Area farmers face tough decisions

by Teresa J. Mesman

We all know the unpredictability of Mother Nature, but lately she's been down right stingy and stubborn with the snow and rain that usually comes our way during this part of the season. Sadly, moisture is something that hasn't been part of the weather forecasts for many a week and the drought situation that the region is in is putting many a farmer in a world of hurt.

Reports from the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District stated that this region needs 2 to 10 inches of water to bring the top 5 foot zone soil profile to field capacity. This report was made over three weeks ago and the meter is rising on the amount of water needed.

The majority of farmland in this area is irrigated or under center pivot sprinklers, so the immediate moisture problems are not as critical as they are to dryland farms. However, the money that it is taking to irrigate and run the sprinklers is making the crop profit forecast pretty dismal.

According to an article in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on March 18, farmers have seen only about a quarter-inch of rain around the Lubbock area this year. Parmer, Bailey and Curry County totals are less than this.

Curt Miller, of the Farm Services Agency office in Farwell, is seeing more and more concern over the effects of the drought and the results of the new farm bill that is currently under negotiation in Washington D.C.

"The outcome of the farm bill and the lack of moisture are putting a lot of pressure on farmers right now. They're needing to know how much of their land they can plant and if it will even be profitable enough to plant," Miller said.

Soil scientist Gerald Crenwelge said farmers "are going to have to make some tough decisions" if the drought continues.

Planting season is fast approaching and farmers without irrigation may have to consider planting alternative crops, such as grain sorghum. This crop requires less moisture than cotton, but it also makes less money according to Crenwelge.

The irrigated farmlands in the area are pumping more and more water and putting down what fertilizers they can to prepare the land for planting. Sugar beets began being planted on March 19 in the region and the water it has taken to get the soil prepared for planting has been tremendous.

Tim Cooper, of the Wilbur-Ellis Co. in Farwell feels for the dryland farmers in the area. "Normally at this time of the year, we're busy spraying the dryland wheat fields for insects, but because of the drought conditions, the wheat crops are all heat stressed," he said.

Todd Christian, a farmer in the Oklahoma Lane area, is seeing the cost of farming irrigated farmland go up every year. "We're watching our water table go down and the cost of operation going up, up, up because we're having to pump out so much more water to replace the moisture in the soil. Right now, we're looking at $40 an acre to get the ground wet before we even plant a seed," he said.

The water situation is becoming more and more critical because of the amounts being pumped out onto the farmlands, without any great prospects of replacement. This situation is forcing many area farmers to rethink their crop strategies. Rather than plant moisture intense crops, they must start to think about crops that require little moisture.

Farwell School Board to have race

There's only one local race this spring -- for Farwell School Board.

Candidates for Lazbuddie School Board, Farwell City Council and Farwell Hospital District Board have no opponents.

The filing deadline was March 20.

Here are the results:
City of Farwell

Three city council posts are on the ballot this year. Incumbents are Don Geries, Martin Kube and Ysleta Kirtrell, all of whom filed for re-election.

Farwell School Board
Two Farwell School Board posts are on the ballot.

Filing were Paul Fulcher plus incumbents David Norton and Charles Christian.

Lazbuddie School Board
The Lazbuddie School Board has two positions open.

Incumbents Steve Foster and Robert Gallman signed up for re-election without opposition.

Farwell Hospital District
Five posts on the Farwell Hospital District board of directors are on the ballot. There are five candidates so all will be elected.

Incumbents Tom Nichols, Peggy Sudderth and Bert Williams signed up along with newcomers Beth Herington and Becky Landrum.

Incumbent Troy Christian did not seek re-election.

The fifth seat has been open since the resignation of Rick Sullivan last year.

Rev. Herington is the minister at Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church. Mrs. Landrum is the former bookkeeper at the Farwell Convalescent Center.

Sub-standard housing discussed

The Farwell City Council on Tuesday continued its discussion of sub-standard buildings.

Chief topic was the old gas station at the corner of Fourth Street and Avenue A.

Possible condemnation proceedings may be taken.

Also, city clerk Cynthia Thigpen was instructed to check with state officials on dealing with the underground tanks at the location.

The council also discussed a house on Avenue G, owned by Teresa Weeks, that is scheduled to be burned. Mrs. Weeks did not attend the meeting but will be contacted.

In other business, the council:
-- Heard a request from Donald Jones about possibly using city property (the former McDorman Laundry property in the 100 block of Avenue) for a portable 24'x36' greenhouse.
-- Jones plans to sell plants April, May and June.
-- Jones said he's looking at several sites along Avenue A but wanted to check with the city, also.
-- After the city's liability was called into question on the McDorman site, Jones was encouraged to look at other sites. Jones said he will.
-- A representative of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission said map books will be produced featuring Parmer County's new numbering system. He asked that the city send an updated map of city streets to be included. This will be done.

Later this year, county east-west roads will be lettered, and north-south roads will be numbered.
-- Discussed the proposed Communicare program, whereby calls are made each day to elderly folks to make sure they are all right.
At the February meeting, Smokey Gast had proposed this. So Gast, Mrs. Thigpen and police chief Roy McGaa each took a list of some elderly folks to call and ask if they thought they would use

Times are a'changing

Parmer County Clerk Bonnie Warren tells me that last week's primary election was the first time that more voters had cast their ballots on the Republican side than on the Democrat side.

Times sure are a'changing. Of course, that doesn't necessarily mean that folks are automatically switching their party allegiance from Democrat to Republican.

For example, more folks may have wanted to vote in the Republican presidential primary where there was a race between Dole, Buchanan and Forbes.

On the Democrat side, it was President Clinton and a bunch of unknowns. No race there.

At the county level, there was one race -- on the Democrat side for Farwell area county commissioner. That probably drew some folks to vote Democrat. But that race was for only one of the four county commissioner posts -- meaning there were no county races elsewhere in Parmer County.

What the election results showed me is that Parmer County is becoming a place for a two-party system. Remember, it was only two years ago that the first GOP candidate since the 1970s won a countywide office (Sandra Warren, District Court clerk).

I may have looked at GOP candidates a few years ago as decided underdogs, but that obviously is no longer the case.

And with GOP candidates this year for county tax collector and two county commissioner posts (Friona and Farwell areas), I wouldn't bet against another Republican or two or three elected in November.

Why the change? It seems to me that folks around here have been conservative for quite awhile but voted the Democrat ticket for various reasons that literally can go back to the Civil War.

But I don't see a lot of these conservatives folks supporting President Bill Clinton, thus making it easier for them to vote for some folks on the other side of the ballot.

It will be very interesting to see the voting totals in the general election this fall to find out what gains the Republicans have really made in our area.

I'm sure glad I'm not a politician trying to forecast the next vote here. I'd be in a real quandary right now.

A sports note:
It was neat to see both Texas Tech basketball teams advance in the NCAA Big Dance.

And it was especially sweet to see the boys knock off perpetual Big Guy North Carolina. I bet that did more to help the Red Raider recruiting than anything else in their history.

Any detractors who may have pooh-poohed the Red Raiders for playing a soft schedule while running up a 30-1 record should see that it is well deserved.

There's no question that the final Southwest Conference season saw some weak

Neither Gast or McGaa were at Tuesday's meeting. Mrs. Thigpen reported that, of the folks she called, they thought it would be a good thing but noted they already have relatives checking on them. Mrs. Thigpen said Gast also received a similar response.

A question then arose over who would run such a program.

Rip's Ladies Wear has style show

There was a special touch of elegance Sunday when Rip's Ladies Wear, of Texico, presented their annual Spring Style Show at the Clovis Holiday Inn.

Guests enjoyed a pleasant afternoon tea before the show began. The linen topped tables were decorated with cheerful spring decorations to set the mood.

Bright colors, bold designs and striking variety marked the fashion selections. "Black is out and rust is in," said commentator Brenda Becknell, of Lubbock.

Rust, which is often featured in the fall, is a surprise color of the spring season. It was paired frequently with cream and beige. A variety of shades of blue -- aqua, turquoise, royal, navy and purple, were also featured.

Local models donned long and short skirts, dresses, full flowing shorts, and pants in quick succession, keeping the pace brisk. Some outfits were topped by long jackets and some with short ones. Knit vests and sweaters topped some spring outfits. Others had no jackets at all. Fabrics ranged from denim to silk, from rayon to cotton.

Helping put on the event were: Roy and Tommie Snodgrass, Marge Watkins, Doris Herrington, Susan Degroot, Misty Barnes, Nancy Barnes, Linda Ware, Shelly Bell, Darlene Wilhite, Ruby Hester, Twila Lusk, Lauren Newton, Brenda Becknell, Judy Steinbock, Hayley Christian, Betty Willoughby, Pat Hubby, Rebecca Paez, Vicky Milloy and Karen Snodgrass.

Farwell firefighters honored

Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church honored the Farwell Volunteer Fire Department this week to show their appreciation for the many hours of service they give to the community.

This is part of a continuing series of "thank you's" the church is giving local volunteers.

Those honored were: Paul Adams, Bruce Billingsley,

Mike Camp, Chase Chisman, Jimmy Franse, Paul Fulcher, Henry Garcia, Joe Haseloff, Lee Hutchins, LeRoy Jupe, Randy Kelley, R.T. Langston, Alvin Lopez, Vernon Thigpen, Joel White.

Robert White, Laurie Haseloff, Mario Lara, John Crozier III, Lisa Fickling, Aloha Fulcher and Richard Rodrigues.

Fire Calls

Texico firemen have been extremely busy lately: On March 7, firemen were called to help an elderly fall victim at 612 Catherine. No transport was made. On March 9, firemen were called near the airport where a CRP field was on fire. Clovis firemen assisted. On March 10, the ambulance was called three times to 605 S. Rose. No transports were made. On March 11, firemen went to a burr fire at the Honich Brothers Feed Yard (the former Texico Feed Yard) north of town. Three trips were made that day. On March 14, an accident involving two vehicles occurred at Leftwich and Turner streets. A police car driven by Tim Kelly was involved. One person was transported to Clovis hospital for precautionary reasons, said firemen. On March 14, a fire was reported in a pressure tank on a farm one mile west of town. On March 16, at 621 Turner St., an ill elderly man was taken to Clovis hospital.

Payment plans changed for cotton growers

A major change involving new payment options was approved for High Plains cotton producers at the March 14 meeting of the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation meeting in Abilene, according to a report from Plains Cotton Growers.

The TBWEF board okayed a new collection policy. Wayne Huffaker, chairman of the Plains Cotton Growers Boll Weevil steering committee, reported that the new policy provides a number of payment options ranging from early payment discounts to the development of a delayed payment plan based on the billing practices of ag businesses statewide.

He said the new collection policy will help alleviate the apprehension of producers who feel they are simply unable to pay their assessment on the specified due date.

What is known so far, according to the PCG, are:

-- Early payment: Cotton producers across the state will be given an incentive to pay boll weevil assessments early through the initiation of discounts for accounts settled prior to the scheduled due date in each area. The High Plains currently has an assessment due date of July 15.

Producers opting to pay their 1996 assessments 30 days before to the scheduled due date will qualify for a 1 percent discount. Producers who pay 45 days before the July 15 due date will receive a 2 percent discount on their assessment.

-- Delayed payment: Some producers may want to ask for a delayed collection schedule for their 1996 assessment. Assessments for which a Payment Extension Agreement has been properly executed will not be assessed any penalties but will be subject to a monthly finance charge of 1 1/2 percent on the unpaid balance. A 10 percent down payment will be required at the time an agreement is executed.

-- Failed acreage: Producers who suffer crop losses during the season will also be allowed to request relief from the TBWEF in 1996. Producers who have failed acreage may furnish the TBWEF with a signed FSA Form 574 and proof of crop destruction to apply for a refund, partial refund or credit for paid 1996 assessments.

Back To The Outback

Time to head for the outback. Yes, it's back to the back yard. Outback season is open season for propane gas grilling. Always free of the mess and harmful emissions associated with charcoal grilling. While you're enjoying the back yard, consider the distinctive flair and added security of a propane gas light, either wall-mounted or free-standing. Enjoy the back yard even more with a propane gas heated pool or spa. Since it's heated with economical propane, you could stay out back even longer this year. And you could be back out sooner next year.

• With gas grills, there is no mess to clean up, and no need to wait hours for the grill to cool down. All you need to do is turn the grill off and it is ready until the next time.

Kilgore attends workshop on 'Managed Care'

Ron Kilgore, administrator of the Farwell Convalescent Center attended a workshop on the topic of "Managed Care" in Dallas recently.

This topic is becoming a very big issue in all aspects of the health care field. The health care industry and patients are paying exorbitant costs and Medicare and Medicaid are being heavily used. Because of these factors, health care services must become more efficient and cost effective.

This is causing an almost forced move to managed care, where the focus is on prevention rather than treatment after the fact.

The Farwell Convalescent Center will play a vital role to medical patients in this area because they will be able to care for "sicker" patients. These patients will be able to spend their recovery time in facilities such as the Convalescent Center instead of lengthy and costly hospital stays.

The workshop was put on for non-profit facilities by the Texas Association of Homes and Services for the Aging.

Lazbuddie cheerleaders host 'Hoops Challenge USA'

Lazbuddie cheerleaders are hosting "Hoops Challenge USA," the original nationwide basketball skill shooting competition.

Boys and girls, ages 8 through 14 and under, are eligible to compete in this first round of competition. Those who qualify will advance to a regional semi-final, a regional final and ultimately a state championship contest.

The event highlights shooting skills from various spots on the court. Each youth competes against the shooting grid rather than head-to-head against other competitors.

The contest starts at 9:30 a.m. on March 30 with individual competition in both boys and girls divisions in age categories under 10, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Each competitor will receive a limited edition "Hoop Challenge" t-shirt. The entry fee is $10.

For more information and to sign up, contact Carolyn Scott at 965-2157 (work) or 965-2446 (home).
