Census Report Shows Large Increase In School Attendance

To Practise Law In Littlefield

PAT BOONE, Jr.

Pat Boone, Jr., who is scheduled to graduate from the School of Law of the University of Texas on June 3, will open an office for the practice of law in Littlefield on his return to Littlefield this summer. His marriage to Miss Janet Elizabeth Olson will take place at Austin June 10, and following a wedding trip the couple will make their home here.

As announced by J. Ernest Jones, Lamb County school superintendent, the school census report was prepared and sent by him to Austin this week.

This report showed a decided increase over last year. It indicated there were 5,126 children in Lamb County schools, with over 2200 of these in the Littlefield district.

According to Mr. Jones, the schools formerly were paid the per capita money on the basis of the census, but now under the Gilmer-Aiken law the school's appropriation is based on the average daily attendance.

All schools in Lamb County will close this week, and are busy giving final exams, staging baccalaureate sermons, commencement exercises, etc.

You Can't Tell What Will Happen Next

AND NOW IT'S THE ABSENT-MINDED NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER AND POLICEMAN

All of us have heard countless yarns about absent-minded professors.

Why not add newspaper publishers to the list.

And policemen, too. Now that's some trio.

A few days ago we parked our car across the street from one of the Littlefield banks, stepped out of the machine and went into the bank; we transacted our business; went into a restaurant and ate lunch, then returned to our car. There was a parking ticket under one of the windshield wipers and the motor was singing a merry tune.

We didn't think anything about the parking ticket, because we have received so many tickets

City Secretary W. G. Street is threatening to buy a new adding machine. But what gave us the shock of a lifetime was the slip of the cog in our mental apparatus causing us to leave the motor running.

Don't be surprised, folks, if you find us personally parked by a meter and the car in gear traveling down a street.

And now about this policeman business: We nominate that copper named Richards for membership in the Absent-Minded Club. He has gotten so absent-minded that every time he sees our car he automatically puts a ticket under the windshield.

Moreover, his absent-minded condition is gradually becoming worse, in fact, it is chronic. If he had not been absent-minded, he

People Urged To Report On Census

Any Littlefield residents who have not been counted by a census taker is asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce or Pat Mann at his home.

Preston Hawks, census supervisor, said that three areas are not yet completed here but if the people cooperate, the census might be completed some time this week.

After completion of the census, unofficial results may be announced in the near future.

Hawks said that the three areas will be covered by census takers this week but there is a possibility that all people will not be contacted.

Rev. Weldon B. Meers, pastor of the Missionary Baptist church, advised the graduating seniors of Littlefield High school to go ahead and attain all the education they could get in a baccalaureate service held Sunday evening in the High school auditorium.

"It has come to the place where a person needs the education more than ever to forge to the top," he told the graduates.

He pointed out that America has become an educated land due to scholarships and G. I. benefits allowing more people to attend university.

Land of Opportunity
It has also become a land of opportunity, he said, and pointed out Abe Lincoln as an example of a man who grasped the opportunity offered in America.

America is a land of freedom and a land of progress, Rev. Meers told them. "A young man or woman must grasp the skirts of progress to go to the top," he said.

It has become a land of homes, he said. The home, the freedom of the home, and the wonderful home-life we experience is not found in any other country.

According to Rev. Meers, these things afford ample opportunity for a young man or woman to make a success but you can not leave God out of your life and be a success as far as the things that count towards happiness.

More In Life
"Do not be just satisfied to live in the land and reach some attainment of success," he told them, "there is more in life than that."

Rain Falls For Third Day Here

Rain on three days in succession, although in small amounts, made the outlook of South Plains residents a little brighter.

Precipitation on Saturday which extended over a fairly wide area amounted to 31.100 of an inch in Littlefield. The rain began falling here shortly before 4 p. m. Saturday but lasted only a short time.

It resumed again later in the evening but clear skies dashed all hopes of a good all night soaking.

On Sunday evening a thunder-shower that began near Muleshoe, moved southeastward giving Littlefield nothing more than a light shower. Lubbock and Slaton reported that rainfall there was estimated about a quarter of an inch. As the storm moved toward the east it played out around New

FOR KEEPS

(A Short Story)
By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

"PLEASE TRY and understand, Ken," Vivien said. "It isn't that—there's anything wrong with you. I've known you all my life. We were children together. You're perfect!"

"Then why won't you marry me?"

A helpless, regretful look came into her eyes. "We're different, Ken. Can't you see? You're so practical and—dependable. I'm so sure of what you're going to do next, so sure it will be the right, sensible thing. And, Ken, I'm not that way!"

"I'm sick of hearing about it," he repeated. "I've loved you ever since we were kids. You know that. You know I still love you. But—I guess you're not coming to your senses."

Vivien was hurt. Ken was such a fine, honorable boy. He had been so good to her. She hated to hurt him.

She might have changed her mind about everything if it weren't that she and her mother had lomat—a handsome youth with fiery black eyes, a strong, masterful personality and a superbly gracious manner. Vivien felt that she had reached the end of the rainbow. Of all the men she had met he stood head and shoulders above the others. The fact that he was attentive to her thrilled her to the core.

The next day she joined a party on the beach. The young diplomat was there, resplendent in a baggy pair of trunks. Vivien stared at him, and wondered why some circus hadn't offered him a contract. The man was positively a freak. His legs resembled untapered baseball bats, his arms were scrawny and ungainly. He was thin to the point of emaciation.

Vivien began to get discouraged. From Venice they went to Vienna, to Berlin, Hamburg and Stockholm. Everywhere she met new people, saw new things. Yet she was discouraged. She was possessed of a strange, disconcerting longing. A sense of frustration, of failure.

Seeking solitude with her thoughts, she strolled one day into Haledale park and sat on a bench to meditate. Nearby was another bench on which sat a young man reading a newspaper. That portion of him which was visible excited her interest. He appeared to possess a combination of the many things she had found lacking in the young men who paid her court since they had left America. She didn't stop to wonder how she knew. The fact was simply there, unavoidable, overpowering. He was tall and blonde—not freaky or overbearing or extremely gracious. Merely a man with simple tastes and straightforward manner and intelligent eyes.

That is, she imagined his eyes were intelligent. And an instant later she had a chance to find out. The young man put down his paper and stared straight at her. He smiled—the sort of smile that Vivien had not seen for a long while. He untangled his long legs and stood up and came toward her.

She held her breath, waiting.

"Fancy!" he said, and grinned.

"Ken!"

"The same, Ken, the sensible, the practical, the man who has been following you all over Europe for two months—just in case you failed to find your ideal. The boy who loves you, who grew up with you, who played with you in your back yard, who wanted to marry you ever since he can remember. And still does. How about it?"

Vivien tried to speak and couldn't. Tears filled her eyes. She choked, lifted her arms.

"How about it?" she said. "Oh, Ken, say it again. In good old American. It's what I want to hear. What I've been longing to hear. Will I marry you? It's I who should ask, will you take me?"

"For keeps," said Ken. And took her.

As guests of the friends, they spent days touring the city, attending theaters, visiting places that thrilled and fascinated Vivien beyond her wildest hopes.

planned the trip abroad. That overshadowed everything. It was easier to forget Ken and feel less sorry for him when she looked ahead. Europe! Strange, exotic places! Gallant, romantic men! The thought sent little shivers of anticipation running up and down her back.

They went first to Paris. They had friends in Paris. As guests of the friends, they spent days touring the city, attending theaters, visiting places that thrilled and fascinated Vivien beyond her wildest hopes. Then, too, there was a young Frenchman, Emile Ganche, who was frequently with the party. He was tall and dark and very gracious. She heard stories that his ancestors were of the nobility. He was attracted to her and she imagined for a while that she could fall in love with him. But before a week had passed she admitted the truth. He was a little too suave, a little too correct in speech and manner. He lacked in qualities that she couldn't define.

IN ITALY they joined a party of tourists from America. One of the party knew a family of natives in Venice. A reception was held for the Americans, and among those present was a young Italian dip-

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From A. S. Long of Denver: "I remember working in a small grocery store in Clarksburg, W. Va., as a young lad. One day when the owner was out, in came one of those aristocratic southern ladies who asked me to tell the owner to send over to her house a pound of coffee for tea. I didn't know what she meant, but he sent me with the coffee in time for her family's supper."

From Mrs. A. Gebhard of Cincinnati: "I remember when the sky was full of paper balloons every Fourth of July and the kids used to run after them when they fell to earth to see if they had any tags on them for a box of candy from a local candy factory or the name of the sender. Then they would fill them with hot air and send them up again."

From Helen Rodmeyer of Chicago: "I remember sleigh-riding with my family at Christmas time when I was a little girl living in Iowa. Father would hitch the big Belgian team to a sleigh made out of a lumber wagon box, the bottom of which was filled with straw. We children and Mother sat on wooden boxes with a hot, wrapped brick at our feet."

From 'Old Timer' of Decatur, Ill.:

"I remember churning time back on the farm when I was in my teens. When mother got the cream in the churn ready for dashing, my three sisters and I had to do the churning. We took turns. So none of us would have to churn longer than any other, we counted the dashes we made, then would call for relief when our time was up. Mother would have us pump water out of the well until it got cold enough to rinse the butter down."

made his district and the entire state a very outstanding public servant. A businessman, he has applied sound business principals to his work at Austin. He has been on the job, all the time, and that his good works have been appreciated is attested by the fact that he has been re-elected upon two occasions without a semblance of opposition.

It is no small undertaking for a West Texan to seek a state-wide office. Only a very few have ever succeeded, due principally to the fact that in the past our votes have been too few to offset heavy balloting down-state. But in recent years, the Texas political picture has been slowly changing. This year there are 400,000 potential voters living in the western part of the state—a sufficient number, if properly aroused, to put any candidate into the run-off where he will stand at least an even-Stephen chance of victory.

meeting last Monday night. The new rates of 20 cents per thousand gallons for business uses, and 15c per thousand gallons for residential users is a five-cent reduction in both cases.

Mayor E. E. Stagner and Commissioners George Harmon and Bill Workman voted for the reduction partly because water meters which have been installed are now paid for.

It is expected that the lower rate will result in additional use of water for sprinkling lawns and gardens which will aid great deal in beautifying the city.

Olton Hospital Building Completed

A dream of the people of Olton community became a reality recently when work of transforming the former county court house building into a modern hospital, was completed. The work was completed and the first patients moved into the second floor of the building last Thursday.

If you have not been in the hospital since its completion, Drs. Seigler and Fite will be happy to have you inspect the hospital at your earliest convenience.

Drs. Seigler and Fite came to Olton last fall and opened offices in the four rooms of the building that had been completed at that time. They soon had completed the ground floor of the building and were crowded for more room. The entire building is now completed into one of the most attractive hospitals to be found anywhere in this area. All of the hospital equipment is of the most modern type that can be purchased. The rooms are finished in pastel colors, the floors are covered with rubber floor covering and a modern elevator has been installed. The modern hospital kitchen could be the envy of any housewife.

Who Will Harvest This Year's Cotton?

The boll weevil and other cotton pests are getting ready to enjoy another year of high living at the expense of Texas cotton farmers. When the boll weevil lives high, the cotton farmer's income dwindles. This means that farmers have less money to spend for the things they need and for the little luxuries that go to make up good living. The boll weevil gets fat and the cotton farmer gets poor. Income of business patronized by the cotton farmer is reduced.

Ill, insect losses for the Cotton Belt last year totaled approximately $470,111,000.

In Texas these losses amounted to $39,635,000, or about $228 per cotton farm. Pests destroyed an estimated four per cent of the crop.

What percentage of this year's cotton crop will the boll weevil and his greedy running mates consume? Our entomologists warn that in many areas the threat of boll weevil damage during this season is even greater than it was at this time last year. Losses in 1949 were the highest in 22 years.

In the face of this threat, farmers are advised to stock up on poison and get their equipment ready for a furious fight.

The cotton industry is calling for an all-out war to control boll weevil and other pests this season, asking for a concentrated state-by-state, county-by-county, and community-by-community battle. It is seeking to enlist not only cotton farmers and other members of the cotton industry but also bankers, merchants, civic clubs, farm organizations and other agencies. This in this cotton-producing area. This campaign is important to all of us who deserve full support.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complaints of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headache and dizziness. If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. ★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

Look Upon the Brighter Side

HERE'S A STORY with twin subjects, that is, two people giving the same theme.

William J. Campbell, Pittsburgh, Pa., says that he has one of the finest men in the world for a father. But as his father has grown older, he has taken more to worrying. He is particularly worried after listening to certain commentators on the radio, commentators who spread gloom through thoughts of disasters, many of which never happen, and even those that do are not minimized by predictions.

Campbell

Mr. Campbell says that if he had put on his uniform and gone back into the service every time his father predicted war, the uniform would have been worn out by now. He has a cousin old enough to go if another war came, and since his aunt had two boys in the last war, she is terribly worried over the mention of another.

So every time the older Mr. Campbell went to see his sister, he talked war, disaster, and left her in a miserable state.

One day when William Campbell went with his father to see his aunt and sister, he called his father's attention to how unhappy the woman had become. The father said he had noticed it. Then said the son, "You add to it every time you go over and repeat the miserable predictions you have heard."

He says his father was surprised, but pondering it a moment, he admitted that he believed this to be true. After thinking it over, he said hereafter he would express only cheerful, happy thoughts when he went to see his sister. It wasn't long before that sister was again her cheerful, optimistic self, and she doesn't even mention the war that hasn't yet come—and may never come.

The second case is that of a woman friend of mine who says in paying a call to a friend who is confined to her bed with a weak heart, she had just realized that she kept that friend filled with fear and apprehension over the way the country was being run, while she herself doesn't even bother to go to the polls to vote when the time comes.

She says she was brought to a realization of what a misanthrope she had become when another woman was with her and her invalid friend one day, and when she left, the two remaining, her own self and her invalid friend, felt so happy. Said the invalid, "It's a joy to have Gertrude around, isn't it? She's always so happy."

Col. Pardy To Be In Command Of Clovis Reese Air Base

It was announced today by Colonel George W. Pardy, commanding officer, Reese Air Force Base, Texas, that the air base at Clovis, N. M., has been placed under his jurisdiction and command.

Prior to being placed on a standby basis, Clovis Air Force Base was under the jurisdiction of Strategic Air Command and was used as a tactical outfit for B-29's in their training mission. The runways were especially adept for this type training inasmuch as they are 10,000 feet in length. This base presently is being used by the city of Clovis as a municipal airport and a small civilian flying school is located there. The standby squadron of Strategic Air Command is presently under the command of Major Jay Stansbury.

Colonel Pardy also stated, with the addition of Clovis, that the use of Lubbock Municipal Airport, which has been under negotiation with civic officials since Reese Air Force was reactivated, is solved, except for such future emergencies as may prove necessary. Emergency use of the Lubbock Municipal Airport may prove desirable from time to time in the event that Clovis is inaccessible due to weather conditions or resulting from unforeseen expansion in Reese Air Force Base training load.

The maximum student load of Reese Air Force Base can now be obtained by 100 per cent efficiency within a short period, now that Clovis has been added to Abernathy as an auxiliary landing field.

Announces Candidacy For Lieut. Gov'r.

Austin, May 5.—Ben Ramsey of San Augustine, who has a long record of service in both houses of the Legislature, today formally announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor of Texas.

The tall East Texan resigned this spring as secretary of state in order to prepare to make the state race. He was appointed secretary of state in January, 1949, by the late Governor Beauford Jester and continued to serve under Governor Allan Shivers when he took office.

Ramsey began his political career in 1930 when he was elected to the House from San Augustine County.

He served in the House four years and in 1940 was elected to the Texas Senate, where he served eight years.

The East Texas senator has always been held in high regard by his fellow members of the Legislature regardless of differences in voting, and the Senate demonstrated this in 1947 by electing him president pro-tempore of the Senate.

Driving a new Oldsmobile 88, he showed that it takes 10 feet to stop a car going 20 miles per hour, 75 feet to stop it at 40 miles per hour, and traveling 60 miles per hour the car traveled 110 feet before it stopped.

Proper and improper hand signals were shown as well as the proper way to back away from a curb. In driving back from a curb Capt. Jack advised that one should honk the horn, look back for oncoming cars and come out slowly.

Local Men Participate

"Fuzzy" Reed and Don Harrell of Littlefield rode with the stuntman as he drove the official car over low ramps with right and left wheels traveling 40 miles per hour.

As additional passengers in the broad jump, Edwin Hodges, Dub Burleson, Donald Green and Jessie Sutton rode in the back seat. The car traveled about 20 to 30 feet through the air, landing on the front wheels with a terrific jolt.

For a finale, Capt. Jack drove a stunt car through a flaming board wall. The board wall was soaked with gasoline and lighted just before the car broad jumped off the low ramps and crashed into it.

Deal where about 20 fell. Abernathy reported no rain on Sunday. In Littlefield the rain resumed again Monday about noon and continued intermittently during the afternoon with the possibilities of an extended wet period very good.

The Lubbock weather bureau reported that a large amount of moist air from the Gulf is staying over this area producing the conditions that are continuing to add moisture to this area.

According to most agriculture authorities, enough rain has fallen over at least two-thirds of this area for dry land cotton farmers to begin planting.

Continued moist conditions will improve the agriculture situation which has already gotten out of the critical stage.

Fire Partially Destroys Home

A fire of unknown origin partially destroyed a home owned by Mrs. Starr Haile at 513 East Ninth Street early Monday morning.

City firemen answered the call at 3 a. m. and fought the blaze for over half an hour before it was brought under control.

The fire was discovered by neighbors who telephoned the fire department.

The five-room stucco house was unoccupied and did not contain a great deal of furniture.

The interior of the house was completely gutted by the fire before firemen could control the blaze. The front of the house and roof were badly burned as was the rear wall.

LOST YOUR HAT? A LEADER CLASSIFIED AD BROUGHT HOME JIM DOUGLASS' HAT

Jim Douglass is threatening to turn collegiate; in other words, he is toying with the thought that it would save a lot of trouble if he didn't wear a hat under any circumstances or for any occasion.

Another thought that is traveling through Jim's mind, is the revival of a fashion that went out of the picture with the passing of the horse and buggy days. That fashion was the use of the light cord around the hat band placed there by manufacturers to enable the wearer to attach the cord to a coat or shirt button and thus prevent the sky-piece from rolling, tumbling into ruin.

Manufacturers continue to place the cord on men's hats and men persist in ignoring the contraption.

Jim's trouble is not so much from the high winds; it is office trouble: the absent-minded taking off his hat and the leaving of another in its place.

Jim declares that he would use the cord only for the fact that he hasn't invented a shoulder contraption on which to hang his Stetson when ladies enter his office.

Recently, Jim reached for his hat, and in its place, was another head piece.

Jim pondered for several days as to who picked up his hat and left another.

Finally, the right thought flashed through his mind: a Leader want ad will very likely bring back my hat. The want ad was inserted and among the countless numbers who read Jim's message was J. A. Streeby, who resides five miles east of Littlefield. She read the ad to her husband and they came to the immediate conclusion that Jim's office was the right place for Mr. Streeby to look for his hat and the right place to return the Stetson. All's well that ends well: Jim has his beloved Streeby has his hat and The Leader has performed a good deed. FOLKS, COME AND SEE SOME TIME!

Services Held For Baby Alice Campbell

Funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Thursday for 10-month-old Alice Elaine Campbell, who died Wednesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Campbell, 959 West Fourth Street.

Services were conducted by the Rev. Weldon B. Meers in the Littlefield Missionary Baptist church and burial was in the Littlefield cemetery under the direction of Hammons Funeral Home.

The baby was born July 2, 1949, in Levelland.

Girls See Collision

The collision was witnessed by Talitha and Fay Williams, young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Williams, who were playing in the front yard of their home on the Springlake highway only a few hundred yards from where the accident occurred.

According to the girls, the cars hit head on with a loud crash.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were in their front room entertaining relatives when the crash happened. When they heard the crash they ran to the cars to give assistance.

Go to Aid

Mr. Williams, accompanied by E. L. Williams and Elmo G. Williams, lifted the 1941 Buick sedan which had pinned the driver, Chaney to the ground. He was believed to have been dead when they arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were still alive and were picked up by a Hammons Funeral home ambulance and rushed to the hospital. Mrs. Jenkins died before she arrived at the hospital. Attendants said she had suffered multiple fractures of several limbs as well as deep lacerations about the head.

Both cars were almost demolished by the collision. The engine was torn from the car driven by Chaney and the 1948 Chrysler, driven by Jenkins, had apparently turned over at least once.

Brownfield Resident

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins had lived in Brownfield for about 15 years. He operated his own barber shop and Mrs. Jenkins worked for the Collins Dry Goods company.

They are believed to have been on the way home from a visit with Mrs. Jenkins' sister, who lives in Friona.

Other survivors of Mrs. Jenkins include four brothers, Jack Carter of Hobbs, N. M., Cliff and Clint Carter, both of Rotan; and Cleo Carter of Pampa.

The body will remain at Hammons Funeral Home until funeral arrangements have been completed.

Relatives of Chaney had the body removed to the Foy G. Woods Funeral Home in Plainview.

When they returned again one of the youths got out of the car and broke a front window of the store. At that time Fields and Black, who was nearby, went into action and arrested them.

After questioning, one of the youths admitted that they had broken into Quigley's store earlier in the night, police report.

Merchandise, reported stolen from Quigley's included 40 cartons of cigarettes, three boxes of .38 caliber shells, two boxes of cigars, a flashlight, two eyeshades and one dollar in cash.

Sheriff S. E. Hoping said yesterday that part of the merchandise had been recovered. Twenty cartons of cigarettes, a box of shells, and eyeshades were among the articles recovered.

"Now the Day Is Over," was sung by a girls' sextette including Amelia Flores, Patsy Phillips, Barbara Ferguson, Patsy Gregg, Wanda Gray and Carrie Ivie.

The Rev. Carter McCamy gave the benediction.
