JACK SULLIVAN IS WOUNDED IN RUNNING FIGHT

Suspect is Under Indictment For Robbing Olton Bank

Jack Sullivan, widely sought as one of a trio that robbed the Olton State Bank a few weeks ago, was shot and seriously wounded in a tense gun battle with Texas and New Mexico officers Tuesday morning shortly before noon. A girl companion, who gave her name as Mary Cuban of Gonzales, Texas, was wounded with Sullivan in the battle.

Officers, led by Sheriff Bob Crim and Deputy Sheriffs Tom Matthews and Zeb Payne of Lamb county, accompanied by the Sheriff and a deputy sheriff of Estancia and a deputy sheriff and the city marshal from Mountainair, encountered the couple as they sped along the highway near Mountainair. Falling in an attempt to stop the car the officers gave chase, firing about 25 shots as the pair fled. The car driven by Sullivan and his girl companion was found to be riddled with 14 bullet holes caused by the officers' firing.

Examined at a hospital in Albuquerque, Sullivan was found to be shot through the shoulder and abdomen, as well as twice in the leg. The girl was wounded in the legs and one arm.

Sheriff Crim said he believed he recognized Sullivan as one of the four men who opened fire on a posse of officers near Portales, August 20. Deputy Sheriff Harve Bolin of Plainville was killed and special deputy R. L. Hollis of Portales was wounded. Sullivan denied he had any part in the Portales gun fight. The officers

SENATOR-ELECT SEES MUCH WORK FOR 43rd SESSION

Duggan Believes Report of One Committee Will Take Much Time

That the next Legislature will be one of the most important in many years is believed by Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield, senator-elect of the thirtieth senatorial district. Mr. Duggan, who has recently returned from Austin, where he was a guest of the Texas Senate in its special session, states, in commenting on the matters to come before the Texas law-making body when it meets next January, that just one of the many subjects to come up for consideration is that of the committee appointed by the last regular session to make a tax survey of the entire state government. This committee of which Harry N. Graves of Georgetown is chairman, will report its findings at the next regular session, the report being, according to Mr. Duggan, in the form of a 1400-page typewritten brief, and will likely consume much time in studying its many-sided ques-

THAT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

By HOMER HALL

It was purely a Ferguson 'uprising'—this Democratic convention at Lubbock Monday and Tuesday. Some Sterling followers were seen in Lubbock during the two days, but most of them went back home, or somewhere, before the heat of the day Tuesday.

I walked up to the main entrance of the convention hall, and up stepped a big moose and asked for my credentials. I unfolded a letter and asked him to have a look at it, and when he saw that I had been recommended for a seat at the press table by "that fellow Drake over at Littlefield", he assigned me a special policeman to direct me to the press room entrance, where I was met by another uniformed fellow who carried me right into the midst of the biggest mess of newspaper guys I ever saw. Why, would you believe it, through the courtesy of the Lamb County Leader, I was not only given entrance to the convention hall, but to the press table right up in the amen row where I could see and hear everything that went on—and I tell you plenty went on, too. They sat me down in a big arm chair in front of a special table, supplied me with bushels of writing paper, telegram blanks, pencils, and even furnished me a special copy boy and a pitcher of ice water. I wanted to attend the convention, and I am here to tell you I was AT the convention when they got through fixing me up. I'll never travel any more without credential papers from the Lamb County Leader.

That convention was the prettiest running "machine" I ever saw. Everything was greased and running smoothly, if not noiselessly. A few of the Littlefield boys were over there. We caught a few of them without their Ferguson badges on crawling under the tent flaps. One Sterling admirer from somewhere, nobody knows where, tried to make a Sterling speech and he got far enough to say, "I voted for Sterling once..." and he was booted down.

Why the whole convention was the prettiest work you ever saw. The Ferguson boys from Harris county, Sterling's home county, said that they held their caucus in room so-and-so of the Hotel Lubbock, and the Sterling delegation from Harris county convened in telephone booth No. 1.

Texas needs a good governor. It looks like we're going to have a good governor—one with a heart. Why, when some of the boys were pouring it on Sterling so hard, I noticed Mrs. Ferguson shedding a few sympathetic tears.

You had to be right where I sat to take in the whole show. The cheering was deafening. Why, every time Jim Ferguson so much as twitched his nose the whole convention went into an uproar. That's just how completely the next governor had the situation under his thumb.

PRICES ARE GOING UP

The upward movement in commodity prices has begun. That is what all the economic authorities have been saying must happen before prosperity can come back. Cotton is up, wool is up, hogs are up, rayon is up, and silk went up so high and so rapidly on the Japanese Silk Exchange the other day that the authorities closed the exchange to prevent a riot.

With raw materials rising, it follows that the prices of goods manufactured from them must speedily rise, and that brings the matter right home to everybody in this town.

Now is the time to buy.

Commodity prices are not going any lower. They have touched bottom. People who have been waiting to make their purchases until they were sure that the bottom had been reached had better dig into their purses now and buy while the merchants' shelves are still stocked with low priced goods. They are not going to remain on the shelves very long, and the next lots which our local dealers buy are going to cost them more and will have to sell for more.

We have a distinct feeling that we have turned the corner on hard times. We find that all over the country almost everybody shares the same feeling. We all want prosperity back, and we want it back as quickly as we can get it. The quickest way to bring it back is for everybody who has an unfilled want and any money whatever with which to supply that want, to spend that money now. Dollars are going to get cheaper, as goods go higher in price. It has been many, many years since the dollar would buy as much in clothing or fabrics or groceries or hardware, in shoes or household goods or furniture, as it will today. It will be many, many years, we hope, before it will again be possible to buy such bargains as are available all around us today.

The people who have been wise enough to hang on to their money during the depression are setting the example for all the rest of us. They are buying in the stock market, they are buying in the grain market, they are buying in the wool market, they are buying in the cotton market, they are buying in the silk market. That means that "big money" has got over being afraid, and we think it is time for lesser people with little money to overcome their own timidity and begin to spend.

By buying now you speed the return of prosperity.

TEXAS IS BEATING BACK

That conditions in general over the state are taking an up-look is amply borne out by a report made by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls before the banking and industrial committee of the Eleventh Federal Reserve District.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram of last Friday reports that questionnaires sent out to 24 wholesale and retail trade associations in Texas regarding business and financial conditions disclosed a "healthy improvement in wholesale and retail trade within the last 30 days," according to a report made there Thursday by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls.

Other members of the committee corroborated the reports. They stated that they had observed a much better sentiment among business men of the State. An increase in actual trade activity also was noted, they reported.

An upward trend in prices of cotton, livestock, wheat and other commodities was given as one of the main causes of improvement in business.

Committee members said the reports on the questionnaire were proof that the unemployment situation in Texas is being improved.

Of much local interest is the statement made by the 47 directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce that "business is better in West Texas." The report was published in "West Texas Today," official organ of the organization.

"Business is better in this part of the world," says the review. "Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in 47 widely scattered affiliated cities and towns, replying to a questionnaire mailed them in mid-August by the editorial board of West Texas Today, without exception have replied that an upturn has undoubtedly started, whose chief manifestation is the robust return of confidence, and, here and there, a surge upward in business that has carried the volume of trade even above that of the same period of 1931."

Commit, Breen, it's all hell to get rodmen to use their heads." An experienced engineer was speaking with authority. "We engineers hold 'em down," he added with a grin. John was leaving. Van Horn remained in the city. He just refused to leave, and Josephine, in the dark cool house in the middle Fifties, agreed with those millions who have said, "New York is a splendid summer resort." . . . As many people were always in or about town, and as Josephine had several insistent problems confronting her, the city, in the summer, took on the proportions of an adventure. Josephine was frankly in the business of living successfully. She had no intention of being anything but a success, and not merely a social success, but to achieve freedom, and expression, and, well lots of other things besides. In fact she was not above the plane of experiment. The artless dropping of a fold of her crepe kimono, the closeness of her firm breasts, for an instant pink reflected light of a table lamp, beneath John's eyes, as she had bent over him, placing a tray of toast and tea upon his bed, on the morning of his convalescent luxury, happened as she planned. She recalled his quickly mounting color, her bustling of the pillow under his head, bending close above him, breathing the freshness by the way, with so many people always eating fish, and Aunt Wen was in the midst of a book. John had called up only an hour before. It was six o'clock. Perhaps he was still at his new quarters. She would call, and would leave word for Rantoul, at his rooms, that she could not see him. After all, Josephine could see Rantoul often, but that night she wanted to see John Breen. They met, an hour later, at the Savoy, and walked east, through Fifty-ninth Street to the Third Avenue L. It was a familiar station to John, in a reminiscent way, as indeed the entire city was reminiscent and crowded with surprises. The same old platforms and rails, but an electrified train carried them down through the close revelation of the East Side. Jacob Riis had written about slums, disturbingly, and Theodore Roosevelt had endorsed his words; this gave the steaming tenements a sentimental and a literary value. "John, I'm so glad to see you, alone." Josephine was starting things early. "There's a lovely place, the Cafe Boulevard, so Bohemian, John, of her morning bath. It was all so intimate, and innocent. . . . And John had never asked anything. It puzzled her. Boys proposed to her, almost as a matter of course. Gerrit Rantoul had proposed, and was waiting her reply. Josephine still felt Rantoul standing over her, tall and firm and charming, his white hair a mark of distinction rather than of age. He once told her, half laughingly, "I guess I was born that way." Rantoul was wealthy, belonged to good clubs, had offices in the financial district, and had leisure and just enough contact with great affairs to make him an entrancing companion. He was constantly meeting important men. A word or two, a mere hint, gave Josephine the feeling of mingling in a consequential world. It was so different from Gilbert Van Horn's world, a place utterly divorced from business and occupied with stupid sports, or gossip, or mooning.

Women were attracted by Rantoul, women always had been attracted to him.

Women were attracted by Rantoul, women always had been attracted to him. Charming women, Josephine knew, would take him in an instant, and he loved her. She was certain of that, loved her intensely, with passion held in masterly reserve. He was a compelling figure. She often thought of him as a Richard Harding Davis hero, an engineer of great renown, decorated by foreign potentates. Josephine laughingly told this to Rantoul. When they dined that night at the West-Hambletons', Rantoul wore a yellow and red sash across his breast with a brilliant ten-pointed star. A sparkling order hung about his neck by a purple ribbon. On the breast of his evening coat, over his heart, was a row of overlapping medals. It was the night he proposed. John had never proposed to her, probably never would, or perhaps had never had the chance. Van Horn was dining at the club. It was Friday night, a beastly night and, with you, I'm not afraid." A few weeks before Rantoul had protected her there. John Breen might have no medals, she mused, moving closer to him, but he did have an uncanny fascination on that shimmering night. John secured a table on the balcony, ten feet or so above the crowded street, where they could dine, under the awnings, in the open air, and still in sight of the entrancing things within. Josephine sank into her seat with a sigh, they were very fortunate indeed in getting that delightful table. On their ride downtown, they had talked the common-places of their separation. But once at table, and alone, as if by magic, John and Josephine were again on the fatal plane of delicious intimacy. Josephine smiled. John noted the merest suggestion of a dimple. A mood of perfect understanding seemed to permeate the air. The dinner was superb. She had asked for a cocktail and John joined her, and a bottle of St. Julien added flavor to the dishes. Cafe Boulevard, always famous for its coffee, outdid itself on that Arabian night. They ate their ices and lingered, while John smoked a cigar grandly, blowing fragrant clouds through the hedge as they leaned across the table tete-a-tete. Blue wreaths drifted slowly back across her hair. "Do you mind the smoke, Jo?" He used the diminutive easily. "No, John, I love it." Her face was close to his, her hair gave back the faintest perfume. She was even lovelier than he had imagined her in his fondest dreams; she was an angel. As John talked Josephine was glad, so glad, to be with him. He was finer, more manly, more handsome than ever. John talked as he had never talked before. His life at the University, in the atmosphere of recognized ideas, had broadened him. He unburdened great ambitions ripe for expression in that understanding night. His surer outlook and his burning belief in the great dignity of the career ahead, glorified him. He would be a builder, "like Rantoul. Yes, like Rantoul," a builder in the greatest city of the world! Something from within smote Josephine; it came, a cold breath of doubt. She was losing ground, slipping in a mental panic as she compared her lovers. She missed the tight, high-colored skin of the older man, youthfully flushed at times, perhaps by wine. The crisp white hair of Rantoul was less silky, and less thick, than the youthful crop of Breen, and she missed that careful guarded manner, the habit of an older man, but which she then set down to cunning. John swept her along on a flood of emotion. His hunger demanded her; it was a terrible emotion. She dared not try to fascinate or charm. Love stabbed her with delicious pain. Doubt dropped away and, in her instant of surrender, her hold on John was of transcendent power. Rantoul vanished from her mind, and John Breen, so close across the table, clasping her hand, her pulse, her soul, the finer man, wealthier by twenty years, rich full years she was to share with him, love with him. His grip tightened; he whispered, "Darling, will you marry me?" She heard the words, the fervent words carrying her beyond all thought of time or calculation. "Will you wait for me?" his eager tones were tender. "Will you—sweetheart?"

Their eyes met, swimmingly. She whispered, "Yes." Rantoul was forgotten; her plans and structures tumbled and re-formed.

They drove home in a taxi gliding quickly through dark enveloping streets. John helped her to the door, and Van Horn, who had entered a minute earlier, called to him.

"Come in, John, glad to see you. Josephine!" he called, but his ward had already disappeared in the upper hall. "What's up, John? Nothing wrong, I hope?" He looked at the young man quizzically.

"Josephine has promised to marry me." The words sounded unreal, almost as if he were uttering something sacrilegious.

"Marry you?" Gilbert Van Horn steadied himself at a newel post. "The devil you say? Come here, John." He gripped him by the hand. His eyes glistened, he turned away. "Here, Jules!" to the butler hovering in the hall, "some Cluquot, Jules! We'll have to drink to this. By gad! By gad! Kelly will like this, he will. I was afraid Rantoul had the inner track—too old, John—too old," he added, smiling and shaking his head. Gilbert Van Horn looked old, tired, as he led the way to the library. It had been a long pull. "You'll need a ring. Ring her, boy, ring her," he advised. Jules filled the glasses. "Here's good luck; Josephine and you." They stood and drank the wine in solemn silence.

"Thank you, Gil," John said simply. "How are you fixed? Money, I mean," the older man spoke with the ease of long friendship.

"I've enough," John answered, "I'll make more."

The talk of money seemed hateful to John. He was feeling let down from his period of exaltation; he wanted to get away, wanted to think.

"Good night, John, I won't come down," Van Horn held out his hand. He too wanted to be alone, to think. "Don't worry about money," he called. Josephine will have enough. It's a partnership, you know—" He waved his hand as John left, to walk uptown under the stars, up through the southern part of the park where he and Becca had tarried, and on, up to the flat opposite the shaft site. The more John walked the less certain he was of what might happen next.

This Woman Lost 45 Pounds of Fat

"Dear Sirs: For 3 months I've been using your salts and am very much pleased with results. I've lost 45 lbs., 6 inches in hips and bust measure. I've taken 3 bottles—one lasting 5 weeks. I had often tried to reduce by dieting but never could keep it up, but by cutting down and taking Kruschen I've had splendid results. I highly recommend it to my friends." —Mrs. Carl Wilson, Manton, Mich. To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning. To hasten results go light on fatty meats, potatoes, cream and pastries—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drugstore in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

JEAN HARLOW TURNS RED-HEAD TO TAKE LEAD IN "RED HEADED WOMAN" AT PALACE

"Red Headed Woman," Katharine Brush's widely-read novel of a stenographer who capitalized on her sex appeal, comes to the screen at last with Jean Harlow, her famous platinum-blond hair changed to a flaming red, in the title role. The picture will open Saturday midnite at the Palace Theatre.

Adapted by Anita Loos

The novel was adapted to the screen by Anita Loos, author of the sensational "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and was directed by Jack Conway, one of whose recent hits was the Barrymore picture, "Arsene Lupin." A stellar cast was lined up for the production, with Chester Morris of "Corsair" and "Miracle Man" fame, playing opposite Miss Harlow and with important roles filled by Lewis Stone, Leila Hyams, Una Merkel, Henry Stephenson, May Robson, Charles Boyer and Harvey Clark.

The story of "Red Headed Woman" concerns Lil Andrews, an unscrupulous but extremely attractive typist, who exerts her wiles upon her employer, Bill Legendre, despite the fact that he is a married man, with the upshot that Bill's wife divorces him and Lil becomes the second Mrs. Legendre. Not content with having broken up one home, the socially ambitious ex-stenographer now centers her attentions upon a wealthier man. It is impossible, however, for Lil to be faithful to any one man and when she attempts to double-cross her latest "flame" by having an affair with his chauffeur, complications begin and the clever Lil finds that she's got to be even cleverer if she's going to achieve her ends. Just how she does it makes up what is believed to be one of the most amusing and interesting plots used on the screen in some time.

Plateau Singing Convention Slated For Amherst Sunday

The Lamb county unit of the Plateau Singing Convention will meet at Amherst, Sunday, September 18, in an all-day program.

The organization, which is composed of a large section of the Western part of Texas and all of the state of New Mexico, meets in its various units semi-annually. Some of the very best talent in the two states attends these conventions, and the public is cordially invited to attend the one to be held at Amherst Sunday.

J. E. Brannen, Advisory Member for Texas and New Mexico, and Zed Robinson, president of the Lamb county unit, have released the following announcement with reference to the program and arrangement for Sunday's program.

"Amherst will not furnish a public spread but all are urged to attend and bring a lunch with them sufficient to invite singers coming from a distance to have lunch with them. You may go to your car and spread your lunch or form in groups. This is not Amherst's singing, but is a county-wide affair, and it is up to Littlefield and the other places in the county to help Amherst in caring for and entertaining the crowd. We always have a good singing at Amherst and we are expecting a good singing Sunday.

"Come one and all. Especially do we ask the people of Littlefield to do their part in this affair, which is not only state wide but includes New Mexico."

Call to Re-Enroll In Legion Auxiliary Made by President

All present members of the American Legion Auxiliary in Littlefield were urged to re-enroll for 1933 before Armistice Day in a stirring message sent out today by Mrs. W. D. Storey, President of the local Auxiliary Unit. Mrs. Storey also urged all eligible women to come into the organization to help carry on the Auxiliary's program of patriotic service during the coming year.

"America today stands in great need of the type of patriotic service which the Auxiliary is organized to render," Mrs. Storey stated in her message. "Enrolling in the Auxiliary for 1933 means enlisting for active service in a struggle for the maintenance of American ideals and institutions. Never before, in time of peace, have the principles of American democracy been so strongly assailed and never before have the patriotic women of the country needed so desperately to unite in their defense."

"During the past year the Auxiliary enrolled a total of approximately 410,000 women for service in the cause of democracy. During the coming year we should have half a million women actively enrolled. It is the duty of every mother, wife, sister and daughter of a World War veteran to be in the American Legion Auxiliary, going forward with the Legion in peace-time service to the cause which the men of the Legion served so well in time of war."

VERY LATEST
By Patricia Dow

Here is one of the most popular of the new fall dresses, a black rough crepe with a quaint jabot and tiny high collar of white, which with the full sleeves of the same material make for a black and white combination unexcelled in chicness. The white material can be of the new light-weight wool or satin.

The big feature of this dress, however, is the effect of the epaulette shoulder in the overdrape of black crepe. Fluttering to the breeze, this shoulder style accentuates the fashion line which gets all the early attention, namely, the wide shoulder.

The skirt is almost straight and the belt at the natural waistline. The hat is a shirred black crepe, trimmed in rolled or braided white satin—and to add smartness might be worn with a tiny half veil, worn loose.

Ladies Bible Class at the home of Mrs. J. C. Hilbun, Monday 3:30 p. m. Mid-week service, Wednesday 8 p. m. Despite the bad weather, there were 12 present last Wednesday night.

We urge all members of the church to attend all services and invite visitors at all times.

There will be a business meeting of the Church next Sunday evening. If you are a member of the Church you should be there.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH Sunday, September 18.

Sunday School—9:45. New members are being added to the school each Sunday. Let's do our best to bring in other new members this Sunday. This church should have five hundred every Sunday in Sunday school.

10:45—General assembly. Superintendent's Announcements.

11:00—Program of song. Choir, congregation, and special.

11:20—Announcements. Offering.

11:30—Sermon.

7:00—B. T. S. And still the B. T. S. workers call for help. Interested workers will find a great field for service in the B. T. S.

8:00—Evening worship.

Our revival is now history. We rejoice over the great meeting and are thankful for the thirty new members coming into our fellowship. Shall we stop here? Or will we keep the revival fires burning? There is much yet to be done. Will we do it? Rev. Nix did some wonderful preaching and has left with us some rich Bible truths. We may pass them on and help others or shut them out of our lives and forget them. This would mean all the revival efforts lost. May we use the opportunities now ahead.

Let us once again invite the public to worship with us. Our doors are open. You will not only find a welcome but a congregation that really appreciates your presence.

Texas Baptists Will Meet November 16

The executive board of the Baptist General convention of Texas meeting in Dallas, September 13, voted to change the date for the meeting of the Baptist convention from November 9 to November 16. The convention voted last year to meet in Abilene in 1932.

Plans were completed for the raising of $600,000 for missions and benevolences by means of the Every-member Canvass Campaign now in progress among the 490,000 Baptists of Texas. Dr. J. Howard Williams, executive secretary of the board, was placed in charge of the campaign and he has appointed 17 organizers in as many districts representing every portion of Texas.

The campaign will continue until October 30. The final week, October 23-30, is designated as pledge week, at which time every Baptist in the state will be solicited for a pledge to the $600,000 fund.

The money raised by this campaign is to be used by the Baptists for their work of missions and benevolences; every Baptist institution is to share in the funds, whether it is in Texas, in China or elsewhere. The proportion of the funds to go to each institution will be worked out at the meeting of the State convention to be held in Abilene, November 16.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Tabernacle Baptist Church has just begun a study of the book of the Revelation of Jesus Christ. There was a large crowd present last Tuesday night, and all seemed to get a great blessing from the study.

We will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights of each week. Everyone is invited to come and bring your Bible and we will study together just the plain, simple truths of the Word.

The pastor is teaching the book and is well qualified to do so.

We invite all to come to our Sunday school who do not go elsewhere. We meet each Sunday at 10 o'clock. We use the Bible only as our textbook. If you want to know your Bible, the Tabernacle Baptist Church is a good place to learn it.

The young people meet each Sunday evening at 7:30 for B.Y.P.U. and a good song service at the close before the preaching service. All are invited to come. If you like good singing, you can enjoy it and make it better if you will come and help. J. D. Evins, who has just surrendered to preach, will preach his first sermon Sunday night. Brother Evins is well known in Littlefield, having been in business here for some time.

METHODIST CHURCH

The time has come for a regular program in Church work, and we hope that next Sunday will be a real beginning for a long period of successful work.

Promotion Day is just about here in the Sunday School, and then comes Rally Day. We are expecting that the next few months will bring new members in the Sunday School and Church.

Next Sunday Brother E. E. White, Presiding Elder of the Plainview District, will be with us and preach at the morning hour and hold the Fourth Quarterly Conference at three o'clock Sunday afternoon. We trust every member of the Church will be present Sunday morning to hear Brother White, and then come back for the Conference in the afternoon.

The pastor will preach Sunday night, and as we enter into our regular Sunday evening services, every one be present.

The stranger and the unchurched will find a welcome in any and all our services. Come let us worship the Lord.

Joe E. Boyd, Pastor.

First Baptist Church Closes Successful Revival Meeting

The series of revival services, which have been in progress at the First Baptist Church for the past two weeks, was terminated with the service held Monday night of this week. Rev. J. F. Nix, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clovis, N. M., was the guest preacher of the local congregation for eleven days of the meetings.

In testimony of the worth of the special revival services and the efforts of the visiting minister, Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor of the local church, says:

"The First Baptist Church was privileged to have Rev. J. F. Nix of Clovis, New Mexico, for eleven days in revival services. Rev. Nix is in every way qualified for revival work. He is a man that loves God, his fellowman, and his denomination. The sermons of Brother Nix will be remembered for months to come by the large congregations that gathered to hear his messages. Brother Nix has been the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clovis for a period of ten years. He has also served his state on every board in the state work, serving the convention as its president for three years and the Baptist hospital as superintendent for one year. Though he has the largest church in the state, he can always find time to serve his denomination. The doors of the Littlefield church, as well as the doors of the homes of the membership of the church, will always be open to Brother Nix."

Dr. T. B. Duke and son, Carson Glass, left Monday for Dallas enroute to Austin where Carson will matriculate in the University of Texas for the next term. Dr. Duke will return to Abilene Sunday where he will join Mrs. Duke and son, Emery, who are visiting there this week. They will return to Littlefield Sunday.

TEXAS' COTTON YIELD IS ESTIMATED; PRODUCTION OF 141 POUNDS PER ACRE IS FORECAST BY GOVERNMENT EXPERTS

A Texas cotton yield this year of 141 pounds per acre is forecast by statisticians for the federal-state crop reporting service.

A yield of 141 pounds applied to 13,908,000 acres for harvest gave the state a forecasted production of 4,092,000 bales.

"The condition on Sept. 1," the report said, "is estimated at 61 per cent of normal, compared with 67 per cent last year and 52 per cent, the ten year average Sept. 1. The condition of 61 per cent indicates a yield of 141 pounds per acre, compared with 165 pounds last year and 126 pounds, the ten year average."

The report pointed out that the outcome of the crop would depend on weather conditions the rest of the season.

"The increase in forecast over August 1," the report explained, "is caused by the indicated increase in yield in the northwest, north, west, and west central portions of the state and by the fact that the prospective abandonment will not equal the ten year average which is assumed August 1. The abandonment is placed by our crop correspondents at 2 per cent compared with 3.6 per cent, the ten year average. The eastern third of the state, from the Rio Grande to Texarkana, shows a lower condition than the five year average, but the remainder of the state shows a higher condition than the five year average. Present conditions indicate an unusually high yield per acre in the northwest and west central districts."

The condition in the various districts was given as follows:

Northwest 75 per cent compared to 70 per cent last year; north, 59 per cent compared to 71 last year; northeast 53 compared to 71 last year; west 79 compared to 82 last year; west central 73 compared to 71 in 1931; east 57 compared to 65 in 1931; east 53 compared to 68 last year; south 53 compared to 53 last year, and southeast 44 compared to 72 last year.

Texas cotton production last year was 5,320,000 bales. More bolls per plant were reported safe September 1 than had been reported safe during any other year at the same time since 1925, with the exception of 1931. The indicated per cent of cotton ginned September 1 was less than any year since 1924 except for 1926 and 1931.

Modification of 7,000-Pound Truck Law to Be Sought

Modification of the 7,000-pound limit load law for commercial trucks will be sought at the next regular session of the Texas Legislature, according to Tom Jones, Dallas, president of the Texas Motor Transportation association. Mr. Jones states that "truck casualties in Texas have been increased recently by the passage of the 7,000-pound load law. By reducing the load that can be carried, the law has made it unprofitable to operate large trucks and has resulted in the placing of light equipment and 'junk' trucks on many of the highways. Much of this equipment is home-made, much of it is dangerously worn, and both types are unsafe for highway usage, especially in view of the common practice by such operators of loading this equipment far beyond its normal capacity. The Association hopes to remedy this condition to a large degree by securing a modification of the present law at the next regular session of the Legislature that will make it possible to use adequate equipment properly built to handle safely the loads carried and kept in first-class operating condition through regular overhauling."

Reduce Cost of Clothing

Lamesa.—The cost of dressing the family has been drastically cut by many Dawson county farm women, it is revealed in reports coming in from the different home demonstration clubs to Miss Rozelle McKenney, home demonstration agent. By budgeting expenditures, keeping accounts and using foundation patterns substantial savings have been made. Seven members of the Wilson club report a saving of $76.90 in making 64 garments for their families, and eight members of the Patricia club list total savings of $104.13 by using modern methods in making the family clothing. The foundation pattern is the device that has been most helpful in making clothing, these women say.

We now have a special arrangement whereby we can, for a short time only, give you the Leader and six magazines all for 1 year for $1.75.

Bullington Urges The Adjournment of Partisan Politics

Quoting the war president, Orville Bullington, candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, in an address in Wichita Falls, September 10, states that he believes "Woodrow Wilson was right when he declared that political parties can have no legitimate purpose except to serve the public welfare."

Although Mr. Bullington is a candidate on the Republican ticket, he states:

"I have repeatedly said that partisan politics must be adjourned. Although I am a Republican, I am a Texan first, and I would despise myself if I allowed any consideration of personal or partisan advantage to influence my course in the crisis which now confronts our State. My sole desire is to save Texas from the calamity which threatens it, and I am ready to make any sacrifice to that end, and I want to cooperate in every possible way with those who are working to accomplish the same purpose."

"I am proud of the fact that the people of Texas have demonstrated on many occasions that they put prin-

4-H CLUB NEWS

Sheep Help Boy To College
He started with a lamb as a 4-H Club projection in 1925 and today he has a fine flock. It consists of 12 ewes and a ram, and two show yearlings. That is the record in brief of Gladden Skinner of Tippecanoe County, Indiana. And next year this boy, 20 year old son of a thrifty tenant farmer, expects to increase his flock to 15 ewes. Then it is likely to remain stationary, for Gladden is going to Purdue University for a course in agriculture. But they have proven such a nice feature of the farm program in cleaning up weeds and in other characteristic ways that it is fairly certain they will be a permanent institution on this farm.

It is probable, too, that sheep will always have a warm place in the hearts of Gladden and his parents because the records they made for him in his seven years of sheep projects were important in helping him win a $500 scholarship at Purdue to start him off on a college career. Here are the reasons which Gladden has given, in a letter to Mr. G. L. Noble, managing director of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

"In the first place our pastures and fence corners and rows were very weedy," he writes, "and we had always heard there was nothing like sheep to keep foul growth down. And now we know it is true. We also wanted to increase our livestock, but without keeping more of the kind we already had. Also, we rent our farm and whatever I bought to raise, the feed would come from my father's share of the grain. Oats is the cheapest of the grains we grow, and it is also an ideal feed for sheep, especially ewes. So I figured sheep were a better thing for me than some other stock, especially when we had none."

Gladden started with Shropshires and his present flock is composed of purebred individuals of this breed. He chose them because they were a popular breed in his section, which meant a good sale for his surplus breeding stock, and they are also a general purpose animal. Success has not come without closely attending to business. In the seven years of lamb projects, Gladden has studied the habits of his sheep, studied the literature on sheep, learned all he could from sheeppen, and faithfully attended to the flocks, rain or shine. The last three years he has gone into beef calves and has made a fine record in that line. Gladden's success with sheep earned him the office of assistant director in the sheep department of the county fair.

Both in the Same Boat

Swift & Company has more than one hundred produce plants, where poultry, eggs and dairy products are bought, prepared and shipped to far-off markets. In each plant is an ambitious, hard-working local resident—the manager. In his community that man is "Swift & Company".

He has the producer viewpoint. He rejoices when prices are satisfactory to his patrons. In this his interest is selfish. He is in the same boat with the farm producer. His advancement in business, in his own organization, depends on how much produce he purchases and how well he handles it.

Your Swift produce plant manager strives for steady operation at full capacity; only under such conditions is his plant most efficient. He wants volume and full pay-rolls. Nothing pleases him better than to pay the cash price for more and more produce.

That price is governed by demand, by what consumers can and will pay. But when the local manager is ready to ship his prepared products, demand is not awaited; it is not left to chance. Swift & Company enhances demand for produce by advertising brands of high quality: Swift's Premium Milk-Fed Chickens, Golden West Fowl, Swift's Brookfield Butter, Eggs, Cheese and many other products.

An army of Swift & Company salesmen, working from 400 branch houses and along hundreds of car routes, search daily for bigger and hungrier markets. The local manager buys to supply those markets. Thus continually expanding outlets are opened up for the producer. The same army of salesmen sells both meat and produce. The same railroad cars transport both. Thus, costs of marketing are reduced for both livestock men and produce men.

Swift & Company has developed a national sales force and a national buying organization—striving to lower costs between the farm and the retail store. The personal welfare of each man depends on how well he does that job. That's why the charges for the service are low. Profits have averaged, over a period of years, less than a half cent a pound for all products sold.

Ma Is Nominated

Dallas, former national commander of the American Legion. The hall went into an outburst of cheering when Mrs. Ferguson stepped forward to speak. James E. Ferguson and the daughters, Mrs. George Nalle and Mrs. Stewart Watt, both of Austin, all were cheered as they rose to also cheer for "Ma".

Owsley told the convention that "Texas needs Jim Ferguson and Miriam; Texas will be true to them and they will be true to Texas."

"This is a great hour of satisfaction for those who followed them so long and so faithfully," Owsley said. Cal Owsley said he had waited six years for this moment and added: "I would be willing to wait a hundred years—this moment is so sweet."

"Yes, we are going to nominate Miriam A. Ferguson now for governor and we are going to elect her governor. And the guiding genius, mind and power with her will be none other than James E. Ferguson."

Mrs. Ferguson, in her speech of acceptance said she would be the "governor of all the people."

"I appeal to every patriotic citizen regardless of his political affiliations to my aside personal feelings and signify his willingness for general cooperation so necessary for the common good," she said. "Let me set the example by declaring here and now that I will welcome advice and counsel of every good citizen as to how best to carry on the affairs of government whether you voted for me in the election or not.

"Let me say to the opposition that I not only need your help, but want it, and I crave opportunity to show that I am to be the governor for all the people."

"I congratulate this convention upon its courage to carry out the will of the great Democratic masses of our state."

The Lamb county delegation, which was recognized by temporary chairman C. C. McDonald, was composed of Guy Willis, Olton, chairman; Otto Jones, Littlefield; Ben Ganns, Spade; Jack Sudbury, Earth; Joe Covington, Sudan; W. E. Love, South Sudan.

A large number of Littlefield citizens attended the convention sessions Monday and Tuesday.

"My visit to the recent called session makes me believe more than ever," senator-elect, Duggan states, "that the man who really desires sincerely to serve his state may do so in the Legislature. There is always an opportunity for the man who represents the people to spend every minute of his time working in their interest. That is my sole desire—to go to Austin to do some really constructive work in the Legislature for West Texas."

as saying. "This is due largely," Mr. Reed says, "to the 'do or die' spirit which seems to prevail among so great a majority of Lamb county people. They are not willing to sit idly by and wait for the return of prosperity; but, on the other hand, they are doing all within their power to help bring it about. It seems that the farmers and business men are trying to work just a little harder now than ever before, and I believe that the average farmer, and business man in this section will be in much better condition this fall in this section than in many other places."

Mr. Reed returned to Lubbock Monday night, where he remained during the convention, before returning to his home in Austin.

We Think

of the greatest needs of Littlefield and territory. That there is a big opportunity here for the developing of the canning industry. That we should take steps immediately to develop such an industry. We Think—That Commissioner Homer Hall has made a good suggestion. What Do You Think?

DISCUSSES THE IMPORTANCE OF CANNING FACTORIES

The Muleshoe Journal, of which Jess Mitchell is the editor, has this to say about canning factories: "The Portales, N. M., canning factory began operations September 1, employing more than 100 people. It is a payroll builder of the utmost importance to that city, distributing money where needed, and every dollar paid out in wages stimulates the general business of that city so much, also, affording farmers a market for tomatoes and adding much to their yearly income."

"Last year a canning factory was organized and financed in Muleshoe, but someone threw a monkey wrench into the gears and stopped it. That stopping was unfortunate for Muleshoe."

"Canning factories everywhere last year made good profits, indications this year are that they will make still greater profit. Muleshoe might have shared in that profit. From 50 to 100 people might have enjoyed added employment both last year and this."

"It was a very unfortunate occurrence that the factory idea here was held in abeyance. It should have been completed. It would have been a profitable industry both last year and this—and doubtless for years to come."

"The canning factory should again be considered here and its organization completed. Other small industries, also, could be secured here that would be invaluable to the town and its citizens. Just a little earnest cooperative action on the part of the citizenry would secure them. Why not go after them?"

SOUNDS LIKE BETTER DAYS ARE WITH US

Cattle sales during August on the South Plains were brisk, with good prices and a general upturn in market conditions, according to Lem Chesher, representative of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Good sound, common sense is expressed in a bank advertisement which appeared in the Crosbyton Review. Here's what the advertisement said:

"WHEN COTTON SELLS FOR 20 CENTS"

"If it ever does—we wonder how many of you in this territory will continue the 'Live at Home' program you have so profitably practiced for more than two years? We are told many times every day that this crop is being produced for less expense than any of former years. But who wants to subject themselves to the dire starvation methods which this depression's taskmaster has exacted? The experience of the past three years may be avoided in the future if we will continue—or approximately so—the very sane and conservative methods of the immediate past. Let's be careful in the future—what do you say?"

"Heavy Buying Puts Wool Prices Up," reads a headline in a daily newspaper.

The proper weight for a child of this age, according to the doctor books, is 16 1-2 pounds.

Mr. Griffin is a farmer. He moved to the Spade community in February, 1930, from Erick, Oklahoma.
