here come college costs. Drip. A job in which you can never say, "I'm done."

Drip. A drip of a boss that seems impossible to please.

Drip. Nagging thoughts about the direction of your life.

Drip. So many "hats" to wear, and the pressure of trying to do a good job at all of them.

Drip. Too many "yes's" to too many commitments.

Drip. Drip.

Drip.

And suddenly, though it really wasn't sudden at all, the boat is about ready to go down.

Isn't it the weight of the "drip, drip, drips" that lies at the heart of many "mid-life crises"?

How many of the folks who cut their marriage vows and run into the arms of another do it because they're really looking for excitement away from the "drips" of their everyday, ordinary lives?

How many people sitting in waiting rooms paying big bucks to find out that their maladies are stress-related are there really because of the "drips"?

What a weight of frustration and anxiety, anger and bitterness, we allow to rise in our lives—until we're on the way down and we are forced to notice them.

I confess. I'm better at setting up the problem than at providing answers. But a few things I know:

Even Jesus didn't cleanse every leper in Palestine or open every blind man's eyes in Jericho.

Even Jesus needed some quiet time away from constant "drip, drip, drips" of the needy people around Him. He needed time in the presence of the Timeless.

Anyone who trades his family's love and respect for a fling or for "success" is poor and pitiful no matter what his balance sheet says.

There were limits even to what God's Son tried to do in a day. But there were no limits to His love. Curtis Shelburne is minister of the 16th & Avenue D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

Hispanic agriculture honorable profession

"I'm concerned more Hispanics aren't going into agriculture as a profession." So spoke my old friend, Buddy, Hispanic himself. He was president of the state Ag Chemical Association. He had three grown children, none of whom showed any interest in their dad or grandad's agricultural livelihoods.

I have given this much thought since our discussion and I keep coming back to the same reason; maybe most Hispanics associate agriculture with hoes. They want to be as far from the reminders that their parents, grandparents or great-greats came across the border and spent their lives in toil.

In a recent survey of the 100 most influential Hispanics in American business, 77% of which were descended from Mexico and Cuba, not a single one had an agricultural affiliation. Over fifty percent were included in government, the majority of the rest were evenly divided between corporate business or were entrepreneurs. This certainly confirms Buddy's assertions.

I grew up in the Southwest. My home county is 65% Spanish speaking. I have a great respect for Mexican immigrants, legal or illegal. They have traits I admire; ambition, bravery, self-control, stamina and a desire to improve their condition. I like to think if I was trapped in hopeless class prejudice and economic oppression, I'd climb a wall or swim a river, too.

Mexican labor has been the backbone of Southwestern agriculture for centuries. Like every other race of immigrant people it is the first generation in a family that bares most of the burden and suffers the perils, the drudgery, the fear and prejudice.

people. The skills they possess include a feel for land and stock, dirt, water and produce. It is natural for them to seek work they are accustomed to.

A regular or even seasonal paycheck at minimum wage here in the land of plenty can make them a rich man back in their hometown in Mexico. Should they choose to stay and raise their family here they can earn a decent living. But they hope for a better life for their children. They send them to school and insist they speak English.

Yet, as Buddy says, rarely do these descendants pursue an occupation in the business where their ancestors have had such a great impact.

America today is becoming a service oriented society. It does not place much value on farming, mining or timber occupations. Matter of fact, it looks down on any job that involves manual labor.

But any farmer or cowboy can tell you it is honorable work that requires skill and gets your hands dirty. What is more manual than scooping a bunk, shoeing a horse, building a fence, blocking beets, or picking oranges?

Maybe with many Mexican Americans the memory of pickin' cotton is too fresh. But like Buddy, I agree that American agriculture could benefit from the now bilingual, educated, assimilated descendants of Senores Juan, Tomas, Jose and Maria, who gave them a start.

Agriculture for them offers more than just blisters and sore backs, Abuelito already paid that price.
