Welcome Home, Exes! - cwe -

We are looking forward to seeing you again. - cwe -

In gathering the information for '50 Years Ago', it is hard to believe I was here when all that took place. I probably know those of you from 50 years ago better than I do the graduates of recent years. - cwe -

Hard to believe also that some of the recent graduates are your grandchildren!

Years ago as I went to the Hinton school reunions. I wondered why those "old people came to the reunions". Now that I am one, they don't seem so old.

- cwe -These days, you have Facebook to keep up with certain friends. But face-to-face is better.

- cwe -There are lots of activities and

As Reported by . Stormie Meriwether, First Grade Student

I love that story. It was so fun to put an egg on our feet and walk around the room just like the daddy penguin! The best music in first grade was when Hayden was a puppy and Little Jonathan was an onion. Hadley was Bread and Nicholas it. was cheese. Jahir and a bunch of kids were pepperoni. I was a

Avoiding Dehydra-

Swimming is one of the best ways to spend your summer vacation. There is nothing like hopping into the nice cool water on a super hot day. There are dangers however that you need to be aware of before heading to the local pool. One of the biggest threats (and most silent) is dehydration.

Dehydration is an illness which causes extreme electrolyte imbalances in the body. It occurs when you do not take in enough fluids to replace what have been lost through sweat and urination. While dehydration is a danger during any sport of physical exertion, it becomes more so during swimming. This is for two reasons, firstly, when you exercise, you sweat. When you are in the water swimming, you do not realize that you are still sweating and thus losing fluid. Secondly, because you are surrounded by water, your brain is tricked into thinking that you have all the fluid you need, and does not signal your mouth and throat to be thirsty. This can be aggravated further if you are swimming in the ocean. As you swim, you undoubtedly swallow salt water which c

As always, prevention is your first line of defense. As you are swimming, be mindful of your liquid consumption. You will want to avoid alcohol as much as possible as it is a natural diuretic. Fruit juices are not terribly helpful either as they often contain large amounts of sugar. Since your brain will not notify you when you need to drink, make sure that you schedule specific breaks during your swim to drink. You will want to consume at least half a gallon of water each day to prevent problems. This should be increased if you spend longer amounts of time in the water or if the weather is extremely hot. You can also supplement water with sports drinks as they are specially formulated to replace lost electrolytes during physical exertion. These breaks should be scheduled every 15 to 20 minutes during your swim and should allow you to consume 8 ounces of water or fluids to re-hydrate your body.

An ounce of prevention goes a long way to ensuring a fun

I was very afraid I would loose my new lure. Then all of the sudden, Whappp! The biggest fish I've ever seen jumped right out of the water! I reeled fast as I could. He was flopping and splashing and pulling and trying his best to get away. I just kept on reeling him to the dock. When he got to the dock I couldn't reel him up! He was too heavy. I grabbed my fishing line and pulled him over the fence on Now it's no ballet and no school my dock and FLOP! He plopped down on the deck! I could not believe he was so big!
