The BEAVER

IS TO AMERICAN HISTORY WHAT THE ELEPHANT WAS TO AFRICAN HISTORY! PURSUIT OF THE BEAVER, FOR HIS VALUABLE SKIN, LED NATIONS INTO WAR AND BLOODSHED! NEW LANDS WERE DISCOVERED, IN THE RUSH TO GAIN MORE BEAVER TERRITORY.

ALTHOUGH THE INDIANS ATE BEAVERS, THEY CONSIDERED THEM AS SACRED, AND ALWAYS THREW THE BONES BACK INTO THE BEAVER POND... IN ORDER THAT THE GREAT BEAVER SPIRIT MIGHT NOT BE OFFENDED.

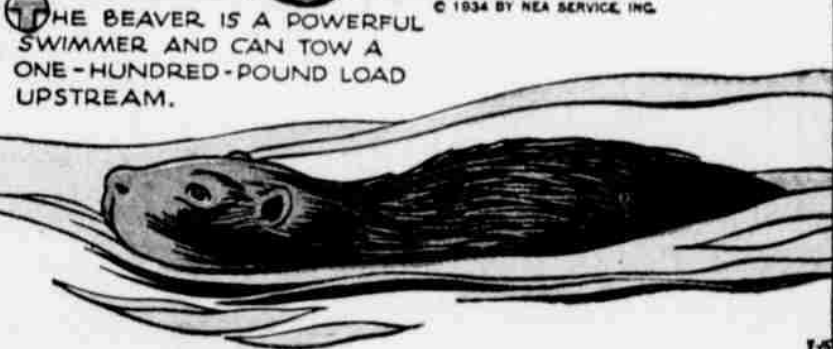

The ANIMALS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO BUILD DAMS A HALF-MILE IN LENGTH! LARGE TREES ARE FELLED FOR THIS WORK... AND ONE BEAVER CAN CUT A 10-INCH TREE IN A SINGLE NIGHT.

ONE OF THE MOST MARVELOUS OF ANIMAL ACCOMPLISHMENTS IS THE HOME OF THE BEAVER! THE DOME-LIKE STRUCTURE USUALLY STANDS IN SEVERAL FEET OF WATER, AND IS MADE OF STICKS AND MUD. ENTRANCE IS MADE BY WAY OF AN UNDER-WATER CHANNEL.

CROSS SECTION OF BEAVER LODGE.

THE BEAVER IS A POWERFUL SWIMMER AND CAN TOW A ONE-HUNDRED-POUND LOAD UPSTREAM.

WHEN THE TIMBER SUPPLY IS FAR FROM THE BUILDING SITE, THEY DIG CANALS, THROUGH WHICH THEY FLOAT THE HEAVIEST LOGS.

ward in a very successful manner.
At the present time there are 28 boys reporting for swimming, 11 boys for life saving and 14 girls for swimming.

The beginning swimmers are learning to float and glide through the water in a very acceptable manner.
The Swimmers are working on standard strokes. The Life Savers are working on approaches and carries.

LAMB APPLIES FOR PRIMARY DROUTH RELIEF

Committees Meet at Amherst Wednesday to Report Conditions

A Littlefield committee met Wednesday afternoon with other committees from all parts of the county at the office of D. A. Adam county agent, at Amherst, to make application to have Lamb County placed on the primary relief rolls.

In the evidence presented by the committees, 90 per cent of the farmers of Lamb county will need aid in buying feed the coming year if it does not rain within the next week or two. Drouth may cause many families to be practically destitute, surveys show.

In the last session of Congress,
President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing the spending of $525,000, 000 for drouth relief. With the money available, Lamb county citizens feel that it is only a matter of good judgement to protect themselves in case of continued drouth.

Since one fourth of the relief money is granted by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, and one fourth by the State Highway department, it is probable that applications will be approved for paving Highway No. 7 with a part of the money if the primary relief is granted.

The application of the committee was sent to O. B. Martin, director of Extension Work, at A. & M. Other committees and officials of the county will make similar applications in the immediate future.

Band Will Give Concert Friday

The Littlefield band will present another concert Friday evening at 8 o'clock on the walk in front of Walter's Drug Store, A. B. Taylor, director has announced.

The band has received some new music and the program Friday will be composed of new selections. Mr.
Taylor states that he has ordered a group of popular song and will present a program of popular music.

Gilmer Eagan, James Foust, J. G.
Berryman, Virgil Hughes, Earl Hobbs
Calvin Brazeal, Martin Kelly.

These fifty-two people will be more at home in the water after these eight days of instruction are over.
There will be a Red Cross Award for each one who completes the requirements for the tests in his given division.

The boys working on Life Saving are: George Glenn, Dan Hemphill, Lowell Wallace, Lawrence Beardon,

LITTLEFIELD TO OBSERVE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Free Barbecue and Other Features Planned
For 25,000

With the biggest celebration in her history, Littlefield's citizens plan to observe the tenth birthday of the city in a two-day spectacle of entertainment features Friday and Saturday, July 20 and 21, making plans to care for 25,000 people.

Polo, airplane stunts, a rodeo, free barbecue, baseball, a political rally in which local, state, and national candidates will participate, will entertain the crowds part of the time.

Band concerts, old fiddlers contest, a carnival, women's horseback riding, a golf tournament, and a big dance Friday night will add to the interests.

The celebration is sponsored by the citizens of Littlefield, and they join in asking all their friends and any visitors who wish to help them celebrate the Tenth Anniversary of the incorporation of their city. Ten years have seen the growth of Littlefield from a mere village to one of the leading towns on the South Plains, and the people of Littlefield and vicinity wish to celebrate the fact.

With plans made to care for 25, 000 people during the two days picnic, the arrangements committee predict this to be the most gala affair in the history of the city.

The first day will be opened by a parade led by the women's horseback riders, accompanied by several bands rodeo contestants, hundreds of cars and floats.

Candidates will speak from 10 o'clock until 12 o'clock each morning and then again in the afternoon. The carnival will be open all day both Friday and Saturday. The rodeo will give a performance daily.

Games between the plains' leading ball teams will be featured each day.
Airplane stunts are scheduled daily and the pilots will take passengers between times.

Old fiddlers contest will be held Friday night, probably the entries playing for a square dance afterwards.

The bands of the surrounding towns will compete for a $50 cash prize and a loving cup Saturday.

Free barbecue for all the visitors will be given Saturday. Plans are made to have ample food for all who attend.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend both days of the celebration.
contests are open for all who wish to enter and prizes will be given in each event.

Littlefield's Public Library

A public library in Littlefield is a fact with which many of the citizens are not acquainted, and a service which many more have not used. But such a library is in operation, and has been giving pleasure and help to those who avail themselves of it. Look for it the next time you go to the City Hall.

The Library received Saturday, Mrs. J. H. Barnett, Librarian, stated, a new shipment of books from the State Library at Austin. This shipment is a part of the series of books known as the "travelling library" and is loaned to various civic organizations for a three-month period and may be renewed.

This selection contains works of fiction, history, essays, and other topics, many by the leading authors. More new books were ordered Saturday, Mrs. Barnett said, and will be a help in raising the range of the local library to that of a large city.

The credit, we believe, for the establishment some time ago of this library, is due to the Women's Study Club, which woman's organization has done very creditable work in the civic welfare of this city.

The committee is composed of Mrs. R. T. Badger, Mrs. W. H. Gardner, and Mrs. L. C. Hewitt. Mrs. J. H. Barnett is Librarian.

With the cooperation of the citizens of Littlefield, the library committee states, this public library can and will be built into a vital organization, working for the benefit of the people of the community. They ask that every one take advantage of the opportunities offered and to tell others to visit the library. Such a project deserves the support of every citizen, and will repay in the service it gives to Littlefield.

CITY PLANNING

Five minutes of foresight is worth more than five hours of moaning afterwards. Preconceived plans are necessary for the successful management of any business. And especially is it true in the development of a town.

City planning means the difference between a convenient, beautiful town and a haphazard spreading.

And Littlefield is growing. New buildings are going up in every section of the city. Right now, the building is on well defined streets. But before long, definite streetways are going to be filled. And then what? Will new buildings be allowed on any location?

With no serious handicaps, Littlefield is destined to be a fair sized town. Present plans will not cover the expansion. Would it not be a wise thing to do to make plans now for the future? A systematic system of streets could be blocked out, zones established, and building guided by plans which foresee the results of the coming years.

The Dollar Bride

by Mary Imlay Taylor

TEENTH INSTALLMENT THE STORY SO FAR

Gordon trades herself in with Dr. Richard Morgan for a thousand dollars—to her family from the disgrace of her father's theft of that money. Nancy loves the young Page Roemer, and she is loved by Helena Haddon, the young married woman. Helena's husband, however, holds her in the clutches of a woman. After the ceremony, Nancy goes to her parents home, and conveys to her husband, Mr. Gordon, the daughter from what he considers a shameful marriage, sells it to his friend Major Lomax, and it is to the original owner. The jealous Richards interest in her, although she knows nothing of marriage, and tries to make a go of it. Once Page comes to Nancy's aid and makes love to her. Nancy—the loves Page but refuses to back on her bargain with Richard.

She went on with the story and started perceptibly at the end of the chapter. Nancy, but he came in quietly, greeting them all easily, even smiling.

"I'm late, major," he said, "had a bad case—had to go to the hospital."

Richard, releasing Nancy's hand, turned to him. "Killing yourself, old beggar, I'll warble the said sharply."

"You're hurt?" he exclaimed, bending down to lift her back to her feet.

"It's nothing—I stumbled," she said sullenly.

He was holding her firmly, supporting her, and his deep eyes looked straight into hers.

"Good heavens, Nancy, don't hate me so!" he cried violently.

She pressed her lips determinedly together, tears of anger in her eyes.

"Let me go," she panted, "I didn't go lame on purpose—I'm not throwing myself at your head again!"

He let her go out of his arms as if she had stung him.

"Why don't you go then?" he asked her harshly.

She kept her eyes fixed on his, fury leaping up in them like a consuming flame.

"You thought I ran this way on purpose?" she said slowly, "I didn't want to see you—I don't want to see you at all."

He stood looking at her for a moment, dumb with astonishment, then something—almost a revelation—made the blood go up hotly into his face.

But he did not move. He was watching her, his own breath coming short.

Nancy did not look at him. She tried to walk straight past him to the path. She did achieve three straight firm steps and then a wince of pain shook her. She wavered, stretched out a hand involuntarily and caught at the nearest branch; it saved her from falling, but her face turned white.

He saw it; the angry lover was suddenly merged in the doctor. She was hurt and he could help her. She had done something to her foot in the fall. It would take his skill to mend it. Without a word, he picked her up in his arms and carried her up the long path to his own house.

"Don't struggle so," said Richard sharply, "if you've hurt your ankle you'll make it worse. I'm going to bind it for you."

As he spoke he carried her into his office and put her gently down on the old leather lounge in the corner. Nancy's impulse to spring up vanished with a new pang in her ankle, and he was taking off her shoe and feeling of her foot. Then, ignoring her, he went to the door and called sharply, "Mammy Polk, some hot water!"

Nancy sitting on the side of the lounge, clenched her hands on the edge of it until her knuckles whitened. How cool he was! It made her even hotter with anger to see how cool he was.

"Ain't swelled any, Mist' Richard," Mammy Polk observed dryly, on her knees to help him.

Nancy winced. "She thinks I'm playing hurt," she thought.

Richard's hands were deft and fine on her ankle. He bound it swiftly, neatly, thoroughly.

"There, mammy, that's a figure eight—see?" he said good naturedly, and then, pushing aside the hot water, "that's all, you can take the bowl away now."

Mammy rose slowly to her feet. "I reckon you-all forgets I've got ter put on her stockin' fo' her," she remarked with dignity.

But Nancy had snatched it up and pulled it on herself.

"I'm going right home," she said. Mammy Polk courtesied. "If you-all wants me I'm right out in de kitchen, peelin' potatoes," she said majestically. "I reckon three ain't comp'ny no-ways," she added.

Nancy, lacing her shoe frantically stared after her with furious eyes.

"Richard, you've told her!" she cried.

He raised his eyes without a smile. "Is there any reason to hate me, Nancy?" he asked dryly, "I haven't told her."

She was ashamed of her unreasonable anger.

"I'm sorry," she said in a low voice—"I thrust myself into your life, I—was just sordid!"

He looked at her, passion in his eyes. "I love you," he answered; "I want the chance to teach you to love me."

She shook her head. "You don't know me—I'm not a good woman to have for a wife—I—" she stopped, gasping, and then, hotly: "I've let Page Roemer kiss me—since we were married!"

In spite of himself he started. The instinct of the caveman to seize his woman and keep her, leaped up in him. Suddenly he put his arms around Nancy and kissed her. He kissed her forehead, her cheeks, her lips, her throat. Then she wrenched herself free, hot and trembling.

"How dare you!" she cried.

"How dare I?" he laughed bitterly, "didn't you tell me that you let Page Roemer kiss you? And I'm your husband! Would you rather have another man kiss you?"

She was furious, her face glowed with color. "Let me go," she cried, "I hate you! Let me go—you said you didn't want a woman who didn't love you."

"Yes, I know it!" he said hoarsely. "I know it—I thought I could let you go, but what if I can't? What if my love is too strong for it—if—" he caught her hands now and held them, looking down at her. Love in his face, love triumphant and beautiful, but dominant and selfish, too. "Suppose I will not let you go?"

She panted, trying to break away from his hold, her eyes ablaze with anger.

"You've got to let me go—you—" she wet her parched lips—"you paid for me—that's how you feel, I know it—and you've taken half the money back. You've got to let me go!"

He flung her hands from him, rising to his feet, his face dark.

"You love that fellow! You want Roemer's kisses not mine! I—" he choked with fury—"he shan't have you! he began to walk up and down the room; "he shan't have you, do you hear me, Nancy?"

He stopped short. The door of his office stood ajar and he suddenly saw a woman's figure coming down the hall. Unannounced, Mammy Polk had admitted a patient. It was Helena Haddon.

Nancy stay here—I'll take her into the other room," he said below his breath, going to meet his visitor.

But Nancy had struggled to her feet. "I'm going home," she gasped and steadied herself, leaning on the table beside her.

Helena heard her. "Don't let me break in on another patient," she said smiling and then coming to the door: "Why Miss Gordon, are you ill, too?"

Richard flushed. "It's a twisted ankle," he said briefly, "let me take you into the library, Mrs. Haddon; Miss Gordon can't walk very well yet, the ankle's just bandaged."

"I'm sorry—" Helena began.

But Nancy cut them both short; she straightened herself and began to walk quite steadily across the room.

"I'm going home," she said.

"Sit down," Richard ordered sharply, "your foot will twist again!"

Nancy flung him a look that breathed defiance. Agony was shooting through the hurt muscles, but she trod on the foot with an iron will. She had the side door open when Richard sprang to her aid.

"I'll help you home anyway," he said.

But Nancy recoiled from his touch. "Go back—to her!" she whispered, her face flushed still with anger and pain. "I can walk."

Helena stood by the table, drawing off her gloves. Richard noticed it as he came in, bewildered and angry and in doubt. That ankle must hurt horribly, if it hurt at all. The doubt shook him, but he noticed how white and soft Helena's hands looked, and that she had discarded her rings. He did not even notice the usual plain band on the marriage finger.

"I always come at the wrong time, Richard. I'm as inopportune as the measles!"

He pushed a chair forward. "On the contrary," his voice said, "you're always welcome. I hope you're not nervous again, Helena?"

She sank into a chair, putting up her hands with a graceful gesture to push back the light veil she wore.

"Well, I don't sleep at all," she replied with her provoking smile. "I suppose you'd scold dreadfully if I should ask for chloral or morphine or anything—to make me sleep!"

Richard dragged his mind back from its absent contemplation and looked at her intently.

"I wouldn't give it to you," he said gravely.

She smiled drooping her lids over eyes that softened too much when they met his; even a little color went up in her face and transfigured it.

"She's beautiful," he thought reluctantly.

"I've taken lots of it already," she said, laughing quietly. "I increased the dose last night."

"What?"

"Chloral." She stirred in her chair and he saw that her chin was shaking.

"Look here, Helena, this won't do," he spoke kindly, with genuine concern. "Do you know, I ought to tell King?"

"King?" She sat up, turning the blaze of angry eyes on him. "Why King? He's thinking of nothing—of no one—but his new racehorse he got from Lomax. He and the grooms are at him day and night, getting him in shape. He's to race next month. King cares more to have that horse win the race for him—or to win himself in a golf tournament, than he cares for my soul!"

She rose from her chair and went to the window. Helena was winking back hot tears. She had seen Richard's face as he looked at Nancy, and every instinct of her nature leaped up with furious jealousy.

"Richard, I'm wretched—what's the use of lying? King and I hate each other cordially—I—" she covered her face with her hands.

CANYON, Texas, July 10. — Plans are almost complete for the first educational tour of the West Texas State Teachers College which will start with a party of thirty or more on July 17 to spend five weeks in the Rocky Mountain region.

The party will visit Colorado Springs, Denver, Estes Park, Cheyenne, the Jackson Hole country, Yellowstone National Park, Salt Lake City and return by the Grand Junction Colorado fruit region Mesa Verda National Park, Taos, Santa Fe, and Las Vegas.

This tour which is an experiment will enable a limited number of students to carry on work in two courses and at the same time receive a liberal education and vacation from their travel. Professor Frank R. Phillips, who is in charge of the tour, states that every college and every city along the way has cooperated with him to make the trip pleasant and profitable for the students who choose to combine regular study and pleasure.

Buying of Farm Land Under Way

WASHINGTON, July 10, (Special.) — The purchase of hundreds of thousands of acres of marginal farm land in the midwest and north central states is in full swing with government agents pushing purchases of land homesteaded by settlers a half-century ago.

Urged on by the devastating effects of drouth with its consequent blight on crops and vanished water supplies the government has begun retiring farmers from what it considers "sub-marginal" acres and returning those acres to the use of birds and other wild game.

Secretary Wallace announced yesterday that $8,500,000 has been set aside from drouth relief and forest purchase funds to begin the retirement program which has been in prospect for two years.

The Rumbacks are always inter-exceedingly progressive in the development of their business and in the interests of Littlefield and territory. One example is the large and modern building housing the bakery, which was erected in 1928 by Sam Rumback. # “Manhattan Melodrama” Pulsating Entertainment

Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy Score as Central Figures in Dramatic Conflict Between Gambler, District Attorney and Woman They Both Love

Moving with dramatic power through a series of unusual situations “Manhattan Melodrama” will be featured at the Palace Theatre tonight (Thursday) and Friday to take its place among the hit pictures of the year.

Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy are the stars.

From the opening scenes, the picture is absorbing entertainment. One of the most thrilling scenes ever filmed is the prologue which re-enacts the fire and panic aboard the excursion steamer General Slocum in New York Harbor in 1904—a tragedy in which more than 1,000 were killed.

Two Inseparable Friends

Out of this horror emerges Blackie Gallagher, played by Clark Gable, and Jim Wade, played by Powell. They are reared together by a kindly old man whose son perished in the Slocum disaster. They are fast friends inseparable.

Their friendship endures through the intervening years, and in early middle age Gable is a big-shot gambler, a powerful and dramatic figure of the city's night life. Powell, still his friend is the district attorney.

C. of C. Will Meet Only Once a Month Instead of Weekly

Luncheon of the chamber of commerce will be held only once a month until September instead of every Tuesday, it was decided in their last meeting. The small number attending the meeting did not justify the weekly meeting, the members decided.

The work of the chamber of commerce will continue, however, through the various committees. Plans were made to send representatives from the commissioners' court and the city to a county meeting at Amherst Tuesday to make application for Lamb County to be placed on the primary relief rolls instead of the secondary as it now is.

Between them, a New York play-girl who loves them both, is Myrna Loy.

Out of this strange set of circumstances comes the body of the story—a plot which never lacks for dramatic moments and suspense. Powell is called upon to sacrifice his career, be false to his oath of office, or to demand the legal execution of his friend. And Gable's final scenes will not soon be forgotten.

It is probably Gable's finest performance since “A Free Soul,” and is somewhat reminiscent of those characterizations in which he made his first great success.

Powell was never more convincing than as the district attorney, ambitious for further political honors, yet torn between love and duty. The picture marks his first appearance for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, which produced the picture.

Noteworthy also, is Miss Loy's performance as Eleanor, who loves both men but marries Powell. The picture marks her elevation to stardom, and it is well deserved; she plays the role with feeling and believable naturalness.

Mrs. E. B. Hewett Meets Will Rogers At Ranch Tuesday

Mrs. E. B. Hewett of Littlefield has read Will Rogers' articles in the newspapers; she has read a whole heap of what other folks had to say about Will, and she has seen him in the movies.

But Tuesday she met him in person at the Halsell Ranch.

Will wasn't all dressed up to receive company; he was roping calves and, according to Mrs. Hewett, “he didn't miss one.”

His son Jimmy, a guest at the Halsell Ranch, also was making a first class job of roping calves.

Will came to Amarillo Tuesday by airplane; breakfasted with his taxi driver and two theater men; made a quick trip to the Halsell Ranch; visited with his son, Jimmy, and his old friend, Emmett Halsell, roping calves meanwhile, and returned to Amarillo in denim trousers, old cowboy boots, and with his shirt tail out.

Wednesday he was visiting his old home in Claremore, Okla. He will soon start on a trip around the world, accompanied by Mrs. Rogers and their sons, Bill and James.

The man who ruined that boy is now wearing your shoes. You are the responsible one. You and others did everything for him. Yours is not the only boy who has been ruined by that method. You have over-protected him. Now he is paying the price.”

ANOTHER DOCTOR told me what he going to do for his son, who was studying medicine. After graduation, the son was to finish his hospital appointment then spend five years in northern and eastern clinics. By that time the father was to have a new hospital ready, perfect in equipment and staff. All the son would have to do would be to walk in, go to work and become famous. He stated that he was trying to spare his son the hard work and drudgery through which he himself passed. I said: “In my judgement, you are doing your boy a great injustice in taking away from him all the things that had such an important part in making you. Your son is doomed if he is anything like the average man!”

Over-Protection in Schools

In no part of the preparation for the duties and responsibilities of life are youngsters more over-protected than they are in our public schools. About the only thing that is not done for them is being the pupil. They are picked up by the buses and carried to and from school. Textbooks are furnished free of cost or concern to them. Hot lunches with iron-bearing spinach and orange juice are supplied when deemed necessary. Their meals, hair, neck, ear and everything else where are inspected daily, sensitive mothers to the contrary notwithstanding. They are inspected, suspected and directed, by well-meaning health nurses. Plays, play grounds and equipment, are furnished and prepared for their amusement. Kitchens, stoves, beds and bedrooms are a part of the school paraphernalia. The children are hiked and “camp-fired” all over the country. One would think the homes out of the commission or the schools full of orphans. And all of this a part of an important program to fit one for the serious responsibilities of life. When their time comes that these free-bus, free-textbook, free-lunch boys are called upon to administer the affairs of the State. But these boys cannot be censured. Their training runs along these lines. And we are doing it, or are we sitting supinely by without protest. I am wondering whether the world would have heard of Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay or Abraham Lincoln, if they had been hauled to and from school, furnished books and fed on orange spinach.

Randall Co. Farmers Sell 2500 Head Cattle

CANYON, Texas, July 12 (to Leader). — Practically all of the cattle have been sold to the county and 2,000 more are inspection as soon as the buyers can get to the job. Only a few head are being received as one of the federal veterinarians transferred from this county. According to the figures, the county Agent W. H. Upchurch, reports are selling 25,600 more head, but this was in the buying the percentage ran per cent, but this was in the to 25 per cent. This indicates the farmers are doing a splendid job of culling their herds. Checks in payment for the cattle are being received almost as fast as they are distributed Tuesday.

Dr. J. D. Simpson Attends Texas State Medical Meeting

Dr. J. W. Simpson recently attended the Texas State Medical Convention held in San Antonio as a delegate from the Lamb-Bailey Cochrane-Hockley Counties Medical Association and states over fifteen hundred medical men were in attendance.

The chief speaker at the convention, according to Dr. Simpson, was Sam E. Thompson, M. D., F. A. C. P. who spoke on “Over Protection in the Home and School,” a portion of which was as follows:

Several years ago I read this story: From a litter of pups two were taken Pet and Heck. As his name indicates Pet found his way into an indulgent home. He lived in a steam-heated room. He slept on a soft bed with blankets and pillows. His baths were given with rigid regularity, followed by combing and brushing. The food he ate was especially prepared. He had no cares, no tasks, no responsibilities. He relied on others for everything. Heck had no home. He was known as a stray. He slept in fence corners and in the woods. He chased, captured and killed for his food. He fought his enemies and matched their wits and skill. He asked no quarter and gave none. He was lean, gaunt, powerful, resourceful and unafraid. The children in the home where Pet lived were playing in the forest; Pet was along for the outing and play. A famished wolf in search of food and driven by the extreme hunger, made a dash for the children. Pet was filled with terror. Resistance did not occur to him. With his ears and tail down, the children unthought of, he fled for home and protection. Heck, on a foraging expedition, appeared on the scene. Without hesitation, and as swift as the sweep of an eagle, he threw himself against the wolf and quickly choked the life out of him.

Over protection made a worthless weakling out of Pet. Responsibility and self-reliability made a hero out of Heck.

Over-Protection in the Home
Except on rare instances, children are given no part in responsibilities and duties of home. So far as their part in keeping the house going is concerned, they are apparently encouraged in the idea that everything is a “free ride”. Financial affairs are never discussed with them. This valuable indispensable training for future responsibilities is denied them entirely and this during the most impressionable period of their lives. No one would have children support themselves, but to give them a part in the affairs of life, however small, brings a sense of responsibility and a sense of appreciation of what is made and what is spent. To earn a thing or to assist in earning it, has a two-fold value—a correct assessment of what is earned and the valuable training growing out of the effort. Not only children but adults grow by doing things, not by sharing things done for them. This is no theory or experiment. It is a cold-blooded, self-evident fact.

Children are assigned no part in the making and maintaining the reputation of the home, and they can be a vital part of it. The home may not need the child's financial aid or his support in its reputation but the child needs it, must have it for the required development to meet and successfully handle the approaching problems of life.

A doctor told me this about his twenty-year-old-boy: “My boy is a serious problem. When I lived in the country, he never fed my horse, built a fire or drew a bucket of water. He has never turned a hand to help me or to do anything for himself. He will not go to school; he will not work. The only thing he is interested in is ‘flivers’ and ‘flappers’! I said: “You are blaming the wrong person.

Contracts for road work have already been let in some of the relief counties, reports stated, and attempts are to be made to get a paving contract for Highway No. 7 through Lamb County.

Reports on the Federal appropriation for the Littlefield water system show that nothing further has been done, though the city commission will call an election within a few days to vote the revenue bonds necessary to receive the aid.
