FREE SESSIONS TO BE HELD AT PALACE 3 DAYS

Valuable Information On Cooking Simple And Fancy Dishes

Great interest is being shown in the Happy Kitchen Free Cooking School to be conducted at the Palace Theatre, Littlefield, and a number of interested women have made inquiries regarding the various features and the program to be carried out by the Lamb County Leader for the three days, October 31, November 1 and 2.

New Features This Year

Besides valuable information on cooking, both plain and fancy dishes, including salads, meats, cakes, pies, biscuits, etc., prizes etc. as given in former Leader schools, there will be special features this year, worth coming miles to participate in, never before offered, so all those planning to attend the sessions will be wise if they make a point to be at the appointed place, the Palace Theatre, before the opening hour.

Illustrates Cooking

Mrs. Gertrude Burbank, lecturer at the forthcoming Happy Kitchen Cooking School, gives a rather startling illustration of what she means by "dressing up" familiar foods to make them more toothsome and appealing.

"Just consider," she says, "a dinner of pot roast, potatoes, carrots, bread and butter. Picture it first just as something nourishing and you will find it rather dreary."

Tells How to Cook Meat

"But if you sear the pot roast to a dark brown with slices of onion and a tiny amount of garlic in the pan, then boil it slowly for hours in a small amount of water to which the juice of a can of tomatoes is added for flavor, it will be entirely different. Top the meat with parsley and serve the extra sauce separately."

"There is nothing quite so good with a pot roast as a baked potato, done to a turn, popped open and sprinkled with paprika and a bit of butter. The carrots, if cut in lattice shape or slender strips, are pleasantly dressy. Bread sticks and butter balls bring an air of festivity to the dinner table."

Cooks Simple Foods

Mrs. Burbank's lectures are full of such simple, practical and yet

Included in the Band Hall will be racks for the instruments and a closet for the band players uniforms.

The Meaning Of Charity

We sometimes — wonder whether "Charity" is not the most ill-used and mis-interpreted word in our language. We see so much of selfishness and penance, cloaked under a mantle of benevolence; we hear so very much about "Professional" and "Organized" Charity that the true meaning of this impulse and act, often eludes us.

Webster gives us an entire catalog of definitions — love, benevolence, good-will, liberality and lenience, are only a few of the many variations of charity, that are listed in the lexicon. We did not find patience, tolerance or sympathy listed as attributes of charity. Is it too extravagant — to define Charity as the "Nobility Of Heart and Mind" or "The Human Impulses?"

By these interpretations — even the poorest among us, can be charitable. Not many can endow hospitals or donate libraries; but — if true charity is within us, we may extend the warmth of understanding and sympathy, to our fellow man who is struggling through the darkness of spiritual vacuity.

Food, shelter and medicine, for the needy and sick, are charity — yes. We must never fail to relieve actual suffering. These acts are but natural exercises of our responsibility as human beings. Not until you THINK and FEEL exactly as the other man — will you have achieved the accolade of TRUE CHARITY.

Have I taken anything away — from the fineness of benevolence and kindness, by suggesting that there is more to charity than mere — visible gifts?

DAVE SCHEIN.

Something New For Farmers

The automobile makers are beginning to let the public in on the secrets of their new models. Every one of them has improvements and refinements of construction and design, intended to increase the comfort and safety of those who ride in them.

Looking over the advance announcements, it seems apparent that anybody who buys any of the new 1939 models will get a better car for his money than he has ever been able to get before.

There is only one radical innovation in motor vehicles that has come to our attention. While everybody has been trying to make motoring more comfortable for those who use their vehicles only for road travel, nobody heretofore has thought of making it more comfortable for the man who rides over plowed ground—the farmer who drives a tractor. If comfort is not needed there, it would be hard to say where it is needed.

The newest thing in tractors has an enclosed cab, with safety glass, cushioned seats for two, is air-ventilated and provided with a heater for cold weather. It has a self-starter, an electric cigar-lighter, a complete set of head and tail lights, and even a radio. If that doesn't take a lot of the hard work and monotony out of farming, what would?

This new motor vehicle, in addition to being able to pull plows and harrows across the field can "go to town" at forty miles an hour on the highway, hauling one or more trucks to market. One imagines that might also serve as a vehicle for joy-riding on moonlight nights.

At least, it is something new in farm equipment.

Reports received here are to the effect that the condition of C. C. Boles of Gordon, father of F. O. Boles of this city, has not improved, and that he is critically ill.

Believing that a tumor on the brain was the cause of his illness, an operation was performed on him at the Methodist Hospital, Dallas, Wednesday of last week, but reports indicate that the surgeon in charge found this was not the cause of his sickness, and therefore, it was not successful.

Howdy Folks:

Two men in Chicago decided to go in for a little kidnaping. They didn't even know the first rule for successful kidnaping — which is — pick 'em very young or old and feeble. They grabbed a 170-pound graduate of the Kansas Corn Belt. The seventeen year old white hope even had a gold medal for boxing hid among her souvenirs. Well — it was a short ride and just one round. Miss Brendel had to do her own counting after she had knocked her two assailants down and OUT. The girl could have made her fortune if she had only known it in time to sell tickets.

Last week — Secretary Ickes, attended the formal dedication of Babler National Park, near St. Louis. Harold Ickes, is perhaps America's greatest booster for National Parks; Amos Carter of Fort Worth, is another. In his address at St. Louis, Mr. Ickes urged the completion of the four national parks which are in widely separated parts of the Nation — Big Bend of Texas, the Everglades of Florida, Redwood in California and the Alaskan Bear Sanctuary. There is not a single site anywhere in America — that is better suited for a National Park than the Big Bend country of Texas; no two men are better equipped to see this project through than Harold Ickes and Amos Carter. We send our beef to Kansas City and our cotton to Liverpool — let's keep our tourists at home — in Texas.

Mrs. Sarah Womack of Dallas, has applied for a pension because she asserted, is the mother of 37 children. Governor Allred — while tremendously impressed, could not do anything about it. Evidently — this case does not come under the "Old Age" classification. In the same mail the governor received a request from four people of Bastrop, to be taken off the Old Age Pension Rolls. He rushed the last communication to the old age assistance officials, and advised all those who wished to get off the rolls, to apply to him — while he advised those wishing to get on — to apply to W. Lee O'Daniel. I'm not urging the merits of the Womack case — but I shall certainly make it my business to visit the Womack's, the next time I am in Dallas — for reasons that I do not care to make public.

Sally Rand, the famous fan dancer, is being sued for $375,000 damages, by Faith Bacon, former Earl Carroll's Vanities dancer. Faith claims that Sally "Cribbed" her dance. My — my — Sally, ain't you got no shame at all? What do you mean — taking the little girl's

PLEASE—BE FAIR!

When a community becomes infested by vermin, leeches or parasites of any kind, the people usually do something about it. These nuisances and dangers, are exterminated as fast as we can get them. We are not complaisant or indifferent, when we see a rat or a snake—we get rid of them—right now.

Don't know how I came to think of leeches and parasites, when I really started to discuss the itinerant sidewalk peddlers who have been crowding our main street corners, since a little cotton has been coming in—and money is a little easier.

Last Saturday, they were offering everything from fruits and vegetables, to household supplies and wearing apparel. There was no visible effort made to shew them off or collect any taxes from them. They were allowed to trade and traffic, just the same as if they were year-round, tax-paying citizens of our community.

We don't blame these strangers for trying to pick up a few extra dollars. We can also appreciate why our established merchants would hesitate to raise the issue — it's not pleasant to drive anyone off when they're just trying to make a living. Perhaps our city marshal is also prompted by kindness and sympathy, to let these people stay on.

The city ordinances — no doubt, provide for these contingencies, and these ordinances could probably — be enforced promptly and painfully. But — it occurs to us, that the main complaint is against those who patronize these irresponsible, fair weather merchants rather than against the law enforcers.

Littlefield is a friendly town. We do believe in live and let live. We are just as glad to see you when crops are bad and you come here empty handed. Through dull months and lean years — our merchants welcome you and work with you — as friends.

Do you think it is right — when you do have a little money to spend, to spend it with drifters who care nothing about you? Think it over — friends. DAVE SCHEIN.

saughty dance away from her? Now — I've never had the good fortune to come in personal contact with a fan dancer, or view their "Valuable" exhibition, and — therefore, I couldn't qualify on the jury that's going to try this case. Perhaps I can find some well-posted friends who will tell me whether this show is really worth 375,000 iron men.

I recently finished reading the highly touted English Novel "Citadel." It is supposed to be a brilliant example of realistic literature. To me — it was a rather sordid recital of the trials and tribulations of a doctor who was born with hard luck, and had continuous relapses. Being written by a brilliant doctor-author, it doesn't miss a bet, when it comes to the many ills and complications, that mortal flesh is heir to. I do not wish to take a single leaf from the wreath of laurel which critics have placed upon this work. Neither — it is my purpose to discourage you from reading it. After all — reading tastes, are as varied as roaders' minds. Personally, when I get up four-hours and strain my eyes — I don't want to go in for the stated grief and hardships, no matter how beautifully they may be described. If I had a craving for the sort of stark realism — I would bring a couple of heaping cabbage cans into my dining room, spend my vacation in the back room of an undertaker's shop.

Clay Sands, is a resident of "Earth," Texas. He is a tiller of the soil, and has built his success from the ground up. Brother Ripley — how are you doing? So long, DAVE SCHEIN.

LOCAL BUSINESS WOMEN OBSERVE NATIONAL B. & P. W. WEEK WITH VERY INTERESTING ACTIVITIES

An informal breakfast at the home of Mrs. Selma Yohner Sunday morning, concluded the week's activities for the Business and Professional Women's Club, who observed National Business Women's week, last week.

The Hallowe'en motif and cut flowers were used in decorations, and plate favors were small whistles with fortunes tied at the end of a purple string. Miss Maxine Cash and Dr. Hazel Nelms gave readings after the meal was served. Then the group attended church.

On Monday night, October 10, several members of the club were guests at a "Fun Party" at the Hilton Hotel in Lubbock, when members of the Lubbock Business and Professional Women's club were hostesses to the Littlefield and Plainview clubs.

Thursday at noon, the club had charge of the program at the Rotary club, and Friday night, a "Gin Party" was enjoyed, when the members took a trip through the McCaskill gin in the Valleyview community. They roasted weiners in the furnace at the gin, and had a picnic lunch.

The activities were in keeping with the eleventh observance of National Business Women's Week, with 1,546 clubs in every state

Condition of F. O. Boles Father Is Reported "Fair"

F. O. Boles reported to the Leader Wednesday morning that the condition of his father, C. C. Boles, was fair, and that he had a chance for recovery, after undergoing a serious operation, including brain surgery, in the Methodist hospital in Dallas last Wednesday. The actual results of the operation will probably not be known for several months, Mr. Boles said.

Mr. and Mrs. Boles have been at his father's bedside for the past two weeks, and Mr. Boles came home for two days, returning to Dallas in the morning, where he will stay ten more days. His father will probably be taken to his home in Mineral Wells in about two weeks, if his condition continues to improve.

Dr. I. T. Shotwell Jr., of Littlefield witnessed the operation, as a request of F. O. Boles.

Besides his mother being at his father's bedside, Mr. Boles' brothers and sister, Cecil C. Boles of Houston and H. R. Boles of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Mrs. E. E. Spears of Snyder were also present.

Mrs. Walter D. Arnold of Hillside visited in the home of her mother, T. M. Cummings, from Thursday to Tuesday. Mr. Cummings is pastor of the Church of Christ on Littlefield Drive.

Rapture Beyond

by KATHARINE NEULIN BURT

FIRST INSTALLMENT

When Jocelyn, forgetting what her music master had taught her, played music on her own, her mother, Marcella was alarmed. It was like the voice of a stranger in the house.

She rose from the prie-dieu in an alcove of the long Spanish-looking room, difficult to recognize as the living room of a New York apartment, and came forward past intervening massive furniture to look at the player.

There she sat, the daughter Marcella had put into a foreign convent twelve years before, a smooth sleek golden girl, eighteen years old, full-bosomed, narrow-waisted and round-hipped.

"I want her to be safe," she had murmured to a nun when twelve years before she had left the little girl trembling in the dim wax-smelling parlor of the convent. And greeting her only two days ago on the wharf of her native city with all the strange tall towers stretching up behind them Marcella had said again to the same nun, twelve years older, more waxen and more frail, "Oh, dear Sister Delice, how shall I keep her—safe?"

The music Jocelyn was playing now, with that thunder look in her eyes and the bent position of her head, did not sound safe. Jocelyn played gropingly, changed the time, dropped into a definite melody and began to sing in French, softly. Marcella did not understand all the words but she made out that some child played in the house, ran down the street, worked in the garden with spade and hoe, but that always, suddenly, no matter what she did something would cause her to look sharply back over her shoulder when . . . the little humpback crept up behind her . . . And this recurred in a refrain:

"Quand le petit bossu, ma foi! Vient se placer derriere moi."

It was a French nursery rhyme, Marcella remembered but the music to which this child of hers had put it was not a nursery melody. It was a Poe theme, a melody of fear. Le petit Bossu was no friendly genius who played with children. He was a little monster, a little master, and however the wretched haunted victim tried to distract herself, whatever childish pleasure or duty she undertook, there of a sudden, casting a cold shadow or making the faint sound of an uneven step, the little humpback, ma foi! had come to place himself behind her.

Jocelyn Harlowe's first ball-gown—it was for a costume ball—was white as all first ball-gowns probably should be. She was dressed conventionally enough as Juliet, in ivory satin with a cap of pearls on her head and with a rope of pearls wrapped about her slim throat.

"I must marry this child quickly," Marcella thought. Her own image, tall and black, stood like a shadow in a mirror behind the radiant girl. "I am neither gifted nor disposed for its entertainment or control. I must get it off my hands, must lock it up again before it can injure me or divert me. I must make it safe again as it was safe in the convent. I must put it out of the way.

In her terror Marcella actually used this dreadful euphemism, without any realization of what her mind had said. She did not know that in her tormented and angry soul she had wished a death. She called herself Jocelyn's mother but what she wished for in face of a brilliant being, deep-eyed, deep-bosomed, ruby-lipped, was . . . its annihilation. She called the destiny a marriage. She had even instantly, as a murderer instantly conceives his weapon, a husband in her mind. It must be managed quickly before Jocelyn was fully awakened to reality. She must be made to long for it ignorantly as a release.

Before Jocelyn's return from Fance Marcella had been busy warming chilled social contacts, melting the edges from metallic connections of one sort or another. She had once had a great position in the city and it was not too difficult, in spite of what had once shattered her life, to make herself remembered. So when she brought Jocelyn into the ballroom, she was able to obtain for her, aided by her own exotic charm, a sufficiency of fantastic partners—to Jocelyn they all seemed Romeos and the ballroom an iridescent bubble of delight—and at last even to attract for her the supper-partner Marcella had desired. This was Felix Kent, dressed as the Jack of Diamonds.

"But you don't look it," he said, seating himself beside flushed Juliet at the small palmy rosy table they had taken for themselves. "You don't look it and you don't act it and you don't—yes, you do speak it. You have a delicious little French accent. And, well, something about the way you move your lips and use your eyes is different, conventional. Perhaps I'm not going to be disappointed after all."

This was an address altogether different from any Jocelyn had yet received. An older man, evidently.

"Mr. Kent," she said, "you have really no right to any disappointment, have you? Because you can't have had an interest in me (there was shadowy delicate drumroll on the r) ever before tonight."

"You're wrong. I've had an interest in you for—let me see—twelve years."

"But you are just seely" scoffed Jocelyn at her sweetest. "And I have not any French accent at all."

"Twelve years ago I saw you in a bank in Paris. You were on your way to the convent where your wise, wise mother has kept you jailed for all these years. And I said to your mother, 'Give me a first option when she comes out, won't you, Marcella?'"

"But, Mr. Kent, you are not so old as that?"

"I am nineteen years older than you are, Miss Jocelyn. I was twenty-five when you stood in the Paris bank and looked up at me. You weren't a pretty little girl. But I had a sort of vision. And even then I liked the notion of a convent-bred . . ." he dropped his voice and diverted his large blue eyes, "wife," he finished gravely. After a pause, "It's more than a notion now that I am close to you," even too close it seemed to Jocelyn, "and looking into your eyes and hearing you speak I see that you are really convent-bred. How long will that last through, here?"

"And my mother did give you a first—option?" questioned Jocelyn with her eyes down.

"She did, really. She said to me that day in Paris, 'There isn't a man in the world I'd be so glad to trust her to, Felix. Will you wait?'"

"I am here," said Felix. "Thirty-seven years old. Successful. Unattached."

"And you did wait of course?" "I wonder," she spoke musingly, "what you were doing all these years? Think of it, if you will, twelve years! And you in the world, exciting, pleasant, dangerous, full of so many wonderful stirring things. And you were making your success. A great one, wasn't it?"

"I will admit to you that it has not been—insignificant."

"And learning to understand men and women and life. For twelve long years while I . . . oh, Mr. Kent, how shall I ever make them up . . . twelve years!"

"But, dear child, the years between six and eighteen are not years when a girl, or a boy either, can be turned loose in the world." "Are they not?" she said, "Sometimes I've dared to think, though naturally nobody cares what I think, that a great education for the world would be to live in it."

"Life for a girl should begin with her marriage."

"That is what they taught us at the convent. I did not know you believed that here."

Kent laughed. But he was giddy and filled with instant fear. There had never in the world been a lovely child like this one, so frankly hungry, so ignorantly passionate, and so untaught; with not a jot of the deep cold wisdom of experience. He could hardly bear to surrender her to her next partner. He felt an absurd knife-edge of pain and anger when she was drawn into the young man's arms. The boy had a masked face and a slender gondolier's waist, slashed in scarlet silk.

Kent sought out Jocelyn's mother and bending his fair lean height above her he talked and talked and talked.

Jocelyn danced past them where they stood and wondered why they were so flushed and serious.

"It was the Jack of Hearts, wasn't it, that stole the tarts?" she asked the gondolier.

"Sure thing," said this partner, trying to break the soft reserve of her body to his own will, "but that chap you had supper with is the Jack of Diamonds. He's Felix

Those people who cannot buy the cans, are urged to can the projects in jars, for the cannery does not furnish the cans nor jars.

Government Loan Cotton "From Farm To Market"

Bring us your cotton in any quantity — from one bale up. We guarantee you correct weights and highest possible loan value. Don't overlook the FREE service that our plan of handling loan cotton covers—we pay the freight and make no handling charge, neither at the local compress or the port. Just bring us your gin samples and gin weights—we ship your cotton over the local compress as transit cotton, free of all handling charge here—we save you the expense of weighing, sampling, and marking—no charge for receiving and classing your cotton at Galveston. We give you a demand draft upon receipt of your gin samples and gin weights, you secure bill of lading at your nearest shipping point, if more convenient than at the compress.

After cotton has been compressed and shipped to the warehouse at Galveston we have it officially weighed by bonded weigher and classed by government classers and mail your outturns together with copies of loan papers and draft for amount due you for gain in weights and class, if any.

When and if market should advance to where you have a profit over and above the loan value, you would be in position to easily arrive at the net value of your cotton, simply because the first handling from the gin puts your cotton into one of the ten world markets.

Otherwise, when the market advances above the loan value and you have the privilege to sell your loan cotton stored in interior warehouses, you will then be confronted with handling charges that we now offer you FREE.

Please don't confuse our plan of handling loan cotton with the so-called "pool" plan—we have no connection whatever. Our plan is "from farm to market", handling charge free. As you know, Galveston is one of the ten world markets to arrive at the loan value of your cotton.

We handled thousands of bales for producers throughout this country last year, and at one time last spring were able to offer them as much as 30 points for equities on cotton shipped and placed in the loan at Galveston, but were unable to offer anything for cotton stored in local warehouses because of the charges that would follow it.

Ask those for whom we have shipped loan cotton in the past season, and BRING US YOUR COTTON. Our plan is the plan "FROM FARM TO MARKET"—we pay the freight and handling charge is FREE.

Clean as a Kitten

AS IF IT HAD NINE LIVES, a clean, correctly lubricated motor keeps going mile after mile, and year after year... with less fuss and noise, and fewer costly visits to the repair shop.

The dictionary says that refine means "to purify, to cleanse" - which gives you an idea of what we do to produce Phillips 66 Motor Oil. Out go destructive impurities and harmful elements. Out goes wax, to insure free, fast flow in winter. Out goes gum which might make piston rings stick.

What remains is a great lubricant... 100% Paraffin base... 100% Phillips value, with rich body and high-degree oiliness to provide a tough, friction-reducing film... resistant to high speed, high pressure, high heat.

And the big plus is the Phillips name. This makes for peace of mind, because you know that you are getting all the lubrication you pay for, when you drain and refill with Phillips 66 Motor Oil... at the Orange and Black 66 Shield.

NORMA SHEARER RETURNS TO SCREEN IN TITLE ROLE OF "MARIE ANTOINETTE"

After a year of research for history's double, a record-breaking cast of 152 players was assembled for "Marie Antoinette," co-starring Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power.

Among the prominent players featured in support of the stars are John Barrymore, Robert Morley, Anita Louise, Joseph Schildkraut, Gladys George, Henry Stephenson, Cora Witherspoon, Barnett Parker, Reginald Gardiner, Henry Daniell, Leonard Penn, Albert Var Decker, Alma Kruger, Joseph Callea, George Meeker, Scotty Beckett and Marilyn Knowlden.

Hundreds of tests were made before actors and actresses could be found capable of recreating such famed historical characters as King Louis XVI, Madame du Barry, the Empress Maria Theresa, Danton, Lafayette, Benjamin Franklin, Robespierre and others.

"Assassin of Youth" To Be Featured At Ritz Theatre Saturday

The "Assassin of Youth" which will be featured at the Ritz Theatre Saturday midnight only, is a picture that portrays the ravages of the Marihuana weed.

The picture was screened in various states and has the endorsement of the Women's club and numerous educational bodies.

Leo J. McCarthy, the producer, started to make this picture with the thought in mind that it would portray merely the ravages of the Marihuana weed.

But in order to keep away from the preachment it interwove the story with the natural happenings of high school youths of today, their friends, their enemies, and their problems.

FIVE BILLIONS TO BE SPENT IN REARMAMENT PLAN UNDERWAY

The rearmament program planned by business leaders of the United States has estimated the plan will call for the expenditure of at least five billion dollars, during the next 15 months.

A fundamental goal will be the removal from WPA payrolls to private employment of a major portion of the unemployed by the end of the period—in 1940. The figure of $1,000,000,000 reported in Washington dispatches relates only to the total contemplated addition to the budget, leaders said, whereas the program as a whole, including non-budgeted federal loans and private participation, involves "not less than $5,000,000,000" additional.

According to their calculations, the broad effects of the rearmament program should begin to be felt by mid-spring and should reach a peak between 15 months and two years from the present, or in the summer and fall of 1940.

Chief elements in the defense program, aside from the obvious ones of army, navy and merchant marine expansion, were described in these:

1. A public utility expansion program involving expenditure of not less than $3,000,000,000.
2. A railroad rehabilitation program, still in a very tentative state, in which the sum of $1,000,000,000 has been loosely mentioned.
3. Industrial plant rehabilitation, chiefly in chemical, automobile, airplane, and heavy industry machine-making plants. Again estimates are at the tentative stage, but a rough survey has indicated that not less than $1,000,000,000 would be required over a 15-month period.

"Buy the world? But just what would that mean?"

The boy laughed, stopped and made an enormous gesture, all in the syncopated rhythms of their exercise. "Means whoopee, tout'ee qu'il y a," he said. "Let yourself go, kid. The music will teach you. I'm not dangerous. Not half so dangerous as a Knave of Diamonds, anyway."

"I think I will marry the Knave of Diamonds," said his obedient partner just before she was stolen from her young tutor in the art of letting herself go. "because I want nothing smaller than the whole wide world and I would love whoopee."

It was morning, almost broad morning, when Jocelyn stepped into her mother's waiting automobile. Marcella had climbed in first and settled into her corner profoundly. She leaned back there like a limp wooden doll.

Jocelyn put her hand on the side of the door and set her foot on the running board.

Something cold touched her hand.

T. WADE POTTER
 ATTORNEY AT LAW
 Office in First National Bank Building
 LITTLEFIELD, TEXAS

She stepped down again and turned. Just behind her, a man had placed himself. A cripple. He looked up into her face from his shrunken height with bright eager eyes. In his left hand, the one that had not touched her, he held the vanity case she had let fall.

Jocelyn took it, almost snatched it from his long fingers, thanked him breathlessly and stumbled into the car. It moved forward.

"Why did you take so long to get in, Jocelyn?" There was something like repressed fury in Marcella's nervous voice. "The air blew in on me. I'm chilled through."

"A little man. A little man—came and placed himself behind me," she said painstakingly.

She gripped her mother's hard long hand in both of her own and bent down her head upon them. So she crouched against Marcella's lap with her face hidden. She had never really known a mother's comforting. So perhaps she did not know how to miss it either, then.

Often Felix Kent came in to see them. During his visits in the livingroom Marcella was a constant chaperon. Jocelyn would play her piano or sit with her eyes down listening to her mother's hard manufactured conversation with the older man.

But the girl's eyes studied Felix Kent. The grayness of each temple became him. His regular long face was handsomely correct. A sort of incandescence obliterated the expressionlessness of his large blue eyes when they met hers. Watching him sidelong through her tilted eyelashes Jocelyn found him a feast to her starved fancy for hero-worship. She had never before studied a man at such close quarters.

There came an evening when Marcella left them alone. Jocelyn was at her piano dutifully executing a commanded melody. It was intricate and held all her attention. She did not know that she had been left unchaperoned in the room with Felix Kent.

He came and stood close to her, leaning on the piano. In the slim severity of evening dress he looked sleek and attractive, like a panther. "Stop playing . . . just a minute, Jocelyn, please."

"Your mother has left us together."

Jocelyn stood up, saw that the rest of the room was empty, sat came an dplaced himself behind her.

"I asked her to," Felix continued. He came and sat down beside her on the long piano bench. "You're not afraid of me, are you?"

"No." But she was shaking and wondering why.

"Your freshness, my darling, is an ecstasy to me. And your wildness as lovely as a spring wind. You know I love you."

"Yes," said Jocelyn trembling.

"Do you think you can love me?" "I don't know, monsieur."

He laughed in soft delight and drew closer.

"I may put my arm around you, loveliest?"

She made no movement sound but he, interpreting her silence, did draw her to him and came softly, suddenly so that all her young body seemed to be his. Then he kissed her mouth.

At that she was up and at the far side of the room. Never had she seen a living creature move so swiftly. Both her hands were pressed against her lips. Her bosom panted. Her eyes were distended and wet.

Warehouse To Be Erected At Enochs By G. P. Howell

State permit to erect a bonded cotton warehouse at Enoch has been received by G. P. Howell, veteran farmer and business man of the community and he is beginning right away its construction.

First house is to have a 1,000 bale capacity. Howell said his permit enabled him to erect storage enough for 4,500 bales if necessary.

Crop conditions in this section of Bailey county are better than other parts. Several weeks ago good rain was received and cotton was greatly benefitted. Harvesting is starting. The total crop is expected to compare favorably with last year, a record breaker for the county.

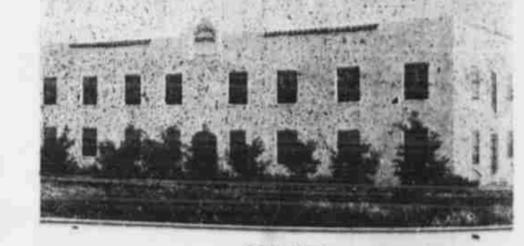

The Howell gin recently became a cooperative owned and operated gin, with a board of directors. Howell is a director in the group.

I. C. Enochs is completing a gin to replace one destroyed by fire last season. It will be ready for operation soon.

In Memory Of Mrs. P. S. Hanks

By Mrs. Lyle Brandon

On Thursday afternoon the 13th we made the sad trek to the church and cemetery and laid to rest the remains of our very dear friend and loved one, Mrs. P. S. Hanks, better known to most of us as Hazel. With the passing of her all of us lost a very dear friend and some of us lost the best friend we ever had.

She was a good wife and a wonderful mother, and always did her duty well, whether at home or church or for the welfare of her community.

Nothing was too large or too small if it was her's to do.

She was sweet and beautiful with brown wavy hair and the bluest of blue eyes and always wore lovely shades of blue. Any beautiful shade of blue always reminds us of her.

She was a great lover of flowers and was yard demonstrator for her club. Her room all the time she was ill was filled with beautiful flowers, given to her by her many friends, and laying there among so many beautiful flowers, dressed in a lovely shade of blue, seemed so appropriate as we viewed her for the last time, because it was so much like her.

There is a vacancy in our hearts and home and in our little community church that can never be filled, but because she would want it like that we will try to say with the poet, James Whitcomb Riley. That she is away.

SHE IS AWAY

I cannot say and I will not say That she is dead, she is just away! With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand She has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be since she lingers there, And you, Oh you, who the wildest years For the old-time stop and the glad

On Frame Gardens
Supplying Needs

Mrs. Marshall Gregg of Cottle county finds that her cold frame garden not only helps feed the family fresh vegetables but she has sold $15.00 worth of papper and tomato plants since April. Mrs. Reece of the Ropesville project in Hockley county, has replanted her cold frame garden three times since February first. The garden is five by seven feet and has provided her family of five with fresh vegetables for table use. She has canned 15 quarts of greens and sold enough to buy seed for each planting and pay for the covering. Mrs. Donald Show stated that her family has had more vegetables this year than ever before. They had to buy everything except beans and peas until they learned to make the frame garden. Mrs. Mary Watson Jones, former Lamb county Home Supervisor, says, "I gave a cold frame garden demonstration in Lamb county in April. I had thought that it was too late to make frame gardens until fall, but the people who live near the sand hills find that the sand blows over on the gardens and cuts the young tender vegetables back; therefore they have carefully observed the frame gardens that I helped to build in the sand hill neighborhood this spring and find that they are very desirable for all year." Mr. Homer Campbell of Olton estimates that about one hundred people have visited his garden since it was made the 12th of April. Many of them come at regular intervals of about once a week to see what progress is being made. In addition to his frame garden, he has sub-irrigated three-fourths of his big garden with tin cans.

"From these true statements you can gather what the frame garden can mean to the farm family. I shall be glad to assist in frame garden demonstrations in your community if you desire to have them," says Miss Adkins, Home Supervisor, Lamb county.

Report Shows Over
10,000 Bales Under

First cotton ginning report of the South Plains shows over 10,000 bales under the same report of last year. Totals for the report as of October 1 were 41,893 bales this year compared to 52,710 bales last year.

Only 12 counties were shown on this year's report. Bailey, Briscoe, Castro, Cochran, Gaines, Farmer and Terry were not included. Youkum and Borden counties do not have a gin, and for several years Swisher has not been included because there are only about two gins in the county and the department of commerce does not disclose individual ginnings.

Dawson is leading in the first report with 8,128 bales ginned; Scurry is second with 7,390 bales; Crosby third with 6,817 bales; Lynn fourth with 6,355 bales and Dickens fifth with 5,255 bales. Last year rankings were, Lynn, Scurry, Dawson, Crosby and Lubbock. Lubbock this year is sixth.

State total this year is 1,900,442 bales, compared with 2,649,355 last year.

Lateness of the crop this year is a factor in the small ginning report. The huge crop harvested in 1940 did not begin to appear until after October reports were complete. More than 1,000,000 bales were harvested for the season. Estimates this year place the probable total at 400,000 bales.

Margie Goes...
Snooping and Shopping

Looks like the three L's will lead again in cotton production this year. Lubbock, Lynn and Lamb counties are said to have the best crops on the South Plains.

Ernest Cundiff complainin' about his telephone bill . . . said he guesed he'd get a "Magaphone" and call to town from his place.

The new Littlefield Hospital is certainly a beautiful building. There'll be 20 patient rooms, and all the necessary rooms for the doctors, etc. In the witing room, there will be a rock fireplace, built out of the rocks found near Tucumcari, New Mexico, by Mr. Coffman and Mr. Wells. There will also be a fish pond including in the landscaping.

Lenton Smith wants the room across from the nurse's desk and the signals in the new hospital.

Miss Freddis Adkins visited in San Marcos last week end. Three weeks is a long time to stay away from the One and Only.

Lois Kirkpatrick was called Miss Chiropractor by one of her students last week. She has the first grade, and she said she had just finished giving the kid an adjustment.

Chewing gum is getting permissible in all types of business now. —No longer do I feel out of style for chewing a wad of gum while I type, and I keep time with hitting the keys and chewing.—W. E. Heathman gets excited about his oil business and chews gum a little faster.—Mr. Dale at Perry Bros., is a good chewer-upper, and I'll name others, if you insist.

"Yes, I took all my winter clothes to MADDOX TAILOR SHOP, and had them altered and cleaned and pressed at such a remarkable low price . . . and all my clothes look like new, now. — You're not seeing me with all my winter suits, dresses and coats just out of the closet, as the cold weather comes." You, too, will tell your girl friends about the amazing service MADDOX TAILORS gives — for they use that wonderful DRI-SHEEN PROCESS, which makes the dirt scamper away, and leaves a luster that cannot be achieved elsewhere. Maddox can do wonders with last year's left-overs.

The fabricating oil that Dr. Hazel Nelms and Mrs. Fern McAdams poured in their coffee cups at the "Gin Party" Friday night, tasted good with cream and sugar, so they said. The Business and Professional Women enjoyed their trip through the McCaskill Gin, and the weiners they roasted in the furnace of the boiler at the gin, as a part of the National Business Women's Week celebrations.

The girls at the Payne-Shotwell hospital purchased a very nice box of chocolates for Don Harris, who has been there for the past three weeks, following an operation. Reports are that he only had a chance to eat two pieces of the "lovely" candy.

Frank Bartley is not only interested in the Highway Department of our state. . . (He worked on the Police Department in Austin ten months last year) . . . But he also has an interest in the Payne-Shotwell Hospital in Littlefield. . . One of the front steps has been reserved for him.

Madam Grapevine told me last week that a certain attractive young lady who works at a store with a "Floraheim Shoe" electric sign, is to take those sacred vows sometime this fall.

You can shop anywhere, but you can't find any better values, when you are ready for an in-between-snack, than at GRAHAM'S LUNCH ROOM. You can't help but enjoy the coffee, and the short orders, after the show, or after skating for several hours. Mr. and Mrs. Graham are so friendly that you feel like you have been at home having lunch and a friendly chat.

Wonder why Geo. Webster was stalking into the Girls' Dorm at Texas Tech Thursday evening about 7:30? Does he have a sister in school there?

And, James (Red) Norman and Bill Street have been making frequent trips to Lubbock, too.

Coffee drinkers? Oh, yes, there are a large number of men who indulge in several cups every day. This week, I'll tell you about four . . . Next week, there will be four more, etc.

J. M. Stokes takes his coffee very hot and straight, that is, without sugar or cream.

Dr. Ira Woods just orders a half cup of coffee, fills the cup with water and cream, and uses about half cup sugar.

W. H. Madden drinks his coffee with his spoon in it, a little cream, but no sugar.

But Clay Pumphrey is the person who needs to buy a cup of sugar, then mix a small portion of coffee with it, then a little cream.
