REPLANT OR NOT?

Cotton Outlook Somewhat Dim

Stadium Gets New Pressbox

Work has begun on a new east side pressbox for the Littlefield High School stadium. The old pressbox has been torn down and will be rebuilt to approximately twice the size of the original. Dimensions of the new structure will be about 40 feet long and 8 feet wide. School board officials feel the new pressbox will provide much better facilities for visiting football scouts and area newsmen who come to football games this fall.

The old building, according to board members, was definitely inadequate and even uncomfortable for visiting scouts. They complained of not having enough room to work in. The new structure will be supported underneath by steel, and will be constructed of 2 x 4 and 2 x 6 lumber framework and covered on the outside with 105 outside type siding. The inside walls will be covered with sheetrock.

Board members say as much old material as possible will be utilized in an effort to keep cost of the structure as low as possible. An estimate of $700 has been made for the cost of the new pressbox.

Old lumber and some of the old siding can be used in the new structure, they said.

The new pressbox will have a counter running the whole length of the building, for scouts and writers to put their typewriters, scorepads and telephones on. The front will be glassed in. Additional desks for typewriters can also be made available.

The public address system will remain on the west side of the stadium, which is the home team side.

School board officials say the new pressbox will aid the football team in getting better press coverage and scout observation, because the visitors will have an adequate place in which to work. The structure should be finished sometime in August, and be ready for the football games this fall.

In other school-related news, the board reports the completion of water wells at the football stadium and on the Littlefield High School campus. The well at the stadium will be harnessed with a 10-horsepower pump and will be adequate for irrigation purposes at the stadium.

The two wells on the high school grounds have been completed and the wells are being set this week. The wells report (See Stadium Page 10)

TRASH PICK-UP -- Employees of the Littlefield City Department remove trash from an alley in the south part of town this week as the clean-up campaign moves steadily ahead. The city trucks will pick up trash in all sections of town at designated times. The men are (L-R) John L. Young, in front, Danny Jones and Curtis Terry.

Clean-Up Task In First Week

The clean-up campaign got underway Monday, with city trucks picking up trash in alleys in the south part of the city. Trucks will be making the rounds in this part of town all week, looking for piles of trash accumulated by residents of the area.

Everywhere one looks this week in this section of town, city trucks are loaded heavily with dead trees, grass, rotten lumber, and all types of debris.

And the Boy Scouts now are handling out handbills in the second section of town, which roughly is the northeast area. Indications are that the clean-up efforts are going well. At least the city trucks have been hauling load after load of trash from the alleys.

The trucks will move on to the second designated area next Monday, so residents in the first section need to make sure all their accumulated trash and debris is picked up, and residents in the second section should start preparing for the trucks.

FIRST WEEK

Industrial Corporation Picks Up Six Members, $4000

After one week of work on the drive to raise additional funds for the Littlefield Industrial Corporation, committee chairman Troy Arnes said Wednesday morning that over $4000 in cash and pledges had been added to the corporation's funds.

Arnes said because of vacations and sickness the committee members have not gotten to call on their list of prospects, but stated he had every conviction that the needed funds would be raised.

Some of the new stock holders added to the list include, Western Auto, Norma's Dress Shop, Luce and Nelson Implement, Hubert Henry, Pratt's Jewelry, Hart-Thaxton Hardware, Onstead Furniture, C.D. Stafford, and Plains Real Estate.

The corporation is making every effort to raise an additional $50,000 in cash and $100,000 in pledges to be used in helping present Littlefield industries develop and new industry to locate in the area. At the present time the corporation is negotiating with one project, and the industrial development committee of the Chamber of Commerce is working with several prospects.

When the needed money is raised it will be used to develop a 33 acre industrial tract, owned by the corporation. Included in the plans for development of the land is utilities, rail sidings, paving and sewage facilities.

The prospect now working out arrangements with the corporation has indicated that when he comes to Littlefield, he would purchase, on a lease purchase arrangement, 10 of the tract's 33 acre site, and would erect a plant employing 25 to 30 people with an annual payroll in excess of $100,000 in the first year.

Arnes told his workers he realized the drive to raise the funds would be difficult, since industrialization has been slow in coming to the area, but he pointed out we are ahead of several other cities of the same size. As an example of the progress Littlefield has made he cited the experience of Sulphur Springs which supported an industrial corporation for five years before landing an industry. Today Sulphur Springs has over one dozen new industries, with three employing several hundred people. Littlefield on the other hand has only had an industrial corporation since 1963, and is now talking with several prospects. One of which has indicated his intentions to build in Littlefield. Sheriff's Posse Supper

The Lamb County Sheriff's Posse is sponsoring an old-fashioned box supper June 28 at 8 p.m. in the Lamb County Electric Co-op. Everyone is invited to attend and each couple is to bring a box of food. No admission will be charged and drinks will be furnished.

Cotton farmers in some parts of Lamb County have a difficult decision to make this week -- whether or not to replant their storm-damaged early cotton.

Some parts of Lamb County received heavy hail and rains in last week's storm, leaving thousands of acres of cotton severely damaged.

Buddy Logsdon, county agricultural agent, estimated about 15,000 acres of cotton were almost destroyed in the Spade-Oilton area as a result of the storm.

He said most growers in this area probably will replant, because their damage was so extensive.

"They will have to do something, and do it fast," he said. "They can leave the damaged cotton for a while and see if it comes out, or they can replant, and hope for a late frost, or they can replant in soybeans."

Logsdon said the hail also pounded areas around Amherst, though possibly not as severely as in other parts of the county.

Neither Logsdon, the Farm Bureau of the Agricultural Stabilization office would give dollar and cents estimates of the damage.

"It still is early for such an exact estimate," said Logsdon. "ASCS officials said it would be extremely difficult at this time to make money damage estimates, and said they hardly knew how to begin figuring the damage."

Most of the grain sorghum in the county still is in good shape, unless it was completely flattened by the storm. Agricultural officials figure there will be little replanting of grain, and maybe none at all.

The ASCS office reported the hardest hit parts of the county as the Spade-Oilton-Amherst areas.

West and south of Spade a strip of cotton 10 miles in length and more than a mile in width was flattened by the hail, and south of Oilton a similar path, 4 miles long and one and a half miles wide was severely damaged.

West of Earth and north of Amherst the crops were severely damaged, also, and some were almost destroyed. The ASCS office says the cotton production in the county probably will be considerably off from last year. There should be much less, and a poorer grade. If growers replant, there is a good chance that the cotton won't mature before the frost, or if it does mature, it may be of a poor grade, the ASCS says.

They report that some growers' last year replanted the last of June, and their cotton did fairly well, but there is a big gamble involved.

The growers can replant damaged acreage in soybeans, which is a fast maturing crop, and still receive the price support payment for the cotton. They receive the support payment for seeding the cotton; whether it reaches maturity or not often does not matter.

If the ASCS office declares that it is too late to replant, and they have, then growers can get the payment, and replant soybeans or some other fast maturing crop and harvest it.

But many county farmers cannot decide what to do. Some in the Spade area have already started replanting their damaged cotton, and some have started planting soybeans. Others have merely plowed the acreages and are letting it sit for awhile, to see if it comes out. Buddy Logsdon says if the hail did not knock the top or bud off the young cotton then chances are good the plant will come back out. If the bud has been destroyed, it will be no good.

Some authorities point out that if the growers replant, taking a chance on an early frost, their loss per acre could be as little as $40. And if they do not replant, losses may be much higher, even $100 per acre.

The Slumtown Symfunny played many songs, most of them "oldies but goodies." They performed such old-time favorites as "San Francisco," "My Blue Heaven," and "Sunny Side of the Street."

WITH MARS

Leader-News Arranges For Viet Nam "News"-Grams

Through cooperation with the Military Affiliate Radio Stations, (MARS), the Lamb County Leader and County Wide News, has made arrangements for its readers to send free messages to friends and relatives serving in Viet Nam, or any place in the world.

Under the arrangements the MARS station at Reese Air Base will, in cooperation with other MARS stations send personal and morale building messages to service men over seas, at no cost, and ask only that the messages be confined to 25 words or less.

According to a spokesman of the Reese MARS station, the messages would be sent out of Reese at the earliest possible time, following receipt, and would be delivered as soon as possible. The local station representative said this arrangement applied only to land based operations. Messages to individuals stationed aboard ship could not be delivered, via MARS. The messages which can be sent can be of any nature, other than emergency, since neither the News-Leader or the MARS organization can assure delivery.

When the messages are received by a MARS station in Viet Nam they will be decoded and delivered to the individual over the telephone, whenever possible.

The MARS network said they could not say how long it might take for the message to reach the person to whom it was addressed, but stated they would deliver the NEWS-GRAM as soon as possible. Complete information on the sending of a NEWS-GRAM, along with a form is included in today's issue of the Lamb County Leader. The Sunday News will also carry complete information and form.

Dave Kucifer, General Manager of the Littlefield Publishing Company said the form received would be forwarded to the nearest MARS station once or twice a week to insure that the messages were sent promptly.

Tuberculosis Association Organized

The Lamb County Tuberculosis Association was organized Tuesday and co-chairmen for a local advisory council for the county were named.

Mrs. Bess Coen, Littlefield, and Miss Leta Bell of Olton, were named chairmen for the newly formed association, which is a part of the West Texas Tuberculosis Association.

Within the next few days the chairmen will appoint three committees -- publicity, volunteer workers and seal sales-- to carry out the work of the county organization.

Mrs. Ella Herriage, assistant program director of the West Texas Tuberculosis Association in Lubbock, spoke before area school nurses, citizens and school officials and explained the method of organizing the association on a local level. She said the purpose of the meeting Tuesday was to organize an advisory committee for Lamb County and get it started in local tuberculosis work.

Local tuberculosis associations, she said, serve the purpose of interesting and educating area residents in the prevention, diagnosis and cure of the disease.

Mrs. Herriage said there will be a workshop for nurses interested in the tuberculosis program on July 21 at the First Christian Church in Lubbock. Dr. Roger Smythe, state health department, will speak at that meeting.

Also attending the Tuesday meeting here was Paul I. Jones of Littlefield, a director of the West Texas Tuberculosis Association.

Brenda Wilkinson Submits Ice Cream, Brownie Recipes

Home made ice cream is a favorite dessert this time of year and goes well at a backyard barbecue, club meeting or bridge party. Brenda Wilkinson was gracious enough to share her favorite recipe for home made ice cream with us. She secured the recipe from her mother-in-law. It may be plain or fruit or peppermint sticks may be added. Brenda explains that although she usually doesn't care for peppermint, she really does enjoy the peppermint ice cream and has received many compliments on it.

Brenda is also sharing her favorite brownie recipe. It is quite different from most brownies and everyone that eats them wants the recipe. This reporter was lucky enough to sample them and can truthfully say "they are delicious".

She enjoys sewing and cooking and likes to try out new recipes. Dutch enjoys outdoor sports such as golf, fishing, hunting and water skiing.

They both like to play bridge and they are members of a night bridge club. Brenda also is a member of an afternoon bridge club and is scrapbook chairman of the Tau Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Dutch is a member of the Lions Club.

THE FAMILY LAWYER
Many Facts
The shape of the artist's chisel, cuts away the original block all that remains.
Something similar happens in a trial. The issues take shape as the lawyer, wielding the rules of evidence, seeks to cut away whatever is irrelevant—facts that are not "relevant" to the case. The purpose is to move those facts that are not relevant, the better to see those that are.
Which facts are relevant? Basically a matter of common sense, and to the circumstances of the individual case. Thus, in a trial, the fact that the defendant owned a gun might well be relevant—but not if the slaying was done with a dagger. For then, the ownership of the gun would have no logical connection with the slaying.
Even if there is a connection, a fact may be held irrelevant if the connection is too slight. Consider the following examples:
In an assault case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant was found drunk—a considerable time after the crime had been committed.
In a theft case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant had used profanity.
In an abduction case, the court ruled out evidence that the defendant knew a man who had a record.
Each of these rejected facts might be interesting enough as a conversational tidbit. But none of them shed much light on the case before the court. Worse, they could easily have had a prejudicial effect on the minds of the jury.
To the person on the witness stand, it is often frustrating to be ruled in by rules of evidence. The instinct may be to tell his story in wide-open style, just as he would at the dinner table.
But, besides the danger of prejudicing the jury, there is the practical necessity of curbing people who can't seem to stick to the point. Too many witnesses resemble the fellow of whom Abraham Lincoln once said:
"He can compress the most important facts into the smallest ideas of any man I ever met."
With people like that turned loose on the witness stand, the chances of justice might never get better.

Selective Service System Obsolete

The popularity of the military draft parallels the popularity of this war; nobody likes either.

Several Senate Democrats and many House Republicans are now urging a major overhaul of Selective Service, including consideration of whether it should be abandoned altogether.

The census of many is that we now need a permanent army of professional soldiers rather than a rotating enlistment of amateurs.

A nation which rejects the idea of raising money with a "national lottery" as improper, immoral and unbecoming — nonetheless perpetuates this Selective Service "lottery" for raising an army.

The Selective Service System has not been reexamined by Congress for fifteen years. During that time our population has increased by 26 percent and our draft-age population by 95 percent.

During that time, every military conflict in which we have been engaged has proved our old weapons and old tactics are now outmoded, antiquated, obsolete, ineffective.

Gradually, if belatedly, official Washington is recognizing that American mothers cannot bear enough boy babies to match the limitless hordes of Asia one man at a time. Our nation's future safety will rely on technology and technicians.

The talents of modern military establishment requires necessitate an overhaul of procedure procedures and an upgrading of military pay and facilities.

Some present Government standards for housing enlisted men are lower than for convicts.

Military pay is conspicuously inequitable from top to bottom. Civilian "lieutenants" in our Government welfare programs are receiving higher salaries than General Westmoreland who commands our forces in Vietnam.

Chairman of Draft Board 24 in Chicago, Mr. Morton W. Witlin, says the present system of maintaining four thousand draft boards is unnecessarily expensive, that "this appropriation could better be applied to increase salaries for military personnel. If military pay scales were increased to provide added incentives for enlistment, I truly feel that enough men would enlist to make this cumbersome draft machinery unnecessary."

Draft Director General Hershey, understandably in no hurry to liquidate the job he has held through four wars, says, "The present system is the best way of meeting the national defense. It is no more unfair than our tax system."

That corollary, however appropriate, is unlikely to persuade many that this is "the best way."

Some protest that the present draft amounts to "capital punishment for bad grades." Others say it "discriminates" against underprivileged groups.

But Princeton's President, Robert Goheen, thinks we should go further — and spare from the draft the most gifted students, "such as majors in mathematics."

So the more "patches" we consider, the more conclusive it appears — that the Selective Service System should be abandoned.

That the similarly archaic military concept of masses of marching men should be abandoned.

And that we should establish a permanent, professional Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, and Army. And, at the same time, adopt the kind of "drive-it-or-park-it" foreign policy which would inspire allegiance.

INDUSTRIAL

Armes said that after the contract is signed with this prospect, he expected the task of raising the funds to get easier, but said now is when the money is needed, now when we have the prospects. "It's some what like the chicken and the egg story, except in this case it's the money that must come first."

Like Armes, Jack Wicker, president of the corporation said he felt the money would be raised in plenty of time, but pointed out the critical need existing now. Wicker said, "We can only do what we have the funds to do. If we do not have the money to provide the assistance, then it is likely that we will not be successful in getting any industry. This applies to the industries with which we are now talking, as well as with any future prospect."

Chamber of Commerce president Arthur Duggan added his voice to those of Armes and Wicker by encouraging that all chamber members join in the fund raising drive. Duggan said, "The industrial development committee of the chamber can develop the prospects, but when it comes down to the financing of the industries we must turn them over to the corporation. We are only one part of a team, which is dedicated to the progress of the area, and will be as successful as the people of the area allow us to be."

The drive to raise the funds will continue until all means of raising the needed money have been exhausted, and the goal has been reached, Armes told the Leader. "We know we can do it, and feel it will only be a matter of time until more than $150,000 comes in."

tedly will create a savings in the irrigation expenses at the high school and stadium.

The football stadium well will pay for itself this summer, say officials, and the high school wells should pay for themselves also this year. Board members anticipate a savings over drawing water from the city system.

COTTON

ten the noose on the grower's hopes of salvaging anything. So, with outlooks for grain sorghum still good, the cotton growers must make up their minds what to do.

Their avenues of escape are to replant in cotton, replant in soybeans, leave their damaged crops and hope they'll come back out or plow it under and wait.

If the weather remains favorable and there is no rain for a while, then growers can begin to see exactly what must be done, and also more accurate damage estimates can be made.

This perhaps would have been a very good year in the county for cotton, but now the growers must wait and see how much below par the crop will be.

Figure it up. By the time you're 65, you'll have earned a tidy fortune. But, you'll probably have spent most of it, too. So, between now and then, you should provide for an income upon reaching retirement age, plus protection for your family if you should die before then. Our retirement plans are designed to accomplish both for as little as $1 a week. Questions & Answers

Q - I am a railroad employee who is 67 years old and I plan to retire in 1967. I am also a veteran of World War I. My railroad retirement benefits will be about $200 a month and the benefits for my wife will be about $75 for a total monthly income of $275. This will be my only source of income. Am I correct in assuming that this $275 will not be considered as income when applying for a WW I veteran's pension?

A - All income received during the year is counted by the VA when determining a veteran's eligibility for a non-service-connected pension. This includes wages, salaries, dividends, interest, profits, annuities, pensions, Social Security payments, etc.
