much better you know him than I do!"

Rebecca blushed and laughed. "Oh, now, you've got no call to say that, I'm sure. You, his best girl and everything! But in a manner of speaking, yes, I'm in his confidence. He calls me his second safe. The first one's over yonder." Jocelyn looked at the great gay shining box, sealed against her as closely as the real mind of its owner. "What's in it, Miss Deal?" "His most important papers. Correspondence. Heaven knows what all!" "And you know all about them?" "Why, no, Miss Harlowe, I can't say I do. But sometimes I get access to them. Not that I know the combination. Mr. Kent's the only one who knows that." "You will think I'm a perfect idiot but, you know."

Jocelyn admitted, "I'd like to know how to open it. Do you suppose he'd tell me?"

Miss Deal shrugged. Behind the glasses her eyes were half pitying and half contemptuous. "You think I haven't much chance, don't you?" asked Jocelyn shrewdly. Miss Deal covered her confusion at the pretty fool's surprising perspicacity, in a clicking slide of compliment and cordiality. Then Felix entered and the girl came toward him, speaking earnestly. A new Jocelyn seemed to meet him at every turn he made. "Felix, can't I learn how to do these things for you? I mean, if Miss Deal could teach me, I'd love to work with you, to understand." "Out to steal Miss Becky's job already, are you? Bless you, darling, you're a sweet child. Isn't she a sweet child, Miss Becky?" Miss Becky made a dry sound which passed for an assent.

"I would really like to know about your business, Felix." "You shall know whatever you want to know, sweetheart." He winked back at Miss Becky restoring her good humor and her sense of superiority. "Just you ask questions. Miss Becky and I will answer them." "And both of you know quite well that I'm ignorant ever to know — what questions." She was close to tears. Felix became at once serious, respectful and concerned. Miss Deal, with a twisted mouth, of irony, returned to her typewriter. In the limousine, on their way to lunch, Felix spoke tenderly: "You mustn't be hurt at my teasing you, Jocelyn. I do want you to be in my confidence but I never thought you'd be interested in this sort of thing." "But this sort of thing is just part of all I must know, Felix. I have been so put away and shut up — like one of these-unlucky princesses in towers. Do you think I could take a business course, perhaps, after we are married?" "You may take any course you like, beloved. But you mustn't hate your beautiful innocence. It is just because you are so exquisitely different that I love you." And it was that very afternoon when they quarrelled for the first time seriously.

Jocelyn was playing for him. He would often ask her to, for although his interest in music and his understanding of it were negligible it obviated the necessity for conversation. Yet Jocelyn wanted to talk. She played, therefore, rebelliously and chose, snapping off in the middle of his favorite "piece" (the ballet from Sylvia) that melody of her own composition, the nursery rhyme set to the intervals of terror. She sang and her face changed: Quand le petit bossy, ma foi! Vient se placer derriere moi." "Tell me what it means," commanded Felix, striding toward her, his mouth set. For there was a look in the girl's face that woke the tyrant in him. "This is my secret," sang Jocelyn in her queer light tune. "It is like the combination of your safe that holds your papers and your contracts and your correspondence and your ancient love-letters. "I must have my secrets. Mother has hers. And you have yours. I've tried to win them from you. But, no, you will keep them to yourself. And now you can't scare mine out of me by placing yourself there behind me, ma foi! Because you are a great tall straight man as simple as a perpendicular line — or a wooden post."

"Stop taunting me, you little devil." He pulled back her head and kissed her on the mouth and she, springing up, struck at him with a violence that sent him staggering. "Jocelyn!" "I told you to be careful," she said. "You have the temper of a tiger. How dare you fly out at me like that?" The nuns would shut you up on bread and water." "As you will, no doubt, when you are my husband. I don't think I want a husband—me!" I will not make you a good wife." "You will, however, be a delicious—woman-to-love!" thought Felix and said aloud, "I won't tease you then, darling. I'll go away and leave you in peace. Engagements are the very devil anyhow. Are we — all right again?" "I suppose so," said Jocelyn limply. "Will your mother be back soon?" "No. She has gone up the river to see a friend of hers in the sisterhood there. But don't worry, Felix. I'm better alone tonight. Mary will stay in. Good night. For."

The Fords Tell Their Plans

for 1939

IF WE KNEW anything better we could do for the country than make good motor cars, we would do it.

By every one doing his best in the job he thinks most useful, this country is going to regain its momentum. We have tried to do our best in our job.

When business was suddenly halted in its recovery more than a year ago, we determined that we should keep going anyway, if not at full-volume motor car production, then at getting ready for greater motor car values that would help future production.

EXPANDING FOR THE FUTURE

We began to build 34 million dollars' worth of new plants and equipment. We felt that if we could not employ all our men building motor cars, we would employ as many as we could building better production facilities.

We were told, of course, that this was no time for expansion, that a wiser business policy would be to "hold everything"—which means, stop everything. But no one ever got anywhere standing still.

Besides, we are not defeatists. We do not believe this country has seen its best days. We believe this country is yet in the infancy of its growth. We believe that every atom of faith invested in our Country and our People will be amply justified by the future. We believe America is just beginning. Never yet have our People seen real Prosperity. Never yet have we seen adequate Production. But we shall see it! That is the assurance in which we have built.

Business is not just coming back. It will have to be brought back. That is now becoming well understood in this country; for that reason 1939 will be a co-operative year. Manufacturers, sellers and buyers will co-operate to bring back the business that is waiting to be brought back.

This construction program is almost completed. It has increased activity and payrolls in a number of related industries. It has given us better facilities for building better cars and trucks, and eventually our new tractor which is being perfected.

THIS MEANS MORE VALUE

The current program has provided a new tire plant, which will turn out a part of our tire requirements . . . a new tool and die plant that will help us cut the cost of dies . . . and a steel-press plant that will enable us to make more of our own automobile bodies. These are in addition to the plants we already had for producing glass, iron, steel, plastics, and many other things.

We don't supply all our own needs, of course, and never expect to. The Ford engine is one thing that no one's hand touches but ours. Of nearly everything else we use we build some quantity ourselves, to find, if possible, better and more economical ways of doing it. The experience and knowledge we gain are freely shared with our suppliers, and with other industries.

Henry and Edsel Ford, on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Ford Motor Company, June 16, 1938

We take no profit on anything we make for ourselves and sell to ourselves. Every operation, from the Ford ships which first bring iron ore to the Rouge, is figured at accurate cost. The only profit is on the finished result—the car or truck as it comes off the line. Some years, there is no profit for us. But we see to it that our customers always profit. A basic article of our business creed is that no sale is economically constructive unless it profits the buyer as much as or more than the seller.

Our new plants have helped us build more value into all our cars for 1939. That means more profit on the purchase to the purchaser. We have not cut quality to reduce costs. We simply will not build anything inferior.

NEW TESTING EQUIPMENT

While we were putting up new plants to produce cars, we constructed new equipment to test them. The first weather tunnel of its kind ever built for automobile research went into operation at our laboratories this year.

It makes any kind of weather to order. The weather it delivers every day would take months to find in Nature. Our cars are weather-tested to give you good service in any climate anywhere.

In other tests, every part of the car is punished unmercifully. Then our engineers tear it down to see if they can find abnormal wear or any sign of weakness.

The money we spend on tests saves you money on repairs. And your family car is safer and more dependable when we put it in your hands.

THE NEW CARS

We have two new Ford cars for 1939—better cars and better looking—but we also have an entirely new car.

It's called the Mercury 8. It fits into our line between the De Luxe Ford and the Lincoln-Zephyr. It is larger than the Ford, with 116-inch wheelbase, hydraulic brakes, and a new 95-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine.

We know that our 1939 cars are cars of good quality. We think they're fine values in their price classes.

With new cars, new plants, new equipment, the whole Ford organization is geared to go forward.

FLATTERINGLY SIMPLE

Pattern 8095—This is one of those patterns that you will want to keep on hand. These pretty aprons make acceptable gifts the year through—and best of all, you can make them in a few hours and with small cost for materials.

For these aprons choose voile, percale, dimity or organdy. For a hostess apron, a pretty shantung is smartly used, natural bound with green.

Pattern 8095 is designed for Small (34-36), Medium (38-40), and Large (42-44) sizes. Medium size, apron No. 1 requires 5-8 yard 32 or 35 inch material and 1 yard contrasting; apron No. 2 requires 1 7/8 yards of 32 or 35 inch material and 4 1/2 yards of bias binding; apron No. 3 requires 1 5/8 yards of 32 or 35 inch material and 9 1/2 yards of bias binding.

Pattern 8157 — This design (8157) is built on basic shirtwaist lines, and there's nothing more becoming to large figures. Straight lines, bust fullness beneath smooth shoulders, a deep V-neck finished with a deeply notched collar — these details make it slenderizing.

Gingham, percale, calico and seersucker are sturdy cotton well suited to 8157.

Pattern No. 8157 is designed for sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 34 requires just 4 yards of 35 inch material.

Power Gear Ratios Capacities Varied In '39 Ford Trucks

A 1939 line of Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars equipped with hydraulic brakes and comprising the widest selection of capacities, gear reduction ratios and power it has ever offered the transportation field, has been announced by the Ford Motor company.

With 42 body and chassis types, two clutches, five transmissions and eight rear axle ratios, in addition to various wheel and tire sizes which may be chosen, operators may obtain V-8 trucks and commercial cars which are virtually custom-built for their own particular commercial transportation problems. The line is designed to meet the requirements of more than 90 per cent of all commercial operations.

Hydraulic brakes are engineered to conform with Ford design and practice, insuring quick stops with easy pedal pressure.

IN FLANDERS FIELD

By Colonel John McCrae
In Flanders field the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly, Scarce heard amidst the guns below.

We are the dead,
Short days ago we lived, felt the dawn, saw the sunset glow, Loved and were loved and now we lie
in Flanders field.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch—be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders field.

Insure Success In Cake Baking With Proper Materials

Knowing that baking powder leavens cake it is natural to assume that adding an extra half teaspoon to the amount specified in a recipe will give a cake greater lightness. However, that is not true, and the best plan to follow is to use the amount recommended on your baking powder can.

Because of the increased efficiency of KC and some baking powders in use today, representing about 80 per cent of the baking powders consumed, they should be used properly to insure successful bakings.

The following rules will be helpful in bringing about desired results:

First, always use the amount specified on your baking powder can. This proportion has been worked out as best for that particular type. With KC one level teaspoonful to a cup of sifted flour is sufficient for most recipes.

Second, measure carefully, remember that an excess amount of any baking powder does not produce best results. A level teaspoonful means that you must level off with a knife.

KC Baking Powder, the brand used in the cooking school, is one of the most economical and efficient products entering the kitchen. Properly used it will produce for you the finest of baked goods. You will be convinced of this by giving it a fair trial and observing results obtained.

You can get additional helpful information and a number of practical, tested recipes by sending for the KC Cook's book. A copy will be mailed, postage paid if you will send your request together with the slip taken from a can of KC Baking Powder to Jaques Manufacturing company, Chicago, Ill.

recipes. This is equivalent to one heaping teaspoonful to a quart of flour.

Careful measurement is very necessary as using more or less than a recipe calls for will not produce best results.

Another secret of good baking is to be sure that the baking powder is thoroughly mixed with the flour and other ingredients. The more thoroughly the baking powder and flour are mixed before you add moisture, the better your results are likely to be. Sift three or four times.

For biscuits, make a smooth dough that can be handled without sticking, and bake in a moderate oven. For cakes, have your oven slow to moderate at first, until the cake is fully risen; then increase heat so as to just brown lightly.

Mrs. Burbank says that KC, the brand she used in the cooking school is manufactured by baking powder specialists who make nothing but baking powder—controlled by expert chemists of national reputation. It is always uniform in quality and can be relied upon to produce for you the kind of bakings you will be proud to serve.

"Stablemates," with Wallace Beery and Mickey Rooney will open at the Palace Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday.

Beery, because of his memorable performance with Jackie Cooper in "The Champ," is given another role reminiscent of the wornout prizefighter in that film. Rooney, rated one of the most popular actors in Hollywood today, has a characterization directly opposite that of Andy Hardy in the Judge Hardy series. It is a dramatic role which tests his versatility in every way.

With Sam Wood directing, authentic race-track scenes were made at Santa Anita, Inglewood and the Del Mar layout. Among the famous thoroughbreds used in scenes for the picture are Seabiscuit, Lloyd Pan, Dauber, Speelfy and Indian Broom. Most of the action takes place behind the scenes of a modern race track with all the details of handling and racing horses carefully filmed.

Authenticity and realism were insured by careful research on racing as it is handled today. Various horsemen and jockeys cooperated in insuring proper picturization of these scenes.

The story is built around Terry, a broken-down veterinary, and Mickey, stable boy. When Ladybird, the horse that Mickey loves, loses continuously, Gale, its owner, is going to have her destroyed. Mickey pleads with him and gets the horse in lieu of his wages. He learns from Terry that the horse is suffering from an ailment which can be cured by a dangerous operation. He finally persuades Terry to operate. When the horse starts winning, Gale takes him back. In a dramatic denouement, Terry forces Gale to return the animal to Mickey although in so doing he sacrifices his own freedom.

Mr. And Mrs. F. C. Beyer Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

One of the most delightful and outstanding social events of the season was on Friday evening and night when the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Beyer was celebrated by a large circle of their friends, at their hospitable home.

After an hour of visiting and conversation, we were led in a song and praise service by Rev. F. T. Sagar, then he gave a "Review of Twenty Five Years of Successful, Happy Married Life," climaxing this with lovely passages from the Bible, assuring us that only in living the christian life, as have the honored couple, can true happiness and success be ours.

Rev. C. N. Roth of Winters, Texas, who was pastor of this fine couple, in pioneer days, reviewed the "Good Old Days of Long Ago," when the hospitable home of the Beyer family was the scene of many happy and profitable church and social events—as it is now.

A lovely and bounteous barbecue luncheon, with all the fixings was served. Then the many, many useful and beautiful gifts—both of silver and other things were unwrapped and admired.

After which the genial host and charming hostess expressed their appreciation and invited us to their Golden Wedding Anniversary, October 28, 1963, if it be God's will they added.

Mr. and Mrs. Beyer were married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Zschiesche at Bartlette, Texas, October 28, 1913.

The silver wedding anniversary bride was lovely in a soft silk dress of wine color, and carrying a beautiful bouquet, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. J. Funk, while the groom was attired in the conventional dark blue, declaring they were happier than ever before.

Conversation, dancing and music by Scisson Bros. was enjoyed until a late hour, when another lovely luncheon was enjoyed.

This unusually fine family are loved and appreciated by all who know them, all of who wish for them much happiness and success as they continue life's journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Beyer are blessed with six fine children and a darling little grandson, who are: Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Messaker, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee Hunt, Helen, Hugo, Norma and Nova and little Carl Lee Hunt, their grandson.

Those who attended this delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill and children, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gerber, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weige and children and children, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sager and children, Mr. and Mrs. T. ## Proclamation

November 1, 1938

TO THE CITIZENS OF LITTLEFIELD: "The City of Littlefield responded with highest honor to our nation's call for defenders in 1917 and 1918. Our young men into the fighting forces. Of those who sacrificed their lives in the nation's service, dying for 100,000 other Americans to bring victorious peace to our country. It is fitting that the service and sacrifice of our young men should be commemorated annually by public observance. As the poppy, which grew in the FIELDS, has become their memorial flower, there is more appropriate observance than wearing of the poppy honor."

"Therefore, I do hereby proclaim Saturday, November 11, 1938, as 'Poppy Day' in the City of Littlefield, and urge all citizens to remember the honor for the men of the nation, who gave their lives in World War service, by wearing of the poppies on that day."

Worthy Grand Patron. The affair was held in the Houston Municipal Auditorium, where the Nautical theme was used in decorations, with life guards, the huge ship, sea gulls, and the stage, blue like water, that was most effective. All of the Grand officers were dressed in blue taffeta semi-colonial ensembles. Assisting in the ceremonies were Mrs. Rebecca Miles, Jacksonville, Past Grand Matron; Mrs. Majorie Wofford, Austin, Grand Treasurer; Mrs. Florence Read, Coahoma, right Worthy Grand Ada of the General Grand Chapter; and Judge M. A. Childress, San Antonio, Past Grand Patron. William G. Vollus, Houston, Past Grand Patron, welcomed the delegates in behalf of the Masonic and Eastern Star orders.

Tuesday night, the delegates enjoyed banquets. Wednesday night, a beautiful memorial service was held, witnessed by 4,000 persons. Mrs. Mary Ellen Hughes, Grand Chaplain, arranged the program, which honored the memory of members of the order who died during the past year.

The program opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. Bertie Harris, followed by the annual poem of commemoration written by Jesse Edmonston, poet laureate, and read by Miss Blanche Earl. The Shrine Drill team directed by Capt. Ed Armintor, performed and the Humble Glee Club sang several numbers.

A very elaborate ceremony marked the election and installation of the officers Thursday night. The Hall was very attractive with a profusion of flowers, as a garden for the last services. Among the high officers for the order who attended were Frank W. Lunn of Dallas, most Worthy Patron of the General Chapter of the World, and Mrs. Anna Smalley of Roundup, Montana.

Mrs. Mildred Harris, Waco, was elected worthy grand matron; John Temple Rice, El Paso, worthy grand patron; Mrs. Freda Bernard, Dallas, associate grand matron; Judge Ed Couch, Pharr, associate grand patron; Miss Gora Posey, Arlington, grand secretary; Mrs. Marjory Wofford, Austin, grand treasurer, and Mrs. Robbie Dyer, Amacillo, grand conductress.

San Antonio was chosen without opposition for the next convention.

The amount dropped into the box of the poppy seller is a donation to relieve the suffering caused by the war. The purpose of the Auxiliary's poppy program is to place the symbol of the heroic sacrifice above the heart of every true American, giving at the same time an opportunity to serve the war's living victims.

Roy Shahan made quite an interesting and instructive talk.

Organization of the association was completed, and it was decided to hold a meeting Saturday, November 12, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at Olton, in the court house. The meeting, following the Olton session will be held at Amherst November 29.

Board of Managers Named

A board of managers was selected at Saturday's meeting, composed of J. W. Withrow, J. A. Jones, G. M. Vann, and president, Judge L. R. Crockett and secretary, J. W. Arnn.

Hampton of Fort Worth, attorney for the Board, and probably a number of others.

The conference and the contemplated legislation to be discussed, according to Mr. Pulliam, are of concern to every municipality, industry and farmer depending upon underground reserves for a water supply.

Last summer's conference, called by Governor James V. Allred, was the result of growing alarm because of depleting supplies of such water. Attending were representatives from every section of Texas. Reports were agreed that ground reserves in most of the state are lower than a few years ago and that diminishment is continuing at an alarming rate, in some cases having reached a critical stage.

The Plains region, reports indicated, is more fortunate than most sections, although repeated warnings were sounded that an eventually serious problem is inevitable unless steps are taken speedily to conserve existing resources.

were financed through banks of the county. The animals will be bred to the boar from Alexander and litters raised.

Chambers of commerce in Sudan, Amherst, Littlefield and Olton, and business men in Earth, Fieldton, Hart Camp, Spring Lake and Spade cooperated in purchasing the animals, to be distributed to club boys for their essays.

Dave Harmon, a farmer near Amherst, purchased the boar from Alexander.

After the crowd had inspected the animals, in pens on the main street, County Agent Turner introduced three speakers for the occasion.

Feed possibilities of Lamb county were discussed by W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department of Texas Technological college, who gave comparative figures on the number of farms, farm variations, number of cattle, hogs and sheep, for Lamb, with Bailey, Hockley, Castro and Parmer counties.

"If every one of the 2,340 farms in Lamb county would have a car load, or 20 head, of calves fed out each year, it would mean 46,800 head of cattle fed; if there were two sows to each farm, 28,080 pigs could be raised and sold a year if each sow had two litters of six pigs each and if there were 100 lambs on each farm, there would be 234,000 sheep a year," he said. That much livestock would consume over 68,000 tons of heads, besides bundles.

Stangel told of feeding livestock and how to utilize the feeds grown in the county. Certain minerals can be used to supplement feeds and meet a deficiency in the heads and bundles. Advantages of feeding livestock in this area, over that of the corn belt, were emphasized.

Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment sub-station at Lubbock, discussed grain sorghums and the part they play in the farm program of this area. In the early agricultural days of Northwest Texas, he explained, corn was the principal feed, but owing to its inability to withstand drought, it was never very popular. Development of grain sorghums quickly found a substitute for corn.

Jones told of experiments in breeding up sorghums to meet needs of farmers. The Lubbock station is experimenting with development of a sorghum to permit it being combined instead of harvested by hand. Straight heads are being developed. Sorghums are being crossed to develop a more juicy sorghum and plenty of leaves for use in the trench silo.

"We are trying to increase tonnage in our milos and also increase sweetness," he said. "We are trying to develop a yellow hegari instead of a white one we now have, for yellow colored seed sells above that of white seed."

The sorghums that will be for combines will have straight necks instead of the goose neck, making it possible to harvest by heading and thrashing in one operation.

Sudan is being crossed to secure more sweetness and also to keep a pure strain, free from Johnson grass.

Blight resistant milos have been developed, to eliminate heavy losses by disease. Yields are increased "30 to 70 percent," by the new type, which resists root rot or blight, known as Pythos.

Another problem is development of a feed that can resist what is known as Charco rot, a black rot that attacks the interior of the stalk.

County Judge L. R. Crockett spoke briefly on the planned 4-H club recreation center at Fieldton. A 5-acre site has been secured there, he said, and the county plans to secure WPA aid for erection of a club house. Cecil Barnett is chairman of a committee to raise funds for the project.

RAPTURE BEYOND--

give me. I was horrid." When he was gone Jocelyn went to her mother's prie-dieu and tried to pray. But her tears of anger and tears of penitence were dry at their very source.

In her own room, she sat down on her bed and thought. After a while she pulled out a big leather valise from her closet and rummaged there. She dressed herself in a pleated short plaid skirt, a black tight jersey, long-sleeved, high in the throat, a little jacket and in a big old tam o'shanter.

Before she put this on her head she ran her fingers back and forth through her sleeked thick hair until it was the wild unruly mop of a golliwog. She went to her mother's room and examined the likeness she had so achieved; a girl with a slim high-colored face, a firm rich mouth, a pair of tilted gleaming eyes; a girl with a swagger that was made charming by its lines of race and breeding.

"Oh, Lynda Sandal," said Jocelyn, "I am going to like you. Maybe you will be wonderful!"

Colling a trunk rope round her arm she switched off her light and swung her leg across the window sill.

It was all dark below in the well. There lay the entrance to the alley close by the ladder's foot. The city with its lights and towers, its horns of river travel and of land traffic, called to her blood.

All the way down toward that dark pavement with its exit to an unknown world, she said, "I'm not afraid. I'm not afraid."

By the time she reached the pavement, this was true.

"Does a Mr. Sandal live here?"

"Yes'm. T'ree flights up."

Jocelyn handed the Japanese boy some money and told him to pay and to dismiss her driver. Then, her heart jumping and her lips cold, she began to mount the stairs in front of her. The hall she left was dimly lighted. Behind closed doors there were subdued regular sounds of card-play; the clack and shuffle, the light slipping noises, brief statements, the shifting of chairs. On the second floor people were dancing and making a great jolly hubbub. On the third floor when the breathless adventurer came nearer to it there was a sound of low masculine comment and again the clack and shuffle of cards. A door stood open.

Jocelyn paused before she took the last few steps of her ascent. She wished to reconnoiter and to command her disordered pulses and her jerking nerves. Her eyes were on a level with the threshold of the open door. Opposite her across the width of the comfortable shabby room Nick Sandal crouched on a battered sofa against the wall. He was twisted up painfully among some tattered cushions and smoked a pipe. His bright eyes watched a group of four men playing cards at a table. The faces of three of these men were visible to Jocelyn, all in their shirtsleeves, two in profile and one facing her. The fourth sat with his back turned and wore a coat. The game came to an end, the man whose back was turned to her pushed back his chair and rose. "Blast that Jack of Diamonds!" he said and picking up a card slung himself in a supple and silent fashion across the room and stuck the cardboard object against the wall, using for the purpose a piece of chewing gum. "That diamond digger sits on my neck like a fetter. I'll put a hole into his blond beauty." And stepping back a pace he took a knife from his hip pocket, balanced it in his palm and threw it with swift and furious skill so that it stood quivering in the center of the card. Thereafter all four men returned to their play. The knife-thrower now faced Jocelyn. He was young with naturally vivid features which had been worked into a grim and iron mask. Then he glanced up from his cards and saw her. He rose as though her silent face out there had frightened him. She came rapidly up the last few steps and stood before him in the door. "Boys, this is my daughter," he cried out sharply. "Go on with your game," she said. "I came to see father." The men obeyed. Jocelyn sat down on the pile on his battered lounge, her hand uncertainly on one. CONTINUED NEXT PAGE

POPPY DAY' SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5--REMEMBER?

November 5, all the world, with the population, are asked to wear a poppy on coat lapel. The day has been designated as Poppy Day, and the citizens of Littlefield are asked to wear a poppy flower, the poppy to those who gave their lives in America's service during the World War. And as the poppies are received from the women of the American Legion Auxiliary, who will distribute the flowers on the streets that day, the war's living victims will be aided by the contribution made for the flowers. The disabled veterans who make the poppies derive double benefit from the work. First, it gives them employment — their only chance to help support themselves and their families. With strength and health gone, they cannot compete for work against the able bodied, but they can make poppies. Even in the hospital beds they can do this work, earning money for each flower they make. Second, the work is of real value in aiding their recovery, occupying hands and minds, breaking the tedium of long idleness, and restoring spirits crushed by hopelessness.

The women who distribute the poppies, unlike the disabled veterans who make them, receive nothing for their efforts — nothing tangible, that is, only the satisfaction of having helped brighten the memory of the dead and of having contributed to the welfare of the living. It is hard, unaccustomed work for them, but they do it gladly, happy to be able to serve in such a cause.

The money which is dropped into the coin boxes in exchange for the poppies goes entirely to the welfare of the activities of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, supporting the work which these two great service organizations do for the disabled and the families left in need by the death of the veterans. Every penny is made to serve, and because of the close understanding and sympathy existing between the Legion and Auxiliary men and women and those whom they are aiding, every penny is made to serve doubly in a cause of highest worth.

Members of the local Auxiliary will start selling poppies early Saturday morning. No price is fixed

Margie Goes Snooping

I am so glad to know that Mrs. Lena Howard is fast improving after a serious illness last week. She has served such a useful life, and her smile is missed when she is too ill to extend a friendly greeting. Just after I moved to Littlefield, way back in January, I stayed in bed several days with the flu, and being a strange girl in a strange town, I felt so happy when she came rushing into my room one day with a large bouquet of sweet peas. She's just like that, and everyone loves her for it. Hurry and get back to the crossword puzzles and cockeyed puzzles, Gam!

Misses Freddie Adkins, Naomi Whitaker, Mary Doak, Hazel Shore, Ruby Kingery, Faye Martin, and "Margie" were seven girls in "weighting" Thursday night. That sure was good divinity and date loaf we made at Ruby's and Faye's house, but the extra pounds were not so good, when we weighed, the next day.

chased a large mirror in a concern in Houston, and charged it to the First Methodist church in Littlefield. When Rev. Norwood received the statement, he investigated to see if any of the local Methodists had a mirror shipped from Houston. He finally came to the conclusion that the mirror was purchased under false pretenses, wrote the concern to that effect, and calmly declared that the person who did that, wasn't even Methodist.

Hazel Shore and Freddie Adkins are running a race to see which can receive the most special delivery letters — and they write a large number to Fort Worth and San Marcos, and the boys in the post office don't even appreciate their business. Don't forget that there are two single young men in that Post Office, too.

Mrs. Dewey Walker made us one of those delicious prune cakes last week end, and we agree with Odessa and Mrs. Rutherford that the cakes are luscious.

Usually Lester Walters fusses slightly when his wife has the excuse that she needs her hair combed, to be tripping to the beauty parlor every day, but Monday, he suggested that she rush and get those curls combed! Can you beat that?

A man is the only animal that can be skinned more than once.

What's this I hear about the Mallory Etter's moving to Lubbock after the first of the year? They own the Spinning Wheel on College Avenue, you know.

The Little Theatre is getting publicity in one of America's greatest newspapers, The Springfield Massachusetts Republican, in its weekly Community Theatre column, recently devoted considerable space to the Littlefield Little Theatre. The column is conducted by Carl Glick, the internationally known author and playwright.

Looks like "Freckles" is climbing fast in the newspaper business. Last time you heard of him, he was selling papers, just as all newspapermen start. But last week, he came to town and sold twenty-one ads for the Primary news, in a very short time.

Reminds me that Mr. and Mrs. Dee Chapman, (Freckles' parents) received four letters from their son, Loyd, last week end. Loyd is in the Guard Duty in Shanghai, China, and he wrote these letters August 23 — They did not leave China until September 20, and arrived in Littlefield October 22. His parents were so happy to hear from him, for these were the first letters in about four months. They were delayed, and after they started to the States, they were returned to China before getting here, because of the wars, and conflicts in that country.

The Lamb County Library has many magazines that have been donated recently, and among them are Pictorial Reviews of the past twelve months.

The Extension Service Review, published at College Station, will feature in the November issue, the Boys' 4-H club rally held at Amherst Saturday. They will publish the essays written by the boys in the contest, and the articles about the 4-H club work in Lamb county. Three papers in this issue will be given to these boys, with their pictures, and the winners and their prizes in the Essay Contest.

I've changed my mind about all the people in Lamb County being in Littlefield on Saturdays—There was a huge crowd in Amherst Saturday afternoon, and the men weren't the only ones enthused, watching the boxing matches — The ladies were also waving their hands, and stomping their feet, when their favorite in the ring went down.

Thought Faye Martin was Book-keeper at Piggly Wiggly, until I saw her—playing "Flat Foot Flucy" Saturday afternoon in the store. Then she was "Banking" Saturday night.

"Cotton" Dobbs is one of these Bench Tailors, only I saw him, trying to stand up on a bicycle the other day.

Glad I'm the town Snooper, because I won't wise crack about myself pushing little "Scotty" Autry to the depot and back in his little cart Saturday morning. (Rather like an old maid, you know) —Scotty is the seven months old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Autry and he is a swell little fellow. He cut his first tooth last week.

Ruth Wells has been coming home every week end for several weeks from school in Lubbock and her parents tell here each Sunday that she shouldn't come the next— But they are always very, very glad to see her, when she invariably arrives the next week end.

Our World Of Inventions

The history of America has been the history of inventions. This nation was launched just as the steam engine had been invented. That was the beginning of the Age of Power, and of what economists refer to as the Industrial Revolution.

In an enormous new country, the small population along the Atlantic Coast had to find means to conquer the wilderness and develop the vast wealth of the land. No new nation ever grew so rapidly from poverty to riches, and it was the inventiveness and practical ingenuity of Americans which enabled our pioneers to do the job.

The cotton gin, the steamboat, the railroad, the telegraph, the telephone, the electric light, the automobile, the airplane and the radio are only a few of the inventions of which their application to human needs has made America the greatest and wealthiest nation in the world. Hardly a year has passed in our national history without witnessing the introduction of some radically new invention of which the ultimate effect was to make living easier and to provide more jobs for everybody.

To imagine a world without typewriters, sewing machines, movies, harvesters, typesetting machines and a hundred other things which we now regard as commonplaces of everyday life would be difficult indeed.

The process of invention is still going on. Within half a dozen years new inventions as revolutionary as any of earlier days have been developed and put to human use.

Those who know about such matters tell us that there are literally thousands of new inventions, already patented, in the hands of industry ready to be developed and marketed as soon as the owners of capital feel safe in embarking upon new ventures. Thousands of technically-trained men and women are working in great industrial laboratories on still more inventions to make life easier and richer for everybody.

It is foolish to oppose the march of invention merely because someone makes a lot of money out of it. The man or institution who finds a way to simplify living, to make it more comfortable or beautiful is entitled to the greatest reward that society is able to give him.

Insurance For Peace

There is no guaranty of permanent peace so long as great nations continue to threaten the security of others.

Though the Munich conference between England, France, Italy and Germany seemed to assure that no general European war will break out in the near future, the attitude of the dictatorial governments toward the democracies is such that no free nation can regard itself as forever free from aggression.

For that reason, in the present unsettled state of the world, the wise course for the United States to pursue is to build up its defenses, especially the Navy and the air forces, while there is still time to do so.

There is no doubt whatever, in the minds of students of world affairs, that the dictator-ridden nations both envy and hate the United States. That is evident from the frequent official statements in the government-controlled press of Germany, of Russia and of Japan. Once let those nations get rid of their democratic neighbors, it is more than likely they would try to win a foothold on this continent.

Now more than ever the old maxim "In time of peace prepare for war" is something to take seriously.

The World Of Tomorrow

A survey of the America of the future has been made by the National Resources Committee in Washington, on the basis of the Census Office reports of population statistics. It is probably as accurate as any forecast ever is, which is no guarantee that its conclusions are correct. But it is always of interest to try to peer into the future.

The facts disclosed by the Committee seem to indicate that the United States is rapidly approaching the ultimate peak of our population. In another ten or twelve years, say around 1950, births and deaths will balance each other, and the population will be stabilized at about 145 millions. More of them will be elderly, fewer young people.

Right now the high schools and colleges of the nation are overcrowded. The children born of marriages right after the war are filling them. There were more babies born in America in 1921 than in any year before or since. So far a dozen years from now on there will be more marriages, more new homes needed, more babies born, as these young folk set up their own families.

But the birth-rate is declining, and from 1950 on the annual increase in population will grow smaller and smaller. At the same time, the average life of Americans is becoming longer and longer. So the time seems to be approaching when there will be twice as many elderly people as there are now and a third or a half fewer young people.

Such changes will have wide economic effects. Businesses which cater to the young will decline. Businesses which supply commodities to older people will grow. There will be less demand for milk and for children's clothing, more for things which provide comfort for the middle-aged.

That is what the future looks like now. Nobody can guess what may happen to change the picture. But it is something interesting to think about.

PRAIRIE WEEDS

Gathered by
OLE DRIFTER

Howdy Folks:

A lady somewhere, in some town in Texas, sued somebody else for $3,500 damages for having used her picture and called her "A Glamour Girl." Please not that I haven't mentioned any name, or place, or anything else, that can bring a law suit in my direction. I'm careful—I izz. Besides $3,500 is about 700 times as much as I iss totting right now.

The Dallas Bar Association reports wonderful success with their "Legal Clinic" which they established sometime ago. A legal clinic is a place where lawyers learn something about the law. I think it's a wonderful idea. What this country really needs—is more lawyers who know more about laws, so—that they can get round them—more better. Do you get me?

Biggest bargain I ever heard of—was advertised in the Star-Telegram last week. Here it is—"Send 10c in coin or stamps for your copy of "How to Win and Hold Love." Isn't it marvelous? Here I've struggled and searched, for more than 50 years, for the sweet essence of adoration, and this bird offers the patent key to the whole mystery, for a little silver dime. Why—the little chapter on "Holding Love," ought to be worth many times the small purchase price of the whole booklet—aye verily.

The project committee of the Littlefield PTA, is considering the purchase of a Metronoscope reading machine for the local schools. Together with several of the teachers and other interested parties, the members of this committee, attended a demonstration of the instrument, by a representative of the American Optical Co. I had the fine pleasure of helping to stimulate interest in the Metronoscope. Mr. Hemphill, has—for a long time, been anxious to secure one for the local schools. Those who attended the demonstration were tremendously impressed with the usefulness of the instrument, and it is more than likely that the purchase will be made when the Parent Teachers Association meets next week. Our schools will have advanced a big step forward, and I shall be most happy.

Speaking of the schools—that certainly was a bunch of proud papas and mamas, when our band and 17 buses, left for the football game at Falls, last Friday. They had a right to be proud too. The youngsters made a wonderful showing; played good stirring music; drilled beautifully and had a pep squad that would be a credit even to a fair size college. They got a wonderful reception at Lubbock and some of the other towns they passed. It was a grand and glorious day for our town even if the other team got the decision on a technicality.
