'World opinion' is worthless

World opinion. That's one of my favorite terms. It came to mind again last week in the aftermath of the U.S. jet raid on Libya - something that was long overdue, I might add. You can't show weakness to terrorists - or the terror will continue.

After the raid, journalists, as they normally do, searched for opinions from various sectors throughout the world. In some cases, the U.S. was backed, in others it wasn't.

And these opinions are deemed important by journalists. Just look at the large headlines they got in newspapers and on television. Well, let me tell you what all that opinion is worth: Add a dime to it and you still couldn't buy a cup of coffee.

In a nutshell, "world opinion" is completely worthless. Yet, for some reason beyond me, it gets a big media play.

So what if Syria is unhappy with what we did. So what if Canada liked it. Syria is unfriendly to us and will remain so; Canada is a friend and will remain so. "World opinion" doesn't change allies or adversaries.

I'd like to tell you about how I came to conclude that "world opinion" was as worthwhile as Confederate currency. It happened in 1956.

You recall the times: the Cold War was well under way, Eisenhower was president and John Foster Dulles was secretary of state. It was a time for "brinkmanship" and "unleashing Chiang" and "liberate Eastern Europe."

"Liberate Eastern Europe." How well I remember those words, just as you do. So what happened in 1956? The Hungarian Rebellion. A time when people rose up and overthrew their Communist puppet masters. What a heroic time in that nation's history.

But within a week, Russian and East German tanks moved into Hungary to suppress the rebellion. Remember those youngsters throwing Molotov Cocktails at the Russian tanks? Talk about bravery - that was their finest hour.

The rebellion was crushed. The Communist doctrine of "once a Communist country, always a Communist country" was enforced (yet there are those who think the Sandinistas will negotiate with the Contras!).

What did the U.S. do during those crucial days of Hungarian freedom? What did the U.S. do to follow up on its "Liberate Eastern Europe" theme? Absolutely nothing. That's when I learned what political rhetoric was - silly words.

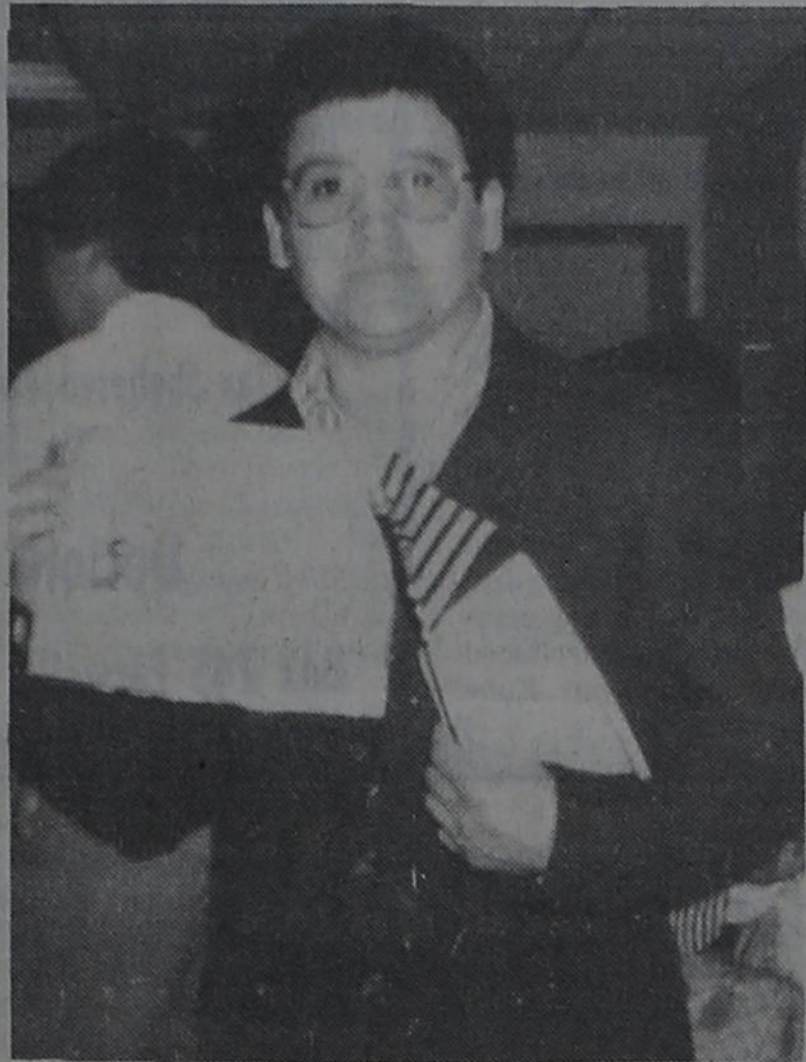

Immediately, "world opinion" came to the fore. I remember the stories of nation after nation condemning Russia for its intrusion into Hungarian affairs. Even unaligned India, one of the few non-Communist nations at the time which had cordial relations with Russia, scored the USSR for its mini-war.

And what did all that "world opinion" achieve. To coin a phrase, more absolutely nothing.

The nations that supported Russia continued to support her. The nations that opposed Russia continued to be her opponents. Nothing changed, except that one flickering light of freedom was squashed.

Oh, and what about the United States? The nation whose leaders had proclaimed a policy of "Liberate Eastern Europe," then sat on their hands while Budapest was raped? The nation that sent no help, EVERARDO ARCE JR.

Farwell resident naturalized

Everardo (Chacho) Arce Jr. became a naturalized citizen March 27 in Amarillo.

Arce was born in San Buena Ventura, Coahuila, Mexico. At the age of 10, he and his family came to the United States. He has lived in Farwell ever since. He graduated from Farwell High.

Arce always wanted to become an American citizen. About three years ago he sent an application to El Paso which he later found out was not the right district. With the help of Congressman Larry Combest's office in Amarillo, he was told to send another application - this time to Dallas. This was done in June of last year.

Last month, he received a letter from Dallas telling him to go for an interview in Amarillo.

He answered a few questions, like name the branches of government and how many Houses are there. Elizabeth Phillips of Farwell Schools helped him by giving him an article to help him prepare.

The naturalization ceremony took place in the courtroom with District Judge Mary Lou Robinson putting them under oath. There were about 136 persons and 25 countries represented.

"She told us to participate in community and government affairs and to defend the USA 100 percent. We now have the right to vote and pay income tax," said Arce.

"A lawyer from Lubbock swore us in. She said to never forget our customs and traditions."

They all repeated the pledge of allegiance to the flag and received their certificates.

Arce turned in his passport and green card as he will not need them anymore.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Arce feels everyone "should be more involved in social activities. Also be sure and vote so you can have a say in matters, plus learn what the constitution really means."

Chacho is married and his wife's name is Maria. They have three children: Michael in seventh grade, Chris in third grade and Katrina, age 4. He is employed at Honetreat Company in Clovis, where he is a shop foreman.

Arce has been involved in Farwell's youth baseball program.

Arce spoke to the Farwell eighth grade history class Monday on being naturalized.

He learned English from his classmates and his teacher, Mrs. Kennedy when he first came to Farwell.

He told the students that it was very important to know the constitution and he valued the opportunity to become an American citizen.

Help needed for baseball league

Your help is needed in order for the Texico-Farwell Baseball League to start in May.

That's the word from Ronald Byrd, league president.

"If people volunteer to help the league run, we'll be okay. If they don't, we will have a serious problem. That's the whole story in a nutshell," said Byrd.

Persons wanting to help the six-week league operate are asked to attend the organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. (Texas time) Monday at Luce's Restaurant.

Needed are persons willing to be umpires, coaches, concession stand workers and to help maintain the ball fields.

"We hope very much that people will come to this meeting and be willing to participate in helping run the league. But if you cannot come but still are willing to volunteer, please call me at 481-3846," said Byrd.

Also at the meeting, an election of officers is scheduled.

The league has three divisions: T-ball, minor and major. It runs about six weeks, starting near the end of May and finishing up the first week in July. Games normally are played Mondays and Thursdays.

Farwell Arena to be discussed

There will be an open meeting May 5 at 7:30 p.m. CDT at Luce's Spur Restaurant for anyone interested in joining with the current group and expanding activities at the Farwell Arena.

Anyone who would like to become involved in organized activities whether they own a horse or not is urged to attend.

It is hoped that the current activities can be expanded to include rodeos, horse shows, play days, clinics and cutting horse competitions.

In adding these things maybe there can be a family association that all members can participate in.

Members will be needed for planning, publicity, fund raising, public relations and management, as well as participants.

Former honorees for the Man and Woman of the Year awards are:

1973 - James Pierce and Marcia Leavell; 1974 - Bill Christian and Aileen Pearce; 1975 - A.D. McDonald and Marie Christian; 1976 - J.E. Caywood and Clara Wiehl; 1977 - Bill Thigpen and Louise Ingram; 1978 - Lewis Cooper and Aileen Teel.

Cooper pointed out that Burrows' subdivision that has been started,

Why Helton was honored

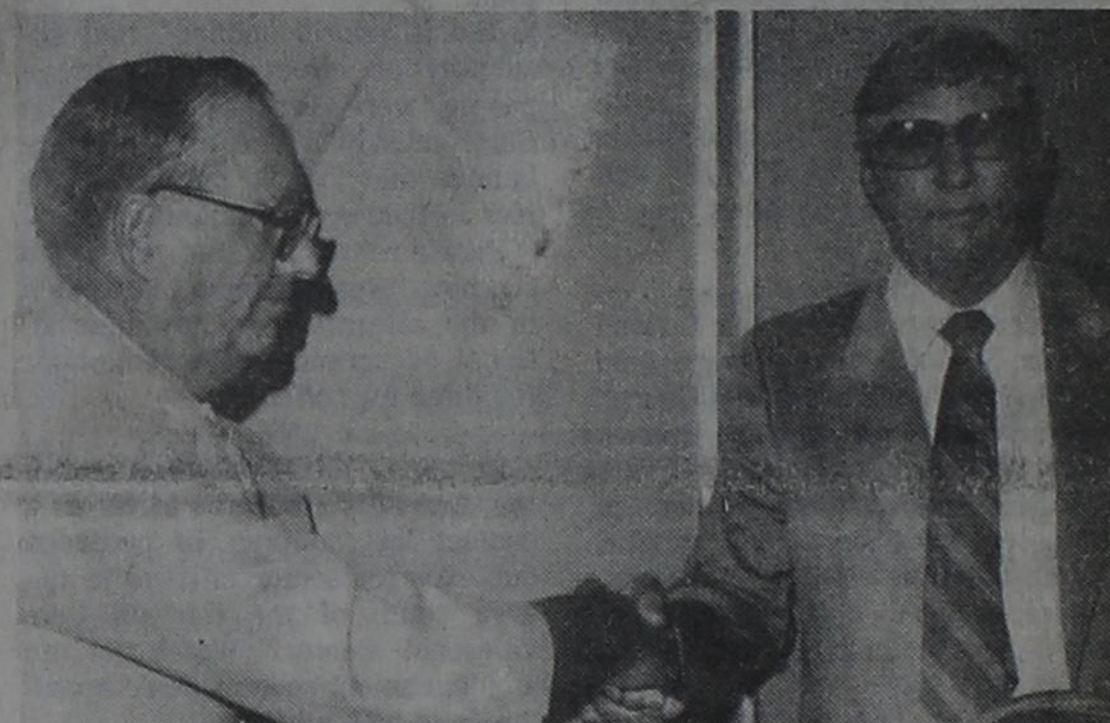

Here is the speech given by Eddie West in the presentation of the 1986 Texico Man of the Year award to Joe Helton.

Tonight we are proud to honor a special man in our community - a man who has contributed many hours of service to the Texico community as well as to the Farwell and Clovis communities.

The 1986 Man-of-the-Year has been a sponsor of area Pee Wee, Little League, bowling teams, basketball teams and men's softball teams for many years. He is always ready to assist the New Mexico Boys Ranches and Girlstown, U.S.A., the 4-H clubs, and the FFA. He is a regular contributor to athletic scholarship funds at both West Texas State University and Texas Tech.

His interest in athletics probably stems from the fact that he once played football at West Texas State University. Following his college he entered the Air Force in 1940 where he served as a B-24 pilot and a squadron commander in a bomber wing in the South Pacific during World War II. At his discharge, he held the rank of Major and he was awarded an air medal with 3-Oak Leaf Cluster.

In 1949, he and his wife and son moved to Texico to start a new business and a new adventure. He was an active member of the American Legion, serving as commander from 1949-61. He was also a charter member of Texico-Farwell Lions Club where as well as being a zone chairman, a district governor, and a member of the Board of Directors of the N.M. Eye Bank.

He was also instrumental in developing the Farwell Country Club Golf Course, and served on the Clovis Memorial Hospital Board for many years. He has served the Farwell Country Club's Board of Directors as both a member and as President.

Our honoree has always strived to improve the City of Texico by helping in any capacity as a volunteer, as a businessman, and as a resident. He served seven years on the Texico City Council and then served as Texico's mayor. During this time, after being one of those who contributed many long hours and much hard work, Texico had its first paved streets and had purchased and improved the water system. He was also an active member of the Texico-Farwell Volunteer Fire Dept.

Tonight's Man of the Year is an active member of the Methodist Church. And now that he is semi-retired, he enjoys hunting and spending time with his grandson, Kyle; his wife Dardanella; and son, Hal Helton.

Why Tharp was honored

Here is the speech given by Mae Stone in the presentation of the 1986 Texico Woman of the Year award to Fern Tharp:

This nice lady was born in Texico, the youngest of five children. She attended Farwell School and was on the basketball team and in FHA, chorus and office.

She served as Cub Scout mother when her son was in the organization. She served on the Career Training Committee with Texico Schools. After her children were in school, she worked at the sewing factory in Farwell and was promoted to supervisor. She was bookkeeper in her husband's business. She is an active member of the First Baptist Church of Texico. She has worked with the Children and Youth Sunday School Departments, sang in the choir and is leader of the Acteens organization.

She is employed at the Citizens Bank branch in Texico.

Her hobbies are cooking, sewing, crafts, making corsages and bike riding.

She is the daughter of Odom and Elsie Smith, of Bovina. She and her husband, Nathan (Butch) Tharp, live in Texico and they have three children.

Why, we joined "world opinion" in criticizing the Russian action. Bravo.

That's when my opinion of John Foster Dulles started on a downhill course. I see nowadays that historians are not placing his tenure in very high estimations. I agree with them.

And if "world opinion" had absolutely no effect when a brave people were crushed under the Communist boot, does anyone really believe that "world opinion" matters in the recent Libyan incident?

Please remember that, when you see how "world opinion" is treated in the aftermath of any international occurrence. And remember the dime for coffee.

Rumor of the Week: Remember the Farwell Hospital District's project last summer of proposed duplexes for senior citizens in the area south of the Farwell Convalescent Center? Watch for an announcement soon of three apartments to be built there.

The banquet speaker was State Fire Marshal Carl Standefer. He noted the importance of education, stressing such programs for fire prevention.

He noted that fire officials recognized that the percentage of deaths in residential fires in the 1970s was too high and a public information program begun, including "Learn Not to Burn" courses in school. He said such deaths have shown a large decline and the downward trend is continuing.

Some sayings he passed on were:
—Practice doesn't make perfect; perfect practice makes perfect.
—People who agree on what is funny usually agree on other issues.
—What you don't know in the fire service can kill you; knowledge is an important ingredient to survival. Standefer noted the need to think positively and talked of the planned state Fire Academy as an example of a positive achievement that was accomplished after a great deal of work.

Also at the banquet, Rev. Carl Hahn Jr. gave the invocation and benediction. Special dinner music was provided by Ed and Juanita Hardage and Truman Welch. Jim Pierce served as master of ceremonies; Bill Christian introduced special guests, and Bryan Kube introduced the speaker.

Texico approves water, sewer hookup

The Texico City Council Monday approved a water and sewer line hookup for the property at the corner of Catherine and State, north of the city swimming pool.

Realtor Charlotte Pierce appeared before the council, representing Herb Williams of Lubbock, property owner. Mrs. Pierce said some houses are planned for the property. The line will be constructed at the owner's expense.

In other business, three bids were received for a rebuilt motor for the city's pickup truck. Bryan's Engine Service bid $1,695. A-Z Service had two bids, $1,350 and $1,585.

The council accepted A-Z's lower bid. In favor were Doyal LaRue and Steve Chancy. Butch Sharp voted against it, saying he didn't like used motors. Bryan Kube abstained since he was a bidder on the project. Two bids were received for a city audit and the low bid of $2,000 from Willoughby of Melrose was accepted.

It was noted that, due to an emergency, bids have been taken beforehand on cleaning and repairing the well pump at K.K. Runnels Park. The low bid of Twin City Machine Works, at $3,905, had been accepted, and the work completed.

Other bidders were Kirkland Pump, $3,951, and Howard & Sons, $4,173. LaRue agreed to be the council's representative to the Eastern Plains Council of Governments.

Special education: an area which is misunderstood

BY JOHN A. GRIGSBY
Superintendent - Farwell
Independent School District

Special Education is an area of education misunderstood and misrepresented by many, many people. There has been a tendency, by those outside education, to consider special education participants into the category of "retarded", even though that is just one small portion of special education.

The truth is that Special Education deals with all problems which interfere with the learning process; intellectual, emotional and physical. It covers a myriad of limitations, most of which are very common and can be remedied relatively easily if caught in the early, more developmental years.

A major concern of many parents is that their child may be "labeled" if placed in special education. We do our best to restrict access to special education services, attempting to place only those students whose needs require specialized training not available in the regular classroom. No student is placed in special education unless it is obvious that it is in the best interest of the child. Also, we go to great lengths to restrict this information and to protect the privacy of the student and the family.

The process of placement is very complicated and involved. After a learning problem is recognized, permission from the parents is requested to test the student, with the goal of identifying and diagnosing the specific problem. After the testing is completed, a committee made up of the parents, the regular classroom teacher, the special education teacher, administrators and diagnostician (the person trained to give and interpret the tests) makes the decision to place or not to place a student in special education. It is a true committee decision.

In Farwell, most of our special education students are learning disabled, the least severe of the handicapping conditions. These students are "mainstreamed" into the regular classroom for most of their subjects, and given special education services only for their specific area of deficiency. For example, students with problems in math would not be in special education all day. Rather, they would be in the regular classes for all subjects and be with special education for their math only. In this way, we can place students in "the least restrictive environment." This is a high priority for our District.

Patrons should know that most people have some form of learning disability. (I have a learning disability. But, like most people, it was not discovered in my early years, as I never knew that there was a problem. I merely found ways to overcome the problem. I am fortunate because my problem does not negatively affect me. But, other adults are not as fortunate.) Because we do a better job of identifying, diagnosing and treating these problems early, most can be remedied before they become adult conditions.

Our charge is to provide the best education possible for all students, regardless of sex, race and handicapping conditions. We have a great staff of true professionals, ready to help those who need it. We can do so much more for these students now than we could just a few years ago and it is very disappointing to not be able to provide these services because the concept of special education is misunderstood. I hope this article clarifies some of these misconceptions.

Women's Club tours factory

Members of the Pleasant Hill Women's Club traveled to Littlefield April 17 to tour the Cotton Growers Denim Factory.

The ladies learned that this was the only textile company in the nation that is owned by a cooperative. The cooperative was made up of West Texas cotton growers and all the cotton used in this factory is grown locally.

The tour was very interesting and informational as the ladies observed bales of cotton transformed through numerous processes into thread, then into huge bolts of denim ready to be trucked to Levi Strauss plants for construction into jeans.

The tour guide said each bolt contained enough denim for about 700 pairs of jeans. The women also observed these bolts as they were inspected for flaws. The company prides itself on its high quality product.

Afterward, the ladies enjoyed a

Wagon train members stop at Farwell

Marge and Charlie Campbell of Evansville, Ind., joined the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon train March 25, at McCamey, Texas. They have been visiting Evelyn and Fred Curtis of Farwell.

The Campbells are Country and Western musicians. They heard about the wagon train from Mr. and Mrs. Reed of Whitesboro, Texas. The Reeds saw them performing at Death Valley.

The Campbell's said the first 12 wagons of the train are sponsored. The rest are independent wagons.

The wagon the Campbells are riding is an independent wagon, driven by G. Roy Heiferin. His wagon is a Webber International, built in 1900. He has added six new boards in the bottom and a new bonnet.

Each night the train circles for the evening. The train travels about 20 miles a day. There are 41 wagons and 80 people on horseback.

The wagon train has certified teachers along, also a veterinarian, registered nurses, security people and blacksmiths.

There are infants along and the oldest person on the train is 75 years old.

A wagon from South Dakota has had Boys Ranch members on it. The boys do their own repairs, harness their six horses, feed, water and shoe the horses and prepare meals. The boys stay for a short time, then other boys take their place so all the boys will have a turn.

The animals' shoes have tungsten put on them. Otherwise, the shoes would last for about one week. Now the shoes should last 2,000 miles.

Each wagon has one outrider with it. The outrider helps the wagons in case of emergencies.

The Campbells will be leaving the wagon train soon and going to Idaho for the Old Time National Fiddle Contest. Marge plays the gut bucket and Charlie plays the guitar and sings.

Historic Recipe of the Week

SAUCE FOR WILD FOWLS

Take a gill of claret, with as much water, some grated bread, three heads of shallots, a little whole pepper, mace, grated nutmeg and salt; let them stew over the fire, then beat it up with butter and put it under the wild fowl, which, being a little roasted, will afford gravy to mix with this sauce. Mulled cider is a seasonable drink to serve with wild fowl. Add a tablespoonful of whole cloves and sugar. Boil for three minutes.

Meeks has report published in magazine

Paul Meeks, a Farwell sophomore, had his English book report published in "Full Cry" April 1986 edition.

Meeks wrote the report for fun. He said this was a true story entitled "My First Coon Hunt in New Mexico."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Meeks of Farwell.

"Full Cry" is a monthly magazine for coon hound and tree hound enthusiasts.

Here's his story:

MY FIRST COON HUNT IN NEW MEXICO

Paul Meeks

The only place I ever coon hunted was in eastern Oklahoma, until this winter. I have a friend that said we could go down to Fort Sumner to try a dog I bought from him because there aren't any coon around here because there aren't many trees or water holes. It came time for us to go and Manford wasn't going to be able to go, so he told me about a friend of his that lived in Melrose, New Mexico. He told me to stop by his house on the way and he would go hunting with me for I wasn't familiar with that area. So when I got there I introduced myself and we fed his stock, loaded the dogs and headed for Fort Sumner. Dan found out that there were traps all down the river except down by the sewer plant.

We tried to find a friend of his that lived in Fort Sumner but had no luck. We went on down to where we were going to turn out. When we got there we let all the dogs out and headed for the river. We had four dogs with my dogs being Hanz, Sue, (both English) and Dipsie, a Black & Tan. Dan's dogs were Drum, a Walker, Raggs, a Plott, and two gyps, one a Bluetick and the other a Plott. We first heard Raggs and Drum open but Dipsie didn't run with them or open with them so we went down to the river bank and Dipsie was on the other side howling up a storm. He wasn't treed but had a hot, hot track. Then he ran up to a hole right next to where he was working and started treeing and digging up a storm.

We walked through the water there, that wasn't very deep and I climbed the steep bank to see if there were any holes on the top that the coon could get out of, but there wasn't one. So I jumped down to see what was going on. Dipsie already had the hole big enough that he could get in. Then we heard the coon fighting Dipsie. Dipsie had to turn upside down where he could fight the coon for there was a den up out of the water. There was water down the hole about five inches deep and the coon had Dipsie by the head and was about to get rid of him when I pulled him out.

Then Raggs and Drum came to where we were and started running around and howling. Raggs was trying to get in the hole and Drum didn't know what to do. Then we decided to let Raggs in and when we did he really didn't know what to do so we let the Bluetick in there and the coon jumped on her like ugly on an ape and she started backing out. Then she got on top of the hole and started digging which was great for this was her first live coon. Then Dipsie got back in and finally got a good hold on one of the coon and pulled it out. Raggs and Dipsie were fighting the sow when I saw another coon coming out of the other side. I jumped over there and grabbed the coon by the tail and I went around in circles to keep him from biting me. Then the coon got a hold of my leg and started biting my rubber boots. Dipsie ran over to that coon that I had and got him by the neck and that left Raggs with the sow. That was a mistake because Raggs didn't know how to handle a coon. The only dog that really knew anything about hunting coon was Dipsie. All the dogs were on the coon that I had in my hand, even my two pups were fighting that coon, but Dipsie was the one that did the most. The only dogs that weren't on that coon were Raggs and Drum who were trying to find the other coon. I tried to get Dipsie to go help them because the other one was a goner. I went over to see if I could see her and I saw her climb this bank of moss and tree limbs, then she disappeared. Dan put the other coon on the fence and the other dogs came over to where I was and started looking around. Dipsie treed another hole and we left her to raise young next year. The boar coon weighed 17 pounds.

I hope you enjoyed the story of my first coon hunt in New Mexico.

Scouts learn orienteering

Boy Scouts from Troop 200 of Texico-Farwell spent the weekend of April 11-13 at Palo Duro Canyon.

While there, the scouts learned about orienteering by going on a compass course. They hiked, explored a cave, pitched tents, and went on a paper trail. Some boys worked on their cooking skill awards and others earned their totin' chips which allow them to use their scout knives.

On the trip were: Clay Corn, Chris Aycock, Shawn Menning, Shawn Smith, Matt Foster, Lance Castleberry, Mark Milloy, Andy Baca, Brian Aseloff, Brian Johnson, Jeffrey Stewart, Mark Chandler, Rob Pomper, and Kevin Welch. Leaders were Charles Aycock, Steve Stephens, and Ed Corn.

The Scout Fair was held on April 19 at the Curry County Fair Grounds. Members of Troop 200 pitched a tent in the rain and demonstrated the use of a compass. They earned a second place ribbon for their effort.

Participating were: Clay Corn, Chris Aycock, Shawn Menning, Wayne Pierson, Lance Castleberry, Jeffrey Stewart, Mark Chandler, Rob Pomper and Kevin Welch. Leaders were Steve Pierson and Steve Stephens.

Second signup for conservation reserve program set

Farmers who want to bid to enter their highly erodible cropland into USDA's conservation reserve program may do so during the program's second signup period, May 5-16.

Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng said producers will be offered the option to bid for a conservation reserve program contract beginning with either the 1986 or 1987 crop year.

For contracts which are effective immediately, annual payments will be made beginning Oct. 1, 1986. Producers can not harvest any 1986 crop planted on land to be placed in the program. Any producer who has had or will have a crop mechanically removed from the designated area is ineligible for a 1986 contract.

For contracts which become effective on Oct. 1, 1986, or later, producers will be allowed to harvest their 1986 crop, and no annual payments will be made before Oct. 1, 1987.

USDA will establish maximum acceptable rental rates after the end of the signup and bid data have been evaluated.

Additional signup dates for the 1987 crop year will be announced later.

For the 1986 signup, designated cropland may be grazed until the Commodity Credit Corporation enters into a conservation reserve program contract with the producer and notifies him that livestock must be removed to comply with contract provisions.

Land that is designated for 1987 contracts may not be grazed after Oct. 1, 1986.

Agricultural stabilization and conservation state committees may reestablish pool boundaries for the second signup period.

The only acreage limitation that applies for the second signup is that a maximum of 25 percent of the cropland in a county may be entered into the program.

During the first signup period, which ran March 3-15, 838,356 acres of highly erodible cropland were entered into the conservation reserve program. Accepted bids ranged from $5 to $90 per acre, and the average bid was $41.82 per acre.

Crop corn, sorghum deficiency payments estimated at $2.6 billion

An estimated $2.6 billion in deficiency payments will be paid to eligible corn and sorghum producers for their 1985 crops, Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng said.

Of the total deficiency payments earned under the 1985 feed grain program, $1.15 billion has already been received by corn producers and $93 million by sorghum producers who requested advance payments. Deficiency payments of 23.5 cents per bushel for corn and 23 cents per bushel for sorghum were paid to those producers.

In addition, corn producers will receive about $1.25 billion and sorghum producers around $130 million, Lyng said. Most farmers should receive the remainder of their deficiency payment by the middle of April, he said.

Deficiency payment rates are calculated as the difference between an established target price and the higher of the price support loan rate, or the national average price received by farmers during the first five months of the marketing year. For corn and sorghum, the first five months of the marketing year are October through February.

National weighted averaged market prices for the first five months of the marketing year are $2.24 per bushel for corn and $1.98 per bushel for sorghum. Eligible corn producers will be paid a deficiency payment rate of 48 cents per bushel for their 1985 crop, based on the difference between the $3.03 target price and the $2.55 loan rate. The eligible sorghum producers' deficiency payment rate will be 46 cents per bushel, based on the difference between the $2.88 target price and the $2.42 loan rate.

Santa Anna captured

Texians win decisive Battle of San Jacinto

1836: FRIDAY, APRIL 22. In a decisive battle at the mouth of the San Jacinto River yesterday, the Texas Army, led by General Sam Houston, completely routed the Mexican forces of President Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna. Today Santa Anna himself was taken prisoner. It is estimated that the Mexicans lost 630 killed, including a general and six colonels, and 730 were taken prisoner, of whom 208 were wounded.

The Texians suffered eight killed and 25 wounded, including General Houston, whose right leg was shattered above the ankle. All of the Mexican equipment and stores were captured, including several hundred mules and horses, their 12-pound cannon, hundreds of muskets, sabres and pistols, plus a considerable amount of U.S. specie, including a chest containing $12,000.

Santa Anna, after burning Harrisburg last Friday, marched on to New Washington, also known as Morgan's Point, some 20 miles distant. He then moved a short way northward toward Lynch's Ferry, either to cross to Lynchburg, or to prevent the Texians from crossing. An advance party from Houston's forces reached the ferry on Wednesday morning, and found a small Mexican contingent there, with a flatboat loaded with provisions most welcome. Santa Anna encamped a mile or two south of the ferry. During Wednesday night he was reinforced by the arrival of General Martin Perfecto de Cos with a large

Wild horse, burro celebration planned

The Wild Horse Holding Facility near Muleshoe, has recently been authorized to adopt wild horses to qualified individuals, announced the United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Land Management.

To announce this new feature, Paula and Randal Carr, operators of the facility, are holding a grand opening on May 3-4.

As part of this celebration, a male, two-year old, red dunn, wild horse from Blue Wing, Nev., will be given away to the winner of a "Name the Wild Horse Contest."

All entries must meet the adoption requirements; entries meeting those requirements will then be judged on creativity and content. Each entry must include a completed application to adopt, the proposed name and 50 word essay on why that name was submitted and why the applicant wants a wild horse.

The Carrs said children may enter if their parents or guardian submit the application and accept responsibility for the animal, if that entry is selected.

Qualifications include being 18 years of age, or having the parent or guardian sign, never having been convicted of inhumane treatment of animals or for violation of the Wild Horse and Burro Act or the regulations protecting the animals.

The celebration will also include an adoption of animals from yearlings to two year olds. The adoption fee is $125 for each animal. There will be an antique swap show, an arts and crafts fair, tours of the facility, food concessions, demonstrations of horse breaking, video of a wild horse round-up, entertainment in the evening and previous adopters will show their animals, and interested groups and clubs will have displays and booths. All events will take place at the Facility, located 15 miles west of Muleshoe on FM 1760.

For more information on adoption procedures, the facility, or the adoption program, contact the BLM, PO Box 1445, Santa Fe, N.M., phone (505) 988-6231 or the Holding Facility, Rt 2 Box 1035, Muleshoe, Texas 79347.

General Houston and his army were encamped a few miles to the west, in a wooded area. Several skirmishes took place on Wednesday, and the Texians fully expected an attack yesterday morning, after General Cos' arrival. When it did not take place, General Houston laid out a battle plan, which was approved by Secretary of War Thomas J. Rusk. Rusk had been with Houston since April 4. The plan was put into effect around 3:30 yesterday afternoon. Colonel Edward Burleson's regiment was placed in the center, with the artillery, under Colonel George W. Hockley, on his right. This artillery consists of two 6-pound cannons known by the Texians as the "Twin Sisters." They were a gift from the people of Cincinnati, Ohio, together with a supply of shot. They arrived recently at Brazoria, and were transhipped to Galveston and then Harrisburg, and eventually reached the army by overland hauling. They have been in Colonel Hockley's custody since their arrival.

On the right of the artillery was the infantry, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Millard, and on the extreme right was the cavalry, commanded by Colonel Mirabeau B. Lamar, who earned that post by gallantry during the skirmishes of the previous day. Colonel Sidney Sherman commanded the left wing. A contingent of Mexican volunteers was commanded by Colonel Juan N. Seguín.

The army advanced rapidly, in good order. General Houston informed them that he had dispatched his chief scout, Colonel Erastus "Deaf" Smith, to destroy the only escape route open to the Mexicans, the bridge crossing Vince's Bayou. Then the cavalry charged, to draw off the Mexican cavalry. The Twin Sisters were pulled close to the Mexican breastworks, and blew a gaping hole. The Texians poured through from all directions, shouting a war cry first heard, reportedly, from Colonel Sherman: "Remember the Alamo! Remember La Bahia! Remember Goliad!"

The action caught the Mexicans totally unprepared. Santa Anna had apparently decided that the Texians would not dare to attack his reinforced army. Their one piece of artillery, the 12-pound cannon, was fired once, but aimed too high, and was thereafter abandoned. The battle became a man-to-man struggle. Mexican officers, many of whom had been taking a customary afternoon siesta, were completely unable to provide leadership for their men. Santa Anna, aroused from sleep, managed to escape, but was captured today.

Within 18 minutes, Mexican resistance had ended, and they were fleeing in all directions, pursued by the avenging Texians. There was no time to reload their guns, and they used them as clubs, breaking many at the breech. A large group of the enemy fled to a clump of trees not far to the rear, where they surrendered. Others fled to the river, to the swamp in their rear, and toward Vince's Bridge. Nearly all were either killed or captured.

General Santa Anna was taken this morning not far from Vince's Bridge by Sergeant James A. Sylvester and a party of four men, looking for escaped Mexicans. He first claimed to be a private soldier, and when Sergeant Sylvester pointed out the fine studs on his shirt, he said he was an aide to Santa Anna. He was brought into camp, where he demanded to see General Houston, displaying a letter addressed to "Don Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna." When other prisoners, seeing him, exclaimed "El presidente! El presidentes!" his identity became apparent.

He was conducted to General Houston, who was under an oak tree resting his wounded leg. Santa Anna identified himself, and said, "I put myself at the disposition of the brave General Houston. I wish to be treated as a general should be when a prisoner of war." This was translated for General Houston. Another prisoner, Santa Anna's private secretary Martinez Caro, was brought in, and he corroborated his chief's identity.

Santa Anna then proposed to enter into negotiations for his release, but General Houston said that this was a matter for the civil government. Santa Anna replied that he abhorred civilians and would rather treat with the General of the Army, continuing: "General, you can afford to be generous; you were born to no common destiny—and you have conquered the Napoleon of the West."

General Houston, supported by Secretary of War Rusk, insisted that the matter was up to the civil government. He then denounced Santa Anna for his actions at the Alamo and at Goliad. Otherwise he treated him with courtesy. He offered him food, and agreed to provide him with his tents and baggage, which the Texians had captured, and his staff, who were now prisoners.

He demanded that Santa Anna immediately order all Mexican troops to fall back to Monterrey. Santa Anna objected to Monterrey as too distant, and they eventually agreed on San Antonio de Bexar. Writing materials were furnished Santa Anna, and he wrote a dispatch to his second in command, General Vincente Filisola, a portion of which follows:

"Excellent Sir: Having yesterday evening, with the small division under my immediate command, had an encounter with the enemy, which, notwithstanding I had previously taken all possible precautions, proved unfortunate, I am, in consequence, a prisoner in the hands of the enemy. Under these circumstances, your excellency will order General Gaona with his division to counter-march to Bexar, and wait for orders. Your excellency will also, with the division under your immediate command, march to the same place. The division under command of General Urrea will retire to Guadalupe Victoria. I have agreed with General Houston for an armistice, until matters can be so regulated that the war shall cease forever."

Secretary of War Rusk today sent a lengthy report to President David G. Burnet giving the details of the battle. General Houston has not yet made out his report. Rusk stated that "Major General Houston acted with great gallantry, encouraging his men to the attack, and heroically charged in front of the infantry, within a few yards of the enemy, receiving at the same time a wound in the leg." He went on to say: "Our army consisted of 750 effective men. This brave band achieved a victory as glorious as any in the records of history, and the happy consequences will be felt in Texas by succeeding generations."

1837: SATURDAY, APRIL 22. The first anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto was celebrated yesterday in Houston City by some 300 or 400 people, including President Sam Houston. The town has been designated as the Republic's new capital, and the First Congress' second session is scheduled to convene there May 1.

The ceremony was delayed slightly because the Texas flag, a large gold star on a blue field, could not be hoisted because of a slipped rope. Eventually a sailor managed to climb the very high, thin "Liberty Pole," and despite the swaying, was able to get the rope into its track, to the cheers of these below.

The main address started at exactly 3:30, the very hour the battle was begun. A participant reports: "During the remarks, which continued for an hour, the cheeks of the President colored for a moment as the speaker dropped an expression which seemed to imply a doubt as to what portion of the honor of the day he was entitled to. It may not be known to the world that the soldiers and officers are unwilling to divide with their general the laurels of San Jacinto."

This observer continues: "Night came and with it the merry dancers; the President, dressed in a rich silk velvet suit, moved among the throng with a gallantry and grace which have always distinguished him when he chose to assume them. It ought to be added to his other merits on the occasion that, during the dance, he remained perfectly sober."

THANK YOU

I sincerely appreciate the votes given me in the April 5 election. I will work hard to justify your support. The cooperation I have received from city officials and employes has been very gratifying. I am excited about the forward direction Farwell is taking. I encourage you to become involved in the projects that are before us.

Farwell Convalescent Center Chit Chat

By Lynne Gann
Activity Director

We had our first adventure working with modeling clay last week. The testing of our imagination was startling to say the least!

To close ones eyes and think of something to create out of a hunk of clay can be an experience different to each of us. Fairy Stovall saw piggys, as she called them. Clyde Newell called up possums - Opossums to some. Ora Roberts, turtles, Winnie Berry, a cow that turned into a burro. Joyce Heath, an ashtray. I think the prize would have gone to Helen Meissner for her cow. A very real looking cow!

We had clay all over our hands, under our nails, on the tables, but, oh, how we enjoyed it!

Ceramics class turned into a party with talent popping up everywhere. We can hardly wait to see the designs on the vases we made. We have to wait until they have been fired and the waiting is the hardest part. Hurry Wednesday!

We would like to thank Brother Pat Riley for conducting the Memorial Services for Madge Clements and Ina Beller Monday morning. They were dear friends and we shall miss them.

Highway to be rebuilt

Construction began April 17 on rebuilding a 21.4 mile section of Highway 86 from the Santa Fe Railroad southwest of Bovina east to the Castro County Line, according to the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The work will be the first major reconstruction on the roadway since it was completed in 1947, and will cost the state $4.7 million.

"We would like to have rebuilt this road sooner, but we just haven't had the funds," said William M. Pope, highway district engineer in Lubbock. "Thanks to increases in motor vehicle fuel taxes and in vehicle registration, we now have the funds to upgrade this section of highway."

During construction the current 22 foot driving surface of S.H. 86 will be widened to 24 feet, and eight foot paved shoulders will be added on each side. Another safety measure will be to widen the bridge over Catfish Draw southeast of Bovina from 24 feet to 40 feet.

The construction, which is expected to be completed by the fall of 1987, will be done by Amarillo Road Co. of Amarillo.

Hadley running

John R. Hadley of Texico is seeking the Republican nomination for the Curry County Commission's District 1 post.

Hadley, who has served the past several years as Texico mayor and who was re-elected to that post this spring, said he has received an opinion from New Mexico that he could serve in both posts if elected commissioner.

The GOP primary is June 3. Currently, Hadley is the only candidate for the post in the Republican primary.

GREAT PERFORMERS

Golden Super 10-30-5. Think of it as a head-start program for high yields.

It takes a lot of money in the bank to afford puny yields.

Because the smaller your yield, the more each bushel costs you to produce. And the more likely you are to lose money.

That's why you need to invest in a quality corn starter like Golden Super 10-30-5.

Golden Super costs a couple dollars more per acre than cheap bulk blends, but Grace field tests over a number of years show an average yield increase of eight bushels over a comparable blend.

And that's enough to make Golden Super cheaper to use than even the cheap stuff.

Eight members of the Farwell freshman class of U.S. history dressed in period costumes to help celebrate the Texas Sesquicentennial. They are, from left, Shawn Menning, Jeffrey Stewart, Terri Hillock, Hollie Salmone, Brenda Pierson, Kelly Kelm and Dustin Hardage in back.

Combest launches competition

Congressman Larry Combest has announced the Congressional Arts Award Competition for high school students who live in the 19th Congressional District.

The grand prize winning entry will be displayed - along with high school entries from across the Nation - in a corridor of the U.S. capitol dedicated to the artistic talents of today's youth.

Three other entries will be selected for display in Congressman Combest's offices in Washington, Lubbock and Odessa.

The contest is part of "An Artistic Discovery," an annual exhibition whereby members of the U.S. House of Representatives recognize the creative talents of young Americans, said Combest. Between now and May 1, 1986, members of Congress will conduct local competitions for high school students in order to select the artworks to be displayed in the national exhibition.

The competition, to be conducted at no expense to the federal government, is open to any high school student in the 19th District. Artwork must be two-dimensional and no larger than 30 inches by 30 inches (unframed). Categories include paintings, drawings or pastels, collages, and prints.

This is the second year Combest has sponsored the Congressional Arts Award Competition. Last year, Robbie Timms of Lubbock was awarded the winning entry and his oil painting is currently on display in the U.S. Capitol.

Brewer Class issues final checks

The Brewer Class Distribution Project began issuing 299,177 checks totaling $42,669,709.35 representing the final payment of settlement funds to Class members.

The settlement funds were received as a result of an anti-trust price fixing lawsuit brought against five companies who produced natural gas in the San Juan basin of New Mexico on behalf of residential consumers of Gas Company of New Mexico. The suit was initiated by seven individuals in July, 1979. The plaintiffs were represented by Gene Gallegos and Arturo Jaramillo of the Santa Fe firm of Jones, Gallegos, Snead & Wertheim.

Settlements paid from all defendants totalled $75.5 million. The total amount being paid now, combined with what was paid in earlier distributions, means that the gas consumers will have received over $72 million of those funds. The remainder, along with interest that was earned, was used to pay Court expenses, attorney fees and the expense of the Distribution Project.

The final distribution will take approximately two weeks with the Distribution Office printing and mailing check to approximately 300,000 Class members on an around-the-clock basis.

Police to present clinic

The Clovis Police Department in cooperation with Eastern New Mexico University of Clovis, will present a Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Clinic.

This clinic will be held in two parts, April 25, 5 to 9 p.m. MST and April 26, from 1 to 3 p.m. MST. The program will be presented at ENMU Clovis Campus in the Town Hall.

This program is designed to offer the community of Clovis and the surrounding area, a better understanding of the problems of sexual assault and the resources available to the community.

On to regionals

Members of the Farwell High golf team head for the UIL Regionals April 28-29 at South Plains College, Levelland. They are, from left,
