BOB BADGER TO SEEK MEMBERS FOR ROAD GROUP

Organization Is To Work In Interest of State Highways

Bob Badger has been named representative of the Texas Goods Roads Association of this territory, it was announced by the local Chamber of Commerce at the Tuesday luncheon of that body.

The membership drive is already underway in this section, Mr. Badger stated. Every citizen is eligible and urged to become a member of the association.

A small charge of fifty cents will be made for membership fee which will be used in an effort to hinder the present two-cent gasoline tax now being used for the construction and maintenance of state highways from being used for other state funds as is now being planned.

Persons interested in membership in the association are requested to see Bob Badger at the Yellow House Land company.

Legion Auxiliary Has Interesting Meeting Monday

A regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held Monday evening in the Legion Home.

Mrs. W. D. T. Storey, the president, presided, and a business session was held, wherein a favorable report was made by Mrs. Max Touchon on the fruit sale recently held by the Auxiliary. A report was also made to the effect that three quilts have been sent to the Veteran's Hospital and Children's Welfare Center at Legion, which completed the work of the Quilt Committee, of which Miss Erna Douglass was chairman. One of the quilts was donated by Mrs. Sally Strange, while two were pieced and quilted by Auxiliary members.

Mrs. T. Wade Potter, Finance Chairman, presented a plan for each member of the organization to make a dollar by her own efforts, which amount will go to the Auxiliary Treasury. The plan was unanimously adopted.

A beautiful hand painted picture was presented to the Auxiliary by Mrs. Touchon. The picture which was painted by the donor, is to be sold, and the proceeds go to the Treasury.

Following the business session an interesting lesson on Americanism was led by Mrs. Neal A. Douglass. Refreshments of sandwiches, wafers and coffee were served to members of both the Auxiliary and American Legion members.

would not receive any state money for children not enrolled in school.

An example of the effect of the legislation is contained in the total scholastics and the total enrollment of the Littlefield schools.

The Littlefield schools have an enrollment of approximately 1400 and the total scholastics for the district are 2266.

If the proposed legislation carries, and the enrollment of the Littlefield schools was not increased, then this school district would receive between $10,000 and $12,000 less from the state than at present.

Immense Growth Cited for This Section

Manager of Yellow House Land Company Says Purchase of Land Here to Increase With Farm Commodity Prices

An immense growth for this section of the South Plains, with the purchase of farm lands as an outstanding feature, will occur with the return of better prices for farm products, according to W. H. Badger, manager of the Yellow House Land Co.

Present prices for farm products, while a handicap, are by no means totally menacing the progress of this section, as regards farming, Mr. Badger stated.

"There are more people than ever before who are trying to rent farms in this section of the South Plains," said Mr. Badger. "In fact," he added, "there are more people who want to rent farms than there are farms."

Desirable Tenants Available
"The applicants for farms to rent are, for the most part, very desirable tenants; men who have farmed all their lives and who know how to farm. Some of those who desire to rent farms are men who left the farm when the cities were booming, but who now desire to return to the land because they know that farm life offers them many advantages that are not enjoyed by urban residents.

"There are great numbers of farmers who would like to buy land at this time, but who are prevented from carrying out their wishes on account of shortage of funds. With the return of better prices for farm products, which will improve the economic condition of the entire country, there will be a movement to the land which will give this country a new, rapid and substantial growth; the kind of progress of which we will all be very proud.

Want to Live on Plains
"When better prices for farm products arrive we will not have to hunt buyers for South Plains land; the people want to come to this section to live. The records show it to be the best diversified farming section in Texas, lands are cheap, produce more, and can be cultivated at less cost than in any other portion of the state.

"This section of the country is in excellent shape, considering general economic conditions, and in immensely better shape than any other part of the state. That is a matter of much encouragement, and gives this section a wonderful foundation on which to build for the future. With such a foundation this country, with the return of better general conditions, will go forward rapidly and in a substantial way.

"In the interests of our country, our state, and ourselves, we must all do, day by day, the best that is within us, seeking to place ourselves in the best possible condition from every standpoint."

LOCAL CAGERS TO MEET SPADE FRIDAY NIGHT

Boys' and Girls' Teams Will Compete Here Friday Night

Some of the local season's best basketball will be witnessed Friday night beginning promptly at 7:30, in the high school gymnasium when the Littlefield Wildcats and Kitties encounter the boys and girls respectively from Spade school.

Although these teams have met several times this season, any decision as to which are superior has not been made. The Wildcats have met the Spade boys on three occasions during the present season, the resulting scores only creating more tense rivalry between them. Realizing that much hinges on Friday's game, Coach Tucker and his cagers are training with determination for a decisive victory over these strong rivals.

Like the boys' team, the Littlefield Kitties have met the girls from Spade several times this season, but neither team has been able to declare itself stronger. A resume of games will clearly indicate the importance of Friday's game for the girls.

Drs. Simpson and Sutherland Are Moving Offices

County is Without Funds To Secure Land For Right-of-Way

A copy of the order creating a north and south highway through Littlefield and other cities, which was issued last week by the State Highway commission, has been received from Senator Arthur P. Duggan by County Judge Simon D. Hay.

The Lamb county commissioners court announced Monday that the county was without funds with which to purchase the right-of-way for the widening of the new north and south highway through the county, and that the new highway would only be made possible through the necessary land being donated by property owners for the widening of the road.

The new highway, a part of which was designated some time ago, will serve the territory between Chan-

GOVERNMENT TO AID FARMERS WITH LOANS

Thousands of Dollars Available; Sufficient Funds To Supply Need

A total of 57 applications for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Credit corporation have been received by the local committee in charge of approving loans from the organization, it was announced late Wednesday by J. C. Hilburn, member of the district committee.

Mr. Hilburn stated that the government was furnishing sufficient funds to supply all the needs, provided the applicant had sufficient collateral to secure the loans. The loans will be secured by implements, livestock and crops. It is not necessary that the landlord waive his lien before a tenant can obtain a loan as in the case of the feed and seed loans.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans are made for general purposes, such as paying debts, buying implements and securing anything that the farmer might need.

Mr. Hilburn was unable to estimate the amount of money that would be released in this section, stating that it depended on the amount of applications that were approved. He stated, however, that it would run into thousands of dollars.

Applications for the loans are being received by Mrs. B. Webster, at the First National Bank, Littlefield. Jesse Seale has been appointed inspector.

Urge Citizens To Furnish Day of Work for Jobless

In an effort to help solve the unemployment situation in the city, a motion was carried at the Tuesday's luncheon of the local Chamber of Commerce urging every person who could possibly do so, to furnish at least a day's work to some unemployed person in the city.

F. G. Sadler, who is serving on the committee in charge of the funds furnished for labor by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in making the motion stated that this month's funds were practically exhausted, and that some step must be taken locally to tide over those out of work in the city until more money could be received from the corporation. More funds will not be received until after March 1, it was stated.

Every person who can possibly give a day's labor to the unemployed are requested to notify Mr. Sadler at Sadler's Drug Store.

Persons receiving the work must qualify under the same conditions as required by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, making it impossible for the applicant to be eligible unless he has been a citizen of Littlefield for at least one year.

Suggests Tree Planting
Mr. Sadler stated that, according to authorities, this is the best season of the year to plant trees, and suggested that much employment could be given in that way.

The quilt made by the Home Economics Club girls and being displayed at Cuened's Store, will be given away Saturday, February 25, at three o'clock.

NEW EMPLOYMENT PLAN INAUGURATED BY R. F. C.

The committee in charge of distributing the Reconstruction Finance corporation funds in Lamb county worked out a completely new plan in giving employment.

Before securing employment from the committee the applicant must fill out an application and release form which requires that he be a bona fide citizen of Lamb county, that he is unemployed, cannot get employment, and is without income from any source for support. The applicant also is required to list the persons absolutely depending upon him for support.

In the release clause the applicant waives all claims for damages to himself or his property in order that the employer be released from all liability.

All applications made by persons under 21 years of age must be signed by the parents of the applicant.

A card system has also been worked out by both the county Federal relief and Red Cross committees. This enables the committees to keep a complete record as to the amount of work given each person employed, where they worked and the satisfaction given. A record is also kept by the Red Cross on the amount of clothing, foods and other supplies each person receives as well as the number of dependents.

KEEPING LAMB COUNTY MONEY AT HOME

(From The Vision, published in Littlefield by Dr. Ira E. Woods)

In the final analysis the prosperity of an individual, or a city, or a county, or a state, depends on one or the other of two things; income must at least equal expenditures or there must be an unlimited cash reserve. In either case having plenty of cash at all times on which to operate is the essential matter. As applied to a particular section of the country, say Lamb county for instance, where a great deal of money must constantly be flowing out of the county for things not produced here the flow of money into the county must be kept at as high a point as possible in order to maintain the proper balance. To accomplish this we must produce as great a variety as possible of marketable goods, both agricultural and manufactured. These products being sent to other sections in exchange for cash help to balance our income against our outgo. At present the flow of cash is always out of this territory, except for two or three months in the fall when our cash crops are being marketed. And that is the reason business conditions are so much better during that time. At the present low prices this year's crop brought nearly two millions of dollars into Lamb county and business was good. Now if that two millions could be kept here the year round we would have Fall business the year round. The same would be true, of course, if this high income could be maintained throughout the year.

Now it seems to me just a matter of good business sense to keep every dollar that it is humanly possible to keep at home circulating in Lamb county and helping to make a more prosperous Lamb county instead of helping to create prosperity in some other section to the detriment of our own territory and our own selves. This "Trade at Home" slogan is not at all a matter of sentiment, it's just good business, and it's just plain business suicide to do otherwise. I contend that I can afford to pay more for an article in order to buy it at home rather than send my money away. If it stays here I get it back and spend it over and over. If I sent it away its gone till next fall and maybe longer.

A little later we may decide to give a few concrete examples to show where money could have been kept at home at a saving to the one making the purchase and where he would have got the money back in just a few days and been able to spend it again.

Palace Theatre to Feature "The Crash" Tuesday, Wednesday

A Ruth Chatterton picture is always an event in this city. The coming of her second First National picture, "The Crash" to the Palace Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday next will be no exception to this rule.

The showing of "The Crash" here will be especially interesting from three standpoints. First, it presents Miss Chatterton in a fine, dramatic role well suited to her talents.

Second it is a timely story, bearing upon the effects of the stock market crash. Third, it brings again to the screen here the most sensational young leading man in pictures, George Brent, who has already announced his marriage to Ruth Chatterton. Brent has had a phenomenal success in the past year, coming out of obscurity to play opposite Miss Chatterton in two pictures, opposite Miss Barbara Stanwick, Joan Blondell, Loretta Young and other screen favorites.

"The Crash" is said to be Miss Chatterton's finest vehicle, and a worthy successor to "The Rich Are Always With Us" which was her initial First National picture.

It brings a popular actress in a story, that reports say, is brimming with entertainment and exciting action.

You Use MORE Electricity

Daylight hours are longer from April to September. These are the outdoor months. You are "going places" then—picnics, sports and all sorts of things which keep one outside during the evening.

From September to March daylight hours are shorter—therefore electric light hours are longer. There is less outdoor playtime and more indoor amusement.

If your electric bill seems higher now you will understand why, if you but stop to think that the average family uses electric light almost three times longer during the winter than summer. The mellow light of the living room has a mighty strong appeal when the day's work is done . . . and that means extra service from the electric lights.

This chart shows the average number of hours in which the electric lights are used in the average home for each month in the year.

|----------|---------------------|-----------|---------------------|
| January  | 6 Hours, 32 Minutes | July      | 2 Hours, 36 Minutes |
| February | 5 Hours, 38 Minutes | August    | 3 Hours, 9 Minutes  |
| March    | 4 Hours, 10 Minutes | September | 4 Hours, 00 Minutes |
| April    | 3 Hours, 48 Minutes | October   | 4 Hours, 54 Minutes |
| May      | 2 Hours, 57 Minutes | November  | 6 Hours, 11 Minutes |
| June     | 2 Hours, 33 Minutes | December  | 6 Hours, 51 Minutes |

The chart quickly explains why your electric bill is higher for the winter months than it is for those of summer. But the small increase at this season is negligible if compared to the comfort and cheer which electricity brings to the long winter evenings at home.

NOPSIS: Pauline, sentimental, full, sincere and loving love, became engaged and married Dennis in the belief that their blissfulness will continue unchanged all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a premonition that maybe love change, a thought buried in her by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara, the night before. She adored Barbara, who had married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced living a life which some of her friends could not understand. As he returns consciousness he learns who the man is that Barbara loves. It's him—Dennis. Dennis spends several weeks in hospital. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis, with the exception of the hospital. Pauline highly for Dennis' return home. Barbara stays only one day after Dennis' return from the hospital. Against his will Dennis finds a attraction in Barbara, who plays the same cool and detached role as early. A fortnight after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for a vacation. Upon their arrival a party of gay entertainment gets underway—throwing Dennis and Pauline each into each other's company. Dennis is in love with Barbara. He goes through all barriers and tells of his love. Pauline is called home by the illness of her mother. Dennis goes on. Barbara is happy. Both fight for love—but it's over powering. Pauline declares his love and Barbara is the married man friend of Barbara and Dennis at Barbara's flat—

and goes into a jealous rage. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

But in the morning she laughed at her fears, for there was a letter from Dennis, in which for the first time he said that he missed her—and only God knew what an effort it had cost him to write those words—and asking how much longer she meant to be a deserter.

"Dreams don't mean anything," Pauline told herself happily. "It must have been because we had cucumber with the salmon for dinner."

She spent a happy day. The doctor said her mother was better, and there was a wire from her father to say he was returning, and Pauline wrote a long letter to Dennis. "It will be too wonderful, won't it?" she wrote with trembling eagerness. "I think I love you better than ever I did—if it's at all possible, darling. I often wonder how I managed ever to be happy before you married me, and if anything happened that we were separated, Dennis, I should die."

O'Hara's face twitched as he read her loving words, and for a moment he looked away from what he was reading, wondering why it was he seemed to stop beating as he waited, and then he caught his breath in a great sigh of relief as he knew it was not she. It was Stornaway.

"That you, O'Hara? I say, I'm awfully sorry, but I can't come along to-night, after all. I've been sent for to go home. Old Thompson is ill. Hope it's not leaving you in the cart."

"No, not at all—I've not booked anything. I'm sorry, though."

"Liar!" he told himself cheerily as he rang off and went to get his overcoat.

Dinner alone with Barbara—he felt like a happy schoolboy as he went downstairs and out into the street. A whole evening alone with her! Would she come now that Stornaway would not be there? Well, he would not tell her until she asked.

It seemed a long time before his knock on Barbara's door was answered, and then it was Mrs. Mellish who admitted him.

She said, "Good evening, sir," in her quiet voice and led the way into the sitting room.

Mrs. Stark will not keep you long, sir," She hesitated, looking at him with those quiet eyes that saw so much and betrayed so little.

O'Hara's face twitched as he read her loving words. . . . He could not rid himself of the feeling that this letter was not really written to him.

could not rid himself of the feeling that this letter was not really written to him at all.

He had seen Barbara every day, but she had never again allowed him to go to her flat, and that morning, looking at himself in the glass while he shaved, it seemed to Dennis that he had aged years in the last few days.

Pauline's letter had come by the evening post, and Dennis was dressed to go out—he was taking Barbara and Stornaway to dinner.

Barbara had refused to come alone—"Bring Dr. Stornaway," she had said.

"Are you never coming alone with me again?" Dennis had asked, but she had not replied.

He stood staring down into the fire, smoking cigarette after cigarette and trying to see beyond the immediate present. Was there to be any beyond? Barbara would not tell him, and he himself could not find the answer.

When Pauline came back perhaps they would find it, or she would find it for them. The telephone rang. Was it Barbara, to say she could not dine with him? His heart almost

"Mrs. Stark has been a little upset," she added.

"Upset?"

"I expect Mrs. Stark will explain to you, sir."

She went away, leaving Dennis to wait impatiently.

When she came he saw that she was ready, dressed and wearing a gown he had once admired. He went quickly to her and took her hands.

"What is it, my dear?"

She smiled. "Did Mellish tell you? Bless her heart! She knows there is nobody else I should ever tell my troubles to, Dennis." She bent and dropped a kiss on his coat sleeve. "Mix some cocktails, please, and I'll tell you."

She sat down by the fire and watched him; then suddenly she spoke.

"I had an unexpected visitor today, Dennis."

"Oh!" He was not greatly interested. "Who was it?"

"My husband."

The fragile stem of the glass he was holding snapped suddenly between Dennis O'Hara's fingers. He had forgotten that Barbara had a husband living.

"I thought you never saw him," he said with an effort.

"I haven't—for years. He came this afternoon. I had no idea that he was in New York."

There was a little silence. "What did he want?" Dennis asked sharply. She lifted her beautiful eyes.

"He asked me to go back to him."

Dennis stood very still for a moment; then he turned mechanically again to his job.

"You like French Vermouth?" he said.

"Please." Then she laughed, a wild little laugh that sounded infinitely sad. "Make it strong, Dennis, so strong that I shan't care what happens or what becomes of me."

She flung out her hands with a pathetic gesture of emptiness, but Dennis took no notice. He finished his mixing and brought a glass to her. As she took it he asked, "And what did you say?"

"I told him I would think about it." There was a long silence. "You know he divorced me," she said presently.

Dennis did not answer.

Her face whitened, and she said almost in a whisper: "It wasn't true, Dennis, not—not what you think. But I was as tired of him as he was of me, so I let him think—that he liked. I swear it's the truth."

"There is no need. I always believe you."

"Foolish—Dennis!" But there were tears in her eyes—so often now there seemed to be tears in her eyes.

"Well—go on," Dennis said after a moment.

She sighed and leaned her chin in her hand.

"I've never seen him since—well, since then, until today. He was generous—I've always had plenty of money. And now he wants me to go back to him." Her eyes never left his face. "He says he has never cared for any woman but me, Dennis."

"And you told him you would think about it—about going back to him?"

"Yes."

"Did he give you a time limit?" Dennis was white to the lips.

She shook her head. "No—I promised to write to him."

She stood up suddenly beside him, tall and beautiful and so utterly desirable, that for a moment Dennis O'Hara closed his eyes. Then she said, "What's the use of hoping for anything—for us, I mean? You know it's no use; you know you can't do what you think you can."

"You mean—tell Pauline?"

"Yes."

He clenched his hands into fists. "Barbara—there must be some other way."

"Yes." She smiled tremulously. "You might come here secretly—as my lover—and we should be happy for the little time we could be together and unhappy for the great while when we had to be apart. And some day it would be found out, and then—"

"I should only mind for your sake."

She shook her head sadly.

"It wouldn't hurt me—it wouldn't be anything worse than the things people say about me already. But you, Dennis—it would break your heart."

"Am I such a weakling?"

"No, if you were it would not matter."

He paced up and down the room restlessly.

"If I were an honest man I should go to Pauline and tell her the truth. It would not hurt her as much as it will if some day she finds out that I love you and that I think of you every moment and want you—"

"It's because you are an honest man that you can't tell her," Barbara said, and then, as he did not answer, she took up her cloak and held it to him.

"Let us go, Dennis—Dr. Stornaway will be waiting."

He took the cloak from her, but as he laid it over her shoulders he suddenly unfolded her with his arms, pressing her head back against his breast. "Barbara—kiss me—"

Her lips moved to say no, but Dennis silenced the word with his own, and so for a long time they stood while Barbara gave herself up wholly to the intoxication of the moment.

"Just this once—for the last time," she told herself. "Just this once—for the very last time."

And when at last he released her she was white and shaken and could not meet his eyes, though she tried to laugh.

"Nobody has ever kissed me like that, Dennis," she said faintly.

"And was it—happiness?" he asked.

"It was—heaven," she whispered.

He told her about Stornaway as they drove away together, her cheek against his shoulder, her hand in his. "I didn't tell you before. I thought you would refuse to come."

"I ought to refuse now," she sighed. She raised her head and looked at him. "Dennis, this isn't really me at all. I feel to be so unhappy—and now, I feel young and warm and without a care in the world." But Dennis O'Hara's eyes were sad as he looked away from her, and the words of Pauline's letter came back to him like a sad reproach—"If anything happened that we were separated, I should die."

They spent a happy evening. "We'll forget everything but that we are together," Barbara said. So they dined and danced and talked of things that were farthest from their hearts.

It was as they were leaving that they came face to face with Jerry Barnett. He had obviously been drinking, and Barbara shivered and drew closer to Dennis. "He pretended not to see us," she whispered. "I think he is a little jealous of you."

CHURCHES

THE METHODIST CHURCH
Sunday, Feb. 19th

The world is restless. Apparently, people today are not only tired out physically, but are discouraged. They lack that faith which is essential to personal or national progress. Accompanying this lack of faith is a disrespect for law, order and experience. Crime everywhere, human life not regarded any more than a beast. In fact, faith, to be effective, must be backed by righteousness. Faith cannot be bought or quickly obtained when in trouble—like medicine. Faith must be acquired slowly, before it is needed. Faith comes through patient devotion, right living and service to others.

In view of these facts, and of the past generation with steady work and easy profits this new generation has felt sufficient in itself. Sabbath schools and churches have been neglected, family prayers have been given up, and Sunday has been made a common holiday. Hence, unlike previous generations, a large percentage of the people now unemployed, or losing money in business, have no faith upon which to fall back. The material wealth upon which they solely depended has gone. They have no spiritual wealth upon which to draw. There is a way out, and we must as a great people find this way. Jesus said "I am the way." Will you find the way? St. Paul said to the Romans, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

Go to church next Sunday and see if you will not feel better, and love the world and your neighbor better as the week goes by.

Sunday school 9:45 a. m. A place for the young man as well as the old—you will enjoy it.

Preaching at 11:00 a. m. Subject: "The Challenge of the Church," text taken from a sign board, "If you are tired, hungry, thirsty or lost, stop here."

The project is being sponsored by the Olton Chamber of Commerce. A special committee is at work consisting of Jack Straw, chairman, and C. E. Bley and Roy Granbery.

It is planned to drill a well, put up a water tower, and carry out other work in the establishing of a modern water works system. Three or four miles of water mains will be built.

A survey is being made, which includes steps to obtain 60 signers to take water service.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM IS BEING CARRIED OUT IN OLTON

An extensive improvement program is being carried out in Olton through the use of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds, according to Mayor J. W. Richards.

Tuesday of this week a special cleanup program was carried out.

All projects are being carried out under the supervision of the city commissioners.

One of the projects which it is planned to carry out will be the general improvement of the court house and the approaches to the property. A portion of this latter work has already been carried out.

These notices, which carry the photograph of persons wanted for a great variety of offenses, keep sheriffs and other officers informed as to persons who are sought by law.

HI-WAY—

ning and Brownfield.

The new road will give Littlefield and Lamb county a direct highway into Colorado, and other northern states, and a good road connection with the Bankhead Highway, "The Broadway of America," which serves the country east and west from coast to coast.

Will Be No. 143

The new highway, known as No. 143, will connect at Channing, with the highway to Colorado, and will serve Vega, Hereford, Dimmitt, Littlefield, Levelland and Brownfield.

The highway was designated from Channing to Dimmitt some time ago, and the order issued last week covers the remainder of the route south to Brownfield.

The State Highway commission order reads as follows:

"It is ordered by the commission that State Highway No. 143 be extended from Dimmitt, in Castro county, via Levelland in Hockley county, to Meadows, in Terry county, on condition that counties affected furnish not less than 100 foot right-of-way on location to be approved by the state highway engineer, and on the further condition that the road will not be taken over for maintenance until constructed."

"I am very hopeful that Lamb county may immediately begin its work of obtaining a right-of-way for that road," says Senator Duggan in his letter to Judge Hay.

Mr. Duggan said that the actual obtaining of the right-of-way could not be carried out until after the survey is made by the engineers of the highway department, but suggested that "all preliminary work be done far the obtaining of this right-of-way very quickly."

The route through Lamb county is now 80 feet from property line to property line virtually all the way across the county, according to County Commissioner Ellis Foust.

May Defer Paving Contracts

Awarding of the contracts for the paving of Highways No. 7 and 28 through Lamb county and adjacent counties are likely to be delayed for at least six weeks.

A dispatch from Austin said:

Awards of additional highway construction contracts probably will be withheld until April, W. R. Ely, chairman of the highway commission, has announced.

Ely stated it was not likely the commission would award any construction contracts at its regular meeting in March because of shortness of funds. Good weather all during the winter has made it possible for contractors to make better progress on contracts previously awarded and estimates for completed work are coming in more rapidly than the commission had anticipated, Ely said.

Lubbock—Tentative contracts for 3.1 miles of grading and drainage structures in Lubbock county and 16.1 miles of similar improvement in Garza county were let by the Texas highway commission.

Both South Plains projects are to be on highway No. 7. The Lubbock county grading and drainage structures are to be from Slaton to the Lynn county line. Field Bros. & McCelvey of Lubbock received the contract on a bid of $4,801.34.

In Garza county the grading and drainage structures are to be from Post to Southland. The tractors procured the job on a bid of $27,000.

Formal award of the contract be made when the project is approved by the federal public roads, approval of being necessary since the work carried out with federal aid.

WITH CONSIDERING ORGANIZING LOCAL UNIT OF RED CROSS; EXPECT TO ASK COUNTY ORGANIZER TO VISIT CITY

Consideration is being given to the forming of a local unit of the Red Cross at Earth.

A number of the business men at Earth have discussed the matter, and it is expected that Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor of the First Baptist church, Littlefield, and county organizer for

The Earth section of Lamb county is in a very good financial condition, but there are a number of families who need Red Cross aid, it is stated.
