LITTLEFIELD, LAMB COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1930

Lamb County Population is 17,449; Increase of 16,274 in Ten Years; The Report Shows 2,380 Farms in County

The population of Lamb county has increased 16,274 during the past 10 years, according to announcement made this week by Owen M. Unger, census supervisor for this district. His announcement is as follows: "The population of the County of Lamb, State of Texas as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, is 17,449, as compared with 1,175 on January 1, 1920. The figures are preliminary and subject to correction. There were 2,380 farms enumerated in this area at the fifteenth census.

Lamb County Citizens Attend Amarillo Meet Hear Co-Op. Speakers

Lamb county was well represented at the sepaing in Amarillo last Saturday when Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, and Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board spoke in behalf of farm cooperation and the reduction of wheat acreage before more than 2,000 people from all over the Plains country. Those attending from Lamb county were J. W. Hammock county field man, W. L. Wilkins, school superintendent, and Prof. Smith, vocational agriculture teacher, all of Sudan; J. W. Hale, secretary, Chamber of Commerce, and Prof. Box, vocational agriculture teacher, and D. A. Adam, county farm agent, Amherst. Commenting upon the address of Chairman Legge, Mr. Hale said the speech contained much valuable information and suggestion of benefit to farmers of all commodities. He gave as the remedy for low prices the need of farmers to organize, conduct their own business with efficient industrial concerns, control their own markets and fight their own battles. "What is the use of growing two blades of grass where one grew before unless you can get more money for the two blades than you did for one," queried Legge. Lack of organization, through which intelligent and orderly production and marketing can be obtained, is the trouble, he said.

Secretary Hyde, of Washington, in an address mixed with humor and earnestness, asked his hearers if they wanted themselves and their families placed on a competitive living scale with the peasants of Russia, the laborers of Australia, and the Japanese and Chinese coolies of Argentina. "Keep on raising more and more wheat," he said, "bring yourselves into competition with such countries, and you will inevitably force such a scale upon yourselves, your wives, and your sons and daughters."

GET GOOD RAIN MONDAY

The South Plains area around Littlefield was considerably refreshed by a steadily falling rain which began Sunday night and lasted until about Monday noon. Cotton and late feed crops are generally reported in excellent condition and not needing rain, but the moisture was desirable for some of the early planted feed crops.

Texas Cotton Acreage Under Total of 1929

Cotton acreage in Texas on July 1 was four per cent under the acreage of 1929, according to the report of the United States Department of Agriculture issued here today. The acreage standing in Texas July 1 was given at 3.3 per cent. The greatest reduction in cotton acreage in Texas was reported in the southern part of the state. Less reduction was noted in the south eastern sections and in Central Texas. An increase in acreage however, was noted in the northwestern and western sections. Rains and floods during the planting and chopping seasons played a large part in causing the reduction. Carl H. Robinson, senior statistician, said.

HERE'S ONE FOR RIPLEY'S 'BELIEVE IT OR NOT'

And now we have a good item that should be sent to Ripley, originator of the "Believe it or Not" cartoon that appears in most of the daily papers, for word came to us of the strange antics of a White Leghorn hen out at the farm home of W. A. Mathis, seven miles south of Muleshoe, and investigation revealed the following: This wise old bird, apparently not contented to occupy man-made hen nests as is the custom in all well-regulated poultry yards, has selected a place in the lower branches of a poplar tree, made a nest of sticks and straw and there deposited eight eggs. The nest is slightly more than three feet off the ground, and there is every evidence that she built it herself. If you don't believe it, go and see for yourself or tell a better one.—Muleshoe Journal.

CANDIDATES MUST FILE THREE EXPENSE LISTS

That Uncle Sam keeps pretty close tab on the expenses incurred by his political aspirants is proven in the fact that three sets of expense lists must be filed by each candidate during the course of the election. The law requires that the first statement of expenses must be filed not more than 30 days or less than 20 days prior to July 26, date of the first primary election; this has already been done by all candidates. The second list must be filed not more than 12 nor less than eight days prior to the date of primary, and the third expense list not more than 10 days after the primary.

STATE TAX MEN AND BANKERS IN ACCORD

Months of Negotiation Lead to Agreement on Changes Broadening Method of State or Local Taxation of National Banks.

NEW YORK.—Months of conference and negotiation between an American Bankers Association special committee and the Committee of the Association of States on Bank Taxation have resulted in an agreement on a form of amendment to the Federal statute dealing with state or local taxation of national banks that "maintains the integrity of the protective principles of the section and is satisfactory to the commissioners' committee," says the American Bankers Association Journal.

Thomas B. Paton, the organization's General Counsel, in making the announcement says that previously proposed amendments to the statute, which is known as Section 5219, have been opposed when it was felt their terms would enable any state to place banks in a tax class by themselves.

"The law as it stands today," Mr. Paton says, "permits state or local taxation of national banks or their shareholders in one or the other of the four following forms: the shareholders upon their shares,—a property tax; the shareholders upon their dividends,—a personal income tax; the bank upon its net income; the bank according to or measured by its net income. Only one form of tax can be imposed, except that the dividend tax may be combined with the third or fourth form if other corporations and shareholders are likewise taxed."

"The conditions permitted are: the tax on shares must be at no greater rate than on other competing moneyed capital; the income tax on shareholders must be at no greater rate than on net income from other moneyed capital; the tax on bank net income must be at no higher rate than on other financial corporations nor the highest rates on mercantile and manufacturing corporations doing business within the state; the tax measured by net bank income is subject to the same limitations as the tax on net income of the bank but may include entire net income from all sources."

States Seek Broader Law

National banks and their shareholders are taxed in different states under a diversity of systems, he says. The U. S. Supreme Court has held that the low millage rate on intangible personal property is in violation of the present law where it results in national bank shares being taxed at a rate greater than that assessed upon competing moneyed capital. A number of states, unwilling to use the income methods permitted, had the alternative of either repealing the intangible tax laws or limiting taxation of national bank shares at the intangible rate. Therefore they sought a broadening of the permissive provisions.

Also, Mr. Paton points out, a Supreme Court decision held a state's excise tax on corporations invalid where it included income from Federal and local government bonds in the excise measure. This created doubt as to some state bank excise taxes.

"Conferences have been held to reach some agreement which would protect the banks, satisfy the tax commissioners and avoid a contest in Congress," Mr. Paton says. "From the standpoint of the tax authorities, the main objectives have been an amendment which would permit certain states to retain their low rate tax upon intangibles and at the same time derive an adequate, but not excessive, revenue from national bank shares, and an amendment which would permit certain states to tax corporations on their net income, excluding income from tax-exempts, and at the same time derive the same revenue from the banks as heretofore. From the standpoint of the banks, it has been deemed imperative to maintain the protective principles of Section 5219."

The Changes Agreed On

"In the proposed amendment the existing provision permitting taxation of bank shares no higher than the rate upon competing moneyed capital has been modified with respect to certain intangible tax states only by a provision under which, instead of the moneyed capital limitation, the rate shall not be greater than the rate upon the shares of other financial corporations, nor upon the net assets of individuals, partnerships or associations employed in the banking, loan or investment business, nor higher than the rate assessed upon mercantile, manufacturing and business corporations with head office in the state.

"Also an added fifth alternative permissive method, designated as a specific tax, permits a state, in place of an ad valorem tax on bank shares, to add together total dividends paid the preceding year and the increase in capital, surplus and undivided profits, less additions to capital or surplus paid in by stockholders, and to divide this total by the number of shares. The state may tax the shares based upon this amount, but not to exceed the rate on other corporations in proportion to their net profits.

"This method is designed for states which have heretofore taxed national banks upon their entire net income from all sources at a proportionate rate to that assessed upon business corporations. The amount which is the basis of the tax is the equivalent of the entire net income from all sources, but being assessed against the shareholder upon his property in the shares and not a tax upon the bank, it is not open to the objection as an indirect tax on exempt income."

LUM'S CHAPEL

The good old days in Littlefield were those when meals were opened with blessings instead of can-openers.

Our advice to the citizen who wants to put an end to gossip in Littlefield is not to be guilty of starting it.

They say cannibals won't eat a man who chews tobacco but we never knew a Littlefield man with nerve enough to tell his wife that was his reason for chewing.

Our advice to the Littlefield girl who is about to fall in love is to first make sure that she will alight on her feet.

Life for Littlefield parents is just what they make it, until the children get old enough to make it worse. When a Littlefield woman really loves her husband he can make her do anything she wants to. Getting their knees out of sight may help some, but getting down on them oftener might help the modern Littlefield generation of girls more.

MR. H. C. SHERMAN

Any medicine that can win more than a million friends in seven years must have merit, and that is exactly what Konjola has done. You wonder why Konjola has become a household word? Well, read what Mr. H. C. Sherman, painting contractor, of Goddard, Kansas, says:

"Konjola proved to be a wonderful medicine in my case. Last July I was hurt in an automobile accident, and was in the hospital many weeks. When I got out, I was in a badly run down condition; had rheumatism in the shoulder, arm and hand, and my stomach was out of order. I suffered terrible pains, and medicines did me no good. The many endorsements of Konjola led me to try it, and six bottles of this wonderful medicine made me able to resume my work. I am feeling better in every way than for a long time."

Konjola's 32 ingredients work together, battling at their very source, the causes of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Littlefield, Texas at the Eagle drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

TAKE IT FROM DAD

By Frank H. Cheley

Cigarette Smoking

Bob came down to breakfast late and obviously a bit out of sorts.

Mother looked at Dad and Dad looked at mother, as much as to say, "What's wrong now?"

"Bob, your clothes smell mighty smoky this morning," said mother, good naturedly. "Thought you went to a party, not to a smoker, last night."

"All one, and the same thing now, mother," said Bob. "And take it from me, its back to be the only different guy at the show. I'm keeping my promise to you, but say, do you really think it was fair to exact that promise from me just because I've always made good on my agreements with you. Honestly, I'd rather stay home than be the only dude present every time, who has promised his mamma."

There was just a bit of sarcasm in the boy's tone in spite of himself.

Father Smithgough scowled noticeably. "My boy, I'm sure mother will release you from that promise now. Such promises are necessary and desirable with children who cannot think or reason for themselves. They are not desirable for young men of your age. I know exactly what the social pressure is. I've been through it myself, my boy, and after I faced it squarely and thought the thing through for myself, I stuck by my promise, only from then on it was to myself. Now, I thoroughly enjoy being different. Why join the herd? Why, if I'd let my conduct be determined by what 'everybody's doing,' you'd be ashamed to own me as dad."

"Oh, I know, Dad, but you're a Puritan. You would like to be different just as you always enjoy being the minority, but its so deucedly uncomfortable and makes you so conspicuous. Even the girls make fun of me. I'm no angel-child, and I hate to pose as one. I can't for the life of me see why it is all right for men to smoke cigarettes, but that it is terribly bad for boys."

"Bob," said Dad, with a good-natured smile, "the most difficult aspect of the whole question of conduct is this matter of conformity. Life seems organized to reduce itself to the commonplace. The cigarette has become social custom. Men of prominence on every hand, and women, too, as you well know, have accepted the edict just the same as they do fashions in clothes and fashions in speech and fashions in reading, and one of the great questions of the day really is, is it right for adults who are truly interested in youth to do anything that youth may not copy, for we know that a large part of a boy's essential education comes from imitating."

"Now, son, because I fully realized that we must sometime face this question again, and because I knew of your great admiration for the coaching ability and reputation of Gilmore Dobie, who for eleven years never lost a game, I clipped this from a paper sometime ago and slipped it into your card case."

"Probably Gilmore Dobie knows a good deal about what makes a boy strong and alert, and what causes him to be a failure. This is the special message he sends to you: 'It has been my experience that the use of tobacco, more particularly cigarettes, to boys under the age of twenty-one, is especially detrimental. I think there are two special reasons why tobacco should not be used by growing boys. First, tobacco is much more detrimental to the youth than the adult. It has a greater influence over the physical and mental activities of the boy, at the time in life when the resources of the mental and physical powers are taxed by the growth and general expansion, and cannot so well withstand the additional impediment of taking care of poisons and the derangement of the nervous system resulting from the smoking habit. Invariably this is evidenced by lack of youthful bloom, mental alertness and physical efficiency. Second, I find it almost invariably the rule that the smoking habit, when formed in early youth, takes a much more powerful hold on its victim and gradually increases its influence until finally it has created an inveterate smoker. Every boy who is ambitious to reach and retain the highest degree of physical and mental manhood, can, to a great extent, insure himself by abstaining from the use of tobacco in his early life."

"Now, so much for that. My second reason is even more fundamental. My greatest objection to the cigarette is that it is typical of a whole range of personal indulgences. What were we saying the other day about citizenship and loyalties? The greatest loyalty in the world is loyalty to the best that's in you. Smoking cigarettes is a compromise with yourself on what you know is not the best that's in you, and it is the entering wedge of personal indulgence."

"From this morning on, Bob, you are free. No promise binds you. You are a big intelligent boy. If you can't think and reason now, you never will."

"And now it's harder than ever," said Bob with a gulp, "but I'll think it through. Mother, you burn up these batch that are in my overcoat pocket, will you?"

Good Citizen Takes Pride in "Home Town"

Pride, as a rule, is not commendable, especially in the material things of life. Even worse than pride are the false values that it creates. Pride in an individual is self-destructive, if permitted to run its course unchecked, but a certain amount of pride is necessary for people to keep their self-respect and the respect of their friends. However, pride in our home community may be pardoned—in fact, is needed, if the community is not to lie dormant or go backward in the competition that exists between towns and cities. A community pride that sees no good in any other community is unpardonable. A community pride that does not recognize the favorable points in every other neighbor defeats its own purpose, that of advancing the community in the eyes of others. The thing most to be guarded against is not a spirit of boastfulness, although it exists in some citizens to a degree that is harmful to the community, but the opposite extreme which causes citizens to feel that greater opportunities exist elsewhere. There is a halfway ground on which all loyal citizens may stand. We should guard against either extreme—dissatisfaction and false pride, which is equally as harmful, and all the while do all we can, each in our own limited way, to advance the interests of the county.

Condensed Milk
According to Hunziker's "Condensed Milk and Milk Powder," sweetened condensed milk was first made by Gail Borden at Walcottville, Conn., in 1856. This factory failed, but was later re-established at Wassaic, N. Y., in 1860. Unsweetened evaporated milk was first made commercially in 1885 by the Helvetia Milk Condensing company at Highland, Ill.

SAD BUT TRUE

"Some one suggests that the only way to drive is with the idea constantly in mind that the other fellow may be an idiot," says the Los Angeles Times.

This is sad but true. Recklessness seems to be part of the motoring code with millions of American drivers. And the inevitable result is that, every year, 25 or 30 thousand persons are killed and hundreds of thousands injured in preventable automobile accidents.

The tragic part of it is that the enormous annual waste of life and property is almost entirely unnecessary. The unpreventable accident is rare as the dodo bird. Someone is incompetent or reckless in the case of practically every collision, great or small, between motor cars.

The blame may be laid in two places. First is the apparent indifference of many motorists to the fundamentals of safety. Second is the lack of strict licensing laws in most states to keep the incompetent and reckless off the road, and an accompanying lack of enforcement of modernized, commonsense traffic codes.

ANOTHER VICTORY

FOR THIS REGULAR STOCK MOTOR OIL!

CLOSE ON THE HEELS OF ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT AT INDIANAPOLIS MAY 30, CONOCO WINS 3RD, 4TH, AND 5TH PLACES AT ALTOONA AT BETTER THAN ONE HUNDRED MILES PER HOUR

Frank Farmer, in a Miller Special, "placed" third with an average speed of 102.2 miles per hour. "Shorty" Cantlon, in a Miller-Schofield Special, was fourth with 101.5 miles per hour. "Speed" Gardner was fifth in a Miller Front Drive Special. All three used CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil in this convincing demonstration of the qualities of this regular "stock" motor oil. At Altoona, as at Indianapolis, this was the first time that a stock oil had placed so high in the finish of the race.

Indianapolis race; after they had observed its full body and good color as it came from Dave Evans' motor, the word went out that CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil had displayed the qualities necessary to solve the lubrication problems of racing motors. CONOCO had earned the respect of this most skeptical group—and earned it fairly.

In view of the Indianapolis results, it was only natural for a majority of the drivers at Altoona to choose CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil for America's fastest competitive race.

Germ-Processed Motor Oil, close on the heels of Indianapolis... a victory won with the same stock Germ-Processed oil that you can buy at any Red Triangle station.

These CONOCO victories have a definite meaning to every one who drives a car. They substantiate every claim that was made for it when the oil was introduced last November.

You can experience the safety and economy of this oil by stopping at the next Red Triangle Station and asking for:

AUTOS AND CHURCHES

Things are not going to be as we would like to see them around Littlefield until a lot of us wake up to the fact that while the auto is a wonderful vehicle, it is in a way a liability instead of an asset in still another way.

The most serious complaint we have to register against it is that it detracts from church attendance and threatens the greatest of all institutions. We haven't the figures at hand to show how rural and small-town churches are suffering, more and more each year, through decreased attendance. But such figures are easy to obtain.

One thing we are all pretty much agreed upon is that the present generation needs the church fully as much as did the generation that preceded it. And the next generation is apt, from all indications, to need it more.

Because the auto permits one to attend church at a great distance from home does not mean that people are using it for that purpose. Church attendance has dwindled, especially during July and August, in every section during the other ten months in the year.

Anything that discourages church attendance is harmful. But the auto would take people to church as easily and comfortably as it takes them elsewhere if they would only head it in that direction. We read in the good book that Elijah was carried to heaven in a chariot of fire. Can it be that a lot of present-day citizens are going to be carried to the other place in a more modern vehicle—the automobile?

After a man has eaten of a meal that was prepared only for women, he is still hungry enough to go out and rob the mouse-trap.

ABOLISHING POVERTY

Our attention was called by a Littlefield citizen recently to a newspaper article in which a prominent electrical engineer said machinery will in time abolish poverty in this country.

That is certainly a nice prophecy, for there is hardly anything more desirable among human beings than to get away from poverty and drudgery. But those of us who have been watching these big power magnates and utility millionaires can't help but feel that the abolition of poverty is for them more than it is for the balance of us.

They've been abolishing their own poverty, all right, but it has been through charging two or three times what they should be charging for service. They really are not helping the consumer abolish his poverty very fast.

If all of this great mechanical power now being developed were distributed equitably and fairly among us it would help a great deal, of course. But since development and distribution in this machine age is in the hands of a few it is hardly likely no matter how many machines we may invent, that many of us are going to see the day when poverty will be a thing unknown.

Hard times are those when we save our money because we are jobless and are jobless because we don't save our money.

CAN ANYONE ANSWER?

We've often wondered why it is that when the average Littlefield motorist always has a sort of hostile feeling, the moment he seats himself at the wheel, toward the driver who is coming toward him or who is trying to pass him. Why is it that he harbors a suspicion that the other fellow isn't driving right, or doesn't know how to drive, or ought not to be allowed to drive? Even a pretty girl, charming everywhere else, arouses a certain suspicion when she gets behind a steering wheel.

When they meet face-to-face while walking, or in a crowd, these same drivers are cordial, polite and friendly. But let them get out on the road on a Sunday afternoon, for instance, and start cutting in, squeezing the other fellow and honking horns, and they become enemies and can't see any good in each other. Every motorist will have to admit it's true, and yet he can't explain it.

Can it be that the feeling of power that comes from sitting at a steering wheel makes the average man a sort of despot, and brings back the old prehistoric desire to "rule or ruin"? It looks like here is another chance for a sort of disarmament conference.

PITY THE POLITICIAN

The wets and the dries will never agree on whether prohibition has been a good thing or a bad thing for the people, and they will continue to argue the thing indefinitely. But there can be no doubt whatever that the prohibition question is hard on one class of men—the politicians.

A candidate for office does not limit his appeal to wets only, or to dries only. He wants votes from both camps. So he is faced with the hard problem of trying to walk on both sides of the fence. Of course if his supporters are all on one side or the other that makes it easy for him. He will be for what they are for. But standing one way publicly and another way privately has its inconveniences.

There was, for instance, the confidential document seized by the Senate lobby committee containing names of members of congress who drank in private, but voted dry in public. Doubtless a number of those poor fellows were trembling in their boots until the committee decided there was no use publishing the names.

Verily, the life of a politician is an unhappy one.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY SOME PEOPLE TALK IN THEIR SLEEP

SOME people talk in their sleep because more of their brains is active than is usually the case. When a person retires not all of his brain goes to sleep at the same time, nor does it all awake at the same time. Although the brain acts as a unit because of the innumerable neural connections yet there are distinct portions that control various activities. These have been definitely located through experiments. The thinking process is the only important brain activity that has no special location. It is believed that the whole brain is involved in thinking.

When a person falls asleep his muscles become relaxed, the sensory portions are among the first to cease activity. This cuts him off from the outside world sufficiently to give him a chance to rest. The other portions of his brain may, however, be fairly active although they, too, are likely to fall asleep or become very quiet. In the case of an ordinary dream a few of the thought centers alone are active. Sometimes enough of these centers are acting together to form a connected story, resembling a reverie in the waking state. Frequently the thought activity of the brain is sufficiently strong to awaken the sleeper.

You might compare the brain to a large family, not all of whom ever go to bed at the same time or get up at the same hour. If late at night all the members of the household are asleep except one who is up playing solitaire you might liken the situation or that home to a person who is dreaming. Again, if two or more members are awake and playing a game of bridge, you might liken the situation to a person who talks in his sleep.

Some people talk in their sleep because the thought centers happen to get in touch with the speech centers. But enough of the brain is out of commission to permit sleep.

EASTERN STAR MEETING

The stated meeting of the O. E. S. held Friday night was one of the best meetings held in Littlefield.

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG

Member American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission

ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

H. Lane Young

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have failed through disregarding fundamental principles in loaning other people's money, that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the community divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight were forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

In the future, banks are not going to loan the money of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operation—whether that business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming.

Farming-Banking Interdependent

This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated—the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of cooperation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, however, to have the right conception of diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time and land in a new and untried crop—sometimes a hazardous crop, or one for which no immediate market has been developed, resulting in a loss of the initial effort and discouragement of future efforts on a more conservative basis.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming—namely, increasing earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmers' trouble today.

FIRST BAPTIST W. M. U. HAVE PROFITABLE MEETING

The W. M. U. of the First Baptist church met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. F. O. Boles for a Royal Service program, the president Mrs. Joe F. Grizzle presiding.

The efficient Missionary leader, Mrs. Acery Barton, being unable to attend, the pastor's wife, Mrs. Grizzle was asked to substitute which she did in a very pleasing manner. She led the devotional, reading one of David's missionary psalms, then in a brief but impressive talk, stressed the wondrous influence of the personal touch in congested work.

Mrs. Pat Boppe was next on program and gave a very inspiring lecture on the marvelous and far reaching power of consecrated missionary service whether given by the church minister, the Christian physician, the teacher, or the humblest private citizen.

Following the mission hour a brief business session was called in which the ladies voted to study, during the month of August, the new foreign mission book, "The Day of Small Things." Then came the social hour when tempting refreshments were served to the following members:

Mesdames Homer Snowden, Jesse Seale, Pierson Couch, Pryor Hammons, Lon Humphries, J. D. Coen, J. H. Henderson, Wylie Morgan, Mid Seale, Carl Smith, Lena Howard, J. E. Brannen, Pat Boone, W. E. Heathman, Joe F. Grizzle and the hostess.

Candidates Busy Mixing Speakings Are Popular

With only nine days until the primary election the candidates over the county are working over time in an effort to complete the canvass for their respective race.

The past few weeks have been filled with various affairs and the people of the county know that in order to assemble a crowd it is only necessary to let it be known that the candidates will attend. Not that the candidates in the county could be so termed as reluctant to attend these meetings but that most everyone is pleased with being able to avail themselves of the opportunity of being able to become better acquainted with the candidates, enabling them to become more capable of casting their vote.

Due to the rapid development of Lamb county, many of the voters are strangers to the candidates, and the fact that it has been necessary for them to cover an extended territory in a short length of time the community meetings have been beneficial to the candidates as well as the voters.

Saturday evening a meeting was held at Pumpkin Center, six miles west of Olton, which practically every candidate attended. The ladies of that community served ice cream and cake. The proceeds were used to send a representative from their home demonstration club to a Short Course to be held by the Extension department of the A. & M. college at College Station.

Monday night the Chamber of Commerce at Olton, held a get-together meeting. Talks were made by D. A. Adams, county agent, and Miss Ruby Mashburn, county home demonstration agent and a representative from the extension department of A. & M. College. Only a few of the candidates were in attendance.

The people of the Lum's Chapel community have extended an invitation to the candidates to attend a box supper to be held at the Lum's Chapel Friday night, at which time the candidates will be invited to speak.

BIBLE CLASS MEETING

Mrs. R. V. Armstrong was hostess Tuesday P. M. to the Ladies Bible class of the Church of Christ.

A very interesting lesson on Noah, the Flood and the Tower of Babel, was led by Mrs. Bigham, after which a social hour was greatly enjoyed. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the following ladies:

Mesdames C. C. Beebe, S. L. Adams, E. J. Foust, T. L. Kimmel, R. L. Mayhew, J. M. Hollowell, Robt. Bigham, Jim Etter, Sid Jackson, Arthur James, R. V. Armstrong, E. Wallace, Bill Collins, Miss Inez Jackson and a visitor, Miss Walden. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Bigham. The lesson to be discussed will be Abraham and the promises of God. Every lady is invited to attend.—Reporter.

BLUE BONNET CLUB

The Blue Bonnet club had their regular meeting the 9th with 16 members and three visitors present, Mrs. J. A. Johnson being our hostess.

After a business session Mrs. E. T. Schorapa made a delicious fruit salad, Mrs. H. F. Meyer vegetable salad and Mrs. C. N. Matthews made a salad dressing. After adjournment of our club meeting we had a social for our members. Contests and games furnished amusement, Mrs. W. P. Davis scoring highest in the contest, and received the prize. Fruit salad and cake were served, and each expressed themselves as having a wonderful time.

We had about 10 members present at the county dress contest at Amherst, and four ladies entered attractive house dresses, these being Mesdames E. W. Logan, G. A. Benefield, Chas. Crawford, and H. F. Meyer.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. E. W. Logan the 23rd. Come, bring your five cents and attend the encampment the 19th.—Reporter.

Thin, Pale, Weak

"I HAD been through a bad spell of sickness which left me very weak," says Mrs. Virginia Spruce, of Stapleton, Va. "I was pale and felt lifeless, and my strength did not return. I spent most of my time on the bed. I was very nervous, and the least thing upset me. I did not have strength enough to lift a broom. At times I would have bad headaches, which would hurt me until I could hardly see. "Someone asked me why I did not try Cardui. I had read of it, so I thought I would see what it would do for me. It was really remarkable how I came out. My strength returned, and my health was better than it had been in years. I gained in weight about ten pounds. My color was good, and I ceased to suffer from headaches. I have told my friends about Cardui because I was benefited after taking it."

Two Million Americans Above the Age of 65 Years are Now Objects of Real Charity

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

An authority on old age dependency states that there are now 2,000,000 individuals in this country above the age of 65 who are wholly or partly dependent on others for their support. About one out of every four of the aged poor in America is responsible for these conditions, says:

The thrift and habits of saving on the part of individuals constitute one of the most important bulwarks against old age dependency but in my opinion something more, something over and above individual thrift is necessary if we are to abolish old age dependency. I refer to an old age insurance or pension system which, I believe, would unquestionably raise the general standard of living and eliminate the fear of old age.

Perhaps, as is here indicated, a national old age pension law is advisable but it is not the purpose of this article to go into this point.

We must not forget that society has its obligations to the unfortunate individual. But what are the obligations of the individual to his own interests?

As long as people are taught that thrift means merely saving money and that all the individual need concern himself about is putting money in a bank, we shall continue to hear the sorry stories of old age dependents.

Manifestly, our greatest need is for individuals to understand that true thrift consists of planning an economically successful life. This means that in addition to saving money, time must be employed in the development of an increased earning capacity; investments must be conserved to prolong the years of productivity; investments must be made that will yield a dependable income; insurance must be carried to protect one's self in case of accident or illness and to safeguard the future of one's dependents; and that when one's earning capacity is secure provision must be made against the time when old age or adversity arrive.

When the public ceases to regard thrift merely as saving money and learns to appraise it from the broader aspects as here pointed out, we shall have reached the period in our national life when old age dependency is much less a public problem than it is today.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

The ladies of the Auxiliary met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Irvin Miller.

The business meeting was opened with prayer by the chaplain.

The devotional was in charge of Miss Lula Hubbard and Mrs. Miller gave an interesting lesson on Missions at home and abroad.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mes James Chas. Barber, E. A. Bills, Irwin Miller, L. M. Touchon, F. W. Wynn, Sam Rumbach, H. B. Speck, Neal A. Douglass, W. G. Street, Miss Lula Hubbard.

REGULAR INSPECTION REDUCES VOLUME MAJOR REPAIR WORK

The advantages of subjecting automobiles to regular inspection and adjustment by trained mechanics is being appreciated by constantly increasing numbers of motorists according to data obtained from the records of local automobile dealers.

These records reveal a progressive increase in the number of regular "inspection calls" at Littlefield stations and a corresponding decrease in the number of "major jobs."

"It is an exceptional occurrence for us to find a 'major job' of repair work necessary on a car which the owner has brought regularly to his service station," remarked one local dealer. "The decrease in major service work is due of course, to the preventive factor which regular inspection and adjustment promotes. On the other hand, the owner who neglects the minor adjustments periodically required by any fine mechanism usually is the man who eventually may face a large repair bill."

"It has taken a long time to impress this fact upon motor car owners principally because of a very natural hesitance to visit the service station when to their inexperienced ears the car is 'hitting fine.' But the records show that this hesitance is being overcome and that as a result the owners are profiting financially and gaining greater satisfaction in the long and uninterrupted service delivered by their automobiles."

METHODIST CHURCH

A big service will be held at the Methodist church next Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour, when the minister will speak on the subject: "How the Christian Should Vote at the Coming Primary." All candidates are cordially invited to attend.

The evening service will begin at 8:30 p. m.

THE INDIVIDUAL YET NEEDED BY BUSINESS

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers Association

SOME seem to think that the day of the individual in business has passed. But they are wrong. While the individual may not attract such outstanding attention as he did in the days of old when institutions were conducted on a smaller scale, he nevertheless is to be found in any large corporation, dominating the situation, giving orders here, cooperating there and shouldering the responsibility of keeping a large group of lieutenants, captains and privates working in unison and moving forward under the banner of progress. And all of these are held accountable to the public because the public has entered into a partnership agreement with the corporation through purchase of stock.

John G. Lonsdale

Even in the gigantic mergers that have taken place within the last two years there remains more than ever the necessity for a leader, an aggressive personality, whose duty it is to see that basic principles are not forgotten, that the rights and privileges of the individual workers and the customers they serve are as well provided for as in the smaller business units.

It is gratifying to note that our corporations are giving more and more concern to the welfare of their workers. Numerous benefit organizations have been formed, opportunities offered for advancement of education and position, hospital service established and insurance and retirement pensions provided.

This general humanitarian movement in reality is the outgrowth of analysis, which has disclosed the need of improving the well-being of our individual workers, realizing at the same time that our institutions will benefit.

PREPAREDNESS IN BUSINESS

By R. S. HECHT,
American Bankers Association.

My observations for many years, both as an employee and as an executive, have convinced me that the reason some men and women go ahead and others do not is that some keep themselves constantly prepared to accept and fulfill larger duties and responsibilities as they offer, and some do not.

Grant, as we must, that there is a certain element of luck in the conditions under which opportunity for promotion comes to different men and women, we nevertheless must also see that it is each individual's own state of preparedness which determines his ability to seize opportunity if and when it comes, and having seized it, to succeed in meeting the greater demands which it inevitably places upon him.

Real advancement never means going ahead to easier tasks, but always to harder ones. Opportunity for advancement is worthless unless in accepting it you are able to carry with you the abilities and qualifications that prepare you to meet the heavier exactions that are an inherent part of opportunity.

It is far better to go into action in the field of enlarged responsibility prepared and qualified, rather than that you and the institution you work for shall be exposed to the hazard of your having to build up to new responsibilities after having assumed them.

The new spirit of all business seeks to prepare its people in advance through education for the higher duties it holds in store for them.

Bank Bandits Active

The greatest number of bandit raids on American banking ever recorded in the figures of the protective department of the American Bankers Association were reported during the six months ending last February. Bank members of the association reported for investigation 311 forgery cases, 107 holdup robberies, 16 burglaries, 2 sneak thefts and 8 mortgage swindles while non-member banks, numbering less than half the total enrolled in the association, suffered 86 holdup robberies and 9 burglaries, non-members being burglarized or held up once for every 89 banks, as compared with once for every 164 member banks. The association detective agents caused the arrest of 143 of the 236 bank criminals apprehended during the period covered.

The association's report on these conditions urges support of the movement to provide city police departments with radio-equipped cruising automobiles which have proved particularly effective in Cleveland and Detroit in the broadcasting of alarms and the closing in on criminals immediately after or even in the midst of the perpetration of crimes. Last year the average time elapsed between the receipt of radio calls by these cars and the 1325 arrests which followed was one minute and forty-two seconds, the report says.

READ: WHAT SOME OF OUR GOOD CITIZENS SAY ABOUT THE LITTLEFIELD SECTION OF THE FAMOUS SOUTH PLAINS

THESE MEN MOVED HERE FROM THE BLACK LAND BELT OF CENTRAL TEXAS, AND AFTER FARMING THE FERTILE LAND OF THE LITTLEFIELD SECTION FROM FOUR TO FIVE YEARS, HAVE GIVEN THEIR VERDICT WHICH SPEAKS FOR ITSELF, AS FOLLOWS:

Littlefield, Texas, November 12, 1929

To Whom It May Concern:

I bought a farm on Yellow House lands in Littlefield section in June, 1924, moved my family here in October, 1925.

Rented this land out one year and have made four crops on it myself.

Have had no failures and can cultivate two acres of my Littlefield land as cheaply as one acre of black land, and make as much cotton and more feed per acre.

The health of my family has improved and we are all delighted with the Littlefield section of the South Plains.

Very truly yours,
F. C. BEYER.

Littlefield, Texas, October 31, 1929

To Whom It May Concern:

I bought two farms from Yellow House Land Co., near Littlefield in 1924 and moved my family here in the fall of 1925.

This year makes my fifth crop in the Littlefield section, and have had no failures. In fact, have produced more feed and cotton on my land here than on the black land I own in Williamson County.

For diversified and successful farming, I would not give my land near Littlefield, acre for acre for any black land in Central Texas.

Yours very truly,
J. R. WALES.

Littlefield, Texas, February 18th, 1930

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In the late fall of 1925, I purchased a farm about four and one-half miles from Littlefield in Lamb County.

Have made four crops on this land.

In the year 1926 I had 105 acres in cotton and picked 68 bales. The same year my maize crop weighed out 4280 pounds per acre and hogari 4181 pounds per acre; also made 15 bushels of corn per acre.

In the year 1927, I had 105 acres in cotton and gathered 47 bales. The same year my maize and hogari averaged two tons per acre and corn 50 bushels per acre.

In 1928 I had 120 acres in cotton and picked 90 bales. During the same year my maize and hogari weighed out and averaged 4450 pounds per acre.

In 1929 I had 130 acres in cotton which made 142 bales. The same year my maize averaged over two tons per acre.

The above is a correct statement of products off my farm for four years as per the records carefully kept, and, in my opinion, the Littlefield section of the South Plains is the best diversified farming country in Texas.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) L. A. RATLIFF

This demonstrates beyond question that the Littlefield section is a cotton country second to none, and everybody knows it is a wonderful feed country.

With these facts, and the rapid settlement of this section by good farmers from Texas and other states, there can be but one result—THESE GOOD LANDS MUST ADVANCE IN PRICE!

Why not secure one or more of our 100 per cent farm tracts, or combination propositions in the center of development while same can be had at present low prices!

The Terms are Liberal and the Interest Rate Low
