Mr. Elms said that the Supreme Court decision by the Supreme Court regarding the Triple A program to cut down the farm income several million dollars first thought we would think would be that much less. The country would have to then come along Congress and the soldiers' bonus, and from this will more than make up for the government's checks that have been passed out this year."

Persons Seeking Relief After Nov. 1 To Get Employment

San Antonio, Jan. 21.—State Works Progress Administrator H. P. Drought today opened an avenue of employment to able-bodied family heads admitted to relief rolls between November 1 and December 31, 1935.

Barred from participating in the Works Progress program by a national regulation which restricted employment to those admitted to relief rolls prior to November 1, these "employables" became wards of their own communities January 1 when the Texas Relief Commission dropped all except incapacitated cases from the relief rolls.

Drought authorized district directors throughout Texas to accept these family heads, expected to number between 4,000 and 5,000 for employment on projects, declaring that "when we have done this, we will have fulfilled the original purpose of the Works Progress program, which was to offer employment to all able-bodied family heads on relief rolls."

The State Administrator asserted the regulation had discriminated against many worthy cases who had made every effort to sustain themselves throughout the depression years and who had come to ask public aid only after exhausting all personal resources.

"After January 1," Drought said, "there was no federal agency to which they could turn, and municipal and county governments complained that they were not able to help these unfortunates."

Instructions have been issued by Texas Relief Commission officials to each worker to certify all employable cases not found to be ineligible for aid prior to the automatic closing of their cases as of December 31. These cases then will be registered with the National Reemployment Service or the Texas State Employment Service and from these offices they will be assigned to Works Progress Administration projects. It was pointed out, however, that these persons will not be assigned until previously certified workers have been placed.

"It is important," Drought continued, "that local governmental officials do not misinterpret this order. There will not be any general relaxation of the essential employment regulations of the Works Progress Administration. The requirement that 90 per cent of all labor on projects come from relief rolls will continue to be strictly enforced."

"While we realize that there are other needy unemployed throughout the state who have managed to stay off the relief rolls, there is nothing we can do for them except provide jobs for such of those as may be placed on our projects through the 10 per cent allowance for non-relief labor."

"It must be remembered that this organization was established to employ 120,000 persons, a quota based on the employable relief load of May, 1935. It never was contemplated that WPA should employ all the idle, regardless of status; however, many local public officials have urged and are advocating such a course."

"If this position is prompted because some public officials are concerned primarily with the prosecution of public improvements, it should be remembered again that WPA was created to absorb employable relief cases, that public improvements are a by-product of their employment."

"The problem of caring for incapacitated persons and others lately found to be in dire need did not descend without warning on the local governments. Repeatedly during 1935 they were advised by officials of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and the Texas Relief Commission that relief grants would cease with the end of the year. The fact that local measures to meet this responsibility were not adopted should not now be laid at door of WPA."

TUESDAY'S SNOW

(This poem was written by a Littlefield young lady on the occasion of a recent snow.)

The earth is covered in a robe of white, That will shine in its brightness, even at night, A symbol of God's purity, he giveth us all, Saints and sinners, both the great and the small.

God's gift to Earth, God's gift to man, Nature's gift to the soil since the world began, It makes many hearts happy, this beauty to see, Farmers rejoice, children clap their hands in glee.

Lads and lassies go a hiking over hill and field, Happy in this promise of the harvest's future yield, Little rabbits scampering from out their homes of hide, Boys shooting gaily as they run and slip and slide.

Dear Father, we do thank thee for all the hearts made glad, And may the comforting Angel whisper softly to who is sad, That this snow in all its beauty awake our hearts anew, To give the blessing and the glory, To the one whom it is due. —Gene.

NEW COURSES ADDED FOR SECOND SEMESTER

Although several classes are being continued, many changes have been made for the classes after mid-term. However, two new courses have been added for the last semester. These were not taught before the examinations, but are taking the place of subjects which were completed. One of the added courses is Solid Geometry to be taught by Miss Robnetta, also Miss Cooper will conduct a Dramatic Arts class. These offer interested students a great opportunity.

F. F. A. SPONSOR INTERESTING PROGRAM

The F. F. A. club sponsored another very interesting program. A report on Chester White hogs was given by J. D. Humphries, ten jokes by Marshal Kregar were enjoyed very much. The part of the program most interesting was a boxing match between Paul Blackwell and Gerald Boykin. You should have seen this. Boy! How they swapped licks. A second match was between Pat York and Curtis Landrum. These boys are about the same size and seemed to be paired up very well. A third match, between Bob Pierce and Doyle Glazner was really good, while it lasted. Doyle hurt his knee and was unable to finish the fight. Reynold Allen and James Bachus took their places for the fourth match. Mr. Leach and Alvis Tubbs finished the show. From the looks of Alvis some people might think he got the worst end of the deal.

MID-TERM

Examinations of the turning point of the year have now settled the verdict of pass or fail with few failures. Those passing turn to a new semester with a bright outlook and new interest in one or more tasks to tackle, accomplish, and conclude the school year with high honors of willing workers and praiseworthy students, befitting such a school as Littlefield High.

With this interest in new subjects or last half of old courses the year promises to be one of great importance to all. But, of special significance to those who anticipate leaving L. H. S. when the job is completed next spring. Those seniors who passed look forward to a reward of four years in college; those who "flunked" are anxious to finish the year with enough credits to tide them over.

Among the other classes failures are regarded with attitudes from discouraging to indifference or in some heroic cases with determined resolutions to "get up and try again," not disheartened, but strengthened to study harder, work more, waste less time, and pass next time with the fruitful reward of their labors.

In all reality mid-term has not been a failure at all, but a chance to determine the course and strengthen the morale at another milestone on life's road reached.

Pep Paragraphs

The snows of the past month have brought us some much needed moisture, but Monday's sandstorm was a grim reminder of what we can expect most any day for the next three months.

Some farmers have started listing their farm lands, while others are still pulling holes or stacking feed. The local gin has ginned fourteen hundred bales to date, and expects to gin only a very few more. Friday the 7th, will be the only ginning day this week, as the weather has been too bad for much cotton to be gathered.

Mumps, flu and colds have claimed quite a few victims in this community. Ed Wotippa has been confined to his home the past week with a case of mumps, and M. A. Burt has been ill with the flu and a severe cold.

Mrs. Aldgers Roberts and Bill Eudy left Tuesday for Healdton, Oklahoma to be with their mother, who is reported as being seriously ill. They were accompanied by Mrs. Leonard Hill and baby who will visit in Duncan and Marlow, Oklahoma.

We are glad to report Miss Jungman and Bennie Greening able to be out again, having recently had to undergo operations for appendicitis.

Several new families have moved into our community since the start of the year, but as we have so many of them we cannot give their names. Jack Meetz has returned home in Seymour, having been employed at the gin the past months.

John Kuback, Mr. and Mrs. Cmeuk and Miss Estelle Gerken returned from an extended stay in West, Texas. They report an enjoyable visit, and Miss Gerken honoree at several parties.

ANNUAL REPORT OF C. H. D. A.

Mrs. A. F. Wedel states that until now she had no place but boxes under the beds to store her canned food supply, so she is extremely proud of her new 10x12 foot cellar equipment with 72 feet of 12 inch shelf space.

There was time during the summer to improve the cellars, as the wind blew so little that water was scarce and vegetables grew slowly. More wind and little rain the last of August and the first of September helped wonderfully and encouraged the women to continue their efforts to supply a balanced diet for their families.

At these achievement events the demonstrator's cellar and winter garden, and the cooperator's tomato products were displayed. The demonstrator explained what she had accomplished, and how and why she had accomplished it, and gave a report of what the cooperators had accomplished.

of fruit dried, and 4211 quarts of jellies and preserves, besides the 8556 quarts of meats canned, 32,967 pounds cured, an ample supply of milk and eggs as mentioned above. And 665 pounds American Cheese made, 6262 pounds peanuts, 4544 pounds cereal grain stored, and a great many turnips and carrots banked in the gardens.

Providing this food is a big step toward balanced meals, but they must go a step further and serve the food in balanced meals. The demonstrators planned a week's menus and exhibited at the achievement events. The agent will help the demonstrators personally with these menus and the demonstrator will report to their clubs next fall how the planned pantry worked out and how much was spent at the grocery store for supplementary food.

Mrs. J. R. Melton reports 570 cans of leafy, starchy, and other vegetables and tomatoes; 205 quarts of fruits and fruit juices; 108 quarts pickles and relishes; 171 pints of jelly and preserves; besides the beef that fill near 200 cans and the dried and stored products.

World War Cost Is Estimated At Forty-Five Billion

Payment of the soldier bonus will bring the cost of the World War to the American government to about $45,200,000,000, Treasury Officials figure. They conceded, however, that the cost would not stop there. Ever since 1921 the continuing costs—interest on Liberty bonds, veterans compensation and the like—has been running about $1,000,000,000 a year.

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS — A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining — and tragic — Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls — These characters are aboard the ship: Maeduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship —and his soul—NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The Red Sea stretched like a velvet carpet under a sky studded with stars. "Venus!" said Jenny, looking upward. "I always know it because of its translucence, and it seems so much closer to the earth than the others. I used to watch it over the river at Little Oaks, and now I'm seeing it near Aden with you!"

She clung to the rail, her figure enveloped in a dim blue blaze. She listened to the swish of the boat through the water, and watched its trail of foam. The funnels rose like black towers, pouring a stream of smoke into the night. It was hot in a smooth and milky way. She threw off her wrap and clutched at her throat. Peter slid his hand along the rail and caught her fingers.

"Strange, isn't it?" Jenny whispered.

"Why strange?"
"I feel as if we're all alone in the night and very far from everyone. I'm rather afraid."

"Afraid of what?"
She shuddered and pressed close to his side. There were moments when she was alone in all the universe, when there was no aid, no communion, anywhere, but how could one convey this sense of isolation, even to the man one loved? She sank to a deck chair and lay looking up at the stars. For an hour they seemed to be racing through foam under a canopy that reached to infinity.

"What a fine sense of exhilaration one gets on the top deck!" said Peter, turning from the rail to look at the silent Jenny. "But I wish we were having a roaring storm; this is so tame. . . I like the fury of the sea. You've never been in a real storm, have you Jenny?"

"No, never. I wonder if I should mind."

"I think you wouldn't like it, for your'e not attuned to wildness. Your mind and your body are passive.

He bent over her till her hair drifted across his mouth with a sharp fragrance. Her face was part of the night. For a moment he thought her a perfect stranger—so shadowy and remote! What did she dream of all the time? Why could he never reach the core of Jenny's thoughts? Why did she shut him out? He looked down the dim corridors of the future and wondered if he had made a mistake in taking her from her husband and home. Half of the time he was forced to comfort and reassure her, and she paid for a moment of rapture with hours of futile regret.

She turned to him suddenly, her voice edged with pain. "You're thinking of the future, aren't you, Peter?"

"I was thinking of you."

"I know—the two of us together. How do you think it will be afterwards, when all this is over?"

"This won't come to a sudden stop, Jenny. Our happiness will continue."

"It's peaceful here tonight, but I'm afraid of what time will do to us, Peter."

"Rubbish! You're carrying your troubled self too far from home."

Clare and Johnny went pacing by. Peter turned his head to watch the sweep of the figure in violet chiffon. Her shoulders swayed as she moved; she held her chin like a bird in flight. He was now abstracted, puffing at his cigarette. Jenny's voice was crossing his thoughts.

"I'm hypnotized by the sea, Peter. It's like a song in my heart, rhythmic and never-ending. Look at the queer glow on the horizon!"

"You never know what you are going to encounter in this region. I've seen the Red Sea churned like a mass of foaming devils, and again as calm as a pane of glass. But it's not a patch on the China Sea, which is always an ugly sight."

They went down to their stateroom and Jenny emerged slowly from her taffeta.

"You make me think of a white peony," said Peter, as her ruffled frock fell to her feet, "so pale, so dreamy, so fragile, as if each petal would drop off with a breath." He kissed her neck and behind her ears; he ran his fingers down to her slender wrists. "And your skin is as soft as a peony petal, and your eyes are as blue as the sea at noonday, and I love you very much!"

He caught her in his arms and Jenny's head drooped against his chest with fluttering eagerness. He kissed her throat and the blue lids of her eyes and then her mouth. The colour stirred slowly in her creamy cheeks and her lips grew scarlet and full.

"Peter, I adore you," she whispered, dragging herself from a deep abyss to meet his love with her own pale ardour.

"But, my dear you're so far away." Peter's lips were against her mouth. "It's like calling a ghost back to my embrace. I feel, when I possess you, that you're perched on a distant mountain, looking on. Darling, wake up! Love me as I love you."

Jenny heard his words in a dream. Why did he bother to talk? It was true what he was saying—she was remote, alone on a mountain-top. She could see the bluish line of his half-closed eyes, and his hair damp on his brow. Why did she feel so soothed instead of the stinging pain of love? She was drifting now on calm waters. It seemed as if she were back in the dhoby on the Nile, and she felt that she must be swooning. "Jenny! Jenny darling! Where are you? Oh, my love!" Peter was calling to her from a long distance, pain in his voice. She could hear the swish of the water outside the porthole. The light of the moon lay wan on the floor of their stateroom. Jenny's eyelids lifted. She was back from the distant places and was holding Peter in her arms. She adored him! He was gently and dropping off to a stroke his face like a child. "Jenny darling!" murmured through sleepy lids in a trance, hour after hour eyes fixed on the pencil of light that pierced the porthole.

Five days later the steamers steamed into the wide, flat sea. (Continued on classified page)

First Pontiac Cars Made January, 1926

Pontiac Motor Company is ten years old.
In January 1926, the first Pontiac cars were displayed at the New York Auto Show. Then Pontiacs were built in the old Oakland Motor Car Company plant.
As pointed out by H. J. Klingler, president and general manager of the company, Pontiac has made big strides in its first decade.
"During its first year it established the record of building more automobiles in one year than one company had ever built in a similar time," says Mr. Klingler.
"Pontiac provided itself with a $30,000,000 plant during its first year—4,000,000 square feet of floor space and a capacity of 1800 cars per day. It still is considered the finest and most modern plant in the industry.

"Pontiac holds the distinction of having built its first 1,000,000 cars in nine years and slightly over three months, a performance that has only been beaten once and then by a lower priced automobile.
"Through this decade it has been a leader in design and engineering as attested by the following list of features pioneered and developed by Pontiac engineers—rubber engine mounting (for low priced car); foot control for head lamp beams; A. C. engine driven gasoline pump; thermostat built into cylinder head; pressure-suction type crankcase ventilator; crankshaft with integrally forged counter-weights cross flow radiators; development of four bearing engine; grille for radiator; valve spring dampeners; spring covers; six cylinder heat control for carburetor; dynamic balancing of rotating parts; 4-point rubber mounting; fender indicator lamps; tin plated pistons; quiet second gear transmission; radiator grille of pressed steel; connecting rods of uniform weight and center gravity; flusher valve cooling; installed valve covers; theft proof gasoline tank filler neck; button type combustion chamber; quick warm-up intake manifold; Silver Streak styling; triple sealed brakes.

It will also be reproduced in nearly 1,200 other newspapers, according to Wesley I. Nunn, Conoco advertising manager. Today's Advertisement includes an invitation to enjoy the Centennial, while the second of the series, due to appear during the week of February 9, calls attention to "famed San Jacinto" and the Centennial. The third and final advertisement of the Texas series, scheduled for the week of February 23, refers to "The Alamo—Texas Centennial highspot."

Readers are asked to make their jaunt to Texas even more pleasurable by taking advantage of the free trip planning service of the Conoco Travel Bureau, Denver, Colo., largest organization of its type in America.

Nine years after Columbus discovered America, Pope Alexander, the Sixth granted to the Spanish Crown all of the new found lands upon condition that they would convert the natives to Catholicism. The Spanish kings accepted the grant on this condition. Visitors to Texas Centennial celebrations this year will find ruins of early Seventeen Century missions which were built by Spanish colonists for this purpose.
