WILL SUGGEST ROUTE FOR EAST AND WEST ROAD

Meeting Will be Held at Spade School House Monday Night

A meeting will be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Spade school, for the purpose of selecting the best possible route through the Spade community for the proposed east-west highway, connecting at Coydada and Portales, N. M., and forming an inter-state highway. J. W. Hale, secretary of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, has been asked to attend the meeting, as well as the county judge and county commissioners. Any person who is directly interested in the project is cordially invited to attend.

Maps showing the point at which the highway will enter Lamb county and Littlefield will be presented at the meeting. All farmers of the Spade community have been urged to attend this meeting.

New Law Removes Interest and Penalty On Delinquent Taxes

Under a new state law, passed at the last special session of the legislature, delinquent taxes can be paid without interest or penalty, according to Gaston Patterson, county tax collector, if paid before December 31, 1932.

Taxes Paid After That Date Will Carry Both Interest and Penalty.

HAIL DAMAGES CROPS

The Littlefield section was visited Wednesday afternoon by heavy rains and considerable hail was reported to have fallen a mile north of Littlefield and extending east to Fieldton, covering a territory of about 10 miles square. Cotton was completely destroyed and late feed was damaged.

NEW LAW GIVES RAIL COMMISSION RIGHT TO LOOK INTO OPERATIONS OF GAS FIRMS IN CITIES, MAYOR STATES

Mayor T. S. Sales has been advised by Senator Pink Parrish and Representative A. B. Tarwater that the legislature passed a bill whereby the Texas Railroad commission has been given the authority to make valuations of gas lines within the limits of municipalities, and otherwise inquire into the operations of gas companies within city limits. Herebefore the authority of the commission has been limited to pipe lines up to the boundaries of municipalities. The new law, according to Mayor Sales, will prove of great value to municipalities in looking into the fairness of rates charged by gas companies.

Mayor Sales several days ago wired Senator Parrish and Representative Tarwater, in behalf of the City of Littlefield, asking their co-operation in having the legislation passed.

Commissioner Boone To Cover Aggie-Tech Game for the Leader

The two aggregations will meet as a part of the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo, September 24.

Both teams, the Aggies of A. & M. college and the Matadors of Texas Tech, promise to be among the Southwest's strongest this year.

COUNTY JUDGE'S RACE CONTEST TO BE APPEALED

McGavock Will Carry Democratic Committee Decision To District Court

A. H. McGavock, candidate for county judge of Lamb county, who contested the election of Judge Simon D. Hay, incumbent, has announced that he will appeal to the district court from the decision of the Lamb County Democratic committee.

The hearing in the contest action was held Thursday at Olton, and the Democratic committee rendered the following decision:

"We, the Democratic executive committee of Lamb county, Texas, find the following facts:

"We find that the illegal votes cast were not sufficient to change our findings of last return in the county judge's race, August 27, 1932, Lamb county, Texas.

"We further find there was not sufficient evidence to warrant this committee to re-count Box No. 1, Lamb county, Texas.

"Guy Willis, "Chairman."

Mr. McGavock alleged that illegal votes were cast in Box No. 1 (Olton) and also asked for a re-count of that box.

Approximately 40 witnesses were heard at last Thursday's hearing. The district court room was crowded all during the day and until 10 p. m.,

Utility Stockholders Will "Fight to Last Ditch" for Money

Residents of the Panhandle-Plains and Western New Mexico, who purchased stock in the American Commonwealth Power Corporation, through operating companies, including the Texas Utilities Co., Tuesday organized at Amarillo to fight "to the last ditch" to obtain the return of their money.

Through their organization, formed at Amarillo Tuesday and to be known as the Protective League, they will seek to recover an estimated amount of $1,500,000 invested in stock of the American Commonwealth Power Corporation.

The weapon of the organization will be "public opinion", and municipal ownership will be advocated unless the demands of the stockholders are met.

Duggan is Vice-President

Gene A. Howe, editor of the Amarillo News and Globe, who sponsored the meeting and who carried on investigations for several months, was elected president of the Protective League.

Senator-elect Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield, was chosen vice-president, and Representative Clyde Warwick of Canyon, was named secretary. Miss Marguerite Howell of Amarillo, was made assistant secretary.

The three officers with George Broome and Dr. George Vineyard of Amarillo, Byron Dickinson of Lubbock and Herbert S. Hilburn of Plainview, constitute the executive committee of the organization.

Two members of the central committee were chosen from each city and community where the stock was sold. They were directed to hold meetings in their respective communities and to enroll as members of the organization all persons who had bought stock.

Confer With Kelso

Officers of the organization and members of the executive committee conferred Wednesday at Amarillo with Judge I. R. Kelso, president of the Texas Utilities Co., and David A. Belden, president of the Community Power & Light Co., as the first move to seek redress through negotiations. Three hundred stockholders attended the meeting.

Those who attended from Littlefield were Mr. Duggan and George R. Long.

What do you think

SHORT STORY—

LOST—One can of home canned beans. Information anxiously sought by Charlie Harless, who will likely be found down around Stokes' drug store in a spirited argument with J. E. Norman.

Editor's Note—The above lost advertisement is inserted in an effort to relieve the said Mr. Norman from all liability, grief, joy, hilarity and stigma, as the result of the disappearance of the said can of home canned beans.

Reports are current on the main stem of our bustling, young, progressive and notable metropolis that the said Charlie Harless parked his car on said traffic artery, that the said J. E. Norman was observed to tamper with, peddle, and traffic in seven cans of the said canned beans. The record is straight as to the seven cans, but there's one can that Charlie says disappeared; in other words, he's of the opinion that the said J. E. Norman knows where the eighth can went. J. E. thinks that Charlie must have had 39 cans, not 40 cans, in his car.

An Additional Note from the Editor—Don't take any of the above statements seriously; all that happened relative to the seven cans and the mystery missing can is just one of those friendly, humorous affairs that take place on our main stem.

CURING A PUP WITH THE WHOOPING COUGH IS EASY—FOR SOME PEOPLE, BUT—FLYING A MONOPLANE—WELL, PAGE MORRIS MORGAN

By M. B. D.

If you asked us to discuss the various breeds of dogs, and what's the cure when a pup gets the whooping cough, we might be in a position to offer some light.

But on the subject of airplanes . . . well, we just sit there and look sort of blank and ask foolish questions.

The first, last and only time we made an airplane flight was about 1915. That was when airplanes were shaky sort of affairs and the old gray mare was young.

But we don't know of anybody who, has purchased an airplane hereabouts who cares a weak cup of coffee about how many airplane flights we have made.

Here's what we started out to tell the customers.

Mr. Morris Morgan, prominent and well known Littlefield young . . . beg your pardon, a monoplane.

Between mouthfuls of hot biscuits down at Paul Vause's filling station, we inquired about monoplanes and airplanes, and what have you, and Mr. Morgan, whose friends address him as "Lody," informed us that a monoplane has wings on the top of it, whereas an airplane has wings top and bottom and attached with some sort of affairs that keep them apart and together.

Well, anyhow, Morris has a monoplane.

Morris' new air chariot is a Stearman three-place ship with a J-Five 230 horsepower motor, and is capable of a top speed of about 125 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 90 to 100 miles.

And, customers, get a load of this—the latest Littlefield plane has a motor of exactly the same type as Colonel Lindbergh used in his famous flight. It's also the same kind of engine that was used this year in winning the Transcontinental air race. (We don't know a goosh ding thing about it; we are just writing down what we have been told.)

But apart from all this technical information we have been informed that this new sky crasher is some high stepper; last Sunday it stepped up 12,000 feet away up there.

The owner of the plane and Jimmie Ware were passengers at the time. Jimmie threatened to send back down to earth for his

THE COTTON CROP ESTIMATE

Both the Dallas News and The Texas Weekly have pointed out that the increased estimate of the 1932 cotton crop made by the Government last week was due not to an estimated increase in the yield per acre but to an estimated increase in the number of acres harvested. In other words, it was estimated that on account of increased prices fewer acres would be abandoned than was thought would be the case when the estimate of the previous month was made. These estimates are based upon reports gathered by the Government prior to the first of any given month but the estimates are made on or just prior to the eighth of each month. During the period of eight days intervening between September 1 and September 8, the ravages of floods and worms were such as to make it probable that there would be a decrease both in the yield per acre and in the number of acres harvested. It is argued, therefore, that such estimates should take into consideration conditions that may have developed during this eight-day interval. As a result of the last estimate, which is believed to have been inaccurate on account of these new developments, the price of cotton was forced down $5.00 per bale and the farmers of the South sustained a loss of many millions of dollars. It is obvious that Government cotton reports ought to be just as near up-to-the-minute as possible. This defect in the Government reporting system should be corrected.—Lynn County News.

SCHOOL DAYS

Another school year has begun. More children than ever went to school at one time before, will spend the next eight or nine months laying foundations for their independent and individual lives. Some of them will learn a good deal. Some of them will not learn very much. The one thing that most children learn in school, and the most important thing that any of them learn is, after all, not what is in the books but how to live.

It has always seemed to us that the real life of the child is his or her school life. During these formative years the child's principal interest centers about school. It is the one place where he can mingle on equal terms with all of those around him. For several hours a day he works and plays in the company of those of his own age. He learns, through the necessary discipline of the schoolroom, to restrain such natural impulses as tend to disorder, but he learns from the contacts with other boys not only the wisdom of non-interference with the rights of others, but the importance of standing up for his own rights. In other words, the most valuable function of the school is to socialize its pupils, to help them to learn how to live in the crowd.

In the old days of big families the children learned those things from their own brothers and sisters. Families of eight or ten or more youngsters are not so common in these days, and the discipline of the crowd is best enforced and learned in the school atmosphere. And it is becoming more and more essential that our young folks should go out into the world with a better understanding of their place in it.

We think the best schools are the ones in which the pupils are required to do most for themselves and have the least done for them by their teachers and others. All that any system of education can do for any child is to stimulate him to use his own native intelligence. But outside of the curriculum, beyond and above the formal routine of the acquisition of knowledge, far more important is the socializing and civilizing influence of constant association with other young ones of his own age.

Electric Service Costs Decline

The graph presented here, except as to the item of taxes, is prepared from the records of the U. S. Department of Labor Statistics and is illuminating as to the relative price changes from 1913 to 1932.

The curve headed "Cost of Living" is a composite curve including food, clothing, rent, fuel, house furnishings, luxuries, etc. In 1920 Cost of Living prices were 115% above 1913 prices, and in 1932 such costs are approximately 30% above 1913 prices. Food price is the only one that has reached the 1913 level.

It will be noted that costs of electricity have declined since 1913 and that in 1932 the average cost of electricity is 21% below 1913 prices. This reduction in the cost of electric service was made possible through the construction of super power plants at strategic points and the interconnecting of communities by transmission lines. Such constructions called for large investments of capital and furnished labor to countless thousands of people.

In many communities the decline in the cost of electric service since 1913 has been in excess of the 21% average. In our local community the average cost of electricity has been reduced 38% to 40% since 1913.

10th Installment

Johnny Breen, 16, who has spent all his life on the Hudson river tugboat plying New York City, is made mother-explosion which sinks the vessel ashore where starts strange life. He is ignorant, cannot read, and knows nothing in a great city. . . . Beaten by toughs he is rescued by fish family living off the shore in the rear of their second-story store. . . . Here he is courted by the young daughter of a family in self-defense, and soon is picked up by a club manager who cheats him under his wing. . . . On the side of the picture are the Van Horns of Fifth Avenue, a family, a bachelor, in whose hidden chapter with his mother—who leaves the home—to the city life—when Gilbert is reported to have carried an old captain of a river boat, rather than return home to be a mother. . . . Under guardianship young Breen cannot read—starts him to school and the world commences for Johnny Breen. . . . An old-timer, is backed in a farm venture—taking Breen there they meet and come to know Gilbert Van Horn. John Van Horn, who learns of mother, named Harriet, of John's desire for an engineering course at Columbia University advances the money. John to know Josephine, Van Horn's and during the school year he in love with her. Graduating Civil Engineer he gets a job in a great construction company, in New York. Breen has for the love of Josephine, a man of the world by the name Rantoul. But John wins out. He sees and Josephine accepts.

some lone pilgrim, gave her the feeling of a deeper message. Then, after some months, there was the long silence that might mean his return via the Pacific. Josephine found her return. She did not show these cards to John. He was blissfully unaware of these romantic memories on the part of Josephine.

Meanwhile John's ability to earn the respect of men by the use of his fists had earned him promotion. He had been placed in charge of Section One, the toughest job on the aqueduct.

Gerrit Rantoul returned from his world tour. He arrived at the beginning of the season; all of fashionable New York, that is, the New York capable of paying attention to fashion, was back in the city. He was finer, more considerate, more quietly correct, more distinguished than ever. If bit difficult, the least bit aggrieved, her fears were entirely removed on his return. Even Gilbert Van Horn was glad to see him. Rantoul was returning at an opportune time for Josephine.

forced himself to spare from the work, having had to phone Josephine that he could not accompany her to the Winterrow lecture on "Art, Life's Real Reward." She had already gone with Gerrit Rantoul.

"A year will see the main work done, the tunnel holed through and the lining poured. We are in the man-killing stage now!" John paused.

"I've been watching you—and Josephine." Van Horn continued slowly.

"She's difficult, John, you know what I mean. Women demand a lot, I know, John, I know." The older man looked kindly at the young engineer. "This work is making you, but women don't see such things, not all of them, at least. Pug made your body what it is, the schools have helped your mind, but this work, with its damnable demands, is forging character. God, boy, I envy you the fight." Van Horn was tense.

"But you have still another thing to do, and that is to get and keep your woman—your wife. It means a lot to me, John, more than you know. I wish a day could be set for your marriage; say next June?"

"I'm ready, Gil," John laughed and looked away.

But you have still another thing to do, and that is get and keep your woman

When John Breen had appeared with his fist bandaged, Josephine shuddered a bit at the explanation. "I lifted a bum under the jaw." Perhaps it was anything but accurate, or heroic. Then, too, it was that Josephine found it more difficult to pit her charms against the insistence of the tunnel. John kept talking about an uncouth and unreasonable person. Night after night he never came up, never came near his own rooms, and when Josephine did see him his eyes were heavy with weariness, his lids brilliant with the gloss of tunnel smoke.

For some months past a change had come over Josephine. She resented the growing place the tunnel was taking in the mind of her betrothed. Even gentle Marie Bashkirtseff would not have tolerated any such lapses of devotion, and Josephine was a sensitive high-strung girl.

Even with the money she some day would have, on the death of Van Horn, life with John Breen might be more or less of a struggle. He would insist on working, would probably want her to go to dreadful places, the Andes, or the Sahara Desert; just what to do there she did not know, but young engineers took their wives to outlandish countries. Rantoul told her of such things, quite casually, of course. She would have to give as well as take.

Josephine found more occasion to find fault with John after his promotion. His heavy responsibilities as section engineer held him firmer and firmer in the grip of the tunnel. He was on the job hour after hour, day and night, and slept with a telephone at his bedside. He was compelled, time and again, to break engagements, to hurry from her suddenly. He felt restless and ill at ease when away from the tunnel.

"How long will this tunnel job keep going?" Van Horn asked one evening. He and John were in the library smoking for an hour John

"Josephine can get her trousseau in Paris, I've promised her that. I'll speak to her, a run across will do no harm, winter in the south of France, and back here early in the spring. How about that, John?"

"Things may be easier for me by that time, Gil," John visioned a winter of uninterrupted work. He would "get" the shaft and tunnel by that time; he would master the work, and take his place with the men who really counted, the hard true men who worked with him on the job. Never in his life had he expected to have such slavish veneration for human beings as he had for the men of the great rock pressure tunnel crawling beneath the unknowing people of the city.

"By the way," John remarked as he was about to go, "Josephine is coming down to the job some night next week. I've asked Rantoul to bring her down. You've seen the thing. I thought Rantoul might like to see it, too. He got me the first appointment, I'll never forget that."

"Good boy. It's something that will open her eyes. Show her the whole works, John; good luck to you."

And the night Josephine came John was in the thick of a big tunnel accident.

Rantoul's gray cushioned limousine drew up silently at the entrance to the shaft enclosure. Josephine Lambert, on the arm of Rantoul, walked gingerly toward the shafthead. Women were crowding about the headhouse; weeping, wailing women. Children were crying. She knew the tunnel was a terrible place. But this? It was horror! Something had gone wrong. Rantoul held her arm, and led her toward the office of the section engineer, Josephine trembled. "You stay here," he said, seating her before the desk in the deserted office, brilliant with its clusters of lights above the drafting tables.

"Something's wrong below. I'll see."

He was superbly calm. "John! I hope he's not hurt." She clung to Rantoul's hand. "Yes! Yes! go! Tell me soon. Go—" she cried. "Don't go!" She was shuddering—white. But he had slipped through the door.

Her frightened eyes took in the fittings of the little office. The place reeked of labor, and the untidiness of working men. A garlic smell from the locker room conveyed a sense of common, uncouth feeding, as she sniffed the gas of damp carbide spilled while hastily filling tunnel lamps. And without, just beyond her sight, she heard the echo of an Homeric struggle rising from the shaft. The screams of women came to her, for the mangled bodies of men were being hoisted out. Why did Rantoul stay so long? Was John killed? Why had she come? Questions crowded upon her. She was dizzy, nauseated. The vile garlic odor, was overpowering. She shuddered, sinking breathless in John's chair.

Presently Rantoul returned. "John is all right," he announced curtly. His eyes reflected a hint of things below. "I saw him at the shaft head; he went down again. Some poor fellows were killed—an explosion—God! what a hole!" Rantoul lit a cork-tipped cigarette, snapped the gold case with a click. Suddenly he realized that Josephine was ill. He helped her to her feet; supported her to the open air. "We had better go," he said, quietly, and they walked down the little plankway outside of the enclosure to the waiting car.

John Breen, coming up from the tunnel with the last of the rescue party, ran to the office. A vague scent lingered over his desk, mingled with the aroma of an Egyptian cigarette. He stepped to the outside door and peered into the dark. Down by the curb was the limousine, and he saw Josephine entering the car with Rantoul. She was distant, exquisite, her hair glowing beneath the light in the car. She held Rantoul's hand, a wan smile was on her lips. They rolled away silently.

John was utterly tired as he washed the dirt and grease from his hands by using a gray paste smelling of naphtha and filled with an abrasive grit, a sort of mechanic's scouring pomade warranted to remove the most stubborn dirt. He was loosely jocular, his nerves were under scant control. He suddenly associated his cleansing with Josephine and burst out laughing. John again saw the picture of Rantoul, not the engineer, but the financier (he would always think of him so), handing Josephine into the car. John felt a bitter pang.

The engineers had come up, his assistants were cleaned and gone home, he had noted the events of the night in his official records and had again inspected the shaft. The watch was below in the tunnel, the din without had subsided for a while, the shaft was shut down—until midnight. John did not go home, he was too tired, too many matters of moment centered about the shaft, he felt a vague dread of the streets, he wanted to stay where he was sure of his foundations, his surroundings, his thoughts. In a dozen homes women and children were sobbing.

A chastened Josephine was leaving for Paris and the south of France. A winter on the Riviera would do her good. John had had a long talk with Van Horn. "I'm beating the tunnel, Gil," John said simply. He looked so capable, so well. John was confident, happy. He was too happy to be safe, especially with a woman like Josephine, who demanded suffering from others.

But Van Horn looked bad, out of condition, yellow. Pug Malone would have shuddered at the sight of him. The fact that Gerrit Rantoul had taken passage on the same steamer, again on urgent business, may have had something to do with the depression of Van Horn. Still, when John and Rantoul stood together on the deck—John was seeing them off—Van Horn compared them and smiled.

Theford's BLACK-DRAUGHT is made from plants that grow in the ground, like the garden vegetables you eat at every meal. NATURE has put into these plants an active medicine that stimulates the bowels to act—just as Nature put the materials that sustain your body into the vegetable foods you eat. In Black-Draught you have a natural laxative, free from synthetic drugs. Its use does not make you have to depend on cathartic chemical drugs to get the bowels to act daily. Now you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for CHILDREN.

Mueller Gardens Are Among Beauty Spots of The City

Perhaps one of the most outstanding efforts at home beautification in Littlefield is that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Mueller in the Southmoor addition.

Despite the fact that the project will not reach its second birthday until next spring, a remarkable growth of trees, shrubbery, grass and various flowers is evident.

Chinese elms along the front of two 50-foot lots show splendid uniformity and width. The trees, towering perhaps 15 feet at present, when set out measured less than four feet. Credit for these would justly go to Mr. Mueller, while Mrs. Mueller could well claim the distinction of being the grower of some of the finest dahlias in Littlefield and, possibly, Lamb county.

At the present time, a wide variety of dahlias of varied colors, some of which are variegated, are blooming in Mrs. Mueller's gardens. One giant dahlia, possibly six feet high, bears several blossoms measuring eight inches in diameter.

Other flowers, less dignified, in the Mueller gardens are a varied assortment of asters, snap dragons and verbenas.

This said addition will cover the scales, and includes an office. J. T. didn't say anything about it, but it's a safe bet that he will have a good warm stove all the time when the cool days come. ### PLANS ARE BEING MADE FOR TEXAS CENTENNIAL IN '36

ARTHUR P. DUGGAN IS APPOINTED COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield has been appointed by managing director Will H. Mayes to serve as County Chairman of the Texas Centennial Committee for Lamb County. According to Mr. Mayes, the county chairman will effect a county and precinct organization for a campaign to acquaint voters with the pending Centennial constitutional amendment, whereby the Texas Legislature will be empowered to appropriate funds for financing the Texas Centennial to be held in 1936.

Commenting on the Texas Centennial, Texas Opinion, published in Houston, says:

In 1936 one hundred years will have elapsed since a handful of Texas patriots fought and won the Battle of San Jacinto—dubbed by Clarence Wharton the "Sixteenth Decisive Battle"—routing the soldiers of the Mexican dictator and giving to the world another frontier where the principles and institutions of free men might be planted.

To celebrate the hundredth anniversary of that battle, and to show the world, as well as its own people, the extent of present achievement and the scope of present opportunity, a great Centennial Celebration is proposed to the people of Texas. It is the suggestion of the committee of prominent Texas citizens who foster the project, that the Centennial be financed by the people, for the people. In other words, it is proposed that the legislature appropriate sufficient money for fitting observance of the anniversary.

To do this, a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislative appropriation must be voted by the people. In some quarters it is being said that present conditions do not justify the expenditure of this modest sum.

There is no reason whatever to justify the assumption that the present depression will extend into 1936, and less to warrant planning for 1936 in the light of present conditions. But even were there reason to believe conditions would not be substantially improved four years from now, Texas surely is not so poor as to be restrained from fitting observance of the achievements of one hundred years of freedom.

As a matter of fact, the Centennial will bring in from out-of-state much more money than Texas people will spend for the celebration. But that is more or less beside the question. For Texas pride never has, and will not now, suffer measurement by a gauge marked in dollars and cents. O-K Texas; O-K Centennial Committee; O-K Managing Director, Governor Mayes. Texans are with you. On with the Centennial!

Writing in behalf of the Texas Centennial, The Texas Weekly, edited by Peter Molyneux at Dallas, has the following to say:

The Centennial of the heroic period of Texas' history is less than four years off. The year 1936 will be crowded with centennial dates every Texan should hold in reverence. The adoption of the Texas Declaration of Independence, the heroic sacrifice of the Alamo, the shocking massacre at Goliad, the decisive victory of Sam Houston and his little army over Santa Anna at San Jacinto, the inauguration of Sam Houston as the first Constitutional President of the Republic of Texas, the death of Stephen F. Austin, founder of Anglo-American civilization west of the Sabine—all these events and others took place in the memorable year of 1836. And it is proposed that modern Texans shall show that they have not forgotten these events, that they recognize fully the great debt they owe to the men and women who figured in them, by holding a fitting celebration. More than that, it is proposed that Americans of all the other States shall participate in it in recognition of the undoubted fact that these events were not mere local incidents, but part and parcel of the glorious history of our common country.

An essential step toward the holding of such a celebration will be the adoption by the people of Texas of an amendment to the State Constitution authorizing it. A proposed amendment providing for this will be voted on by the people in the general election in November. It must be adopted. For if it is not adopted, the action of the people in rejecting it will be equivalent to a refusal to permit the State Government which owes its existence to the deeds of 1836 to take any formal part in observing the centennial. That due homage will be paid to the memory of the men who won our independence and founded free government on our soil we are certain. There are enough loyal Texans who will insist on some kind of formal recognition of the anniversaries of 1936 to insure that. But in the November election it will be decided irrevocably whether the State, as the official embodiment of all the people of Texas, shall authorize and participate in a fitting observance of the centennial.

We have taken occasion in the past to say that "there is only one reason why Texans should hold a centennial celebration, and that is because they have a glorious past and because they hold it in genuine reverence." That is our deliberate opinion. Some have expressed the fear that this statement might be interpreted as a confession that the holding of a centennial celebration may not be economically advantageous to Texas. It is nothing of the kind. It is simply a declaration of our belief that a centennial celebration held merely because it would be economically advantageous to Texas would be an unworthy one. The people of Texas should adopt the proposed amendment out of reverence for their past. There need be no fear that a people that reverences its past will not be capable of taking care of its future, economic and otherwise.

When a certain advertising agency in New York wanted to equip a dining room in its skyscraper quarters it bought a hundred-year-old New England farmhouse and transported the dining room and kitchen to the city, fireplace and all.

SUDAN

Sudan occupies a prominent place in the cattle feeding out program of the South Plains.

During one week recently about 3,000 head of feeder cattle were received by local feeders to be fed out for the eastern markets.

P. E. Boesen received 900 head of cattle from Bledsoe, early last week. This runs the number that he has now in feeding pens, west of town, to something over 1300 head.

Furneaux Brothers now have about 1300 head of feeder cattle in their pens west of town to be fed out this winter.

Paul Brothers, whose ranch is near Circle Back, received 200 head the first of last week. This runs their total up to about 350.

Foster Lumpkin received 150 head which he will feed out at his farm southwest of town.

More feeder cattle will be received in the near future by other feeders of this community. The cattle which have already been received are of the best grade and will fatten out making the best grade of beef.

Dr. P. E. Berndt who has been a resident of Plainview for the past 15 years, has moved his equipment to the Wood building on Main street, where he will practice dentistry.

OLTON

Charles E. Newton, recently of Muleshoe, has been made manager of the Panhandle Lumber company yard here.

H. A. Sharp has recently completed the construction of a building in north Olton to be occupied by a cafe. Mr. Sharp may operate the cafe himself.

ANTON

C. B. Blankenship was the lucky man in the matter of the first bale of cotton sold here this season. The Prairie Gin handled the bale and J. R. Minton bought it for six and three-quarter cents per pound. Mr. Blankenship also received $17.75 as a premium from the merchants, making the fleecy staple bring around ten and one-quarter cents per pound.

TRIBUTE TO COL. JONES

Colonel Carey M. Jones, one of the foremost auctioneers of purebred livestock in America, will be on the block again this fall in the Chicago stockyards when the weekly club calf auctions get under way. For some years he has given his valuable services to the club program in this way and for the love of doing it. The Colonel has a very kindly interest in farm boys and girls. He was a farm boy himself and had to make his own way in the world. "And, besides," he says, "there isn't anything that gives me such a thrill as to get a good price for a boy's club calf and see his eyes brighten as he figures the money he will receive."

And what a lot of money Colonel Jones has made for club members. In his genial and shrewd way he keeps all the buyers feeling good and the average of the sales he has made is right at the top of the market. During the eight years he has occupied the block at these auctions he has sold 12,850 club calves at a total of more than $1,550,000. Last year was his best turn-over, 2,412 calves passing under his hammer.

These auctions were started back when there was no organized means of selling the club calves after the fair was over. Before the auction packers were asked to come to the various fairs and buy the calves. Soon the calls were so many that the buyers could not attend them. Then at the request of the club leaders an arrangement was made to have the International Live Stock Exposition sponsor auctions. The National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work enlisted the interest of packers, commission agencies and others in the auctions and they were successful from the start.

In this plan any boy or girl regularly enrolled in club work may consign his calf to a commission firm which enters the calf in the auction and remits the proceeds to the member. Many members go together in a community and make up a truck load or carload of calves and accompany the shipment to market. Such a trip is a liberal education in livestock marketing.

Some New York apartment house residents have windows looking out upon unpleasant surroundings. So they have pretty pictures painted on the windows.

"HUDDLE", SMART FOOTBALL PICTURE, WILL BE SHOWN AT PALACE THEATER

Ramon Novarro attempts a radically different type of role in his new starring picture, "Huddle," which is to be shown at the Palace Theater, tonight and Friday.

His portrayal as Tony Amatto, a tough Italian mill hand who enters Yale university, gives him an opportunity for some of the most aggressive and virile action of his career. He spent weeks with a coach to learn football technique. In scenes of varsity games, Novarro plays in a line-up with many famous All-American and noted stars, including Ernie Pinckert, Jess Hibbs, Dale Van Sickle, Don Hill and others.

Many actual campus scenes at Yale university were used as an authentic background for the production which contains many of the old traditions of this famous institution. The celebrated Derby Day and various class activities are used at atmospheric details of the story.

Tony Amatto, portrayed by Novarro, is intensely proud and hot blooded with the fervor of the Italian race. He wins a scholarship while working in a steel mill and attends Yale against his father's wishes. His pride makes things very difficult for him until he becomes a football hero and wins athletic honors. He is accepted by many students, but is still unpopular socially. Rosalie, daughter of the president of the mill in which Tony worked, is still his ideal, but his boorishness has become insufferable to her.

The manner in which contacts and experiences help Tony to find himself form a gripping theme for the picture, which was adapted from Francis Wallace's story. The strong supporting cast includes such well-known players as Madge Evans, Una Merkel, Ralph Graves, John Arledge, Frank Albertson, Kane Richmond, Martha Sleeper, Henry Armetta, Fer-ike Boros, Rockcliffe Fellows and Joe Sauer. Sam Wood directed.

The organization is composed of 26 counties of Texas and New Mexico, which were well represented, and additional visitors from various other counties in Texas were present.

Zed Robinson of Littlefield was re-elected president of the organization, and H. O. Carey of Lums Chapel was

A big turn out of the people of the Spade community welcomed the visitors.

A program, in charge of J. O. Garlington, was rendered. The visitors were introduced by E. A. Bills and band music preceded and interspersed the program. R. T. Badger and Dr. Ira E. Woods made talks, and readings by Mrs. B. L. Cogdill and Betty Alyce Thaxton were given. Several numbers were rendered by a quartet, composed of Art Mueller, E. A. Bills, A. P. Duggan and Pryor Hammons, with Mrs. G. M. Shaw at the piano.

some time ago. The loot consisted of a large quantity of cigarettes.

As a man dropped part way down through a skylight from the roof of the wholesale quarters, Mr. Hodges fired at the dangling legs of the intruder. The wounded man pulled himself back up, ran on the roof to the west side of the building, and slid down a water pipe, while a confederate, evidently a lookout, dropped from the roof at the rear of the building to a freight car.

Police were immediately notified and a search of the neighborhood was conducted. Those participating in the investigation of the attempted robbery and the search for the two men were Deputy Sheriff Bob Miller, Constable Fred Hoover, Nightwatchman John Blair, and Special Officer Troy Howton.

Police found blood stains for a considerable distance from the building.

Baptist church auditorium. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss prices to be paid for cotton picking and boll pulling in this section.

The decision to call the meeting was made following a request of a committee of farmers from the Spade community. J. W. Duke, Ben Gann and Rev. Allen composed the committee asking the aid of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce in seeking to stabilize cotton gathering prices in this territory. All farmers, ginners and workmen are urged to be present in the meeting Saturday afternoon, the committee stated.

D. A. Adam, county agent of Lamb county, was present and spoke relative to his work in the county, and gave a report of the recent county fair held at Amherst. "The Lamb county fair produced one of the most outstanding fat stock shows ever held in the county," Mr. Adams said. "Every entry was good; they could scarcely have been better."

A report on proposed roads was made by the roads chairman, F. G. Sadler. The matter was discussed by J. S. Hilliard, Rev. Joe F. Grizzle and Mr. Ganns of the Spade community. Mr. Ganns spoke in behalf of the citizens of his community, stating that it is their desire that more stress be placed on the proposed roads running east and west.

Plans were made for a meeting of the finance committee, of which Dr. C. C. Clements is chairman, for the purpose of preparing the Chamber of Commerce budget for the new year.

Mr. Bill Chesher, gen-er-al-is-imo of the Palace thee-a-ter, made a trip to Dallas the early part of this week. Reports are to the effect that Bill went to the big city to obtain some outstanding attractions for his entertainment emporium. We will interview Bill for next week's issue.

VOTED A WORTH-WHILE PROGRAM—

Many compliments and wide publicity have been received by Littlefield, as a result of the inauguration of weekly good will trips to the communities in this city's trade territory.

The Muleshoe Journal says:

"Littlefield has inaugurated trade trips throughout Lamb county wherein visits are being made and better acquaintances are formed. It's an excellent idea and one that should be followed by Muleshoe citizens. People of given sections in a county can never know each other too well; there is always a community interest existing, and these get-acquainted trips are worthwhile in many ways."

Commissioner Boone—

Tech team's chance to some day become a member of the Southwestern Conference.

Matty Bell and his team will put out their best because they will be playing before a strange audience and in a new part of the state for them. The stigma of defeat from the hands of the Matadors would cause nearly as much grief in Aggie-land as to lose to Texas, for the Bull-fighters are an "outside outfit", and the Farmers do not intend to do anything to lower the prestige now enjoyed by the Southwestern Conference.

A special train will be run from Lubbock for the game. Mr. Boone says that he has been advised that those desiring seats for the game should send their order for reservations to Lyman E. Robbins, Amarillo. A special section will be reserved for ex-Aggies and Aggie fans, as well as for the Matador followers.

New Blacksmith Shop Is Established Here

E. T. Carroll, formerly of Santa Anna, has established a blacksmith shop in a building which was erected recently by W. H. Heinen. The new business, known as the "Lamb County Blacksmith Shop", is located just off Highway No. 7, adjacent to the Garland-White Auto Supply, and opposite W. H. Heinen's grocery, coal and grain business. Mr. Carroll operated blacksmith shops at Santa Anna and Coleman for the past 10 years. The new shop is doing a general blacksmithing business, also ecetylene welding.

THIS YEAR'S FAIR VOTED ONE OF BEST EVENTS OF KIND EVER HELD IN COUNTY

The Lamb County Fair, held in Amherst Friday and Saturday of last week, is considered one of the best ever held, according to reports coming from those in charge. The attendance and the quality of the exhibits made the exposition one of much interest.

Miss Myrtle Murray, home demonstration agent leader, and Miss Izora Clark, home demonstration agent of Castro county, judged the women's exhibits, and pronounced them excellent in quality. D. F. Eaton, Lubbock county agent, and R. N. McClain, assistant at Lubbock, judged the livestock and poultry and the men's grain exhibits.

A carnival added to the attraction, with a dance on both Friday and Saturday nights.

Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo was a visitor Friday, and met with the farmers and business men and talked over farm conditions in the county.

There was a good attendance from Littlefield, Sudan and Olton, as well as Amherst and the rural communities. The fair was held in buildings belonging to the association, south-east of town.
