HAVE YOU SEEN THEM?

Luminous objects flying across the sky like the one in this picture have been sighted by many people from coast to coast since July, 1947. Al Hixenbaugh of the Louisville Times took this time exposure which shows the trail left by two of these mysterious objects. These "flying saucers" have a peculiar glow which seems to come from within and trace a straight path across the heavens. The Air Force said this week that so many flying saucer queries were coming across desks in the Pentagon that regular intelligence work is being hampered. One man in the Pentagon press relations section is working full time on the saucer queries. People in this atomic age just cannot be satisfied with seeing a good, old fashioned ghost anymore!

MRS. GUY DAUGHTERY MAKING OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

Mechanized Dairy Farm Pays Off In Lamb County

the days of the buxom with milk pail and stool—at least there shade of her to be and the completely dairy farm owned by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Daughtery three miles north west of Olton. The dairy is the only kind in Lamb county. A tidy, well-constructed block barn, one feels might have been asked for a comfortable living in this structure as you of a cow. The barn is divided into two front room or anteroom cooler, where the milk will pick up and the rack tubs or sinks where the milk is washed and sterilized. At each end of the room is the milking parlor. The milking parlor is also connected by a window—suitable for the living room. Both have concrete floors. The milking is done twice daily on every farm. Guy generally slipping off to call up the apparatus for his attractive wife, Glenda. parts of the milking apparatus soaked in a lye solution. Metal parts, the 10-gallon milk cans, in another disinfectant milking process. After all parts are rinsed with to prevent the formation of bacteria. The pre-milking that is given all the cuts down the bacteria count in the milk before pasteurization. Produces Certified Milk Milk from the Daughtery farm had the second lowest bacteria count among the forty-one Cloverlake Dairy producers when the last check was taken six weeks ago. Grade A milk is allowed a bacteria count of 100,000; Daughtery's bacteria was down to a mere 3100. This is low enough to rate his milk as Certified which is one grade above Grade A. Cloverlake Dairy is urging this producer to try for no-bacteria milk. The seemingly smallest details can reduce bacteria count for a producer. For this reason paper fiber strainers must be changed before every milking. One of the minute details checked by state inspectors is whether or not the flap is down on the filter box. The Daughtery farm lies the farthest away from Plainview of any of the Cloverlake producers. Their raw milk is picked up each morning by a truck from Plainview. Daily yield from the eight cows that are currently being milked is about 30 gallons. Last week's production totaled 1700 pounds. Milking Parlor Routine —The routine in the milking parlor is simple; the machinery and the cows take care of most of it. The concrete floor is washed down thoroughly so that any spilt milk will not stain it. The udders of the cows are washed, too. Two cows at a time can be milked by the machinery set-up. (Continued on back Page)

Colbert Furniture and Bedding Reopens For Business Monday In New Building

As a result of their rapidly increasing volume of business, the Colbert Furniture & Bedding at 5421 Hall Avenue found it necessary to completely remodel their building to give more space for larger stocks of furniture and floor coverings. They, therefore, moved their stock to a building in the rear of their premises, and have completely remodelled their building, re-roofing, installing a color-coordinated ceiling, and redecorating the structure. This concern will be open and ready for business Monday in the same location, but in a brand new building, and invite all their former customers to visit them and view the new fall furniture arrivals.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Clyde, Texas, where King had made his home a number of years. He came to Olton to be with his son six weeks ago and he was stricken with the fatal illness. Ancil Vinson King was born April 2, 1883, in Cleburne County, Ark. Roberts came to Littlefield in 1947 and stayed until March, 1949. As manager of the C of C, he was very popular and many people in the county still count Roberts among their good friends. Smith will assume his new duties September 1.

Olton To Have Two New Buildings

Construction began recently on buildings to be built by Len Irvin and Roy Granbery on the corner east of the State Bank at Olton. A brick shortage will probably hold up the completion of Len Irvin's new building, Loyd Baurz, contractor, said this week. The buildings could have been completed in three weeks if bricks had been available. Steel joists made at Olton already have been put in place, and the floor is being laid. The front and west side of the structure will be covered with buff-colored brick. The foundation is being poured this week for the new Roy Granbery building. The re-enforced concrete will be capable of supporting two more stories should the need for additional space arise. The construction site of Mr. Granbery's building is next to that being erected by Len Irvin.

Anton School Board To Meet Tuesday To Discuss Building Program

A meeting of the Anton School Board will be held Tuesday night, August 5, for the purpose of discussing the matter of a building program for the Anton schools. Anyone interested in this movement is invited to meet with the Board and enter the discussion. If there is any opposition to an enlargement program for the school, the Board wants to hear that opposition before such a motion is started. If there is anyone who thinks the Anton school has sufficient buildings to carry on the school activities, then the thing to do is for that person to meet with the board and say so. Otherwise they may decide the public favors such a move. The Anton Lions Club voted unanimously Monday night in favor of adequate housing facilities at the school, and a new building program if the board of trustees felt it was needed.

Rev. and Mrs. Vernon W. Robinson have been appointed by the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel to reestablish and pastor the local Foursquare Church.

DO YOU KNOW? People Hold Power Under Constitution

What Do You Know About the Constitution?

That's a fair question now that the Constitution has been making headlines once more. Questions and answers following are based on "Your Rugged Constitution" by Bruce Allyn Findlay and Esther Blair Findlay, Los Angeles educators, and published by Stamford University Press. The volume, written as an eighth grade text book, is being distributed by large and small business concerns to their employes throughout the nation.

1. Why was the writing of the Constitution of the United States undertaken as late as 1787?

Weakness Found
The Articles of Confederation, started in 1781, showed increasing signs of weakness. Delegates met to revise them; soon they decided to scrap the old.

2. What is the basic concept of the Constitution?

That sovereign power rests with the people.
3. What are the three main branches of federal government?
The legislative, executive and judicial.

4. Why are terms of members of the House of Representatives limited to two years?

Close To People
It is part of an effort to keep members of the house close to the people they represent.

5. What is the relation of the federal census, taken every 10 years, to the House of Representatives?

It is designed to avoid disputes over the number of representatives a state may send to Congress. States are informed after each census how many Representatives they are entitled to.

6. Why is the requirement for the election of two senators from each state contained in a clause which is part of "The Great Compromise"?

Because smaller states were afraid they would be dominated by heavily populated states. Equal representation in the Senate is a check against domination of smaller states by larger ones.

7. Why is the Senate sometimes called "The House that never dies"?

Two-Thirds Remain
Because Senators serve six-year terms, and only one-third of the Senate seats must be filled by elections every two years.

8. How are impeachment proceedings handled?
The House of Representatives alone can bring the charges. The Senate has the sole power to try the accused official.

9. Why does the Constitution set dates on which Congress shall meet each year?

Because Kings or their appointees had sometimes forbidden legislatures to assemble or had refused to call them into session.

10. What jobs are closed to a Congressman by the Constitution?
Appointment, during his elected term, to any job he may have helped create or whose salary has been increased during his time in office.

11. Where do bills for raising revenue originate?

In the House of Representatives; so that the people every two years could vote out of office Congressmen who don't handle tax bills the way the voters think they should.

12. Why does the Constitution limit the use of money appropriated for military purposes to a period of two years or less?

Congressional Control
The makers of the Constitution were determined that the military establishment should be under control of Congress.

13. In 1947, the Law of Presidential Succession was changed. What was the change and why was it effected?

The Law was changed to provide that the vice president should be succeeded by the Speaker of the House, and he should be succeeded by the president pro tempore of the Senate. Both of them are elected representatives of the government. Before that, a law stated that the vice president should be succeeded by the secretary of state and then in order by other members of the President's cabinet—all persons appointed by the President rather than elected.
14. Why did the Constitution-makers assign to the President the duties of commander-in-chief of the armed forces?
They provided a head of the armed forces who was elected by the people and prevented some non-elected head from seizing power.

15. What branch of the federal government is charged with promoting "the progress of science and useful arts," and setting up facilities to obtain patents?
The Congress.

Red Cross Issues Call For Nurses

The American Red Cross has issued an urgent call for registered nurses to serve during the polio season. Incidence of the disease so far this year is running 58 percent above the same period last year, according to statistics released by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"The demand for more nurses is particularly great in Iowa and Texas," according to Kay Fitzpatrick, Red Cross director of Nursing Services for the Midwestern Area. Most of the available nurses will be needed before the epidemic is over, she said.

"It is not our intention to drain nurses from other duty in which they are vitally needed," Miss Fitzpatrick said. She added that inactive registered nurses were particularly being sought.

Nurses recruited by the Red Cross are requested to serve for a minimum two-month period. Their salaries are paid by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The Red Cross recruits nurses at the request of the NFIP, the organization which provides expert polio care for all and meets the cost of treatment when family finances are inadequate. The Foundation will pay the cost of transportation to places of assignment and will provide maintenance in addition to salary while the nurse is serving in polio work.

Foundation figures show a total of 4,176 cases of polio in the United States since March. This compares with 2,644 last year. Last week 34 nurses recruited through Red Cross in the Midwestern Area were assigned to hospitals in Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, and Texas. The need is especially acute in Sioux City, Iowa, and Houston, Texas, where serious epidemics have been reported.

Nurses able to serve during the polio season should contact their local Red Cross chapter, Miss Fitzpatrick said.

The groom's father read the double ring ceremony in front of an archway of greenery flanked by basket arrangements of white gladioli and white tapers in candelabra. White satin bows marked the pews reserved for the two families.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Jane Wiley played traditional wedding music and accompanied Milton Wiley as he sang "Always," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of imported lace and tulle over white satin. The fitted bodice was designed with a lace scalloped-edge yoke and long tapered sleeves of lace fastened with tiny satin buttons.

Gown Has Train

Her floor length skirt swept into a train at back. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap seeded with pearls. She carried a fanshaped bouquet of stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Miss Edwina Inklebarger, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Jean Burman of Dunean, Oklahoma, Miss Carlene Sanderson of Shamrock, cousins of the bride and Joy Emmons and Dolores Park.

Attendants wore identically fashioned ballerina length gowns in pastel colors made of nylon net over taffeta. They were fashioned with full skirts, strapless bodices, and matching stoles. They wore short white gloves and headdresses of net. They carried bouquets of Shasta daisies.

Audie Wiley of Tahoka, brother of the groom was best man. Ushers were Roy Morgan of Lubbock and Arein Turner. Candlelighters were David Hutchins and Charles Park.

Reception Follows

A reception in the church recreation room followed the ceremony. The table was laid with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. The table was decorated with the brides bouquet and an arrangement of candles.

Mrs. J. D. Zahn of Houston, sister of the bride, served cake and Mrs. W. A. White of Lubbock, sister of the groom poured punch. Others assisting with hospitalities were Joah Way, Mrs. Doc Vann and Mrs. Jess Emmons.

For a wedding trip to New Mexico the bride wore a sheath dress and matching duster of champagne faille with black accessories and an orchid corsage. They will be at home in Lubbock where the bridegroom is employed.

The bride will resume her studies at Draughon's Business college in Lubbock. He will enter Texas Tech as a sophomore student this fall.

Home Sewing Stretches School Clothes Budget

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Fashion Editor

What with the high cost of practically everything, it's a wise mother who dusts off the old family sewing machine about this time of the year and starts turning out back-to-school clothes for the small fry.

There's a special sense of satisfaction in managing to trim the budget in any possible way these days, and particularly in producing smart, sturdy clothes for the youngsters at a fraction of the price of ready-mades.

Many teen-agers are learning to make their own clothes nowadays, enrolling in special teen classes at local sewing centers to learn how to cut and sew, adjust patterns and apply professional finishing touches. These thrifty girls have discovered that by sewing their own they can not only have more clothes, but can have them exactly the way they want them.

There's a special trick, for instance, in sewing the wool perseys so popular with all ages just now. Experts recommend using a size 14 needle for the machine, 12 stitches per inch for inside seams and 16 stitches per inch for top stitching jersey. Seams should be reinforced by double stitching, and puckering can be avoided by pressing all seams open. Before turning them, the garment should hang for 48 hours, to allow it to "give."

Quilting, also popular for school skirts and weekies, is easy to do with the quilter sewing machine attachment and its guide which keeps rows of stitching parallel.

When buying children's patterns,

Wonder World and On Bottom

 to me like underwear.
 About 15 feet down, I got the first real jolt when the pressure hit my ears. It was like all the devils in the world poking pins in my ear drums. I yelled on the inter-com—which connects the helmet with the crew above—for Glenn Bickford, tending the lines, to pull me up a bit. I got my ears adjusted and went on down. Finally, I was on the bottom.
 The solid, gently sloping sand was gone—replaced by a moving semi-fluid cushion which seemed to float away as you stepped through it to the hardness beneath. I was in a world of constant movement, of vivid spectral color and of huge, unearthly shapes. I quickly learned that there is no real quiet in the ocean. And no matter how gentle it may seem, that movement is accompanied by irresistible force. I started to climb over a house-sized boulder. Just as I reached the top, the gently swaying current changed and gently but irresistably lifted me off my rock and floated me back to the bottom. But with all the motion, and the weird surprising shapes, still it was the color which was most impressive and unearthly. The prismatic effect of the sun rays cutting through the water gave everything a luminous and vivid glow. Seaweed, a rope-like, stringy, dull brown stuff on the surface, took on rich and varying shades of green and purplish brown as the great strands constantly writhed and twisted in seemingly tortured movement. Great feathery ropes, apparently swinging out of nowhere, shed a pale green cast over the deeper chasms.

 At 40 feet down, the weight of the 25-pound lead sandals and the 70 pounds of weights laced to the breastplate were gone, nullified by the pressure. To enter a chasm you simply stepped into watery space and floated gently down.
 Starfish, which we know on the beaches as fairly dull looking creatures with half a dozen legs, took on seemingly limitless form and size and almost every color of the rainbow.
 Then, of course, there were fish. As I entered the deeper chasms they stared at me in seeming wonder and then moved unconcernedly away. Rich copper-red Garibaldi, big striped Sheepshead with cotton-white mouths, purple kelp bass, and scores of others I didn't know and couldn't afterwards describe were everywhere.

 So engrossed in my wonderings and the strange things beneath the surface, I even forgot to look for abalone.
 Finally it was time to come up. Tries Again
 The next day I dived again. Ignoring the wonderful moving weeds and the gaudy fish, I looked for abalone and actually, found a few. I found out, too, what happens when an abalone gatherer carelessly tosses the undersize ones back into the water. It's simple. Automatically, he's a dead abalone.

 For abalone, I find, are as prized by fish as they are by humans. And an abalone flipped out into the water automatically settles on his back, a helpless prey for ocean predators. I tossed one out a number of times, and after watching his futile efforts to turn over stepped back to see what would happen. In seconds the fish began to gather and swooped down like dive bombers to tear the meat from the helpless mollusc. He didn't have a chance, and the abalone men tell me that's the end of practically all tossed out in the water.

 Then it was time to come up again. I wanted to hunt more, but the crew thought I had enough, so up I came. With Tom Reviea, research crew captain, in charge of the diving boat, Glenn handling the air-hose and life line, and Pinky Thomas at the controls, I had working for me that day as good a diving boat crew as is on the Pacific coast, and it was their expert work which permitted me to prow here and there without direction and without getting fouled up. They knew what to do even if I did not.
 But in two short dives I learned a little more about the abalone, where they live and why the state is spending, and must spend, thousands of dollars to find out how and why they live and breed as they do and the ecology of their world.
 It is a big job which may result in saving a unique and valuable resource which abides in a wonderful, fantastic world just off our beaches.

Extension Specialist Warns Texans It Is Important To Know Poisonous Snakes

Someday your life may depend upon how quickly and accurately you identify a snake. Only four of the 103 species of snakes known in Texas are considered dangerously poisonous, says R. E. Callender, specialist in wildlife conservation for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He urges Texans to become familiar with these poisonous snakes so that positive identification can be made quickly in case a member of the family is bitten.

The four species of snakes that are poisonous are the rattlesnakes, copperheads, cottonmouth moccasins and the deadly little coral snake. Rattlesnakes are easily identified by their rattles; the copperhead by its chestnut-brown hour glass markings over light brown or brownish gray background color; the cotton-mouth moccasin is a dirty brown in color and is usually found around water—on old logs or driftwood and they can bite under water. The coral snake is the beauty of the group, but adds Callender, it's also the most deadly. Don't says the specialist, confuse it with the more commonly found king snake, because the mistake could be fatal. The color rings of the coral snake are red, yellow and black and completely circle the body and if the red ring touches the yellow, you've found a coral snake. Treat him with care.

Fangs for ejecting the poison are common to all poisonous snakes. The marks left by the fangs are a sure identification sign. The venom injected by the rattlers, copperheads and water moccasins is known as hemotoxic venom; because it affects the blood cells. The coral snake, on the other hand, injects a neurotoxic venom and it affects the nervous system. Antivenins, which are available at most drug stores, are ineffective for treating the bite of the coral snake. Snakes can be discouraged from moving in on the home lot, says Callender, by keeping the place clean. Rubbish should not be allowed to accumulate and trash should be removed for such debris about the place is usually inhabited by rats and mice. These rodents are favorite food for snakes and unless kept under control, snakes will move in to clean them up.

Here's a word of advice from Callender on what to do in case a person is bitten by a poisonous snake. Keep the victim quiet; don't let them walk, become over-heated or take alcoholic stimulants. Don't cauterize the wound with strong acids nor inject potassium permanganate. Get the victim to a doctor as soon as possible but first aid measures will help. Apply a tourniquet above the bite and make cross-cut incisions at bite and on to the advancing edges of the swelling. Apply suction with the mouth or a suction cup but release the tourniquet every 15 minutes to keep up circulation. Inject antivenin, if available, as soon as possible. After the injection, release the tourniquet and continue the suction. In the meantime have the patient on the way to a doctor or the doctor on the way to the patient.

Callender warns that hunters and campers should never go to the woods without a snake bite kit. He urges home owners to keep their premises clean and to be on the look out at all times for the poisonous snakes. All except the rattler strike without warning—and the rattler sometimes does his biting before sounding off—so the safe thing to do is stay out of the way of all snakes and encourage them to stay out of your way.

Arvel Morton Is Injured In Freak Mishap

Arvel Wayne Morton, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morton of Oklahoma Flat sustained severe lacerations of the right foot Wednesday morning.

According to his father, Arvel had been swimming in a large cement horse trough about 11 a.m. When he jumped in to look for a pair of swimming goggles he had been using, his foot struck a rusty can in the bottom of the trough.

The young boy was treated for the injury and tetanus infection early in the afternoon at Payne-Shotwell Foundation and released.
