"And what'd you go to the library for, Sheila?"

"Well, we wanted to see each other, Joe. You see, when I went to give back that blue purse-and I lost it, Ma, but my money's here safe, I left it home! Well, and then, Joe, when I went to the Mc Canns, to give back the money, I got myself up like a beggar, remember?so that they'd feel sorry for me, see? Well, it seems that this Gertrude Keane, whose purse it was, is a ward of the Mc Canns-her father and mother died when she was little, and she grew up with the Mc Canns. "Well, I sort of liked him." Sheila suddenly took a firmer tone. "But I hate him now!" she said.

"Three days afther ye've merried him!" her mother muttered in an undertone. "That's fine doin's!" "Wait a minute, Ma. So you and Peter said you'd meet?" She swallowed, nodded, watching her brother's face anxiously, with drenched eyes. Then, fighting back the tears, she told them of her incredible adventure.

Presently Joe interrupted. "Sheila, listen. I want to believe you, and I want to get this straight. But it sounds awfully fishy. Why should those men want to drag you and Peter Mc Cann along with them? Why shouldn't they let you go home?"

"Well, they were trying to hide something, Joe; they were afraid. They were trying to hide some- Irish blue eyes. thing!"

"Go on. What happened then?" "Then we went bumping up and up and up into the most desolate old house you ever saw, and I was so tired I lay down and went to sleep with all my clothes on.

"And the next day-yesterdaythere we were with three terriblelooking men, only they turned out to be not so fierce, and then this first man came up and I guess he told them everything was all right, because, anyway, we started down in Frank said. "So that we can begin the same truck-only first I cooked dinner for them. We gave him our names on Saturday at the studio, and he said he'd send the telegrams right away. He thought Peter and I were married, or were going to be, anyway-"

"But listen, Sheila, let's get this straight. Were you married here in New York?"

"Married! Joe, you're crazy, or else I'm going crazy. I don't know which! We never were married. We hate each other! We never thought of getting married!"

"I guess you and I don't understand each other," Joe said slowly, after a long pause. "I guess we're sort of -in the dark. Who sent that?"

He took a much-folded limp oblong of yellow paper from his pocket, opened it, passed it to Sheila.

She flattened it, read it, and looked at him. Then she read it again, this time including a glance at the date line, "Boston, March 15, 12:13 A. M."

The message was brief: "Peter Mc Cann and I married by justice of the peace this evening,' it said. "Very happy letter 600n."

It was signed "Sheila." For a long time Sheila sat staring at them all in silence. The color drained from her face. "Is that what he sent?" she whispered at last. "That came Sunday morning," Joe answered, watching her.

"Well, of course it's a lie, Joe," she said simply. "We never were in Boston, we never were married. us!" Angela prayed, frantically. No heavenly intervention appeared likely. But there was an interruption, nevertheless. Frank Mc Cann quietly opened the hall door and stepped into the kitchen.

He was confronted by Sheila, palefaced, with blazing eyes. She had thrown off her brother's detaining hand, her fingers had been on the "Hello, hello!" Peter's older brother said in his pleasant voice as he took in the scene. "What's going on here?"

"What's going on," Sheila answered hotly, with a heaving chest, "is that my mother and my brother and sister don't believe me, and I've had about enough of being treated like a thief and a liar and a street-walker and I don't know what else besides!"

CHAPTER X

"Well, here-here don't be in such a hurry!" Frank said, stopping her with a big, gentle hand. "I've got to go!" Sheila told him, breathlessly. "But wait a minute-" "You wouldn't," she told him. "You'd get out if your mother and sister and brother all double-crossed Gentle and dark and good-natured, he smiled down at her, not freeing her arm from the grip of his fingers.

"Well, I never double-crossed you, did I, Sheila?"

"Let me go!" the girl said angrily. She looked up, and for the first time in her life she really saw him, a dark, smiling young man, with

"I never double-crossed you, did I?" Frank said.

The girl spoke dazedly, as if out of a dream. "No, you never double-crossed "Sit down, then," he said.

"Be a good girl," Frank urged. Suddenly she sat down. She still watched his face expectantly.

"My father is very anxious to see Sheila and you, Mrs. Carscadden," to get all this straightened out. Unfortunately-unfortunately Joe and I, here, gave the thing to the papers at noon today," he added with a rueful laugh.

"There was no marriage, it seems now," Joe said.

"No, but the evening papers have Joe clicked teeth and tongue. Mrs.

Carscadden began a wail, put her fingers over her mouth again.

"What else could we do?" Frank argued. He had put out a big hand and gripped Sheila's fingers as they lay on the table, but he was not looking at her. "We had given the disappearance story to the police Saturday night," he said. "Then the telegrams came. The quickest way to hush the whole thing up was to tell them that you and Pete had decided to give your families a surprise and get married. We made it as-as dignified as we could, didn't we, Joe? We said that this followed up a friendship begun at Tiller's Beach last summer-that kind of

"What complicates it," he said, directly to Joe, "is that when Sheila and Pete got to town tonight they went straight to a police station and turned in the story. The bootlegger story, I mean. So that whatever we do now, it's-well, it'll cause some little confusion," Frank concluded, with his grave half-smile for the distressed and attentive cir-

"I'll tell the world!" Joe said.

"Papa telephoned the police station," Frank resumed, "and they had already sent a man up to the Broadway place. We'll get the dope on that, and then we'll know how to go on. Probably the police will take it up at this point."

All the time his hand rested firmly, encouragingly, on Sheila's and it was as if his spirit had laid quieting hands upon her spirit as well; she continued to sit docilely beside him, her bright eyes moving about the

"Be a good girl," he had said to her. And he had called her "Sheila." After she had run away from all the hatefulness, from this new, accusing, suspicious Angela, and this reproachful Joe, and this totally unknown Ma, then she knew that she would take these magic phrases out of the very inner chamber of her soul and taste them over and over again on her tongue.

"Now, tomorrow being St. Patrick's Day, it's a holiday," Frank was saying. "And my mother wondered if you and Joe and Sheila would come down to our house in the morning, Mrs. Carscadden, and then we can talk the whole thing over. There'll probably be a report from the police department by then and we can give out a statement to the press and straighten everything out. And by this time next week," Frank said cheerfully, rising, "everyone will have forgotten all about it. You'll be down?"

Ma glanced at Joe, and Joe nod-

"I will!" Ma then said solemnly. Frank stood looking at them all. 'My mother wants you to know

"It wouldn't be fair to your brother, an' him in love wit' another young lady," she said.

Sheila's bewildered eyes went from Frank's serious, handsome face to her mother's face; returned to Frank's again. Color began to stain her cheeks.

"What are you talking about?" she demanded flatly.

"Niver you mind, miss!" her mother answered.

"We feel as if you got the-the rotten end of this, Sheila," Frank explained, with a half-smile. "It might be that you and your mother -that all of us-it might be that we felt-"

He floundered; his kindly smile finished the sentence.

"There's ger'rls that feel they have reputations to lose!" Mrs. Carscadden contributed stingingly. "My Father-my brother-we all want to-well, to do whatever we can-" Frank began again.

Sheila, disdaining words, laughed scornfully.

"Come," Frank said, "you like Pete, you know you do." "Sheila," Angela breathed, "you "Well, they may. But what do you care, if' - Frank changed the form of his words-"since it's not true?" he asked.

"I do care," she said, stubbornly. "Can't you look at the whole thing as a sort of adventure, something that might happen in a movie, say? You and Pete will think this is a great joke, some day."

"There's only one thing," Sheila began suddenly, after a troubled study of his handsome, dark face. "I won't marry Peter Mc Cann. Not if the Church itself-"

"Listen, listen," he said soothingly, his hand on her arm, "you don't have to get so excited about it. You don't have to. You don't have to marry anyone, if you don't want to!"

"I'll become a nun, first!" Shella whispered, fiercely. She saw Frank's characteristic half-smile brighten

"You won't have to go that far." "But if his mother and father expect me to-" Sheila began, anxiously.

Frank reflected a moment. "They don't," he told her briefly. "You're sure they don't?" The man spoke more slowly:

"Why, they wouldn't want you to do anything you didn't want to do. They might think you wanted to." "Well," she said, in instant relief, "I don't want to."

"You know, Sheila," Frank began, and looked away, hesitating. "You know, my mother thought," he began again, "that since you and Peter had been shut up in that place for two nights-"

He hesitated, and Sheila took it up defiantly:

"Yes, I know. And what's more, Peter was in my room that first night, what there was left of it, that is. But I don't care! It doesn't make the slightest difference."

"It was only a question of justice to you, Sheila."

"Well, you can tell your mother that I'm perfectly satisfied!"

"Miss Kennedy - my young lady-" Frank persisted, "agreed with my mother.'

"Well, then she doesn't understand the way I feel!" Sheila said they can choose or just drift into hotly.

If he said anything to her she did not hear it. His arm was about her for a minute, his face against her

Then they had drawn apart, and his fingers, that had been gripping hers, were loosened, and he was running down the stairs. Sheila stood dazed, alone in the hallway. After a while she turned toward the kitchen; a strange light was in her absent eyes, a dreamy smile on her lips. She moved like a sleepwalker.

When Sheila re-entered the room it was to a sulphurous silence on the part of her mother, who was alone there. Joe had gone to bed in the front room, and Angela was in Sheila's place in the big bed, crying, asleep, or feigning unconsciousness, Sheila could not tell. It can only expect judgment. It is a was a little hard to manage a dignified performance of disrobing and ablutions with her mother's steely eyes upon her, and with the consciousness that she would presently come to bed in the same small room with her, but Sheila achieved it.

Angela rarely slept in the big bed. It was a tacit sign of Sheila's alienation from the family that she should be there tonight.

IAM DEEPLY GRATEFUL

Serving the people of Parmer County as County Treasurer has been one of the most delightful experiences of my entire life.

I am grateful, very deeply grateful for the support the voters of the county have always given me and I want to use this means of expressing this appreciation.

By your expression of confidence in me you have eliminated the necessity of a run-off in my race . . . and I do not find words to express my appreciation for your support and influence.

As in years past, you will find me at my post of duty doing my dead level best to serve you faithfully, honestly and efficiently.

The honor you have conferred on me came on my 63rd birthday, and I want you to know I consider it the most wonderful birthday present I have ever received.

To The People of Parmer Co.

The will of the Democratic party in my Judicial District has been expressed, the verdict rendered, and I have been retired from the race for District Attorney leaving the field to my two opponents, both of whom reside at Dalhart. But I am very happy to know that the people of my county gave me a substantial majority over both of my opponents and for this I am indeed thankful, and take this method of expressing my sincere appreciation to my friends who gave me their loyal support.

I ran a clean race and did not undertake to use divisive methods commonly used by professional politicians to win the race.

I entertain no bitterness whatsoever against those who voted against me, and I submit meekly to the will of the people who have spoken in the election. I am still practicing law and making abstracts, and will appreciate your business.

I'm Still Your Commissioner

Although the voters of Precinct 3 have seen fit to elect another man in my stead as county commissioner, I want to state publicly that I am still YOUR commissioner, and the greatest desire of my heart during the remaining months of my official duties is to serve you with implicit impartiality.

I have no malice nor hatred toward any voter who did not see fit to support my candidacy. That is a great American privilege we may all enjoy.

If at any time I can be of service to you in any manner, I trust you will call on me.

TO THE VOTERS of Precinct 4

I consider the wonderful support given me in last Saturday's primary election a vote of confidence and appreciation for the efforts I have put forth in makking you a commissioner worthy of your support.

I have tried honestly to serve you as I thought you would prefer to be served, and if I have made mistakes, I want to assure you it was through misjudgement, and was not done intentionally.

I want to renew my pledge to you in offering you the very best service of which I am capable during my next term of office, beginning next January.

Unusual Strike Shows Fallacy Of Broad Government Rulings

Dispute Over Proper Classification of Workers Results in Stopping All Construction Work in City and Ties Up Supplies for Public Buildings.

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. - Probably, not one of the readers of this column ever have heard the name of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company.

There is no reason for anyone outside of the city of Washington having any knowledge of the concern. It operates within the national capital community, serves its clients satisfactorily, as far as I know, and goes on its way much as any legitimate business operates in the United States. Moreover, it represents the full flower of the American system of private enterprise-or did represent that principle to most of us.

Lately, however, the Smoot Sand & Gravel company has been much in the public prints of the city of Washington. It was in the news because its 250 workers went on strike. When those workers quit, the cessation practically stopped construction in the city, which is to say that the strike suddenly choked off the supply of materials for all new federal government buildings.

This was no ordinary strike, not the usual walk-out. That's why the name of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company gained a place in the sun, small as is the business when compared with other great corporations. This strike was, in effect, a strike against a federal law-the wagehour law-the fair labor standards act as it is most inappropriately

The details substantially are as follows: employees of the concern have been classified as maritime workers, because they operate barges and tugs and cranes and such like in connection with the movement of the sand and gravel. This movement begins in the Po- dering when this nation is going to tomac river and, of course, carries draw its belt tighter and get down through to the site of the building to war preparation. construction.

Busybody Decides It's Improper Classification

Having been classified as maritime workers, these employees were able to work as many hours a day or a week as they desired. They had a union contract with the company to that effect. It is a matter of record that the employees did work sometimes twelve hours a day and seven days a week-and they were reaping the harvest of busy times because the demand for their product was extraordinary while the government building program was continuing. The workers had no quarrel with their employer, yet they went on strike.

Why? Some busybody in the wagehour administration decided that the works of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company were improperly classified. They were not maritime workers-not entitled to work all of the time they desired-and they had to be reclassified. The result was that most of the workers found themselves restricted to 42 hours per week. The net effect of this, of course, was to cut their wages, and the men had no hankering for that.

As these lines are written, the conclusion is not yet in sight. It is always difficult to get a bureaucrat to rescind an order. To do so, of course, is admission that the bureaucrat was wrong. That is not an admission which any one in government office is in a hurry to make. In the meantime, thousands of other workers are unable to work and earn, because a union leader filed a complaint with the wage-hour administration.

I have gone into this case in detail because it so thoroughly exemplifies the fallacy of broad governmental rulings. It demonstrates beyond a shadow of a doubt what can and usually does happen when a national government horns into fields where it does not belongwhere government attempts to regulate the private lives of individuals.

Strike Directs Attention To a Serious Problem

This particular case is of more than ordinary importance in another way. Doubtless you have heard of the defense program, that great hysterical drive to defend ourselves from something that is due to strike us on next Tuesday-or maybe it is on November 5. Anyway, about $15,-000,000,000 has been appropriated for building up our national defense, and

BUTTING IN

Busybody butts in on question of classification of workers-result is stopping all building work and the furnishing of needed supplies. somebody has to do the work. The Smoot strike, therefore, directs attention at one of the problems that confronts this country. It is a serious problem. It has got to be faced, and government must face it. That is, government must face it if this country is to carry out the policies of expanding the army and the navy, of developing an air force second to none and of equipping these forces to shoo unseen enemies back to the foreign shores from which they are expected to come.

Had ing a haven in a new world-at any French government leaders adopted rate, kings and their consorts, their a firm policy with the communistic courtiers and others of princely labor leaders and had those leaders been told to keep their men at work, France would have lasted longer against the Hitler "blitzkrieg." Instead. France refused to abandon the 40-hour week and its governmental officials chose to coddle labor leaders because of politics.

We have something of the same basic situation in this country, right now. It is well known, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt has favored the labor leaders who could control votes. He was not alone. Others have done the same thing—Republican as well as Democrat.

Policy on Shorter Hours Will Not Be Modified

Only lately, Mr. Roosevelt said at the White House that, come war or peace, there would be no modification of the New Deal policy respecting shorter and shorter hours of work. This New Deal reform was to stand, he said, and he is evidently going to stand on that declaration, just as the French did some months ago. Since the President is so firmly committed to this policy, I am won-

I think, too, that attention might be called to the recent appointment of Sydney Hillman as a part of the national defense council and his designation as head of the agency which will have charge of training American boys and girls for war work. It was Mr. Hillman who broke through and organized the textile workers of this country into a strong, well-knit union. He deserves commendation for that job, since most of the textile manufacturers were about as rotten in their treatment of workers as the record of this country can disclose. But, according to reports, Mr. Hillman has lost none of his antagonism for the "employer class" and that does not bode well for a preparedness program.

There are some stories floating around now to the effect that Mr. Hillman has been snuggling up to some labor leaders whose penchant for stirring up trouble is well known. Indeed, if one may believe the reports here in Washington, Mr. Hillman has given some indications that he believes the federal government should clamp down further on the employers, war preparation or n' preparation.

Cause for Fear in War And Navy Departments

Around the war and navy de partments these conditions are creating considerable fear. Army and navy officers, charged with the job of expanding the services, are saying privately that there will not be supplies in anything like sufficient quantity unless the labor that is willing to work is allowed to produce as far as it desires. This means, of course, elimination of the racketeers whose salary as labor leaders depends upon how much trouble can be created among the workers. Unless they can find conditions upon which to base a strike call, every now and then, labor officials are deemed not to be doing their job. Thus, as a rail fence guess, I am looking forward to quite a few

And thus, again, the business of the country is in the middle between the upper and nether millstones. All of the war contracts are being awarded in a manner that amounts to a command from the federal government. The owners of the plants are not being hurt; don't get that idea. They will make a profit. But the owners are being told what to do while the workers are being assured that this is a land of the free.

As one observes these things, however, one cannot fail to look around for signs of this national unity about which there has been so much talk. National unity, under the American system of government, implies enthusiastic co-operation of all. It is difficult to see how it can be achieved when half of the sponsibility in the Legion for more insurance policy on two rubber trees he program is going forward half slave, than a decade. and the rest not only free but en-

DWARD GRIFFITH, who's E producer and director of Paramount's "Virginia," drew a long breath of relief when Madeleine Carroll landed safely in New York. She'd said that she would be back in time to start work promptly, but it seemed unlikely that she would be able to keep her word, especially when nothing was known about her except that she was somewhere in France.

For her the trip was a disappointing one. She couldn't reach either her family or the orphans to whom she had turned over her chateau near Paris. She couldn't see her fiance, although she did succeed in learning that he was in Tunisia. Despite the harrowing experiences that she went through, she looked lovelier than ever when she returned; she spent a few days in New York, and then departed for Charlottesville, Va., and "Virginia."

This is moving a trifle fast the other way.

THANK YOU

I am deeply indebted to the people of Parmer county for the liberal vote they gave me in last Saturday's primary election.

Your expression of confidence in me and my ability to execute the duties of the office of county and district clerk is appreciated beyond words.

Although the time is limited, I expect to be able to see each voter of the county during the run-off campaign, and make a personal solicitation for their continued support.

TECH ALUMNI ORGANIZE COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Around fifty Parmer county residents who have attended Texas Technological College at Lubbock, or who are graduates of that school, joined in a picnic at the roadside park near Bovina, Monday evening, at which time the Parmer County Tech Alumni Club was formed.

Jason O. Gordon, of Farwell, was named as president of the association: Harold Lillard, of Friona, was elected vice-president; Miss Hazel Anglin, of Farwell, named secretarytreasurer; and Jim Wiman, of Bovina, chosen reporter.

Officials said today that a special call meeting would be held prior to the reopening of school, but no definite date was set Monday evening.

Prior to the organization, a picnic lunch was spread, with all attendants contributing, and a general social was enjoyed.

Fundamental Strategy of War Undergoes Major Alterations; Presidential Race Warms Up

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union

This map graphically shows the many points of attack on the British Isles open to Hitler's air raiders.

GERMAN WAR:

Strategy

It is about time that we examined the fundamental strategy of the German war, at this point. For the whole situation has changed, in England, in Germany, and in the United States.

The German aim was a simple one. It was to attack England by land, sea, and air, without wasting much time or effort in other theaters of war, which were trifling, anyway. Italy was expected to take Malta, and Spain was expected to enter the war and take Gibraltar, with the possibility that Japan might take Hongkong, but all these were side issues as compared with the basic battle of Britain. Here the preliminary German air bombardment proved highly effective, and English Portsmouth and Welsh Cardiff were believed already to be gutted. Edward VIII, duke of Windsor, was called a fifth columnist by some monarch by others.

Churchill Plan

The English war plan was this: to hold out, like a besieged fortress, if possible for two or three months. Then, late fall would put an end to German operations against the island fortress. At this point, the English would swing into offensive action in the following way: by an intensified sea blockade that would bring famine to the entire continent of Europe. There have been crop shortages, and failures, on the conbring untold horrors to the Dutch, Belgians, French, Norse, Danes, etc. -and even to the Germans. This was exactly what Winston Churchill was counting on.

There was one hitch in this plan. What food there was on the contigians, French, etc., etc. Thereby, the British would make the Dutch doings. But this was only the beill plan," they called it-would have isolationists into interventionists, and the interventionists into isolafollows: the humane isolationists could not stand the continental starvation, and would want to intervene

New York city's Mayor LaGuardia strongly advocated universal military service.

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines told American high-commissioner Francis Sayre (Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law): "We must do our own thinking and learn lessons from contemporary, history - or bust!"

Claude Dornier Jr., son of Germany's outstanding aircraft designer, was in New York, and planned to enter an American university in the autumn. Dornier bombers were being massed for the battle of Britain:

to break the British blockade and feed the starving French, Dutch, and Belgians, with American food-stuffs (of which we would have a surplus). This would make the isolationists take an interventionist position. Meanwhile, the interventionists would cry "hands off" the British blockade, and would want the continent to stew in its own juice, which would turn them into isolationists. This, then, was the keynote to the European war situation as a whole. Meanwhile, Hitler liberated the Belgian war prisoners and sent them home, having long The French were expected to be German military hands.

The fabric combination for this costume is a very happy one of stripe-printed celanese crepe for the skirt and parasol with sharkskin in monotone for the blouse top.

You can get such easy-to-follow patterns for play clothes nowadays, and attachments that almost perform miracles in stitching, tucking, quilting, shirring, cording, it is a temptation to make one's own outfits. Many smart, fashion-aware women are doing just that, buying up pretty materials and making their own. It is a fact the records show that the home-sewing idea is decidedly on the increase.

Consider, in the light of being your own dressmaker, the charming gaytime sun suit which the girl seated is wearing. Just a few yards of seersucker plaided in vivid colors were required. You can make the whole outfit by spending only a couple of hours at your sewing machine even if you are a beginner at the sewing game. A little gathering attachment in your sewing machine kit will dispose of the yards of gathering at the waistline in just a few moments. You'll love the swirling ballerina skirt and the smartly fitted jacket top that furnish the styling theme for this outfit.

Is Smart Fashion

The new hats of sheer black horsehair braid or of thin net or chiffon are registering as one of the season's outstanding successes. The smartest ones have large brims that are styled to wear far back on the head so that they halo hair and face with a mist of wispy black. They give you the dress-up look that is so important for special occasions. You'll love a hat of this type with your black and white prints and with the all-black afternoon sheer costumes that are high fashion this summer.

Berets for Smart Summer Headwear

For chic millinery to wear now and through the fall, the beret, big, black and dramatic carries the honors. The present beret vogue is gaining momentum by leaps and bounds. One way of wearing the new beret is to pose it far back on the head. There are also dramatic profile berets that turn up picturesquely at one side. It is worth while to study up on the beret movement for be assured berets are important millinery news.

It's Easy to Make And Easy to Wear

Make it in a few hours, and wear it day after day after day! You can see, from the small diagram sketch, how easy this dress is to put together-merely five pieces, including the sleeves, and the only detailing consists of a few simple darts at the waist-line. But you can't really tell until you get it on, how easy it is to wear and work in, how unhamperlooks slim but is completely unrestraining — nothing about the dress to catch you up short when reaching into the top shelf or dusting down the stairs.

The front fastening makes it easy to get into. This is an easily tubbable dress, too. Make up design No. 1966-B in seersucker, linen, percale or gingham. Even this simple pattern includes a detailed sew chart.

With Gratitude In My Heart

Out of a heart overflowing with gratitude, I want to express my most sincere thanks to the people of precinct 2 in returning me to the office of county commissioner.

I hold not the slightest animosity toward those who chose to support my opponents. That was your privilege that is guaranteed to us under the American form of government.

I am especially grateful to the people of my home box of Rhea, for the almost unanimous support given me in last Saturday's election. I would much prefer to lose an election than to lose the confidence of my home people, many of whom have known me all my life.

Your expression of confidence moves me to pledge to you my very best efforts in the future in serving you to the best of my ability.

F. T. Schlenker

I Thank You

The voters of Parmer County will never fully know the depth of appreciatinon I feel for the splendid vote they gave me in the first primary election last Saturday. To them I owe a debt of gratitude and thanks.

Your expression of confidence in my candidacy for the office of County and District Clerk is a challenge to me to give my best efforts to serving you faithfully and efficiently should I be chosen as your public servant.

I have already set myself to the task of conducting a vigorous campaign between now and the second primary election. It is my aim to see each of you personally between now and August 24. In the menatime any further consideration given my candidacy will be received with the same degree of appreciation I hold for each one of you for the support given me last Saturday.

Washington, D. C.

UNREST FACES WINDSOR WASHINGTON.-Whether he realizes it or not, the duke of Windsor cents a yard, and 24-ounce canvas is going to have a tougher time on his hands as governor of the Bahamas than merely sitting round the roulette tables of Nassau or entertaining ritzy tourists from the U. S. A.

The duke was appointed to the Bahamas partly to give him something to do someplace near the native land of his wife, but also to keep him as far away as possible from his pro-German friends in England and his Nazi pals in Germany-who were reputed to entertain ideas about restoring him to the throne of England. However, when the ex-king gets to the Azure islands just off the coast of Florida he will find a major social problem awaiting him. For the Bahamas are not self-supporting; even with their rich tourist trade they are an economic liability. The United Kingdom gives them all sorts of concessions to keep

Among other things, the British government pays a high preference on Bahaman sugar to sweeten the English cup of tea. It pays through the nose in comparison with the much cheaper Cuban sugar. And should Germany conquer the United Kingdom and cast off the Bahamas, those islands would face economic the populace contented.

The Bahaman population is 90 per cent black, and already the sour economic situation abroad and its reflex in Nassau, have caused rioting. The Negroes are a prolific people, increasing the economic strain with every increase in the population.

One solution might be birth control, and the Bahamas would offer an interesting laboratory for this experiment. A similar experiment has been discussed in the heavily overpopulated island of Puerto Rico, but there the Negroes are Catholic while in the Bahamas they are Protestant. At any rate, the duke of Windsor is likely to have his hands full.

LEWIS FOR FDR Even though John L. Lewis has three times declared that if the President ran for a third term he would be "ignominiously defeated," behind the scenes the "fix is in" for a reconciliation between them. Intimates have been working on both for several weeks-ever since the G. O. P. platform opened the way for a face-saver for Lewis.

When he threw his brickbats at the President before the platform committee in Philadelphia, Lewis expected in return that the Republicans would avoid advocating amendment of the national labor relations act in their labor plank. Under Alf Landon's urging the plank as originally drafted said nothing about revision.

But big industrial contributors demanded no pussyfooting on the issue. In the end Landon was overruled and the plank as adopted declared for amendment of the law.

KING MAKERS

Two unknown newcomers staged the quiet behind-the-scenes drive which put over Henry Wallace.

One was "Farmer" Eugene Casey, big Maryland dairyman; the other was bespectacled Dr. Luther Haar, business manager of the Philadelphia Record and manager of Sen. Joe Guffey's recent successful primary campaign.

While other vice presidential hopefuls had elaborate headquarters and electioneering paraphernalia, Casey and Haar avoided these trappings and brought pressure to bear where it would count at the right moment. Each worked different spheres.

Haar exerted his persuasive talents on key leaders and labor chiefs, with whom he is intimate. Not revealed were the personal telegrams to Roosevelt from C. I. O.'s Phil Murray, Tom Kennedy and John Owen, which helped clinch the decision on Wallace.

Casey did his stuff among the inner circle and farm leaders. The pincers drive worked and the nod went to Wallace.

He got the news at breakfast early Thursday morning. Grinning boyishly, he remarked to friends who came to congratulate him: "I found I didn't have a soft shirt this morning so I had to wear this stiff one. And the only cuff links I had were these the President gave me. I didn't realize it at the time, but it was a lucky omen."

Note-Only shadow on Wallace's happiness was his inability to reach Jim Farley. The two have been word from Washington, Wallace telephoned Farley. But repeated efforts brought no response and all messages went unanswered.

Canvas Decking. OUESTION: How can I cover a porch floor with steamboat decking? Twelve-ounce canvas costs 33 costs 75 cents. Will the difference in cost be justified? How should the canvas be laid?

Answer: Get heavy canvas, and buy a kind that is intended for the purpose. The best qualities will not shrink, and they have a water-proof-ing treatment. You should start with a flat deck of closely fitted boards, with no uneven places. On this put a fairly thick bed of white lead made into a soft paste by adding linseed oil. Stretch the first strip of canvas at the edge of the roof, rolling it into the paste and securing it with long copper tacks put in an inch apart all around. Lay the second strip with its edge overlapping the edge of the first one by two inches. Put paste under the overlap and secure by tacks. Continue in this way. When the roof is covered, put on a priming coat of deck paint, and when it is dry, two more coats of the same, used as it comes in the Silverfish and Crickets.

Question: How can I get rid of silverfish and crickets?

Answer: For both of these insects use pyrethrum powder, which is the common yellow insect powder. Put it in a powder puffer and for the silverfish blow it into cracks in the woodwork, such as the crack between flooring and baseboard; blow it on shelves, behind books, and in similar places. For crickets blow it into the air behind pieces of furniture, boxes and radiators, and other places where crickets conceal them- through their exquisitely waved selves. A newly married girl comes to Kathleen Norris for advice on a vital problem: her husband had a daughter by his first wife from whom he was separated by death. The little girl is almost unmanageable, putting a con-tinual strain on a normally happy relationship between the young woman and her husband. Kathleen Norris analyzes this problem and tells the young wife how it can be solved.

"My own hope has always been for a houseful of children. But yesterday Rod said that it hurt him to think of anyone ever making Doris feel second. If ours could be a boy, he said, it might be different. But if it was a little sister it might upset her psychologically. At least, he said, that's what one of his sisters told him.

happier if we left the child with his feature is its simplicity of design. But both know that marriage is a mother. But he hates to admit it. And so the screaming and crying go on. If I dress her, 'Jean hurt me!' If I fix her lunch 'it tastes horrid!' When the aunts come she flies to them and clings panting, and of course Rod and casual visitors draw their own conclusions. I want to do my duty by her, and see that she's decently dressed for school, does her homework, eats at least a part of what she should, gets to bed at some reasonable hour. Can you help me see the right way?"

Jean, perhaps I can. For you're not the first stepmother who contradicts all the old fairy-stories by being a gentle and well-disposed human being who wants to give a beloved husband's children a break.

Go Indifferent.

And first of all, I think you must abandon any idea of controlling or easily, dip a dry scissors into powinfluencing Doris at present. At 10 Doris will be an orderly little creature, perhaps silent and jealous and embittered in her small soul, but grown out of her baby nonsense. If you can wait for that hour, and befriend her in the meanwhile in steady, gentle, patient ways, you will reap a rich reward.

It seems too bad for grown-ups to have to scheme against a small girl in this fashion. But the mischief is not of your choosing, and little Doris must learn common sense sooner or later.
