PENSION ROLLS TO BE ENLARGED TO ADD 85,000

Branch Offices in Various Parts Opened to Take Applications

Branch offices in various parts of the state were opened Monday by Texas old age pension administrators for the purpose of taking first applications under a new pension liberalization law, estimated to add at least 85,000 to the present rolls of 118,000.

Under the new act pensioners may have homesteads, and a greater amount of personal property, and excludes ability of relatives to aid in their support.

Whether the federal government will match payments on the more liberal terms had not been ascertained. But Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel hailed the liberalization act in a Sunday radio broadcast.

"This means," he said, "that the little old Texan can keep his sandy-land farm. It means the little old widow won't have to sell her cottage homestead in town. It means that

The baseball season opens officially in Littlefield Sunday, when the Muleshoe team plays the local cubs here at 2:30, in the afternoon, and a large crowd is expected to attend this game.

Ropesville took Whiteface to the tune of 11-5 in a fast game at Ropesville, while Dimmitt failed to get started soon enough and lost to Muleshoe by a score of 14-6. JUNE PENSION CHECKS TO BE RECEIVED SOON

Checks Average $14 and Will Be Sent to 118,000 Recipients

The Texas Old Age Assistance commission was preparing Tuesday to mail out June pension checks, averaging approximately $14 each to 118,000 recipients, about the middle of this month.

The list was certified to the Federal Social Security board June 1, before Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's signature made into a law a liberalized pension plan estimated to add 50,000 to 80,000 persons to the rolls. Director W. A. Little said that he had been notified that federal matching funds for June would be received as usual.

After this month, however, the prospect is uncertain. "Intake offices" in every county of the state are very busy registering would-be pensioners under the new law. Little predicted that 100,000 or more would apply but he said that early reports were "most gratifying" and that the registrations were orderly throughout the state.

Within two or three weeks, the Texas "plan" of administration under the new law will be submitted to the social security board for approval. The "plan" includes the new law and the interpretation that pension officials plan to follow under it. Many persons have predicted that the new Texas law is too liberal to meet federal requirements and that federal matching aid will be withdrawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutledge and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joplin and family, and Miss Erna Douglass, and their brother visitor, left early Tuesday morning for the mountains of New Mexico, where they will spend a few days in family reunion. They will visit Taos, Red River, and other scenic points.

They will return to Littlefield about Friday, and Mr. Douglass of Austin will leave Saturday to return to his work on the Austin paper.

Have you ever run over a big broken bottle and cut your casing so badly that it was unfit for further service? Well, this is one of the accidents you are protected against by the Lee Tire 12-months' guarantee against road hazard. Sure, it's an unusually liberal guarantee! And adjustment under it is just as liberal... at Phillips 66 stations... or at any Lee dealer from coast to coast.

CONSIDERABLE MORE COTTON GINNED IN PLAINS COUNTIES THAN ARE GROWN HERE

Nearly 7,000 more bales of cotton were ginned during the 1938 season in the 19 counties on top of the Caprock, than were grown in those counties, a special report by the bureau of the census shows.

Final report in these counties shows 447,199 bales ginned, with but 440,234 bales grown.

Nine of the counties showed more bales ginned than grown. Bailey, 2,704 bales; Castro, 195; Crosby, 858; Dickens, 390; Gaines, 332; Hale, 3,954; Lubbock, 926; Lynn, 3,743; Scurry, 4,268.

Counties showing more grown than ginned were: Briscoe, 710; Cochran, 438; Dawson, 39; Floyd, 585; Garza, 1,843; Hockley, 340; Lamb, 146; Motley, 867; Parmer, 111; Terry, 956.

The bureau of the census is furnishing this information for the first time.

Check is made of gins in the county to ascertain the ginnings and also the number of bales from that particular county. With many county line gins, serving farmers from two or more counties it is comparatively easy to get a count of the number of bales from each county.

Comparative ginnings and growing of cotton, give the following figures:

GE CROWD ATTENDS DEDICATION VICE AT ROCKY FORD CHURCH

A large crowd attended the dedication of the new Rocky Ford church Sunday, when Rev. Scott of Throckmorton brought an inspiring message. Visitors came from all part of Lamb and Plainview and Lamesa. The new edifice was completed last week, and the people of the Rocky Ford community are proud of the fine building for their worship. Complete with a large auditorium, the church also has adequate school rooms.

Special music was rendered throughout the day. A bounteous lunch was served to the large crowd at noon.

Other visiting ministers were Rev. L. S. Jenkins of Amherst, and Rev. E. O. Dickerson of Amherst. Rev. E. J. Moore is pastor of the church.

LUTHERAN CHURCH NEWS

W. J. Luecke, pastor.

Sunday morning the Lutheran Young People of the Panhandle area met at Bovina, Texas, for their annual rally. Of the total number of some 300 people present 42 were from Littlefield. The rally was opened with divine services in which the Rev. C. A. Gaertner of Plainview was the speaker. He stressed the past blessings, the present conditions and pointed out the future opportunities for the Lord's service. After dinner served by the Larist and Rhea congregations the business meeting of the zone was called to order. Three essays were read on the topic, "An Appreciation of Our Centennial Heritage." Mr. Henry Ogerly, a graduate of the Littlefield high school, read one of the winning essays. Rev. W. J. Luecke, as pastor advisor of the zone, reported on the details for the young people's camp to be held from the 22-25 of August. The camp will again be held at the Ceta Glen canyon. Rev. W. Klindworth of Dallas will be the chief lecturer. The topics chosen are: "Living With Yourself—Your Life"; "Living With Others—Your Associates"; "Living in the World—Your Radio"; "Living in the Church—Historical." A series of mission lectures is also being arranged. Stereoptical slides will be shown in connection with these last mentioned lectures.

The possibility of broadcasting the Lutheran Hour over the Texas

State Network of the Mutual Broadcasting system determined all to bend every effort to procure this arrangement, and evoked a promise of wholehearted financial support.

After the business meeting athletic games of various nature were enjoyed by the young people. The girls volley ball team won the championship, while the boys team was runner up in their class. Mr. Herman Neuenachwander won the tennis championship. The softball team of the young men won from Plainview, but lost a four inning game to Lubbock.

After supper a concert was held by the choirs of the various young peoples groups. The piano solo by Miss Phyllis Albers of Canyon and the vocal solo by Miss Tiefel of Hereford were the highlights of the program. The young people of Plainview gave a short play entitled "The Light of the World." The rally was closed with the entire assembly singing a hymn of Thanksgiving.

Next year the rally will be held at Wilson, Texas. The date has not been fixed as yet.

Next week, Wednesday, the 14th, the Ladies Aid of the congregation will meet in the basement of the school for their all day quilting. The quilting will begin at 10 o'clock. All are requested to bring their assigned portion of the general dinner. The quilting and gate for the steps will be fixed according to the general request before that meeting.

Tuesday of this week Rev. and Mrs. Luecke attended the meeting at Wilson in which doctrines were considered to the end of a future union with the American Lutheran church. While it appears this union is still several years away, yet these necessary steps will help to speed up this matter.

I JUMPED AT THE DEAL

the Ford Dealer made on my old car!"

"How much?" says I to the FORD Dealer!

My wife has been crazy for a FORD V-8. Figured I could swing it if I got a good trade on my old car. So I took the old fuss-maker around to the FORD Dealer.

"HAS IT GOT STYLE!" Drove home in a brand new FORD V-8. Man, that is the sweetest running car I ever handled. And is my wife proud? She says the FORD V-8 was designed for women—the last word in style and luxurious comfort. We are the envy of the neighborhood—but not for long, I expect. Tom, Jim, Dave, Henry and Bill have already talked to me and the FORD Dealer is going to have a busy day.

"DID I GET A TRADE!"

The figure I had in mind was good enough. Imagine my surprise when the FORD Dealer paid me even more for my old car. Said he needed some used cars right now. You bet I jumped at the deal.

asked Barry.
 "They're bandits, that's what," said Conner. "Killers. Now yuh got to help me clean out afore they come sneakin' back."
 "I'll go get my rifle," said Barry.
 "Shore," nodded Conroy. "Then come give me some help. I c'n hardly walk, but if I had both laigs shot off I'd somehow hake it."
 After they had done what they could do for Conroy's two wounds, one through his left arm, one through his left shoulder, he crawled into Barry's bunk and lay quiet.

Then he found his mother's letter. Over the fireplace, a wan square in the dimness, was a sheet of paper on a nail. Barry took it down and read it sitting on the stoop.
 The first words were, "To Robert or Baron, whichever comes home first." Robert was Barry's brother, the oldest of the three sons. The rest of a hastily written letter answered all Barry's questions for him. First of all, Lucy had married Zachary Blount and the two were living in Tylersville; Zachary was practicing law and was associated with a great man, Judge Parker Blue. Through Zachary, Judge Blue had sent an offer to Barry's father to go into the cattle business with him; on shares it was. So all the family were moving down into the cow country, onto one of the Judge's several spreads. There was a postscript: "Whichever of you boys reads this first, let him leave it here for the other."

 Well, his mother and father and his brother Lute were on a cattle ranch now. And Robert was somewhere or other.
 In the morning he decided to go out of his way a bit in making his return journey. That was because it dawned on Barry that he alone of his family might guess what Robert was up to.
 "Anyhow I'll go past Tex Humphreys' place," Barry decided.

Barry happened to know that Robert was crazy about one of the Humphreys girls.
 So now, turning his back on the old log home, he headed toward the Humphreys' horse ranch. He meant just to drop in and say "Howdy," and ask casually, "Seen any o' my folks lately, Tex?" But there was to be no such casual talk that day.
 At the foot of Black Mountain in a peaceful and quiet little whispering glen shut in by quivering aspens, he came suddenly, all without warning, upon the stark horror of a thing which only a short time before, surely not more than a day before, had been Robert Haveril.

farther westward. Then, still farther west were the New Mexico Haverils, the Sundown Haverils as they came to be known.

Of the Sundown Haverils there was one called Barry who in many ways could have been looked on as the embodiment of the outstanding qualities of the whole family.

His father, Ben Haveril, was still a young man, lusty and rugged and violent, generous and kindly enough with his small flock at most times, little short of a devil when in drink. His mother, Lucinda, was one of the Oakwoods of Virginia who still clung tenaciously to their own family traditions and pride.

It was she who had given her youngest his name, which wasn't

One day, toward sundown, he sat on a rock in front of his cabin looking down into the long sinuous valley below, a sight he seldom tired brooding over. He had named it for himself Sun Creek Valley.

He heard rifle shots muffled with distance in an intervening neck of the woods. He had never heard so many shots so close together and wondered how many men there were and what they could be shooting at. He got his answer almost instantly. There were several men shooting at a single rider who had fled on ahead into the lower end of Barry's Sun Creek Valley.

He saw the flash of reddish-yellow fire when the fugitive, fleeing no longer, fired at his pursuers

"Drop your gun!" said the voice.

Barry at all but Baron. She said proudly that there had been a Baron Oakwood long ago, which meant nothing to little Barry himself.

In his latter teens Barry left home. He didn't know why he went away. He didn't think about it. It was the forests pulling him.

During the six or eight weeks before he had any thought of turning back homeward he made many long exploratory trips toward both north and west through the mountains. Only twice in that time did he see human beings.

whom Barry could not see.

If it hadn't been so far he would have drawn to go down and find out about things. Also it was swiftly growing dark; it would be a moonless night and whatever was happening down there would be over in a few minutes or would have to await sunup.

But before sunup he was on his way to investigate. The dawn was brightening and he had traveled half the distance when a voice called to him from a brush thicket:

"Drop yore gun! Drop it quick or I'll kill yuh!"

The speaker was not 10 steps away. Barry let his rifle slide out of his hands and felt a queer prickling chill along his blood as he jerked his head about to stare. At first he could see nothing but gray buck brush and gray rocks. Then he saw the muzzle of a firl barrel resting on a flat-topped boulder.

"Step over this way," said the voice. "Step, kid, or I'll shoot yuh dead."

Barry obeyed.

That was how he first met up with Jesse Conroy. This Conroy, on the day Barry first saw him, was about 23 years old and, coiled as he was behind the rock, with his bright black eyes glittering and an ugly twist to his white-lipped mouth, he made Barry think of a rattlesnake, he seemed just that full of menace of sudden death. He was a flashingly handsome young devil and none the less devilish for an almost girlishly fine-featured face. There was enough light for Barry to make out that he was pretty badly hurt.

Conroy was suspicious of him at first, afraid that he might be one of the crowd that had killed his horse under him and shot him down last night. Once that he learned otherwise his manner changed.

"I'm hurt right bad," he said, "but I'll make it yet. Especially if I can have help. Those fellers that rode me down, they'll be comin' back after while. But they won't hurry; I knocked over anyhow two an' mebbe three, an' I'd of got 'em all if one o' their bullets hadn't of glanced off'n a rock an' drilled me."

"Why'd they want to drill you?" When Conroy got out of bed to move restlessly about he began asking questions. He wanted to know how it was that Barry lived here all alone, where he had come from—and why.

Why had he come? Well, he didn't rightly know. He'd just left one place and gone another. Conroy watched him narrowly, plainly believing that he was being told a meager part of the truth. Then he asked, still eyeing Barry with bright suspicion as though watching for sign of another lie, what his name was.

"Barry. Me, I'm Barry Haveril."

Conroy started laughing.

"Say, that's funny," he said, "I'm a Haveril, too, one o' the Texas Haverils; but my name's Jesse Conroy. Ever heard that name, Barry?"

"No," said Barry. "I never. But if you're a Haveril how's your name Conroy?"

"Shucks," said Jesse. "It's my ol' lady that's the Haveril, an' she married a man name of Conroy."

Barry pondered. "I'd reckon that makes you anyhow a half Haveril," he said.

Thereafter they called each other Cousin Jesse and Cousin Barry, until Jesse took to calling Barry just plain Sundown.

"I'd like to hear about the bandits that chased you up here, Cousin Jesse," said Barry one day.

"I ain't finished with them hembres, Sundown," Jesse said angrily. "Shore, I'll tell you about 'em."

He told his tale forcefully and clearly, and Barry Haveril believed every word of it. There were six of them, said Jesse. They were Bud Walters, a cowboy; Bill and Tom Bedloe, ranchers near Tylersville; Sam Johnston, teamster and deputy sheriff and all around crook; Jeff Cody, the gambler; and Dan Hardy.

Most folks didn't suspect them for what they were, they were that crafty. But Jesse Conroy knew! Hadn't he seen them when they held up the Cold Springs stage; they'd killed the driver and the guard and got away with the strong box. Then they had seen Jesse Conroy, who just happened to be cutting into the stage road from a side trail, and they knew it was all up with them unless they rubbed him out.

"I'll get 'em some day, Cousin Barry," Jesse went on. "Yuh see if I don't. But for a while I better go slow."

Presently a thin smile touched his lips as he said idly: "What do yuh think o' this here six-gun o' mine, Sundown?"

"I never saw one like that," breathed Barry almost reverentially. "Try a shot with it," offered Jesse. "I'll show yuh."

Barry tingled; he held the weapon lovingly; he lowered it and raised it just as Conroy had been doing. "I'll show yuh," said Conroy again.

Barry sat humbly listening as Jesse, leaning against the cabin wall, explained and demonstrated. Instantly he realized that his cousin was as deadly with the Colt as he himself was with his rifle.

Jesse said, "Here's some ca'tridges," and poured them into Barry's eager palm. And then he said laughing: "Yuh c'n have it, Sundown. I'm givin' it to yuh."

Barry just stood there, shells in one hand, gun in the other, and gawked at him. He knew that he had heard the words correctly; it must be that they meant something Big crowds attended all of the opening games last Sunday and a lot of interest is being aroused in the different towns.

he ridiculed his candidacy as that of "one whose 'strength' is that of knowing nothing, saying nothing, doing nothing."

Holt said his resolution would be a simple proposal that the Senate express its sentiment against third terms. He has contemplated offering it for some time and told the United Press it would go in this month. Holt and the New Deal long have been feuding.

Meanwhile reports spread on Capitol Hill that Secretary Wallace of the agriculture department is about to become an avowed candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

Congressional friends of the agricultural department chief, who said they had talked to him about the 1940 race, expressed belief, however, that he would not permit entry of his name unless it was certain President Roosevelt would not seek a third term.

Other members of Congress said Wallace might seek pledged delegates who would swing to a third term movement for the president.

The 50-year-old secretary came to the cabinet in 1933 as a republican who had supported Mr. Roosevelt for the presidency. At the time Wallace was editor of a farm magazine in Des Moines. His father, the late Henry C. Wallace, had been President Harding's secretary of agriculture.

PENSION ROLLS—

mother won't have to starve because some brute steals her daughter, marries her and takes her a thousand miles away and puts her to work, and then the son-in-law gets caught smoking a 10-cent cigar. It means that grandma can now have a spare stick of chewing gum and won't have to hide it behind the bed-post or under the rocking chair. It means that grandpa will no longer have to hide his milk cow down in the cellar and won't have to have his milk measured—he can strip the old cow dry now and not worry about getting caught on the way to the house with one pint too much milk.

O'Daniel urged passage of senate joint resolution No. 12, which submits a constitutional amendment for a sales tax, as a means to finance the liberalized pensions and predicted its victory.

"Everybody knows it is not exactly what I want," he said. "I do not believe it is exactly what any one member of either house wants, but in a democracy we cannot each get what we want. Legislation is a matter of compromise. It is a matter of give and take and therefore this SJR No. 12 is a compromise bill, and in the closing hours of this long session to keep from adjournment empty-handed I am urging that we all try to get together on this compromise bill because it has the majority of both the House and Senate in favor of it and I figure it is more reasonable to expect 11 members of the House to change their position than to expect 89 members of the House and 21 Senators to change their position."

"I figure it is about time to close this session and go home and get to work and stop the confusion and let Texas settle down to normalcy for a while."

Amarillo — Farmers and landowners of the Southern Great Plains already have organized 10 soil conservation districts under provisions of state laws to carry out better land use and soil erosion control problems, and the Soil Conservation Service is cooperating with eight of the organizations which include 2,625,652 acres of farm and range land, H. H. Fennell, regional director of the service, announced today.

Commenting on the rapid growth of soil conservation districts in this region within the last year, Fennell pointed out that hundreds of farmers now are taking a more active role than ever before in protecting an deconserving agricultural resources.

"The district already organized," he said, "help to fill a long-felt need of Great Plains agriculture. They provide a medium through which farmers can work together in attacking the wide variety of land use problems. They also offer an excellent mechanism for transforming the plans of local land use planning program groups into actual work on the land."

Upon request, the Soil Conservation Service is helping farmers of the districts to apply soil conservation practices, to retire submarginal lands from cultivation, and to institute better land use practices.

The Southern Great Plains region of the Service includes all of Kansas, the eastern half of Colorado, the Panhandle of Texas and Oklahoma, and a portion of eastern New Mexico, Fennell pointed out. Soil conservation districts laws were enacted in all of these states last year with the exception of Texas, where such an act only recently has been adopted.

Districts in eastern Colorado with which the service is cooperating include the West Baca district comprised of 848,570 acres, and the Southeast Baca district of 399,800 acres, both in Baca county, and Plainview, 135,764 acres, and Smoky Hill River, 138,938 acres, both in Kit Carson county.

In Kansas, the service is cooperating with the Labette county district in the southeastern part of the state, he area including 411,520 acres.

Districts in eastern New Mexico with which the service is cooperating are the Mesa district, Harding county, 150,000 acres; Northeastern, Union county, 200,000 acres; and Central Curry county, 425,000 acres. Two additional districts in Quay county, the Canadian river, comprised of 576,000, and the Southwest Quay, totaling 405,000 acres, only recently have been voted by the farmers and arrangements for cooperating with the service have not been completed.

Landowners in the districts that have been formed are greatly interested in conserving soil resources through utilizing every means of assistance which the organization offers, according to Fennell. One of the first principles in preserving soil resources is the proper use of water so that crops can be grown more successfully and sufficient vegetative cover can be provided to hold the soil. In this connection, contour tillage on all farms, with terraces on many, is being recommended to prevent the waste of water.

The program of the districts is purely voluntary on the part of the landowners, and work is done only on request of the owner. The principal means of assistance which the districts can receive from the Soil Conservation Service, Fennell said, is the loan of heavy equipment for constructing terraces and other structures, technical aid in running terrace and contour lines; farm planning; and the furnishing of such materials as trees and grass seed.

PRACTICAL DAYTIME DRESS

This design (8037) shows how pretty a truly practical daytime dress can be! It's very comfortable, because the waistline looks slim without being tight, the bodice, gathered onto a shoulder yoke, blouses slightly and gives plenty of freedom for action.

Make this dress of gingham, percale or linen, for housework. And have it in silk print or flat crepe for shopping and hackabout.

Pattern No. 8037 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42 and 44.

Pattern 8473 — It's such a pretty dress for graduation and for parties. Girls will adore it because it's so young and yet there's a thrill of grown-upness about the tiny waist, the becoming squared neck, puffed or bell sleeves.

Choose dotted swiss, silk mull, organdy, dimity or pure dye silk for this design.

Pattern No. 8373 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16 years.

BAPTIST MINISTERS ATTEND ANNUAL CONFERENCE IN FORT WORTH THIS WEEK

Rev. and Mrs. Roy Shahan and Mrs. Roy Shahan left Monday morning for Fort Worth where Rev. Shahan is attending the annual Preachers Evangelistic conference at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary this week.

Other ministers from this area are attending include Rev. C. Jordan, of Earth, Rev. L. S. Jenks, and daughter of Amherst, Rev. E. H. Dickerson of Sudan, Rev. Bailey Hamilton of Muleshoe, and Rev. Gerald Moore of Sudan.

Howard Williams, Amarillo, president Baptist General Convention of Texas; Dr. C. E. Matthews, Fort Worth, state evangelist leader.

Rev. Hyman Appelman, converted Jew, and leading evangelist in America today, will speak daily. Rev. Charles St. John of New York City, superintendent of the famous Bowery Mission, the largest mission in the world, will speak on "Winning the Downs and Outs to Christ."

Dr. Roland Q. Leavell, Atlanta, Ga., superintendent of evangelism of the Baptist Home Mission board, Dr. W. R. White, Oklahoma City, Dr. Marshall Craig and Dr. Wallace Bassett of Dallas have prominent places on the program.

The outstanding Negro religious leader of the world, Dr. L. K. Williams of Chicago, will address the group. The conference, according to Dr. R. C. Campbell, executive secretary of the Baptist general convention of Texas, is of vast significance. Following a like meeting two years ago an evangelistic campaign began in Texas which resulted in 90,000 additions in one year to the Baptist churches of the state, and the movement has since grown to national proportions.

More than 12,000 Baptist ministers are in attendance. Mrs. Shahan and children are visiting in the home of Rev. Shahan's sister, Mrs. T. L. Pope, in Fort Worth, while he is attending the conference.

Fifth Annual Pioneer Celebration At Clovis June 7-8

Honest to goodness old-timers who settled in this territory in the years 1905 to 1912 are gathering again at the fifth annual Pioneer Days Celebration being held in Clovis yesterday and today, June 7 and 8 and swap yarns and reminisce over life in the old days while enjoying a cup of chuck wagon coffee and visiting with each other over old-fashioned basket lunches.

A timely return of old-fashioned garb was signaled when the curtain went up on the two-day gala event that marks another anniversary of the celebration dedicated to those persons who first settled in the Plains territory.

According to plans mapped out by a committee of "old-timers" headed by Mrs. Clyn Smith, persons who came to New Mexico and West Texas in the early years of the 20th century—between 1905 and 1912—are being furnished with free coffee and ice water and given an opportunity to bring their picnic lunches and "get-together" with old timers on the lawn of the Curry county court house both days of the annual affair.

Registration of the old-timers who "arrived" between these years is being held on the court house lawn during the celebration with Mrs. J. E. Alsop in charge and assisted by members of the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations. The registration badges show the name of the pioneer and the year settled in this country.

With each pioneer family bringing their own lunch, groups representing each year are gathering together and talking over the old days in the West and are pointed out by placards giving the various years. Cots, chairs, benches and tables are furnished by the city and by the pioneer celebration committee for the convenience of those who are being participating in the old-timers' part of the celebration. The pioneers of a day gone by will also be invited to participate in a genuine "old time" dance in charge of Rufe Witherspoon at which only old time favorites, including square dances, schottisches and others, will be played.

We Suggest A Colt Show

We have watched with considerable interest the success of colt shows which have been held in various sections of the country.

One of the most recent shows was held at Snyder.

"Success of last Saturday's first Scurry County Colt Show," says the Scurry County Times, "assures a second 1939 show in August, according to leaders of the popular event. Interest in the show reveals too, that there is an increasing regard for good horse-flesh in this area.

"Thirty-eight animals were seen in Saturday's show in addition to several saddle horses that were ridden in by exhibitors. Of this number 20 were colts entered in the three classes, 15 were brood mares, and the remaining three were a jack, a yearling mare mule and a stallion."

Kerrville, in the Hill Country, has a successful annual show.

Colt shows are not expensive to conduct. Ribbons are the chief prizes. BUT SUCH SHOWS ARE HIGHLY VALUABLE TO ANY COUNTY OR SECTION OF THE STATE IN THAT THEY ENCOURAGE THE RAISING OF BETTER HORSES AND MULES.

"All in all," says the Scurry County Times, "the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce and county agent's office believe that this first Scurry County Colt Show was highly successful, and that it points to an increasing number of well-bred horses and mules in Scurry county."

One of the most important features of a Colt show, in our estimation, is the fact that it encourages the youth of our farms and ranches in the breeding and ownership of high grade stock.

We are of the opinion that Lamb county should have a Colt show. AND WE KNOW THAT WITHIN THREE OR FOUR HOURS, OR LESS TIME, A SUFFICIENT NUMBER OF MEN WHO REALLY KNOW HORSES AND MULES COULD BE ASSEMBLED TO FORM THE INITIAL COMMITTEE FOR THE CONDUCTING OF A REAL SUCCESSFUL SHOW.

Cotton Burrs

At last a use has been found for the burrs on a cotton plant.

A composition plastic has been developed from these burrs, according to Dr. R. C. Goodwin, head of the department of chemistry and chemical engineering at Texas Technological college.

The composition is suitable for wall boards, bridge table tops, cafe counters and soda fountain tops, Goodwin said. It is fireproof and is a low conductor of heat, making it also a possible material for insulation, he said.

The composition is made from the burrs after the staple has been removed. Previously, burrs had been considered worthless.

Watch Out For New Laws

The governor is signing new laws—and vetoing some, too—as they are passed along to him by the legislature. Many of these laws have not been in the limelight and probably you'll be violating some of them and not know it for weeks and months.

Generally speaking the laws that are passed are better thought through than laws formerly were, except for the high-powered type where a minority crams special legislation through for their own benefit against that of the general welfare.

The worst laws of this last type is the "local law," which though it reads in a general nature, carries with it provisions that make it applicable to only one section, one county or even one city. Several such laws have been passed in recent years and it may be taken that legislative "courtesy" will have some of the same passed through the mill that is grinding now.—Floyd County Hesperian.

Talking Turkey

There'll be a "talking turkey" at the World Poultry Congress, scheduled for July 28 to August 7 at Cleveland, Ohio.

The "turkey" will explain by word and animated diagram the assimilation and digestion of food, thus discussing the nutritive requirements of all forms of poultry. The "talking turkey" will be only a small part of the exhibit now being prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to illustrate the latest scientific findings of government research workers.

Wax models will show the effect of diet on the skin color of various breeds of poultry; pictures, mounted birds, and other devices will show the effect of various insects and diseases and means of control, and poultry and egg inspection service will be demonstrated.

The Texas poultry industry will be well represented at the Congress—the first ever held in the United States. George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the Texas A. and M. college, estimates that close to 300 Texas hatcherymen, breeders, and producers will attend.

MARGIE Goes Snooping

Perhaps one of the busiest places in Littlefield is the golf course, where the young and the old enjoy the "sport of the highlanders" from dawn until dusk every day... The Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored the "fixing up" of the course, and those young business and professional men can and will sponsor and do other worthwhile things for our town... Weldon Pruett, in early Monday morning telling about shooting prairie dogs. Seems he and his friend shot 400 shells in three hours, and they only missed 35 dogs.—Whew! ! ! . . . Read somewhere about a Scotsman who preferred blondes because of the light overhead... Had been missing my boy friends, Freckles, the past two weeks, but he was in the other day. He's been helping farm, with his uncle, and he stated that he had learned everything about a farm but how to drive a tractor and to dress a chicken... My latest boy friend is Billy Seth, who is 3 years old and has the brownest eyes. He and little Carolyn Walkup are often termed as two "adorable" children, with their brown eyes and blond hair... R. W. Warner of the University of Texas declared recently that since rural electrification became a fact in Texas four years ago, consumers had already mounted from 11,000 to approximately 30,000 under the subsidization of the national Rural Electrification Administration, which has loaned $14,635,000 for Texas projects alone. Rural electrification is slated to lead in the "back to the farm movement."... Lubbock will be host to the Texas Press association Thursday, Friday and Saturday, for the first time, and editors and publishers from all of Texas are sure to enjoy the hospitality of our neighbor. What could be more appropriate to serve the visitors than the famous "son-of-a-gun" that only west Texans can prepare? Did you know that Lubbock has been named the cleanest city in Texas for the past nine years?... We can think of no one who can greet the king and queen of England, in Washington, more graciously than our own vice-president and Mrs. John Nance Garner. Neither can we forget that they are Texans... Sunday was the first time that as many as seven horseback riders were seen together in Littlefield since the early days, but Mr. and Mrs. Lon Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Griffin, Norman and Raymond Renfro, and this writer enjoyed the three-hour jaunt.—Wonder why Littlefield can't have a riding club?... Edgar Walters was "up in the air" over Littlefield one day last week. He has his pilot's license now, and enjoys piloting a plane from the Lubbock airport...

How about helping me out with some interesting facts about interesting people? . . . Mrs. G. D. Lair telling us about Paul, who left the United States Friday, and is now sailing on the high seas toward Europe. She was lamenting that he wouldn't get the delicious cake she sent him Saturday, and he wouldn't be back for two years. . . . Those fishermen from "away back since we were kids," Lowell Short and Robert Roach of Anton, took their sons to the mountains last week on a fishing trip. From all reports, "But" Short caught the biggest fish. So Long, MARGIE
