BOOMERANG IN COX CHARGES ANENT SLUSH

Levies Made on Salaries of Girls in Revenue Office, Shown.

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today wound up a two weeks' inquiry into charges of Gov. Cox that the Republican party is seeking a $15,000,000 fund.

The committee will meet again on Sept. 22 in either Washington or New York, Chairman Kenyon being empowered to choose the city.

Democrats Arraigned.

The committee had planned a meeting in Pittsburgh to investigate reports that Pennsylvania interests were taking an active part in financing the Democratic campaign.

Miss Eunice Coyne, a newspaper reporter in Aberdeen and Miss Jesse Burckhard, of Minneapolis, a clerk in the Aberdeen internal revenue collector's office, told of Democratic effort to raise money from girl clerks.

A copy of the letter sent to the girls who presented by Miss Coyne who said she received it from Miss Marian Armentrout, a stenographer.

The letter was from E. M. Waterbury, who, Miss Coyne said, told the girls he was acting for Clarence H. Mee, South Dakota chairman for the Democratic committee and father of J. Walter Mee, internal revenue collector at Aberdeen.

Text of Letter

The letter said: "The Democratic national committee is raising in this state a fund for campaign expenses and those who are participating in the benefits of office are asked to assist. You are cordially asked to arrange this matter by calling at the Sherman hotel, room 213, during the next three days."

Senator Kenyon characterized the solicitation of funds from girl employees of the government as "worse intamy" than the raising of thousands of dollars from men outside governmental circles.

BLACKS AND WOMEN RIOT ON DOCK AS PIERS ARE BLOCKED

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The "American women pickets" today resumed their drive on the White Star piers in an effort to tie up British liners until Cardinal Mannix is permitted to enter Ireland and MacSweeney is freed.

The steamship company today replaced its striking Irish longshoremen with negroes and today placed a band of negro girls at the pier.

There was disorder on the water front today in which a score of negroes and the same number of whites participated. Witnesses declare pistol shots were fired by both sides. One bystander was wounded.

Ranger to Honor War Hero; Services Monday Afternoon

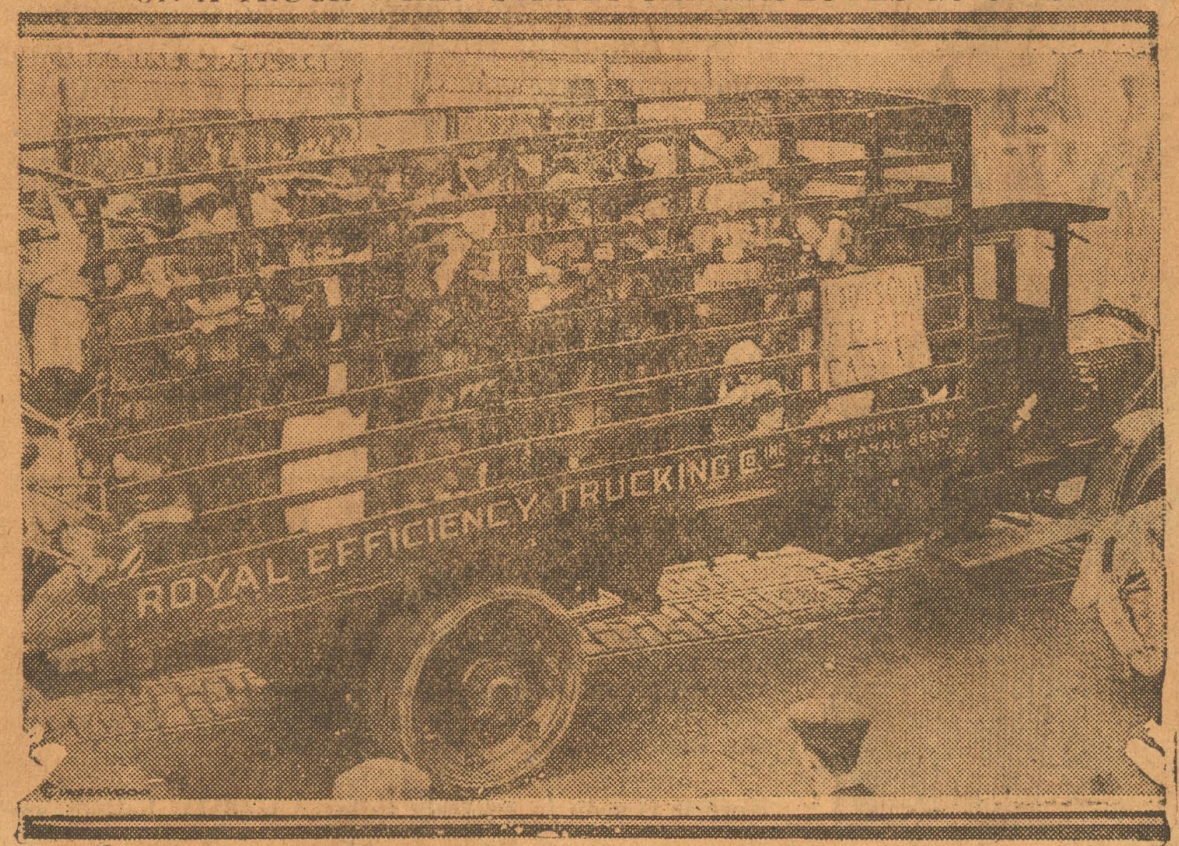

The body of Edgar Carl Barnes, Ranger war hero, for whom the local post of the American Legion is named, left Little Rock last night en route to Ranger and should arrive here Sunday night on the 7-20 train, according to telegraphic information received by the boy's father, James E. Barnes, from Captain John Wright, military guard of the body.

Funeral services probably will be held Monday afternoon, according to Evan J. Barnes, brother of Carl Barnes. Members of the Carl Barnes post No. 69, American Legion, and all former service men in Ranger are asked to meet at 214 Pine street, to take part in the guard of honor which will move from the Barnes home, Marston and Elm streets, to the Baptist tabernacle, where services will be held by the Rev. W. H. Johnson, pastor for the Barnes family, and the Rev. C. M. Collins, chaplain of the American Legion.

The cortege will go from the tabernacle to the Bullock cemetery, two miles north, for the burial services at the Barnes family lot.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of the American Legion post, which bears the Ranger hero's name.

PACKED IN LIKE SARDINES, BROOKLYN GIRLS RIDE HOME ON A TRUCK WHEN STREET CAR EMPLOYEES GO ON STRIKE

Over a million Brooklynites were delayed in getting to work and then delayed in getting home, by the walk-out of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit employees. Practically all of the routes were tied up completely. The photo shows how a number of girls employed in offices got home. Though packed in like the proverbial sardines they had a thoroughly good time.

HARDING MAKES PROMISES FOR BUSINESS MEN

Republican Nominee Addresses Largest Audiences From Front Porch.

MARION, O., Sept. 11.—An end of governmental meddling and bungling in the financial world and a "return to an era of sober business" was promised by Senator Harding today in addresses to several delegations of business men of Illinois and Indiana.

Charging the Democratic administration with waste in the conduct of its fiscal affairs and dictatorial intrusion in its relations with private enterprise, the Republican nominee said it was his purpose to wipe out many wartime restrictions and to return co-operation between government and business. In the reorganization of the government financial system, he said he would seek the advice of the nation's ablest administrators.

Revision of taxation and the tariff curtailment of profiteering, establishment of a federal budget system, reorganization of the postal service and a new merchant marine, were among the remedies he named.

He declared a conspiracy of "perfect accord" between the administration and the Democratic minority was seeking to perpetrate the war powers exercised by the executive.

The senator also touched on the big issue, declaring a discrepancy between the English and French texts of the covenant would have led to complications which in the practical workings of the league would have meant entire abandonment of the Monroe doctrine.

The visiting crowds of business men cheered the nominee as he hit at the business conduct of the Wilson administration and pronounced his own program of reform.

The number who heard the senator's two speeches marked the high peak of front porch crowds.

Cox Aligns on Side of Dry Forces

By Associated Press

SEATTLE, Sept. 11.—Prohibition, the great silent factor in the presidential campaign, was brought out openly as a campaign issue here tonight during the address of Governor Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for the presidency.

The governor after he had been introduced to a large crowd by George Cotterill, Democratic candidate for senator from Washington, denounced the aspirations on his candidacy as a friend of the "wets."

"As a progressive in government I know when an event has passed by and become a part of yesterday," the governor said. "The friends of world peace and progress will win this election, and any attempt to divert the attention of the people onto any question not an issue will be unavailing."

It was Governor Cox's first direct reference to the liquor question.

Calls Harding "Brewer." In introducing Cox, Cotterill charged that Senator Harding, Republican nominee had been a brewer for thirty years, owning stock in the local brewery at Marion, Ohio, and also had voted thirty times on the "wet" side. Cotterill also declared that Governor Cox's record in Ohio showed that he had passed and enforced a saloon closing law and was a general moral leader. The charges that he is a "wet" candidate are merely partisan politics, Cotterill asserted.

The stand taken by the governor in his speech tonight was determined upon today at a conference on the governor's special train, where he had been bombarded with newspapers and telegrams demanding that he declare his stand.

The way was paved for the governor's declaration by Mr. Cotterill in introducing the governor. Cotterill referred specifically to an attack made on Cox in today's Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a Republican newspaper which branded Cox as a "wet" and demanded that he declare himself and not "dodge" the question. The paper printed the alleged letter of George F. Carroll, president of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' association, dated July 22, which stated that Cox was a pronounced "wet" and should have the support of the liquor interests.

LIMITATION OF VALUE BY EXPRESS COMPANIES UP TO R. R. COMMISSION

Special to The Times.

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—The Texas Chamber of Commerce will ask the Texas railroad commission whether the state law forbids the limitation of valuation upon express shipments intrastate.

The request for a ruling is being made by the state chamber upon the request of several large shippers of Texas, who will join in the request for a ruling. A shipper must declare any valuation above $50 per 100 pounds, giving the company the right to charge a higher rate which in effect amounts to payments of insurance, according to provisions of interstate commerce commission. Failure to value shipment limits it to $50 per 100 in case of loss.

Traffic men of several large shipping houses of this state, however, are of the opinion that the state law forbids limitation of valuation on intrastate shipments, over which they contend the interstate commerce commission has no jurisdiction.

OKLAHOMA CITY MEETING PLACE 90TH DIVISION

By Associated Press

DALLAS, Sept. 30.—What is promised to be the largest gathering of former members of the justly famous Ninetieth Division since that organization was demobilized, will be the second annual reunion, to be held in Oklahoma City Sept. 25, 26 and 27. Special rates of one and one-third round trip fare have been granted by all railroads from all points in Oklahoma and Texas. Date of sale of tickets will be from Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive, with return limit of Sept. 29. Identification certificates can be secured from Arthur J. Reinhardt, secretary of the Ninetieth Division association, Dallas, Texas.

Anyone who served, at any time, with the Ninetieth Division is entitled to take advantage of this reduced rate and should write to the secretary for a certificate. Special trains will be run from main points in Texas and Oklahoma arriving in Oklahoma City Saturday morning, Sept. 25.

It is expected that Major General Martin, Brigadier Generals O'Neil and McAlexander will be present. Major General Henry P. Allen, who organized the division at Camp Travis and commanded it throughout its fighting, is still in command of the American army in Germany and is not expected to attend the reunion.

MEN WHO SOUGHT TO DEFAUD FARMER ARE HELD FOR INQUIRIES

By Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Sept. 11.—Three men were arrested here last night for attempting to obtain $25,000 from J. F. Pittman, a rich farmer from near Marshall, Mo. Mr. Pittman reached here today and identified the three as the men who induced him to draw the $25,000 from his home bank for the purpose of purchasing oil stock.

AUTOPSY WILL BE HELD ON BODY OF OLIVE THOMAS

By Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 11.—An autopsy will be performed Monday on the body of Olive Thomas, the American moving picture actress who died Friday in the American hospital at Neuilly, it was announced tonight. The autopsy will be under the direction of the authorities.

GOLD MARKET SHOWS ACUTE REACTION IN DAY OF SHARP DROPS

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—In the face of the largest gold import movement of the year the local market for foreign exchange was more severely unsettled today. Remittances to London declined to lowest quotations in six months with consequent weakness of rates to leading continental European points.

Bankers and international brokers professed to be without information as to the cause of the recent reaction except to emphasize this country's predominant trade position. The current industrial unsettlement now reflected by conditions in England and Italy also was regarded as more than a sentimental factor.

Ranger Chief Ends Bandit Crime Trail

By Associated Press

When detective departments of Dallas and Fort Worth had grown despondent of capturing the leaders of the bandit gang whose depredations had extended to all parts of North Texas, it was left to Eugene Reynolds, chief of police of Ranger, and his aides, to capture the "brains" of probably the most daring high-jackers that have ever operated in this territory.

The actual capture of Charles Mims and R. F. Thompson, two of the most lawless members of the gang, was left to Chief Reynolds, who single-handed, forced the door of the room in the Moore hotel on Oak street in which they had taken refuge after a running gunfight with Ranger citizens, and made them both captive. This is the accomplishment of the youngest chief of police in the United States.

While it is admitted that chance led to the capture of the two outlaws, it is a known fact that Chief Reynolds had information that sooner or later would have led to their capture. Only in a slightly lesser degree is John Barnes, deputy sheriff, to be commended in this respect. He exposed himself to the fire of the two drunken bandits and ceased to shoot only when his legs were shot from under him.

Those who take brawniness and great height to be concomitants of courage are commended to Chief Reynolds, who is a man of short though wiry stature.

ALL IRELAND HOLDS MASSES FOR M'SWEENEY

By Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Terence MacSweeney, the lord mayor of Cork, was in a very exhausted condition tonight. He is still suffering severe pains in his head and body, but retains consciousness.

This bulletin was issued at 2 o'clock this morning and the general impression of both official and unofficial sources is that death may be expected at any hour. It is evident that the officials take this view, for the guard has been doubled. While a fortnight ago crowds of Irish people hung about the Brixton prison, where MacSweeney is confined, tonight there were hardly a dozen, aside from the reporters.

Masses will be held in many Irish churches Sunday if MacSweeney is still alive.

MacSweeney Mass Stops Cars. DUBLIN, Sept. 11.—This city was without tramway service today from 10 o'clock until noon, in order that a street railway men might attend a mass for Terence MacSweeney.

KANSAS SPONSOR AT COTTON PALACE NAMED

By Associated Press

TOPEKA, Sept. 11.—Governor Albin of Kansas today named Miss Margaret Stubbs, daughter of a former governor, to represent this state at the Texas Cotton Palace, which opens at Waco on Nov. 9. The appointment is in response to a request made by Governor Hobby of Texas.

Woman's Tale Is Not Upheld; Bosley Freed

By Associated Press

Mike Bosley, chief of the Ranger detective department, who was held for several days following charges of Mrs. Dan Hamilton, who was arrested in connection with the robbery of Charles Mims and a companion high-jacker here three days ago, for complicity in the hold-up of a poker game above a local garage, was released yesterday on a $750 appearance bond. Bosley was released first on his own recognizance and later mailed the bond from Ranger to Eastland after he had returned home.

The release of Bosley was hailed in Ranger with commendation by friends of the detective, who scold the charge that he was in any way connected with the lawlessness of the high-jacker band and brand charges of the woman as being the veriest untruths. To buttress their statements they point to the record of Bosley as a police official which shows that he has been one of the most able members of the local force.

In a number of instances, friends point out, Bosley has been most aggressive in the hunting down of wrong-doers and has never wavered in his stand for enforcement of the law, city, county and state, as it is written. Bosley is held in high regard by his colleagues on the Ranger police force.

The appearance bond is returnable Oct. 1. Bosley declares that he is entirely willing to stand investigation now that it has begun and feels assured that full inquiry will show him to be in no way implicated.

Mims did not vouchsafe where he met Thompson and Hamilton. The Hamilton woman, who has been before the grand jury at Eastland several times since her arrest, gave police their first lead when she told of his boastful admittal that he was implicated in the Graham robbery.

Exclusive of his confession Mims told police that he and Thompson did not intend to high-jack the cabaret when they entered it. They merely wanted to drink, he said, and return to a hotel east of the Texas & Pacific tracks where they were "laying low." Mims and Thompson were arrested by Chief of Police Reynolds at the Moore hotel on Oak street following a running gunfight from the cabaret.

Mims said he and Thompson drew their guns in a moment of recklessness due to intoxication and "had to go through with it."

Mims Has Record. Mims was convicted of killing a man in Fort Worth and also was out on bond on an assault to kill charge at the time of his arrest. Police are making an effort to connect him and his companions with several robberies at Levey recently. They have thus far been unable to connect him with the high-jacking of a poker game in the Waldorf hotel at Dallas some time ago. Mims formerly was a service car driver at Fort Worth.

Detectives from Dallas and Fort Worth have been working with police of Ranger and Eastland on the case. In company with an escort of deputy sheriffs, Mims was taken to Fort Worth yesterday afternoon.

Prisoner Peeved When Police Won't Allow I. W. W. Literature Circulated in Their Lockup

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 11.—William Foland, alias William Hoffman, is peeved because the city officials refuse to allow him to carry on his campaign of "educating the proletariat" by distributing radical literature among prisoners. Foland, a self-acknowledged I. W. W. organizer, was arrested Tuesday by a federal officer, charged with arson at sea. His record is under investigation by the department of justice.

He is accused of setting fire to the barge Northern No. 30, burned at Wilmington, N. C., last week. When arrested here he was on the point of boarding the steamer Clearton, on which he had signed as a member of the crew. He had with him a suit case full of I. W. W. literature and inflammable reading matter. A batch of I. W. W. song books was in the collection. The title on the back of the book is "Songs to Fan the Flames of Discontent." Immediately upon his delivery to the jail he asked permission of the authorities to distribute his literature among the prisoners.

Among his belongings were found reports books with stubs showing where he had collected I. W. W. membership dues throughout the West and Middle West. In reference to the charge of burning the Northern 30, Foland simply said he was a member of the crew on the craft.

Tells of Fire on Barge.
"I shipped on her at Baltimore," he added, "for the prime purpose of organizing the crew. I find wonderful ignorance of the great principles of the I. W. W. prevalent in the East. I have traveled extensively in the West, and out there there is a strong sympathy for our movement, but the proletariat in the East has been steeped in ignorance, primarily thru the newspapers, which are controlled by those wishing to keep the masses from organizing under the slogan, 'One for all, all for one.' They are so ignorant that they believe what they read in the newspapers, and the result is that the I. W. W. is looked upon in the East as representing bloodshed and violence.

Foland appeared to relish the idea that he was to be prosecuted. He seemed to appeal to him as if he were to be a martyr to a cause. When asked on what charges he was held, he replied: "They accuse me of having burned a barge, and I think there are eight or nine other charges of being an I. W. W., distributing literature etc., against me."

The self-acknowledged I. W. W. organizer did not hesitate to tell of his experiences on the barge.
Asked to Stay Overnight.
"When we reached Wilmington—I think it was last Wednesday—the captain paid me off and told me to go ashore. I feared I would be unable to get a room ashore, so I asked him to let me sleep on the barge that night. He finally agreed. Then I went ashore to look the town over. As I was leaving, I heard somebody remark that the barge was loaded with acid to be used in connection with the manufacture of fertilizer and that if a fire should break out it would be impossible to save the barge.

"I came back to the barge about 10 o'clock and went aft to my bunk. Half an hour later somebody came running back yelling 'Fire!'

"I knew better than to rush off the barge; I knew somebody would think I had something to do with the fire if I should hurry off. So I stayed in my bunk until the smoke got so thick I had to leave. Then I went on the dock and asked a fireman to let me hold a hose, for I knew that the I. W. W. wasn't popular down there, and I didn't want to excite suspicion and hurry away.
"I heard the captain telling one of the men to whom the cargo was consigned that he couldn't imagine how the fire started—that he was certain no member of the crew had been in the forepeak where the blaze was discovered. So, of course, I couldn't have set fire to it."

Foland apparently is thirty years old. He says he is an American.

Thirty-four thousand women in England must go to work because of the discontinuance of the government's pension of 15 shillings a week to the unemployed.

FIRST WOMAN TO VOTE UNDER THE 19TH AMENDMENT

Miss Margaret Newburgh.

Women in many states have voted under the operation of state suffrage law, but Miss Margaret Newburgh, of South St. Paul, Minn., probably was the first woman to vote in the United States under the nineteenth amendment to the federal constitution. She appeared at the polling place at 6 a. m. on August 27, the occasion of a special election on a municipal bond proposition, and was the first to vote in her precinct.

Answer the Beckoning Finger of Autumn

With Fashion's Newest Finery

We are prepared for this change of the seasons with a splendid assortment of new apparel and accessories. Our receiving room is in a constant flurry checking off new goods brought in by every incoming express. All goods were bought under the most favorable conditions from the best known sources of good value and high quality. So you can come tomorrow and buy with as much satisfaction, or more, than if you waited. While later stocks will be larger, we'll have no better values nor styles. Oftentimes the choicest lines arrive first, and there is no gainsaying the pleasure derived from a full season's wear. College girls, particularly, will find we have just the things they will need—smart suits and dresses in the most youthful appealing styles.

THE NEW SUITS

"Paris is smartly tailored," announces one of the London dailies, and when Paris goes in for a thing we usually meekly follow, but the funny thing in this instance is, we are given the credit for this latest whim. It seems the smart uniforms of our women war workers "over there" did not pass unnoticed, and Paris has adopted the tailleur as her newest innovation.

Here it is seen in severely tailored models, belted, semi-belted; also bloused and elongated effects, either depending solely upon pleasing lines or richly ornated with fur, braid, embroidery or buttons. All are man-tailored garments, developed of the best fabrics and full of smart styles. Rich, supple Velours, Yalamas and the more elegant Tricotines.

There are modest little Serges and Tricotines popularly priced at

$35.00 $45.00 $50.00 $65.00 $72.50

CHARMING DRESSES

Smartly tailored Tricotine with pleats, panels, braiding, beading and touches of gay embroideries. Also soft, shimmering Satins, Charmeuse and Crepe Meteors and crisp little Taffetas, in graceful drapes, tunic and princess effects with frills, beading and embroidery.

The silhouette is now established, and the time has come for every woman to cast off her admiring uncertainty and select her type. She will find an interesting variation here at almost any price she may choose to pay, and by the way, prices, as compared with those of last year, are remarkably reasonable.

The better dresses of Tricotine and Silk range from $49.50 to $72.50. A bevy of charming styles in the Wool Tricotines, exploiting the Redingote, the Directoire and the Princess effects.

$29.50 $69.50

HAND BAG HANDLES

It's the fashion to carry a ribbon or velvet bag-to harmonize with one's costume, and here are the proper handles for making one to order:

Celluloid, in all colors, $1.50 to $3.45
Metal Handles, $1.45 to $1.75.
Metal and Celluloid, $3.45 to $6.95.

These sweaters are beautifully made of the softest wool, and may be had in all the pretty Autumn shades. They possess many becoming style features which will gladden the heart of any school girl or miss. Come in a variety of colors.

$7.50 to $27.50

Canada's Citizens Just Will Stray Oven Into States

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Canada's census figures have always been disappointing. Canadians are not an unworldly race, and when in the decade 1901 to 1911 unprecedented immigration figures were constantly proclaimed it was a great disappointment to find the 1911 census gave a population of only 7,204,828. Those who predict 9,000,000 for the 1921 census are likely to get a similar shock. We will be lucky to have 8,000,000.

The fact is that Canada may have learned to attract population, but it has not learned how to keep it from going over to the United States. And all governments have persistently concealed the facts by giving immigration figures yearly and monthly, but neglecting to give emigration figures at all. No one expected Canada to make much population during the war period. European immigration was all cut off. Sixty thousand Canadians went to overseas graves, a certain number of British soldiers, former Britishers, remained overseas, and since the war there has been a considerable movement to Europe to look up friends after the storm and perhaps to invest war earnings. But the immigration department's figures coming out month after month showed, as more than offsetting all these things, a considerable movement into Canada from the United States. Even in 1919, the year of the low ebb in immigration, 40,715 persons came from the United States to Canada. And nearly every one thought that, even for the war period Canada's population increase would show a balance on the right side.

GOAT GLANDS BUNK, SAYS CENTENARIAN WHO IS BRIDEGROOM

By W. BOYD GATEWOOD, International News Service Staff Correspondent.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 11.—"Goat gland theories and physical culture fads as retainers or restorers of youth are absolute bosh. I am one hundred years of age and a bridegroom, and I have no more need for goat glands than a boy of twenty-two."
Such is the thought of Dr. Andrew Malcolm Morrison, author and lecturer, whose centennial anniversary jubilee is a honeymoon with his seventy-two-year-old bride, formerly Dr. Mary Augusta Barney, musical composer and author of medical essays of professional note.
In the charming new home, provided as a "love nest" by the happy groom, the newlyweds discoursed on the secrets of longevity and the philosophy of love.
"Seventy-two years too old to marry?" exclaimed the vivacious Mrs. Morrison. "Nonsense! Why it takes a girl who is 'sweet seventy-two' to find a man interesting enough to marry these days," she laughed.
"And who would want to marry a silly child much younger?" chimed in the centenarian.
"People, first of all, must get away from the mistaken idea that at sixty or seventy years their life is through," he explained. "As a matter of fact at that age one is still in his or her youth." In Ireland, where I lived the first sixty years of my life, I recall many men who were one hundred and thirty to one hundred and forty years old.
"The idea that old age comes at sixty is a popular fallacy, a sort of universal hypothesis that dulls youth past sixty when it ought to be powerful and complete.
"I was born on June 4, 1820, and to-day I am just as able a man as ever during my career. I can walk twenty-five miles without resting and perform other considerable physical feats. Mentally I was never more vigorous or sound."
"Most emphatically I declare all goat gland theories and physical culture fads to be absolute bosh. The fellow who thinks he needs a goat gland is the goat himself. My own rules for sustained youth are very simple:
"First of all, I advise nine hours sleep of every twenty-four, one hour of sleep right after the noonday meal.

"Second, plenty of fresh air. It is the great revitalizer of fading strength.
"Third, diet is of great importance. One should eat plenty of fruit and have plenty of water to drink. Remember, the body is 80 per cent water and requires a great fluid supply. Personally, my diet consists of two shredded wheat biscuits with cream or a similar cereal, an egg, always fruit and coffee for breakfast; for luncheon, which is really dinner for me, I take a slice of fish (rarely ever eat meat) a few boiled potatoes and lots of other vegetables and fruits. Supper, I usually omit, or eat sparingly and light.
"Smoking is injurious.
"Drinking of any fermented wines or distilled liquors destroys youth. The biblical wines referred to were of the pure juice of the grape, and that is excellent for one.
"A wholesale avoidance of all excesses is unalterably essential to a long and robust life. One cannot spend one's life stores in a decade and expect them to last the prescribed time nature planned.
"Love is nature's most divine gift. One may love more than once, but each love must be single to that time. Many loves together and more or less transient are ruinous."
"Is one just as romantic at one hundred as at twenty-one?" he was asked.
"The eyes of the doctor twinkled.
"Not a thing to say; not a thing, I shall let Mrs. Morrison answer that."
"Age hasn't anything to do with romance or love," declared the bride. "The doctor insists that I pursued him—but it was just the other way around. Our courtship wasn't a hasty affair. We were friends for thirteen years. I believe we knew our minds before we married each other. As for my age—well, the doctor can tell he is one hundred if he wants to, but I have long since stopped telling my age. What's the necessity? I just forget about my birthdays, you see."
The delighted bridegroom raised his eyes to heaven at the unchanging vanity of women.
"And with much merry repartee going on between them they were left to their honeymooning—the century-old bridegroom and the vivacious bride of seventy-two.

"SOME BABY"

By International News Service.
DECATUR, Ind., Sept. 11.—The largest normal baby in the United States, in the belief of the parents is Laurese, child of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Myers, living in Washington township near here. The babe, born August 29, 1919, weighed fifteen pounds at birth. On its first birthday it weighed forty-five pounds, having shown consistent, rapid growth. The parents are small, the father weighing 150 pounds and the mother 135. Each less than five and one-half feet tall.

His Place Was Full

"Will you have a chicken?" tenderly asked the Leap Year Girl, who had taken Ferdie to dinner.
"Er—I thank you," he blushing replied. "The honor is appreciated. But

EXPOUNDS PHILOSOPHY OF THE STRIKE-BREAKER

He expounded the philosophy of the strikebreaker, during a block on Brooklyn bridge. He didn't know it was Brooklyn bridge, although he was a conductor on a B. R. T. surface car, and appeared interested on learning the structure had a name because he had heard of it. Then he wanted to know the name of the body of water it spanned.
Whether he knew it was Manhattan toward which his car was headed did not develop.
He was one of those who are so considerate of the delicate mechanism of the registers on the street cars that they do not even attempt to operate them.
"The saps" are on the elevated trains," he remarked. "You don't know the difference between finks and saps? The finks are the wise fellows who get the good runs where they handle coin, while all the saps get their $15 a day."
"It isn't all velvet on a street car run, you understand. First off you have to slip the lieutenant of strikebreakers $20 to give you a chance. Then you have to split with the motorman. My motorman is a good one—he can lick any three fellows of his size—so I split fifty-fifty with him. The rest is yours."
"Why wouldn't we get it? We're taking chances. Monday, if the strike isn't over, we're going to have rough times on this run and I don't allow to take the risk for nothing. Besides, I have to make enough to carry me through college this year."
The passenger, whose nickel rested peacefully in the "fink's" pocket—with no fare rung up—looked at him more attentively at this remark. He observed that he was a clean cut, well built young fellow of distinctly higher grade than most of the imported hands who are operating B. R. T. cars.
I've just been working as a switchman in the Chicago yards," the "fink" continued. "Cleaned up $1,000—enough to pay my bills. I wasn't long out of the hospital."

"That's a job for you. Perhaps you get a night shift in the yards. The switchmen have been out since March and they're not tender hearted. Sometimes ten of them would surround a strikebreaker and each one would hit him once with whatever was handiest. Then if any were caught they could say they had only struck the man one blow and that couldn't hurt him much. But ten cracks like that might cripple or kill him."
"We got $15 for an eight hour day, sometimes a double day, and food and lodging. Swifts furnished cigars for some of the men, too. Fifteen a day isn't bad—it's $5,000 a year, if you figure it out for fifty-two weeks."
He lighted a cigarette to ameliorate his weight. The motorman was smoking too. They all do it, whether the car is standing still or running. Discipline is not in the strikebreakers vocabulary.
"They're a lot of bums," the conductor continued, speaking of his fellow "finks."
"I hope I never see any of them again when I get through with this job. But the pay's good, and sometimes, like this, the picking's good, and you can work fifty-two weeks a year if you want to. I was in the Frisco strike and at Louisville, and I haven't been "bumped off" yet."
"Did you say they call this Brooklyn bridge?"—New York World.

"Do you know young Simpson?"
"I should say I do. I lent him a fiver."

HATS OFF TO THE PAINTERS

Ranger should take its hats off to the Painters' union. They are regular citizens and have the kind of spirit that is an asset to any town.

To prevent possible delay in finishing the new school buildings the painters propose that they would paint the buildings free of charge if the materials are furnished them.

This proposal is an outcome of a controversy between the union and the contractor as to the wages that should properly be paid for the job.

The school work of Ranger was in a position to suffer from the delay. The painters stated they could not sacrifice their principles and do the work for less than the scale of wages which they have decided upon as fair and reasonable.

Attempts to browbeat California into dropping all its lawful efforts to protect itself from an overwhelming invasion of Asiatics, not immediate but as certain as the laws of nature, are based on a vain hope to temporize with a question which should be promptly settled.

A FORWARD STEP.

When Ranger's fire department adopted the double platoon system, it took a forward step which will go a long way toward placing the local fire department on a parity with those in the larger cities.

The chance to get away from the everlasting routine of the job will be a good thing for the fireboys, just as it is for the doctor, the plumber or the garage man.

TRUTH A SLACKER.

The trouble with truth is that it doesn't go far enough. It is good as far as it goes, but then fiction overtakes it and rounds out a complete whole.

One who sits still doesn't get anywhere. That evidently is the conclusion reached by Senator Harding. His announcement that he will travel to the Pacific coast and to the East is proof of his belief that it is easier to go to the voters than to get them to come to you.

We really sympathize with Bertie C. Johnson over being recaptured by the Mexican bandits from whom he had escaped. But we also opine that if he had made long and hasty tracks from thereabouts instead of stopping to give them a salute, his condition would be more fortunate.

IRISH IN NEW YORK INCITE LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE

Irish sympathizers picketing the docks in New York.

Irish sympathizers in New York city are doing their best to incite a strike among longshoremen against British ships. They have been partially successful.

Some of the pickets at the docks are seen in the picture with their banners. One of them reads: "Oilers stokers, trimmers! Britain won't dare penalize you for your brave help Irish workers see to it. STICK!" Another bears this legend: "And shall MacSwiney die? And shall MacSwiney die? There's twenty million Irishmen will know the reason why."

Women's footwear will be fancy this fall, say shoe manufacturers. Prices will harmonize, we take it.

Strange, isn't it, that a check is never included in the list of documents signed by historic personages which are now and then brought forward?

BAR THE ASIATICS.

Attempts to browbeat California into dropping all its lawful efforts to protect itself from an overwhelming invasion of Asiatics, not immediate but as certain as the laws of nature, are based on a vain hope to temporize with a question which should be promptly settled.

California and some other Pacific Coast States have a genial climate, in which the not very vigorous Japanese thrive. They can make money in agriculture and fruit growing, because they work from sun to sun and all members of the family, male and female, engage in regular work.

This is not a theory but a fact, proven by the migration of Americans from every district in which the Japanese have gained a foothold.

This is established by abundant data, gathered by the most reliable investigators, notwithstanding the efforts to cloud the facts made by persons of generally high repute, led by that monomaniac, Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, president of the Japanese commission of the federal council of the Churches of Christ, one of the organizers of the Japan Society of America, holder of a decoration of the Mikado given in 1909 and, incidentally, author of Article X in the covenant of the League of Nations.

The Chinese were excluded a generation ago. Some of the reasons urged were narrow. The Chinamen, however, are not and never have been as dangerous as the Japanese. They are honest and straightforward, while there is no cunning and no duplicity of which the Japanese are not capable. Furthermore the Japanese are patient, look a century ahead, have an ingrained belief that they are a superior race, destined to rule the earth, and they do not wish to be assimilated.

Any conception that would lead to progressive admission of the Japanese to America would mean an immense population before the end of this century. They would soon be the political balance of power in numerous states, perhaps enough to tip the scales in a national contest. But, as remarked before, they would remain unassimilated.

No one knows how and when we shall solve our negro problem, which we are almost afraid to think about. We are much concerned about the Americanization of Europeans, people of our own racial stock and of our own civilization and religion. To add to these elements in our population the Asiatics would be a crime against the future.

Mr. Harding, in his speech of acceptance, briefly mentioned immigration, declaring that future citizenship, rather than supplying immediate labor needs, must guide our policy. If this be the standard, the Asiatics must be excluded and the sooner this policy, which is one of self-preservation, of which we are the supreme and sole judges, is formally and finally settled, the better will be our relations with the Orient.—St. Louis Times.

Mhat Cha Mean, Bored? Hostess: My dear, you do look bored. I do hope you aren't concealing the fact that you find it dull. Artless Guest: Oh, no. Quite the contrary.—Judge.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Jazzing It Up. "Three more couples!" Sam used to call. "Be right at home now!" Then he would play a few strains on his old fiddle and soon the set would be complete. "Two more couples, one more couple! That's the way, Jim, make Sally come out! Now, all hands ready!"

The ice was broken and amid the applause of the few summer boarders from whose ranks were often recruited stray couples, the event of the week was on. Sam's lively fiddling rose above the din of shuffling feet. Long into the night farm folks and city folks enjoyed the dance together.

That was up until this year, when the Woman missed one familiar figure who used to fish in an idle paradise and board free in return for his Saturday night fiddling. And she also missed his fiddling on Saturday night when she chanced to be spending part of her holiday at the lake.

The old dancing platform was gone. In its place stood a pavilion around which were parked many automobiles. Summer boarders paid the high price of seventy-five cents to get in even if they only wanted to watch, and there were no local farmhands within the high walls at all. A venturesome few of them, younger folk, were clustered shyly where they could hear the music, which jazzed its blatant foxtrots and one-steps into the summer air. Now and then a dreamy waltz made the outsiders sway rhythmically, and under its spell many a rustic almost gathered enough courage to enter the pavilion.

"But Sally won't come in," Jim told the Woman. "Pop and mom don't come down any more becu'z they ain't allowed to join in. We're kind of scared of these new fandangoes, and the feller what's rdmin' the place wants it to be swell. He don't want any of these old fashioned square dances. Come on home, Sally, I guess we're chooloppers, all right!" The strains of a particularly savage jazz went the air. And the Woman's sympathy followed the two disappearing country youngsters, who even as they wended their way to the farm were doubtless conjuring up visions of running off to the city to learn the secrets of the god Jazz.

"Honi Soit."

Violet-sweatered and violet-hatted in perfect harmony, she stood on a Riverside corner looking boldly into each passing automobile.

"The brazen thing!" commented the thin spinster sitting next to the Woman on a quarter of the bench, divided equally by far-seeing park commissioners. "Just look at the way she's flirting with every man that comes along!"

The breeze from the river billowed the girl's baronet satin skirt while she held her floppy hat firmly in place. Along slid a chummy tan roadster, and a young Apollo heeled her flying skirts and waving arms, for he stopped his car, stepped out and exchanged a few words with her. She got in and they rode up town.

"What did I tell you?" The spinster's tones were acid.

Later a sedate little lady came and took another quarter of the bench. She, too, watched the passing parade of cars with vivid interest. Then she turned to ask the time, explaining as she did so: "My daughter's gone out for a little spin with her husband and she's to pick me up—why—here she is—" The tan car stopped at the curb. The violet-sweatered one waved gaily at the sedate lady, who joined the two some. The Woman looked around to see if the spinster had noticed, but she was staring primly down the Drive.

Implicit Obedience.

"What's the matter with you today, Edward? Your manners are dreadful. Don't spit out another thing and don't say another word. Now mind what I say."

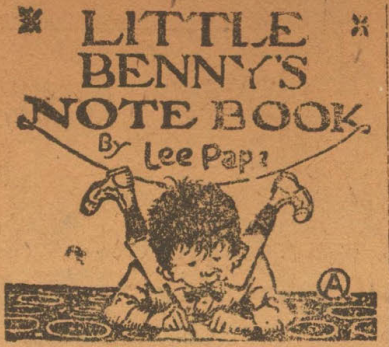

The mother's tone was decisive. If anything more had been needed to show the Woman that her friend meant what she said the expression in Edward's eyes would have proved convincing. Conversation was resumed at the point where it had been interrupted, and Edward lapsed into gloomy silence. His picnic was not panning out well, he felt. Suddenly, he gulped twice and made a horrible face. Edward what is the matter with you, anyway? I never saw such a face."

"Nothing now, mother, I just swallowed a bug and it didn't taste good!"

BIG TREE IN CHINA

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Chicago has a candidate for the Hall of Fame for trees. It is a giant white maple nine feet in circumference at the base, 80 feet high and estimated to be 1,000 years old.

The big maple stands in the Cook county forest preserve near Glenview. Ransome Kennicott, chief forester of the preserve, who recently examined the tree and computed its age, found that, while the heart was dead, the exterior was sound and the tree capable of lasting many more years. So far as known the tree is the oldest living thing in Illinois, according to Mr. Kennicott.

Nitros Yank Glorious Victory From Fire in Twelfth, 4 to 3

TODAY'S GAME.
With the series on an even footing, and Monday's match scheduled for Abilene, today's battle will be interesting. For the Nitros, it probably will be Lefty Adkins on the mound, with Red Hill possible. The opposition will send out Carl Hill again and he's hard to take. But Red has done it and Lefty can.

Every year the Grand Canyon of the Colorado is visited by folks with a writing knack or bent, who preface their remarks about the visit with the declaration that the canyon defies description and then go ahead and tell you how it looks. Which same might be said about yesterday's entertainment at our ball premises. So here goes:

Reviewing the bill in a calm moment, which, as every fan who attended the festivities knows, must have been several hours later, the conclusion was reached that every Nitro had a hand in the grand and glorious afternoon.

So teaming, our boys defeated the Eagles, 4-3, in a rally in the twelfth inning, after the game apparently had been lost in the opening half of that stanza. Some of the faint hearted fans had given it 3-2, before Ezell started running bases, Pemberton mixed in a bunt and Clapp and York dusted off their war clubs for a last stand.

Player by Player.
First: Tommy Harding spotted the Eagles to a two-run lead, thereby making the later events possible.
Then: Josh Billings entered and flung ten innings of grand ball, holding the Birds to the lead they had amassed on Tommy and making possible the knotting of the pastime at two each, in which condition it went into extra innings.

Jody Tate saved the Eagles from a third tally in the third, on his quick return of Bugs Young's bad chunk to third when Segrist got in a chase. Segrist was out at the plate.
Tommy Lovelace, two bused Dude Mooney across with the first run for the Nitros in the fourth.

Bugs Young drove a hot one at short, stole and rode across with the tying marker on Dude Mooney's clean drive along the left line in the sixth.
Jim Galloway saved a hit in the eleventh by a jump and stab on Ela Bogus.

When the Eagles hopped on Josh Billings in the twelfth and Segrist, Milam and Robinson rapped out a single and two doubles, for one run, Red Hill stepped in, issued a pass to White and then pinch fanned Crowson, Allison and Medina.
Ezell started the twelfth with a life on Medina's miscue and stole after Red Hill took two balls and a strike. Smilo Pemberton, replacing Red Hill at bat, delivered the perfect bunt, toward third, on which Segrist barely nuzzed him out.

Tied and Won.
Ezell, in a flash of white, made it from second to home, under Grady White, and was safe with the tying run.
Charlie Clapp busted a single to left, Jack York followed with another to right and Charlie kept on going to third.
Bugs Young reached for the first ball pitched, the only one offered by Carl Hill, who replaced Crowson, but could not reach it, and Charlie was in a chase. He hesitated back toward third, while Segrist took Grady's toss, then shuffled toward home, while Kal moved toward him.
Kal pegged it, hit Charlie, the ball came to the stand and Charlie scored. That ended it.
It was a gosh-awful day for thrills, you may believe.

Bravo, Josh!
The lion hearted work of the old master, Josh Billings, hurling an uphill battle from the first to the twelfth, wiped away the defeat he suffered in the first contest at Abilene.
Red Hill, with his pinch pitching, held the Birds to the one-run advantage they picked up so terrifically in the twelfth, on those three hits. Milam and Robinson's doubles were clear to the right barrier and Tommy's snappy work was all that held this trio of blows to one marker.

Pem's bunt, in the pinch, was made to measure. Buzz Ezell's base-running, scoring from second on the baby blow, was quite the dashiest thing of that nature that has ever been committed on the local lot.
All in all, it was SOME afternoon.
The game was one for the book. The thrills were enough for any one fan for a whole season. In passing, it was the first game of the title series that was really a contest. The first two were walkaways for the Eagles. The first that was happily the other way, with Nick Carter in the calcium glow, with a one-hit game.

Red Wins; Pat Loses.
Odd angles of the contest are these: Josh Billings, whose work kept the game within winning distance, was not the winning pitcher. But for subsequent breaks, he was the loser when he left the mound, having taken the game in a lost condition, but worked it into a tie, from which shape it was blasted by the first three Eagles to soar in the third extra inning.
Red Hill, whose brief fling was exquisite and commendable, won the game by the sixteen balls pitched to close the Eagles' twelfth. He was the winning pitcher.

Fund For Nitros Growing

It is only just and proper that the efforts of the Nitros, starting the title series under the heavy handicap of the temporary loss of Manager Galloway and then battling to put it on an even footing, should bring a fund of appreciation from the fans. Any club that will show the bull dog grit that the Galloways did yesterday, refusing at all stages to admit defeat, deserves the best.
Such a fund was suggested some weeks ago as the Nitros swung into the final stages of the second half drive and it got some impetus at that time. Right now the title race is on a fifty-fifty basis, and the fans can show that they are behind the club by kicking in with whatever amount they consider equitable, when the chance offers at Municipal park this afternoon.

The amount subscribed last night, when the fund was brought to life again, reached $500. These are the donations:
J. R. Scott $50.00
J. C. Galloway 25.00
Morris Levell 25.00
Ed Maher 25.00
M. H. Smith 25.00
Billy Burke 25.00
John Milford 25.00
Ralph Stockman 25.00
Rex C. Outlaw 25.00
Mills Daveport 25.00
Pete Davis 25.00
E. T. Gullahorn 25.00
E. B. Reid 25.00
M. R. Newham 25.00
L. R. Summers 25.00
Dr. A. N. Harkrider 25.00

Dr. C. O. Terrell 25.00
Joe Harness 25.00
E. J. Barnes 25.00
Lou Randall 25.00
Gate receipts the first two days of the home stay in the championship series will just about equal what was received at Abilene, which was about $1,500. As the players only get a share in the gate of the first four games, they will divide, as their share of the championship money, $3,000 less the $300 which goes to the league. This will make the winners' 50 per cent come to $1,620. Each member of the winning club will get a little more than $100, and each member of the losers around $70.
Ranger fans should be able to at least tie the amount for the Nitros that will come to them for their fight in the series.

he allowed lone blows, Segrist coming the nearest to scoring in the fourth.

He doubled after Bogus was called out on strikes and Ezell pegged out Kizziar, Kal snared third when Bugs' throw was wild, but Tate scampered to the weeds after the ball, snapped it to the plate and Young had Kal out.

In the fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth, tenth and eleventh it was three up, three down against Josh.

In the fourth Manager Jim handled every ball hit, getting assists on Milam, Robinson and White. Josh threw just five balls.

Kal Segrist, much kidded, did some terrific hitting. He got three in five times, one a double. He hammered in two Eagle tallies and scored the third himself.

There were lots of fans that wouldn't have given a dime for our chances when the twelfth was well started and the count was Abilene 3, Ranger 2. But the true and loyal didn't give up. And Red justified their hopes.

Josh neatly caught Lake Robinson napping in the seventh. He had him off, flat-footed, and the Eagle right gardener died a victim to Ezell's speed. York tossed to Buzz, who promptly ran the boy down.

The first inning took nearly a half hour. The first nine were played in 1:45 and the time on the whole contest was not bad—2:35. It was two hours and a half packed with baseball experience. The stand full of fans will tell their grandchildren about that one.

Kizziar was on second when Ezell came in on the run and took a short fly of Milam's in the ninth. It was a fast dash and good catch.

Bill Medina, swarthy Eagle short, robbed Lovelace twice, once in the second on a hit through the box to deep second territory and again in the ninth on a drive wide of short toward third. Bill's kick gave us the tying run, and Kal's the winning marker, but both played good baseball at other times.

Tommy pulled the remarkable for the second time this season in throwing Pat Crowson out on a rightful single to right in the fifth. It made Pat mad.

Eli Bogus tried the same stunt when Josh Billings cracked open the tenth with a single but Eddie Kizziar failed to hold Eli's throw, which came on a good hop and Josh took second.

That was only one of many chances the Nitros missed. In the tight place, Pat Crowson was invincible, until the twelfth.

In the first he pulled from a nasty jam when he hit Clapp, York sacrificed and Bugs Young singled to right. He whiffed Galloway, an unusual feat, and threw out Tate.

SATURDAY'S GAMES TIGHTEN MAJOR RACES

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Cleveland is only a fraction of a point ahead of New York in the American league race, while Brooklyn goes ahead of Cincinnati in the National league as a result of today's play. The three leaders in the American, including Chicago, are bunched closer than at any previous time since their three-cornered race began.

Manager Jim Galloway Takes Helm at Dallas Next Season

Most of the Ranger fans who are expected to bulge out Municipal park this afternoon may see Jimmy Galloway for the last time as manager and key-stone of the Nitro club. He won't be back as manager if the title series is terminated at Abilene.
Jimmy will manage the Dallas Marines next year. And he expects, and Ham Patterson expects, and Marin fans expect that just as at Ranger his being there in the infield and in the clean-up berth in the batting order and at the helm of the Dallas club will make the Marines contenders in the Texas league race, as the Nitros have been in the West Texas battle.

The deal has been pending since Ham Patterson's visit to Ranger a month ago. He and Jimmy have been close friends for years and he has a keen appreciation of the worth of the Nitro skipper. He broached the matter at that time, and with a joint proposition which makes the offer more than just the management of the club, he cornered Jim's interest. It was closed the past week.

What They Need.
The Dallas club is well financed. It has a money making bet, even this season, when the Marines have never been real contenders. It has much dinero to spend for new players. It needs the player-manager with the ability to gather them together and make them into a ball playing machine. Jim is that.

He has done it here. He started with nothing at all, though some of his worst West Texas opponents had the nucleus of clubs in semi-pro circles or in the old Central Texas. He made a club of youngsters that has given Ranger better than usual minor league baseball, won half honors, and a chance at the title, protected the men who put their money behind in Ranger and sold four players to higher company.

It is interesting to note that in his management of the Marines next season Jim will have seven players besides himself who are in the Abilene-Ranger series. The Marines have purchased Nick Carter and Joe Tate from the Nitros and get Lefty Adkins back. Though St. Louis has a string on Homer Ezell, it is possible that Manager Jim may have a chance to use that rapid young man in his Dallas infield.

Carl and Gomez Hill, star Eagle flingers, have been grabbed by Ham Patterson and Kal Segrist, the young phenom infielder, also goes to that club.
Jim is more than a smooth infielder, with the prettiest under handed throw from any fielding position of any man in any company, bar none. He is more than a batter whose blast in the pinch is the worry of any pitcher. He is more than a handy worker and manager. He is a leader, with that about him which compels the respect and warm friendship and best effort of the men who follow him.

Jim Can Do It.
With the Dallas nucleus and the youngsters which Ham Patterson has been buying generously, and the money that the club has and is willing to spend, Jim can give them a Texas league entry that will make other cities of the circuit step out.

There is not too much that may be said for his work at Ranger. Without a possible exception he was the pick of the league as a leader, and in every town of the circuit they know Jim and they like him. His club is one that reflected his quiet sportsmanship and his love of clean play. Never slow to take advantage of a turn in luck, knowing the breaks of the game and looking for them, not backward to demand a fair break on close decisions, he never was a trouble maker or an umpire bather, and he would let none of his men be. No one of the Ranger club represented their interests in an argument but Jim. He always did it in a quietly persistent way. All season he did not take a fine and was not ordered from a game, excepting only the last two innings of the Eastland battle in the mud labor day.

His club was the cleanest in play and with umpires of any, and took the fewest fines. The season was two-thirds gone before a Nitro had a fine, and but two were assessed then on protests on decisions on balls and strikes, ordered by McDonald who was mighty quick on the trigger with his assessments.

Jim's Pay Here.
Here's an angle you may not have known, fans. All season Manager Jim has played without a cent of salary. Not that he won't get the pay that's due him. But with the backers who made a stock company of the ball association game, if not a shortage, then an abbreviated financial rating, Jim didn't take out any money. He didn't even have himself down as due. Of course, he'll get his, what with the purchase money for Hudspeith, Carter, Tate and Boyer coming in.

Perhaps the bugs who have found occasion to ride the Nitro leader (and they have been few, praise be) may read this and shake out a blush. It is to be hoped that they do, if ever a manager deserved whole-hearted support and approval, it is Jim.

He played in every Nitro game up to the second title match, when a very severe injury to his back from a fall kept him out. He was forced by it to retire early in the first championship game with Abilene. Having to leave the game hurt the Nitro leader far more than it did the morale of the boys behind him, who suffered mightily. He got back in the third game, Friday, though he was not yet recovered from that fall.

Because that's the sort of a man he is, in his last season prior to this in organized ball, before being measured for a uniform in Uncle Sam's all-star team which knocked Bill Hohenzollern's entry out of the world's series, he played with the Vernon club, with a schedule of 210 games in the Pacific Coast league. Jimmy played in 211 games, getting the extra contest by reason of a tie. And he was in every inning of those 211 games.

Jim's career as a manager in the Texas league will be watched with warm wishes for success by every true Nitro fan, by his many friends in West Texas circles and by the boys all round the country who have known him as a teammate and player.

Lucky Marines.

Ranger this afternoon—this might be called Galloway day at Municipal park—says good-bye to one of the best leaders that ever tapped the rubber in this or any other league, a ball player from his spikes to the button on his cap, a gentleman and a regular fellow.

Best luck, Jim.

BRITISH PUGS LACK POWER TO PUNCH SO IN DEMAND FOR K, O.

By PAUL BREWSTER,
International News Service Special Correspondent.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—"It is time that our young boxers developed an appreciation of the power of a punch. For many years it has been a gossip in British boxing circles that it is cleverness which wins. In a measure that is true, but there remains the fact that one punch that is hard enough and delivered in the right place will by its effectiveness more than counterbalance all the scientific scoring of points which might have been accomplished by the receiver of the big hit in the preceding rounds."

Thus writes "Corinthian," a well-known English sporting writer in the Daily Chronicle.

The same sentiment is being echoed by other sporting writers in London newspapers. Even the good old conservative, straight-faced papers which are read by commuters in first-class railroad compartments on their way to London have taken this subject.

Their style in dealing with boxing is somewhat heavy, but it suits the mentality of the upper crust of English society who take the main art of self-defense quite seriously. The general opinion gleaned from the London newspapers is that the English are waking up to the fact that in developing their scientific and clever scrappers they have overlooked the fact that an English pug has to pack a laymaker to get away with any of the titles that are held by Americans.

Freddy Welsh is an example of this school of British boxers. It is to be remembered that Freddy could step backward around the ring about twice as fast as the average fighter could step forward.

A certain London newspaper considered quite "low brow" declares that the English boxers are too "ladylike" for the American and French bruisers. The trouble lies, this paper urges, in the English system of scoring on points and not on the damage done unless there is a knock-out. As soon as this is changed there will be a new generation of Englishmen in the squared circle who will fight and not box.

This statement is substantiated by a number of international bouts held during the past year in which English scrappers have been walloped into dreamland.

Joe Beckett says that he was just feeling Georges Carpentier out when the Frenchman hit him. Maybe so, but Georges didn't try to score on points. He just hit—P! say he did.

Johnny Basham, the British welterweight champion, is a clever feather puncher, but he didn't stand a chance with Kid Lewis with his experience in the American ring. Lewis probably lost on points in the majority of rounds, but he damaged Johnny so badly that his seconds had to throw up the towel in order to save their man from being cut to ribbons. Basham has plenty of stamina also, but he hasn't a layo walloper in his makeup.

Ledoux, the French bantam champion, made short work of Higgins, the British champ, yet getting up again. He finally wore himself out climbing back on his feet and couldn't make it. He was counted out.

After the battle was over, Gum Boots relieved himself of a statement, so that the world might know how he felt about it. He didn't want any more of Mr. Dempsey's game and was willing to admit that, so far as he was concerned, Mr. Dempsey was right then the champion of the world or of anything else he chose to name. That was before Dempsey met Jess Willard in their fight for the title.

There was a time when Smith spent his time tipping over the hopes of ambitious heavyweights, but he dubbed several chances to get into bigger game, notably when he lost to Georges Carpentier in London.

Still the old gunner should not be denied his chance at the title if he feels that his comeback is a success. Dempsey probably will knock him for a Babe Ruth home run, but then again he may not. At any rate, there won't be any great gushing of the public teeth if the match is made.

Texas leads in the National Guard strength of the country.

Demobilization of Army Would Sound Death Knell of Soviet Government

By Associated Press
LONDON, Sept. 11.—Just as imperialism killed czarism so will imperialism be the death of Russian sovietism, is the prediction made to the Associated Press correspondent by M. Piip, the Estonian foreign minister in London, in analyzing the consequences of the Bolshevik offensive in Poland.

While foreign minister, last year M. Piip pitted his wits against the Bolsheviks at Dorpat and he is regarded as one of the best authorities in Europe on Russian political and economic conditions.

In common with representatives here of other Russian border states, M. Piip is watching with profound concern the developments in Poland.

Using Allies' Ammunition.
"The Bolsheviks are fighting with the allies' ammunition which they captured from Denikine and Kolchak," he said. "This is now almost exhausted and Russia cannot renew it."

Discussing the possibility of an attack by the Bolsheviks on Estonia, M. Piip said:

"We are ready for them. The Estonian frontier is now crossed by our troops except the gates through which we are trading with Russia. The Soviet government must know if it succeeds in obtaining a foothold in Estonia the allies would instantly cut off Russia from the vitally needed supplies; it is now receiving through us. We might perish but Soviet Russia would go down with us."

M. Piip asserted that Russia's economic condition was rapidly getting worse because this season's crop was a failure. He said it was not unlikely that the cities will soon be wholly depopulated.

"The Soviet government dares not reduce its enormous army," he concluded. "Unemployment is now a critical problem throughout the whole of Russia and if the men, who as soldiers are comparatively well cared for, were thrown on their own resources a revolution would result." The chief terror which the Soviet rulers have to face is peace and demobilization.

LEARNS MOTHER IS ALIVE THROUGH MOVIE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Among hundreds of persons who attended Friday night an exhibition of news film called "Jews in Poland Today," which is showing at Madison Square Garden, was Mrs. Mollie Kestenbaum, aged seventy-five, of 521 East 12th street, who forty years ago came from that distressed country with her husband, Moses.

Various scenes of the war-torn land were screened, portraying the distress of the Jews, the destruction of their property and the conditions under which they are living as the result of the great war between the Poles and the Bolsheviks.

When pictures of Przemysl and its inhabitants were flashed upon the screen, old Mrs. Kestenbaum and her daughter, who was with her, were particularly interested, for that was where she was born and some of the localities were still recognizable.

Mrs. Kestenbaum leaned forward in her seat, looked more closely. Then she exclaimed "Mamma! Mamma!" To those about her, when she was quieted, she explained that the older of the two figures was that of her mother, concerning whose fate she had been in doubt ever since the beginning of the war in 1914, since not a word had been heard from her. In fact, Mrs. Kestenbaum and her husband had about given up hope of the aged woman's survival, for it seemed inevitable she must have perished because of hardships or because of her advanced years. If she is still alive, Mrs. Kestenbaum said, her mother must now be 104 years old.

PRINCE CAROL CAN'T GO A-WOOLING HERE

Just why Prince Carl of Roumania is all wrapped up in mystery, camouflage and incognito during his visit to New York, leaked out in the Waldorf yesterday.

A member of the prince's entourage explained that it will be useless for anxious maidens of the metropolis to sigh and pull-daisy petals over Carl because he is to be restricted exclusively to masculine company on this junket. Incidentally it was gleaned that a marriage between the prince and a young princess is under consideration in Rumania, though neither of them has been told of it yet.

Five repeating rifles were delivered at a royal apartment, but this was not regarded officially as a defensive armament against the charms of New York girls. At noon, the rumor spread that the prince was going to tour the financial district and every skyscraper window south of City Hall was gushing with marcelle and permanent waves.

After luncheon, the prince, surrounded by a phalanx of police, secret service men and part of the Rumanian army, looked in at the Stock Exchange, Trinity graveyard and the other cheery sights downtown.

CLINCHLESS DANCE SAID TO BE AS FULL OF LIFE AS KEG OF FAZ AWAY BEER

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The public last night was shown the propriety of dancing.

Instead of this way, at an exhibition in connection with the annual convention here of the National Association of Masters of Dancing.

The maestros say the strangle-hold, half-Nelson and similar wrestling clutches are all wrong.

Several brand new dances were initiated and christened with suitable labels. The effect of prohibition on dancing was indicated in the "Camel Walk" and other new steps.

Some of the dancers say the faraway-clinch dance is as lacking in life as near-beer is of kick. No close-clutch, no fun, they say.

PIN SCRATCH CAUSES BIG DAMAGE SUIT AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—A pin scratch has resulted in the filing of a suit for $30,000 in a Dallas county court.

The suit, filed by Dr. J. M. Marshall of Dallas, against a local fur store, charges that while he was stroking a fur which his wife contemplated buying, the physician's finger was scratched by a "poisonous" pin hidden beneath the fur. Blood poison set in, according to the petition, and eight operations and fifteen incisions were necessary. As a result of the injury and subsequent operations, it is declared, Dr. Marshall's earning capacity as a surgeon was impaired 30 per cent. The physician said in his petition that he previously had been earning $2,000 a month.

CONSOLATION FUND FOR PERRY IS GROWING SLOWLY

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—Contributions amounting to $125 have been received thus far by Sheriff Dan Harston of Dallas county, for a fund inaugurated by him to provide compensation to Ben Perry for serving eight years of a life sentence for a crime of which he was innocent. The move on the part of Sheriff Harston followed a confession by Green Hunter, another negro, who was hanged in the Dallas county jail for an attack on an aged white woman, that he had committed the crime for which Perry was sentenced—an attack on a young white girl at Bryan, Texas. Sheriff Harston stated that he probably will go to Bryan, Brazos county, where Perry was tried, in an effort to add to the fund.

SOCIETY

The Times will be glad to print any stories of the social activities in Ranger which will interest its readers. If you or your friends entertain or have visitors or go away, phone No. 224 or write the Times about it. Clubs, church societies and similar organizations are requested to elect a reporter who will send the Times accounts of their activities.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETING

The Woman's Missionary society will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Methodist church. The program will consist of a short business session, followed by a talk by Miss Godbey on her experiences in Mexico. Members are requested to read the chapter on Mexico and Cuba in their mission study books. The public is cordially invited to attend.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PROGRAM

A special program will be given at the Methodist church this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, by the young peoples' Epworth League. The program follows: Subject: The Miracle of Christ; special songs, readings by Miss Holts.

Rapid strides toward leadership in B. Y. P. U. circles of the state are being made by the local branch of the union. Nothing less than active dominance of the state in matters of this organization will suffice the local members.

Toward this end another musical, even broader in scope than the one given last week, is planned for the opening of the new Baptist church during the latter part of this month. The new church will be located at Walnut and Marston streets. This musical is repeated because of a multitude of requests from persons who attended the last one or heard favorable comment about it by report.

Many guests Attend Birthday Party

Mrs. J. H. Keller of 909 Pershing street, entertained twenty-two little folks last Thursday afternoon in honor of her little son, Russell, who celebrated his sixth birthday on that day. Games and various other amusements were carried out to the delight of the children. Refreshments, chief among which was the birthday cake resplendent in candles, were furnished the tot. Another feature of the party was a drawing contest during which each little guest drew a "mystery package."

Those present were: Margaret, Elizabeth and Pauline Dillingham, Ruth, Dorothy and Grace Stanley, Thomas Lauderdale, Stanley Little, Grace Kaylor, Betty Jean Burden, Harold Rickard, James and Bob White, Marie and Edna Hudson, Jack Palmer, William and Thurman Gary, Lowell Tennant, Ray Morgan, Marie Dillingham of Dallas.

MASTER PAINTER TELLS HIS SIDE OF CONTROVERSY

Charles L. Daly, contractor on the three school buildings, stated yesterday to a Times reporter that it looked like the buildings would be involved in a lock-out, or at least, in his declaration, open shop in the matter.

Daly declared that he had been offered a bonus by the painters' local of $800 for contract for the buildings involved but he said that to accept the offer would be an act of weakness before his bonding company and the contractors over the state.

Daly, who said that he was trying to get the controversy settled, stated that he had figured the contract at 554 working days and that he had offered the union the possibility of finishing the contract in less days than his and giving them $8 per day for each day that they gained on his estimate. Daly was certain that the contract could be finished in 400 days, which would give the union painters more than $12 per day for their work. The painters refused to accede to the proposition and are holding out for the Ranger scale, which is $10 per day.

They, however, offer to paint the buildings without charge to the school board provided an agreement could not be reached with Daly.

LOST CHILDREN SAY 'PRAYING TO ANGELS' BROUGHT THEM HOME

GALVESTON, Sept. 11.—Three children between the ages of 5 and 9 years, lost for two days here recently, found their way back home in safety because, they said, they "prayed to the angels to show them the way."

Loading a gaily painted little wagon with goodies for a picnic spread, Annabelle Park, 9, her brother Rayburn, 5, and Meno Judd 7, struck out for a sandy stretch of beach at the end of the sea wall boulevard. After dining they ventured further and became lost far down the island. Throughout the night Annabelle said in describing their experiences, she and Meno prayed "to the angels to show us the way home."

"Rayburn was too little to pray," the girl said, "so Meno and me prayed for him, too."

Late in the afternoon of the second day Annabelle discovered a landmark and marshaled her charges homeward. They were discovered by neighbors when within a few blocks of their homes and taken to their frantic parents.

Not an article of tableware was missing when the wagon was inspected.

CORPUS CHRISTI COTTON CARNIVAL IN NOVEMBER

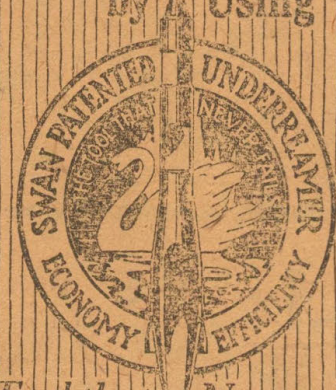

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 11.—The Corpus Christi cotton carnival a fair to be held in celebration of the splendid cotton season in Nueces and adjoining counties, has been announced for late in November by the local Elks' lodge, which was called to discuss only such matters as permitted of no delay.

The representative quoted Admiral Kato, minister of the navy, as having explained the "colossal estimates" by

'What I Need Most is Money'

(That's Naive Admission Of Aspirant To Throne Of Hungary—His Troubles Started Back In 1302

BUDAPEST, Sept. 11.—"If I conclude by arrangements to secure American capital to finance my campaign, I feel reasonably sure of being elected king of Hungary," declares Etienne Croy Chanel, who claims his family to be the only living descendants of the ancient kings of Hungary, the Arpads, whose line lost the crown six centuries ago, it finally passing to the Hapsburgs.

Other members of Etienne's family who dispute his ambitions are the Duke of Croy, or Croy, of Dalmen, Westphalia, Germany, who married in 1913 Miss Nancy Leishman of Pittsburgh, daughter of the former Austrian ambassador, and the duke's aunt, the Archduchess Isabella of Austria, also a Croy, who is supporting for the throne her son, Albrecht.

However, Etienne Croy Chanel, who styles himself count in Hungary and prince in France, waives aside their claims on the ground of non-residence and that they are members of a younger line. He is a medium-sized man, distinguished by a full dark beard of the cut known as Henri Quatre. He is energetic, cheerful, modest and poor. Ever since the national assembly was convened he has been industriously cultivating its members who one day or another may wind up this dynasty dispute by electing a king from among the various claimants.

No Law Against "Stush." "What I need most is money," explained Etienne. "There is no law against campaign funds here, so my American backers need not be frightened about that. I understand Charles of Hapsburg is seeking funds in the United States, too. Last year he secured for campaign purposes a loan of 80,000,000 francs from a Trieste bank, it taking his Italian estates as security.

According to Etienne's supporters, Emperor Charles is wasting his time in attempting to recover the throne. One of the reasons advanced is that Madame Bellagh, the Magyar soothsayer, has predicted for him an unhappy ending if he returns. As her forecasts are accepted here as fact-proof, the question very naturally presents itself to the Hungarian mind: why should Charles struggle against fate? The claims of Charles Rudolph, thirteenth Duke of Croy, who married Miss Leishman, cannot be well considered, according to Count Etienne, because he is a descendant of Mark, the second son of Andre III, the last King of Hungary of this dynasty, whereas Etienne is descended from Felix, the eldest son of Andre III. "In fact, we have not had any relations with these Dukes of Croy for centuries," said Count Etienne, "except by lawsuit, as we are not sure of their titles. They were recognized by the German nobility and are therefore in the Almanac de Gotha, but the French kings would not recognize them.

"You see, it is this way. When Andre III died in 1302, he left these two sons who were unable to secure the throne because of political difficulties here. They were in France but were not permitted to return here by the kings of Anjou, who had their candidate for the throne. But King Wenclaus of Bohemia seized Hungary. He in turn was driven out by Prince Otto of Bavaria until Charles of Anjou, aided by the French, came up from Naples with an army and took the throne for his son, who was known as Louis the Great of Hungary. The latter left no male descendants and, at the battle of Mohacs in 1526, the Hapsburgs got possession of the throne.

Marie Theresa was the last of the Hapsburgs. They, and those who came after her, treated Hungary as a colony and were never liked here. If my family had its rights the throne would be ours. Even the Este estates of Charles rightfully belong to my house. As late as 1863, with the help of Napoleon III of France, we filed suit at Turin, Italy, to secure those estates, but for lack of money we had to drop the suit.

NEWFOUNDLAND PULP INDUSTRY TO BE EXTENDED

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 11.—Important development of the great wood pulp resources of Newfoundland is about to be undertaken under grants to two pulp and paper manufacturing companies made at the last session of the colonial legislature. One of the companies is British and the other Norwegian.

The mills of the British concern will be located at Bonne Bay, half way up the west coast. This port is the center of winter herring fishing activities. In its vicinity are large areas thickly wooded with spruce and fir through which flow rivers which will afford good water power as well as facilities for floating logs. Bonavista Bay, on the east coast, is to be the site of the Norwegian company's mill. Codfishing at present is the great industry there. Backward from the bay runs a series of well wooded valleys drained by rivers of good size.

At present the only pulp and paper mills in the island are at Grand Falls, in the interior, where the Anglo-Newfoundland Development company some years ago established an extensive plant which supplies the Northcliffe papers in England with most of their paper. Before the war capitalists were negotiating for other similar projects.

Now that the survivors of the Newfoundland regiment are home again and the supply of labor appears satisfactory, the worldwide demand for paper has stimulated new efforts. Negotiations are underway looking toward exploiting large tracts of spruce on the south coast. The extensive timber holdings of the Reid Newfoundland company, obtained as part of their compensation from the government for opening up a large part of the colony with a railway line, also are expected to be utilized for pulp making in the near future. Still another project in contemplation is the establishment of paper and pulp mills, saw mills and veneer mills for the manufacture of birch into boxes and barrels, at St. Georges, on the west coast.

The company promotink the St. Georges enterprise is composed of British and American capitalists who control 1,500 square miles of imberland in hat vicinity and 1,000 square miles bordering on Grand Lake, the largest body of water in the colony. The upper end of of the lake has direct rail connection with St. Georges.

Several years ago the manager of the Grand Falls mills testified at a hearing by an American commission at Washington that paper could be manufactured about $7 a ton cheaper in Newfoundland than in the United States. Paper men say that the margin at present is larger.

Cotton and Rice Suffer Loss From August Rains

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—With the exception of cotton and rice, crops generally over the state were benefited by August rains, according to a report issued by the Texas Industrial Congress. The report was compiled from data furnished by correspondents of the congress throughout the state and gives the condition as of September 1.

North, Central and East Texas had excessive rainfall during August, the report states, while other sections of the state had ample rainfall. Drouth affecting certain sections of West and Southwest Texas was broken both by general and local rains.

Temperatures below normal, and cool nights have greatly increased the ravages of the boll-weevil and boll worms, according to the report, and cotton picking and rice harvesting have been delayed by weather conditions.

Late corn, forage crops, sweet potatoes, peanuts and cattle ranges have been benefited, but, the report continues, there has been marked deterioration in the condition of cotton, especially in North, Central North and East Texas.

"The rains have caused cotton to grow rank, but little fruiting," the report states, "and it now appears that the state will harvest another low grade crop. The better grades apparently will be scarce. Farmers are organizing in many counties for the purpose of warehousing their crops and marketing it slowly. They also are preparing to hold their cotton seed for better prices, and some effort is being made to discourage the picking and marketing it slowly. They also are preparing to hold their cotton seed for better prices, and some effort is being made to discourage the picking and marketing of low grade cotton."

AMONG THE MOVIE STARS

WANTED, A SIX-FOOT LOVER—SPECTACLES—A SERIAL STAR—WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND—A BOOK WORM—SOCIETY WOMAN ON SCREEN.

Are you six feet three, male gender. If so, communicate at once with Betty Blythe, beautiful film star.

Miss Blythe seeks a permanent lover—for film purposes. The one requisite is that he be of the proper longitudinal dimension. The star being unusually tall, and most leading men in pictures being unusually short, has issued a call to the colleges of the United States for a young man, preferably good looking, who is interested in becoming a picture actor, and who measures the said number of inches. He must be of athletic proportions in keeping with his height, of the rugged masculine type, and able to swim, ride horseback, drive a car, dance and look intelligent.

A college man is preferred, as the star believes that brains as well as brawn is demanded now by picture fans. Miss Blythe intends to commence picture production as soon as she can find the right ideal and intelligent giant. She recently completed a film of a James Oliver Hogue story, "Nomads of the North," now enjoying a vacation while her actor looks for the "great lover."

Harold Lloyd.
Harold Lloyd recently received a letter from an old lady living in Evansville, Ind. It read as follows:

Dear Mr. Lloyd:
This is not a mash note as I am 71 years old and have four grandchildren—all boys. I am not what they call a movie fan but I do love your pictures and have been laughing at your trials and tribulations for over two years.

Harold Lloyd

Now, my dear boy, I have been looking at those big glasses you wear. They must be heavy and in time will wear a crease on your nose. I am sending you a pair of spectacles that I wore for years and my mother wore before me. You can have the lenses changed to suit your eyes. They are the easiest wearing frames in the world and I know you would notice a marked change immediately.

All good luck to you, my boy, and may the Haunted Spooks never catch up with you.

MRS. J. D. A.
The letter is now framed and hangs in Mr. Lloyd's dressing room. Above it hang the "spectacles."

Culberson of Texas Framed Law Giving Publicity to Campaign Funds

By BASCOM H. TIMMS
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Senator Charles A. Culberson, in point of service the oldest Democratic member of the senate, today declared his belief that Governor James M. Cox has furnished the senate investigating committee with enough information to convict the Republican party of attempting to buy the election. Whether or not the party is convicted, depends on whether the Republican majority on the senate committee will allow the real facts to come out, according to Senator Culberson.

The veteran Texas soton, refreshed from the vacation he has had since the adjournment of Congress, in deeply interested in the success of the Cox-Roosevelt ticket, and his advice and counsel is being sought by party leaders.

Culberson Fathered Law.
Indeed, Senator Culberson is the father of the law under which the present investigation is being held. Following the charges of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 that the Republicans were trying to buy the election, Senator Culberson introduced and pressed a resolution calling for investigation.

Senator Culberson was convinced at that time that the Republicans had bought and paid for a number of elections. He had been striving for an investigation of campaign funds and contributions in the election of 1904 and 1908 ever since 1911. He knew that a national election was due in 1912, and he did not want the Republicans to repeat any purchasing acts, if they had been successful in previous years.

In a speech to the senate urging the adoption of his resolution, Senator Culberson quoted an article from the New York Times, upon which he set great store, to the effect that in the campaigns of 1896 the Democratic fund had been $700,000 and the Republican $6,000,000; in 1900 the Democratic fund had been $800,000 and the Republican $700,000; in 1904 the Democratic fund had been $900,000 and the Republican many times this much. He said in 1908, the Democratic fund was $62,644 as compared to $1,665,518 for the Republicans.

As the result of the passage of the Culberson resolution about every one of prominence in the Republican, Democratic and Bull Moose parties were summoned before the investigating committee, including Col. Roosevelt, Judge Park, George B. Cortelyou, Charles B. Hillis, Frank H. Hitchcock and other leaders in the three campaigns, for the investigation was, of course, extended to cover the campaign of 1912 then on.

The investigation showed that Senator Culberson's figures on the amount of money expended were approximately correct. Even before the passage of the Culberson resolution in 1912, the senior Texas senator in 1907 worked hard for what was instrumental in obtaining the enactment of a law to prevent national banks or other corporations organized in their denials as Chairman Hays and Treasurer Upham now are in their denial of Governor Cox's charges. They said the charges were preposterous and threatened counter-exposure. Subsequently, Newberry and sixteen of his associates were convicted. In sentencing them, the judge said:

"If such conditions are to be endured the hopes of every man for political preference must be measured by the size of his pocketbook."

Despite his conviction, Newberry is still a member of the senate. It was his purchased election which gave the Republicans control, allowed them to pack the foreign relations committee and wreck the treaty.

Despite the denial of J. H. Hays of the correctness of the quota assigned to cities, many city chairmen have affirmed the correctness of Cox's charge. For instance, Will W. Gallifer, in charge of raising Republican funds in the District of Columbia, admits that Governor Cox's figures of a $50,000 quota for Washington by further acts in 1911 and 1912, and are correct and says $20,000 of this in 1918 another act was put through amount has already been raised and turning fines and imprisonment for any ed over to the national committee. Hays one who shall attempt to corrupt voters says no quota was assigned to the District of Columbia and admits receiving $5,000 from this city.

This law was intended to give the federal government jurisdiction in such cases. Senator Culberson does not believe all the money has gone to the national committee. He believes the Republicans are H. Newberry of Michigan was convicted attempting to cover up their gigantic in 1910. When Newberry was accused, fund, as the official bulletin of the nation both he and his agents were as vociferous committee urged secrecy in collections.

INLAND NATIVES GET FIRST SIGHT OF AUTOMOBILE

"We drove into the outskirts of town about 5:30. Natives who had never seen an automobile came to the doors of their huts, took one look, and at once disappeared."

Contrary to the natural supposition, the foregoing paragraph is not an extract from a diary compiled by some explorer of twenty or thirty years ago when four-wheeled vehicles were first beginning to be propelled by engine power. It is a paragraph from a letter written in the year 1920, concerning an incident that occurred in 1920, on the North American continent. It continues:

"As we drove down the main street of the town, curiously overcoming their fear, children in increasing numbers ran along beside us cheering and clapping their hands."

Geologists on Trip. To be more specific, it is part of an account of the arrival of the first automobile in the town of Tantoyuca, state of Vera Cruz, Mexico. The car was driven by Frank B. Van Horn, chief geologist for the Chas. del Agui, S. A., of Tampico, Tampa, Mexico. He was accompanied by two other geologists, G. H. Shelton and Richard Bryant. The trip was made in a Dodge Brothers' touring car.

Tantoyuca is a little city about seventy-five miles from the gulf coast and sixty miles from a railroad. It is in a rather mountainous country, with steep hills in many instances covered with large boulders, making the roads almost impassable except for pack animals.

"Up to the time of our trip," Mr. Van Horn says in his letters to Dodge Brothers, Detroit, "no attempt had ever been made to get an automobile into this territory, but we had gone to within twelve miles of Tantoyuca with our car and believed we could, with very little road work, go the rest of the way. On March 23, we left Tampico and drove seventy miles to Comales, where we passed the night. The next day we encountered real difficulties, having to use an ax, pick and shovel and even a block and tackle in getting across canyons and holes. Wherever it was at all possible for a car to get a footing we went along without trouble. In one place it was necessary for the car to pull up a rough slope of 40 degrees."

Enter Isolated Towns. Many similar experiences preceded the triumphant entry into the isolated town, which took place the second day of the trip, at 5:30. Mr. Van Horn's account of the celebration which followed the first timid reception by the natives is especially interesting.

"We drove to the hotel, a large typically Mexican house, with high ceilinged rooms, and a large portico filled with flowers and shrubbery," he writes. "Dona Feliciano S. Viuda de Huerta stood in the doorway and welcomed us in great delight. She said she was proud indeed at having the people who brought the first automobile into Tantoyuca to stop at her house, and proved it right royally in kindly attentions showered upon us.

"After refreshing ourselves we returned to the car, and, in relays, took for a ride about the city all the children who were not afraid to trust themselves to our care. We did not confine ourselves to the children entirely, but in the course of the evening took various prominent citizens for a short ride. I believe we derived more pleasure in their happy comments than did they in their first automobile ride. No fear of collisions in Tantoyuca, where not even carts are driven. The only vehicle ever in town was a buggy brought in, knocked down, on backs of mules, and it has long since given up its struggle. So we could drive with no fear where turning signals had no meaning.

Orchestra Plays. "We retired about 10:30 in good beds, and slept the sleep of the weary. In the morning we again took children for drives, and took all that cared to try until 1 o'clock, when Dona Feliciano called us to dinner. And such a dinner—soup, beef, chicken, fruit, frijoles, not forgetting wine and coffee, with an orchestra playing Mexican airs while we ate.

"After dinner we took the orchestra in the car, insisting that they play during the entire ride about the town. They enjoyed it immensely and fulfilled their part of the bargain.

"When we returned to the hotel the little girls whom we had taken for rides had come in with armfuls of flowers which they presented to us, and as we prepared to start on our return trip they hung garlands of roses on the car.

ACTS AS JUDGE ON WIFE'S DIVORCE CASE, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—Acting as the judge in the divorce suit filed by his wife, Henry J. Pohl, 46, Spanish-American war veteran, rendered a verdict in favor of the woman, then killed himself. A note left by him said: "Having read and reread my wife's petition for divorce, I have decided to become the judge. As judge I award her freedom and alimony in the shape of my pension.

"Out of the alimony, however, I reserve $25 to be used in cremating my body, after which my ashes are to be given to the winds.

DISPOSSESS NOTICES WORRY NOT THIS TENANT; HAS LIFE-LONG LEASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—George W. Larsen today received his fourteenth dispossession notice in fourteen months. His landlord thinks it is time for him to make a change. But Larsen doesn't agree with him. He likes the apartment, particularly as he is paying the same rent he paid before the war. And, besides, he says he has a lease for life on the place.

Rents on the other suites in the building at 678 St. Nicholas avenue, belonging to the Placid Realty company, have gone soaring, but Larsen's rent remains as unchanged as the fashions in China or the Democratic majority in Mississippi.

When Morris Suslow, agent for the landlord corporation, first tried his hand at putting Larsen out fourteen months ago the tenant produced a lease with this clause:

"The tenant shall notify the landlord three months prior to the expiration of this lease of his intention to leave said apartment, otherwise the lease is extended for one year."

This clause is a relic of the old days when the landlords were scheming for ways to hold tenants. Now this particular one is hoist by his own petard, for Larsen says he doesn't think he ever will give such a notice. But every month Suslow has issued summary proceedings against his tenant, only to have the proceedings thrown out of court.

A few weeks ago, according to Larsen, his telephone service was cut off. He made a charge against Suslow, who is now, as a result, held in $300 cash bail by his landlord's efforts to oust him. He has come to regard his monthly dispossession proceedings as a habit which he would miss as much as his cigar.

France paid an indemnity of $1,000,000,000 to Germany in 1917. Two hundred million dollars was to be paid practically "cash down," and the remaining amount by installments extending over three years, with interest.

OPERA HOUSE.

Once in a while there is produced a vaudeville, a playlet or sketch whose originality in conception and treatment of theme, re-inforced by admirable acting in depicting character, or setting forth a situation, leaves such a strong impression that the production fixes itself in one's memory. Such a playlet is Florence Henry and Company, in a comedy sketch of happiness, "The Real Comedy," which will head the vaudeville program at the Opera house Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Florence Henry is delighting audiences this season and proving herself to be a fine dramatic artist as well as a remarkable character actress. It is one of the most original sketches in vaudeville and gives Miss Henry wide scope to display her art. She is ably supported by a carefully selected cast.

Other acts on this program will include Charles J. Burkhardt and Sam Roberts, in an original skit, blended with melodies and conversational humor, "The Cop and the Wise Guy." Their nonsense and amusing song numbers are cleverly conceived and most delightfully presented. Both are excellent comedians, and have a novel way of presenting their material. If applause counts for anything they are sure to be the most popular act of the season.

Glenn Carl and Dolly Inez offer an amusing skit, with a snappy and witty dialogue, and several song numbers, written especially for them, intermingled with aerobic and eccentric dance specialties, that never fail to score.

Sylvia More and Reckless Due, all versatile entertainers, present a gymnastic turn quite different, with a dash of song and dance interspersed with aerial and hand feats, that have made them famous in circuses.

John Miller, "the Popophone Girl," offers classical and popular selections, quite a jazz artiste on the xylo-

AN YOU SCRUB A COLORED BOY WHITE

During the filming of "Pollyanna," Mary Pickford's first photoplay for United Artists' Corporation, to be shown at the Liberty theater Sunday, this famous little star was required to scrub a little colored boy, the idea being to make him white.

The scene was taken at Pasadena, Cal., and while the "shooting" was under way a passerby interfered objecting to the cruelty of making the lad eat soap.

He overlooked the fact that the boy seemed to enjoy hugely his soap repast and threatened to call the police if Director Powell didn't desist.

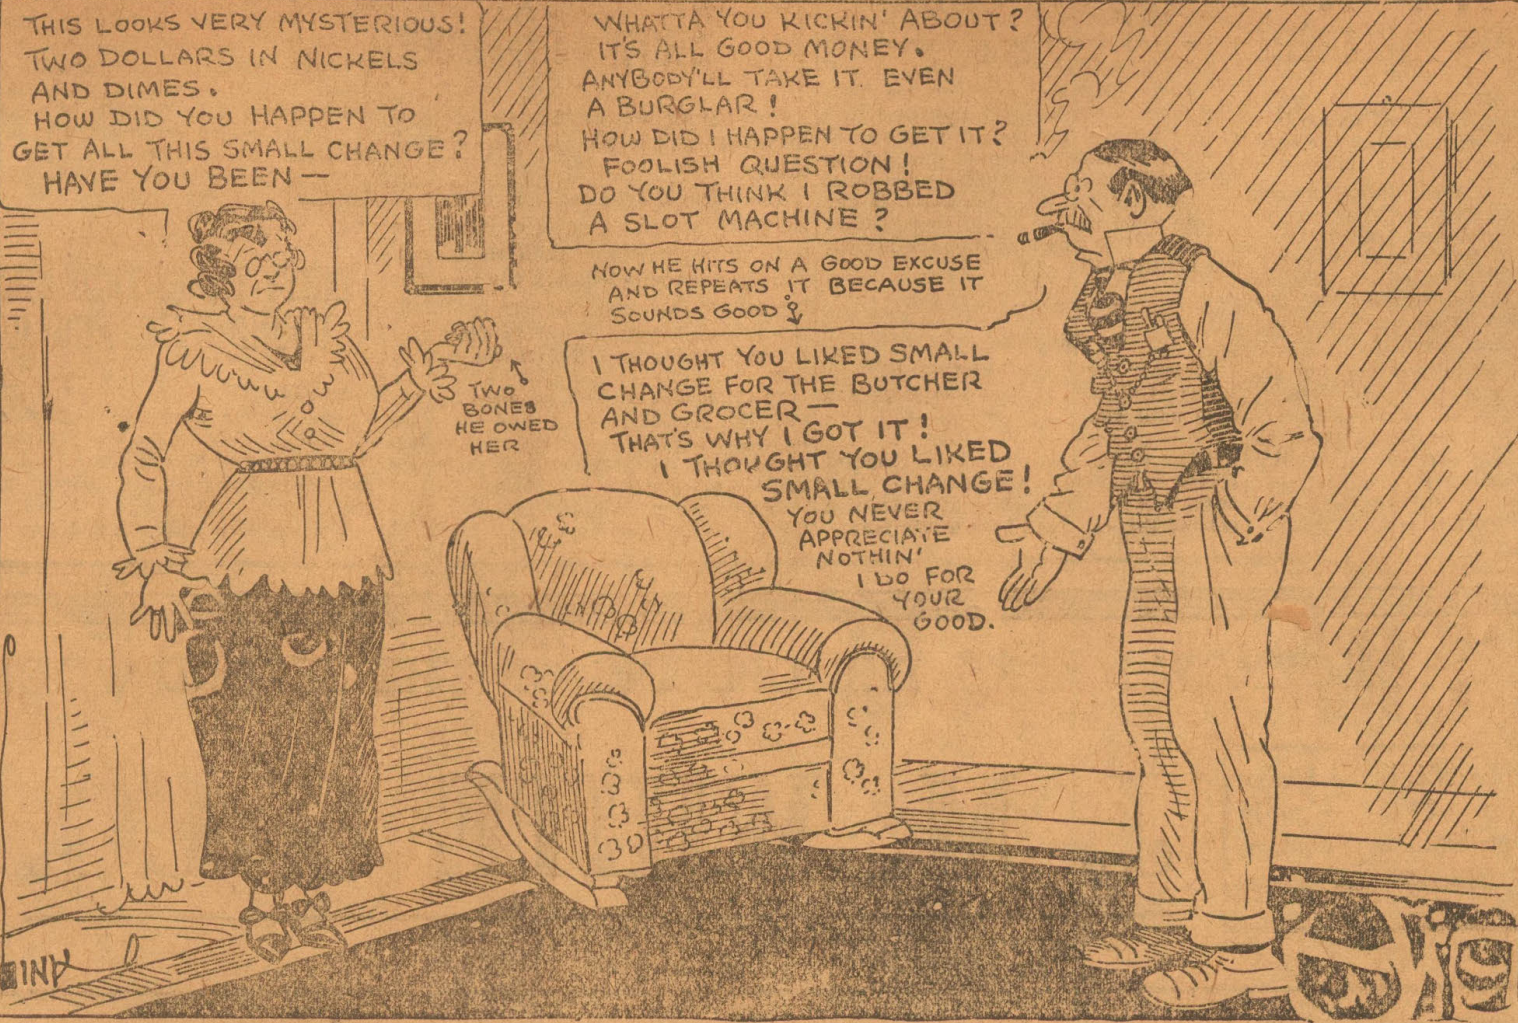

He objected, too, to the water the youngster was standing in, saying it was a shame "to keep a boy in that cold water."

After all his objections were in, he was informed that the father with which the lad was smeared from head to foot, and which he seemed to enjoy so hugely, was whipped cream and not soap at all. And the "cold water" proved to be as warm and comfy as a nice bath. So he went away, a wiser and more prudent man.

George Fitzmaurice Successful Producer.

George Fitzmaurice has leaped into the ranks of the few really great motion picture producers. In his "On With the Dance" he proved his ability to screen a strikingly dramatic story against a background of rare beauty. From both an artistic and box-office viewpoint, this picture ranked with the best of the past season. Mr. Fitzmaurice's second independently made production, "The Right to Love," contains qualities that will make it an even more sensational success than "On With the Dance."

"THAT LITTLE GAME" --- Of Course, He Hasn't

Beautiful Mae Murray and David Powell are again the featured players. The same lavishness of costume and setting that characterized "On With the Dance" are present in "The Right to Love." The scene is warm, exotic Turkey, and the story is of the heart appealing type that pleases all classes of movie-goers. "The Right to Love" will repay you several fold for every cent you spend in exploiting it.

Well?
"Has you got a dark complected man named Johnson what's been shot in this hospital?" he inquired.
The nurse replied that there was such a person there, adding, "But he's convalescing now."

"He's convalescing now," she repeated.
"Well," said Napoleon, "if you don't mind, I'll just set right here and wait till he gets through."—The Home Sector.

His Troubles.
Johnnie, aged 6, was one of those mischievous little fellows, spanked frequently by mother. One day father came home in time to see Johnny with red eyes and big tears trickling down his cheeks.

Use of Impure Oil Has Bad Effect on Bearing Cases

A prominent bearing manufacturer calls attention to the fact that the use of impure oils, and carelessness in washing the running gear and other parts of automobiles are things which have a very detrimental effect upon the bearings, which do not get half the attention they deserve, anyway.

Many cases of failure of wheel bearings have been directly attributed to rust caused by the indiscriminate application of a stream of water at 50 to 60 pounds pressure per square inch to the parts of the car in which they are mounted.

Water or corrosive substances in greases or oils have virtually the same effect, viz., etching of the finely finished surfaces of balls and races on which the capacity and frictionless qualities of a ball bearing are so dependent.

Any hard foreign substance, such as grit, metal chips, etc., will render a perfect bearing useless in a short time. There is no room between the balls and races for any hard substance, and should any work in, either the bearings will lock and turn on the shaft, or in the housing, or it will force the cups out in the softer shell and thereby loosen the careful adjustment, rendering the bearing loose, noisy and less efficient.

There are thousands of other ways in which ball bearings may be misused—in storage, mounting, and later, lack of proper maintenance—but if one will use the average sense, he will find that he will be rewarded many times over for what little pains have been taken.—Motor Life.

DRASTIC TRAFFIC LAWS PEEVE LOS MOTORISTS

The most drastic traffic ordinance ever enacted is now in effect in Los Angeles. Between certain hours, the time limit on stops in the congested district is two minutes. Near this district is the business district where cars may park for two hours at a time. Automobile dealers report this is a handicap to their trade as used cars, which were usually parked at the curb awaiting sale, are now placed elsewhere.—Motor Life.

HOW STREETS GOT NAMES TOLD BY AUTO BLUE BOOK

If you would know how streets got their names, drop your Book of Knowledge and consult the Automobile Blue Book. It explains that Stone street in New York City was originally known as Brouwer street because of the brewery; that it was subsequently given its present name because of the fact that it was the first New York street to be paved with cobblestones, in 1657.

"My goodness, Carlo!" said Tommy after a rough-and-tumble romp. "I guess we'd better stop and let you cool off your motor."

FIRST WEEK'S RUN PROVES HARDEST ON MOTOR CARS

Many drivers do more damage to their cars the first week they drive it than during almost any week thereafter. Often they do not stop to learn thoroughly the directions for driving, and they smash up the gears and scrape thousands of miles of wear off the tires. But usually the greatest offense of all is the neglect of oiling. In a new car it takes considerable time for the parts to get thoroughly worked in. The new car will naturally generate more friction than one which has been run for some time so more frequent oiling is advisable. The Liberty Motor Car company advises its users against running faster than twenty-five miles an hour for the first 300 miles.

THE VILLIAN WASN'T FOILED IN THIS HOLD-UP OF MOVIE ANAGER

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—Two armed youths stopped Fred Wehrenberg, 3325 Indiana avenue, manager of the Cherokee theatre, as he took a short cut through the alley to his home after putting away his automobile in a garage at 3322 South Jefferson avenue at 11:30 o'clock last night.

As they told him to throw up his hands, Wehrenberg sought to foil them by tossing a package which contained the theater receipts, over a fence against which they backed him.

One of the youths observed the action. "Register disappointment. Register disappointment," the youth laughed. "This ain't no movie stunt. This is the real thing." This youth then prodded Wehrenberg in the ribs with a revolver and instructed his companion to go over the fence and get the package. It contained nearly $500. Wehrenberg told the police.

"Jehovah Will Provide"

Says Leader Of Strange Caravan On Way To Second Coming Of The Lord

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 11.—A strange little caravan of six men and eighteen young women gathered here recently from distant parts of the world to begin a wandering which they believe will eventually lead them to Palestine in time to witness the second coming of the Lord. They expect to augment their forces by hundreds and thousands before the Holy Land is reached.

Meanwhile they remain nameless pilgrims, who have severed all home ties, and profess to have left behind them all worldly desires and pleasures. They live in tents here until they get out on journey point to point in three large automobiles, to their first stopping place, being in the neighborhood of Boston.

"Jehovah Provided."

Their leader, a tall, gaunt, gray-whiskered individual, had already created considerable interest in Northern Maine by the practice of faith healing. Hundreds visit his tent seeking cures from various ailments.

Perhaps the most astounding fact about this sect is their ability to provide for themselves on the proposed journey to Jerusalem.

"We neither beg, borrow nor steal," said the chieftain of the little band. "We don't lack for anything. Jehovah provides. We know that God has sent us on this mission, and He works on the hearts of the people. The expressman drove up to our camp yesterday and left two bags of potatoes. I have no idea who sent them."

He denied that any one in the party had funds. During their stay in Bangor the men folk made necessary repairs on the motors. Small contributions left by visitors to the camp were hoarded to buy gasoline.

A kettle of boiling water, in which were poured two cans of cocoa and a few loaves of bread, constituted breakfast for the pilgrims. Only one other meal was served each day, usually consisting of potatoes baked in the open, bread, and whatever is brought by neighboring residents, occasionally a few strips of meat, but usually vegetables.

"Most of us started from Philadelphia," said their leader. "Our first stop was Washburn, Me., where we were scheduled to hold a number of meetings at a certain date. Now we are actually on our way to Palestine."

The elder plays mechanic as well as preacher. He repaired the motor of an automobile which had been functioning poorly. The cars were bought second-hand and have seen considerable wear. He said that the automobiles would be sold when the necessity arrived and his following would travel on foot, by boat, train, camels, and in the end possibly by airplane.

Practical Faith Healing.
He declared that none in the party ever visited a physician.

"Last night one of the sisters was very ill," he said. "We prayed with her for a few minutes and then she was well again. I am glad to know that churches in Boston are taking up with faith healing. I have many come to me, and the results have been wonderful."

No one in the sect smokes or uses tobacco in any form, according to the leader. Although none in the group is of the Jewish race, pork is tabooed for those who follow him.

Driver Requires Confidence to Avoid Accident

The two best ways to avoid automobile accidents are to be courteous on the road and confident in your driving ability.

This formula for road safety comes from Rastus B. Parrish, motorcycle pathfinder of the travel and transport bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company. He is well qualified to speak on the subject, as he has traveled 100,000 miles during the past six years and has never had a serious accident.

"Courtesy and confidence should be big words in every motorist's vocabulary," says Parrish. "Most of the tail-end, head-on and 'ditched' car accidents would be avoided if every motorist would practice common road courtesy. Respect the other fellow. He's entitled to the same consideration you expect from him."

"One of the most discourteous practices I have experienced is negligence in applying dim headlights when passing another vehicle at night. Hundreds of unnecessary accidents are caused by glaring headlights bearing down on drivers. At most blinding, the motorist must choose between being 'swiped' by the other car or taking his chances of holding his portion of the road. Proper use of dimmers will save injuries, lives and dollars."

"The best car drivers today are those who impress the other drivers that they know what they are doing," according to Parrish. "Confidence in your own driving ability will dispel all doubt on the other fellow's part. On the other hand, if you appear timid and confused, your chances of being hit or smashing into another car are multiplied."

Influence.

Heat Not Cause of Blowouts, Tests Show at Denver

Does the air pressure in a tire increase sufficiently in hot weather to cause blowouts?

The Gates Rubber company of Denver has just completed a series of interesting tests which proved that while the temperature and pressure within a tire rose during hot weather, under normal conditions the increase in pressure was so slight that it has virtually no effect on the tire itself.

The five-inch tires were used in the test, one properly inflated and the other underinflated. The tests were made on different days, one of which was extremely hot, the other of normal temperature.

In the case of the normally inflated tire the temperature within the tire increased 30 degrees, while the pressure was increased between 7 and 10 per cent, an increase insufficient to cause a blow-out under ordinary conditions. The pressure in the underinflated tire, however, increased 14 per cent, while the temperature was 48 degrees.

This substantiates the assertion that an underinflated condition causes more work to be done by the tire and indicates a destructive effect upon it. The experiments show also that the increase in air pressure under normal conditions, with proper inflation, will have no destructive effect upon the tire, regardless of the heat of the day.

Canada, Now Convention Haven, Also Leans Toward Total Aridity

WINNEPEG, Sept. 11.—Canada's popularity as a place for American conventions and as a haven for dry-throated travelers who have crossed the boundary in thousands for the last year will wane after this fall, it is predicted.

When the votes on the liquor question in various provinces within two or three months are counted, say prophets, it will be found that the great majority of Canadians are in favor of making this country as arid as the United States. And there will follow a decided slump in rum-running at the border.

There isn't the slightest chance that the people of Manitoba will vote for a continuance of the hypocritical brand of so-called "prohibition" that has prevailed for the last year or so," said D. B. Harkness, secretary of the social service council, when it was announced that the referendum would be held in this province Oct. 25. "Nor is there any reason to believe that other provinces will not express their will against inter-provincial trading in liquor. The financial and moral benefits since the bars were closed, even though we have had only partial prohibition, are too apparent to everybody to leave any doubt that the voters will do when the question of restricting the liquor traffic further is put to them for an answer."

Liquor exporters indicate that they share his belief by preparing to unload as rapidly as possible the stocks on hand. And importers, the individual consumers, are beginning to lay in cellars.

Puzzle to Americans.

The present situation, a puzzle to Americans who cannot understand why Canada is so "wet" when on paper it is "dry," is that trading in liquor at the front door is strictly prohibited in all provinces, while trading at the back door is not only permitted, but encouraged. In other words, each province has a prohibition law on its statute books and enforces it. In no province, except Quebec, where the sale of beer and wines is permitted, may any one trade in liquor as a beverage with anyone else within that province.

But in any province any one can import from another province all the liquor he wants for his own use. The reason is because a province can not legislate on inter-provincial commerce; that is the sole right of the federal parliament. The referendums have been decreed by that parliament for the purpose of delegating to the provinces its control over inter-provincial trading in liquor. If the provinces vote to abolish it, as it is generally conceded they will, the trading will stop and it will be up to the provincial legislation to either retain their present prohibition laws or amend them as they see fit.

In Manitoba the provincial government is pledged to amend the present law, if the people vote against inter-provincial trading, making it much more drastic. One amendment specifies that a doctor may prescribe not more than twelve ounces of spirituous liquor for one person in one day, whereas there has been no limitation on the number of prescriptions or the amount of liquor.

Another amendment provides that the provincial government is to take over the entire wholesale liquor business, eliminating wholesale druggists and others in the liquor trade. In that way the government can keep an accurate check on all drug stores selling liquor at retail.

Furthermore, every physician will be required to write all his prescriptions for liquor on a blank provided by the government. The number of blanks issued to each practitioner will be noted, so the provincial temperance act enforcement department may ascertain at any time just how many such prescriptions any doctor has issued. This will be hard on a few in the profession, some of whom have been known to issue more than 300 in one day.

Nothing for Rum Runners.

The rum runners' source of supply will be cut off if all the provinces vote affirmatively. Practically all of them get liquor by ordering it from a neighboring province "for their own use" or by ordering it through friends or dupes. If the inter-provincial traffic is abolished they will have to depend on stocks accumulated meanwhile and later will have to manufacture their own goods or go out of business.

Railroad officials say they have no means of ascertaining how many persons have been influenced by Canada's wetness to come to this country in the last year or two, but they believe that the unprecedented tourist traffic this season has been due partly to that attraction. More American conventions have been held in Canada this year than in three previous years. Canadian railways and hotels never did so much business before and there never were so many Americans at the many Canadian summer resorts.

Railway and hotel men, as well as social reformers, believe this will be Canada's last wet summer.

BURGLAR FINDS WINE, FORGETS HIS "BUSINESS"

International News Service. TALLAGAD, Ala., Sept. 11.—G. F. Roper, who lives near here, is a firm believer in the theory that there is some good even in the lowly fermented juice of grape. A burglar who entered his house several nights ago, after having collected a large quantity of groceries from the family pantry and having gone through the old silver chest and extracting therefrom all that was valuable, came upon a jug of old grape wine in the attic. He thereupon forgot the old axiom about business before pleasure and forthwith began a one-man joy party. The next morning Roper found his valuables and groceries in a great pile in his attic. The empty jug was in the front yard. Local detectives advance the theory that the second man, having developed good will toward man in general with the contents of the jug, responded to a call of his conscience and decided to leave the house without carrying away the loot.

The French army hereafter will be based on two years' service. Youths, when drafted, will be transferred to the reserve from which they will not be released for thirty years. This will give the republic a total of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 fully trained men, who will be available for duty at any time.

HARDING VIEWS SOLDIER BONUS WITH DISFAVOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Senator Harding does not favor immediate legislation giving every American soldier serving abroad a bonus, according to an interview printed in the Stars and Stripes, a publication for world war veterans. He believes the financial stability of the country should be first adjusted and the public considered.

The interview with Senator Harding was obtained at Marion by Joseph L. Jefferson.

After remarking that a cash bonus would cost perhaps $2,000,000,000, Mr. Harding is quoted as saying:

"Now, with our present Liberty bonds below par, what would be the result if we proceeded to issue more bonds? During the war, of course, the people of the country laid their all on the altar of their country, just as the soldiers laid down their lives. Can we honestly say that conditions are now the same? If we did sell bonds to pay the proposed bonus and, to meet present conditions, offered a higher rate of interest than on our previous Liberty bonds, what would be the effect on those bonds outstanding?"

"I feel, however, that we should do everything possible immediately for the wounded and those in urgent need. I do think that Congress can at once make provisions to expedite the care of those wounded, provided we can agree with the spokesmen for them on a plan to effect such relief."

Senator Harding was emphatic in declaring his support of the plan which passed the lower house in the last week Congress was in session providing for "adjusted service pay," "adjusted certificates," "vocational training" and "farm or home aid" and "land settlement aid."

TONY FELL FOR SOVIET THEORY UNTIL SMITH 'STEALA DA APPULS'

DENVER, Sept. 11.—Division of property as an idea appeals to C. E. Smith. Tony Pizazzo, who conducts a fruit stand, knows only good salesmanship, and hence he disagrees with Smith.

Wherefore, Smith was arraigned in police court as a vagrant.

It was testified that Smith would visit the Pizazzo place of business four or five times daily. Each time he would pilfer an apple, orange, banana, or something else that appealed to his fancy, the evidence ran. But Smith used discretion, said Pizazzo. For whenever he pilloined the rosy apple it would be at the crucial moment in his oratory as to the division of community property, a la soviet.

Tony is practical. Further, Tony is Italian, cares not for Moscow, is for the propertied class as represented by his own wealth.

So he asked the policeman on the beat to arrest Smith.

"He threw da bull alla day long," said Tony to Magistrate Rice. "He fourflush and stella da appul. I getta sicil when he talka da Russ."

She Stuck To It. Judge: How old are you? Witness (a lady): Thirty. Judge: Thirty? I have heard you give the same age in this court for the last three years.

Witness: Yes; I am not one of those persons who say one thing today and another tomorrow.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

TOMORROW MARKS THE OPENING OF THE BOSTON STORE'S

SALE OF FURS RANGER'S FOREMOST FUR EVENT

This 1920 Fur sale is another triumph for the alert, efficient buying methods of the Boston store. Yet there is no secret about this remarkable achievement. Everybody who has kept up with the fur markets this season knows that prices were excessively high throughout the winter and spring. Then came the big break in June. Instead of buying at the beginning of the season, as we usually do, we simply waited for the break we knew was coming. We bought only from the most reputable furriers. Every Fur in this great sale—even the smallest piece—was carefully selected, insuring its high quality. Due to late deliveries, we were unable to offer these reductions in August, as was formerly planned—however, they are here now and ready for your inspection—each exquisite Fur bearing a big substantial reduction of 25 per cent off regular low selling prices.

$10,000 WORTH OF CHOICEST FURS AT PRICES WHICH ARE ACTUALLY LESS THAN WHOLESALE PRICES, PAID BY STORES WHO BOUGHT THEIR FURS EARLIER IN THE SEASON

Beautiful Fox Scarfs 25 Per Cent Off

For One Week Only

Not a scarf in this entire lot could be bought regularly elsewhere for less than almost double this price. Taupe, Brown, Victoria and Grey Fox. Fortunate indeed will be the women who get these lovely scarfs at these low prices.

Luxurious Fur Coats

Coats of utmost richness and elegance in Hudson Seals, Molestins, Squirrel, Marmot and Sable. Every one made of select skins in light and medium weights, some with collars and cuffs of squirrel, skunk and otter—Rich Furs. Now—

25 Per Cent Off

Every coat is luxuriously lined in rich silk. The prices are even less than those asked by many New York stores for these coats in their August fur sales.

Fashionable Fur Capes 25 Per Cent Off

For One Week Only

Luxurious Capes at very substantial savings, including Minks, Blue Squirrel, Kolinsky and other rich furs. Distinctively elegant and refined. Every Cape is made of specially selected skins and lined with rich silk. Please compare these values with those offered by any other store anywhere.

Animal Scarfs 25 Per Cent Off

For One Week Only

Never before have we offered such Unmatchable Values. Lynx, Mink, Sable, Hudson Seal, Fox and Wolf Furs in a Wonderful Collection, all priced exceptionally low.

TO OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS

Out-of-Town customers couldn't choose a better time to visit Ranger than during this Fur Sale. With every purchase made next week by out-of-town shoppers we will refund railroad fare, providing fare does not exceed 5 per cent of purchase made. Have your local ticket agent give you receipt when purchasing ticket. We will refund amount of fare upon presentation of receipt.

Fur Scarfs Add Beauty to the Fall Costume

A Scarf or Fur, be it choker or stole, adds a delightfully becoming touch and dash to any costume. One may select models from countless styles that are suitable for year-round wear.

We Invite Comparison of Fur Values

We knew when we bought these splendid Furs, our low prices would enable us absolutely to undersell any and all competition—To appreciate these values we urge you to compare them with those offered you anywhere else in Texas—or elsewhere.

We are now showing a most complete assortment of Fall Ready-to-Wear. Many are new arrivals. You will enjoy an inspection of the new modes at the Boston Store.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH LATEST ISSUE IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Sept. 11.—The liberalistic tendencies of the speeches in this year's session of the Diet has been a distinct feature of constitutional development in Japan. The leader of the movement is a young representative named Ryutaro Nagai whose boldness of word has attracted the attention of the empire. In the railroad train, at public meetings, wherever men gather, the name of Nagai is on the lips of Japanese as a "coming man."

Nagai was formerly a professor at Waseda university, the most democratic of Japan's universities, which was founded by that heroic radical leader, Marquis Okuma. The young man is a great believer in the democratic development of Japanese political institutions and is an admirer of both the British Parliament and the American Congress. He is described as a man of remarkable oratorical talents who will be heard from in modernized Japan.

But the young orator came to grief in a maiden speech in the house of representatives when during an attack on the cabinet he called Premier Hara "the autocratic Lenin of Japan." The governmental majority had him sent to the disciplinary committee, which suspended him for five days from the sittings of the house.

The incident caused members of the opposition party to hold an "indignation" meeting in a Tokyo hall for the purpose of "protecting freedom of speech and personal rights." Many policemen were present and finally stopped the meeting altogether. Mr. Nagai was given a great ovation. He insisted that a thorough regeneration of the representatives of the people in the Diet was really more imperative than a change in the cabinet for, he said, the standard of the Diet must be raised.

Of free speech he said: "Japan has in the past shown her wonderful capacity for assimilation, as may be seen by the Japanese adoption of Buddhism and Confucianism and from the fact that Christianity is also in the same process of assimilation. With such glaring object lessons before us an attempt to prevent new ideas from taking hold of the people by the suppression of speech must be described as ignorance of the great national characteristics of an ill-advised policy of assimilation of the Japanese people."

WOMAN APPOINTED TO COMMISSIONER'S PLACE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Wilson has appointed Mabel T. Boardman, for many years a member of the executive committee of the American Red Cross, to be commissioner of the District of Columbia. The appointment is effective next Wednesday after the retirement of Commissioner Brownlow, resigned.

The appointment makes Miss Boardman the first woman to be a member of the commission, which directs the entire government of the federal district.

All Set.
 "Have you prepared a good supply of cribs?"
 "Yes."
 "Have you concealed the textbook in your hat?"
 "Yes."
 "Are you sure you gave the instructor a good cigar?"
 "Certainly."
 "Well, then, let's go in and hit that prelim in Ethics."—Cornell Widow.

SLAYER OF FATHER-IN-LAW TRIES SUICIDE WITH A PIN
 QUINCY, Ill., Sept. 11.—William Cole, held for the murder of his father-in-law last Monday, whom he charged with attempted liberties on Mrs. Cole, his wife, tried to commit suicide in the county jail this afternoon. He straightened a safety pin and plunged it into his body, just missing the heart.

Gen. J. G. Harbord, who commanded the American troops which stopped the German drive on Paris in 1918, received his education as a scientific farmer at the Kansas State Agricultural College. He went from private, corporal, sergeant and quartermaster sergeant in the cavalry and was commissioned second lieutenant in the Fifth Cavalry in 1891.

Amphibious Tank May Be Weapon in Next Big Conflict

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Amphibious tanks such as predicted by General Estime of the French army in press dispatches from Paris, as part of the mechanical elements replacing manpower in future wars, are not considered visionary by American army officers who have studied closely the lessons taught by the world war.

These officers declared today that not only these tanks but cannon-carrying air planes, armored cars with the speed of express trains and huge steel defying heavy gun-carrying land battleships are in the realm of immediate possibility.

Proof of the concreteness of the prediction of amphibious tanks is given in a recent successful experiment of a tank invented by an Englishman which repeatedly crossed a river in the north of England. While the depth of the river is not stated, what little information has seeped through the censorship on war inventions still in force in England asserts that the tank crawled through water deeper than its height.

Information gathered recently by American army observers in England shows that both countries are constantly trying out inventions and developing ideas formed as the result of tank wars in France.

England has retained her full corps and has concentrated it in huge camps where the machines that proved so successful in the drives against the Germans are now being perfected and new tanks being built.

In addition to the amphibious tank that is only slightly different in design from the so-called "whippet" that proved so deadly in open warfare, the British have evolved a light tank that will exceed thirty miles an hour on level ground, a medium weight tank that will run at the rate of twenty miles an hour over rough ground and a heavy tank that will drive along at more than twelve miles an hour.

The amphibious, light and medium tanks are now being perfected by the British and mount only machine guns and one small cannon, but the heavy tanks, which average in weight around fifty tons, are armed with six-pounders and machine guns.

The French tank corps, according to information gleaned by observers, not only has greatly improved its light fast tanks, but has also evolved what is known as a super-tank, mounting a heavy gun and armored to turn a six-inch shell. This tank weighs sixty tons and can be driven at twelve miles an hour over the roughest ground.

Army officers believe the British amphibious tank is but a step toward an eventual tank that not only will operate on land but will be of a submersible type that can travel from coast to coast as does a submarine at present.

Fall Days Suggest The Essex Sedan

Economical—Easily Handled, Beautiful and Comfortable—Compare its Price

Everyone now thinks of an enclosed car for cool nights and the coming winter. But the objection to enclosed bodies on light cars has been their restricted performance. The Essex has ample power to offset the additional body weight.

Economical in Operation and Maintenance

It is a compact, commodious car, with a range of performance that answers every need. Owners have used their Essex Sedans for long tours. They know no limits to its service. It answers every requirement of comfort and beauty and it is economical as everyone expects a light car to be.

Gasoline, oil and tires are small items of expense in the operation of the Essex. But the greatest saving is due to its reliability. Repair and adjustment costs are negligible.

Much of the satisfaction in motoring comes from the appearance of the car. It expresses one's taste and individuality as much as one's clothes or the house in which one lives.

The Sedan is in every sense a family car of all seasons.

And its price is more than attractive in comparison with other Sedan types, regardless of the more important question of performance and durability.

MISSIONARY FINDS RACE OF PYGMIES

New pygmies compare with white man of normal size.

A race of pygmies of such primitive characteristics that they are but little removed from ape men have been discovered in the forests of the Belgian Congo, Africa, by Dr. Leonard J. Vandenberg, a Catholic missionary and anthropologist. The adults of the newly discovered tribe average only about four feet in height. Three members of the tribe, a father, mother and baby, are shown in the photograph.

Turks Would Raze St. Sophia Rather Than See It 'Desecrated' by Greeks

By Associated Press. CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—Passports are now demanded of visitors seeking to enter Saint Sophia, and any Christian who cannot establish the fact that he is neither a Greek nor an Armenian, is not admitted. Since the Greek advance eastward into Anatolia and the house of Greeks that they will recover Saint Sophia within a year, Moslem authorities have doubled the guard about the great mosque and take special precautions to prevent Greeks and Armenians from entering. There are many rumors in Constantinople, probably all of them groundless, that Greek troops will take the church by force, regardless of peace conference rulings, eliminate the Moslem alterations in its interior and restore the Christian character imparted to the historic building by the Emperor Justinian when the present building was erected under his direction in the sixth century. Prefer Dynamite to Greeks. Turks have declared they will dynamite the mosque before they will permit it to be desecrated by the Greeks and spiced to life in Constantinople by recumbent rumors that the Turkish nationalists have mined Saint Sophia and many other important buildings preparatory to razing them before a Greek advance into the Turkish capital. Such an advance is not regarded as improbable. The ability of the Constantinople government to enforce the terms of any treaty is questionable as long as Mustafa Kemal controls practically all of the remaining fragments of the Turkish army and refuses to take orders from the Sultan. Greece has the only troops which could undertake further punitive measures and might reasonably be expected to demand Constantinople as the reward for additional military operations. In spite of the boast of Russians in Constantinople that the Turkish capital and Saint Sophia will eventually fall into their hands as a result of the dissensions among the entente powers, the Turks show no disposition to bar Russians from their most historic mosque. Every afternoon hundreds of Russians frequent the great shrine. Cossacks in their fantastic, long-skirted blue coats embellished with rows of ivory-tipped cartridge cases; Caucasian princesses, gay in bright colored Parisian gowns; tight-belted Tartars, with their quaint curved swords; peasant women in their cheerful hand-embroidered head shawls and aprons and Donikine's wounded soldiers all mingle freely with the Moslem worshippers. The Moslems treat Russians with the same indifference displayed toward British and French soldiers and American sailors and relief workers who wander through the majestic mosque and are shown by noisy guides how the Christian angels and the mosaics of Jesus and the Virgin Mary were clumsily concealed by the Moslem artists who turned the Christian sanctuary into a mosque of worship for Islam. The Turks do not love the Russians. Neither do they hate them. No Christian is loved by a Moslem, but the power of the Turks to hate is exhausted on the Greeks and Armenians. They regard Russians as a lesser evil than the Greeks. Any Turk who meets in Constantinople frankly says he would accept Russian control of Constantinople in preference to Greek domination. And he says it with full realization that Russian domination would probably mean Bolshevik domination.

Monday Second Anniversary of St. Mihiel 'Show'

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Tomorrow is the second anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel when an American army commanded by Americans fought for the first time on European soil and by clearing the Germans from the famous salient, won a glorious victory.

In commemoration of that anniversary, the commanding generals of the eight combat divisions of the American Expeditionary Force which took part in that battle have sent messages of greeting through the American Legion to the men who fought under their command.

At dawn, Sept. 12, 1918, began the first all-American major offensive battle of the war which reduced in 48 hours the wedge held by the Germans since 1914.

In the operation the Americans took 16,000 prisoners, 143 guns and vast quantities of material, and established the all-red line in a position to threaten Metz. The assaulting troops suffered 7,000 casualties.

The divisions participating were the First, regulars, from all states; Second, regulars and marines, all states; Fourth, regulars, all states; Fifth, regulars all states; Twenty-sixth New England national guard; Forty-second or Rainbow national guard from 27 states; Eighty-second, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, national army troops; Eighty-ninth, Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota and Nebraska national army troops; Ninetieth, Texas and Oklahoma national army troops.

REDUCTION OF WHEAT ACREAGE IS THREATENED

International News Service.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Shortage of labor in the agricultural states is resulting in a reduction of acreage which threatens America's food supply, according to the findings of Percy F. Walker, dean of the Kansas university engineering school, made public today at national headquarters of the American Society of National Engineers. The dean is head of a research committee of the mid-continent section of that society.

Dean Walker found population at a standstill or declining in agricultural sections, pointing out that 16 out of 105 counties in Kansas prevented that state from decreasing in population in a decade, the increases all being in industrial sections. "The same thing holds good in Iowa and doubtless in other states for the same period," the dean reported.

Many farmers cannot pay their 1919 debts because the railroads are unable to move their harvest of wheat, and they are piling down production, he said.

As a remedy, Dean Walker suggested a study by engineers of the economics of transportation and production with a view to systematizing a national fitting of enterprises to localities. This, he thought, would work out better distribution of population where needed and would prevent continued inability of the transportation systems to meet the demands upon them.

TABLE GIVES WEIGHT LIMIT ON PNEUMATICS

Many motor truck owners who have changed their tire equipment from solids to pneumatics are sometimes puzzled as to the maximum weight they should allow loads to reach on the air-filled tires. An exceptionally useful table has been figured out, supplying this information, and it is given below.

"Of course, it is not expected that these figures will be followed exactly," says the sales engineer of the Fisk Rubber company, "but experts have worked the thing out both in theory and practice, and any truck owner will do well to follow the table as closely as possible."

The table gives maximum loads for both front and rear wheels, together with the proper tire sizes to be used on all trucks from three-quarter to five-ton weights.

Truck Tons	Front Wheels.		Pneumatic Tire size
	Maximum weight per wheel
3/4	805	4 1/2 or 5	4 1/2 or 5
1	1000	4 1/2 or 5
1 1/2	1200	4 1/2 or 5
2	1500	3 1/2 x 5
2 1/2	1800	3 1/2 x 5
3	2000	3 1/2 x 5
3 1/2	2100	3 1/2 x 5
4	2300	3 1/2 x 5

Here's Outline of Bill to Increase Taxes; Author Wants Suggestions

By Associated Press

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—Drastic revision of Texas taxation procedure is proposed by John T. Smith, Democratic nominee for the Texas house of representatives from Travis county. Mr. Smith is preparing a bill for presentation to the legislature, a large part of which, he said, already is completed. He expects to have the draft finished by October, he said.

In making public the fact that he is working on a tax bill, Mr. Smith said he desired to obtain suggestions for amendments from business men and taxpayers generally throughout the state. In order to do this, he said, he desires to have the bill printed in book form and stated he would furnish it to persons interested at the cost of publication and postage.

"A few of the main features of the bill," Mr. Smith said, are: Extension of the authority of the state tax commission so that it will be a head to the tax system of Texas; giving to the tax commission authority to equalize values in cooperation with county boards of equalization; plating of the lands in the several counties; making it necessary for all public utilities corporations, and all domestic or foreign corporations operating in more than one county, to render their property to the state tax commission.

"The occupation tax would be amended so that real estate agents would pay an occupation tax, and making it necessary for any desiring to put a town site on sale to obtain a license. All salesmen of stock in corporations or associations would be compelled to obtain a license also."

"Tax receipts for current taxes would be made prima facie evidence that no back taxes were due, and secured indebtedness would be made a separate class of property on which a stamp or registration tax would be paid in lieu of all other taxes. The latter provision would open up a home market for Texas bonds and other securities."

"The demands of our school necessities, the raising of more money, and such national resources as sulphur, mines, coal mines, the lumber manufacturing industry, packing industry, etc., would, under the new bill, be included in a list for extra taxation. The inheritance tax law would be materially changed."

Up To It.
The foreman complained to Cassidy about not taking a full load of bricks up the ladder every trip. One morning the supply of bricks ran out, and Cassidy, after gathering every one in sight, found he was still short of the proper number.

He yelled to a workman on the fifth floor: "What do you want?" asked the man. "Throw me down one brick," shouted Cassidy, "to make me a good load!"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

SOME TIRE CHANGES CAUSE ADJUSTMENT OF SPEEDOMETERS

When you change from normal size to oversize tires, it will be necessary to change the speedometer to read absolutely accurately. The rule to follow is that the number of teeth in the large speedometer gear, that is, the one attached to the road wheel, must be twice the diameter of the tire in inches. For instance, if your car is equipped with 32x3 1/2-inch tires, the speedometer gear should have sixty-four teeth. But if you put on the oversize tire which fits the same wheel, i. e., 33x4, the large speedometer gear should be changed to a sixty-six-tooth size.—Motor Life.

A Serious Accident.
The Surgeon: That was quite a bad accident. You have a sprained ankle and a dislocated shoulder. But we'll soon fix you up all right.
Mlle. Chimay of "The Foolishness" Company: I don't care about the ankle if it doesn't look bad. But I can't dance with a lame shoulder.—Houston Post.

Searing Him Off.
"You are about to be married?"
"Yes."
"Take my advice and keep quiet when your wife gets huffy. That's half the battle."
"Look here. Is married life supposed to be a battle?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Head of Firm: "How long do you want to be away on your wedding trip?"
Hinks (timidly): "Well, sir—er—what would you say?"
Head of Firm: "How do I know? I haven't seen the bride."—Edinburgh Scotsman.
