

Texico residents open Clovis gym

THE STATE LINE TRIBUNE

"Official Publication of Parmer County"

JUNE 13, 2013 NUMBER 44 101st YEAR 50 CENTS

Craig and Darcy Rohrbach, of Texico, have opened a new business, or rather, their daughter did.

Fourth grade daughter Riley has been on a competitive gymnastic team for the past two years. Recently, the Clovis gym where she and other athletes train was going to close down. If this happened, the only alternative for team members was to travel to Levelland, Texas, several times each week to train at a gym there. This was going to make gymnastics very difficult for everyone involved.

After some thought, the Rohrbachs decided to take on a new venture. They made plans to keep the gymnastics business open in Clovis. Since four of the five team members are from Farwell or Texico, this was very good news to local families.

For the past month, the Rohrbachs – with the help of other team parents like Chad and Holly Byrd, Darren and Lorre Haseloff, and Benji and Misty Henderson – have been preparing a building in Clovis to house the new facility -- Clovis Gymnastics Academy.

"The building we rented in Clovis is perfect for gymnastics because it has really high ceilings in one part of the building," said Mrs. Rohrbach.

At the former facility, it was a concern that Riley was going to hit her head on the ceiling. At the new place, 23-ft. ceilings the teammates extra jumping room.

The new building is at 600 Commerce Way and is open for business.

The gym will offer:

-- A great pre-school program -- beginning, intermediate and advanced recreational classes.

-- Tumbling only classes.

-- Cheerleading classes and a competitive team.

It will also be available to host birthday parties, "parents night" and possibly some adult exercise classes. The building has over 7,000 sq. ft. and contains lots of fun equipment.

"Our type of gymnastics is trampoline and tumbling," said Mrs. Rohrbach. "We have two professional trampolines, a double mini, and a spring floor for tumbling. Our competitive coach has been coaching gymnastics for over 15 years and is an expert at gymnastic skills."

There is an entire section for pre-school-age kids with lots of fun equipment and their own smaller, kid-sized trampoline.

Mrs. Rohrbach said one of the favorite things in the gym is a 20-ft. climbing rope where everyone likes to play "Tarzan."

There is also a cargo net to climb and a rock wall and zip line in the works. "We hope to have our above-ground pit in the gym soon so we can put the zip line up. When that happens, kids can swing on the zip line and

The Rohrbachs hope the gym will be a party destination before long. Riley is all set to try out the party zone. She will be breaking in the gym with her own birthday party soon, to try it out. Right now, the competitive gymnastics team is working out hard in the gym because they will soon be traveling to Kansas City to compete in the Junior Olympics National Trampoline and Tumbling Championships.

Rohrbach joked that his part of the business is to fix things in the gym "and make sure my wife does not spend too much money."

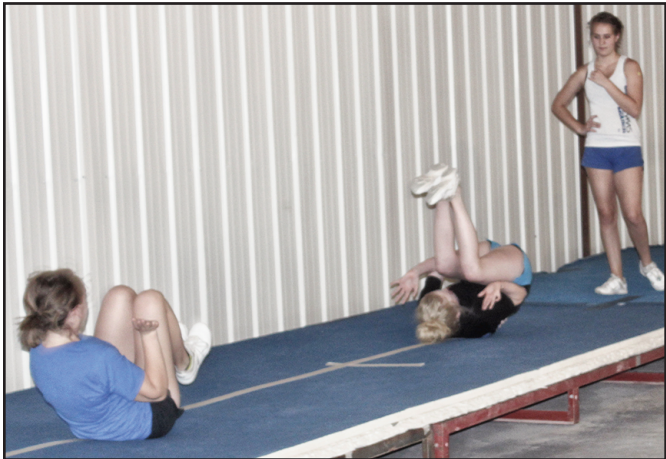

Rohrbach is also manager of Parmer County Cotton Growers Gin, and his engineering background helps out. He does say that there is one "problem" with the new gym – the colors. The team colors were already black and red, so the color scheme continued into the new gym.

But since the Rohrbachs are both Texas A&M University graduates, he added, "We are going to have to get some Aggie maroon in there somewhere."

Mrs. Rohrbach, who also is editor of the State Line Tribune, says she is certainly going to be busy, but it will be a lot of fun. "I have a teaching and fitness background, so this will be great for me. I will be teaching the pre-school-age athletes and can't wait to get going with the new curriculum.

For more information about the Clovis Gymnastics Academy, call Mrs. Rohrbach at (806) 891-3602.

Above and below, Junior High and JV cheerleading classes use the equipment to safely learn about tumbling and stunting.

Texico 'Young Guns' compete in shooting challenge

Nine Texico students recently traveled to Raton, N.M., to compete in the Youth Hunter Education Challenge (YHEC).

Each year, this 4-H based program offers youth the opportunity to compete in outdoor-related events. Events such as orienteering, safety, wildlife identification, shotgun, rifle, muzzleloader and archery challenge young people to perfect their outdoor skills.

The Texico teams are the "Young Guns" and compete in two different age divisions – Juniors and Sub Juniors. Both teams took 3rd overall places at this

A note from School Supt. Mike Read:

We have completed another very successful year at Farwell Schools. Our students and staff achieved milestones in the classroom, UIL academic competition, and extracurricular activities.

This would not have been possible without the following folks: our outstanding staff, students, parents, administrators and board of education. As Farwell School superintendent, I have certainly appreciated all of the hard work and loyalty from everyone involved.

Zac is the son of Dwayne and Susie Dale, of Farwell.

During the four-day program, students from across the U.S. learned about the telecommunications industry and the legislative process.

Besides hearing lectures on those topics, they visited the U.S. Capitol, Federal Communications Commission, and Washington's major attractions such as the Supreme Court building, National Cathedral and the famed memorials -- Lincoln, Jefferson, Washington, Vietnam, Korean and FDR.

WE NEED FARM LISTINGS!!

From the Old Geezer
Butch Tharp

Fern and I have been on the road for awhile, traveling a few miles and meeting some interesting folks.

We made several stops on the way, most in areas of drought, wind storms, and guess what, blowing sand.

The difference in their blowing sand and ours is that their sand mostly scoots along the ground and roadways. But it remains blowing sand, and the highway departments even post signs alerting motorists that, "areas of drifting sand ahead."

One can still have plenty of visibility, but highways are often covered with crawling sand. The wind speed which we encountered was not quite as bad as here at home, but it still moved a lot of sand.

I asked one native bout rainfall and he replied, "If we get a total of five inches a year, we have had a very wet year."

It was obvious that the economy has been bad for areas dependent on tourism. Many locations had numerous tourist attractions boarded up. That was not too thrilling to see, but they are pretty hard hit.

We saw many of what I consider wonders of the world such as the painted desert, petrified trees, Joshua Tree forest, Grand Canyon and others. It was an amazing trip.

We met a special woman who checked us out at a grocery store. The place was crowded and some folks were angry and treating the check-out persons rudely.

The lines at the regular check-out counters were long. One angry woman ahead of us let me know that the store was the busiest in town and always had only two check-out lines. She then expressed her chagrin at folks buying lots of stuff and the time it took to get checked out.

I had noticed one check-out stand which was marked "15 items or less." I asked the lady about that since we had only two items to purchase and was told that special lane was usually closed.

I looked again at the special lane and saw a head bent down doing what I assumed to be working. So I dashed over there to get checked out quickly.

I was a bit shocked when I saw the employee close-up. The lady seemed to be in such a state of pain that I was not going to bother her. But she had seen my approach and with a smile and cheery greeting held her hands out to receive my two items.

She appeared very fragile, weighing not more than 80 lbs. As for her height, the only way for her to see over the counter was for her to roll her head backwards toward her shoulders as far as possible.

Her hands were crippled with arthritis, her back was home to a huge bulge probably from osteoporosis, and when walking, her face was hardly 4 feet from the floor. Yet she had such a pleasant character!

This lady looked to be early 70s', suffering from arthritis and osteoporosis, and had to be in pain. But she had chosen to WORK instead of going on government support!

While doing her duties, she politely asked if she could do anything else for me. For the rest of our stay, we did further business with that grocery and, for some reason, we always had fewer than 15 items to be checked.

My what courage and sweet character that lovely woman possesses! She inspires me.

While on that outing I passed a many an off-ramp. I see another one coming ... see you in a few miles.

Rain was much needed

From Monti Vandiver, Parmer County extension agent - IPM:

Dry conditions have dominated even though some much-needed precipitation was received June 5.

The NWP is right at 50 percent of the long term average precipitation year to date while the May 1 to date heat unit accumulations are slightly ahead of the long term average.

Very high winds associated with recent storm fronts have added "insult to injury," damaging crops, sprinkler irrigation systems, and power poles.

Rain has ranged from .5 inch to 1.5 inches; some storms also contained hail. Cotton stand counts less than .2 plants/foot and corn with severe leaf burn have been observed in fields in the path of these storms. The injury to corn at this stage should not result in measurable yield loss.

Much area cotton has sustained varying degrees of damage, some of which is severe.

On the brighter side, irrigated crops not subjected to or more tolerant of the severe conditions associated with the recent storms look pretty good and in some cases very good. Crops are behind in development compared to last year.

Cade Box and Cheyenne Patrick washed cars on June 8 at Big Mike's Bikes in Farwell. The donation car wash was to help Farwell 4H raise money for their activities.

Clara Reyes, a Farwell High School student washed cars on June 8 to raise money for her mission trip to Brazil this summer. She will leave July 16 for a three month trip.

BTD plans move along

With Border Town Days nearing (July 27), here's an update from BTD committee member Mike Pomper:

Entertainment

Singing will be Chelsi Woods and her daughter Kirkland; Virginia Palaia, Tasha Meeks, the Texico duo of Reid and Spears, the Schilling sisters, and the 8 Second Ride Band from Lazbuddie (Clint Russell's group).

There are still a couple of spots open for folks wanting to sing. If so, call the Tribune at 481-3681.

Kiddies' rides

Two of the key folks who are mainstays at BTD will again bring their entertainment crew -- Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Friemel. It includes the train and the inflatable playhouse.

Also scheduled are Sid Morris' pony rides; Hilbert Schramm and his ferris wheel, coming from Lubbock; "Water Wars" brought by Paula and Tom Badger, of Amarillo; and demonstrations by the new Clovis Gymnastics Academy.

Again, if you have a special ride you would like to bring to BTD, call the Tribune.

Concessions

Carolyn Johnson takes the signups for the concessions. Only area non-profit groups are allowed. Mrs. Johnson can be contacted at 482-3314.

Arts and crafts

In charge of the arts and crafts area is Lynne Mahaney. She can be called at 481-3601.

Merchants giveaway

Local businesses will soon be contacted by Jerry Whitney and Bill Dannheim to sign them up. As always (at least since 1987), the cost is $10.

Parade

Fern Tharp is being assisted by Bev Miller and Annie Crawford in calling folks to be in the parade. If you would like to be in the parade, either call one of those three ladies or the Tribune.

Signed up for the parade so far are:

Farwell Classes of 1973, 1993 and 1963; Texico Class of 1963; Big Mike's Bikes, and the Texico cheerleaders.

There's lot of other stuff being done as BTD moves along, such as preparations for the decorated bicycle contest, headed by Gerri Bowers. This is where two brand-new bicycles are awarded. Signups won't begin until mid-July.

The emcee at the gazebo will again be Fred Chandler, assisted by Rusty Rucker.

To be honored as Honorary Parade Marshal for his work in the community over the years will be Mack Heald, in a convertible driven by Tucker Crawford.

All in all, it promises to be another special day for the Twin Cities.

Border Banter

--Mike Pomper

I've been known as a story teller since I was 15 years old.

In the Army, I was even given a special badge testifying to that ability.

My stories are all true but most are not believable. And I like putting a funny twist on them that leads the listener to disbelieve the story. I do that for fun.

But as you get aged -- and I turned 69 last week, you have a tendency to look back at your life and laugh at various incidents.

So I thought I would share a cute one with you today.

I once had a job as a stock boy at a jewelry wholesaler. My job was to get items to be sent to jewelry retailers and place them in a box for shipment while reading out the numbers for a lady who put them on the bill.

The lady I worked with was Mary Lou. She was a hypochondriac -- having an excessive compulsion about her health.

Mary Lou was always saying it was too cold, too hot, and she had this problem, that problem. Even on days in the 90s, she wore a sweater.

One day, during a break, I was chatting with a fellow worker in the hallway and I commented that Mary Lou was a hypochondriac. He agreed.

Construction coming along

It was June 2012 when Cargill announced plans to build a major feed mill adjacent to Bovina -- Cargill Sweet Bran.

Since then, construction has been moving forward swiftly. When the plans were announced, it was hoped it would go into operation this summer. The $50 million facility will have 28 full-time employees and an annual payroll of $1,775,000.

Cargill officials estimate 6,000 tons of sweet bran will be moved each day by the plant that will be open 24 hours a day.

Unfortunately, our discussion was right outside the ladies' rest room and the walls were thin.

After break time was over, I went back to work and immediately realized that Mary Lou was upset with me. I asked her why and she told me she had been in the ladies' rest room and overheard what I had said during the break.

I had to think quickly.

"Well, Mary Lou, you heard me say that you were a hypochondriac, right?"

She nodded her head affirmatively.

"Well, a hypochondriac is a person who gets sick all the time."

Mary Lou's face brightened. "Oh, thank you, Mike, for sticking up for me," she said.

Close call...

Susan Rice, formerly our ambassador to the U.N., has been promoted to be President Obama's national security advisor.

Ms. Rice is the lady who said for weeks after the Benghazi tragedy that it was the work of Moslems unhappy with some stupid movie being made in California that never saw the light of day.

As we now know, the murder of four Americans in Libya, that included our ambassador, was caused by Al-Qaeda terrorists. The movie scenario was simply a political cover to help President Obama be re-elected.

The terrorist connection was immediately known by our security agencies but the atrocity was blamed on the "movie," with Ms. Rice heading the charge.

The term for this in politics is "misinformation," and it usually occurs in dictatorships like Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia.

Now the U.S. has joined that group.

What Ms. Rice did was wrong, wrong, wrong, and yet she is promoted.

It is so very sad to see what has happened to our great democracy in such a short time. Yet, if Mr. Obama ran for reelection today, he would win.

That says it all.

I've watched the news involving the House committee investigating criminal acts conducted by the IRS.

Yes, they are criminal acts but don't expect anyone to go to jail.

The Democrats are working extra hard to downplay the whole affair for political reasons. I can appreciate that but, as a child, I thought our leaders first response was to do what was best for America, not for a political party.

Yes, I was naive and stupid. Still am.

So the Democrats are saying that key IRS officials were appointed by a Republican president; that the affair only involves some low-level folks in Cincinnati; that it's old news, and let's move on.

These excuses are less than lame. They are an abomination to our nation.

I don't care who appointed the folks responsible for the criminal acts. I don't care if they are Democrat or Republican. I just want to see them punished.

Hell, if you lied to the IRS, you don't think they would take swift action against you? Well, they lied to us -- should we forget and forgive?

Here's my prediction: some top IRS officials will lose their jobs, then be promoted to other government positions.

In today's America, government is above the law and "accountability" is no longer part of the English language.

An uproariously "funny" event happened to DeeDee and I on Saturday night.

We drove to Borger, Texas, to see our granddaughter, Dara McCown, perform in their annual dance recital.

The high school auditorium was packed. More than 20 dances would be performed by various groups. Dara would be in one dance as one of about 10 dancers.

Finally, it came time for Dara's dance. So what happened?

The dancers in her group wore fluorescent costumes. And all the lights were turned off for Dara's particular dance. That meant you could see the illuminated costumes, but not the faces, arms or legs of the dancers.

And that meant we had absolutely no idea which dancer Dara was. The dance started and finished in that fashion -- with all the lights turned off.

I'm sure any parent or grandparent (and other family members) who participate in stuff like this know exactly how we felt. You go see your granddaughter perform and don't have a clue to which dancer she was.

Suffice it to say, grandma DeeDee was not a happy camper.

Live Cattle prices have been in a flat and sideways trade for the last three weeks with very little direction. Prices have traded around the $119.60 every day for about 16 days in a row basis the August contract. On Monday the market broke down out of this tight range, but overall market remains sideways. With cash beef prices and cash cattle prices moving lower now, it could add some pressure to futures prices. It will take a move back above $121 in the August to push the market any higher.

Feeder prices have seen a similar trading range with basically no direction. The market has been down here for almost a month and has yet to take out support or resistance. The August contract will either need to take out the lows at $142.25 or the highs at $147.40 to move the market. Most of the focus remains on the Live Cattle price and to a small degree the corn price.

Soybean prices tried and failed to take out the highs posted just a couple of weeks ago. This market technically looks like either a major price correction is due or a major top has just been posted. Fundamentally, there are few reasons to hold the market at these levels. For now, look for a possible test of the $14.80 level basis the July contract.

Corn prices have all test their $6.70 and $5.70 highs basis the July and December contract respectively. Both have failed around these levels and this could signal the end of this rally which began several weeks ago. The seasonal tendency is lower and the weather seems to be in good shape along with planting's which are in line with the 5 year averages. A close below $5.35 basis the December would most likely signal a long term top in place.

Wheat prices tried to breakout on the upside early last week, but failed. This may be due to the rest of the grain complex also failing to take out some major resistance levels. In any case, the July KC wheat is now trading below their $7.33 support level and look like another test of the contract lows is coming. Those levels are $7.10 made in early April.

Cotton prices exploded back to the upside early last week and then just faded away into Friday's close. There is a good case to be made that prices are in a sideways trading range, but since the early March high was made, prices have continued to see lower highs and lower lows which is technically negative. The market has held the one-third price support around the $82.25 level basis the December which is positive.

Futures and Options Trading involves risk of loss and may not be suitable for everyone.

Bovina plans 4th of July gala

Buddy and Bea Prather, along with the Bovina Chamber of Commerce, will spearhead the annual Bovina 4th of July parade.

The parade will kick off at 10 a.m. this year announced Prather. The parade will start at the same time as it did last year. C.E. Trimble will be grand marshal, as he has been doing for around 30 years.

The parade will start in front of the fire station on North Street, head down 3rd Street and end up at the city park. Participants are asked to be at the parade start by 10:30 a.m.

The Chamber of Commerce will provide cash prizes for best decorated bicycles and floats.

"If you have a horse, a bike, any vehicle, just show up and be in the parade," said Prather.

Plans for the celebration were discussed at the Chamber's monthly meeting on June 6, with 10 persons present.

While the Prathers are in charge of setting up the parade, the Chamber is working on the vendors at the city park, getting singing groups to perform, and coordinating with the fire department on the fireworks display at dusk.

Booths will cost $35, up from $25 last year. The increase is being done so that the cost includes $10 for hiring youths for cleanup duties. If you wish to have a booth at the city park, to sign up call Ben Cantu at (806) 206-1796.

If you would like to perform musical selections during the afternoon at the city park, you can sign up by calling Chamber secretary Suezy Smith at (806) 251-1677.

The exact site for the fireworks display has not been set yet.

Also, there will not be a rodeo this year.

In other business at the Chamber meeting:

-- The Chamber's annual awards banquet honoring local citizens was scheduled for August but will be postponed until next March.

That means there will not be an awards banquet this year.

In years past, the banquet was held each March. The Chamber decided to skip this year and return to the old format because they have too much going on in a short period of time -- Cinco de Mayo's Spring Fling and the 4th of July celebration coming within a short period.

-- Discussed a suggestion that the Chamber reinstate Bulltown Days. This was the July 4th celebration for many years and included a talent show, BBQ and rodeo besides the parade.

The Chamber would like to hear from residents on whether they should attempt to reinstate Bulltown Days. Please call Mrs. Smith at (806) 251-1677 to give your opinion.

-- Noted that the Bovina Development Commission is giving the Chamber $5,000 to promote Bovina, mainly through TV banners.
