SAYS AMERICAN SOLDIERS WERE PRICE BOOSTERS

International News Service.

PARIS, June 26.—Gustave Terry, director of O'Leary, has been carrying on for several days an anti-American campaign in the course of which he accuses the United States of being responsible for the fall in the value of the franc and the American Expeditionary Force of having caused the rise in the cost of living in France. In his comments on a letter from an American who signs himself "Virginian," M. Terry says: "Do you understand Monsieur Virginian, you are one of the principal causes of the high cost of living in France? I take you as an American representing your countrymen and therefore it is to all Americans that the following remarks are addressed. Of course, I expect to hear from Monsieur Virginian that the Americans didn't come to France for their health, and I shall grant him that because we see right now the result of their coming. We see it in figures which are always more eloquent than words.

"When the American army was in France the soldiers never looked twice at a franc. They were spending their money. They threw away their money. The result was a general rise in the cost of everything—and the new prices have remained. Americans in France have been able to buy up real estate throughout France at a ridiculous price for them, since a franc is one-third its value. They will of course, sell it back when the franc becomes normal, thus making a profit of anywhere from 300 to 600 per cent.

"America seized hundreds of millions of dollars worth of German property in the United States when she entered the war. Do you think the American government consented to pool this property with the rest of German property for the benefit of all the allies? Of course not. If America had done so it would have resulted in a notable amelioration of our financial situation. It would have enabled us to float a loan in the United States backed by our part of the seized property. When the next interest payments on our loans in America fall due next October, you will see a new drop in the value of the franc. Why did we borrow money in the United States? We borrowed to fight America's battle for her. What did we do with the proceeds of the loans? We purchased munitions to arm ourselves for the fight. Where did we buy them? In America.

"The operation this was a double source of profit to the Americans. They made enormous profits on the purchases of war material and they are now making huge profits on the loans. Is that fair?"

"The Petit Bleu, in an editorial on the same subject, goes even further. The writer sees nothing to be gained by the expenditure of millions of dollars by American tourists this summer.

"Of course, they can spend a lot of money," he says, "because they will be spending francs. Our franc which was worth twenty cents a little more than a year ago is now worth about seven. An American landing with $1,000 changes his money and there he is with fifteen or sixteen thousand francs to spend. Thank you. That's well worth the trip. Why shouldn't our hotel keepers charge the Americans triple rates? We ought to make them pay in France at the same rate we have to pay when we buy goods in America or when we pay the interest on the money we borrowed from them."

SEEK TO MARRY GIRLS OF FRANCE TO LOVELORN AMERICAN YOUTHS

BY NEWTON C. PARKE, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, June 26.—The immediate organization of a committee of French women to co-operate with a similar committee in the United States with the object of promoting marriages between French girls and American youths, is urged by Professor Paul Carnot, of the faculty of medicine of the University of Paris, whose writings on the international marriage problem have recently attracted world-wide attention. He places Americans and Canadians on the same plane as most desirable husbands for the daughters of France.

Professor Carnot confesses in the current issue of the Paris Medical that when his suggestion for an "international marriage test" was first launched in the United States through the medium of the International News Service, he had little hopes for its success.

"But since my article appeared in many of the biggest newspapers in the United States I have received an avalanche of letters coming from all the states and from all social classes in which young men express their desire to take French brides," he writes. "I have, therefore, concluded that in this respect certainly, we have not taken into account our enormous prestige abroad, particularly in the United States, a prestige which throws in the shade some of the displeasing actions of our politicians and financiers.

"Among the letters which I have received are some from Americans who complain of their solitude and who dream of installing by their sides a little of the grace and gaiety of the French girls. These letters I have thrown in the fire, for we do not wish to transport our precious daughters to America where they will be lost to us, whose their children will remain Americans. Furthermore, experience has shown that the French girl, transplanted to a foreign soil, does not make a successful wife, grows weary in an atmosphere not her own, and that such marriages end too frequently by dissolutions and divorces.

"But it is entirely different for the second category of letters, which deserve our careful attention. They come from young Americans who wish to marry French girls and come to live in France. Some of the writers even tell me their particular tastes; one wants a blonde with blue eyes, another chestnut hair and black eyes, a third insists upon a jolly girl, another wants a good musician; some tell me exactly how large she should be and certain others even give me information about their salaries.

"All these eager young men from the United States demand that I respond immediately. All appear sincere and entirely desirable as husbands. But, alas, my laboratory here in the school of medicine is not a matrimonial agency and I have not time to respond. It is for this reason that I suggest the creation of a committee of French women whose names would impose respect, and knowing the customs of America. We could thus come to the aid of the thousands of young French girls whose marriage, otherwise, is an arithmetical impossibility because the war has killed off so many of our young men. We could thus draw to France vigorous young men of America, full of physical and moral health, who would soon become good Frenchmen.

From these marriages would finally be born healthy infants, the children of French mothers, who would remain French.

"By the side of the Americans I find the Canadians equally desirable as husbands. Many of them come from French stock, many speak our language, and during the war we have admired their courage.

"Alas! we cannot hope by this process to marry the two millions of French girls whose sweethearts were killed in the war, but perhaps we may save some tens of thousands and thus reduce in some measure the great disequilibrium of sexes in France. Even the prospects of this limited success should give us the impulse to energetic and immediate action."

WOMAN FINED $100 FOR BEATING STEPCHILDREN

International News Service.

KANSAS CITY.—It cost Mrs. J. O. Broyles a hundred dollar fine to beat her two small stepchildren with a razor strap "because they failed to learn to dress themselves."

Brought before Judge Herrod in the Municipal court, the children, a three-year-old boy and four-year-old girl, exhibited bruises. The boy's legs were a mass of bruises. The little girl was cut over one eye.

Mrs. Broyles was arrested by a welfare officer on complaint of neighbors.

IS GOOD PREACHER; WANTS TO BE HEARD

MOBERLY, Mo.—Even the deaf will have no excuse for not attending the Coates Street Presbyterian church here now. The Rev. C. B. Bowling, pastor of the church, has installed a novel equipment in the shape of an acoustic hearing aid as a means of enabling the "hard of hearing" ones to hear without straining themselves, both sermon and music.

Tests have already been made and the new equipment has been found to be satisfactory.

Six receivers placed in different parts of the church are a part of the "hearing" device.

REFORMATORY INMATES BEAT WOMAN PEACEMAKER

BEDFORD, N. Y.—Acting as a peacemaker between two fighting inmates of the Bedford Reformatory for Women, a matron was so badly injured that she required hospital treatment. When the matron interfered in their quarrel the young women pummeled her.

Miss Florence Jones, now superintendent of the institution, said the two girls would be put on bread and water diet for some days to come.

GENERAL CURED OF T. B. TELLS HOW IT'S DONE

International News Service. BOSTON.—Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, famous overseas commander of the 26th (Yankee) Division, cured himself of tuberculosis. "It can be driven out of this country in five years and kept out forever," he said. "I know what I'm talking about, for I had the disease myself and was cured."
"it wouldn't be a hard job, either. All that is needed is determination on the patient's part. Nature does the work if she gets a chance. The nation, each state and community and every individual must see that she gets the chance."
"it's the best of men and women, the hardest workers who fall easiest prey to this disease. Slackers and drones don't get it, they take too good care of themselves."
"Ninety-five per cent of everybody in the world has the germs in his or her system all the time. They are in little children, in growing youths, in the strongest and most athletic."
"Each individual has a personal limit up to which it is safe to use physical and mental strength; the 'run down' condition which follows passing the limit gives the constantly lurking germs the chance they've waited for."
"Overwork or overexertion will bring a man close to the limit. Bad air, bad eating, too little sleep push him further into the danger zone. Then maybe so slight a thing as a cold shoves him across the line. The natural resistance his blood offers to disease germs is broken down. The corpuscles are unable to kill off the germs fast enough and they get him."
"Care lies in restoring the blood to good condition. The only way to do this in the case of tuberculosis is to rest absolutely. I mean by that a degree of doing nothing which is almost inconceivable to the naturally active person—actually making not the slightest effort physically or mentally; becoming a jelly fish as it were. With patience, determination and courage the cure is certain."
HUNT LIBERTY BONDS FOR EX-SERVICE MEN
WASHINGTON.—Soldiers and sailors who subscribed to Liberty bonds during their period of service and whose bonds were lost in the shuffle are being aided in recovering them by the American Red Cross, in co-operation with the war department. Announcement was made that 1213 bonds were delivered to their former service men owners during April and May through these efforts. In the same period 1,011 additional service men requested aid in securing their bonds.
As an aid to veterans in the world war, Oklahoma gave $25 a month to her former service men, with a maximum of $200 for educational expenses.

OBREGON GOES BACK HOME TO PREPARE PLANS

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—General Alvaro Obregon, for several years the strongest man in Carranza's cabinet, and the only soldier in the Mexican army who ever succeeded in landing a smashing blow against Francisco Villa, notorious bandit chief, when he put his army to utter rout at the battle of Celaya in April, 1915, shortly after his split with First Chief Venustiano Carranza, has relinquished his military post and turned his command of rebel forces over to the new administration. He has returned to private life in order to resume his campaign for the presidency of the republic.

In an extensive interview with the writer, General Obregon declared that in the event of his election as chief executive of the Republic of Mexico it will be his paramount aim not alone to establish more friendly and unquestionable relations with the United States and the civilized nations of the world in general, but to give to Mexico a safe, sane, clean and sound administration—in fact, a government such as will command the respect of all the peoples of the world.

"All foreigners residing in Mexico and those interests having capital invested in the republic will be accorded the same protection as is given the Mexican citizen under our constitution and the law, and the law alone will guide my administration in the event of my election to the presidency," continued General Obregon.

"Nothing will please me more than to know at the end of my administration that I have succeeded in re-establishing Mexico's integrity among the nations of the world; that my revolution-torn native land has again retained her solid financial footing and been accorded her proper place among the ranks of the respected nations of the world."

General Obregon was born on February 19, 1880, in the pueblo of Siquisiva, state of Sonora. He received his education in the common schools of the state. From early youth it has been his ambition to be one of his country's military leaders, and it was while he was still a young man in the early nineties that he gathered about him a number of Mayo Indians in the vicinity of Siquisiva and formed a company of home guards as a protection against wandering outlaw bands.

It was not until some months after the Madero revolution gained strength in Sonora that he joined the rebel movement and with his small command of Mayo Indians as a nucleus went forth to wage war against the government of Porfirio Diaz and remained in the field until the successful conclusion of the revolution. He then retired to his ranch with his followers, where he remained until advised of Madero's assassination by General Victoriano Huerta, when he again called his hand together to take up arms against the usurper.

From that time on General Obregon became permanently identified with the revolutionary party, and it was only after General Pascual Orozco's treachery in deserting Madero in his career that Obregon followed him and his men into the wilderness of the north and drove him from the state of Sonora, where he had launched a campaign of murder and degradation.

Although Obregon is known to have been a very staunch admirer of the late president, he was appointed minister of war and marine in Carranza's cabinet as a reward for his victory over Francisco Villa's army at Celaya, during which battle Obregon lost his right arm.

After several years, however, friction developed between Carranza and Obregon which ultimately brought about his resignation. He immediately thereafter publicly announced his intention of becoming a candidate of the Liberalist party for the presidency of Mexico.

It was this announcement by Obregon, together with the growing dissatisfaction in the ranks of the military, which brought about the final overthrow of the Carranza regime, because of the issuance by the chief executive of a manifesto cancelling the general presidential elections called for July, Carranza basing his action on "the unsettled conditions prevailing throughout the republic."

In "The Branded Flour," a forthcoming Select serial to follow "The Whirlwind," a Republic serial starring daredevil Charles Hutchison, four babies are the center of interest.

Bernard Durning, husband of Shirley Mason, the actress, is completing a Republic picture the title of which is as yet unannounced, written by Margaret Prescott Montague.

Rockcliffe Fellows, who appeared with Ethel Barrymore on the stage, is included in the cast supporting Elaine Hammerstein in her forthcoming picture, "The Point of View."

Edwin Stevens, Joseph Girard, Francis Parks and Kate Price, all well-known screen players, appear in the latest Eugene O'Brien picture, "The Figurehead."

Miss Elaine Hammerstein's supporting company in her forthcoming production "The Point of View" will include Rockcliffe Fellows, Arthur Houseman, Warren Cook, Hugh Huntley, Helen Lindroth and Gornish Beck. The picture is an adaptation of a play by Edith Lairs and is directed by Alan Crosland.

Ora Carey, who will be seen in an important role in support of Eugene O'Brien in "The Figurehead," made her stage debut in vaudeville and then went into musical comedy and played supporting roles in the famous Gaiety theatre in San Francisco, before taking up pictures.

Martha Mansfield gets half of her name from Mansfield, O., where she was born.

BE SELLING BOOKS OR ROBBING BANKS

International News Service, COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Speaking of nerve—listen!

A man walked in the drug store of J. A. Jackson. He asked to see some fountain pens. He selected the best in the box. He used the druggist's ink to fill it.

Then he wrote a check for $20. The pen was $6; the druggist cashed the check and gave him $14 in change.

The check was cold—and the druggist was almost that way when he finally revived.

INSECTS DESTROY MILLION FEET OF OREGON LUMBER

International News Service, ENGENE, Ore.—Approximately one million feet of lumber in the Siuslaw National Forest, in the vicinity of Yachats and Cape Creek, on the coast, was destroyed by insects during the year 1919 according to a special report filed in the Siuslaw Forest office here. The investigation was made by one of the rangers who found that the ravages of the insects, the nature of which he was unable to determine, covered a strip of forest about a quarter of a mile wide and fifty acres in extent.

The Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department has eliminated from the new recruiting pamphlet the name of Admiral William S. Sims.

Among the Movie Stars

Mabel Normand was born in Atlanta. While yet a young miss, with her hair put "up" so that people might think her mature, Mabel left her home town to come to New York and study to be a painter. Talented people have a sad habit of being without funds, and while she was trying to learn to draw she became a model, posing for such artists as James Montgomery Flagg, Charles Dana Gibson, the Leyendeckers, and Henry Hutt. Her beauty and freshness made her much in demand. Later she went into films and became a star of the first magnitude.

Says Miss Normand: "In my Goldwyn pictures I am a wind-blown girl of the West, galloping over vast ranches after cattle on the stampede, lassoing, holding sing-song with those big, clean western cowboys, binding up their hurts, giving them that gentle woman's touch that they are so ashamed to admit they are starving for. It's all so real, so true.

And then to become a lady. I do it, and I love every bit of it. Oh, but it's such jolly good fun to do all these things in the cinematograph and know that it's helping others. That's my favorite role, because it's so real."

Charlie Chaplin

The world's funniest man has not been seen on the screen for some time, but Charlie Chaplin has nevertheless been busy turning out comedy film, and announcement of his next First National release is expected most any day.

Chaplin's last screen appearance was in "A Day's Pleasure," released last winter, and many fans have expressed impatience to see him in his next vehicle. Charlie says that the delay is due to the fact that he has been taking greater pains in his work and that as a result his next comedy will be the best laugh getter he has yet made.

As a contribution toward the raising by the Chicago Tribune of a hol-day fund for the poor, Chaplin some time ago gave a miniature likeness of himself in the shape of a dummy dressed in the costume he wore in "A Day's Pleasure." The money was raised by the sale of this and other odd gifts received from many world famous personages. The picture shows Chaplin and the tiny likeness of himself.

Priscilla Dean

"Take off those ear-rings!"

"Wash that paint off your face!" "There now, you look a thousand per cent better." And laughingly Priscilla Dean put her arms around the young girl at her side.

"She's only a kid," she explained, "and thinks it's smart to make up on the street like a vamp."

Miss Dean, who is a Universal star, has a horror of paint and cosmetics for public use. Although she uses them in her business, when the hours at the studio are over, soap and water are vigorously applied. She's never seen on the street "made-up."

"If young girls only knew how much nicer they look as Nature intended them, I am sure they would never again use the lip stick or eyebrow pencil," is her argument.

"The same applies to clothes. If you want to look young don't wear long, flowing veils, earrings that would have done credit to Cleopatra, and high French heels. Don't fool yourself that the men like it, either. They don't. No man wants to walk down the street with a young girl dressed up like a circus horse."

Henry B. Walthall

Henry B. Walthall, who rose to motion picture fame with the production of "The Birth of a Nation," is to be seen soon in the film version of a Harold MacGrath novel, "A Splendid Hazard," in which he is given a wonderful opportunity to exercise his remarkable ability as a character actor.

Walthall takes the part of Karl Pretman, an ambitious and fanatical descendant of Napoleon Bonaparte, whom he endeavors to emulate in his dream of the restoration of a monarchy in France. Rosemary Theby plays opposite Walthall.

Blanche Sweet

Blanche Sweet, the Pathe star, and Ann Hastings of her company, are introducing their white fox battlers to each other before the scrap starts. Miss Sweet's Pathe feature is "Help Wanted, Male." Many scenes for this were taken at Cataline Islands, California.

Buck Jones

It was in France shortly after the armistice that William Fox saw Buck Jones give an exhibition of his horsemanship before the king and queen of Belgium. The meeting between the world's champion rider and the great motion picture producer resulted in a contract for Jones to star in Western pictures.

Jones' previous life as a cowboy and that marvelous knowledge of horsemanship which won him such fame during the years of the war makes him particularly adapted to portray the real man of the West as he has known him. Such a character is seen in the title role of "Eberhard Trevison," from the novel by Charles Alden Seltzer, which is Buck Jones' latest starring vehicle under the Fox banner.

WHAT HAPPENS TO GOWNS WORN IN BUT ONE PICTURE BY THE MODERN MOVING PICTURE STAR?

The question of what becomes of gowns worn in the movies has bothered many. An answer is given by Robert A. Simon, who writes the following for the New York Post.

The film faded out on a vision of new set of full-dress clothes containing a hero embracing a shimmering and expensive evening gown containing a heroine.

"What, sighed the sweet young thing in the audience, 'do you suppose becomes of that gorgeous frock after they finish making the picture?'"

"She'll wear it at home," answered the sweet young thing's wise companion. "Sometimes a film actress displays in private the wardrobe that has carried a 'feature picture' to success, but usually the fate of a screen gown is less domestic. If the costume happens to be the star's personal property, she may dispose of it as she wills. More frequently, however, the gown is supplied by the producers, and it may end its career as the costume of an 'extra' in a ballroom scene or it may be remodeled out of recognition in the wardrobe department."

"A gown never is used prominently in more than one film," said Mrs. Lila Baker, wardrobe mistress and costumer extraordinary for a leading firm of producers. "We find that the audiences are quick to spot a duplication. New York crowds may not be so critical, but out-of town they take in every detail of costuming, and if one of our stars were to wear the same frocks in different pictures we'd hear about it in short order."

"But what becomes of the gown after the star has worn it? Is it possible for some ambitious social right to buy it at a second-hand shop?"

"Never!" laughed Mrs. Baker. "Gowns that come thru the picture-making machine process in good condition are kept right here in the costume room for about six months. We may need them again for retakes. It would be too costly if we had to duplicate a gown every time a scene didn't turn out properly. Another reason we keep the dresses here is to avoid any possible duplication of the gowns in several pictures. It would be awkward if some one playing a small part in a new picture appeared in one of Elsie Ferguson's old costumes."

"On the other hand, we find it perfectly safe to use the old gowns of our star actresses in mob scenes which call for 'tone.' These scenes rarely involve close-ups, and there's not much chance that any one will notice that the dark girl at the second table is wearing something that Mrs. Coker wore in one of her pictures. Very often the star's old gown becomes a piece of read-made atmosphere for use in society pictures."

As these evening gowns cost about $500 each, the mob scenes may be said to be rich in atmosphere.

"The high cost of dressing certainly hits the wardrobe department," continued Mrs. Baker. "We paid about $15,000 for Miss Ferguson's wardrobe in a recent picture, and that figure doesn't include such things as furs and sables. Of course we try to make over the gowns into something that looks like new—but nowadays there's so little to a gown that it's a hopeless job."

"Even when the scenario calls for old clothes, it's hard to save money. You think that we could supply such dresses from stock but usually we have to buy new old clothes. A few weeks ago we needed a costume for an actress who was to play an immigrant coming over in an old French evening gown. It cost us about $300 to get a gown of that description, and then we had to maul it in the studio to make it look sufficiently worn out."

The star's discarded frocks have more than mere pictorial and economic value when they are worn by "extras" in society scenes.

"The little girls who get about $5 a day for 'dressing a set,' remarked Mrs. Baker, "seem to feel inspired when they know that they're wearing a frock that Mary Pickford used to have, and they act with a great deal of spirit. It isn't uncommon to hear one 'extra' tell another that she looks like Billy Burke in that dress!"

EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER BUT IT SOMETIMES FAILS, SAYS DOROTHY DIX

By DOROTHY DIX.

There is an old saying to the effect that experience is a hard school but fools will learn in no other.

Alas and alack, most of us are such dolt that we do not even profit by experience. In vain does life try to teach us wisdom. We refuse to learn our lesson even though it is beaten into us with blows and cudgeling and tears. In all the vagaries of human nature there is nothing stranger than this, that we seldom let the past be a light of warning to our feet. We go on stumbling into the same old pitfalls, and making the same blunders, and repeating the same mistakes year after year though for every one we have had to pay with bitter suffering and unavailing regrets.

"I have made many mistakes in my life," said a successful man to me once, "but they have been fresh mistakes every time. I have never made the same mistake the second time."

Which is, perhaps, the difference between the wise man and the fool. He learned, from experience. Most people don't.

The Victims of Fatal Optimism.

And it isn't because we have forgotten the agony we have gone through, or that we fail to see the red flag of danger that experience flaunts before our eyes. It's because we are victims of a sort of fatal optimism that persuades us that this time some sort of a miracle will be wrought in our behalf that will preserve us from the logical outcome of our folly.

On forty occasions before we may have had painful proof of what our outraged stomachs thought of a combination of cucumbers, and few cream, and watermelon, but that doesn't keep us from blithely feasting on the deadly mixture, and being surprised when we have to call in a doctor later on.

A man will break himself down on overwork, but instead of letting his experience teach him to conserve his strength and his health, the minute he gets out of the sanitarium he plunges right back into the vortex of business and wrecks himself again.

A woman will buy something at a bargain sale that she doesn't want and for which she has no earthly use, because it has been marked down from $1.50 to $1.47 and then she will wonder why she did it and bemoan her wasted money. But a hundred such experiences never teach her to walk by a special sale of flummery without ever turning to look back. She always does the lot's wife act, no matter how many times before she has been salted.

And why are most households a dark and bloody domestic battle field, with husband and wife in a never-ending scrimmage, except that people simply refuse to learn anything from experience?

Wives Do Not Learn.

It doesn't take a woman long to find out that her husband has a naive vanity about posing as the head of the house; and that he hates to be asked where he is going, and that certain subjects have the same effect upon him that a red flag has on a mad bull.

How more than stupid of her, then, not to ask his opinion on every subject whether she takes it or not; not to refrain from nagging and not to clamp the lid down, good and tight, on the subjects that are anathema to him.

But instead of learning life's little lesson that would assure them devoted husbands and peaceful homes, the great majority of wives learn nothing from the experience of a hundred fights that have left their hearts wounded and scarred, and they go along precipitating the rows that will end in a banged door, shut behind an angry husband, and a pillow wet with unnecessary tears.

Nor is there any man of ordinary intelligence who hasn't found out within six months after marriage exactly how to work his Maria. He's ascertained that it isn't safe to admit to ever having particularly noticed another woman, even if she's as homely as sin and 100 years old; that it's diplomatic to call one's wife's temper, nerves, and that she will forgive her husband anything so long as he tells her fat is becoming, and that she grows more beautiful with age.

But how few men cash in their dearly bought knowledge of femininity and get therefor wives who eat out of their hands and celebrate their virtues in the market place? No. They go on ignoring their experience of how to manage a woman, and expect her to be reasonable and sensible, and mourn because she is not.

Losing Money.

Perhaps, though, the most inexplicable failure to learn from experience is furnished by those people who have made the trip from wealth to poverty and back again, and who gaily hid the toboggan slide for the second descent.

There is no blinking the terrors of poverty, and to none are they so horrible as those who are used to affluence. To have been nurtured in the lap of plenty, to have known the freedom and independence that a full pocketbook gives, to have never worn anything but good clothes and had good food, beautiful and cultured surroundings; to have always had "everything that goes with evening dress," as Kipling put it.

Then to wake and find one's self penniless, that all of one's money has slipped through one's fingers; to be tortured with anxiety as to where the next meal is to come from, to have to wear shabby clothes whose very touch irritates one; to be doomed to the hell of dirty, sordid surroundings, what suffering can be greater—what fate more cruel?

You would think that the men and women who had once had money and lost it would be perfect misers, afraid to spend a cent, if luck again smiled upon them, but in the great majority of cases no such thing happens.

Those who have wasted their substance the first time, turn spenders again and throw it away the second time as carelessly as if there was no black memory of want in the back of their heads to warn them that money has wings. Those who have gambled away their fortunes on hair-brained schemes or trying to break Wall street, take another turn at the wheel of chance.

They have learned nothing from experience. Experience is a hard school, but fools will learn in no other way. We may take this to heart. What has life taught you? Are you one of the fools who never learn—or the wise man who never makes a mistake the second time? Copyright by Wheeler Synd., Inc.

MOVIE NOTES.

David Belasco will open his season on Aug. 31 at the Empire with a new comedy entitled "Call the Doctor." Among those in the cast will be Tom Wise, William Morris, Phillip Merrival, Janet Beecher and Charlotte Walker.

"The fall and rise of Susan Lenox" opened in New York last week.

Blanche Yarka is to play the role of a French mother in the Leo Deitrichstein-Lee Shubert production of the Brioux comedy, "The Americans in France."

The Winter Garden in New York is closed for two weeks and when it is opened again it is said the famous Maxfield Parrish painting of "Old King Cole" which for years was a feature of the Knickerbocker, will be among the new decorations.

Henry Hull, who was a co-star with Constance Binney in "39 East," will be featured next season in a new play called "The Crucible."

Bide Dudley has written the lyrics for a new musical comedy, "Lorayne," which Wendell Phillips Dodge will produce next fall. The book is by C. S. Montayne and the score by Frank H. Grey.

Tuesday, June 22, will be a big night at the New Amsterdam. On that night the "Follies" will be opened.

Fay Bainter was recently out of the cast of "East is West" for two days in order to see some one else play the cute little Chinese girl. At that she has played it nearly six hundred times.

Arthur Byron and Martha Hedman are to be the stars in "Transplanting Jean." This is a comedy taken from the French play by Robert de Fiers and C. A. Caillet.

Four companies of the delightful musical comedy, "Irene," are to be sent out next season, and right now the author and stage manager are spending their time looking thru the New York department stores to get chorus girls. This is an advertised fact and not a joke.

CHINESE FIND NOTE WAS NOT OFFICIAL ONE

PEKING, May 25. (By Mail)—Inquiry by China's delegate in Siberia, Li Chia-ar, concerning the proffered restoration to China by the Soviet government of the Chinese Eastern railway and all mining and forestry concessions by former governments of Russia appears to show that the communication received by the Chinese government in the last days of March was unauthorized.

The note purported to be signed by the Soviet delegate to the Council of Commissioners of Siberia and the Far East, Janson, by direction of the Commissary for foreign affairs at Moscow, Harakhin. A telegram from Li Chia-ar to his government says no such communication was signed by Janson. An announcement of the fact has accordingly been sent out to all the provinces by the Chinese cabinet, concluding with a warning against and instructions to check bolshevik propaganda.

JOHN-A-DREAMS

"A king in your dream is a prince in your room." This is an old saying, and a true one. Or, as the poet puts it, "The presence of a king engenders love among his subjects, and his loyal friends."

We may have done with kings in politics for some time to come, but in dreams they are still welcome. Dream of one, and the day is near when one man's smile will mean more to you than life itself, and I am almost sorry to say that this applies to married women and to single ones as well, and in the case of the former, the smile will not be on the husband's lips. If, then, a married woman dreams that she is conversing with a king, she will become the unfortunate plaything of a guilty passion, and neither husband, children nor home will dissuade her from the path and paths directed by her inflamed heart.

To walk with a king has virtually the same meaning, with the exception that a maiden who so dreams will not wed the man on whom her heart is set, though she will pass many lonely months in the belief that she will become his wife.

Not so propitious is a dream in which a king leaves you. This is a warning against wanton acts—or a sign that, despite the knowledge that you are doing wrong, you will commit them. To be dancing with a king is a better sign. It means that you will find yourself adored by a man far above your station, either in worldly goods, in position or in family. If music accompanies the dance, you will marry very fortunately. If there is none, you will have a sweet flirtation with the man in question, but it will mean nothing in the long run.

To dream of princes is an immortal crown. No matter how you may now be inclined, once you have had this dream, your thoughts will turn to serious things, you will begin to study in order to advance yourself, for princes are the glass, the school, the book. Where subjects' eyes to learn, do read, do look.

And it is important to remember that, no matter what you may do in the presence of a prince or in his company, only the one meaning, as stated here, can be read from the dream.

It is not a good sign to dream of a crown. It foretells care, grief, responsibility.

A crown, golden in show but a wreath of thorns. Brings dangers, troubles, cares and sleepless nights.

Worse yet, if it is placed upon your head. Put it on yourself, your griefs will be of your own making; if other hands crown you, others will be responsible for the heaviness of your heart.

To give some one a crown is a sign of a bitter nature, of deliberately bringing sorrow into a home formerly sunny with joy. Women who have such dreams are of the kind who take no heed of the rights of others but seek only their own satisfaction. If it is a man whom you crown, you are bent upon stealing his heart only to throw his love away later. If it is a woman, then you have it in your mind to break her spirit by stealing the man of her choice. Such dreams, then, are not prophecies, but disclosures of one's own nature, a mirror held up to black hearts so that they may see their own sin.

Mrs. A. Don:—You, as well as members of your family will have reason in the near future to become anxious over the ways of fate of a relative, probably one of the younger girls. But, soon after, all trouble will vanish and, as the beginning of your beautiful vision indicates, you will lead a life of happy peace and contentment greater than you have so far known in your life.

Reader of the Ranger Daily Times—It is almost impossible to answer your questions because of the absolute lack of details. To dream of 1876, in no connection with other incidents, means care. To dream of an "unknown" means love-longing.

JAM FACTORY IS FORCED TO CLOSE BY SUGAR MARKET

International News Service.
LONDON, June 26.—A prominent firm of jam manufacturers has announced its intention of closing down three of its factories, owing to the high price of sugar.

The world shortage of sugar has been rendered even more acute, according to British authorities, by the increased consumption of the product in the United States, owing chiefly to the enactment of the prohibition law.

It is, therefore, thought that the action of the jam manufacturers may merely result in the sugar being diverted to another country at a higher price.

In Great Britain at present the price of sugar is 1 shilling 2 pence per pound (28 cents at the old rate of exchange) and it is expected that at an early date the price will be increased to 3½ cents per pound.

Before the war the price of sugar in England was 4 cents per pound.

TALE OF 7 SULLIVANS ALL MIXED UP IN CHICAGO SET-TO

International News Service.
CHICAGO, June 26.—Patrick Sullivan met Sidney Sullivan in the old-fashioned Irish way at West Harrison and Aberdeen streets. Policeman Sidney Sullivan arrested them for fighting. Desk Sergeant Michael Sullivan looked them for disorderly conduct. Lockup Keeper Jerry Sullivan escorted them to a cell and Warrant Clerk J. L. Sullivan made out the complaint. The bellicose Patrick and Sidney were arraigned before Judge Dennis W. Sullivan.

"It's not so bad as you think," said Patrick. "We're not brothers or any relations at all."

"Discharged," said the Sullivan who was judge. "But I'll not be so easy next time."

WASHINGTON.—Revision of methods of making appropriations and a reclassification and redistribution of the work of the various executive departments are recommended by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt in a letter to Representative Ireland of Illinois, Republican, which was made public at the navy department.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote in reply to an inquiry from Mr. Ireland as to whether any reorganizations, reforms or consolidations could be made in the navy department. The assistant secretary did not confine himself to that department.

Wants Real Budget System.
He recommended that congress: "Create a true budget system, not the small beginning already attempted."

"Consolidate the appropriations in one general committee, with subcommittees to deal with separate subjects."

"Put into law the general principles recommended by the reclassification committee's report, together with the authorization of adequate salaries to government employees."

"Invite a conference with the executive branch of the government looking to a reclassification and redistribution of the work of the departments."

"Give by law greater authority to the heads of the executive departments in conducting their executive business, at the same time holding these heads more directly responsible for the successful administration of their work."

Present Relations Wrong.
Mr. Roosevelt said that the entire system of relationship which exists between congress and the executive departments is fundamentally wrong.

"Congress for various reasons," he said, "has so tied the hands of the executive officers of the government that they have no discretion in the fundamental questions of employment. I do not believe, of course, that the civil service commission should be wiped out or that we should return to the 'spoils' system, but there is altogether too much assumption in this government that executive officers will use their authority for political purposes. My own wonder is that, considering the existing circumstances, the employees of the government are as efficient as they are."

As to consolidations of any bureaus to increase efficiency, Mr. Roosevelt said a lot of work was being done in other departments which ought properly be under the navy and that a great deal of work was being done by the navy department which could properly be transferred to other departments.

Cumbersome Methods.
"After seven years down here in an executive position," he continued, "I cannot help the conclusion that our governmental methods are cumbersome and wasteful. I am equally frank in telling you that I think the first improvement must come in what is after all the source of governmental activities, i. e., the legislative branch."

"I hope you will not take it as a criticism or any individual or this particular congress when I call attention to the unwieldy, inadequate and businesslike methods under which the House and Senate of the United States conduct their business. For instance, the navy department has to go before the naval affairs committee for its main appropriation; it also has to go before the appropriations committee for the money to run the force in Washington, and I can cite numerous instances where the department has fallen between the fires of the two committees."

Dr. Stratton recently stirred New York by visiting a number of restaurants and saloons, sampling the liquor sold there in defiance of the prohibition law, and in a sermon describing what he saw and where he saw it, giving names and addresses.

LEGION IS SUED FOR MAKING RAID ON HEADQUARTERS

(By International News Service.)
CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 26.—That the Communist Labor Party of America has adopted as its emblem the Bolshevik hammer and sickle, and agrees with its principals and objects of the Bolsheviks of Russia and the Communists, but has refused to adopt their methods for attaching them, is the declaration made here by Lotta Burke.

New statement was made in connection with her suit for $50,000 alleged damages due to a raid by members of the American Legion on Communist Labor Headquarters. She sued local legionaries.

Declaring that the middle class of America would be considered the bourgeoisie of Russia, she said that the Communist Labor Party endorses the principles of the Comintern as enunciated in the Third Internationale formed at Moscow.

Air Market in South America Attracts Many

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Aviation missions from every big country are striving with each other in South America to "win" the big market for their respective aviation interests, with Americans among the leading contenders, war department aviation officers revealed here recently.

Aviation missions from England, Italy, France and America are now actively at work.

"South America is keenly alive to the possibilities of aviation," said the American aviation statement from the war department, "both from a military and commercial point of view. The British interests have been by far the most active and have paved the way in practically every South American country toward the establishment of permanent commercial air routes. That these missions mean business cannot be doubted by anyone, as they have trained engineers, flying personnel and complete equipment in each country, and such types of planes as the Handley Page bomber, Vickers Vimy, D. H. 9, etc., in many South American countries are in active operation. The success which these missions have met with has been largely due to the fact that they have secured concessions over certain routes, mail contracts, and last, but not least, training South American flyers."

That the Americans are not far behind, however, is indicated in a letter which the statement quoted from R. O. Albaugh, assistant to former Captain Donald Hudson, who is now organizing the Bolivian aviation corps.

The letter described how the Americans laid out a field and in practically a day made a spectacular flight in a machine which had arrived in knock-down shape only a day or so before. They flew over the Bolivian capital, and on returning, such was the impression they made that within three hours after the flight $20,000 in gold had been raised for aviation.

"You Yanks are men of action—not words," the Bolivian minister of war said.

As a result of the flight the Bolivian officials decided to raise and maintain permanently two aero squadrons of at least eighteen planes. They say this is only a starter.

"Splendid opportunities are available to all," said the aviation statement. "The native South American likes our methods of getting results. It is to be hoped that the American interests will be represented in the South American field. The business is there; it is but a question of going after it."

AVIATION PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON.—Commander Ralston S. Holmes, skipper of the Mayflower, the presidential yacht, reports that the vessel will be in readiness for a cruise within a few days, although the President and Mrs. Wilson are not expected to take any river trips until later in the season.

The Mayflower has undergone extensive repairs and alterations during the last few weeks in preparation for the President's week-end cruises.

Storage Battery Loses Juice Even When Car Is Idle

Owners of motor cars should realize that a storage battery is gradually discharging itself whether the car is in use or idle. The reason for this is that the electricity from a charged storage battery is due to chemical action of dilute sulphuric acid on its lead plates. This electro-chemical action begins the moment at which the electrolyte, or solution, is put in, and the battery is brought into operative condition by electrical charge.

Long periods of idleness, due to traffic delays while the battery is in transit, inactivity while the automobile is standing in the showroom or in the garage when left for repairs, cause the battery to lose some of its power. In order to correct this it is often necessary to give the battery a freshening charge before the car is taken out. It is, moreover, very important that the generator charging rate should be checked up and any inaccuracy corrected at once.

Prest-O-Lite service stations, acting on policies inaugurated by the Prest-O-Lite company, take it upon themselves to correct these difficulties. The new car owner, taking his car to the Prest-O-Lite station immediately after purchase, receives without cost to him a standard "initial test" designed to start the car off with a correctly operating electric installation. This initial test includes a check of the generator charging rate, car wiring and test of the storage battery. If the battery requires a freshening charge, this is also given as a part of the initial test service.

Starting right with a new storage battery and starting and lighting installation is half of the battle for satisfactory service. Little troubles cast at the very beginning have no chance to develop into big ones.

AMERICAN CARS NOT BEING SOLD TO THE ENGLISH

International News Service.

LONDON, June 26.—Only 200 commercial motor vehicles were imported into England during the month of April from the United States, while no less than 718 commercial cars were imported from Germany during the same month.

This is according to a statement issued by the American Chamber of Commerce in London and the reason given for this unusual "slump" in American cars is attributed to the low value of the mark which has enabled purchasers to obtain German cars at a tempting figure for some time past.

There is, however, likely to be a change in the situation very shortly, for the German manufacturers have decided that from the middle of May they will charge for all exports in the currency of the country to which they are sent.

"This step," is the comment of the Chamber of Commerce, "logical though it may seem to German manufacturers, is likely to remove the general incentive of cheapness for German cars and the probabilities are in favor of increased imports of American cars."

Copper Market Influenced by Rail Situation

CALUMET, Mich.—One effect of the long tie-up of the railroads is expected here to be an enlivened demand for copper metal among the eastern manufacturers who now are receiving but little in the way of supplies. Most of the metal that is now being shipped East by boat and by train is for export, and little of that going through Chicago and Detroit will reach the East. In the South the manufacturers are unable to get copper, for the same reason, and practically no shipments are being made from the mines of the Southwest, located miles from the waterways.

Calumet and Hecla and its associated properties are shipping by the water route principally at present. Quincy and Copper Range are sending copper East by water, but the former is also continuing rail shipments to a considerable extent. These are purely for domestic consumption, however, Quincy having quite a volume of this class of orders. Some of the smaller mines, such as Winona, Hancock and Franklin, which had stocks of copper left over at the close of last year, have been enabled to make small sales lately and could clean up the most of their surplus, it is said, if they desired to do so.

Look for an Upturn.

All mining men are of the opinion, however, that there will shortly be an upturn in the industrial situation that will greatly benefit the copper market by increasing demand for the red metal. So far this year the automobile manufacturers, although increasing their output of cars, do not appear to have called for their normal amounts of copper. Wire makers have been taking large stocks.

The Quincy Mining company has worked out a plan for the further recovery of copper from its rock product. The brick with which its smelters are lined is being crushed, after becoming worn, for the copper adhering or "soaking" into it during the smelting process. The sand pulverized from the brick is also utilized.

The Mohawk output for May showed somewhat of an increase, according to official figures, over 1,071,553 pounds being manufactured in April. The increasing of the force of miners resulted in the heavier output.

Mohawk is making some very heavy shipments of mass copper, which tend to increase the average recovery of the mine.

The annual report of the Adventure shows a debit balance of $19,770 at the close of the year, an increase of $8,475. No work was done at the mine during the year.

Arcadian Driving Eastward.
Arcadian Consolidated is making good progress with its cross-cut at the 500-foot level, being driven eastward toward the vein. At the 400-foot level drifting is to be started, both north and south. Both shafts are in fairly rich ground in the higher levels and the management expects to encounter the same values at the 400 and 500-foot levels.

The Wolverine Copper company is getting out a production of rock that equals anything made this year and the June record may be high for the first six months. A good volume of rock has been going to the mills for some time. Wolverine continues to gain about seventeen pounds of copper per ton of rock mined. The stopes are being widened to extend the scope of mining and concentrate the work. Because of shortage of labor it is not planned to do any development work east of the Kearsarge amygdaloid, opened at the twenty-eighth level. Wolverine has several lodges and veins which have never been thoroughly proven, but which may contain considerable copper.

The resumption of dividend payments by the Calumet and Hecla, the next one payable June 30 at the rate of $5 per share, and declaration of dividends by some of the subsidiary companies have had the effect of creating renewed confidence in the copper stocks of late. This is the Calumet and Hecla's first dividend announcement in six months. Ahmeek and Osceola will each pay 50 cents per share on June 30.

Construction Work Stopped.
Construction work has practically all been stopped by the Calumet and Hecla, as well as by the Copper Range, the Mohawk and several other comparatively large companies, because of the very narrow margin of profit on copper sales and the high costs of material and labor entering into the work. The Mohawk company is continuing its work on the new water intake and other changes at the mills, and the Calumet and Hecla is pushing construction of the underground haulage way, which will mean a great reduction in the cost of handling the rock from the various shafts thereby connected.

It is anticipated that the Calumet and Hecla and several of its subsidiaries will add to their electrical tramming equipment within the next few months. The equipment already at work has shown remarkable efficiency, besides which it means considerable reduction in labor costs underground. Many of the other companies of the district are following the lead of the big company in this regard. The Mohawk in particular can get good results from electrical tramming. Copper Range has been using the system for years.

The Seneca is sinking to the fifth level in its main shaft. The thirteenth level at the Gratiot shaft has gone in 200 feet, and it is expected that the first shipment of rock from this shaft to the Baltic mill will be made this month. The rock looks good, and is said to be of commercial quality as regards copper content. Shipments from the Seneca main shaft are going forward at the rate of about 300 tons a day, and should be increased shortly.

Akron Is Making One Tire a Second and 85,000 a Day

Despite the constantly increasing number of passenger cars and trucks throughout the country, Akron is keeping abreast of the demands made on her for pneumatic and solid tires. According to the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company, 85,000 tires a day—a tire a second—are now being made in that city, twenty-five percent more than a year ago.

During 1910, 4,000,000 tires were manufactured in Akron. By 1915, the annual production had increased to 7,000,000 and by 1919 to 20,000,000. If the present production is continued throughout the year, 28,000,000 will be manufactured, approximately four tires for every passenger car and truck now in use.

The remarkable growth of the rubber industry has caused Akron to increase rapidly in size. In 1910, when the rubber industry employed 13,600 persons, Akron had a population of 199,067. Today the rubber companies employ 97,500 persons and the population of the city is estimated at 230,000.

Akron rubber manufacturers are making large additions to existing plants in an effort to bring production up to the demand. When additions now under way are completed, daily production will pass the 100,000 mark.

BUSINESS STRIKE IN INDIA PROTEST TO ENGLISH RULE

LONDON, June 7.—(By Mail)—Advices from many parts of India tell of the impressive observance of the "hartal," or cessation of business, as a protest against the government policy toward India. At a gathering in Bombay it was declared in resolutions that this was the most serious situation in the history of India.

At meetings held at different centers, Hindus, Moslems, Parsees, Sunnis and Shais all joined in prayers and resolutions. In Bombay all Hindu, Moslem and Parsee shops were closed.

The loss from this voluntary closing is estimated by millions of pounds sterling. The Bombay Chronicle stated: "Never before in the history of Bombay has such a complete cessation of work been recorded." The Advocate of India said: "It cannot be denied that the Khilafat question has been made a national one in India and the Moslems are receiving almost unanimous support from all sister communities."

At a conference held at Fyzabad a resolution was passed proposing that the visit of the Prince of Wales be postponed until Moslem religious demands regarding the Khilafat were satisfied.

SYDNEY, Australia, May 24.—(By Mail)—When the Prince of Wales was in the Fiji Islands, en route from Honolulu to New Zealand and Australia upon the warship Renown, the Fijians presented to him many whales' teeth. These are so valuable, according to native standards, as practically to be the arduous reserve of the islands. The Prince also received as gifts many handsome native mats.

BULLY FOR THE KING: ALTOGETHER! WHE-E-E-E

MADRID.—The king plans to make Spain the leading country of the world in the whisky industry.

It is reported on good authority that he has sent his jockey, Lucien Lyons, of Kentucky, in the estates, to Paris to invite several Kentucky distillers there to Madrid for a conference.

It is likely that the king will induce these big distillers from the famous "Bourbon" country to open distilleries in Spain on a large scale.

BAPTISTS SET NOVEMBER OFF FOR SERVICES

(By International News Service) BUFFALO, June 26.—November, characterized as "nature's harvest month," will be set aside by the churches of the Northern Baptist Convention as a period for concentrated evangelization if the report submitted today by the Rev. Thomas J. Villers, of the First Church of Detroit, Mich., is followed.

The Rev. Mr. Villers is chairman of the committee on evangelism. With eight others he surveyed the entire field during the past year.

"During the past year," the report reads in part, "we have made unprecedented advances. Never before since Pentecost have the churches agreed that the fundamental need is evangelism. This was the programme of the American Protestantism for April—the highest eminence ever attained by the Christian churches of America."

"We believe that our year's programme should be so planned that two periods shall be kept in uninteruptedly for this most fundamental work. As heretofore, including enlistment week last November, nature's harvest thanksgiving month, he set aside for a great ingathering month in all the churches throughout our convention territory. Then the Eastern season which by common consent offers a most propitious opportunity, should be similarly used to the fullest extent.

The committee found that "the sorrows and hunger and antagonisms of a shattering effort toward the making of a new world order."

The report lays emphasis on the fact that only about 40 percent of the Protestant church membership are regular attendants at Sunday services and holds that to increase the effectiveness of the denomination the local church should be increased in effectiveness and that one of the best means lies in increasing the regular attendance. The seven specific things according to the report which the family group should stress are: intercessory prayer, Bible study, world missions, higher education, Christian stewardship, personal evangelism and church attendance.

After 32 years service as telegraph operator on the Union Pacific Railroad, Miss Minnie Doering has been appointed ticket agent at Topeka, Kan., and is the first woman ticket agent at a station the size of Topeka on the Union Pacific system.

Truckers Will Discuss Their Trade at Meet

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, June 26.—A conference has been called in Chicago by organizations representing cartage companies in practically every important American city. The purpose is to organize a national association for the clearing of all problems connected with motor truck transport and allied matters.

During the last two years the commercial hauling field has been called into action to a far greater extent than ever before to augment freight transportation facilities so constantly overtaxed. This created many problems such as the construction of highways powerful enough to stand up under heavy loads, study of automotive construction elements, research in operating costs and equalizations of loads, problems connected with the necessity for co-operation between commercial haulers in different cities in order to keep hauling equipment supplied with return loads from long distances and many other matters vital to this industry.

Meetings will be held in La Salle hotel, Chicago, under the auspices of the Detroit Transportation association and delegates will attend representing commercial hauling associations from Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, New York, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Massachusetts, Nevada, Texas, Colorado, Oregon, Illinois, Georgia, Louisiana, Nebraska and other states. It is the ultimate hope of those directing this movement to place the cartage industry of America on a basis where it can relieve the pressure on other methods of moving commodities, where the older established arteries are now overtaxed.

SECOND COMING SOON, MINISTER PREDICTS

(International News Service) CHICAGO, June 26.—"Everything looks as though between 1920 and 1934 there will be some remarkable manifestation in the Christian world. We predict the coming of Christ. His need is shown in the increase of materialism in the world; in the rapid approach of chaos."

Thus spoke A. M. Johnson, Chicago chairman of arrangements for the "Second World Conference on Christian Fundamentals," which is in progress in the Moody church tabernacle.

Humble Craft Was Formerly Proud "Ruth"

(International News Service) MUSKEGON, Mich., June 26.—Chained against a littered and decaying dock in Muskegon Harbor, to prevent it from slipping to the bottom, is a shabby little steamer, neglected and weather-beaten, the plaything of adventurous school boys.

The faded name Pathfinder on the bow means nothing in particular; but under the scaling paint is another name, Ruth, reminiscent of former glories. It recalls the days when the little boat rode proudly between rows of thundering battleships and dipped her colors to the Presidential salute. For the semi-dilapidated old craft was once the Presidential yacht Ruth, the Mayflower of President Cleveland's administration.

For several years this boat appeared often in the daily history of the country often carrying President Cleveland and other prominent officials on cruises along the Atlantic Coast. It was named after Ruth, daughter of the President and during his administration it appeared in print as often as the Mayflower of today. Built in Philadelphia, it was considered at that time one of the best-equipped yachts on the ocean.

Shortly after the Ruth was launched President Cleveland and several Congressmen made a trip to the South. A severe storm was encountered and fears were expressed for a few days as to the safety of the President. The boat weathered the storm in excellent shape, however. It was later sold to persons in Buffalo and later purchased by the Chicago Yacht Club. The boat was for several years its flagship.

Finally the boat was brought to White Lake, where many Chicago persons have their summer homes. It was used as a private boat for some time and then as a livery between Whitehall and White Lake resorts. For several seasons the boat made trips between the town and the resort and later between White Lake and Muskegon. The old boat at first attracted much attention, but finally even its history was forgotten by all but a few.

Then the boat was remodeled slightly and used by local fishermen. For two or three years it made daily trips on Lake Michigan. Even then it was considered one of the best fishing craft on the Great Lakes.

The boat is owned by Phillip Sechnor-bach, former postmaster of Muskegon, now a manufacturer at Manistee; he purchased it five years ago. For two years it has been chained against the Muskegon dock, gradually disintegrating into a drab of its former glory.

Balanced to Zero

What vests the Aero-EIGHT with its unusual range of performance and enables it to operate with uniform efficiency and economy throughout its entire speed scope?

Those who have experienced the thrill of traveling in the air realize instantly why the Aero-EIGHT is so versatile. Its working parts are synchronized. It never labors, never strains. Its operation is smooth, silent, vibrationless. For the Aero-EIGHT is balanced to zero.

The sensation of speed is cut in half. Traveling at 60 miles an hour seems like 30; 40 like 20 and at less it moves so evenly and quietly that one is hardly cognizant of its motion at all.

There's a peculiar fascination about the manner in which the Aero-EIGHT performs which is attributable to its peculiar balance.

Career of Bandit Gang Ends With Burial of Leader

WICHITA, Kan., June 26.—Half a dozen persons recently followed a swiftly rolling motor hearse from a local undertaking company's parlors to a cemetery in the suburbs here. Just at the setting of the sun a body was buried. The spectators returned to town and in a short time left the city for their homes quietly. They were relatives of who has claimed the body.

Only half a dozen persons knew that the career of Walter Major, 24 years old and leader of probably the most famous Middle West bandit gang since the days of the James boys, was ended. He had served seventy days in the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City of a life term for murder. Spinal meningitis caused death.

Although Major and one of his brothers and a member of his gang, were sent to prison on murder charges, they are known as bank robbers and highwaymen and more than murderers. To them and to their pals is laid responsibility for a number of Kansas bank robberies in the last few years, the loot from which has totaled hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Another to Plead Guilty. A new development in the dramatic story of the Major gang and their ending, came with the apprehension of Minor Poffenberger, brother of Major Poffenberger, in Winnipeg, and his return to Eldorado, Kan., for hearing on the charge of robbing the Benton bank. He declares he will plead guilty and take his medicine.

Officials are almost unanimous in the belief that the Major boys, the Poffenbergers and their companions made up one of the worst and most desperate bands of criminals existing in this part of the country in the last half century. The Missouri penitentiary was not the first penal institution which had housed Walter Major, however.

Major did a "jolt" in the Iowa reformatory. After being released from that place he obtained a position in a Des Moines undertaking company. Some of Major's pals are said to have accounted for his remarkable criminal instincts later by the statement that he became possessed of a morbid sense while in the undertaking company's employ, and this helped to send him the wrong way, coupled with his natural tendencies.

In the trial for murder at Kansas City this spring, evidence was introduced to show that the men who were on trial had helped rob the Benton Bank and the bank at Ballewville, Kan. Bonds from the latter bank were found in the bandits' car, which they stopped before a Kansas City gambling house. They went upstairs and held up a gambling game. In the holdup the proprietor, Harry Truesdale, was killed. It developed that the bandits did not kill him, however.

Lived in Wichita. Walter Major lived in Wichita in his youth and for that reason was buried here. He has only a few relatives living. A brother, William, was killed in Tulsa several years ago by an automobile chauffeur, who testified that Major was attempting to steal his car.

So far as is known about the only member of the band either not in prison or claimed by death is C. E. (Edgie) Adams. Some of the details as to just how Adams was able to escape from the fast-moving train while he was being taken to the penitentiary, have just been made public on information received from other prisoners.

Adams after his conviction was confined in a cell in the next to the top floor of the Jackson county court building. On the afternoon of March 30, a man entered the building, mounted the steps to the top floor, and went straight to the corner where a large drain pipe extended down from the roof to the basement. He poured a biting acid around the pipe, softened the concrete in which it was fastened and slipped two thin steel saws and a tiny bottle of acid through the cracks. "Edgie" Adams was under the corner in the cell in the next floor below and caught them. The guard on that floor did not see.

Adams concealed the bottle filled with powerful acid and the saws about his person. Prison guards who had searched him carefully before did not detect the saws and bottle. Adams was shackled and handcuffed. He was placed on a special car with ten other prisoners and seven guards. As it grew dark, Adams carefully took out the acid, poured it upon the steel fastenings around his wrists and ankles, and so softened the metal that he was easily able to saw through them. He leaped from the window and escaped.

ENEMY DANCER STARRED BY PARIS FASHIONABLES

ROYALTY OF RUSSIA NOW IN BELGRADE

International News Service. BELGRADE, Serbia, June 26.—Nearly half the former Russian imperial court have reached Serbia's capital with the crowds of refugees now flowing into the country from Salonica, where they have been shipped by American Red Cross relief transports. Roughly, 500 of Russia's higher nobility are here, grand dukes and duchesses, princes and princesses, counts, barons and their families, garbed in the soiled and tattered remnants of their past splendor, ragged, hungry, destitute and forlorn, rub elbows with common mortals as they walk the streets of Belgrade, a hapless pageant of misery. They are the living semblances of the beggars in the old nursery rhyme, "some in rags, some in tags, and some in velvet gowns."

Most of these fallen stars from Russia's imperial constellation of pomp and grandeur have clung to the priceless furs they once wore when they shone in the brilliant circles of the czar's court. It is a common sight in Belgrade to see a band of Russian nobles, men and women, penniless and hungry, but carrying their backs furs that would fetch in New York a small fortune, filling into some local relief station for a bowl of soup and a chunk of coarse bread to stay their empty stomachs. Their garments of ermine, kolinsky, sable, seal, astrakhan and Persian lamb would make even blasé Fifth Avenue envious. Yet these furs are all that remain to them of their former riches. Most of them have not a penny in the pockets of their luxurious cloaks and have no idea from hour to hour where their next meal is coming from or where they are to lay their heads to rest at nightfall.

A Russian countess, formerly one of the most toasted belles of Petrograd, recently appeared at the American Red Cross relief station here, barefooted, with a rag wrapped about her head in lieu of a hat, but attired in a rich ermine cloak originally worth thousands of dollars, now dingy and tattered from hard wear and exposure to the weather. The day was warm with spring sunshine. The former belle was visibly not only hungry but hot.

"Pretty warm for furs today, isn't it?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied, "but I haven't a stitch of clothing left to wear, excepting this coat."

"DESCHANEL PAJAMAS" THE LATEST IN PARIS

PARIS.—Paris shopkeepers are optimistic. "Deschanel pajamas" have appeared in the windows of exclusive shops as the latest in men's nightwear. They were exhibited almost immediately after President Deschanel fell from a train in the night and had to walk a mile along the railway track in his pajamas before he found aid and shelter.

In the early voting hours of the election held in Ranger Saturday the votes of those who are over the age of poll tax payment were challenged because the law of the state requires that voters above the poll tax age in cities of 10,000 or over must have exemption receipts. Brazil Makes Elaborate Plans for Entertaining Belgian Rulers

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 30.—Elaborate preparations are being made to receive and entertain the king and queen of Belgium when they arrive here on the Brazilian dreadnaught Sao Paulo which already has sailed for Europe to bring the royal party to Brazil to repay the visit of President Pessoa to Belgium last year. Commodious quarters, handsomely furnished and decorated, have been built on the Sao Paulo to accommodate the royal party, which will consist of ten persons. They are expected to reach Rio de Janeiro some time in September. Enroute to Brazil calls will be made at St. Vincent and Las Palmas. An orchestra of five specially chosen musicians is aboard the Sao Paulo to provide music for the royal guests during the voyage. A selected library, dealing mainly with Brazilian history, installed in their quarters, will enable the party to become acquainted with the land they are to visit.

Ranger Stenographers Don't Go To Sunday Services Regularly

INQUIRING REPORTER FINDS REASON THE questioner was given to understand that Sunday afternoon was set aside for certain young men. It is not the intention to leave the impression that all stenographers do not attend Sunday school services regularly. Many of them do, but the fact was brought out that the majority of the latter were either married or else lived with their mothers. In both cases, someone else attended to the week's wash. In two cases, the girls declared that they really enjoyed going to Sunday school, but in Ranger they had not found a church that they liked to attend. Whether they had a real grievance at those who conduct the affairs of the churches, or were only offering excuses for not attending, is not known.

Why Itch and Burn With Skin Diseases?

There is a Way to Get Rid of the Torturous Suffering. Terrible skin irritations, eczema, tetter, boils, pimples, etc., have their origin in a disordered condition of the blood. They come from a colony of tiny germs which get into the blood and multiply by the million. Lotions, salves, ointments or similar treatment cannot possibly reach the source of the trouble, which is the blood.

LOOKING FORWARD.

Tulsa, Okla., is a thriving city in the oil fields of that state. Strangers say of it that it is a lively place where business is always good. Residents modestly admit it is the best town in the entire country.

Very often Ranger is compared with Tulsa, and the two towns have many characteristics alike. Both were born with oil. Around each were other towns that held hopes of being the center of each oil field. This aim Tulsa has attained. No one denies its supremacy. At the same time, as far as natural advantages went, it was no more entitled to this supremacy than were five or six adjacent towns. The gaining of this advantage was not an accident or due to passive waiting by the citizens.

It has been said by those who lived with the city through its formative period that the leaders in industrial thought, while the town was yet booming, took counsel together. They knew that the boom would not last. They agreed, however, that the oil industry in the state of Oklahoma would be long lived. The line of discussion that was followed was that to prosper and continue to expand, cities had to be well populated. To get people, jobs had to be obtained for them. It was agreed that right at that particular moment the population was ample for the beginnings of a city, if it could be kept. It was there decided that a real effort would be made to provide a job for every man as fast as declining oil operations in that vicinity released them.

Since that time it has been said that if an industry of any character, even thought of locating in the state of Oklahoma, the live wires of Tulsa located it in that town. It has also been said that where a factory site was needed, if it seemed necessary it was provided as a gift. Today Tulsa has a factory of almost every description, even though it is no longer the center of the oil industry.

Ranger, at this stage of its life, is as far along in permanent and civic improvements as Tulsa was after five years of growth. It has that advantage. But in its trade territory oil field operations no longer go forward with the rush that they did in former days.

Many men who have been released have gone to other places for employment. The city has only declined to a normal basis. Merchants and others are enjoying a steady paying business.

But to every man who takes a broad view of the situation, there must be a further decline. It may be a year or two years, nevertheless it is bound to come. More operations will be completed and shut down and others will be moved entirely without the trade range of Ranger.

With the impetus that has been gained, this fact should not be alarming, provided that something can be located that will employ men from the oil fields as fast as they are released.

West Texas, with Ranger as a distributing and manufacturing point, has a market for almost everything that is saleable. To make this city that point is the question, and the answer lies with those who are business and community leaders.

WHY THEY LEAVE THE FARM.

When the Inquiring Reporter asked men why they had left the farm they replied that for years, as hands, they had no consideration from the farmer and they refused to stand the conditions.

Domestic servants frequently give the same reasons for dislike of household service. Long hours of duty were added to a dependence in living conditions which were distasteful. The servant lived as an ill considered ward of the household. The farm hand regarded himself as an unfortunate appendage to the farmer's household and employers accepted things as God-made conditions which were natural to a certain estate.

The natural human ambition is to seek as great a degree of individual independence as possible. If it cannot be independence on the job, it can be independence in domesticity. The person who gets his keep as a part of his hire will be striving for a betterment which will put him more on his own. Probably neither hours nor social conditions can be changed for hands on a farm and possibly not for servants in a household. The instinct for a home will be defeated by such service and the people in it will try to throw off the restriction and gain independence.

That points more and more to homes independent of servants and farms independent of hands, which means that machinery must take the place of human hands in a house and that farms must be cut to the size the owner can work for himself.

Dairy work has the most difficulty in getting hands because it means seven days a week, and the hand does not want to surrender his complete time. The owner of the cows may be willing to work seven days a week, but the hand wants other work. The owner, under the impulse of ownership, will do what he cannot hire men to do.

Forty-acre farms which permit ownership farming without hands may be the requirement of agricultural industry if it is to be stabilized.—Chicago Tribune.

Spooks. The Invisibles wanted a little practice last Thursday afternoon and it was too late to get out to the park so a delegation was elected to go and see Flatfoot the cop and ask him if it would be all right to have a game of ball in the street providing nobody broke any windows, but Flatfoot looked so mad about something that the delegation waded right past him without even stopping. Among those in the delegation was Benny Potts, short stop, Skinny Martin, pitcher, Puds Simkins, catcher, and Ed Wernick, first base.

It is interesting to note that the first suggestion from the French tailors comes in the form of a proposal from Pierre Balmain, that there be more individualism in evening clothes for men. "I don't favor red or violet or blue evening dress," says Balmain, "though I have heard some radical proposals like that. But certainly something should be done to get away from the sombre tones of men's evening clothes as they are at present. Right now it is hard to pick your best friend in a crowd all in black and white. What I favor is a fancy vest, a fancy tie or a fancy lining of some sort, each man to pick the color that suits him best."

ENNVY. "I was arrested for speeding this morning," said Smith. "How fast were you going?" asked Jones. "Forty miles an hour, the officer said."

"Yes, I can send a man, but it will simplify things if you can tell me exactly what is the matter with the car." "It can easily do that. The thing—ambob has jammed, thus fouling the—'ts-name."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OH! "What did you discuss at the Literary club last night?" asked Smith. "Oh, we discussed Shakespeare and prohibition," Browning and prohibition Emerson and prohibition," replied Jones.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BEAUTY HINTS

International News Service. PARIS, June 26.—Paris, having won the supremacy in feminine styles of the world, is now out for supremacy in togging out men. The first suggestion from the French tailors comes in the form of a proposal from Pierre Balmain, that there be more individualism in evening clothes for men. "I don't favor red or violet or blue evening dress," says Balmain, "though I have heard some radical proposals like that. SOLDIERS' PAY.

PARIS.—A newspaper advertisement—one of many such—by an officer who is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and a holder of the War Cross, urgently asking for work at making copies of reports, illustrates the importance of agitation for higher pay in the French army. General Castelnau, in a plea to the soldiers not to have children, says the French soldier is the best in the world, but unless life be made more comfortable for him by increasing his pay he will become the worst. A sergeant major gets 587 francs (normally about $117) a month; a street sweeper gets more for eight hours a day for twenty-five days; a married lieutenant without children gets 750 francs ($150), and a police inspector's secretary 1,000 francs ($200); a captain 950 francs ($190) and an inspector of police 1,375 ($275); a Legion of Honor and a War Cross engineer gets 1,170 francs ($234) and one of his civilian subordinates 1,250 ($250); a private gets 25c a day. A general's pay is 70 francs ($14) a day, out of which he usually has to keep a family and live up to his position without further allowances. As he is expected to live in barracks, he is the victim of high rents.

The Woman Who Saw

Contrasts.

The old man was sitting on a bench in one of those little unexpected water front parks that you find sometimes quite by accident and then wonder why you never knew before that it was there. The day was unseasonably warm, one of those days that overtake you when armored with a heavy coat and wish you weren't! The grass in the park was worn and dusty, and dirty and noisy children from the tenements in the adjoining streets did not add to the charm of the scene.

The river, too, looked but with only a few little ripples actually seemed to breathe as they chugged their noisy way up and down. Occasionally the old man mopped his head with a wild red handkerchief. His eyes were fixed—not on the oozy East river nor on the unlovely marks of trade which scarred the waterfront. Steadily he gazed on Blackwell's Island, out in midstream—a clean, green space, shining as though just bathed in an April shower. It might have been a desert mirage, so lovely did it appear to the weary spectator.

Catching the woman looking at him the old man smiled, and with an accent as soft as the moisture-laden breezes of his own Ireland, he pointed out across the water: "That's where they kapes the crooks an' that," turning to the congested streets of the city, "an' that's where they kapes honest men."

C. M. COLLINS HAVIN' A GOOD TIME? HE'LL SAY HE IS—AND WHY

Texas at the Atlantic City Rotary convention were among the most popular photographic subjects, according to word from the Rev. Charles M. Collins, Ranger's representative at the big Rotary meet which closed yesterday. His letter to the Times:

Texas Rotarians at the Atlantic City convention had their picture taken four times today, once by the "movie" man, and they haven't been in town twenty-four hours. We had a delightful trip all the way from Fort Worth, and we are having the time of our lives here. Rotarians are the musical folk I have ever met—bands, orchestras, glee clubs and quartets are everywhere, besides the state and city groups of Rotarians just singing their own local songs.

As I write I hear an orchestra somewhere playing "Hallelujah, Thine the Sherry and Curran were attracted to the Franklin street rooming house by the wild screaming of the Wright girl. When they entered the room Bouquet was found in a semi-stupor and the girl was lying beside him on the bed screaming and in a maudlin condition...

CAUCASIAN 'PRINCE' SEPARATES FATIMA FROM HER JEWELS

MILAN, Aug. 28.—A bogus Caucasian prince, who further represented himself to be "John Maladoff, of Tiflis," and a military attaché in Italy, recently arrived at a fashionable hotel here in company with a Russian woman, Katia Cosenko Wolkoff...

She presented to the manager a letter from her supposed father, a highly respected client of the hotel, requesting special attention to the young couple, as they were on their honeymoon.

Soon they were introduced to a party of distinguished women from Constantinople, among whom was Kerime Selime Mehtar, wife of the Turkish minister at The Hague, and her eighteen-year-old daughter, Fatima. Their pseudo-prince, having started operations by pocketing thousands of marks and francs on the pretext of being able to transmit them to relatives in Switzerland without incurring loss in the exchange, persuaded the women to let him arrange a sale of gorgeous carpets, art objects and personal jewelry on the score of confidential information about an impending big drop in prices...

Fatima parted with a magnificent ring and pendant, both set in platinum, and brilliants worth about $20,000; and the elder members of the party handed over trinkets of about the same value. The Caucasian and his bride then vanished from Milan, and the only information which the police have at present is that the woman, who like her husband is about 30 years of age, received her education at the College for Noble Young Ladies at Rome. Maladoff, of Tiflis, is wanted at Constantinople for defrauding a local bank of $300,000.

W. L. Curtis will continue his office in the rooms formerly occupied by Moise and Curtis. SAILOR BOYS ON LEAVE 'HANG AROUND THE SHOP' SAME AS OTHER CRAFTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—The urge that prompts the street car conductor to take a ride over the line on his day off and the printer vacationist to drop into the office to see if the forms are still rolling to the press has attacked the rookie sailors at the Great Lakes naval training station, Uncle Sam's huge school for new sailors a few miles north of Chicago.

Scores of the 7,000 or 8,000 boys on the station visit Chicago every day, and invariably the majority hike down to the water front, where they spend many of their leisure hours climbing over any ship whose watchman will welcome them or riding about the harbor. The dozens of small excursion craft which ply between the municipal pier and Lincoln, Jackson and Grant parks make few trips without anywhere from one to a dozen blue clad sailors aboard. Most of the boys are from the Middle West and the greatest part of them never saw a body of water any larger than the old swimming hole before they reached the Great Lakes.

One of their favorite rallying places in Chicago is the old Commodore, whose wooden hull was once the pride of Commodore Perry's fleet. Several years ago the Commodore was towed around to Grant park, enclosed in a breakwater and then surrounded by an earthen fill until she rested on dry land. Remodeled inside, the ancient ship is now the offices of the naval commandant in Chicago.

Of most interest to the recruit, however, is a battered, rust eaten hulk lying alongside the Commodore. A dirty white conning tower lifts itself amidship, still flaunting the yellow shield and the black double eagle of Prussia, with its flamboyant motto of "Gott Mit Uns."

The ship is the U-97, a German commerce raiding submarine with a long list of victims to its credit. Beneath the eagle her home port is given as "Ostend-Zeebrugge," the German wartime submarine base in Belgium. The U-97 surrendered to the allies at Harwich, Eng., after the armistice and was allocated to the United States.

TONNAGE OF COAL MARKETED CLOSELY RELATED TO CONDITION OF ROADS, U. S. SURVEY SHOWS

Close relationship between conditions of roads and total tonnage of coal mined is seen in statistics compiled in a recent survey.

Figures show that in Ohio, for example, where large sums of money have been expended in recent years on road improvements, the annual output of pit mines, most of which also are wagon mines, has jumped from 141,446 tons in 1914 to 2,739,900 tons in 1918.

Wagon mines, as the term implies, are not located on the railroads. They are found where the mining is easy; that is, where the vein of coal is only a few feet below the surface of the ground protruding from the hillsides. If the roads are poor, transportation costs confine the activities of such mines to purely local markets, many of them in such case operating only when teams of farmers roundabout would be idle on the farms if not engaged in hauling coal at low rates.

Given highways on which trucks can operate economically between mine and railroad, many wagon mines are finding it possible to compete in the general market with mines located on railroads. Today, because of better transportation facilities and the increasing demand for coal, some are producing several hundred tons of coal daily.

Trucks engaged in this hauling are being operated at a ton-mile cost of from 11 to 88 cents, depending upon character of roads, loading conditions, traffic congestion, routing, proper maintenance of trucks and selection of drivers. Where costs are high, granted the roads are improved and without steep grades, improper management resulting in idle hours for trucks is most often at fault.

The survey in which the figures and facts that have been cited are disclosed, was conducted by the economic research division of the Firestone ship-by-truck bureau, at Akron, Ohio, which has branch bureaus in the sixty-four leading trucking centers of the United States. It has been published in a pamphlet, just issued, entitled "The Motor Truck at the Coal Mines."

The survey concludes as follows:

"One of the principal factors, if not the chief factor, which has deterred coal operators from using trucks thus far has been the condition of highways. Especially is this true in such states as Illinois, Iowa and Kansas, worst at the very time when the demand for coal is greatest.

"Fortunately almost every coal producing state has a rather large road building program under way, and in a number of instances both the state and the country have appropriated funds for carrying out these programs.

"The first and third largest coal producing states in the union, Pennsylvania and Illinois, have comprehensive road improvement plans. In the former state $50,000,000 has been appropriated, and in the latter $60,000,000. In addition country units in both states have made large sums available. Actual construction was started in both states last summer. The road programs in these states provide for considerable mileage through the coal fields and will bring many undeveloped and untouched coal areas into profitable trucking distance of household consumers, industrial plants and railroads.

"Next November Kansas, Missouri and West Virginia will submit to the voters for approval bond issues amounting, in each state, to $60,000,000. The chances of approval in at least two of these states are good. In Missouri, during the last year, about $12,000,000 has been made available through the counties, while in West Virginia and Tennessee the combined appropriation of the counties is $5,000,000 and $7,000,000 respectively.

"In Iowa, Green and Polk counties, both in coal producing areas, have made $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, respectively, available during the past year.

"Owners of coal mines and coal producing lands will do well to watch closely road construction. While railroads may not be accessible immediately, the use of the motor truck will make the development and operation of the mines on this land profitable in many instances."

The first woman in America to hold a position as superintendent of a railroad was Mrs. J. B. Carsen, of Toledo who in the early 70's was made superintendent of the Toledo, Wabash and Western road, after she had demonstrated her ability in several minor positions.

Rural Life Is Opened to City by Automobile

All society, during the summer season, goes in for rural and sane living, and in no other way is this to be obtained so satisfactorily as with the aid of a motor car. Motoring possesses attractions superior to any other mode of travel, with its spinning over the country roads in every direction, stopping over night at one of the many attractive hotels or inns encountered in out-of-the-way places, and starting on again the next morning to revel in the new delights of mountain and country.

To the novice preparing for a motor trip and, in fact, even to the experienced motorist, one of the most perplexing questions is that concerning the packing of the motor trunk. The amateur motorist is quite inclined to take along too many clothes when touring. The greatest object is to get as great a quantity into the trunk as possible. The idea that tight packing of clothes affects the appearance of them is a mistake. The tighter the articles are packed the better they will be preserved during the motor trip. The main purpose to consider is to keep everything perfectly flat. Bulky articles should always be avoided. Systematize the space of the trunk. The heavier clothes should always be placed at the bottom and the lighter at the top.

Every touring motorist should provide herself with one of the lovely duvetyn coats so decidedly modish at the present time. Light in weight, yet warm and comfortable, they seem especially designed for motor wear. They are adorned with huge collars, great pockets and cuffs, and narrow string-like belts. They are usually unlined. Coats of suede in light tones are smartly lined with plaid stuffs or bright-colored tissues. Hats of suede practically without trimming, are worn with these coats, and bags of suede are also a smart accessory. Blouses and separate skirts are high in fashion's favor this spring and will be gladly welcomed by motor women, as usual. This two-piece costume seems so well adapted to the motoring sport and admits of so many changes that it has been considerably missed the last two or three seasons, for although it never goes quite out of style, it has not been worn greatly by the more exclusive dresser. This season it is back with renewed energy. The new rough sports silks are ideal for the separate skirts and the plaids are having a great vogue. Accordion pleated wools, in the Bermuda shade, are very good and finished with dull leather belts, half inch wide. Tussah silks and striped and checked voiles are new and smart.

Tricolette leads for one-piece dresses. A navy blue tricolette is made with a skirt which is moderately full, and about eight inches from the ground, having a hem of nearly ten inches. The bodice part is fashioned high in the back, with a low, square neck in front, from which two folds of the blue tricolette form lapels to the girdle in which are inserted two ruffles of white net lace. The sleeves, which are long and close fitting, are open in the back almost to the elbow and there is a lace flare inserted. A small turban of same shade of blue, in fine soft straw is worn with this frock. —Mai A. Hitchcock, in Chevrolet Review.

In order to prevent Venetian women in olden times from going any distance from home a kind of slit-like shoe was introduced for their use. By mounting the wearer on cork soles from 6' to 18 inches in thickness this shoe made walking unassisted impossible.

Watch Tire Cuts and Get Mileage, Say Miller Men

The timely repair of even the most insignificant tread cut prevents sand blis-

od is so simple that any motorist can protect himself by carrying in his tool kit some self-vulcanizing tread gum, according to Miller Rubber company officials at Akron, O.

Running over jagged stones and glass cuts the tread rubber protecting the fabric carcass of the tire. In much the same way that a sponge absorbs water, even a minor tread cut sucks up sand, gravel and water. The moisture slowly rots away the cotton fabric. The sand and gravel form blisters and boils. Together they cause tread separation.

To neglect any tread cut is to the life of the tire, which is a square deal and protection of a thousand and one forms.

It pays dividends in no trouble to regularly inspect tread cuts and, when trouble to promptly plug with rather than wait for.

Tire conservation, exercising a little, tire all the miles builds into it. The pleasure of the pleasure sides it's on.

Wives Are Separated After Years Apart

AGE OLD STORY IS TOLD WHEN SHE GOES TO COURT

International News Service.
BOSTON, June 26.—Love of fine clothes, high life and jewelry, it is alleged, led to the arrest of Mrs. Phoebe De Simmons Phillips, a yeoman (F) at the Harvard Radio School during the war, and daughter of an East Boston business man, charged with forgery and the larceny of $1,750 from her employers. Mrs. Phillips is twenty-three years old, divorced, and has a son three years old. The police claim that they recovered neatly laundered and other clothing, including a $500 fur scarf and a $100 plaid dress, in a room occupied by Mrs.

to the officers the young woman employed by the Columbia. For several months previous it is alleged, she had been working for the firm. She was paid $120 on her last pay check, and it is alleged that she returned the amount to the officers.

GOTTA HAVE DRINK;
COFFEE TAKES LEAD
International News Service.
COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Prohibition can't keep coffee dealers among its enthusiastic adherents—Columbus coffee dealers, popular as a "kickless" drink since Ohio went dry. Coffee sales have been made by officials of the coffee firm. Over 1,500 pounds of coffee were reported into the city against istration form which reveals my personal and family history secrets. It reads: "Home address, Kalamazoo, Mich." He smiles apologetically, and remarks: "I'm sorry, sir, but we have nothing better tonight than a suite at three guineas."

Whenever I order ice water in a restaurant the waiter begins rubbing his palms expectantly. I invariably leave him with nine pence in his hand and a homicidal expression on his countenance. I never dare to eat at the same place twice.

Every pretty girl I meet manages to get the words "Carlton" and "dinner" tangled innocently in the same sentence. When I suggest a tea shop, all the disdain in the world seems concentrated in her lifted brow.

No thoroughfare is safe for me. Persuasive school girls with cardboard flags, hawkers of everything on earth, fellows always temporarily embarrassed, and keen-eyed blind men he perpetually in wait for the broad hat and the tortoiseshell spectacles.

Once I tried to disguise myself behind a monocle, but they caught my nasal twang.

So I strive valiantly to make my precarious income cover a million-dollar myth. But it can't be done. Everybody thinks I'm a son of Hetty Green.

HARDING'S COOK WISHES TO HOLD SWAY IN CAPITOL

International News Service.
WASHINGTON, June 26.—"Mah man's done got it!"

Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, is her "man," and Inez P. McWhorter, "his cook," is dreaming now of the day when she will preside over the pots and pans in the White House kitchen.

From the back porch of the nominee's Wyoming avenue home that Saturday night when the glad news was telephoned to Inez, that loyal member of the Harding household sounded a clarion note that reached all the kitchens for a block around.

Her shout brought stout Hattie Jeffries, who cooks at the Siamese legation, in the same block, running as fast as her 200 pounds would allow, and Inez enjoyed her first social triumph.

Thoughts of the White House kitchen hold no fear for Inez. She was up bright and early next morning preparing biscuits for the Harding household as usual. In fact, she is just as anxious as Senator Harding to take a crack at the new job.

"Lawdy, chile, since de senator done got elected at Chicago I ain't had a minute to call mah own," Inez reiterated for the tenth time.

"What, 'fraid o' dat job? You jes' don't know me! I guess I could cook jes' as well down there in the big house for President an' Mrs. Harding as I have filled de bill here for over a year for Senator and Mrs. Harding."

P. that her "man" has clinched the election in November, and she is impatient to stand in the center of the spacious White House kitchen and "boss" the cooks and scullions. Being chief cook at the White House is like being "first lady of the land" in Inez's social world, and today she is the envy of all the kitchen employees in Washington.

WHO'D WANT TO SEE A CREEK ALL DRUNK?

International News Service.
CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Liquor "high-jackers" feared so much booze might pollute the water of Crow creek, so they broke into the basement of the postoffice building here and stole a large quantity of the several hundred gallons of whiskey and wine that had been seized by the United States "dry" officers and stored in the federal building. The theft occurred following announcement that the wet goods were to be poured into Crow creek.

TORRINGTON, Wyo.—The case of the death of Frank Case, thirty-five, whose body was recently found with a bullet hole through the brain, may never be officially determined, unless the officials of Wyoming and Nebraska can get together on the question of jurisdiction.

Case's body was found lying on the Wyoming-Nebraska state boundary line, the head and the upper portion in Wyoming and the lower part of the body and legs in Nebraska.

It is believed Case committed suicide.

GAS USERS TO HAVE CHANCE TO MAKE PROTEST

Everyone who has a desire to protest the proposed raise in rates for gas which is asked by the Sammies Oil corporation may have an opportunity to do so Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. At that time the Chamber of Commerce gas committee will meet in the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the purpose of hearing protests. This committee has gone on record as favoring the request made by the gas company for higher rates. This was done at a meeting held several days ago when officials of the company went into the matter thoroughly with the committee.

The request for a raise in rates was made to the city commission, while believing that an increased price for gas is vital to the company, no agreement could be reached between the commissioners and the officials of the Sammies corporation. They then decided to let the Chamber of Commerce consider the matter.

The findings of the committee, however, are not binding on the city commission.

WOMEN TAKING ACTIVE PART IN CONVENTION AFFAIRS
EVEN IF VOTE IS DENIED

SAN FRANCISCO.—The day of the "indies" aid society" is passing. The churches are admitting them as delegates and voting members. In politics we are moving more rapidly.

Four years after the Democratic national convention recommended the extension of suffrage to women, their enfranchisement is practically accomplished—mainly through the untiring efforts of the President.

Without waiting for the adoption of the 19th amendment and before it was submitted to the states, the Democratic national committee doubled its membership and provided for the appointment of a woman upon the national executive committee from each state. Last fall the executive committee voted to double its membership, adding seventeen women to the directing force of the national committee. Never at any time has there been a disposition to keep women waiting outside the committee rooms, nor will there be during this convention.

It is not a question of taking them into the party councils. They are the party councillors and will have a voice in all that is done.

This definite instruction has had much to do with the great number of women delegates—twenty-five of them delegates at large and 150 alternates. When we add this to the national committee women, the members of the executive committee and my own staff, we have over 400 women who will take an active part in the coming convention and they will not be on the outside looking in, but on the inside, too much occupied with the great business in hand to have time to look out, but they know that the womanhood of America is wishing them Godspeed.

Back Wilson on League.

On the question of a League of Nations plank, the Democratic women will stand squarely behind President Wilson. This was made clear at an informal conference today.

Women leaders of the party are not likely to concern themselves with the question of prohibition in the party platform. They are satisfied with the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

There is some question as to just what attitude the women will take with regard to a plank on the issue of freedom for Ireland. The women are generally in sympathy with Ireland.

Planks which the women will urge in the platform are as follows:

Protective legislation for child labor.

Legislation continuing war-time protection of women in industry.

Legislation favoring increased pay for teachers.

After Drafting Platform.

Women leaders are hopeful that there will be at least two women members on the Resolutions committee which will draft the platform.

Among the women who were in conference today Stephen Miss Carolyn Reese of Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Maud Mary Miller of Columbus, O.; Mrs. Howard T. Wilson, Virginia, Ill.; Mrs. Nelson McCann of Los Angeles; Mrs. John B. Castleman of Kentucky; Miss Charles Williams of Kentucky and Miss Elizabeth Marbury of New York. Other leaders were expected to join the conference upon arrival.

A mass meeting of all women delegates to the convention is scheduled for Friday to discuss the question of platform.

LABOR IS BUT ONE CAUSE OF SMALLER CROPS

ITHACA, N. Y., June 26.—The recent report of the United States Bureau of Crop Estimates shows that the shortage of farm labor and the unfavorable weather for planting have affected crop production in this country even more than was indicated by earlier estimates.

The acreage of hay and barley will be about the same as they were last year, but other crops will be reduced as follows: Winter wheat 31 per cent, beans 23 per cent, rye 23 per cent, spring wheat 16 per cent, potatoes 5 per cent, and oats 3 per cent. These estimates indicate that the total acreage devoted to these eight crops will be less than it was last year by 23,000,000 acres, or 11 per cent. While this is a large decrease, it should be remembered that conditions are abnormal in that last year's winter wheat crop was planted before the armistice and the shortages so far reported may be partially offset by increases in later planted crops such as corn and cotton. Then, too, the acreage of early planted crops were very large last year, but the yields were low.

With normal weather conditions from now on, the total number pounds of wheat, oats, barley and rye produced in this country would be only about four per cent less than was produced last year and three per cent below the average for the previous five years.

It is worthy of note, however, that during the fifty-three years for which statistics are available the acreage devoted to these eight crops has increased quite regularly nearly three million acres a year. There has been some fluctuation from season to season on account of weather conditions, but the greatest decrease recorded any previous year was less than two per cent, and that was back in 1885. From present indications, the decrease this season will, hence, be six times as much as occurred in any other year since the civil war. Under the circumstances there is nothing surprising in the fact that the average price of farm crops increased five per cent, during the month of May.

DENTISTS USE
MORE PLATINUM
THAN JEWELERS

CHICAGO, June 26.—Twice as much platinum has been used by dentistry as in jewelry. This statement by Dr. George Frederick Kunz in a recent report on precious stones and minerals, will prove a surprise to the public in view of the fact that for several years platinum has been the favorite settings for diamonds and the most fashionable form of jewelry.

The estimates cited by Dr. Kunz, which he considers too low, are that of the 5,000,000 or more ounces of platinum in existence, catalyzing processes have claimed 500,000 ounces, dental uses 1,000,000 ounces, electrical apparatus 500,000 ounces and jewelry 500,000 ounces. At $105 an ounce, the minimum price set by the government, the value of the metal consumed by dentistry is $105,000,000, as against $52,500,000 used in all the platinum jewelry in the world.

GEORGIA GIRL PUTS STOP TO ALL FORMER RECORDS, WHEN SHE CONSUMED $5,000 MEAL

ATLANTA, June 26.—Captain Rheba Crawford, Salvation Army lassie ate the prize meal here. It cost five thousand plunks, cold cash.

On the face of that statement, it would appear that Miss Crawford must have consumed about fifty planked steaks garnished with humming bird wings and swallowed—a shocking going for a Salvation Army lassie—the contents of 300 quarts of Canadian Club at current prices.

Nothing, however, could be further from the truth. What Miss Crawford actually ate was one many doughnut with an unusually large hole. What Miss Crawford actually drank was one cup of coffee, lukewarm at that.

Yet the meal did cost 5,000 bucks. The American Legion paid for it in five new and crisp 1,000 bills Mayor Key and Captain Bill Bailey served it, courteously waiving the 10 per cent tip of 500 bucks. The whole scene was staged on a truck at Five Points, in the presence of a crowd of several hundred, who watched eagerly while Miss Crawford made way with 5,000 worth of dough and java.

Every now and then a $25 crumb drifted to the pavement but on the whole Miss Crawford was quite composed over each $200 bite. Afterward she remarked that it was pretty good chow, but she had tasted better for two-bits at local cafeterias.

The stunt was part of the programme for "Legion Day" in the Salvation Army's $80,000 campaign. The idea was that the Salvation Army doughnuts and coffee were worth more than millions of members of the Legion while they were in France, and they would prove the fact by buying the doughnut and coffee from the Army for $5,000 now.

The price was raised in cash contributions among the 2,500 members of the Legion in Atlanta, and was paid promptly on the spot to the Army.

PRODIGY, TEN YEARS OLD, ENTERS HIGH SCHOOL

International News Service.
ARMADA, Mich.—Carol M. Hart, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hart of this village, is perhaps the youngest child in the state to pass successfully the Michigan eighth grade examinations. The girl is in the seventh grade, but owing to special tuition by her father, who was formerly a school superintendent, she qualified to enter the tests. Her brother, who is three years her senior, carried the honors of his class in passing, and was second among the 100 of Macomb county students who passed.

"KIDDING" THE CHICKENS.

CAMP PUNSTON, Kan.—"Feather dusters" are replacing hens in the school of agriculture here. When several incubators "came off" the other day, "mother" hens were scarce. Then officers in charge hit upon the scheme of placing the dusters in the brooders.

The plan worked "like a charm" and prevented a loss of chicks which usually follows when a large number of them huddle together for warmth.

SISTER OF REPUBLICAN
MAY CONTINUE HER
POLICE WORK AS USUAL

(By International News Service.)
WASHINGTON, June 26.—In the headquarters of the Women's Bureau of the Metropolitan police is a woman who may some day grace the brilliant social functions of the White House.

Surrounded by a squad of pretty "copettes," nice-looking girls who do police duty in connection with the bureau, is a very distinguished woman. She is Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, one of the lady cops. She is likewise the sister of Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for president.

She performs her duty as chief aid to the head of the bureau, which is to look after wayward girls. And she says that she is going to hold her job. President's sister or not.

She is the sort of a woman who does what she says. She was a missionary in India before joining the bureau, which she did as soon as it was organized. Many of the ideas in vogue in the bureau originated with her.

Senator Harding is said to share his sister's pride in her work, and to have offered many times to furnish her any amount of money to carry it on.

Mrs. Votaw is equally proud of her brother, and tells of the days when, as a boy, he split rails out in Blooming Grove, Ohio, and of his school days. On hearing of his nomination she said: "I wasn't one speck surprised. I think my brother is the best man in the world."

General John Joseph Pershing is 60 years of age.

Half of a Million Tractors Is Plan Now of Makers

Advent of the tractor and trailer is one indication that the great industrial need always produces the means to fulfill it, said H. Elling Breed, former deputy commissioner of the New York state highway commission, in an address delivered at the annual meeting of the National Highway Traffic association in New York City.

There are registered in the country today 35,000 tractors and their percentage of increase in the last two years has been more than 100 per cent. At this rate of increase we plan for 500,000 tractors and trailers by the year 1930, he said. The crux of the economic situation in the country today is distribution, even more than production. The motor truck and the tractor and trailer have been developed to meet the needs of distribution. The railroads cannot meet it; industries in the Middle West are being forced daily to shut down because of shortage of freight cars for the transportation of material. Farmers are frantic with anxiety about the movement of their crops.

Much as we need distribution, we need, even more, economy in distribution. It is appalling to realize that we pay from three to ten times the actual cost of the finished article, be it manufactured or a natural product. Whatever effects saving in cost to the consumer is a national boon. Motor power for short-haul freight does effect such a saving.

Trailers, continued Mr. Breed, make it possible for one tractor and one driver to do the work of three. Together with motor trucks they have met the industrial need. More and more they are becoming to the great cities the strongest assurance of a sufficient food supply.

But motor transportation suffers a serious check in the uncertainty of highway design. This spring improved roads have gone to pieces as they never have before. Some people say the damage is due to the hard winter. This, Mr. Breed said, he does not believe, maintaining that the roads are organically wrong because they are not designed for the loads they must bear. Unless they can sustain the necessary traffic they do not fulfill their function, but hinder, instead of help distribution. The savings effected by motor transportation more than offset the cost of roads that are essential to this transportation.

Adequate design of the highways for tractor and trailer, he said, means immediate provision for three lines of traffic near all large cities and on all trunk routes, with possibility of an added ten feet longitudinally for a fourth line. The turns must be widened because of the greater length of the tractor and trailer, and curves must be super-elevated so that the vehicles will keep their own line of traffic. Special attention must be given to reducing grades because of the increased cost of fuel. The saving in fuel on heavily traveled main roads often compensates in a year or two for whatever additional cost is involved in reducing grades.

Tractors and trailers are less hard in impact upon pavement than heavily loaded trucks because of the distribution of the load over six or eight wheels and their slow movement. They do not require any greater strength of foundation or better type of surfacing material than should be provided for regular heavy traffic. But all heavy traffic requires an adequate foundation and a durable type of pavement; a semi-double pavement for heavy traffic is sheer waste.

"I became more and more convinced," concluded Mr. Breed, "that the final success of road building depends upon the intelligence of the public, which must not only demand good roads but must know enough about what constitutes good roads to act as a spur to the conscience of engineers and contractors. Good roads require an alert, intelligent public, engineers with vision, competent contractors and the training in highway building that some universities are now giving. The urgency of the need itself will gradually produce highways that will be adequate to the demands of tractor and trailer traffic."

PARIS ELITE NOW KEEP CHICKENS IN APARTMENTS

International News Service.

PARIS.—The apartment house chicken yard is the latest thing in Paris. Owing to the high price of eggs hundreds of Parisians have adopted the scheme of keeping chickens in their apartments. Every morning they take them for an airing, and it has become no uncommon sight to see well dressed women promenading on the Bois de Boulogne with a hen strutting before her, tied to her wrist by a ribbon or silken leash.

MILLIONAIRE REFUSES TO AID ILLEGITIMATE SON

International News Service.

VIENNA.—The illegitimate son of a Viennese multi-millionaire has recently raised the question how far his father is responsible for his education. The son, who is a 22-year-old student of the University of Vienna, is claiming an allowance of 600 crowns (nominally $200) a month to enable him to continue his studies in history and philosophy. At the moment he is supporting himself by working as a waiter in a cafe on Saturdays and Sundays.

The father takes the line that he promised the son to maintain him until he could make a living for himself, and that, on the son's own admission, that time has now arrived.

The judge held that a father should give his son as good an education as he can afford, and ordered a monthly payment of 250 crowns ($50) for four years.

PIKE'S PEAK TO BE SCENE CELEBRATION

International News Service.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 26.—The one hundredth anniversary of the first ascent of Pike's Peak will be celebrated in Colorado Springs on July 14, when special exercises will be held at the summit and along the automobile highway that climbs eighteen miles over a serpentine route to the top, 14,100 feet above the sea level. Although Lieutenant Zebulon M. Pike, the intrepid explorer, first discovered Pike's Peak in 1806, he never scaled the mountain, branding the task as impossible for a human being. But Dr. Fran. James, a member of the expedition of Major Long, in 1820 essayed the feat on July 14, 1920, making the journey from Poudre Canyon, near Colorado Springs to the summit Major Long in honor of James' accomplishments named the Peak "James Peak," but as early as 1840 trappers and plainmen named it Pike's Peak and the name remained.

Since then two million people have visited the summit, it is estimated; five crowds of tourists in the last twenty-five years forming the bulk. In 1878 a bridle path was built; a wagon road to the summit was built in 1880 and in 1891 the cog wheel railroad, nine miles long, was built. Burros were used also at that time.

Age grade of 7 per cent and a maximum grade of 10 1-2 per cent with 42 per cent of the line in curves. It is twenty feet wide with curves as wide as fifty feet.

In April, 1919, a government war tank attempted to climb the peak over the automobile highway, but could not get over the deep snow drifts, however a month later, a caterpillar, used for artillery hauling, made the summit without difficulty. On August 3, 1919 an aeroplane, piloted by Alexander Lendrum of Colorado Springs, made a successful trip over the summit of the peak.

Pike's Peak is eight miles in an air line from Colorado Springs and the greater part of the mountain is controlled by the city of Colorado Springs for its watershed.

Walking races, burro races and motorcycle races have been made to the top, and many noted race drivers, including Ralph Mulford, Barney Oldfield, Hughie Hughes, took part in the automobile races in 1916. Mulford made the best time for the twelve-mile course from Crystal Creek to the summit, this being 18 minutes and 26 seconds.

In September the auto hill-climb contest, which was discontinued during the war period, will be resumed, as well as an aeroplane race around the peak from Denver.

HIS ORDER.

Trade was bad with the timber merchant, and he was sitting in his office musing gloomily over the outlook, when there entered a well-dressed man with a quiet, thoughtful face.

"Do you sell beechwood?" he asked bluntly.

"I do, sir," replied the merchant, rising with alacrity from his seat, and bowing devoutly for a large order. "We simply let on the shelves a notice either in the log or the plank."

"I began to rummage through the papers on his desk for a price list; but the quiet man stopped him.

"Oh, I don't want as much as that," he said. "I only need a bit to make a fiddle bridge."—London Tit-Bits.

WEST TEXAS LEAGUE SEASON DIVIDED; FIRST HALF ENDS JUNE 30; NITROS AT BEST

The Ranger Nitros take a fresh start Friday, when the West Texas circuit swings into the second half of the season.

Directors of the Oilbelt circuit, representing every town in the league, met in Rex Oilbelt's office Saturday afternoon, decided to split the season, concede Abilene the honors for the first half and battle it out for the second-half title.

The season was divided into two halves, the first half ending June 30. The second half will begin July 1. The season was played after the second half is decided.

Tom Easton, secretary treasurer of the Eastland club, registered the only objection to the split season when the subject was brought up at the meeting called by President J. Walter Morris at the suggestion of Jim Galloway, manager of the Nitros and president of the Ranger baseball association.

Tom contended that the Judges, now in second place, held a chance at the flag if the season went full length. It was pointed out that with a series with Abilene coming on, the Judges had a chance the first half, as wins five games to play in the first half of the season, the Eagles are only five in the lead.

Directors Present.
So when Ike Sablosky, president of the Mineral Wells club, presented a motion that the season be split, Tom Easton was the one to second it. It carried unanimously, with the votes of Jim Galloway for Ranger; W. R. Keeble, vice-president of the Abilene club; Poppy Smith, manager-director of the Gorman club; Doug Herring, president of the Cisco club and Ike Sablosky and Tom Easton.

The way it lines up, the Nitros will finish the season with the Rangers today, go to Eastland for a three-game series and finish the first half of the season there.

They open the second half, with a clean slate, Friday at Gorman, against those hard hitting boys of Poppy's. They play at Gorman July 2 and 3 and return to open in Ranger against the Abilene Eagles July 4. After that jump game, they go into a series at home against Cisco, July 5, 6 and 7, with a doubleheader to start off on the holiday, which falls on Monday this year.

Other opening days of the second half are: Eastland at Abilene July 1, Cisco at Mineral Wells July 1, Gorman at Eastland July 8, Mineral Wells at Cisco July 8.

According to agreement of the West Texas magnates, no change will be made in the schedule outlined at the start of the season and all games that have been tied or rained out will be played off, so that no unfair advantage accrues from the split.

Nitros At Their Best.
The Nitros are in the second half in better shape than they have been all season and with more strength than they started the first half.

Manager Jim has a real catcher in Wilyum Penn, who plays a reliable, hard working game, throws well and bats better than anyone who has held that berth with the Rangers. Weekly has been released.

He has six good flingers, a stronger staff than any club in the league, boasting the circuit's best in Smokey Boyer.

Nick Carter, New Nitro, Turns Back Resorters, 8 to 2

returned to the water bucket, or else watched that third strike fade into Wilyum's broad and waiting mitt.

Four hits were counted against Nick, one of the infield sort, that took a wicked hop away from Ham, on the smack, grouped with a walk in the fourth, for the Resorters' only two tallies.

He fielded his position actively, covering first on one fast and close play, and batted in two of the Nitro runs and scored another. If he keeps it up, he has a place and the Nitros have five dependable pitchers.

Opposing him was Wilder, a southpaw, who lived up to his name part of the time. He issued four passes and hit three Nitros. Where he got him, Ike Sablosky, Resorter president, doesn't know.

"I had spent $500 on telegraphs and telephones and tried out more players than Jim Galloway and I lost track," said Ike.

"You're not as good a fan as you were last series, Ike," said the sport scribe.

"I fanned out," said Ike.

Well, Wilder was duck soup for the Nitros, particularly in the second, which decided the game. Ham opened with a blow to right. Henke followed with a bunt that crossed up Supina, on third, dashing in for the play. It went over his head. Penn bunted to the box and Wilder played the ball four times without effect. Nick Carter smashed a single through the box to center and it bounded off Wakefield's ankle. Hamilton and Henke scored.

Graves, our new candidate for short, advanced Carter with an infield out. Mooney stole and Byers flung it through center, Carter scoring and Mooney taking third. Charlie Clapp got his second hit of the day, past second, and Dude ambled home.

Manager Jim hoisted a tall foul along the right field line and String was out stealing. That with the tally annexed on a walk to Graves, Mooney's sacrifice, Clapp's first hit and Galloway's sacrifice fly in the first, gave the Nitros six.

Dude stole another in the fourth, when he got a life on Arnspeker's wild heave, stole third and came home when Clapp, who walked, started a chase between first and second.

Tommy Lovelace scored the final, singing past third, snaring second when Brown dropped Byers' throw and scoring on Henke's blow to right.

When he does, the other clubs of the West Texas are going to have a hard time.

Carter—of course he'll be "Nick"—came to the Nitros yesterday. He was as welcome as a quart at a political convention.

He comes from Azle, "fourteen miles from Fort Worth" and not on a railroad. But evidently the game of baseball is played there.

There are seven members of the Carter family on the Azle club and if there are any more like Nick, we'd like to see that team in action. Recently, against the Fort Worth National Bank of the Panther City city circuit, he struck out twenty-one men in a game. His "out-drop" must have been under control that day.

Imagine a curve that starts at the batter, looking for all the world like a bean ball, then slants down and over the rubber so fast that Wilyum Penn takes it below his knees. That's Nick's "out-drop."

And it's under control. In the sixth, with the count 3-2 to 0 against him, he smoked two over on Byers and then called his curve into play with the count 3-2! Byers swung. That's about the best that was done with it. Nine Resorters did so, and

RESORTERS' FINAL TODAY.

With two victories to their credit in the next to the last series of the first half of the season, the Nitros, back in the old arena, go out against the Resorters at Municipal park today for the final of the series. Smoke Boyer is ready to work, as well as Red Hill. Smoke probably will be called to face Phillips, Mead or McQueen. The last two named being the Resorters' best.

LONDON—After a long and desperate struggle, the London school teachers have won their fight for higher wages, although the vast majority of the teachers throughout the British Isles are still drawing pre-war pay.

The new scale for London elementary school teachers is 200 pounds ($800) for men just entering the profession, rising to 425 pounds annually. Women teachers will start at 187 pounds ten shillings, rising to 340 pounds annually, with woman principals drawing 380 pounds.

As in America, the pay of teachers is so small that few persons are entering the profession of sacrifice and service. The school teachers, most of whom are men, will not average for the primary grades more than 240 pounds annually. The women teachers have been fighting a losing battle for equal pay.

CHEEVE'S HOME RUN BREAKS TIE, WINNING OWN GAME, FOUR-TWO

EASTLAND, June 26.—After pitching a masterful game, allowing only four hits to Gorman, Cheeves, with two men down in the ninth, knocked a home run with one man out, winning his own game, 4 to 2, from Gorman.

The features of the game were the pitching of Cheeves, the playing of Gorman at third for Eastland and a catch by Payne. The score: EASTLAND.

Attendance has picked up since the stand was covered. A good crowd saw Saturday's game.

A few Mineral Wells rooters were there. They were heard from at first, but toward the close only voiced the sentiment, "Hurry up and get it over with."

Jimmy missed a hit Saturday, the first full length game since he started a going strong, three weeks ago. He missed one in the five-inning session which closed the double bill with Gorman here, but not counting that, had twenty straight games without a miss.

It's back to see Clapp and Lovelace good in there. They make that outfield "the best in the league" again and add force to the Nitro batting array.

Graves, at short, seems pretty good. He played three chances and kicked one. He fought one, but recovered and made the throw in time.

NITRO NOTES.

Hamilton looks like a third baseman, though we are anxious to see Jody back. Ham's arm was improved and he was throwing in much better shape. He flung out five Resorters and made one low peg, which Henke didn't handle.

Carter showed good baseball when he covered first on Arnspeker's roller to Henke in the sixth. The play was close and the Resorter was out a step. If the flinger hadn't covered, it would have gone for a hit.

Ram made a good play on Wakefield in the eighth, playing a high bouncer over toward the box and making a fast throw. It came low and Henke dropped it, but recovered in time for the out.

Autos are no longer permitted in the park and the advantage is easily seen. The players have a chance at foul balls in deep left and right territory and back of third and first and no ground rules on long hits and overthrows are necessary.

If the Cleveland Indians scramble home ahead of the field in the dash for the American League gonfalon, Tallaferr county Georgia, can burn the red fire, stage torchlight parties and carry five, stage torchlight parties and carry on in other ways with perfect propriety. For Jim Bagby, one of the pitchers who are carrying the bulk of the mound load in that rash, was born in aforesaid county Oct. 5, 1886.

Augusta can claim part of the fame, too, for Jim got his baseball start playing in Ty Cobb's town in 1910. From there he went to the Cotton States league and in 1911 he was traded to Montgomery in the Southern League.

The Cincinnati Reds had been watching him and signed him. Despite the fact that Bagby delivered a hit the first time up the Reds' target line back.

In 1912 he was traded to New Orleans for Snedecor, and pitched and played the outfield for the Crescent City under a working agreement and gave him a tryout.

"Keep him as a pinch hitter if you can't use him as a pitcher," quoth Manager Dobbs of the Pelicans when the Cleveland club called for him.

That season Jim broke about even in 32 games credited to him, winning 15 and losing 17. The next season—1917—he stepped right out in front with 23 victories and 13 defeats. Two years ago won 17 and lost 10, and last year he won 17 and lost 11. This season he started out with a string of victories, which, with a similar string by Covelack, got the Indians away to a flying start.

Bagby is above the average pitcher as a batter, too, being a dangerous man at bat because of his facility for slugging out a double or triple in a pinch. The greatest asset Bagby has is his willingness to work. He is trying every minute and to the fighter the game the better he likes it.

TWO STORIES OF CAPTURE OF FIRST GERMAN PRISONER DO NOT AGREE EXCEPT IN DETAIL

THE STORY AS THE SOLDIERS TELL IT

That matter slips into magazines that is so far removed from the truth as to blast confidence in newspapers and magazines is demonstrated in the American Legion Weekly, from which an article is reprinted here. It purports to be the story of the capture of the first German prisoner, but according to a resident here, formerly of Ironwood, Mich., the facts of the case are not exact.

The story follows true to form as regards the name of the prisoner, the outfit and the men making the capture, the date and time, but it is questioned if the quiz so minutely described took place for the first captured German lived but three days after being taken and did not leave the dough of his captors, so seriously was he wounded.

The story of the capture follows: Adam Blazikowski and John Cochanski with five other members of Company C, Eighteenth Infantry, First Division, were looking about in a quiet sector during an evening in October, 1917, just what day it was they do not know within a week.

The German, a mail orderly, who had lost his way, came wandering along. Five members of the party were indifferent, thinking he was a French Colonial or from an Allied army they had not previously seen. But Cochanski and Blazikowski, of Polish birth, had seen the German uniform while resident in Europe, before they emigrated. As one man they drew their automatics and fired.

One bullet passed through the German's abdomen and lodged in his back near the spine, the other tore through his right arm. He was taken to the dugout, his wounds were dressed and the Ironwood man who interviewed the two soldiers says. Despite the attention given their prisoner, he lost strength hourly and died in three days. These men, who made the capture, then established a great precedent and one that labeled the "Yanks" wherever they were encountered in France; they literally took the German's clothes apart as souvenirs.

One had his boots, another the buttons from his coat, the man who administered first aid cut a button from the man's flesh that had been driven through his body by one of the bullets. Each member of the company from the dugout down took, at that time, a souvenir, but the two Ironwood men declare that few of these tokens were saved.

When General Headquarters learned of the capture, the men were rewarded as liberally as possible. It was not an occasion for medal pinning, and it is doubted if the men would have wished honors. The seven were given 500 francs each and a seven days' pass to Paris. In Paris the prisoner's boots were sold, according to Cochanski, for a moderate price, but the French purchaser worked them thru to New York, it is understood, where they brought a fabulous price at about the time the Second Division made its famous stand at Chateau Thierry.

Cochanski and Blazikowski are not articulate men, they are unskilled laborers who answered the first call to service with so many other Poles who saw the realization of their ideal for a united Poland through service overseas with the American army. They went through everything the First Division encountered and finally returned to begin once more the monotonous job of mining iron ore.

Neither of them are inclined to talk; it is the other men who were in the group that tell the story, only calling upon the two real captors for verification of details. They will never emerge to claim full credit for their achievement for they are typical miners of the great Northwest.

They are of that strong persistent class of new Americans who go through the long winter months without seeing daylight and with but little opportunity for rest and recreation during the summer. Early in the morning before the sun is up they enter the cage and are lowered several hundred feet to the ore pocket, where they toil all day long digging out the iron bearing rock. When they are drawn once more to the surface daylight has gone.

Both Cochanski and Blazikowski are content with their lot. In April they had both announced their intention of being married. They will hand down their names and honors, in all probability, to a more coherent generation that will one day derive the full advantage of the honor—the two Polish patriots won during the great war.

THE STORY TOLD BY THE LEGION WEEKLY

Now that the war department has seen fit to announce officially that two Polish-American soldiers belong the honor of capturing the first German prisoner taken by the United States forces in France, an ex-soldier may be permitted to tell the real story of that capture and its results. Looking back on the events of those early days with an unconcerned eye, they appear ludicrous in the extreme.

The two soldiers whom Washington has just honored in official pronouncement are Adam Blazikowski and John Cochanski of Company C, Eighteenth Infantry, First Division. The names themselves, spoken in a strident voice, are enough to stop at least a German army corps. But the bold action of this pair caused a flow of talk that will not long be forgotten in army circles.

One day last summer I was touring the St. Mihiel salient in a two-and-a-half-ton G. M. C. limousine with an officer high up in the First Division. We were visiting scenes familiar to members of the First in those early days in October, 1917. Suddenly the officer chuckled and said:

"Did you ever hear the story of the first prisoner captured by the Americans?"

I confessed my ignorance and waited patiently, not to say respectfully, for him to begin. "What I am about to relate is given, then, on the authority of my companion de route. I vouch for nothing."

"When the First Division first took over trenches in this sector," he began, "there was, as you well know, a shiver of expectancy that swept over all of our forces then in France, from the farthest outpost clear back to General Headquarters. Had not the American army, long heralded, at last taken its position alongside the French? For the first time in history soldiers of the new world were actually fighting on the battle fields of Europe."

"Well, early one morning came the news that a prisoner had been captured. Breaking in on the slumbers of those at division headquarters this report had the effect of a bombshell. We vied with each other to get a first glimpse of the enemy, whom we saw in our mind's eye as a huge, hairy and fierce brute, fierce as Hindenburg himself, the very picture of all that is denoted by the word Hun."

"The general, not to be outdone by any of his inferiors, issued an order that the prisoners be brought to division headquarters without delay so that he might question him personally. He first dashed off a hasty telegram to General Headquarters, boasting of the achievement of his troops."

"More than an hour passed by, which seemed a month. Plans were made for the prisoner's reception. The great barbed wire cage which had been built when we first moved into the sector was prepared for its occupant. An interrogating officer was appointed, and he immediately set to work making up a list of questions, ranging from the purely personal to those of high international politics and military strategy, touching every subject under the sun except religion. These questions were to be shot at the prisoner in rapid-fire order so that he would surely trip himself up and let out some valuable information."

"After what seemed an interminable wait, there was seen approaching down the road a group of men in khaki. As they drew nearer we could make out about a dozen soldiers, all with bayonets fixed. The reception committee lined up, assuming an attitude of conquerors. At last HE had arrived!"

"In the center of a hollow square bristling with gleaming bayonets there came shuffling along an undersized, shriveled-up little man, scared within an inch of his life, casting furtive glances first to one of his captors and then to another, evidently expecting every minute to be run through."

"His name was only learned after repeated questions, for he was so thoroughly nonplussed that he had almost forgotten it. Leonard Hoffman, he said it was, and he belonged to the landwehr. Because of his evident lack of fighting qualities he had been employed as a mail clerk and had been captured by one of our patrols as he was coming back to his company with the mail. World the dreadful Americans kill him as he had been told they would. His eyes asked this question many times before his faltering voice could frame the words."

"It was some time before anyone thought to give our prize Jerry something to eat, which he devoured most greedily. He was then caged. Delegations of high-ranking officers began arriving before noon, and they kept coming all afternoon and long into the evening, all highly excited and unusually self-important. One would have thought they had captured the Kaiser himself."

"For the benefit of each and every delegation the 'enemy' was brought out and put through his paces. Each visiting officer insisted on asking him at least one question, all of them entirely useless and utterly unintelligible to the prisoner."

"Finally the prisoner, utterly exhausted, was sent back to the pen. And there, sometime during the night when no one was watching him, he just lay down and died—literally talked to death. It was a tragic ending to our first war episode, but in war one touches lightly on such things. The next day an examination disclosed the man had a wound in the head, inflicted possibly in the struggle that resulted in his capture. The impression has prevailed, nevertheless, among those of us who know the circumstances, that he was simply talked to death."

MADRID, June 21.—Twenty-five thousand sightless persons are added to the population of Spain every year owing to inattention to cases of small pox, measles, scarlatina, meningitis, and the after effects of sexual maladies, writes Count de la Fei in El Sol. The Count asks why Spain thus makes people blind and then abandon them to a life of miserable mendicancy in many cases. He counts out that they are neither properly cared for nor educated so that they may take care of themselves. He says most of the institutions for the blind, and there are many such establishments in the country, with rare exceptions are inefficient and antiquated with teachers lacking the necessary training. The blind are taught very superficially basket and box making or the most elementary music. He declares nobody believes in their efficiency, although many give subscriptions out of pure charity.

The Count deprecates "the traditional ignorance of the Spanish authorities which do not heed or take advantage of the experience of the United States, England and other civilized countries in dealing with the blind."

In recognition of her services in behalf of Serbia Miss Helen Losanitch, daughter of Serbia's former Minister to the Court of St. James, has been decorated by Prince Regent Alexander with the White Eagle, the highest decoration awarded by the Belgrade government.
