No Interest Paid On Crop Insurance

Notes that don't bear interest should attract every Texas farmer, according to George Slaughter, chairman, state AAA committee.

Premium notes handled in this manner are only one of several outstanding features of cotton crop insurance being sold to Texas cotton farmers for the first time this year, he said.

Under the program, farmers may insure either 50 or 75 per cent of their normal production against all unavoidable hazards. Insurance contracts also may be used as collateral security for money advanced in making a cotton crop, he said.

"Farmer should not ask: Can I afford to take it? Instead they should ask: Can I afford not to take it?" Slaughter said in pointing out that insurance guarantees a cash income for every cooperating farmer.

Realizing farmers want insurance as soon as it is applied for and not six or eight months later, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has eliminated much of the so-called red tape in an effort to speed up insurance work, the AAA official said.

Cotton Crop Insurance begins when seed goes in the ground and stops when cotton is weighed in at the gin and farmers can't ask for much better insurance," Slaughter said.

First deadline in the state is January 31 for Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr and Willacy counties. Other closing dates are March 1, March 15 and March 31.

Wayne Jackson Is New President Of Future Farmers

Wayne Jackson was elected president of the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America at their regular meeting Tuesday night of last week, at the vocational agriculture building. He takes the place of Nathan Howry, who recently moved from this section.

Plans for the annual Father-Son banquet were discussed during the business session.

Music was furnished by Maurice McCarty and Lewis Hobbs before the group assembled at the high school auditorium where they enjoyed the showing of the picture, "Friendly Valley." Members of the Future Homemakers Club also enjoyed the picture.

Boys in vocational agriculture classes have been making use of binder twine, left on the farm, the past two weeks. They are making rope, and about 2,000 feet of various sizes of rope have been made from the twine that would have otherwise been wasted. The boys report that any farmer wishing them to make rope should call and leave twine at the agriculture building.

Attorney General Francis Biddle today announced new regulations affecting the conduct of German, Italian and Japanese nationals throughout continental United States.

The new regulations, issued under authority of the Presidential proclamation of January 14, 1942 relating to alien enemies, require all German, Italian and Japanese aliens to apply at the nearest first or second class, or county seat, post office for a Certificate of Identification. The requirement applies to all enemy nationals 14 years of age or over who have not yet taken the oath of allegiance before a Federal judge, the final step in acquiring American citizenship.

Rules And Regulations Drawn Up By Committee At Thursday's Meeting

The third annual F. F. A. and 4-H Club project show will be staged in Littlefield sometime in March, and will be sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement made this week.

At a meeting Thursday night of vocational agriculture teachers in Lamb county, the assistant county agent, W. B. McAllister, and E. C. Cundiff, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, plans were made for the show, but no definite date has been set. However, the show will be staged one week in advance of the South Plains Junior Fat Stock Show at Lubbock, so that winners may be exhibited there.

Cost Is $2.09 For Remaining 5 Months Of Year

Approximately 2,000 Stamps Needed For City And Territory

Federal auto use stamps, good for the remainder of the fiscal year 1941-42 went on sale at the local postoffice Monday morning, according to Postmaster W. D. T. Storey, who stated that the cost of the stamps for the five months remaining of this fiscal year is $2.09. As of July 1, a yearly stamp costing $5.00 will be substituted.

Approximately 2,000 stamps have been received at the local office. They must be displayed on the windshield, panel or other easily seen place on all passenger cars, trucks and motorcycles operating on all highways, on or before February 1.

No checks will be accepted by the postoffice for the purchase of stamps, Postmaster Storey pointed out. Federal regulations prohibit acceptance of personal checks for payment of this type.

It is estimated by the local Postmaster that about 2,000 of these stamps will be necessary to cover the motor vehicles in Littlefield and trade territory.

Each purchaser will be given a post card form, which he is to fill out and mail to the collector of internal revenue at Dallas. On it the Stamp purchaser will show his name and address, the make of the car, body type, engine number, and year. A one cent stamp must be affixed to the card.

These Federal auto use Stamps are also being sold at all other Postoffices in the County.

Postmaster Allan H. White of Amherst said that stamps were placed on sale at the Amherst Postoffice Monday Morning, and in the first day 70 stickers were purchased. Mr. White says that his office had received 200 stickers; and that it will be necessary for him to immediately re-order in order to have all stickers that will be needed for sale through the Amherst Postoffice.

BILLIONS FOR VICTORY

We are so used to hearing about billions of dollars these days that most of us wouldn't have moved an eyebrow any higher or any lower if the President's recent budget request had been for 69 billion or 49 billion instead of 59 billion.

As for the public debt, we have practically lost track of that in its astronomical flight — and our chief spark of interest is in the fact that it will now reach a new milestone, since it will soar over the 100 billion mark in the next fiscal year.

There are few among us who offer any objection to this enormous expenditure of dollars if, by spending it, we can win a victory which could not otherwise be won.

As a nation, we are undoubtedly doing some super gambling. We are risking the financial soundness of our future to guarantee the preservation of our freedom and our right to live as we please.

But everyone of us is glad to take the risk—for certainly, it would be far better to rebuild our nation, if necessary, under democratic principals than to take any chance of having it fall into the hands of the axis madmen.

The chances are that we will win both ways—that our financial structure will stand the strain and that this vast expenditure will crush our enemies.

We can be certain that if the President's program is carried out on schedule, the expenditure of those billions will assure victory. Even Hitler will admit that—and that's the only thing that really counts now.

Actually, in gambling such huge billions, we are loading the dice, knowing that they will make it possible for us to come out a sure winner—and the winner of something which is far more valuable to us than all the dollars in our nation.

FULL TIME JOB

If war comes closer to our shores, if disasters happen in this country or if any unanticipated events endanger the people of our community, our safety will depend in large measure on the work, the suggestions and the inspiration of the government's civilian defense organization.

We realize that, in the last analysis, our protection depends on what we ourselves do about it, but it is also apparent that the government organization, set up to help us with this problem, can do much to guide us in building our local defenses.

It is unfortunate therefore, that the national organization, from which we have expected so much, is becoming the butt of more and more public criticism because of its directorship.

Perhaps it is possible that Mayor La Guardia can handle the job of being mayor of New York with one hand while he is directing civilian defense with the other, better than could many individuals handle either of the jobs alone.

But there are certainly other Americans who can do every bit as good a job as the fiery mayor and it is hard to understand why, in spite of growing criticism, he has insisted so long on holding both jobs.

Being mayor of the city of New York sounds like a fulltime assignment. Guarding the safety of the people of this nation against the ravages of war is even a bigger job.

But even if it is conceivable that one man could handle both assignments adequately there is more to it than that.

For it is essential that the public have faith in the activities of the Civilian Defense organization — and the public has already made it clear that it doesn't approve of the present set-up. That should be all the answer Mr. La Guardia needs.

Texas Farmers Can't Afford A Crop Failure

College Station, Jan. 17—With one dollar out of every two being spent for farming our country, Texas farmers can't afford a crop failure this year, B. B. Ingle, assistant branch manager for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, told AAA leaders attending a two-day meeting here this week.

"It stands to reason that if cotton allotments can be established for every Texas farm six months ahead of time and Food-For-Freedom pledges can be signed in 30 days, then plenty of cotton crop insurance can be sold by closing dates," Ingle said.

Leading the discussion of crop insurance and how it applies in Texas were P. J. Mims and M. P. Leaming, both connected with the Southern Division of the AAA in Washington.

Following the meeting here, state AAA committeemen and fieldmen will hold similar meetings throughout the state to acquaint county and community AAA committeemen with the crop insurance program.

Federal all-risk crop insurance is being offered this year for the first time on the South's principal crop, cotton, although it has been in effect on wheat for the past three years. To be protected by insurance, the cotton grower must make application through his county AAA office prior to the closing date or before planting, whichever is earlier. Texas has four closing dates for the different cotton-growing areas. First deadline is January 31 for Cameron, Hidalgo, Willacy and Starr counties.

Precautions About Handling NATURAL GAS

In Case Of Air-Raid Alarms!

Natural gas is the safest fuel you could be using during an air raid. BUT, the HANDLING of natural gas is a technical matter, requiring the services of trained men who know how to avoid the hazards involved.

It is therefore extremely important that everyone should study and follow the carefully prepared instructions relating to the handling of natural gas during air raid alarms. If these instructions are not followed, serious consequences may result. Untrained persons should not attempt to turn gas off and on at the meters.

Following are the official instructions which have been approved and adopted by local Office of Civilian Defense. They are simple. Read them carefully. Discuss them in the family circle so all will understand. Cut them out and post them where all can see them. Above all, follow them!

In Case Of An Air-Raid Alarm:

1. Make no attempt to shut off the gas at the meter.
2. Simply turn off all burners which you customarily turn on and off. Do not turn off pilot lights.
3. Only in case the house or building is badly damaged should the gas be turned off at the meter.
4. If, for any reason, the gas is turned off at the meter, do not turn it on again yourself. Call for a trained man.

TWO CAN SING

by JAMES M. CAIN

W.N.U. RELEASE

CHAPTER I

All this, that I'm going to tell you, started about four years ago. You may have forgotten how things were then, but I haven't. I'm a contractor, junior partner in the Craig-Borland Engineering Company, in New York, and in my business there was nothing going on. We sat for three years with our feet on our desks reading magazines.

It got so bad that when Craig, my partner, came into the office one day with a comical story about a guy who wanted a concrete chicken coop built, somewhere out in Connecticut, we looked at each other shifty-eyed for a minute, and then without saying a word we put on our hats and walked over to the railroad station to take the train. We wanted that coop so bad we could hardly wait to talk to the man.

"It seems funny that this egg comes back from Europe and right away you decide to resume your career."

After the coop was built, Craig dug in at his farm upstate, and that left me all alone.

It was about four-thirty on a fall afternoon when I decided to call it a day and go home. The office is in a remodeled loft on East 35th street. We own the whole building. The house is on East 84th Street, and it's a house, not an apartment.

But I had forgotten it was Wednesday, Doris' afternoon at home. It was the usual mob: a couple of Doris' cousins, three women from the Social Center, a woman just back from Russia, a couple of women who have boxes at the opera, and half a dozen husbands and sons. They were all Social Register.

Me, I'm Social Register too, but I wasn't until I married Doris and I'm a traitor to the mind that took me in. These friends of Doris', I don't like them, and they don't like me.

I went around, though, and shook hands, and didn't tumble that anything unusual was going on until I saw Lorentz. Lorentz had been Doris' singing teacher before she married me, and he had been in Europe since then and this was the first I knew he was back. And his name, for some reason, didn't seem to get mentioned much around our house. You see, Doris is opera-struck, and one of the things that began to make trouble between us within a month of the wedding was the great career she gave up to marry me. I kept telling her I didn't want her to give up her career, to go on studying. But she would come back with a lot of stuff about a woman's first duty being to her home, and when Randolph came, and after him Evelyn, I began to say she had probably been right, at that. But that only made it worse.

They left about six-thirty. I poured two drinks, and set one beside her and said here's how. She kept looking out the window, and in a minute or two saw the drink and stared at it like she couldn't imagine what it was. That was a bad sign, because Doris likes drink as well as you or I do.

"Oh, no. Thanks just the same," she said.

"You feel bad?"

"Oh, no; it's not that."

She pointed at her throat.

"Oh? Bad for the voice, hey?" I said.

"Ruinous."

She kept looking at me with that sad, orphan look which she always gets on her face when she's getting ready to be her worst, as though I were far, far away and she could hardly see me through the mist, and then she went back to looking out the window. "I've decided to resume my career, Leonard."

"Well, gee! That's great!"

"It's going to mean giving up—everything. And it's going to mean work, just slaving drudgery from morning to night."

"I guess singing's no cinch, at that."

"But—something has to be done."

"Yeah? Done about what?"

"About everything. We can't go on like this, Leonard. Don't you see? I know you do the best you can and that you can't get work when there is no work. But something has to be done. If you can't earn a living, then I'll have to."

Now, to you maybe that sounds like a game little wife stepping up beside her husband to help him fight when the fighting was tough. It wasn't that, at all. In the first place, Doris had high-hatted me ever since we had been married, on account of my being a low-brow, on account of everything she could think of. But one thing she hadn't been able to take away from me. I was the one who went out and got the dough, and plenty of it. And this meant that at last she had found a way to high-hat me even on that.

She was going back to singing because she wanted to go back to singing, but she wasn't satisfied just to do that. She had to harpoon me with it, and harpoon me where it hurt. And, in the second place, all we had between us and starvation was the dough I had salted away in ... a good bank, enough to last at least three more years, and after that the house, and after that my share of the Craig-Borland Building, and after that a couple of other pieces of property the firm had. If things got that bad, I had never asked Doris to cut down by one cent on the household expenses or give up anything at all. I mean, it was a lot of hooley, and I began to get sore.

"Doris, be your age. You're only trying to make a bum out of me, and I'm not going to buy it."

"You have to thwart me, don't you, Leonard? Always."

"There it goes. I knew it. So I thwart you. How long have you had this idea?"

"I've been thinking about it quite some time."

"About two months, hey?"

"Two months? Why two months?"

"It seems funny that this egg comes back from Europe and right away you decide to resume your career."

"How wrong you are. Oh, how wrong you are."

"And by the time he gets his forty a week, or whatever it is he takes, and all the rest of his cuts, you'll be taken for a swell ride. There won't be much left for the husband and kiddies."

"I'm not paying Lorentz anything."

"What?"

"I've explained to him. About our—circumstances."

I hit the roof then. I wanted to know what business she had telling him about our circumstances or anything else. I said I wouldn't be under obligations to him, and that if she was going to have him she had to pay him.

But I lost the fight, just as I always did. I wished I could stand up against her, but I couldn't.

That night she undressed in the dressing-room, and when she came out she went to the door of the nursery, where the kids had slept before they got old enough to have a room. I've decided to sleep in here for a while, Leonard. I've got the exercises to do when I get up—and all sorts of things. There's no reason why you should be disturbed."

"Any way you like."

"Or—perhaps you would be more comfortable in there."

Yes, I even did that. I slept that night in the nursery, and took up my abode there from then on. What I ought to do was go in and sock her in the jaw. I knew that.

So for the next three months there was nothing but vocalizing all over the place, and then it turned out she was ready for a recital. For a month we got ready for the recital, and the less said about it the better. Never mind what the hall cost and the advertising cost, and that part. What I hated was drumming up the crowd. I don't know if you know how a high-toned Social Registerite like Doris does when she gets ready to give a recital to show off her technique. She calls up all her friends and sandbags them to buy tickets, at $2 a ticket. And not only does she call up her friends, but her husband calls up his friends, and all her sisters and her cousins and her aunts call up their friends, and those friends have to come through, or else it's an unfriendly act. Oh, yes, culture has its practical side when you start up Park Avenue with it.

I don't know when I tumbled to it that Doris was no good. But some time in the middle of all the excitement it just came to me one day that she couldn't sing, that she never could sing, that it was all just a pipe dream. I tried to shake it off, to tell myself that I didn't know anything about it, because that was one thing which had always been taken for granted in our house; that she could have a career if she wanted it.

But I couldn't shake it off. I just knew she was no good, and didn't know how I knew it.

The recital was in February, at eleven o'clock of a Friday morning. About nine o'clock I was in the nursery, getting into the cut-away coat and gray striped pants that Doris said I had to wear, when the phone rang in the bedroom and I heard Doris answer. In a minute or two she came in.

"Stop that for a minute, Leonard, and listen to me. Louise Bronson just called up. She was talking last night with Rudolph Hertz. Hertz was a critic on one of the newspapers. 'You know, he's related to her.'"

"And?"

"Why do I have to call him up?"

"Leonard, he's the most important man in town—it's just a stroke of blind luck that he promised to give me a review, and I can't lose it just because of a silly mistake over the day."

I went into the bedroom and picked up the phone book. He wasn't in it. I called information. They said they would have to have the address.

Doris began screaming at me from the dressing-room: "He lives on Central Park West! In the same building as Louise!"

I gave the address. They said they were very sorry but it was a private number and they wouldn't be able to give it to me.

So I hustled on the rest of my clothes, and jumped in a cab and went over there. I apologized for calling so early, and mumbled something about Louise Bronson and how anxious we were to have his opinion on my wife's voice, and for a minute Hertz sat and stared at me. Then he cut me off, and cut me off sharp: "My dear fellow, I can't go to every recital at the drop of a hat. If notices were sent out my paper will send somebody over, and there will be no need whatever for you to come to me about it."

"Louise Bronson—"

"Yes, Louise said something to me about a recital, but I don't let her run my department, either."

Then I saw we weren't alone. Through the double door was a breakfast-room, and two women were in there; listening. One of them, in a kimono, seemed to be his wife. The other one had a hat on and looked like a guest. I couldn't see her face but she was leaning toward the wife, whispering something and laughing.

I felt my face get hot. I said I was sorry, and got out of there as fast as I could grab my hat.

The recital didn't help any. The place was packed with stooges, and they clapped and it didn't mean a thing. I sat with Randolph and Evelyn, and we clapped too, and after it was over and about a ton of flowers had gone up, and my flowers too, we went backstage with the whole mob to tell Doris how swell she was, and you would have thought it was just a happy family party. But as soon as my face wasn't red any more from thinking about the critic, it got red from something else. About a third of that audience were children. That was how they had got back at us those people we had sandbagged. They bought tickets, but they sent their children—with nursemaids.

Doris took our children home and I went out and ate, and then went over to the office. About two-thirty the phone rang.

"Mr. Borland?"

"Speaking."

"This is Cecil Carver."

She spoke as though I'd know who Cecil Carver was, but I never heard the name before. "Yes, Miss Carver? What can I do for you?" "Perhaps I ought to explain. I'm a singer. I happened to be visiting up in Central Park West this morning when you called and I heard what was said."

I sat with Randolph and Evelyn, and we clapped too, and after it was over and about a ton of flowers had gone up, and my flowers too, we went backstage with the whole mob to tell Doris how swell she was, and you would have thought it was just a happy family party. But as soon as my face wasn't red any more from thinking about the critic, it got red from something else. About a third of that audience were children. That was how they had got back at us those people we had sandbagged. They bought tickets, but they sent their children—with nursemaids.

Doris took our children home and I went out and ate, and then went over to the office. About two-thirty the phone rang.

"Mr. Borland?"

"Speaking."

"This is Cecil Carver."

She spoke as though I'd know who Cecil Carver was, but I never heard the name before. "Yes, Miss Carver? What can I do for you?" "Perhaps I ought to explain. I'm a singer. I happened to be visiting up in Central Park West this morning when you called and I heard what was said."

ing. About nine o'clock I was in the nursery, getting into the cut-away coat and gray striped pants that Doris said I had to wear, when the phone rang in the bedroom and I heard Doris answer. In a minute or two she came in.

"Stop that for a minute, Leonard, and listen to me. Louise Bronson just called up. She was talking last night with Rudolph Hertz. Hertz was a critic on one of the newspapers. 'You know, he's related to her.'"

"And?"

"Why do I have to call him up?"

"Leonard, he's the most important man in town—it's just a stroke of blind luck that he promised to give me a review, and I can't lose it just because of a silly mistake over the day."

I went into the bedroom and picked up the phone book. He wasn't in it. I called information. They said they would have to have the address.

Doris began screaming at me from the dressing-room: "He lives on Central Park West! In the same building as Louise!"

I gave the address. They said they were very sorry but it was a private number and they wouldn't be able to give it to me.

So I hustled on the rest of my clothes, and jumped in a cab and went over there. I apologized for calling so early, and mumbled something about Louise Bronson and how anxious we were to have his opinion on my wife's voice, and for a minute Hertz sat and stared at me. Then he cut me off, and cut me off sharp: "My dear fellow, I can't go to every recital at the drop of a hat. If notices were sent out my paper will send somebody over, and there will be no need whatever for you to come to me about it."

"Louise Bronson—"

"Yes, Louise said something to me about a recital, but I don't let her run my department, either."

Then I saw we weren't alone. Through the double door was a breakfast-room, and two women were in there; listening. One of them, in a kimono, seemed to be his wife. The other one had a hat on and looked like a guest. I couldn't see her face but she was leaning toward the wife, whispering something and laughing.

I felt my face get hot. I said I was sorry, and got out of there as fast as I could grab my hat.

The recital didn't help any. The place was packed with stooges, and they clapped and it didn't mean a thing. I sat with Randolph and Evelyn, and we clapped too, and after it was over and about a ton of flowers had gone up, and my flowers too, we went backstage with the whole mob to tell Doris how swell she was, and you would have thought it was just a happy family party. ### Four Year Course Given In Two Years At A. & M. College

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 17, (A&M)—Mid-term and June graduates of Texas high schools today were urged by President T. O. Walton to enter the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College without delay, in order that they might complete their college education before being subject to selective service call to arms.

Texas A. & M. College begins a new program of higher education, based on year-round study, on January 26. The year will be divided into three 16-week semesters, with one week's holiday between terms and an extra week for Christmas holidays. Under the new plan the equivalent of a 4-year course can be completed in two years and eight months.

The action was taken by the Board of Directors upon recommendation of the faculty in line with ideas of leading educators on the subject. It was pointed out that the speed-up program also will enable students to study military science and tactics along with other academic work, and many of them will graduate as second lieutenants in the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

"For the past two years the facilities and manpower of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College have been at the disposal of the government for national defense," Dr. Walton said, "for 65 years emphasis has been placed on importance of military training for peace as well as wartime. It is the natural step for us to lead the way to mass production of college-trained soldiers."

"The administrative officers of the College realize that magnitude of this undertaking. We must change the 'going-to-school habits' of the young manhood of Texas. If this plan is to be a success, mid-term graduates of high schools must enter college immediately, when our new term begins January 26."

"But above all, and by far the most important requirement is that the June high school graduate enter college training in June instead of awaiting the fall semester in September."

"Some students want to enjoy the summer vacation period. Others want to work for three months before entering college. Parents should realize the gravity of the situation, and counsel their sons in these perilous times."

"If the 17-year-old high school graduate enters college this summer, and goes to school continuously, he can graduate before reaching the age of selective service. Each year a higher percentage of our A. & M. graduates leave here with R. O. T. C. commissions."

"High school graduates over 17 years of age should enter college without delay, because by starting now, they may remain in school until graduation, especially those who earn R. O. T. C. contracts."

"The new plan has been inaugurated at A. & M. College to better serve the people of Texas. We feel that to keep our plant facilities in full use throughout the year will enlarge the usefulness of the college and is in line with our policies to give our utmost to the defense of our nation. The nation needs trained men today. Our job at A. & M. is to train men. Our program is to fill our nation's needs as fast as possible."

"After the war there will be a big demand for college trained men. We feel that the time to get that training is now—a complete college education, uninterrupted."

Will Ride Bicycle 'For The Duration'

CANYON, Jan. 18 — Olin E. Hinkle, director of journalism, is the first faculty man of West Texas State College to ride a bicycle "for the duration."

He offered the following "good" reasons:

1. Automobile tires and fuel are saved.
2. Mrs. Hinkle can have the family car without argument.
3. Bicycle riding is good exercise. As the real reason, he confessed to a long-held, secret desire. But he added one liability.

"I don't mind the decision of grownup," he said, "but I need some snappy comebacks to small boys"

U. S. SHIP TORPEDOED OFF NEW YORK COAST

The Navy was "dealing with one or more enemy submarines menacing the eastern coast as the crew of a tanker torpedored off New York City arrived at Newport, R. I., little the worst for their ordeal. One of their shipmates was missing and presumed lost.

The nature of the "dealing" and of all matters pertaining to naval operations were military secrets, but it was no secret that the Atlantic coast, on which border the nation's largest cities, most busy ports, and richest industrial districts, was closely protected by warplanes, surface ships, and submarines, and enemy submarines operating offshore were in imminent peril.

The first ship torpedored off this coast in the new war was the 9,577-ton Panamanian tanker Normess. The Navy revealed that the submarine, presumably German, though it could have been Italian, used typical Axis "sneak" strategy, attacking by night without warning. It hit the Normess with three torpedoes yet it did not sink her for, though awash, she still was afloat early today.

Rear Admiral Edward C. Kalbfus, commandant of the naval operating base here, reported to Washington that the vessel was "beyond towing" and probably beyond salvaging. Her exact location was not revealed, but she was torpedored 60 miles southeast of Montauk Point, on the tip of Long Island, and approximately 150 miles from New York City, at 1:30 a. m. yesterday.

Farm Security Assist American Youth

How the Farm Security Administration is assisting American farm youth participate in the nation's Food for Freedom Drive, was explained here this week by W. E. Bentley, chairman of the county USDA Defense Board.

Farm Security loans for 4-H and Vocational Agriculture club projects are available to boys and girls whose parents are now cooperating with this agency. The loans, not exceeding $75 for each individual, are made to the club boys and girls at 5 percent interest, and can be made for a period up to five years. Supervision of the 4-H Club loans is given by the county extension agent, and the Vocational Agriculture Club loans are supervised by vocational agriculture teachers.

The pictures above show how the farm youth in Briscoe County made it possible for the county to exceed its quota set by the State USDA Defense Board for an increase in dairy animals. Farm Security loans were made to more than 75 club members for the purchase of young dairy heifers, sheep and heifer beef stock. At the top are J. B. Brooks, Jr. and Troy Brooks, with their 4-H Club flock. Also in the picture are Claude Carpenter, Farm Security supervisor, and County Agent, Lem Weaver.

Eight Lamb Co. Girl Students At Denton College

DENTON, Jan. 19—Eight Lamb County girls are among the 2,450 students enrolled at Texas State College for Women this year. Again the largest residential woman's college in the United States, TSCW has students from 214 Texas counties, 27 states, and 5 foreign countries.

Lamb County students include Misses Alma Faye Henry and Nelle Johnston of Littlefield; Chrysteene White, Amherst; Helen Lucille Brown, Anton; Mattie Ruth Koonce, Earth; Sybil White, Sudan; and Ava Sue Jones and Wanda Faye White, Springlake.

The growth of TSCW in the short span of 38 years to a place of county ginnings prior to Dec. 13 places the West Texas figure at 1,305,073 bales and that of the balance of the state at 1,012,561 bales. By these official figures, West Texas production stands at 56 1-2 per cent of all Texas, whereas last season the Westex production was only 38 per cent.

The report shows West Texas has gained 178,137 bales, while the balance of the state lost 793,792, from 1940.

Lubbock No. 1 County

Based on Dec. 13th ginnings, a West Texas county, Lubbock, ranks first in Texas production. Another Westex county, Jones, is in second place just behind Lubbock. Of the first ten producing counties, eight are West Texas; and of the first 15, eleven are West Texas. The Dec. 13th standing of the first 15 Texas counties was:

Rank	County	Bales
1	Lubbock	61,835
2	Jones	60,648
3	Nueces	57,853
4	Lynn	53,758

12	Hall	36,963
13	Knox	36,368

Based on the official figures, value of the West Texas cotton crop was computed by "West Texas Today" at $117,870,300 for the lint and $32,463,040 for the seed, for total of $151,333,340, or 40 per cent above the 1940 value.

Breed Bug To Do Away With Boll Veeveland Worm

Scientists are breeding a new kind of bug they expect to exterminate the boll weevil and pink boll worm, destroyers of millions of dollars worth of growing cotton.

The bug warrior is microbracon. It is a parasite which destroys the weevil and worm by boring into their lairs.

Dr. G. W. Goldsmith, botany professor and University of Texas cotton research laboratory director said today he believed discovery of the insect had provided a means of controlling the weevil and worm.

And too, he said, development and maintenance of the parasite is comparatively cheap and efficient.

Breeding experiments show that during the winter it lives and multiplies on a diet of flour moths which, with the weevil and worm, apparently rounds out its tastes.

This, says Dr. Goldsmith, cates there will be no danger microbracon becoming a pest itself, as have other artificially produced insects.

He and his assistants hope breed and, with the aid of federal and state agencies, unleash microbracon in huge numbers on cotton fields throughout the south later than the spring of 1943.

Dr. Goldsmith believes the site will prove a better method control than poison dusting which he says, has made thousands acres relatively infertile and unproductive due to accumulation of poison.

While microbracon, developed a control method in the university experimental fields, will destroy weevil and worm, the scientist stated that farmers should blame every chewed leaf on the two pests. Other insects also found on the cotton plant.

West Texas Produces Over Half Cotton Grown In This State

West Texas in the current cotton season is resoundingly giving point to its slogan, "Raw Materials Capital of the World," by climbing through the ropes with the title of premier producing section of the state. Certain is its prospect of reversing the all-Texas picture by ginning more cotton this season than last, while the balance of the state gins much less.

The area's great production record of the No. 1 staple is featured in the January (annual Diversification) issue of "West Texas Today," magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. A leading article in the issue points out that the U. S. Census bureau report of them to best meet these needs.

Robert Taylor and Lana Turner Comes To Palace
Theatre In "Johnny Eager" This Week End

Robert Taylor, who has appeared opposite practically every feminine star on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, now makes his first co-starring appearance with Lana Turner in the new M-G-M drama, "Johnny Eager," which opens at the Palace Saturday Midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday; also new March of Time to be featured.

Miss Turner, whose rapid rise to stardom is still the talk of Hollywood, comes to her new role direct from her success opposite Clark Gable in "Honky Tonk", and an earlier hit in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr.
Hyde," in which she co-starred with Spencer Tracy.

Also of interest in connection with "Johnny Eager" is the fact that it presents Taylor in his first characterization as a gangster, the story casting him as a shrewd boy who grew up on the wrong side of a big city and never learned the meaning of love and humanity until he became hopelessly enmeshed in a web of his own spinning.

Based on an original story by James Edward Grant, with the screen play written by Grant and John Lee Mahin, the production was directed by Mervyn LeRoy, director of such earlier gangster melodramas
as "Little Caesar" and "Five Star Final", and was produced by John W. Considine, Jr.

lowed by a brief discussion on music in general.

Committees were appointed and demonstrators were named for this year. Mrs. J. D. Lee will continue as Living Room Demonstrator and
Mrs. Bill Jones is to be Home Food Supply demonstrator. The commit-

Jones, and the lesson will be "Plan-

"WHEN AIR RAIDS STRIKE" TO BE SHOWN AT PALACE THEATRE THIS WEEK END

"When Air Raids Strike" is the latest March of Time film scheduled to arrive at the Palace Theatre Saturday Midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday with a comprehensive and informative picturization of civilian defense and air raid precautions, both in this country and in Great Britain.

Recognizing the fact that modern total war demands of civilians the same discipline and alertness as that required of the military forces, this newest March of Time helpfully points to the urgent needs of this country's civilian defense program, showing how, through hard and bitter experience, Britain's celebrated Air Raid Precautions (ARP) system has been perfected.

The film first touches upon the military defenses, and then shows the work of both the Air Raid Warden, who is largely responsible for the preservation of human lives, and the Auxiliary Fire Fighter whose task is to minimize property damage. And, for the benefit of the individual householder, the film shows exactly how to extinguish an incendiary bomb.

In a war whose most decisive victories and defeats have been largely determined by air power,

County Council To Meet Wednesday

The County Home Demonstration
Council will meet in regular session in the basement of the Methodist Church, Amherst, at 1:30 p. m.
Wednesday, January 28.
The training school will begin at 3:00 p. m. following council.

The March of Time points out, the ability to meet and master attack from the air is vitally important.
U. S. coastal cities, and particularly industrial areas, are likely to be attacked repeatedly by hit-and-run enemy planes, not for purposes of wholesale destruction but to create hysteria and panic among the U. S. people.

To prepare for such raids, many thousands of Americans are already learning the routine of ARP and civilian defense work—determined to profit by Britain's early mistakes.

Farmers In Area Making Substantial Payments On FSA Loans

Lamb County farm families cooperating with the Farm Security Administration have made substantial repayments on their loans advanced by this agency and are beginning the New Year with the best prospects in years.

This information was released this week by Fred L. Nix, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor for this United States Department of Agriculture Agency in Lamb County, with offices in the City Hall at Littlefield, Texas.

"Eager to do their part in the Food for Freedom campaign, a basic part of National Defense, these farm families," Mr. Nix said, "are busy with plans for increasing production of many needed food items in 1942. They are cooperating in the greatest manner possible with the local USDA Defense Board, and their support will do much to help this county reach its food production goal."

Gains made by FSA families in the past year are shown in the records of repayments. With most loans due for payment later on, some farm families in Lamb County have met their accounts before they were due, and some families have paid their accounts in full and will need no further loans from this agency.

Mr. Nix said the families who are "graduating" from this program this year are equipped with adequate farming equipment, workstock, hogs, chickens, cows and other facilities which will enable them to operate their farms successfully and contribute much to the Food for Freedom drive.

"In addition to having sufficient funds, food and feed with which to carry out their operations in 1942," Mr. Nix continued, "these people have learned the value of keeping accurate record books of farm and home operations; how to diversify their crops to best advantage, and how to protect and conserve the fertility of the soil they till." The Rehabilitation Supervisor said that several farmers are participating in Community and Cooperative Services sponsored by Farm Security, and that additional co-ops are being organized over the county and will be placed in operation soon.

Many other plans are offered families served by FSA. These include farm debt adjustment services, long-term lease forms, health and sanitation improvement, and farm and home guidance.

Although the Farm Security Administration is serving more than 175 of the farm families in this county, this agency's services are available to other small and low income operators who cannot get adequate credit elsewhere. Farm families who may need help to carry on their operations in 1942 are urged to contact Mr. Nix immediately. Feed, seed tools, livestock and equipment necessary for preparation, planting, cultivating and harvesting crops are among the things for which loans are available to worthy applicants.

P. T. A. Buy 110 Books For School

The Parent-Teacher association purchased some much needed reading material for the Central school, in the form of 110 books.

Mrs. W. C. Lackey, Librarian, reports there were so many calls for books on Friday afternoon that she had to postpone issuing books until Monday.

BIKE RIDERS MUST REGISTER BICYCLES

No deadline has yet been set for bicycle riders to register their bikes, but this must be done for 1942.

The cost is 35 cents as usual, and at least two requirements must be met. Papers showing registration last year must be presented, or in case the bicycle is new, a bill of sale must be shown to prove ownership.

WOUNDED SLIGHTLY

Information has been received by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McCool that their son, Odell, who was reported wounded in action soon after outbreak of the war in the Pacific, was wounded slightly and that he was able to be on duty the next day after the injury. In a letter, young McCool informed his parents that he was hit by a piece of flying steel. He is with the U. S. Navy somewhere in the Pacific.

games is only 10c per person or 25c per family. This price includes the federal admission tax, and is so low that anyone can afford to come. Come on out and meet your neighbors and friends—they'll be there—and enjoy the games.

Second and Third Grades

The second and third grade pupils have a contest on in reading. The pupil who reads a perfect lesson without missing a single word gets to put a letter of his name on the board. By the time the contest is finished we hope every one will have his full name on the board. We have all learned the pledge to the flag. About seven people in our room have a defense stamp book started.

Basketball

Two basketball games were played here with Anton on Tuesday night, January 6. The Spade Junior Boys won with a score of 9 to 5, but the Spade Senior Boys lost with a score of 15 to 28. The girls gave Anton girls a sound defeat in volleyball the same night.

Lamb County Teachers To Meet at Springlake

A regular meeting of the Lamb County Teachers Association will be held at Springlake on Monday night, January 26. The local teachers are members of the association and plan to attend this meeting.

At Springlake last Friday night, the B string of boys started the losing stretch in the conference games by going down to the tune of 6 to 23. The girls then lost their first game by a score of 24 to 35. The Senior boys were tied at the half, but could not keep pace to the end and lost by a score of 22 to 39. Too many fouls, boys. Too bad.

Better Luck From Here On

Last Tuesday night at Bula, the girls took a easy victory by a score of 27 to 6. The boys found tougher going, however, and, after holding the lead throughout the game, won by 24 to 22. The game was good. Nobody fouled out. Let's beat Sudan to-night.

We Are Helping Uncle Sam

All Registrants Receive Booklets

Every Texas registrant selected for induction in the Army now is receiving a booklet telling him exactly what the army expects of him and what it offers to him, General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, announced today.

Supplies of this booklet, which is entitled "The Army and you" and was prepared by the War Department in cooperation with National Selective Service Headquarters, have been received at State Headquarters, General Page said, and allocated to local Boards for distribution to their selectees.

The booklet contains only 14 pages, 6 by 9 inches in dimensions, and is a convenient size for the selectee to carry with him. The valuable information provided for the "rookie" soldier is indicated by the following subtitles:

- "In the American Spirit"; "What the Army Expects of You and What the Army Offers You"; "Teamwork is Essential"; "Military Courtesy"; "Your Health and Your Equipment Must Be Well Cared For"; "Good Food—And Plenty of It"; "The Chaplain is the Friend of Every Soldier"; "Promotion Rewards Duty Well Done"; "The Induction Station"; "The Reception Center"; "Classification and Assignment";

"Your Family is Kept Informed of Your Progress"; "The Replacement Training Center."

The cover page shows American soldiers on the march and the contents include inspiring messages from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson, Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, and John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States, together with a quotation from Theodore Roosevelt.

and the record that I have made is in all ways an open book for the investigation of all the people of the 64th Judicial District. And I am sure that you can find out anything you want to know about me, as I have been reared in Lamb County, Texas, since I was thirteen years of age and have been practicing law for more than seven years during that time, in Lamb County.

"I believe in the enforcement of the laws of our State in a fair and impartial manner and with justice to all persons concerned, and if you see fit to elect me your District Attorney, that is the way that I intend to handle your office. I mean, by this, that when a case is brought up and the same has merit to it, I will be on the job as your District Attorney to prosecute same.

But if a young boy or girl gets into trouble by accident and the people of the community in which they might reside say and believe that they are the kind of boy or girl who deserve another chance, and they have a good reputation in the community in which they reside, I will be the first one to be ready to recommend to the District Court, to give them another chance. But for those habitual violators of the law and those guilty of outrageous crimes, I will, as your District Attorney do all in my power to send them to the Penitentiary in this State, or other punishment they might deserve, being directed by the crime committed.

"I, in all things, realize the national emergency; know that because of same, it will take a lot more work and hard work to handle the District Attorney's office, but I will at all times, do my dead-level best, and at all time work for the interest of the citizens of the 64th Judicial District in connection with such work that the national emergency requires, because we all know that all we have is now at stake and we must all do our part. I have offered myself for military service and have offered my help in any way to my country, but because of my overweight, I was rejected from the military service, but if at any time in the future my country needs me, I am ready and willing to quit anything that I might be doing and give my entire services in any way possible to my country.

"I will appreciate all persons of the 64th Judicial District investigating me and if you believe I am qualified to give you the kind of service you are entitled to, and that I will work in all ways to your interest, then I will highly appreciate your vote and influence and will guarantee you that if you see fit to vote for me and say a good word for me, that no one will appreciate that vote and good word as much as J. ese nationals residing in the states of California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Utah and Idaho are required to file applications at the nearest first or second class, or county seat, post office between February 2 and February 7, 1942, inclusive.

2. All German, Italian and Japanese nationals residing elsewhere in continental United States are required to file applications at the nearest first or second class, or county seat, post office between February 9 and February 28, 1942, inclusive.

Failure to comply with the new regulations may be punished by severe penalties, including possible interment of the enemy alien for the duration of the war.

The regulations require enemy aliens, in applying for identification certificates, to provide a photograph of themselves (to be attached to the identity card) and to answer a number of questions concerning their current activities. Printed directions for the filing of applications will shortly be available at post offices.

The regulations provide that after a careful check has been made of each application, the applicant will be provided with a Certificate of Identification bearing his photograph, index fingerprint and signature. He will thereafter be required to carry the certificate with him at all times.

In announcing the new regulations, the Attorney General said:

"The objective of the Department of Justice in issuing identification certificates to aliens of enemy nationalities is the dual one of strengthening our internal safety and protecting the loyal alien, even if he has become technically an alien enemy. The plan for issuing these certificates was worked out after consultation with Lieutenant General J. L. DeWitt, Commander of the Ninth Corps Area.

"I want to make it clear that in no sense will our issuance of identification certificates be a re-registration of a portion of the alien population. We are entirely satisfied with the results of the 1940 national registration of aliens, and this new procedure will not duplicate it. We deem it essential, however, for the protection of loyal alien enemies as well as for our own national safety, to obtain supplementary information of all German, Italian and Japanese non-citizens and provide them with identification certificates bearing their photographs."

Probably the highlight of the program will be the welterweight fight between Junior McLaurin of O'Donnell and Dale Odom of Lubbock. Last year Odom won the hearts of the Littlefield fans with his clean sportsmanship and boxing ability. Consequently he won the trophy at the district tournament for being the outstanding boxer at that time.

McLaurin was the 1940 TAAF state champion and is considered to be one of the best welterweights in the state. He won a close decision over Odom in the Post tournament.
