Board Of Trustee Election April 2

The Board of Trustees of the Wheeler Independent School District has called a Trustee election for Saturday, April 2, 1977.

Heart Campaign Chairmen Named

Coach Jim Hester, of Wheeler High School, has been appointed residential chairman of the Wheeler Heart Campaign, according to Mrs. Boyd Williams, Wheeler County Heart Campaign Chairman. As residential chairman, Hester will direct the Wheeler High School Chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes who will join with more than two million volunteers across America to distribute information and collect money for the Wheeler Heart Campaign, Sunday, February 20, 1977.

"We're dealing with America's Number One Killer," Hester said, "because cardiovascular diseases took more than 950,000 lives last year, out of nearly two million Americans who died of all causes. The cost in lost output due to disability and medical expenses alone were a phenomenal $26.7 billion."

Hester said that volunteers who distribute warning signal and risk-factor information, as they ask for money, are vital to the Heart Association's fight for our lives.

The following Wheeler High Fellowship of Christian Athletes officers and members will be knocking on doors in Wheeler, Sunday, February 20: Jim Verden, Darrell Gaines, Anne McIlhany, Rich Brown, Myron Jolly, Melody Stiles, Rhonda Jennings, Mike Evans, Kyle Lasley, Lynette Gaines, Teresa Hefley, Suzannah McGaughey, Tony Hefley, Kym Watson, Cindy Christner, and Terri Collins. ### Here & There

Laura Guthrie
It must be spring! Or just about. Sunday I saw robins in the yard, hopping and pecking as if they were here to stay. Being creatures of nature they knew that the gentle rain we had all day Friday would bring the worms to the surface. "If winter comes"—and did it come? We are all looking forward to that time that "can't be far behind."

Well, I have missed my family this week! But I've been so busy that I didn't have time to let my mind dwell on it too much. I've always known that work is a panacea for a lot of problems.

Since I didn't get the word into print last week, I will back up a bit.

Vida Brown, week before last, flew to Austin to visit with her brother and take care of some business. Her daughter, Billie, met her there and they all had a real good time.

And back to the Chamber banquet. That's something we shouldn't forget. Not only good food but such enjoyable entertainment. And the whole town should know that the Jim Wright family did a fetching job on the decorations. I wasn't on a committee to select a winner of the awards, but I couldn't have done a better job. I felt very awed was truly earned.

This week end Mary Wofford had as her guest, her niece, Sherri Noah of Amarillo. She came along with a couple of other girls. Luinda Verden teaches at Tascosa, in Amarillo, as does Sherri, so she came to visit her parents, the James Verdens and brother Jim. Janice, a sister who is in school at Snyder, joined them on their trip here.

The N. D. Wares have recently come into possession of a couple of good things. The first of the year they took over the Cable T. V. System and now they have a grandchild—their first. Janice and Steve Barr have presented them with a granddaughter.

Cory Brannon is her name (at least that's the way grandfather spells it). N. D. and Roberta went to Lubbock about the 5th of February to welcome her arrival. Grandmother Roberta is spending some time with her. N. D. and Gary are ready for her to come home.

Immunization

Wheeler exploded for 27 points and outbounded Mobeetie 14-7 in the final quarter to trip Mobeetie, 55-42, in the District 3-B boys' championship game last night in Shamrock.

Trailing 29-28 entering the final period of play, the Mustangs outscored Mobeetie, 27-13, to earn the right to advance into bi-district competition against the titlist from District 4-B

Jim Verden paced the Mustangs with 16 points. Don Brown and Wendell Moore added 15 and 13 points, respectively for the winners.

Ronald Gudel, who fouled out in the fourth period, led Mobeetie with 11 points. Two others, Bryan McCurley and Steven Knoll, added 10 points each for Mobeetie.

The win, played before a standing-room-crowd of 1,000, boosted Wheeler's record to 24-5.

Hawks Protected By State Dept.

LUBBOCK—Of all predaceous birds, the hawk family is the most persecuted and least understood even though they are protected by law.

In this family of birds are the kites, hawks, harriers, and eagles. All of which reside in Texas or migrate across the state twice a year.

Many of these beneficial birds winter in our state but nest in northern latitudes.

The kite family in Texas represented by the white-tailed, swallow-tailed, and Mississippi kites and each deserves greater protection than they have been given.

Large insects, lizards, snakes, and frogs make up the kite's diet. Nearly all their food is taken and eaten on the wing. Farmers observing these small birds will notice the main diet is insects including beetles, moths, locusts, crickets, caterpillars, and other potentially dangerous species.

The term "chicken hawk" has been applied to nearly all hawks but the Cooper's hawk comes closest to this role with an occasional domestic poult included in its diet. Small birds such as sparrows, rodents, and game birds make up 84 percent of the Cooper's diet according to stomach samples analysed across Texas.

The buzzard hawks are large birds with broad wings and rounded tails. They usually soar in wide circles high in the air. Hawks seen across the Panhandle-South Plains in this family include the Swainson's, Ferruginous, and rough-legged hawks.

These hawks are territorial birds that mate for life and usually return to the same nesting area year after year. As a group, these are perhaps Texas' most beneficial hawks.

Their diet consists of field mice, small mammals, fish, crayfish, snakes, frogs, and snails.

The marsh hawk is the only representative of the harrier family in Texas and it is found throughout the state. This bird is easily recognized by its slow wing beat and flight close to the ground. A large white patch at the base of the tail shows distinctly when it is flying.

This hawk can be seen flying over fencerows, playa lake beds, and grain fields looking for food. According to a USDA study of 124 stomachs, 45 percent was mice; 18 percent other small mammals; and 18 percent reptiles, frogs, and insects.

The landowner who is lucky enough to have hawks frequent his property will notice few mice or rats and one bad act such as a hawk making off with a chicken should not mean condemnation for all hawks.

A reduction in the number of hawks will certainly remove one of the most effective natural checks on rodents and insects enjoyed by Texas.

The meeting was called to order with Mrs. Winnie Kiker presiding. The group sang "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us" with Mrs. Jo Bailey at the piano. Mrs. Iris Glisan led in opening prayer.

We began our study on Africa, with everyone answering roll call with a short interesting article on Africa. Mrs. Edith Donaldson gave the article "Time Runs Out for Southern Africa". Mrs. Winnie Kiker gave "Upheaval In South Africa". Those present including the ones mentioned above were: Mrs. Darena Begert, Mrs. Avis Parker, Mrs. Lohberger, Mrs. Charlene Rainey, Mrs. Jill McDaniel, Mrs. Carol Kiker, Mrs. Juanita Fillingim and our guest Mrs. Velma Boren.

Delicious refreshments and an evening of interesting study and visiting was enjoyed by all.

Hawks Protected By State Dept.

LUBBOCK—Of all predaceous birds, the hawk family is the most persecuted and least understood even though they are protected by law.

In this family of birds are the kites, hawks, harriers, and eagles. All of which reside in Texas or migrate across the state twice a year.

Many of these beneficial birds winter in our state but nest in northern latitudes.

The kite family in Texas represented by the white-tailed, swallow-tailed, and Mississippi kites and each deserves greater protection than they have been given.

Large insects, lizards, snakes, and frogs make up the kite's diet. Nearly all their food is taken and eaten on the wing. Farmers observing these small birds will notice the main diet is insects including beetles, moths, locusts, crickets, caterpillars, and other potentially dangerous species.

The term "chicken hawk" has been applied to nearly all hawks but the Cooper's hawk comes closest to this role with an occasional domestic poult included in its diet. Small birds such as sparrows, rodents, and game birds make up 84 percent of the Cooper's diet according to stomach samples analysed across Texas.

The buzzard hawks are large birds with broad wings and rounded tails. They usually soar in wide circles high in the air. Hawks seen across the Panhandle-South Plains in this family include the Swainson's, Ferruginous, and rough-legged hawks.

These hawks are territorial birds that mate for life and usually return to the same nesting area year after year. As a group, these are perhaps Texas' most beneficial hawks.

Their diet consists of field mice, small mammals, fish, crayfish, snakes, frogs, and snails.

The marsh hawk is the only representative of the harrier family in Texas and it is found throughout the state. This bird is easily recognized by its slow wing beat and flight close to the ground. A large white patch at the base of the tail shows distinctly when it is flying.

This hawk can be seen flying over fencerows, playa lake beds, and grain fields looking for food. According to a USDA study of 124 stomachs, 45 percent was mice; 18 percent other small mammals; and 18 percent reptiles, frogs, and insects.

The landowner who is lucky enough to have hawks frequent his property will notice few mice or rats and one bad act such as a hawk making off with a chicken should not mean condemnation for all hawks.

A reduction in the number of hawks will certainly remove one of the most effective natural checks on rodents and insects enjoyed by Texas.

Leola Farris Host Progressive Club

Mrs. Leola Farris was a gracious hostess to the Progressive Study Club and guest with a lovely Mexican Supper on February 10. Table decorations carried out the Valentine motif as the short program following the delicious meal was of the same theme. Bill Owens gave the invocation.

The president, Novella Vanpool called the program to order and welcomed the guests. Members and guests answered the rollcall with a humorous incident in their courtship. This created a scene of much laughter and fun. The ladies then sang for the men, "Let me Call You Sweetheart" and Ruby Lee Sandifer read a humorous poem "When Father Broke His Arm" by Edgar A. Guest.

Following the program table games were played by all attending. Those enjoying the hospitality of the Farris' were: Mesdames Florence George, Doodie Phillips, Zennie Bailey, Anna Green, Pauline Hefley, Irma Kirk, Mildred Porter, Ruby Lee Sandifer, Opal Armstrong, and Messers and Mesdames Lewis Lancaster, Bill Owens, Lindon Sims, Buddy Vanpool, Roy Weatherly and Earl Farris.

In a candlelight ceremony at Ridgecrest Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas, wedding vows were pledged by Cynthia Ann Wale and David W. Jamison on Friday, February 11, 1977, at 7:30 p.m. Reverend Thomas Smith, pastor, read the double ring ceremony. The altar was decorated with candles and Boston fern. Her veil of imported illusion was attached to a brides crown of lace and pearls. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white daisies, carnations, and baby's breath. She also carried two yellow roses giving her mother one as she entered the altar on her fathers arm and the other to the grooms mother as she left on his arm.

Serving as Matron of Honor was Mrs. Michael Don Harrington of Amarillo, Texas. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Ronnie J. Plaster, sister of the bride and also of Amarillo, Texas. The mother of the bride wore a formal dress of apricot knit with matching lace sleeves of wrist length. It featured an empire dropped waistline and full gored skirt. The grooms mother wore a formal dress of powder blue knit with long sleeves, empire waistline and A-line skirt. Their corsages were white carnations with trim to match their dress. Both fathers wore black dinner tux with blue shirts and had white carnation boutonniere.

The groom was dressed in a black dinner tux with matching vest and a ruffled white shirt. His boutonniere was a single white carnation. His Best Man was Richard Sechrist of Amarillo, Texas and groomsman was Jerry Largin of Pampa, Texas. Ushers were Mike Wale of Amarillo, Texas and Ronald Wale of Tulsa, Okla., brothers of the bride. They were all attired in black dinner tux with matching vests and blue ruffled shirts with blue carnation boutonniere.

The guest book was centered on a table covered with a blue cloth overlaid in white illusion net and decorated with a floating candle and daisy arrangement. Mrs. Mike Wale greeted guests.

Cattle grazing is influenced by a number of things. Some of the important ones are types of vegetation, location of water, salt, shade, wind directions and topography.
Generally on an average summer day cows and spend six to ten hours grazing and travel two to five miles. They will spend about twelve hours resting.
Cows usually have two main grazing periods during the day. One from sunrise to midmorning and the second from late afternoon until sunset. Sometimes they will have short grazing periods at other times of the day.
Cattle prefer level areas to graze and will avoid hilly, rocky, areas if possible.
Generally they will water twice daily and areas around water will result in spots of overgrazing. They will go to salt and minerals normally once a day. Salt location can be used as a grazing distribution incentive for cattle. These can be located in areas that are seldom grazed.
Cattle prefer certain plants over other plants. Generally they avoid eat certain grass plants first. This can change as a plant reaches a different stage of growth. Selecting one grass over another will result in a advantage for plants not liked so well. The consequence of this is it causes a weakening and thinning of preferred plants, and the less desirable plants take over. After years of overgrazing a good pasture can change into one of low-production and undesirable plants.
The Wheeler Soil Conservation Service assisting the Wheeler County Soil and Water Conservation District are willing to assist in any problems related to grass management. Please call or come by the office in Wheeler.
