COUNTY LABELED 'TOO WET'

Funnels Trigger Alarm

Plant Disease, Weeds Appearing

Rain-heavy black clouds, wind-blown and streaked with electricity, dropped two funnels in the Littlefield area Sunday and sirens sent skiddish residents scurrying to shelters.

At 10:55 p.m. Deputy Leonard White spotted a funnel, not on the ground, which triggered the siren warning.

White was stationed at an intersection west of town and first sighted the funnel about a mile and one-half northwest of town. Shortly thereafter, a flash of lightning lit up the area and White saw the funnel passing almost due east.

Another funnel was sighted about three miles south during the scare which lasted until about 30 minutes past midnight when the all-clear was blown.

Another surge to cover almost occurred at that time as many residents had forgotten one long blast is blown to signify all-clear. Chief of Police F.A. Fitzgerald said six blasts indicate tornado warning.

Rainfall in the storm and since Sunday has varied from 1.36 inches in the city to more than six inches reported at Pleasant Valley Community in the northwest corner of Lamb County.

In the Rocky Ford Community where one inch of rain fell Sunday night and 1.4 inches Monday night, rainfall since the June 2 storms has added up to the 20-inch vicinity.

Johnny Feagley said about 10 inches was received in the early June downpour, adding "my rain gauge ran over," and that at least five or six inches fell the rest of June, in addition to July's precipitation.

Feagley and County Agent Buddy Logsdon said "it is quite possible" some farmers in that area have received more than 20 inches in June and July. Logsdon said the county did not receive damaging washing with this week's rains but "everyone is sure wet. We just didn't need more rain right now."

Feagley said crops around Rocky Ford are water logged, as in most of this area, and some are dying from too much water.

Due to excessive rainfall, Logsdon said, "We have a lot of seedling disease showing up, especially in late planted cotton. We don't know the extent of it yet because the farmers can't get into the fields to examine the crops."

This last condition -- not getting into the fields -- has created a "big weed problem," Logsdon commented. He said the weed situation is "really looking rough," and added, "surely they can get in to work them before long."

Logsdon said the county now is not suffering from storm damage but from the results of too much water. Feagley said the plants have "stood in water too long -- they are looking sick."

However, Feagley commented the crops were looking better Wednesday morning.

Pat Rice, of Soil Conservation Service, said that office had not heard of any storm damage resulting from July weather.

At Earth, strong winds and black clouds which dumped 1.5 inches of rain there Sunday night, resulted in tornado warnings sending the residents of that town running for cover, but the cloud passed over without damage.

Anton called here about 11:18 p.m. and told officers of a cloud approaching. The alert had already blown at Anton and its people had taken cover.

A cloud approaching Amherst delayed Littlefield's all-clear signal by creating brilliant electrical display.

In Littlefield, hospital patients were taken to basement security, officers said. Attendees at one hospital called the Police Department about 11:55 p.m. asking if the storm had cleared enough to return patients to their rooms. They were told to do so, police said, although the all-clear was not sounded for the general public until 12:24 a.m.

Electric poles and lines were reported down in two locations west and one south of County Line Gin. At least six color television sets were hit by lightning in the area, officers said.

One of the heaviest deluges was reported by Bob Wade of Earth who said he and his family were returning from a trip that night and high water stopped them "right at the Bailey County line." Wade said they drove back to Muleshoe and spent the night.

AMONG THE MANY families seeking shelter in the basement of the county courthouse Sunday night was the Alvin Upchurch family. They were joined on two levels of the building by an estimated 300 to 350 other persons, chased here by a tornado on the north outskirts of town.

'OLD WAYS' DISAPPEARING

Hawaiians Easy-Going People Despite Progress

"In Hawaii, everyone is always friendly, always happy-go-lucky," said Mrs. Manuel Martins of Hilo, Hawaii in a recent interview here.

She continued, "Everyone says 'Aloha' all the time. 'Aloha' means everything -- it means 'How are you,' 'Good luck,' 'Hello and Goodbye. . .'"

At this point, her 17-year-old son David piped with a grin, "In Hawaii, you don't know whether you're coming or going. . . ."

And everyone laughed merrily. "Everyone" was members of the family of Mrs. Pat Rice of 1419 W. 4th, the former Vivian Martins of Hawaii. The laughter also included Vivian and her husband Pat who obviously were having a marvelous time amid the clever, easy-going quips being tossed from person to person.

AS DESCRIBED by the family, Hawaii is a happy, relaxed land of friendly fun in the midst of great beauty -- a land of water and sky and "bright, bright color" -- where children learn to swim by the time they can walk and everyone has a lifesaver's certificate.

(This recently proved a fortunate thing here, because David is the youth who helped Stanley Harrell administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to an eight-year-old Anton boy, Mickey Molder, and revived him after a close escape from being drowned.)

Hawaii, as unfolded by the Martins, is relatively free of the stress and strain which characterizes American mainland living, although most of the "old ways" are disappearing since the islands have become a state in the Union and are experiencing American progress.

NEVERTHELESS, everything has remained "carefree," the Martins said. Work hours, generally, are 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Hawaii has a school sponsored program called "Summer Fun," the Martins said, which keeps children under supervision from 8 a.m. to 12 noon daily. "There is no studying, just fun," Mrs. Martins explained. The program has two six-week semesters of swimming, baseball, craftwork, etc.

you are taken to jail and your parents must come get you."

IN HAWAII, there is no racial discrimination.

"It is a melting pot," Mrs. Martins described it. "It is the East-West center. In Honolulu there are students from all over the world. In Hawaii, the East does meet the West and learn about each other's cultures."

The Martins said although the cities in Hawaii are much the same as here, "One thing we can't get used to -- over there, the stores are run by orientals. We went into the stores here and thought, gee, look at all the white people."

Mrs. Martins chuckled, "People here think we go around in hula skirts and live in grass huts."

Suddenly the Martins grandson, 11-year-old Michael Seto chimed in with amused disappointment. "I thought there would be cowboys and Indians here! Nobody is on a horse -- everyone rides in a car!"

This brought more family laughter, and the Martins said children in Hawaii play cowboy and Indians just as they do here on the Mainland.

ANOTHER POINT noted about Texas by the family was its extreme climatic conditions and sudden changes in temperature. "We had always heard Texas was hot," Mrs. Martins said, "Now we know! Then suddenly it rained and we almost froze to death!"

Only real complaint was, "We never see anything about Hawaii in the newspapers! Egypt, Indonesia, almost everywhere else in the world -- but no Hawaii."

MANUEL MARTINS, Mrs. Rice's father, is a tugboat captain with Hilo Transportation and Terminal Co. He said his main duty was to assist ships in and out of port, sometimes being called to other islands in the Hawaiian group.

"If a plane goes down or a boat is in distress, the tugboats go out and help." He explained the Coast Guard cannot be "everywhere at once" and sometimes is far away from the scene.

"When tidal waves come," he continued, "All ships inside the breakwaters have to be taken outside to keep from being destroyed. This must be done even for an alert. They must stay out there until the alert is over."

His boat also answers emergencies from ships, such as for persons with burns, acute appendicitis, etc.

The captain holds a 30-year service pin and a gold watch given him by the tugboat company.

FOR MANY YEARS, Mrs. Martins operated a restaurant featuring a wide assortment of foods -- American, oriental, Hawaiian, etc.

When asked about "Kalua pig" the famous Hawaiian pork, she said there is a way Americans can make it in the ovens

Only One Accident Reported In County

Only one highway accident in Lamb County during the July 4th holidays had been reported to the State Highway Dept. headquarters here by noon Wednesday, according to Hwy. Patrolman Bill Angel.

Angel said the sole mishap known at this office was termed a misdemeanor hit-and-run incident at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday which he investigated.

According to the patrolman, a 1966 Ford coach driven by Terrel W. Kirkpatrick of Lubbock was going northwest four miles northwest of Littlefield, between here and Amherst, when to avoid collision, it careened into a bar ditch and field.

traveling northwest also when it pulled off on a crossing and began a left turn, Angel said. Kirkpatrick whipped his car from the highway to avoid hitting the other vehicle.

Roberson left the scene and came into Littlefield where he was apprehended by city patrolmen, Angel said. When taken into custody, Roberson told officers he became frightened at the scene of the accident and left.

Angel said Roberson was held on a misdemeanor hit and run charge and was to be arraigned before Judge James N. Bowen Wednesday morning. No injuries were reported from the accident, but Kirkpatrick's car sustained front-end damages.

WHAT'S IT? It's not a one-eyed monkey, because it has a beak. It isn't Super Man, because it has "whiskers." It IS something rarely found on this part of the Plains. For identification, see picture and details on Page 5.

SING FESTIVAL HERE SUNDAY

"People are still excited and telephoning about the Sing Festival," said Mrs. T. L. Dunlap Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Dunlap is chairman of the 'Sing Festival' which was postponed from June 25 to July 9 due to heavy rain.

The event is scheduled Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Crescent Park tennis courts.

Several representatives from neighboring communities also have indicated they will be present and assist or participate in the group singing.

All churches in the city are expected to participate in the get-together sing-song scheduled after Sunday night services. Many churches will contribute toward directing the singing and in specialty numbers.

Words to oldtime favorite songs have been mimeographed and will be distributed among the crowd. Everything from hymns to folksongs will be featured.

Mrs. Dunlap emphasized the park will be sprayed for mosquitoes and the courts will be well lighted.

"Tell your readers not to forget to bring their chairs," Mrs. Dunlap told The Leader-News. The event was slated on the concrete tennis courts to avoid danger of chair legs digging into the damp turf.

Tentatively, plans call for the possibility of a piano at the scene. "There will be an accordion," Mrs. Dunlap said. Earlier, Mrs. Dunlap issued the invitation, "Everyone come straight from church services -- don't stay around to visit, you can visit at the festival!"

Friendliness Appreciated

Littlefield is, by all means, a "friendly and courteous town," a Bakersfield, Calif., man pointed that out to Elmer Hall at Garland Motor Co. while passing through here last weekend.

The man, J. H. Harris, told Hall he had been through Littlefield once before a few years ago, and that it made such an impression that he went out of his way this year to stop here and enjoy the hospitality.

"Yessir, I really appreciate the hospitality and friendliness of folks here," he told Hall. "It's really refreshing, and different. Not like California."

Harrod of the Circle Community, near Olton, will leave Aug. 20 by plane for Trinidad, West Indies Islands, where they will be teachers in the Caribbean Nazarene College located in the Santa Cruz Valley.

Biggs will teach Christian doctrines, European history, ancient history, psychology and accounting. He also will be the purchasing agent for the college and manager of its 40-acre estate. Biggs, who has a master's degree in economics, has been teaching that subject the last two years in El Dorado High School and in Butler County Junior College.

Biggs also is to serve as college dietitian.

The family will take only their personal possessions plus their piano, as they are allowed 6,000 pounds of luggage, custom duties and transportation free.

The Caribbean Nazarene College was established in 1950 as a Bible school. Later it offered from two to three years of college courses and is a four-year accredited college. It has an enrollment of about 50 students, most of whom are converts from Moslem, Islam and other beliefs.

Students come from Barbados and Guyana on the mainland of South America as well as from the islands. English is the customary language. Students do the manual work such as building, cooking and cleaning.

Mr. and Mrs. Biggs have three children, Michael, 10, Carol 4 and John, 2. Michael will be taken about eight miles to St. Andrews School, port of Spain.

The Biggs will be the first teachers of this school who have not been ministers. They plan to remain on Trinidad Island four years before receiving a furlough of one year.

Coldest temperature there is 67 degrees and the warmest is 93 degrees, but the humidity is excessive.

Mr. and Mrs. Biggs are two of 33 persons who received appointments this year from the General Mission Board of the Church of the Nazarene. The Mission work is financed primarily by offerings taken Easter and Thanksgiving.

Olton Girl Scouts Have Day Camp

OLTON--Olton Brownies and Girl Scouts took to the hills about a mile south of Fieldton Monday of last week as the first day of Manuka Day Camp got underway.

Approximately 60 girls, ranging in age from 7 to 16, took part in the annual week-long outing, according to Mrs. R. V. Allcorn, director.

The camp gives scouts an opportunity to spend the day in "untamed" woods where pitched tents, group planning, and open-pit cooking is a necessity.

More experienced scouts are permitted to spend the night at the camp. Scouts are assisted by about 13 volunteer mothers and a dozen or more high school girls. A registered nurse is also a part of the pilgrimage.

Theme of this year's camp was "Indian Living." Each of the four troops adopted tribal names and decorated camp sites with authentic-looking Indian ornaments. Even the camp's name can be translated from a certain tribal tongue to mean Friendship, explained Mrs. Allcorn.

Mrs. R. V. Allcorn served as director of the Day Camp; Mrs. George Stewart, assistant director; and Mrs. Walter Lewis, R. N.

MEET THE MINISTER

New Pastor Talented Musician; Wife Writes Children's Stories

Littlefield definitely gained in the talent department when the Rev. Philip J. Berry family moved into the manse of St. Martin Lutheran Church, 1319 W. 10th. Rev. Berry, who preached his first sermon as pastor here Sunday, his wife and four children moved here Friday from St. Paul, Minn., where he has studied at Luther Seminary the past three years.

Sunday not only marked the first sermon here but launched the 35-year-old minister's first pastorate.

For several years, before transferring to the ministry in 1964, Rev. Berry taught music in public schools, serving as band and choir director. At Plentywood, Montana he organized a band festival which now has become an annual event. Both Rev. and Mrs. Berry are natives of Weymouth, Mass., where they attended high school together. They were married Oct. 8, 1952 at Wollaston, Mass., while he was a senior at Boston University. He was graduated in 1953 with a bachelor of music degree and taught music in the public schools at Broadus, Mont., then at Plentywood.

He then returned to Boston University and received his master of music degree in 1962. For the next two years he taught music at Yearlington, Nev., before deciding to enter the ministry.

During his experience as band and choir director, in 10 of 11 years of competition he won superior ratings.

Naturally, the Berry's are a musical family, although Mrs. Berry says she performs the function of "audience." The minister's favorite musical instrument is the baritone horn. Thirteen-year-old son, Stephen plays the clarinet and son, Jon, 12, the French horn.

When asked if the trio ever gets into "jam sessions" at home, the minister laughed and said, "Well, yes -- we occasionally do!"

The Berry's have a small collection of stereo equipment and the minister said he is "quite fond" of jazz music. He also plays golf, whenever there is time for it. "I don't get to play golf often enough to be very good at it," Rev. Berry commented. He says he shoots in the low 90's.

Mrs. Berry also has her share of talent and outside interests. She writes children's stories and is published in the three top children's magazines, Jack and Jill, Child Life and Wee Wisdom.

She started her writing career about 10 years ago and now is illustrating her work with drawings, so she also is intensely interested in art and in learning more about it.

After Mrs. Berry became established in her children's stories, she began writing Sunday School literature for various denominations and at this point began illustrating her work. Her writing has appeared in Lutheran, Baptist and Methodist publications.

"When my husband entered the seminary," she explains, we needed more income than the free-lance writing brought in, so I began working for the American Lutheran Church Headquarters in the division of Parish Education. While there, I wrote Sunday School curriculum which includes pre-school age through the fourth grade."

She explained "curriculum" is the actual Sunday School lesson. "I am still doing this and will continue. Assignments will be sent to me here."

In the field of art, Mrs. Berry has done many inspirational chalk-talks for women's and young people's groups.

Rev. and Mrs. Berry have had one children's song published in Wee Wisdom magazine. He composed the music and she wrote the words. Rev. Berry says he has not done much composition because "it takes so much time."

The Berry's have two other children, James, 10 and Elaine, 9. The minister said he plans to start the two younger children on musical instruments soon.

Traffic Tie-Up Set At Olton

OLTON--Members of Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture are planning to stop travelers going to the District Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament here July 10.

The traffic tie-up actually is aimed at encouraging more people to visit Olton in the future.

The plot will work like this: Chamber members will station themselves at major highway entrances here on the first day of the tournament to welcome baseball fans, provide them with a city map, a program and a schedule bracket. City brochures will be given to stopped motorists who are not enroute to the game.

Weight Lifting Program Slated

OLTON--A month-long community weight lifting program for Olton men and boys will get its official "lift-off" in Olton High School at 8 p.m. today.

Hour and a half sessions will be conducted Tuesdays and Thursdays in the weight lifting room on the south side of the gymnasium.

Weight lifters 12-years old and over are invited to attend. Sessions will be under supervision of Don Beck, Buddy Sharp and Kenneth Splawn, but no instruction will be included.

Last year's program attracted more than 40 participants, most of them teenagers, Beck said.

Feeders Try Waste Control

"Texas's fastest growing livestock industry has taken positive steps toward the control of run-off and other wastes," stated Dudley T. Campbell, director of the Cattle Feeders Services of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assn. Campbell appeared before the President's Federal Water Pollution Advisory Board, holding hearings in Houston last week.

Accompanying Campbell to the hearing were Don C. King of Fort Worth, secretary-general manager of Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assn., and Grady Shepard of Hale Center, chairman of the TSCRA Cattle Feeders Committee.

Since cattle feeding is a comparatively new industry for Texas, the industry is preparing guide lines of waste handling through a joint research project being carried out by Texas Tech. Campbell pointed out the unique requirements in waste control peculiar to the arid and semi-arid conditions of the high plains where the majority of the cattle are fed.

MONKEY OWL, IF YOU PLEASE -- Critter shown close up on Page 1 is a monkey owl, or barn owl, common enough as bird life goes but, according to George White, owner of the Yellow House Ranch, is seldom seen in these parts. These half-grown owl-variants were found on the ranch by Randy Kennedy, 11, and his brother, Ricky 8, sons of Ross Kennedy, foreman of the ranch 15 miles southwest of Littlefield. White said the owls are about two months old. The mother owl, killed when the boys found the family in a shallow cave behind a tank dam, stood about one and one-half feet tall.

Foundation Adds New Projects

Eight additional research projects in fertilizer, herbicide and insecticides have been suggested for the 1968 research program at the High Plains Research Foundation. Six of these were in the field of fertilizer and two in herbicide research. Recommendations of the committees on fertilizer, herbicides and insecticides will be submitted at the fall meeting of the Board of Trustees on Sept. 14 for inclusion in the 1968 research program.

Ralph Wheeler, Chairman of the new committee presided at the meeting of the committee Friday afternoon, June 30, at Foundation Headquarters at Halfway. Other members of the committee in attendance were J. Frank Bray, Lubbock; Steve Bavousett, Dawn; Earl Abell, Ralls and F. M. Smith, Sudan.

The committee reviewed the research projects currently underway at the Foundation at Halfway and at the Demonstration farm north of Cotton Center. Many of the 1967 research projects underway were tentatively approved for continuation in 1968 and the eight new projects were suggested. All research projects were approved on the basis of securing profitable information for the agricultural industry.

Members of the Foundation staff assisting the committee in their deliberations were Dr. Thomas C. Longnecker, Director and Chief Soil Scientist; Dennis Mooney, Assistant Agronomist; Loyd Langford, Associate Agronomist; Jack Cloude, Head of Public Relations; and C. H. AMY'S ADLIBS

They Grow Up

By Amy Turner

"AW, DROP DEAD, ya nut!" "Big fight? Quarrel in the making?" "Indeed. From what I have observed springing through the front door at the young one playing on my front lawn, this is presently a favorite form of endearment for the 9-year-old masculine set.

There is just something very special about little boys, and to listen to and watch them while at play can be an enlightening experience. Let me hasten to point out, before my daughters yell "favoritism", that I happen to adore little girls. Being with little girls is like living it all over again, from memories and all.

But never having been a little boy, this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for a slimmer into the workings of the male mind.

LITTLE BOYS like to laugh... the sincere, nose-slapping, loud, wild, satisfying kind of laugh. And it doesn't have to be about anything particularly funny... they just enjoy being happy, which they almost consistently are.

They particularly enjoy jokes of their own making. They enjoy embarrassment... yours. At the time the rose bush caught and gently removed my wiglet, Son Ken must be rolled on the grass howling for hours or that one.

They like sports, comic books, bubble gum, old war and cowboy movies, animals of all varieties, being dirty and, most of all, they like each other. They demonstrate this love for one another by rushing together at first sight, lying down, wrestling and rolling around in the dirt, and giving each other a good smacking on the ears.

Then they sit up and grin at each other, of which adds up to the accepted "hello" their set. WHAT REALLY started me thinking about this "little boy" business was a look at some old snapshots. You know, Son Ken was two, and here he is at four (isn't he?) and do you remember when this one was taken? ...the sort of thing he thoroughly hates and mother loves.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE The Upward Look By BOB WEAR There has always been controversy about the relative values of the spiritual and the physical. We do not intend to resolve this controversy, because we are sure that it will continue to be prominent in human affairs, nevertheless, we feel free to make our own voice, and think and live accordingly.

WE MUST LEARN when to trust self, when to trust others and when our trust must be outside of self and beyond others. WHEN WE LOOK into history, it is easy to see that the way of man is not in himself. Looking honestly into our own lives reveals the same fact. A casual look at contemporary happenings SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER Summit Meeting

(Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher's Johnson grass farm reports on the summit meeting, more or less.) Dear editor: I was out here on this Johnson grass farm the other morning with nothing to do, well that's not exactly true, I had plenty to do but it was too hot, and pulled out of earshot of the house and eased down under a tree and read an article I'd been saving from a newspaper I found on the road the day before. Country people are getting as sophisticated as city people, they drop newspapers when they get through with them, wherever they are.

THIS ARTICLE was a sort of round-up by the Associated Press of what newspapers throughout the world thought of the summit talks between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin. Included was what was thought by the New York Times, the Washington Post, the London Evening Standard, the Paris Gaullist Nation, Rome's Giornale d'Italia, Vienna's Express, Copenhagen's BerlingskeAftenavis, Stockholm's Aftonbladet, Tokyo's Asahi Shimbun, and a lot more, but this is more than I can pronounce.

No where, however, was what The Leader-News thought. I do not understand this. Yours faithfully, J.A.

And then, too, there was the woman who told me how much she enjoyed my columns about my children and I thought she would like this one (Huh, Grandma?).

I'll have to admit that my angels do get a lot of ink and I can see how this might get pretty nauseous when I'm showing a picture of Junior who has the biggest newspaper route in town and he's only 26 years old.

I can also see how it is even more nauseous when a columnist sneaks up on you readers, under the guise of entertaining you, and then hits you in the head with the bright doings of her children who are actually not nearly as bright as your children, for goodness sakes.

So you may wonder, if I actually recognize parental nausea, why I persist with this nonsense. Our simple answer, and a true one, would be that I like nonsense. I don't happen to think there's enough of it in the world and so I share all of it that I can, even at the embarrassment of my relatives who really don't like the notoriety.

I WOULD PROCEED to describe some of these darling nonsense pictures of Young Son Ken, only I think he might actually murder me. Suffice it to say that I couldn't help but think that typical mother-question: "Why do they have to grow up?"

The next day, it came back to me in Capital Letters when I saw a group of young boys poring over some war comic books. My son begged to stay up that night to watch "Combat". I watched some of these youngsters putting together model airplanes and tanks. I saw them sling their toy rifles over their shoulders, dash around the corner of the house and yell: "Pow! Pow! I gotcha."

And they all looked about nine years old. Then I remembered another mother, not much older than I, attending the funeral of her teen-age son, killed in Vietnam. So I thought I'd just write a little nonsense about my little boy, while he is still a little boy and hasn't grown all the way up into a world full of adults who never did grow up.

and conditions convinces us that we must look beyond our own strength, wisdom and devices. We are very much like the man who fell into an open well. As he looked about him, all seemed dark and hopeless; but when he looked up, he could see the sky above. The light shining from above gave him hope and, as he continued to look up, in due time, help came. He was lifted to higher ground.

EVERYTHING dependable, about which we know, is spiritual. If, as some people claim, there is nothing to the spiritual side of life; then, there is nothing known to us that is dependable. Much of human experience indicates that the general feeling among people is that there is nothing dependable. This is, of course, a great loss and even borders on being tragic.

IN SPITE of the widespread sophistry of our time, and the make-believe world of human wisdom and ways, it is self-evident that human strength and ingenuity are inadequate for the real tests of life. It is just as obvious that the people of true faith have more strength and more insight than any others.

Regardless of statements to the contrary, the people who look up to God, trust in him, and submit to his will are more effective in coping with life; much more effective than the doubters, the rebellious and the self-trusting. The strength of faith is manifest and needs no defense. SOMEONE has said, "When we hold our heads up, the body becomes erect. When our thoughts go up, life becomes erect."

While I know The Leader News doesn't have a full-time Washington correspondent, still if all he could report on was two men going in and two coming out without knowing what was said inside, it seems to me The Leader-News would have been on equal terms with the Scandinavian Aftonbladet or the New York Times.

What makes the Associated Press think The Leader-News can't guess just as wildly as the Aftonbladet? SIZE IS ALWAYS CONFUSING people, even the Associated Press, which didn't ask a single small town newspaper what it thought about the summit meeting. Big city newspapers have a tendency to get stuck up and take themselves too seriously sometimes, but I've never seen a weekly paper that couldn't make just as many typographical errors as a metropolitan daily, and a lot of the former have to do it short-handed.

As to what I think about the summit talks and whether any progress was made, I don't know, and couldn't unless I knew what they said. I saw the list of things they talked about, but that didn't let me know whether any progress was made. I've known women who've talked about the same people for years without making any progress.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

OWNER'S REPORT

Pills, Pills And More Pills

By Bill Turner

SOMEBODY'S going to think I'm Pill-Crazy, but I've just discovered a new, greater need for it.

You'll recall that a few days ago I really enlightened my readers about the discovery of a Pill to control the birth rate of pigeons.

Then I read the other day about The Pill for cows. Across my desk recently came a Texas Tech news release. It points out that Tech has been granted a federally-funded study of Jack Rabbit populations.

A total of $8,750 has been put up to let Tech "come up with some guidelines for understanding rabbit populations on the arid lands of the Western United States."

It was noted that Tech was pleased to be working on "this problem of great importance to arid regions."

THE PROBLEM, as stated in the news release, is the damage that jack rabbits can inflict on sheep and cattle pasture land.

That sounds like maybe it's an over-population problem.

Well, I may be able to save the government some trouble and maybe that $8,750 too.

The Pill solves all. If you want to control people, pigeons, jack rabbits or what-have-you, just give 'em The Pill.

BUT THIS is not the great need that I had reference to.

A new encyclopedia has just been published. It probably will be a smash best seller. Its name?

"The Encyclopedia of U.S. Government Benefits." Says the large headline advertisement for it in the New York Times: "In minutes see how the Government can help You with: Your child's education -- Your vacation home -- Your business success -- You name it."

"All these valuable leads cost little more than a penny a page... but this small amount can be recovered time and time again. Right now you are probably missing out on valuable government services that your tax dollars pay for, simply because you don't know about them. This is the book you need. You'll learn what these services are, where to find them, and how to use them -- all in one convenient, easy-to-use reference encyclopedia."

The price? "Deluxe Executive Edition thumb-notched for instant reference, $9.95. Standard Edition, $7.95."

THESE BOOKS may sell just as fast as rabbits multiply, but I'm not for slowing their reproduction. After all, publishers have to make a living too.

It would be nice though if somebody came up with a pill to control our mushrooming rate of new ways to spend your money and mine.

But Daddy, all MOD skirts are short.

BITS AND PIECES

'If The Shoe Fits ...'

My Mom is a collector. But does she collect stamps, coins, artifacts -- like other people? Oh, no. She collects "sayings." Like meditations, poems, thoughts-for-the-day, even paragraphs from books. And, believe me, she's got something "to say" about every occasion.

NO MATTER what happens, she's got the anecdote. First you see this certain look in her eye, and then all of a sudden -- zip! And there it is -- pulled right out of the blue -- a piece of paper, a "saying," plastered against your nose and filled with the exact answers to the situation.

Like the other night when I came home beat to the bone and with problems pounding at me from 14 different directions. You know the feeling -- tired o' living' and skeered o' dyin'.

Boy, did I feel sorry for me. I was blissfully wallowing, in self pity that is. All of a sudden there came that "zip" and there was that piece of paper. It was a "saying" that originated with Rev. Kenneth Wyatt when he was pastor of First Methodist Church at Paducah.

Totally unaware that the plot had thickened I read it:

- "HOW TO BE PERFECTLY MISERABLE" 1. Think about yourself. 2. Talk about yourself. 3. Use "I" as often as possible. 4. Mirror yourself as "better than Joe." 5. Listen greedily to nice things people say about you. 6. Expect to be appreciated. 7. Be suspicious that someone is talking about you. 8. Be jealous and envious. 9. Be sensitive to slights. 10. Never forget a criticism. 11. Mirror yourself but yourself. 12. Insist on consideration and respect. 13. Demand everyone agree with you. 14. Sulk if everything is not agreeable. 15. Never forget a good that you have rendered.

- 16. Be on the lookout for a good time for yourself. 17. Shirk your duties. 18. Do as little as possible for someone else. 19. Love yourself supremely. 20. Be selfish.

POW, POW, POW, POW, POW -- just like that. I reeled. Heavens! Wasn't I exhausted enough without a beating? What had I done to deserve 20 lashes? Well, maybe not all 20. One or two didn't hit.

"But, Mom!" I wailed. "You don't understand! It's just that I'm so tired -- I've been going at such a fast pace, for such a long time! And there isn't a thing I can do about it!" There was that look again. And then the "zip!" And another piece of paper.

IT WAS a poem written by Mr. O. L. Crain. Here's part of what I read: "Slow me down, Lord! Ease the pounding of my heart."

By the quieting of my mind; Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the Eternal reach of time. . . . Teach me the art of taking minute vacations of slowing down To look at a flower; to chat with an old friend Or to make a new one; To pat a stray dog, to watch a spider build a web; Remind me each day that the race is not always to the swift, That there is more to life than increasing its speed. Let me look upward into the branches of a towering oak. And know that it grew great and strong Because it grew slowly and well. Slow me down, Lord. . . ."

Okay, Mom. You win.

Bar Must Judge

By PAUL HARVEY

New Orleans' District Attorney Garrison, in the beginning, thought he had something. Everybody identified with his early reinvestigation of the Kennedy assassination concurs. "Garrison sincerely believed others than Oswald were involved. . . ."

What misled Garrison and his financial backers in the first place is the fact that there always exist a few fanatics who are writing or talking of assassinating the President. Such letters are regularly traced by our FBI and some prosecutions result.

DURING the dark days following the abortive Cuban invasion there must have been scores of vituperative card-table threats directed at President Kennedy. Garrison sought to add up some hearsay, some letters and some otherwise unsavory characters into a dark and devious plot. But if his early suspicions were excusable, his subsequent conduct was not.

As early as March 1, 1967, when Garrison's first bold allegations broke into public print, I went to New Orleans to evaluate his evidence. I wrote to you from there that Garrison was "over-running his headlights," that he was likely to "damage irreparably the reputations of innocent persons."

But Garrison persisted in his probe and the more his "evidence" evaporated, the more stubborn he became.

FINALLY, according to his own former chief investigator, William Gurvich, "Garrison became obsessed with the theory of a conspiracy." If Garrison's early motives had included personal political ambition, now his idea became to stir up enough stink so that there would always be a question mark.

My mail suggests that no matter how thoroughly Garrison may be discredited, a lot of his voting-age constituents are going to continue to cling to that question mark. That is sad, for it means the very purpose of a free press -- to inform -- has been profaned. It is to the credit of the local papers in New Orleans that they were not misled, but in dutifully reporting the public utterances of their District Attorney they, however inadvertently, contributed to the subsequent assassination of innocent reputations.

The press was "used" in a manner contrary to all that our system of jurisprudence stands for; citizens were guilty until they proved themselves innocent.

GURVICH, disassociating himself from Garrison, said, "People in my city are being yanked in off the street and disgraced." He says Garrison "once planned a midnight raid on the local FBI office." CBS, evaluating the evidence, concluded that Garrison has used "unethical and illegal methods." NBC said that his probe is "unsponsored by evidence."

New Orleans' Metropolitan Crime Commission, hearing that Garrison has used threats and bribes in his desperation to build up a case, has asked Louisiana Attorney General Gremlion to investigate Garrison. Gremlion has so far refused. The Bar Association must act.

IF THE LEGAL profession is to deserve our continuing confidence and respect, it must deal promptly and decisively with its own transgressors.

The Countrywoman

By LIBBY MUGGETT

SHE listens to a group of young, so very young, men sing in a choir group at church. She watches their faces alight with the love of life and the joy of youth. None of them will ever burn a draft card. How long will there be wars and rumors of wars, oh Lord? How long will lumps form in older throats at the sight of young boys in the morning of their lives? Which ones will reach their evenings? She cannot help but wonder.

SHE hears farmers exchange ideas on what seeds to plant this late in the season. There is not enough time left for some crops to mature; there is no profit at all in some other crops; they are prohibited by law to grow certain crops without an allotment. And a third of the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Farmers Can Be Prepared
Against Wind

COLLEGE STATION -- Be prepared for hurricane or tornado winds by securely anchoring farm buildings. Good anchorage is essential in preventing damage from high winds, according to W. S. Allen, Extension agricultural engineer at Texas A & M University.

Builders should realize that lifting forces several times greater than the weight of the materials can occur on structures. That's why it is so important to tie all components together and anchor buildings to the ground, he emphasizes.

When winds reach velocities of 75 to 100 mph, the engineer says tremendous pressures are exerted on buildings. A horizontal force is developed against the windward side wall.

In addition, a suction force is exerted as the air flows up, over and past the building. This is an outward force, says Allen, and explains why buildings sometimes seem to explode or blow up rather than blow down.

A major type of construction especially susceptible to horizontal wind forces is the concrete masonry wall, he points out. The masonry blocks, and especially the mortar joints, have little or no strength in tension. The wind tends to bend these walls, placing one surface of the wall in tension and causing early failure to occur.

Allen says much of the damage done to farm buildings can be prevented by personal attention to such things as keeping doors and windows closed, removing from the vicinity weak trees and keeping structures in a good state of repair.

Construction recommendations for anchoring buildings correctly and building wind-resistant walls are available, he says. Local county agricultural agents or a letter to the Extension Agricultural Engineer, Texas A & M University, College Station, 77840, are suggested sources of information.

Lions Take Victory Over Optimists, 5-4

Monday night Lions beat Optimists, 5-4, in one of the most exciting games played in Major League this year.

In the first inning Lions grabbed two runs. Neither team scored in the second but in the bottom of the third Lions came in to grab two more runs, giving them a 4-0 lead.

Optimists got hot in the fourth and stole three runs. Lions kept the lead until the top of the sixth when Optimists brought in one run to tie the score 4-4. Optimists almost held the Lions in the bottom of the sixth but due to an error by Optimist the Lions managed to bring in a run and clinch the victory.

Leading batters for the Lions were Ken Albert, Bobby Matthews, and Terry Bryson. Tim Compton with one double was top hitter for Optimist.

Larry Hobrutschk was the winning pitcher. Losing pitcher was Randy Cook.

LANES WERE OPENED to west-bound traffic on Highway 84 Wednesday morning when the first phase of construction was completed. This opened all four lanes through the county. The 16.8-mile stretch of new road ends just short of the Bailey County line. Completion came some four months early, according to the contract.

Motorists are warned when driving on the new lane to go slow because of loose gravel. Final phase of construction will be an inch and a half layer of asphalt atop the new road. Contract was let to J. H. Spain and Son. This work will begin sometime in the fall, probably in October.

Ward Pump Surprised By Batson

Tuesday in Minor League, Batson Ins. surprised Ward Pump, 11-7.

Batson spurred things up in the first inning by taking a 3-1 lead. But in the bottom of the second Ward Pump woke up and brought in four runs which placed them ahead 5-3.

The tables turned again in the third inning when Batson rushed in eight more runs, giving them the lead 11-5. In the bottom of the fourth, Ward Pump got two more runs but not enough to stop their opponents from going home with the victory.

Winning pitcher was Craig Ratliff. Jackie Fox was the losing pitcher.

Barton To Speak At Swine Course

Jack Barton of Littlefield will be among speakers at Texas Tech's Animal Husbandry Department's 15th annual Swine Short Course today and Friday, according to Dr. Sam Curl, chairman of the event.

More than 200 breeders and others interested in the swine industry are expected to attend the short course which will be held in the Livestock Pavilion and Student Union Building on the Tech Campus.

"Dr. Leland Tribble of the University of Missouri and Dr. R. F. Sewell of the Ralston-Purina Company will be among the featured speakers," Curl said. One highlight will be a market hog show and judging contest followed by a carcass evaluation and demonstration.

"After the hogs are shown Thursday morning, the animals will be slaughtered, measurements taken and carcasses judged," Curl said. "The carcasses will be exhibited and discussed Friday afternoon."

On the judging committee are Tech Agriculture Education Prof. L. M. Hargrave, T. Euel Liner, Lubbock, seedstock producer, and Paul E. Gross, Howard County agriculture agent.

After Thursday morning's hog show, Dr. Don B. Hudman, Texas Agriculture Extension Service animal husbandman, will discuss the merits of raising meat type swine. Lunch will follow in the Livestock Pavilion with several local swine producers preparing the pork chops.

Afternoon session in the Student Union will include a welcome by Tech President Grover E. Murray, a discussion on the future of the swine business by Liner plus Dr. Tribble's talk on "Management of the Sow Herd: Breeding to Farrowing." Dr. Sewell will wind up the day's discussions with an evaluation on "Feeding Market Pigs."

A questioning period will follow each speaker's presentation.

After the short course adjourns Thursday, the Texas Swine Breeders Assn. will meet with Buddy H. Winter of Lubbock, president, and Billy J. Richardson of Reagan, secretary-treasurer, presiding.

Jack Barton, Littlefield swine producer, will begin Friday's session by discussing "A Ventilation System That Works." Dr. Leland will continue his hog management discussion, speaking on sows and pigs from farrowing to weaning.

Insect Report Given By Extension Service

Situation at a Glance
Insect activity remains light in South Plains cotton. Thrips populations continue to decrease while fleahopper populations have shown a slight increase.

Fleahoppers
Fleahopper populations have increased slightly in fields of older cotton. Light populations were observed this week in Yoakum, Martin, Garza, Crosby, Dickens and Kent counties.

For control recommendations, please refer to L-508, Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects in the High Plains, Rolling Plains and Trans-Pecos Areas of Texas, or to L-218, Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects -- both published by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Copies of these guides may be picked up at the office of your county agricultural agent.

Thrips
Light thrips populations have been observed in all South Plains counties. However, the overall infestation continues to decrease. Some spotted moderate to heavy infestations are still present in Floyd, Hale, Swisher, Castro, and Parmer counties, but the damage appears to be decreasing.

Sorghum Midge
Light midge emergence from Johnson grass samples continues. Adult emergence from Johnson grass appears to be no greater than in 1965 and 1966 at this time. This does not mean that damaging infestations can not occur later in the season. Adult midge activity has not yet been detected in the field. The following table shows midge emergence for the period June 21-27.

Adult midge emergence from Johnson grass heads samples. (Each sample - 25 heads)

Amherst made its final run in the top of the fifth but in the remaining innings Roden Drug didn't have the power to catch up.
