Nothing could have pleased the staff of The Tribune more than to be awarded first place in the nation in service to agriculture, as this newspaper was by the National Editorial Association in Louisville last week.

In our mind, this is one of the highest achievements a small newspaper can win in an area such as ours, where agriculture is the predominant industry. Our thanks to Joe Jones, our county agent, who has been so helpful with this type news coverage.

For Joe's thoughtfulness in reminding us of timely farm stories, and for his cooperative spirit whenever we go to him for assistance, we are indebted.

Several of the editors from all over the nation whom we talked with in Louisville last week told us that we are fortunate to have an agent so interested in seeing the local newspaper do a thorough job of farm coverage.

Our trip to Kentucky and back rolled up about 2700 miles. We aren't sure of the actual distance for the reason that our speedometer wore out on the way back. It was, however, about 1350 miles to Louisville, and we presume about the same distance back.

In the area through which we traveled, there are no signs of the much-publicized drought. All parts of the country seem to be having general rains this spring.

Even the Panhandle of Texas and the ranges of southeastern Oklahoma have put on a good cover of grass, and things look greener than we believe we have ever seen them.

We are sold on the idea of turnpikes, even though they cost the motorist who wants to drive on them. After a sample of the Turner pike between Oklahoma City and Tulsa, we are fans of the toll-road system.

It wasn't so much the quality of the pavement itself—because we have seen smoother four-lane projects lots of times—as it was the safety which is a built-in feature of a turnpike.

No cars are permitted to enter the pike except through the toll gates at either end, which means that the hazard of swooping down from a hill and up behind a farm pickup entering from a side road has been eliminated. The maximum speed on this pike was 70 miles per hour, although it seemed to us that most people paid no attention to the ceiling. More important, the minimum is 40, and the slow pokes which are hazards on modern highways are non-existent.

Our farmers will be interested in knowing that the southeastern part of the United States is a rain-blessed area. During the six days we spent traveling through the country, it either had rained, was raining, or was just fixing to rain. We never once clearly saw the sun.

The 40 to 50 inches of rain takes its toll on the land, however. The rolling hills fall easy prey to severe erosion when cleared and put into cultivation.

Gullies were evident in three out of four fields we passed through. Apparently, however, much of the old cotton land is being put back into grass, and we think it's a good thing.

The alfalfa and pasture that country can produce with just normal rainfall is amazing. The prettiest farms are those which have beef or dairy cattle on these lush pastures.

Most of the land we saw looks extremely unproductive. The soil ranged in color from a sickly yellow to a pale pink. It surely didn't look very healthy. We suppose that this condition is a result of both heavy and long-time cropping, plus the leaching action which so much rain would produce.

Surprisingly enough, the corn and other field crops aren't much farther along than ours here on the Plains. A lot of the land still is in the bedding stage and hasn't been planted. Their cotton is mostly in the three-four leaf stages.

For our Plains farmers, who so often wish they could trade a few of our duststorms for some of that eastern weather, a trip through the humid areas of southern Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee would cure some of this longing.

The Plains, with their flat, fertile fields so suited to mechanical operations, are a far cry from the tiny farms of the Southeast, where we saw about as many horse-and-plow scenes as we did those which depict modern agriculture.

At the convention, we heard Charles Schumann, president of the national Farm Bureau, say that about 150,000 farmers are down to half-acre tobacco allotments. We saw lots of them.

In short, we're still not ready to trade places with just any old Kentucky colonel.

TOP AWARDS—Displaying the national awards won by The Tribune last week are Mrs. W. H. Graham, left, owner; W. H. Graham Jr., center, publisher; and Jeanne Graham, Tribune columnist. The large plaque is for first place in the nation in service to agriculture and the smaller one signifies second place in typography. The picture was taken shortly after the award presentation at the Crystal Ballroom of the Brown Hotel in Louisville, Kentucky, during the 71st annual convention of the National Editorial Association.

30 County Men At Weed Meeting

About 30 Parmer County men and boys met in the Bovina Legion hall last Thursday night. They were members of, and workers with, the Farm Bureau weed committee. Instructions for mapping bindweed plots and reporting them to the proper places were discussed and handed to the workers.

Bruce Parr, chairman, in charge of the meeting, explained plans for cutting the county map into sections for each team to carry in making its survey. He also had some bindweed plants to help impress the appearance of the weed upon the minds of the workers. County Agent Joe Jones discussed recommended amounts of sodium chlorate and method of applying it to infested areas. Five pounds

Early Season Work Urged to Control Cotton Plant Insects

Parmer County farmers, who this year more than ever before are interested in obtaining the maximum yield from their reduced cotton allotments, are being urged to investigate the advantages of early season insect control.

The gross yield from cotton was increased over $50 per acre in tests at the Lubbock Experiment Station last year. However, this figure is subject to wide variation, depending on insect conditions. Some years it might go higher—some years lower.

At any rate, many farmers are beginning to look on early season control programs as "insurance" that their young plants will set fruit properly, thus giving all the cotton a chance to mature before frost.

Early season control work differs in many respects from conventional poisoning procedures. First, the farmer who embarks on an early season control program in the proper manner does away with examining his field to determine when to spray.

Instead, he plots his work according to the calendar, and sprays at 7-day intervals with the recommended insecticides and rates.

This type of control is aimed primarily at the control of thrips and fleahoppers, both of which can result in cotton getting off to a late start because they destroy the per square rod was the minimum recommended volume, and the SCD has acquired three five-foot spreaders to be rented to farmers for application of chemicals. It had not been determined where the spreaders would be kept available from at the time of the meeting.

James Whitfield, ASC office manager, was also present and explained.

B. N. Graham From Hospital

B. N. Graham was reported to be feeling well enough Wednesday to be able to sit up most of the time. Graham was taken to Clovis Memorial Hospital on Thursday after suffering a heart attack.

He was released from the hospital Sunday, but he still must rest most of the time. It is not known when Graham will be able to return to his business office.

Farmers Co-op Group To Elect Directors

The Farmer's Co-op Elevator of Muleshoe will hold a farmers and stockholders meeting at the county courtroom in Muleshoe tomorrow (Friday) night at 8:30 for the purpose of electing directors and approving by-laws.

All interested parties in this area are urged to attend.

Youth Program in High Gear

The summer youth program began in earnest last week with about 80 youngsters turning out for swimming at Muleshoe, 30 attending the movie matinees in Clovis, and 40 boys vying for berths on the 15-player Little League squad to be formed, says Calvin Murray, co-director of the program.

The Pony League (ages 13 and 14) could use more players, Murray says. However, there are enough to open the season against Bovina today (Thursday) at the Farwell field. Game time is 5 p. m.

The two Little League teams are scheduled to open the season play tomorrow when they meet the Lazbuddie teams in a double-header at the Farwell field. The first game will start at 3:30 p. m. Bovina and Lazbuddie have each

Tribune Wins Top National Award

Bringing to Texico-Farwell and Parmer County the highest honors for journalistic achievement ever bestowed on a newspaper of the area, The State Line Tribune last week was awarded first place in the nation for service to agriculture.

The award was made at the 71st convention of the National Editorial Association in Louisville, Kentucky, and was attended by W. H. Graham Jr., publisher, Mrs. W. H. Graham, owner; and Jeanne Graham, Tribune columnist.

Participating in the NEA contest this year were 1,728 community newspapers from 5 states and Hawaii. In the case of the service to agriculture contest, they were divided into two classifications: those above 2,000 circulation, and those under 2,000. The later group, in which The Tribune competed, was by far the larger of the two.

Presenting the awards at a banquet Thursday evening were John Wolf and Leon Barnes of the NEA contest committee. In addition to a first place plaque, they handed The Tribune a second place plaque for typography or appearance.

A third award, an honorable mention for news writing, also went to The Tribune in the nation-wide contests.

"Naturally, we are all very pleased to have received such high recognition," said Graham Monday after his return home, "but this award also makes us even more aware of the splendid cooperation we receive from others who make such achievement possible."

He added, "There is no better opportunity than this to give our deepest thanks to our county and home demonstration agents, farm organizations, SCS and SCD officials, ASC office, and many others who lend their cooperation from week to week to help us round out our rural coverage. We are deeply indebted to all of these persons."

In preparing The Tribune's entry for the 1955 contests, the staff discovered that out of the 52 papers published during the year, not a single one failed to carry at least one important farm-related story on its front page.

In addition, other stories were scattered throughout the paper, and over one-half of the editorial space was devoted to agricultural topics. Coupled with the news and editorials, The Tribune ran over 100 pictures during the year which played up this type coverage.

"It is well that this award was made just this past week," Graham said. "Starting next week, we will inaugurate the most enterprising farm-coverage effort we have ever attempted. We will begin a special farm and home department built around the interests of rural residents of The High Plains, and especially those in the Texico-Farwell, Parmer County area."

"I honestly believe that, given time to grow, this supplement to The Tribune will become the most sought-after feature of the paper."

Lelay to Build Ten More Homes

Construction of 10 more homes in the Hillcrest addition of Farwell is scheduled to get underway the latter part of this month, announces Doug Ragsdale, construction manager for Lelay Construction Company of Dallas, and also in charge of sales.

All that is holding up the building at the present time is waiting on an inspector, Ragsdale says. He pointed out that as each step is completed on the houses, they have to be inspected. It will be between the 20th and 25th of this month before an inspector can be here. Work on the foundations will be started two or three days before the inspector is scheduled to arrive.

Several homes have already been sold, says Ragsdale, and as we continue to sell them two or three homes will always be built ahead of those already sold.

The houses are being built from five different floor plans, each having approximately 1000 square feet of floor space. The homes may be purchased on both the VA and FHA loans.

All interested persons are invited to visit one of the two show homes already built at the new addition, concludes Ragsdale.

Lions Club Has Regular Meeting

The Texico-Farwell Lions Club met in regular session Monday night at the City Cafe in Farwell.

Pat Patrick, president, presided over the routine business meeting.

Patrick pointed out that new officers would be installed at the next meeting, and urged all members to attend.

Following the meeting musical entertainment was provided by Charles Phillips and Jimmy Schell.

Firemen Return From Las Vegas Convention

Four Texico-Farwell firemen returned Wednesday from Las Vegas, N. M., where they have been attending a three-day convention of the New Mexico firemen. It was the largest state convention ever conducted, with 314 registering, says Otis Huggins, local representative.

Huggins considered the convention very worthwhile and said that each session involved highly technical training.

Others making the trip from here were Stanton Thigpen, fire chief; Smokey Gast, and John Adams.

Mrs. L. B. Penick Undergoes Surgery

Mrs. L. B. Penick underwent surgery at a hospital in Canyon on Saturday morning. Mrs. Penick was reported to be doing well Monday morning and was to be released from the hospital sometime this week. She planned to recuperate at the home of her husband's parents in Canyon for several days.

Mrs. Penick is the home economics teacher at Farwell High School.

Tuesday Rain Pushes Total to Three Inches

The rain that fell here Tuesday night pushed the total rainfall for the Texico-Farwell area to almost three inches. The rain was spotted and 2 of an inch was all that was recorded here in town. However, .35 was recorded south of town and 1 inch several miles to the north.

This, along with a couple of showers the latter part of last week, and the already more than 2½ inches recorded prior that time, account for the 3-inch total for the past three weeks.

Tuesday night, one inch was reported in Bovina and 4 in Friona. All the rains for the past several weeks have been spotted and total rainfall for the county varies from one to five inches.

Mrs. W. W. Nichols and her sister, Miss Nell Hanlon, both of Clovis, were Monday guests in the home of Mrs. A. D. Smith.

Revised schedule for the weekly events is as follows:

MONDAY—9-11 a. m., sports in Texico and Farwell gyms; 3-4:30 p. m., Little League practice; 4:30-6 p. m., Pony League practice.

TUESDAY—9:00-9:30, a. m., sports in gyms; 9:30-12:30, swimming at Muleshoe; afternoon Little League games. Game times: 3:30 for doubleheaders and 5:00 for single games.

WEDNESDAY—9:00-10:00 a. m., sports in gyms; 10:00-12:30, movie matinee in Clovis; 3-4:30 p. m., Little League practice; 4:30-6 p. m., Pony League practice.

THURSDAY—9:00-9:30 a. m., sports in gyms; 9:30-12:30, swimming at Muleshoe; after noon, Pony League games starting at 5 p. m.

FRIDAY—9:00-11:00, sports in gyms; afternoon Little League games.

Note: If baseball teams have an open date, practice for all teams will be as on Monday and Wednesday.

First Wheat Arrives In Farwell Friday

The first load of 1956 wheat in the Texico-Farwell area was brought into the Lone Star Elevator, on the state line, Friday afternoon at 4:30, according to Bob Brooks, elevator manager.

Joe Magness, who farms south of Farwell, brought in the load. Of the Wichita variety, the wheat weighed 60.6 pounds per bushel and the moisture content was 13.25 percent, Brooks says. The irrigated wheat was making around 30 bushels per acre. Magness sold his first load for $1.85 per bushel and he received a $25 premium for its being the first received at Lone Star.

Magness also brought in the second load. It was delivered to Worley Grain Company in Farwell Saturday morning. This load had a moisture content of 14 percent and weighed 60 pounds per bushel, says Herbert Potts, elevator manager.

At Sherley-Anderson-Pitman elevator in Farwell, Billy Fields of the West Camp community delivered the first load, says Johnie Williams, manager. It weighed 62 pounds per bushel and moisture content was 13 percent. Fields received a $25 premium for its being the first load at Sherley-Anderson-Pitman.

At Roberts Seed Company in Texico, the first load arrived late Monday afternoon. The Comanche wheat was grown by D. J. Brown, who farms south of Texico, says Pat Patrick of Roberts Seed. It was good wheat according to Patrick, and weighed 60 pounds per bushel. Moisture content was 13 percent.

Wheat harvest is a little earlier this year than last, and the local elevator managers expected it to get started good this weekend or the first of next week.

FIRST WHEAT—Joe Magness, left, brought in the first load of 1956 wheat to Texico-Farwell last Friday. It was delivered to Lone Star Elevator, and looking at the wheat with Magness is Bob Brooks, elevator manager.

THE TRIBUNE'S EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Laws Are Made— But We Must Enforce Them

In a recent meeting of the Texico City Commission, a new ordinance was passed pertaining to speed limits in the residential area and school zone of the city. Thirty miles per hour was decided on for the residential district and 15 mph for the school zone.

Also, it was noted that the State of New Mexico has approved another ordinance that trucks be prohibited from parking on Main Street. (The latter ordinance had to be approved by the state because Main in Texico is a state highway and laws pertaining to it are governed by the state.)

Both laws are badly needed. With the addition of paved streets in Texico, motorists seem to forget that kids could be playing along the streets and could easily wander in front of a speeding car. The only desire of many citizens is to reach their destination a little faster. As one councilman put it, "One lady drives as if she starts just a little later each time she heads for town."

As to the ordinance on the parking of trucks on the main thoroughfare, anyone who has ever attempted to get on Main Street from a side road, with a huge truck parked on the corner, knows what this is like. One can wait at an intersection for a lengthy period, trying to see if there is any oncoming traffic, and then finally has to inch out past the truck and hope that all is clear.

At the meeting it was said that signs were going to be posted to signify the speed limits in the residential area and the prohibiting of trucks parking on Main Street. There was no indication that any steps would be taken to enforce these laws.

Signs need to be posted, all right. But, if that's all that is going to be done, what good will they do? It would be nice if people would voluntarily follow the laws set up for the betterment of a community. However, people are not that way, and as long as they have no danger of being caught, signs will be to no avail.

The city dads of Texico should be commended for their efforts in trying to cut down the speed and lessen the danger when entering onto the highway. However, we feel that one important step is being overlooked.

Why make a law, and then not enforce it?

pretty along the route. We liked the Chamber of Commerce sign over at McLean which read "We've Been Expecting You — Welcome."

And in Arkansas, it was interesting to see the farmers with their mule teams and hand plows planting their crops. Standard equipment on the front porch of the typical Ozark cabin seemed to be a spanking new washing machine.

But the best sign we saw on the whole trip was in Paducah, Ky. How the two men ever happened to go into business together, we don't know, but it made a clever advertising slogan. In foot high letters, was the inscription over a drug store "Embrace the Pharmacist, Hugg the Druggist."

We visited Churchill Downs in Louisville and General Electric Appliance Park, where numerous contemporary kitchens were on display. We could have stayed all day, we've never seen so many luxurious kitchens.

One of the highlights was "My Old Kentucky Home," the site about which Stephen Foster wrote the well-known song. It was a three story southern mansion with all the furniture just as it was 150 years ago. The cherry beds were huge and pretty and had the original bedspreads. Fire places were in every room. Lending atmosphere to the setting were the hostesses, who wore colonial dresses reminiscent of the past.

And we ate at the Old Kentucky Home restaurant, a clean sparkling place which was helped by the attractive dark-eyed teen-age waitresses.

On the wall were 12 8x10 pictures of babies, with the printed sign "12 good reasons for eating here." Sure enough, the proprietors were parents of 12 children, and the waitresses were daughters of the family. Incidentally, the sign was to be changed to "13 good reasons for eating here" in a short while. There were so many things to see, we wouldn't have missed the trip for the world.

Our husband says that not recognizing a subscriber is bad enough, but it's even worse to fail to recognize your relatives. He learned this the hard way.

Up in Friona Monday, he stopped in a cafe and the proprietor introduced him "to his kinfolks". The editor couldn't remember ever having seen the young man before—so for once he was speechless.

It turned out that he was the husband of our cousin. We had seen him once, about three or four years ago, when they visited us.

We remarked to the husband that he shouldn't feel too bad, because we might not recognize our cousin by marriage either. We recalled that he was a tall, thin nice-looking kid. Nope, says the spouse, he is tall all right, but he isn't thin. He is a big boy.

Looks like we're going to have to visit some of the relatives to know who they are.

All these people who are related to the husband is rather confusing for him, since his family is a small one. He can practically count the number of cousins he has in

We receive at least 50 newspapers a week on exchange, and one of the most notable items of late, has been the number of swimming pools that are being constructed all over this part of the country, and in towns no larger than ours.

We hear that it is too much work, that it will cost too much money, and that enough people wouldn't support it. But we do know that if this is true, there are lots of towns in the Panhandle who are ahead of us. And you can't make us believe it. We think our community can do anything anyone else can, and better. Projects of this kind take a lot of time, both in making plans and raising funds, and spending money wisely. It is also important to carry out the requirements of the law in such a project.

Aren't there enough people in our town who are interested in a pool for the kids, to do something about it? Why should our youth have to drive one direction or the other for a swim?

Maybe it's just wistful thinking.

We have a recipe for marshmallow refrigerator roll that we like very much. It is not a dessert for one interested in a low-calorie diet, therefore, it is served only rarely at our house. But it is good.

- 32 marshmallows (1/2 lb.)
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk (Eagle Brand)
- 1/2 cup chopped nut meats
- 1/2 cup finely chopped dates
- 2 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs

- (30)
- 1. Cut marshmallows in quarters in mixing bowl. Add water.
- 2. Add sweetened condensed milk, nut meats and dates and blend.
- 3. Add graham cracker crumbs and blend.
- 4. Form into a roll about 6 inches long and three inches in diameter. Cover with waxed paper.
- 5. Chill in refrigerator 12 hours or longer.
- 6. Cut in slices to serve. Whipped cream adds to the attractiveness.

We found out four things when we accompanied our husband to Louisville, Ky., last week.

Louisville is a long drive from good old Farwell—the weather in that part of the country isn't as hot as we had anticipated—all the things we've heard about the Ozarks must be true—and one of the biggest thrills a wife could have, is to see her husband walk up and claim a first place national award. Never felt so much like whooping in our life, in a "no whooping place."

Had a note from Mrs. F. J. Park, who told us to hold her paper for a while, until she writes her new address. The Parks are former Farwell residents. The card was mailed in Medford, Ore.

Speaking about our trip, there were so many things crammed into five days, it was unbelievable. We crossed more rivers than we could believe existed in the distance we drove, and the homes were so

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

By RAYMOND EULER

We made a mistake when telling you that Mrs. Rickerd would be out of the office several weeks ago. We are right this time in telling you that she will be gone to Waco Monday through Wednesday, attending secretary's school.

Your directors urge you to watch with diligence any news items relating to minimum wage legislation. We have been prone to say that organized labor does not bother the farmer, but reading of the present proposals for new legislation, and a look at the powerful groups supporting them, gives a different view of the situation. We have yet to talk to a farmer who says he could operate on a minimum scale of $1 or more per hour for any and every man he hires, particularly if he could only work him eight hours before going up to time and a half. If you think this is important to you, you will have ample opportunity, at the right time, to express yourself to the right person in opposition to any such imposition upon your freedom. Watch your local papers.

Farm Bureau Roundup is, in our opinion, one of the best statewide farm report radio programs on the air. If you have not been listening to it, look at your Texas Agriculture paper to select one of the 107 stations that carry it each Saturday. You can get it early in the morning or at noon. It is entirely non-commercial.

If you 60 new Farm Bureau members have been wondering when you would get your metal gate signs, we believe you will have them within the next two weeks.

We plan to devote this column to a write-up about Gilbert Kaltwasser, county president, sometime soon. We believe that you will agree that if 100 farmers in the county devoted as much time to working on farm problems and seeking a solution to them as he, there would be fewer problems.

Consider this: Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men. Proverbs 22:29.

EVERYBODY reads The Tribune.
