Beauty or Death

NEWARK, N. J. ... Mary Harriet Ekman, 37, (above), says "give me beauty or give me death" and offers herself for experimental purposes to any doctor, surgical or plastic, who will try to make her beautiful. "I will take death rather than live on with a body and face that make me miserable", says Mary.

DOGS! DOGS!

Dogs are like bad habits; once you get mixed up with them, you are just mixed up, that's all.

Every time we sit down to write this here "column something about dogs will turn up. Last week we tried to break ourselves of writing about dogs. But temptation was just in our face.

Bill Clark came in Saturday and said: "Moeley, I've lost my pup. I hate to lose him; he was a mighty fine pup."

Now what can a feller do under such circumstances; such an appeal? Another, what would you have done? You would probably have done what we are trying to do—appeal to the pup to come home.

The said pup is of the American Blue-English variety, and is four and a half months old. They cut his tail when he was knee high to a hat casing, so, therefore, his tail is very short. This said dog, if you remember correctly, also had his ears trimmed about the time his tail was cut. He has a blaze on his face and his legs, all four of them, are white. He is a full brother to "Deadline," owned by Charles A. Guy, editor and publisher of the Avalanche-Journal newspapers, and a brother to "Thirty," the Lamb County Leader hound, the only difference being that "Thirty" will have been on this earth one full

BANKHEAD BILL EXTENDED

Extension of the Bankhead compulsory cotton production control act through 1936 was approved Friday by President Roosevelt and congressional agriculture leaders.

Congressional members said the 12-cent a pound loans would be made on this year's cotton, but the president, at his press conference later in the day, said this subject was not discussed.

Dollar Day Values For Next Monday Will Be Best Yet

Monday, hundreds of Littlefield citizens and their families will take advantage of drastic reductions made by dozens of dependable Littlefield merchants on good, high-quality merchandise.

Recent rains have cleared citizens, have made planting possible, have unleashed a flood of dollars long kept against hard times, and have brought to Littlefield and the territory promises of a rosy future.

Come to Littlefield Monday... take advantage of the astonishingly low prices on remarkably good merchandise... and go back to your work with a sense of having got something worth while for your money.

C. OF C. PLANS FOR ANNUAL BANQUET

$200,000 COTTON CASH WILL COME WITHIN 30 DAYS

Planting Going Ahead In Section; Moisture Is Plentiful

At the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, Dr. Ira Woods announced that plans were underway for the annual banquet, stating that the same arrangements as formerly in regard to tickets would be carried out this year, in that the business men of this city would purchase guest tickets and send them to friends in nearby communities and towns with invitations to attend.

J. S. Hilliard announced that he had received a reply to his invitation to Ray Nichols, newly elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, to attend the annual banquet here as chief speaker for the occasion, stating he would in all probability be present.

D. A. Adam, County Agent, reported that the wheat growers at the recent wheat poll voted for wheat control, stating that the signers of wheat contracts for 1933, 1934, and 1935 voted 91 for and 6 against control; and that those who did not have contracts and were eligible to sign voted 42 for and 3 against wheat control for the years 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939.

Mr. Adam also announced that the second payment on certificate checks and first payment on 1935 cotton control contracts, amounting to approximately $200,000, should be received by the farmers in this county within the next thirty days. Miss Bernice Westbrook, county Home Demonstration Agent, who was also a visitor at the meeting, reported that the goal of the women of the county was to raise more food, so that they might have more money with which to buy other things, and that they were hard at work carrying out this program.

Mortgage Debt Holiday Act Is Held Invalid

The Farm Mortgage Debt Holiday Act was held invalid Monday by the Supreme Court, and legislation enabling debt burdened farmers to obtain a partial five year moratorium on their mortgage debts was blasted off the statute books.

Unanimously, the high tribunal held the Frazier-Lemke act unconstitutional, speaking these words through the mouth of the veteran associate justice, Louis Brandeis:

"For the fifth amendment commands that, however great the nation's need, private property shall not be thus taken even for a wholly public use without just compensation."

OUTLOOK FOR AREA PROMISING

Littlefield and area are on the threshold of better times. The long-discussed depression is dying a natural and much desired death. Good times are on the way.

Such a statement might be considered rather premature, but, is it?

Had this section of country made good crops last fall, it is conceded by all that the depression, insofar as the area is concerned, would have been over.

If good crops would have ended the depression last year, isn't it just as true that good crops this year will end it?

It is a case of soil, season and sunshine—three S's—getting a chance to co-operate in the growing of crops. We know that we have the soil and lately the season. It is reasonable to believe that we will have plenty of sunshine.

The farmers are now busy planting their crops; some cotton that was planted before our recent rains is now up and looking good; and although more moisture will be needed to make the crops grow and mature, we are optimistic to the degree that we believe this will be a year when rains will be timely and in sufficient quantities to satisfy the needs and desires of all the people.

Furthermore, this section of the country is not in bad financial condition now. Government money has gone a long way toward relieving financial distress and aiding agricultural communities to weather the lean crop years since 1931.

Before the depression, when we had a good season over the area at the planting season, people went ahead with their plans just as if they knew the harvest would be good. Let's get that attitude of mind now.

Mule Owned By Olton Man Drops Dead in Field

W. L. Brooks, living seven miles west of Olton, lost a good mule recently, presumably from heart failure. The animal dropped dead while Mr. Brooks was knifing some land. He said the animal apparently was in good shape when hitched up and had shown no signs of illness until it pitched forward in the harness and died suddenly. Mr. Brooks said he had used the mule 16 years, having paid for the span, the other animal being in excellent condition.

REPLIN'S PLAN ON REMODELLING AND REDECORATING THEIR STORE

Considerable improvement is being planned for the near future by Replin's Dry Goods.

The establishment will be completely remodelled and redecorated, following which the departments will be rearranged, according to Joe Replin.

Following the interior improvements, a complete set of Oak Grand Rapids fixtures, which have been recently purchased, will be installed, said Mr. Replin, who stated seven truck loads of fixtures had been received here. These include show cases, wall cases, shoe shelving, cabinets, and suit cabinets.

One of the changes contemplated will be to locate the piece goods department near the front entrance, where the ready-to-wear department now is, and move that department to rear of the store.

Replin's have been operating a store in their present location for the past five years. Previous to that and in 1924 they opened a store in the building now occupied by the Royal Cafe, which they operated until 1926, when they left Littlefield, returning and establishing their present store in 1929.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH

J. W. Hendrix, Pastor.

Two Sundays in the year the church reads, namely, the one just after the school is out, and we had that last Sunday; the other is the Sunday just before school opens in the Fall. The first of these days we got over fairly well. The attendance was very good. Now we are off into the summer months. It is the prayer of the church that this will be a summer marked by unusual loyalty. The work of the Kingdom of God must be carried on, in season and out of season.

THE MORNING HOUR of worship will feature some excellent singing, and the pastor will deliver a sermon using as subject, "What All Seek." This will endeavor to answer what all seek and how to obtain it. You might be aided in finding a way out.

THE LEAGUES will have their meetings at 7:45 p. m. and dismiss in time for the evening hour of worship. These bring together a fine group of young people. If you are young this is the meeting for you.

EVENING WORSHIP will feature a Choral Club in action. Dr. Hazel Nelm has called the club together on Thursday evening for their rehearsal and social hour. They will be ready for the evening worship hour with a program of music. The pastor will deliver a sermon at that hour. He now feels inclined to point out some of his observations at the Federal Court. He was present at part of the trial on last Monday, and his subject will be, "That Other Half." It was something new to him to see those dope heads.

Suppose you fix these hours of worship in your program and come.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. R. Denning, Pastor.

In our contact with the people of Littlefield, so many have stated to us that they KNOW they are eternally saved, while others say they HOPE they are, but fear there is a possibility of their again being lost. Which is correct? The only true authority for all belief is the Word of God, and one ounce of God's revelation is worth tons of man's speculation. Next Sunday night at 8:30, we shall plainly present the Holy Scriptures on this subject: "Can One Be Saved Today, and Lost Tomorrow?" We invite all interested persons to be with us at this hour.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, the sermon subject is "Walking With God."

At 9:45 the Sunday School studies Hebrews, tenth chapter. We teach the Bible only. You will enjoy a visit to our School. Wednesday evening, June 5th, at 8:30, the

City is Becoming Broomcorn Center Of Big Territory

Littlefield is rapidly becoming the center of a broomcorn district which embraces a major part of the South Plains, is the belief of G. B. Alguire, former government statistician and expert on production and marketing of the crop.

"Lamb county is the biggest broomcorn producing center and Littlefield is the production center of the county," Mr. Alguire declares. Rich sandy loam soil in the county makes it especially adaptable to growth of stardard broomcorn. Dwarf variety does better in lighter soils.

"Broomcorn can be raised at less cost on the South Plains than anywhere else," said Mr. Alguire, who has spent nearly 20 years in association with the industry. "This means more profits to growers in this area."

Good seed and complete information on growing and harvesting of broomcorn is obtainable in Littlefield.

TRADERS BOW TO FLYER TEN

This week, including a fateful Tuesday night which saw the rejuvenated merchants go down before a cellar-placed Flyer team, finds Sunnydale now tops, Legion second, and Merchants, Producers and Firemen strung out in a three-way stalemate for third notch.

Aldridge and Red Norman, by the way, are awaiting a letter this week which they hope will mean for them an entrance to New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, next fall. The boys have cracks at a summer job apiece with an oil refining company in Arkansas, out of which they are to save enough to get lined up with.

Entrance would require their qualifying as athletes at the Institute. Both lads are proficient at some branch of sports. Aldridge is a fast baseball player, and Norman played football in earlier high school. Luck to you, boys.

The Kid League's, city softball's most recent enterprise, will hobble into actual existence with an opening game about June 1, unless as some remind us, rheumatism from heavy workouts crops up in the ranks. We still think there are a few Kid Leagueers who should be signed up with the City League proper.

Members of this four-eyed church association want it definitely known that they are out for nothing but the exercise. They'll play afternoon games only. . . and none o' yer lip, young feller.

Anyhoo here are tentatively-formed Kid League rosters:
 BAPTISTS: E. S. Rowe, C. O. Robbins, Lon Smith, Norman Renfro, Pryor Hammons, Mr. McKinnon, J. H. Ware, A. B. Sanders, F. O. Boles, Homer Swell and J. M. Stokes.
 METHODISTS: E. C. Cundiff, Mr. Wellborn, I. D. Coley, Floyd Wynn, E. N. Faucett, L. D. Bruce, L. C. Hewitt, Claude Marshall, W. D. T. Storey, Van Clark and W. C. Thaxton.

PRESBYTERIANS: E. A. Bills, Dr. Ira Woods, Bruce Porcher, Ben Porcher, Gus Shaw, Calvin Henson, Warren Rutledge, O. P. Wilmon, J. T. Street, Sam Farquhar, Jimmie Brittain and Mike Brewer.

LUTHERANS: No squad as yet named.

Roy Biffle, now here with the firm which has the city waterworks improvement contract, and astute dabbler in fancy warm weather foods, is getting highly satisfactory results from an ice cream experiment. . . . Culinarist Biffle following his meal, drops a dish of ice cream in a glass of milk, stirs thoroughly, imbibes with pleasure. . . . Other patrons in a certain eating establishment here are now doing likewise. "Some fun!" says Experimenter Biffle.

SPORTS BUDGET UP FOR ACTION

Council Okehs $2,100 Plan; It's Trustees' Move

A tentative budget calling for about $2,100 for Littlefield school 1935-36 athletic program has been tabled by the school board pending possible action at a trustees' meet- ing tonight, it has been learned.

Drawn up by business manager, W. T. Hanes of school athletics and Coach L. T. Barkadale, and approved by the new athletic council, the budget asks $1,400 for high school equipment and $700 for grammar school playground and football equipment.

Out of the high school allotment, $1,000 would go for football, $200 for basketball and track, and $100 for girls basketball. Of the grammar school apportionment, $400 would be applied on equipment for playground ball, and track equipment, and the other $300 on football. All these are approximate figures.

"Rep squad promotion and girls athletics would come in for improvement just as much as boys athletics," assured Mr. Hanes. "No partiality would be shown. This program is purely for needed improvement and advancement of athletics."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filter- ing waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature in- tended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging back- ache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen ankles, feel nervous, miserable— all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly func- tioning kidneys. They are recom- mended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Report Of Farm Delegates To Capital

The Delegates left Lubbock Saturday night, May 11. The Lamb county Delegates and the Lubbock county delegates were in the same pullman. All North Plains delegates met in Lubbock and the South Plains delegates joined us enroute to Fort Worth.

We arrived in Fort Worth Sunday morning about 7 a. m. We had to lay over in Fort Worth until 2:30 p. m. from there we went on over to Longview where all Texas delegates were to meet. Two special trains were operated out of Texas, 16 Pullmans were on our train, being pulled by 2 locomotives. Each car elected a captain, ours being James Bishop from Lubbock county.

We passed through Arkansas at night, at 5:30 a. m. we were at Piedmont, Missouri, and as it was now day light all the farmers piled out of their births to view the Missouri country. Our train arrived at St. Louis, Missouri, at 8:30 a. m. Monday morning. We were scheduled to spend only 30 minutes in St. Louis, but on account of 5 special trains arriving there about the same time, we were delayed about 4 hours, so we did not get out of St. Louis until about noon Monday. Our special train arrived at Cincinnati, Ohio, about 8 p. m. Most all ate supper at the Harvey House in the Cincinnati Union Terminal. We also enjoyed looking over this Union Station as it is claimed to be the finest in the world, estimated cost at $47,000,000. At this point our train was turned over to the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

On Tuesday morning the bunch piled out about 6 a. m., at this time we were passing through Clifton Forge, Virginia. This Railroad is one of the scenic Railroads of America. High mountains on one side, rivers on the other and many tunnels, which when it would turn dark suddenly, reminded us of a West Texas Sand Storm. The Shenandoah Valley and the hill-side orchards were beautiful sights to us West Texas farmers.

Before we arrived at Washington D. C. "Texas" Badges with our county, name and address were given to each delegate. These were worn at all time while in Washington. We were scheduled to arrive at Washington D. C. about 9 a. m. but our train did not arrive until 12:30 noon. Therefore we missed the morning program at the Constitution Hall.

Texas Headquarters were at the Rowleigh Hotel, where information and rest rooms were available. Our first business meeting was at the Constitution Hall at 2:30 p. m. Most of the delegates ate a bite of dinner and went direct to the Hall.

Mr. C. H. Day, of Plainview was chairman of this meeting. The first speaker on the program was Chester O. Davis, Administrator AAA. He spoke at length on the processing tax, and its effect on farmers and business. He said, "Farmers can and will make AAA the right policy, make it flexible to fit different parts of the country. If anything is good, it will have opposition. All kinds of plans will be offered by the opposition, but none better. This program is needed as long as present economic system continues."

Cully A. Cobb, director of division of cotton expressed his appreciation of our visit to Washington D. C. He introduced all of his assistants. Next on program was Congressman Marvin Jones, chairman of the agricultural committee. He says they are not giving the farmers anything, just a restriction. For years and years special privileges have been given other industries, and this is the first time the farmers are being put in line with them. Our present control program is not a perfect one, but the first automobile or plow made were not perfect ones. But did we scrap them and call them a failure? No, we improved them. For many years the farmers have been playing with these industrial boys, we are just now going to bat. The AAA program will work, it has worked, and we are going to see that it continues to work.

Next Robert Kleberg was introduced. The high points of his speech was "when the government was founded," 98 percent of our population were farmers, now only 25 percent are farmers, and the government is going to remember this class. It was announced that President Roosevelt would address us at the White House at 5 p. m., so this meeting was adjourned about 4:30 and all made our way for the White House. At the White House gate we were held up for 20 or 30 minutes on account that the guards and policemen had to look us over. Those of us who were wearing our farmers badges were admitted, but those who did not have any badges had to produce other evidence. After a little delay, all were gathered on the White House lawn. The President and his official family appeared on the South Portico and Secretary Wallace introduced the President. Some at first wondered who Wallace was, but all recognized the President.

(The address of President Roosevelt, and additional reports will appear in next week's issue of the Leader.)

Myrna Loy to Be Featured in "Wings In the Dark" Here

Cast in the role of a daredevil aviatrix who risks life and limb for the sake of the man she loves, Myrna Loy, screen favorite, heads the cast of Paramount's "Wings in the Dark", which will be featured at the Palace Theatre Saturday night, Sunday matinee, Sunday night, and Monday.

MYRNA LOY CARY GRANT

Cary Grant, "tall, dark and handsome," is coupled with Miss Loy in the romantic leads of the picture as an airman who is a scientist and adventurer. His life is devoted to making flight safe through perfection of instruments for blind flying.

On the eve of the transatlantic flight which will prove the complete success of his experiments, he is blinded by an accident.

Despairing of ever recovering his sight and distaining charity, he retires to a cabin in the woods to brood. But Miss Loy, who loves him, persuades him to return to his work, even furnished money which he believes is coming from a series of articles on aviation which he is publishing.

Just as his experiments are nearing completion the airplane is recovered by the company from whom he bought it. Then Miss Loy, in a final desperate effort to help him, undertakes a flight from Moscow to New York for an enormous purse.

In a final, gripping climax Cary Grant goes aloft to bring Miss Loy down when she is fog-bound above the landing field at the end of the flight. An accident restores his sight and the two lovers are happily united.

Directed by James Flood, "Wings in the Dark" features Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh and Dean Jagger in the supporting roles.

The Business and Professional Women have chosen as one and foremost of their projects for this year the planting and keeping green a cactus garden. The plot has been located in the city park, and plans are being made to get the project underway, according to Mrs. T. S. Sales, active in the promotion of the plan. The cactus garden will be in the form of a star, and will be elevated and properly drained.

One of the features of the project will be to have a large variety of cactus, and the B. & P. W. Club will appreciate it very much if visitors from this section into South Texas, Big Bend County, Mexico, Arizona, or other such places, would bring home, any kind of a wild cactus, to contribute to this Cactus Garden. It is understood that there are no less than 80 varieties in the Big Bend Country.

LUMBERING GOLD

By Aubrey Boyd

AUTOCASTER SERV.

INSTALLMENT On the old side-wheel Starr on its way to old fields in the first Speed Malone, ex-camp follower and young Ed Maitland, on trying to recoup his fortune, struck up a ship Maitland left Speed with two other men forward, to be sharply report of a pistol and his partner had been gone overboard. Ed er him, without second the cold waters got the end it was Speed resuming, holding Ed's water until they aboard in a little boat fisherman from Seattle, rowing the sea, took little boat when they enchy to take them to after a hard journey they way where they find a g miners and horses.

WITH THE STORY. nely nodded when told e of his quest. pended at Steiner's" to rain, and he would do a "sketch round" for some blankets while his partner was drying out.

For an hour or so after he had gone. Maitland sat pondering over the fire. From this abstraction he was roused by a slight crunching sound in the gravel, and glanced up almost absently at the shape of a horse, limned in fiery lines against the dark. An upward glow from the fire lighted a woman's face which he seemed to remember. Then a low, musical laugh gave body to the vision.

He stood up, still half-dreaming, as she pulled her horse under the shadow of the wharf. Her dark eyes masked with a vagrant humor some caprice he could not fathom. When she seated herself on a fallen wharf timber, leaving a space beside her in wordless invitation, he obeyed, without knowing that he did so.

"Meet Lady Luck," she said, and to his complete stupefaction, turned his head toward her and kissed him lightly on the mouth. "You have trust your luck?"

"Whether I would or not," he said, "my partner wouldn't."

"He doesn't know what the stake is," Rose countered. "You're going North to look for gold. I can put it in your way in one throw. There's a fool in camp who's due to lose a gold mine—one that isn't his to lose. I can't tell you any more just now, except that the game is worth the risk. You're running some risks anyway as drifters in a camp where you've made an enemy of the range boss."

He could make little of that, except to wonder if Fallon was involved in the mysterious gold secret she spoke of. And, while their hands were tangled, she drew a ring from one of hers and slipped it mischievously on the tip of his little finger.

At that moment a thud on the wharf above them froze them both. A dark figure loomed with a bulky menace in the dusk. Maitland thought of Fallon, but a flare from the fire revealed an apparition much more disturbing to him just then. Speed's apparent size was due to a roll of blankets on his shoulder.

The outlaw came down the sand and dropped his burden near the fire, still regarding the girl. After a moment he walked over to the horse and held the stirrup for her, with a gesture that was polite but impenetrable.

She waited before mounting, returning his stare with a look of interest. "Lady," he said, pointing north "up there is All-Alaska and the Yukon Territory. If that ain't a big enough huntin' range for you and me and my pardner to keep untangled in, it's too damned bad. But when I ask you to get the Hell out of our camp, I mean stay out."

Her laugh was a ripple of spontaneous music. She mounted easily, and looking back at Maitland, touched her fingers to her lips. The horse's hooves ground softly in the sand, and she vanished.

Speed threw a fresh log on the fire, and after kicking it into flame, he drew from his pocket a new bag of Durham, rolled a cigarette and lit it with a brand from the fire.

"Seems like this man Garnet likes to gamble," he observed at last. "What he don't know about callin' a pair of deuces gives us the ponchos and smokes."

Maitland scarcely heard him. He half-opened his hand to look at Rosta's ring, and shut it again quickly, as if he were holding a witch's bond.

It was not till they turned in that Speed alluded to the subject that troubled him. "From where I set," the Westerner observed musingly, "which is lookin' at the sky—this man Fallon listen like four good axes to beat, if not five. His havin' traces of catamount and curly wolf in his pedigree, I don't question. But he's got somethin' else that makes a bunch of hard-rock hard-mouth miners answer his jerk line. A quick hand, a cool head, and enough ornery guts to swing a twenty-four horse span of Nevada mules through the gates of Hell, if him and Satter had a feud. Off-hand, I'd reckon that crossin' that man in any game was a kind of hair-line play."

"What's the sequence with the woman I don't just get. Maybe none, you think. But it looks to me like a young buck, say from Boston, would kind of regret havin' his grave dug for him this side of the summit, through not suspectin' when gettin' curious about a woman means flirtin' with the muzzles of a pair of forty-fours. Which is the bore of the guns that start talkin' when you ramble into Fallon's private game, and make it three-handed."

Maitland awakened shivering in half-darkness. The gulf was smudged in a fine rain that steamed dimly over the riffled sands left bare by the ebb tide. Speed's blankets were rolled up, and a pile of driftwood lay ready for their breakfast fire. Annoyed at himself for having slept while his partner was hunting a job, Ed washed in a tide pool, and went up to look for him.

He learned that Steiner had offered to sell Garnet his pintos. Garnet promptly closed with him at the price of four hundred dollars for the team, and engaged the two partners to haul for him at the wages Speed had first named.

ple caprice of the Goddess who presides over mining camps. Nor was Steiner visibly troubled by the change in his plans.

"Gold is where you find it, ain't it? If they put it in my hands, I don't need a shovel, do I? Let the saps dig for it."

"Reckon that isn't so foolish neither," Speed concurred.

The back train had been tugging, cursing, halting and sliding for hours in a disjointed snake-line up the graveled river canyon, through a drizzling rain that soaked the lashings and shoulder straps, cut flesh to the raw, changed gravel to mud, and with the churn of hundreds of hooves among the slippery wrack of cotton-woods, made footing almost impossible.

By the order of the trail, prospectors moved their outfits in relays, Indian fit, traveling as far up-trail as they could between midnight and one in the afternoon, there to cache their packs and return, during the remaining hours, for other loads.

Garnet's outfit was an odd one, unencumbered by mining tools or instruments, or by any special equipment that might give a clue to his purpose in the North. It was rather like the outfit a rich man might have chosen for a long camping tour, though this was not a journey which anyone would be likely to undertake for pleasure or health. Two game rifles and rods, however, shined that he hoped for some diversion by the way.

At last a ring of axes, pans and voices floated up from a mountain hollow through the rain. The trail dipped down toward a camp, which was pleasantly announced by the aroma of coffee and of wet pine burning.

Tethering the horses under some drooping branches, where the needles spread a carpet free from mud, Speed unmade the packs. "Belly up to the bar for some close harmony, cow hands," he sang out cheerily. "We've hit the camp of Liarsville."

Garnet bowed under his load and asked in a spent voice how far they had come.

Speed swallowed his chuckles. The distance was said to be five miles. "Maybe," he added as an encouragement, "they call it 'Liarsville' in mem'ry of whoever said it was five miles."

Garnet showed so little interest in continuing his travels after lunch that they left him in camp to rest, and brought up another load or the night trail from Skagwrv, for the moral effect of getting the outfit well started.

Garnet was in his blankets when they returned. "I'm going to sleep till noon, boys," he said, next morning. "If you feel so energetic, have a look at the trail above here. I've been hearing some bad rumors about it."

His misgivings did not weigh on their minds at first. They set out on this excursion in the light-hearted mood conferred by a scrubbing, a shave, a good breakfast and morning sunlight.

Avoiding the camp, they crossed a river bridge, and from there, by a steep and broken track which the pack animals of earlier comers had scarred out, climbed into some mountain ravines that began to rock with a mephitic odor of death. The shambles became more ghastly as they climbed.

In the dips of the so-called "trail," a series of quagmires had been enlarged to small mud lakes by the wear of successive hooves around the rim. The swollen carcasses of dead horses lay floating or half-bedded in muskegs and sloughs. On sheer mountain sides the trail dwindled in places to a cattle track, and its hazards to burdened horses and men were grimly proved by the relics that lay scattered in the canyon troughs.

Some travelers who appeared to have lost their horses, were struggling to hand-haul their packs through a wallow not more than a mile above Liarsville. It was all the progress they had been able to make since morning. Others, incredibly plastered with mud, and bearing the wan stamp of defeat in their faces, were backtrailing toward camp. These were trail veterans who took ordinary hardship with a smile.

Plainly, one look at it would be enough for Garnet. As they stood considering the dismal prospect, they recognized through disguising mud smears as the old-time prospector, Brent. "Pretty, ain't it," Brent commented, spitting tobacco juice into the slough. "It would look a heap better," said Speed, thoughtfully, "if the camp got together and graded a trail. A few days' work would corrody these muskegs."

"Just what I told 'em," Brent Try a Leader want-ad for results, noddod.

"Who's against it?" "Fallon's outfit. He claims we can't reach Bennett before the freeze-up if we stop to make a trail. It's tough on the boys who're short of horses. The way he sees it, it's their hard luck. A stampede is a stampede, says the trail boss." "Fallon's got guts but I don't seem to like 'em, someway," said Ed.
