FARM AND FACTORY

There is a rapidly growing belief among farmers that the ultimate solution of our agricultural problems is going to come from a much more direct relationship between agriculture and industry than exists at present. For many years industrialists and scientists have been pointing out the necessity for a closer tie-up between farm and factory. Mr. Henry Ford has for years been preaching and putting into practice his idea that, instead of concentrating production in great industrial centers, big industries should be numerous small factories, each producing some part of the finished product, so located that industrial workers could also be agriculturists, having their own land to fall back on for subsistence whenever industry was down. This has always seemed to us like a sound solution of the problem of the industrial worker, but it does not go far toward solving the major part of the farmer's problem.

Utilization of farm wastes and surpluses for industrial processes has been the subject of a great deal of intelligent study by economists and manufacturers. One of the most important of all chemical substances is alcohol, which is easily and cheaply produced from a wide variety of products. In Iowa and Nebraska a beginning has been made in the production of industrial alcohol from corn, and experiments with a mixture of alcohol and gasoline for motor fuel have been fairly successful. In the grape growers are beginning a similar experiment, producing grapes which are unfit for shipment.

These are steps in the right direction. We are told that scientists and biologists are ready to show the agricultural and industrial processes which can be grown on the farm for industry. It is not difficult to imagine a coming era in which hundreds of small industrial establishments will be scattered throughout rural regions, providing as many new outlets for the farmer's surpluses, and so stabilizing agriculture on a sounder basis than it has been.

Exceptional Cast in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang"

A most unusual and extraordinary type of story comes to the screen of the Palace Theatre next Sunday and Monday, in "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," starring Paul Muni, with the most brilliant cast ever used by the Warner Bros. studio.

The screen play by Sheridan Gibney and Brown Holmes is based on the autobiographical novel of Robert E. Burns. The picture treats of the astounding experiences of a man sentenced to a state chain gang for the theft of less than five dollars, who escaped and is still at large.

It portrays the terrors of chain gang life, which are picturesque despite their shuddery aspect. This shows how prisoners, their legs shackled together and to each other, are forced to work on rock piles until they fall exhausted. They are not even permitted to wipe the sweat from their brows unless given special permission from guards who watch over them with guns and bloodhounds. Inhuman floggings are inflicted under the slightest pretext, prisoners screaming in agony as the cruel leather lash descends on their bared backs, fainting from loss of blood and sometimes dying from the effects. Food consisting of pig fat, sorghum and fried dough, is so nauseating that the prisoners are unable to swallow it until they are so starved that it became a question of dying of starvation.

The tale is replete with thrills including the flight of a convict through swamps, pursued by armed guards and baying bloodhounds, the blowing up of a bridge with dynamite and a battle of prisoners armed with explosives with guards with rifles.

In addition to the many thrills and the tremendous drama of the piece, there is a glowing romance of the fugitive's undying love for a woman he can never marry and the heart-breaking experience of his marriage to a woman who held him through the knowledge of his secret and eventually betrayed him and surrendered him to the authorities.

THEN WHY WASTE NATURAL GAS?

The various gas cocks, fittings and piping on your premises may not be gas tight and can frequently waste a large amount of gas in a year through leakage.

With the Bunsen type of blue flame burner, a showing of red or yellow in the flame is an indication of imperfect combustion and therefore waste.

Rooms are more healthful if kept at about 70 degrees F., with proper humidity, yet much gas is wasted by keeping room temperatures higher.

Heat radiated into furnace rooms from the furnace, the furnace piping, and hot water and steam piping does not enter the room that is to be heated and therefore is wasted. Proper insulating of furnace piping will greatly curtail this loss. In any gas heating device the temperature of the combustion products where they go into the chimney has an important bearing on heat loss.

Improper adjustment of appliances resulting in imperfect combustion is a waste.

Water that precipitate scale or sediment will frequently build up a thick coating on the inside of the water heater over point of flame contact and greatly increase the amount of gas necessary to heat the water.

Turning on gas to a point where the flame goes over the top in open top space heaters wastes gas.

While we can not regulate the amount of gas that you use, we do urge you to take care that your consumption does not exceed your actual needs. Satisfied customers constitute our best asset. They are worth more to us than any revenue derived from gas which is wasted.

shoulder—the divine resting place—and yet— "I'm so wonderfully happy that I want to share my happiness with you... my best friend, Barbara darling..." Poor little Pauline! Poor little loyal Pauline who believed in her and loved her even though she had betrayed that love and belief. And then came a pressing thought besieging her, deafening her, and refusing to be silenced. "Now is your chance. To do a decent thing—to make up for all the shabbiness of your life. Let this man go—send him back to his wife and to the life that is his by rights." "God, oh, God," Barbara whispered. She tried to beat down that whispering voice, tried not to hear it. Then she felt Dennis's face against her shoulder, pressed to it as if he were an unhappy boy, and felt his arms folding her closer, closer. "Barbara—if you ever loved me... oh, my dear one." She tore herself free. She stood back against the table, panting a little, white to the lips. "It's true," she said. "It's true—what Jerry told you. It's true, true!" It seemed such a long time since she had spoken these words—she was sure that a whole lifetime had come and gone since she tore herself from Dennis O'Hara's arms, and waited for him to speak. She had not moved her eyes from him—she knew it might be the last time she would ever see him, and she wanted to remember him faithfully—the obstinate chin and sensitive mouth—behind him—and that was all. Then presently she found herself kneeling by the fire and wondering hopelessly why she could not cry. She could have kept him, but she had let him go. Why? "Because I'm a damned fool," she told herself with shaking lips. But she knew it was not; she knew it was because of a child she had once held in her arms for a little while that she had not found it possible to injure a child of Pauline's. Mellish came to the door. "Did you call me?" she asked. "Bring me some brandy, will you? I'm so cold." "There's a nice fire, too," Mrs. Mellish said. "Yes," Barbara agreed. "Bring the brandy to my bedroom, please. I'm going out." "Ghastly! Ghastly!" she thought, and hunted for rouge. Mrs. Mellish brought the brandy, the honest eyes—the brown hair, and the broad shoulders against which her head had rested for the only happy moments she had ever known. Barbara smiled a little and held out her hand. Although she knew it was all over she felt that she must make one last appeal to him—an appeal which she knew would be disregarded. "In spite of everything—I'm the same woman I was last night, Dennis," she said. Afterward she wondered if he really heard—or if she really spoke. She heard him cross the little hall, open the front door and shut it again. "I'm all right. I shan't be in to lunch." Out in the street she hailed a taxi-cab and gave the address of a flat, off Park Avenue. "If only I didn't have to go on living," Barbara thought; then she laughed as she wondered whether Pauline would ask her to be god-mother to Dennis's son. The taxi stopped, and she got out and paid the fare; then, without hesitating, she walked into the entrance of the flats. A porter came forward. "Can you tell me which flat is Mr. Stark's?" Barbara asked. "The second floor, madam—I'll take you up in the lift." "Thank you. I'll walk. I'm not in a hurry." She went slowly up the stone stairs. Douglas would be surprised to see her, or wouldn't he? It didn't matter much either way—probably he wouldn't be up. She rang the bell and waited. After a moment her husband's manservant came to the door. Barbara said, "Good-morning, Richards—is Mr. Stark in?" "Yes, madam—just going out." "I'll go in. You need not announce me." She walked across the hall with un-faltering step and into the sitting room. It smelled of spirits and cigar smoke and was overheated. A man stood by the sideboard emptying a tumbler. Barbara said, "Good-morning Douglas." "God Almighty!" Douglas Stark was a good-looking man, a little puffy under the eyes, and a little red in the complexion. "What do you want?" he demanded gruffly, to hide his emotion. "Only to say that—if you—if you like—I'll come back—no, no—" as he moved toward her. "Wait. It's on condition we go abroad—at once, and travel—for as long as you like—months—years! I'm sick of New York. Sick to death. Well—will you go?" "Will I—hell!" He made a sort of excited lunge toward her, but she deftly avoided him. "We're not married yet, you know. Besides—I hate sentiment." He looked at her admiringly yet disbelievingly. "You hate sentiment—pooh! How long is it since a man kissed you?" For a moment Barbara wavered and loomed back into the past—such a little way back—only to last night; then she laughed. "You should know!" she cried. "It seems like years and years." Concluded Next Week

History Repeats Itself

Throughout transportation history the old forms have opposed the new ones. Doggedly they resist change of methods or rates. Three hundred years ago river and canal barges opposed development of the stage coaches,—and so did saddle makers and tailors. The public might be served, but their individual businesses might be hurt. They appealed to the lawmakers. Later the stage coach owners joined the canal interests, in opposing the first struggling railroads. Then experience taught there was a place for each. Today the railroads seek to shackle trucks, although trucks have probably made more tonnage for the railroads than they ever took away from them.

Railroads call trucks a "competitor," and say they are "subsidized."

In TEXAS motor trucks pay taxes ($16,078,319.44 for 1931) totaling two and one-half times the sum expended to maintain all State Highways.

Though representing only one-sixth the vehicular registrations, trucks pay one-third the total highway taxes, thereby making possible their construction for pleasure purposes. Without the income from trucks, new highway construction must stop, except in counties containing big cities.

Trucks in Texas pay twice the amount of taxes that railroads pay, yet carry only a small fraction of the freight.

Trucks owned and operated by TEXANS are wholly self-sustaining and yield to TEXAS a splendid profit on the highways owned by TEXAS citizens. Savings effected because of competition in the transportation business are savings for the people of TEXAS.

JANES COMMUNITY

By Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, Corres.

Miss Georgia Hamilton of Littlefield was the guest of Miss Willie Chisholm the past week end and attended Sunday school and singing at Janes.

G. R. Crim and Ed Gaston made a business trip to Ballinger Friday and Saturday.

The women of the Janes Methodist Church met last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. G. R. Crim and organized a Missionary society. Mrs. M. S. Lane was elected president, Mrs. G. R. Crim, vice-president; Mrs. Traywick Gaston secretary; Mrs. Bob Beck, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, supt. of study.

Misses Merle and Velma Lee Matthews were hostesses to a group of young people Saturday evening. 42 and jig-saw puzzles were the entertaining features. Those present were Misses Merle Jones, Willie Chisholm and Georgia Hamilton and the hostesses, and Messers. Burnett Siler, Neal and Dale Pepper, Paul Chisholm, and Forrest Powell.

Mr. Edwin Crim was host to a group of friends on last Friday evening at a social in honor of Miss Itha Walker of Ballinger. Games and contests were enjoyed by the guests. Toasts were given to the "Stranger in our midst," by Jack Linderson, Bill Henson and Edwin Crim. Punch was served to the following guests:

Misses Itha Walker, Gladys Boyles, Lois and Thelma Moore, June Campbell, Martha Alma Morris, Martha Marie Lane, Josephine and Irene Ballard, and Elizabeth Stanley; Messers Joel Moore, Eugene Stanley, Bill Henson, Garland Campbell, James Lane, J. W. Moses, Jack Linderson, Odell Benton, "Shorty" Neal, and the host.

Chaperones for the evening were Mrs. G. R. Crim, hostess, Mrs. Ed Gaston, Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, Mr. Mrs. Tom Stanley and Mr. Marvin Moore.

The young people of the Methodist church and other interested young people met at the home of M. S. Lane to organize an Epworth League. Edwin Crim was elected president. Gladys Boyles, vice-president and Martha Alma Morris secretary-treasurer. Mrs. G. R. Crim was elected adult counsellor. The League planned to meet at homes in the community until the new church is ready for services. The next meeting is to be held at the home of H. G. Boyles. Martha Marie Lane has charge of the first program.

PEP PARAGRAPHS

By Mrs. G. C. Keith, Correspondent

There were some ten or eleven cars of fat cattle shipped from this community during the past week. Among those shipping calves were Messers. Joe and Lawrence Albus, John Stengel, Joe Gerick, George Hughes, Lee Cooper and the Ferrick brothers.

Mr. Hughes received five cents per pound for the calves he shipped last week.

Messers. M. A. and Charles Burt were business visitors in Littlefield Saturday.

The house warming of Mr. M. A. Burt's new house Sunday evening was well attended. Everyone who attended enjoyed the evening.

Weather permitting, there will be a "tacky" dance at the school house tonight. (Monday.)

New Yorkers usually think of poultry as a piece of meat in a sandwich. However, in New York, every year is staged a poultry show. It is the largest show of its kind in the country with more than 3,000 exhibits.

HOW MODERN WOMEN LOSE
FAT SAFELY

Gain Physical Viger—Youthfulness—With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—your money gladly returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world.

Make New Friends at Church....

One of the many things that the church can give you is Friendship. At the church, you will meet persons of character, of refinement, of culture, of tastes and interests that are your own. Likewise, by your regular attendance, will you establish yourself as a person of high standing. Next Sunday, go to church, the inspirational and social center of the community.

LITTLEFIELD HAS AMPLE GAS SUPPLY AND PRESSURE FOR ANY EMERGENCY

With the most modern distributing facilities, and an ample supply of natural gas, the West Texas Gas Company is completely prepared to furnish sufficient fuel to residents of Littlefield during any emergency.

This was proven during the extremely cold blizzard in this section in the early part of February. With the temperature dropping to as low as nine degrees below zero, the company furnished a sufficient amount of gas for its consumers throughout the city.

Employees of the company were on duty throughout the entire blizzard to assure dependable gas service. Inspectors were called to various parts of the city to correct or adjust conditions local to premises of customers. In every instance, tests indicated an adequate supply of gas and gas pressure in the supply lines to the meter. Some adjustments were found necessary, however, in the consumers' house lines and equipment.

The gas company urges those whose gas heating equipment is not giving the proper service to have it checked and corrected before another such emergency arises.

G. P. CALLOWAY NOW CONNECTED WITH CITY MARKET

G. P. Calloway, who has been formerly connected with the Littlefield M-System market, but recently with the M-System market of Lubbock, has accepted a place with the City Market of this city.

Mr. Calloway has had a number of years experience in this business and is especially experienced in preparing barbecue.

The City Market recently installed a genuine barbecue pit, and are carrying fresh old fashioned beef, pork and chicken barbecue at all times.

Contestants other than "Miss Littlefield" and "Miss Lamb County" will be "Miss Anton," "Miss Sudan," "Miss Amherst," "Miss Idalou," "Miss Abernathy," "Miss Wilson," "Miss Carlisle," "Miss Wolforth," "Miss Crosbyton," and "Miss Bailey County."

In addition to the beauty contest, a juvenile kiddies bathing beauty revue will be staged for girls one to six years old.

We Think—

to be loyal but it does mean that one must always stand on the side of the right to be loyal to his town.

To be loyal to his town one must love it better than he loves any other town. The person who loves some other nation just as well as he loves America is not a true citizen. The man who loves one home or one woman just as well as he loves another is not fit for a husband or a father. The person whose interest is scattered all over creation and is centered nowhere is no help to anybody anywhere. Home loyalty becomes a base for operations from which helps distant humanity.

To be loyal to his home town one must give something of value to the town. Loyalty cost something. It costs time and energy and money. A town cannot be built where everybody is shirking relief from duty.

Town loyalty considers the future welfare of the town. Caesar looked over the plans of a colossal structure and commended the architect because he was helping to perpetuate the glory of Rome for centuries to come. We must look beyond the immediate needs of our own generation. We must lay such foundations that our children and grand-children can build upon. After all a town is not to be measured by its mercantile institutions, but by the men and women whom it gives to the world. The psalmist said, "This and that was born in her." If we would perpetuate the memory of Idalou let us help our town and community to give to the world characters that are outstanding in their service to humanity.—Geo. W. Montgomery in the Idalou Echo.

Inauguration—

other two. He is likewise the third President elected in his fifty-first year.

Franklin Roosevelt is the thirteenth member of the Masonic order to be President of the United States.

President Roosevelt will be the ninth member of the Protestant Episcopal Church to be President of the United States. It is a curious thing that this small denomination should have had more representatives in the White House than any of the other branches of the Christian Church. There are less than two million Episcopalians in America.

One President, Coolidge, was a Congregationalist, one, Garfield, a member of the Disciples of Christ, one, Hoover, a Quaker, two, Van Buren and Theodore Roosevelt, belong to the Dutch Reform Church. Both the Adames, Fillmore and Taft, were Unitarians, Johnson, Grant and McKinley were Methodists. Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Benjamin Harrison and Woodrow Wilson were Presbyterians. The Episcopalians include Washington, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Pierce and Arthur.

We don't imagine it makes any particular difference to what Church the President belongs. Two of them, Lincoln and Coolidge had never been members of any church before they became president. But every President of the United States has been a deeply religious man, as every man must be if he is to command the confidence of the people.

Although one of the youngest Presidents, Mr. Roosevelt is one of the few who were grandfathers when they were elected. Mr. Hoover was also a grandfather, but from then back for nearly a hundred years there is no record that any President was a grandfather at the time of his election. Washington had no children at all. Johnson, Adams and Jefferson were grandfathers, and so we understand was Monroe. William Henry Harrison, who lived but a month after his inauguration, has a grandson who later became President, but we believe there was no other President than those we named who had grandchildren at the time of his election.

Thirty years ago a President's daughter gave her name to a new shade of blue. "Alice Blue" was so named because it was the favorite color of Alice Roosevelt, now Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt has given her name to another new shade of blue. It is called "Eleanor Blue" and she will wear a costume of this color at her first White House reception on March 4. It is described as a shade of hyacinth blue, between a blue-gray—if anybody knows what that means.

If this starts the women of America to buying new dress materials it will be a good thing for the revival of business.

The last of the Hoover family's personal effects have been taken out of the White House and put on board a Government ship, which will take them through the Panama Canal to the Mare Island Navy Yard in San Francisco Bay. From there it will be a short haul by truck to the Hoover's permanent residence at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover are "living out of suitcases" until the fourth of March. They will have very little baggage to take with them when they leave Washington on that day. Mr. Hoover will accompany the new President to the Capitol, but his plans do not contemplate remaining there to his successor's inaugural address. Instead, he will meet Mrs. Hoover at the railroad station, where noon, and they will take a ship sailing that night for California.

Twelve years of unintermittent public control of the Government are practically at an end. The Democratic Party is complete control than it has since the first administration of Woodrow Wilson, which was twenty years ago. At that time a few persons on either side of the Atlantic anticipated the coming of a world war, and fewer still remote idea that the United States would be dragged into it, the events which occurred in 1914, which are at the root of economic troubles from which the United States and all the world are suffering.
