HEAD HONCHO NEEDS NO ALIBI - A south - central Indiana daily newspaper assigned a reporter to cover a trial of a man which had been venued to another county. The charge against the defendant was assault and battery on a 14 - year - old girl.

The reporter did fine for a while, but mid - way in the article, he began referring to the presiding judge as the defendant, stating: "Blank (name of judge) is charged with an alleged attack on a girl who was 14 years old at the time." The final paragraph again gave the judge's name and said he was pleading an alibi defense.

The newspaper didn't discover the error until the press run was complete and the newspaper was distributed. It sat back and prayed no one would notice it.

Someone did. Shortly thereafter, it received a letter from the judge, which read as follows:

"I enclose a Xerox copy from your paper which has just been handed to me. I appreciate the fact that, because of bad circulation, your paper is understaffed and your writers are poorly trained. The subject matter of this article was highly technical and, therefore, the writer of this article could not be expected to get it right the very first time. I, therefore, am going to point out some of the idiom used in court and identify the cast of characters."

"First, the judge (that's me) sits up in front of the courtroom on a raised dais with a robe on and scowls at people. Secondly, the defendant is the fellow sitting at counsel table with his lawyer, with an apprehensive look on his face. Thirdly, the prosecutor is the young man sitting at the other counsel table representing truth and justice. The press are those people sitting over at the side of the courtroom with long hair, whiskers, and barefooted."

"Now, in criminal proceedings, the judge is not charged with crime. The defendant is charged with crime. The judge does not claim alibi. The defendant claims alibi. The judge does not have to have an alibi. He is the head honcho."

from the Kansas Press Assn.

ITS TICK AND CHIGGER TIME AGAIN - Ticks and chiggers (red bugs) are well known to almost all Texans who roam around in the country. Both are arthropods, or joint - legged animals, without backbones, but are not insects. It is easy to spot where they are by the itching that results after a walk through high grass and weeds or thick bushes.

The mild winter across most of Texas will bring a large population of these pests to campers, fishermen, and hikers. Temporary protection can be accomplished by applying a commercial repellent to clothing directly from the bottle or spray can. Shoe tops, stockings, cuffs, and the edges of all openings in clothing should be treated. All exposed parts of the skin except the face should also be sprayed with an insect repellent.

Ticks do not usually cause discomfort; however, embedded ticks must be removed carefully so as not to leave the mouthparts in the skin and cause infection. The idea is to make it impossible for the tick to breathe through its body by covering it with alcohol, lighter fluid or nail polish remover. Hopefully, the tick will remove its head from the skin - but this does take a little time.

Chiggers cause more physical discomfort and annoyance than ticks (some species of chiggers may transmit disease to man but the chances of this happening are slim). The adult chigger spends the winter in the earth or some other place protected from the cold. During the warm days of spring, they come out to select a humid, shady spot to lay their eggs.

When these hatch, we have the first of several generations for the year. The larva, being a parasite, needs a host. Man, along with some 70 other types of mammals, birds, and even reptiles qualify as a host for the larva.

Chiggers do not burrow into the skin, but attach themselves by inserting their mouth parts into it, often in a hair follicle or pore. Here they inject the fluid; the fluid dissolves the tissues; the chiggers suck up the dissolved tissue.

This same fluid causes the red spot we see and makes the skin swell. This in turn causes the bump which actually rises around the chigger, giving the impression that he has burrowed into the skin.

When the chigger gets his fill of tissue, he drops off and changes into a second form. These are nymphs which later change into adults. Both nymphs and adult chiggers feed on insect eggs, small insects and other organisms found around wood decaying substances.

The entire cycle of egg, larva, nymph, adult and back to more eggs can be completed in less than two months. So it is easy to get several generations of chiggers in one season.

Precautions to avoid ticks and chiggers may prevent some disease and quite a lot of discomfort.

City Gets Inch Rain

An even inch of rain that fell shortly after 5 p.m. Tuesday in Eastland brought the city's total for the month to 2.92 inches and for the year to 9.45 inches, according to official Weather Observer James Dabney.

Thoughts For Today By Bobby Boudreaux

You have heard it said, "Times change, but people don't." This is ridiculous. Times change only because people change. Changing times come about only because people change. Sociological concepts and moral values. Sometimes changing times are dynamic, sometimes deplorable. In our last several generations we have seen both. Changing times, either for the good or bad, are a direct result of either adhering to or disregarding the spiritual laws that a man shall "reap what he sows". When we sow seeds of love, trust, hope and faith, we reap a harvest of happiness in return. When we sow seeds of suspicion, envy, greed or hate, we harvest the thorns of unhappiness. In present day language, we often refer to "cause and effect". When we see or realize a bad "effect", we often try to camouflage the "cause" with alibis or excuses. Wouldn't it be better for all of us to de-emphasize present day language of "cause and effect" and re-emphasize God's words: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap".....

2 Students And 2 Teachers Selected To Attend Nuclear Science Symposium

Two students and two teachers from Eastland area high schools have been selected to attend the 16th Annual Texas Nuclear Science Symposium to be held at the University of Texas at Austin June 1-4.

The symposium is sponsored each year by the university and the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation. Students and teachers attending from the area are sponsored by Texas Electric Service Co., a member firm of the atomic energy research foundation.

Students selected to attend are: Janet Frost, Eastland High School and Bruce Elsom, Ranger High School.

Teachers accompanying them will be: Bill Boles, Eastland High School and John Hudson, Ranger High School. Texas Electric is currently building a nuclear power plant near Glen Rose along with Texas Power & Light and Dallas Power & Light. The 2.3 million - kilowatt plant, which will be complete by 1982, will help provide a reliable future electricity supply while helping to minimize future increases in the cost of electricity.

The three companies are also building power plants to be fueled by East Texas lignite coal. While all energy costs will be rising in the years ahead, the switch to lignite and nuclear fuel will keep costs lower than they would be with continued use of natural gas or oil for fuel.

Nuclear and other energy sources will be discussed at the four - day Austin symposium, to be attended by some 500 outstanding science students and their teachers from throughout the state. Scientists and engineers from universities, government laboratories and industry will present talks on such topics as nuclear power reactors, nuclear reactor safety, the potentials of atomic energy, and future energy sources.

Among the speakers on the program are Dr. Louis Rosen of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory; Dr. John Rust, recently retired as professor of pharmacology and radiology at the University of Chicago; and Dr. Richard E. Wainerd, associate vice president for academic affairs and professor of chemical engineering at Texas A&M University.

Speakers from the University of Texas on the program include Dr. H.H. Woodson, chairman of the Center for Energy Studies; Dr. W.E. Drummond, director of the Fusion Research Center; Dr. Linn Draper, director of the Nuclear Reactor Laboratory; and Dr. R.H. Bing, chairman of the mathematics department.

Other speakers are Dr. Knox Broom Jr., manager of power services for Brown & Root Inc. of Houston; and Monta Zengerle, research biologist for Texas Electric Service Co.

The Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation is made up of 10 investor - owned electric utility companies in Texas (including Texas Electric). The foundation was created in 1957 for the advancement of knowledge of energy, especially nuclear energy, through scientific and educational activities. Its research efforts are directed toward controlling fusion reactions at laboratories of the University of Texas at Austin, with the ultimate goal of using nuclear fusion energy for the generation of electricity.

Crews Assist

Extensive damage was caused by wind, rain and hail in Graham early Tuesday morning. Winds were up to 110 miles per hour and they received about four inches of rain mixed with hail within 35 minutes.

Texas Electric sent four crews from Eastland, two crews from Wichita Falls and two crews from Fort Worth to Graham Tuesday morning. These crews worked for 24 hours and were relieved Wednesday by two crews from Eastland and two from Fort Worth, according to Doyle Maxwell of Eastland.

Approximately 25 primary lines were broken, mostly due to fallen trees.

Eastland was in the dark several times during the morning Tuesday. The storm was the reason for our lights blinking. Even though we didn't have any results until later in the day, the storm was affecting lines coming from Breckenridge.

TESCO Announces Agreement

Texas Electric Service Co. today announced an agreement to acquire coal from New Mexico for use in making electricity starting in the mid-1980's.

The company said a memorandum of intent has been signed by Texas Utilities Services Inc. (a TESCO affiliate) with Santa Fe Industries Inc. of Chicago for rights to more than 550 million tons of low - sulfur coal.

The coal is located in three deposits in North Central New Mexico. It will be used to make electricity for the customers of TESCO, Dallas Power and Light, and Texas Power & Light, the three operating companies of the Texas Utilities Co. system.

"This action is another step in our program to assure a long - range fuel supply and to keep electricity for our customers at the lowest possible cost," said W.G. Marquardt, president of TESCO.

Cost of the coal, including mining and transportation, is expected to be well below today's market price for natural gas or oil, Marquardt said.

TESCO's fuel plans also include construction of power plants that use East Texas lignite coal for fuel, and construction of a nuclear power plant near Glen Rose. Fuel supplies for those plants have already been acquired.

Transportation of the coal from New Mexico to Texas is planned primarily on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway.

No firm plans have been made for where the coal will be used, but it is anticipated that some gas - fired plants will be converted to use the coal and some new coal - burning plants will be built in the 1980's.

In addition to the 550 million tons of coal, the utilities will have options on more than 300 million additional tons from the same deposits. Surface mining operations of the coal will include a land reclamation program.

Filled Pastries Are Cause Of Foodborne Illness

COLLEGE STATION - Improperly handled cream - filled pastries are one of the main sources of foodborne illness, Mrs. Sally Coble, a foods and nutrition specialist, says.

"To protect against staph bacteria growing and causing illness, cook cream filling for pastries and custard fillings to at least 165 degrees F. immediately after it is mixed. Then pour it into the baked shell or crust," she said.

Mrs. Coble is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

She said that custards should be baked in the serving dish or crust. Unless these are to be served immediately, refrigerate them promptly at 40 degrees F. or below - and keep them at this temperature until served.

"If pastries have a meringue topping, use only the whites from good quality, clean eggs with uncracked shells. After browning at 425 degrees F., the pastry should be served immediately or refrigerated."

"The key to avoiding foodborne illness from cream - filled pastries is to be sure not to let them stand at room temperature - either eat hot from the stove or refrigerate immediately for later eating," she said.

The Caught Generation

COLLEGE STATION--People at middle age may feel like the "Caught generation"--caught between job and family, between spouse and demanding children, between family and older parents, or between business and volunteer services. Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist says.

"Caught between any social forces makes it hard to see a way out. So the middle-aged person may find it difficult to gain satisfaction by reflecting on his youthful accomplishments--and dread planning for success or retirement.

"The cliché at twenty, one can save the world; at fifty he hopes to save a little salary" has more truth than we like to admit," the specialist added. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Besides reevaluating their career, middle-aged people often reconsider their marriage at this time.

"Some couples realize their marriage will never become what they had assumed it would be. Then they face other decisions--should one settle for second best and stay together or should a couple face divorce and a new start.

"But some couples find marriage a bulwark during middle age. The comfort of making decisions together rather than alone, the companionship or a loved one, rather than searching and struggling for a new love relationships, the prestige of being married and not single, and living more comfortably with more money (usually) and 'things' than ever before are reasons many couples give for enjoying their spouse in the 'empty nest' years," she said.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights
 by Lyndell Williams
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Two runoff races on the June 5 Democratic ballot are turning into tough contests.
 State Rep. Jon Newton, 35, of Beeville, and former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler, 68, of Grapeland are attacking each other heavily in the Railroad Commission race.
 Carl Dally, 52, of Houston is heating up his own campaign for the Court of Criminal Appeals against W. T. Phillips, 63, of Waco, although in a more-restrained, judicial key.
 Newton hammers hard on Sadler's record as land commissioner in the 1960's. He notes Sadler put in less than fulltime at the job and was once investigated for having an employee of the land office working in a hotel at Palestine.
 Newton also labels Sadler as a figure from the Great Depression, noting his opponent's 1939-1942 service on the Railroad Commission.
 Sadler retaliates by terming Newton an "embryo energy expert," not yet born when he (Sadler) began his single term on the oil, gas and transportation regulatory agency. The former commissioner also dwells at length on Newton's financial aid from oil industry representatives and recently claimed the young lawmaker once voted against investigation of the Sharpstown scandals.
 Dally claims better qualifications than Phillips on strength of his service as a commissioner in aid to the court for five years and questions whether his opponent (who led in first primary voting) has been active in practicing criminal law during recent years.

Rules Set
 Texas Public Utility Commission adopted new rules providing that utility companies cannot add late charges to homeowners' bills. "Net" as stated on monthly bills must reflect a true discount for early payment.
 In return, companies were allowed to disconnect service for non-payment 20 days after a bill is sent out.
 Other rules would make telephone companies refund money if telephones are out of order eight hours after faulty service is reported unless the trouble is caused by a disaster or the customer's own acts.
 Persons over 65 would be exempt from utility deposits unless they owe money from two years back. Rules would also require the utilities to pay interest on deposit, and prohibit them from requiring deposits for home service where customers have a good record with similar connections and furnish evidence of a good credit rating or written guarantee of payment.
 On the other hand, the commission allowed about $20 million in advertising expenditures and charitable contributions to be passed along to utility customers by companies.

Release Ordered
 The State Insurance Board has been ordered by a district judge here to release its application for a $1.2 million federal grant to finance a plan to regulate hospital charges.
 Atty. Gen. John Hill brought suit to make the document public.

AG Opinions
 Attorney General Hill said the Department of Public Safety doesn't have to reveal the list it keeps of people who come and go at the Texas governor's mansion.
 In other simultaneous interpretations of the open records act, Hill concluded:
 • Names and addresses of burglary victims are public information.
 • A city is not required to provide criminal records of drivers in driving while intoxicated arrests.
 • A request to a sheriff for "any record your department has" on an individual should be rejected.

conviction of a Houston woman who gave her husband Second capsules while he was asleep.

Appointments
 Lynn M. Moak, former assistant comptroller, will coordinate research for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on school finance, property tax reform and the new state budget.
 Lee C. Clyburn will become administrative assistant to Atty. Gen. John Hill, and Jim Bushala will move up to the post of executive assistant to the attorney general, succeeding John W. Odam.

Short Snorts
 Comptroller Bob Bullock warned diesel rig truckers against attempts to violate Texas motor fuel laws.
 Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe will present 1976 Janey Briscoe Bicentennial awards for Texas beautification efforts in San Antonio June 11. A total of 127 cities and organizations participated in the competition.
 A special election was set July 17 in Mart to pick a new mayor and two other city council members.
 Cornerstone of the new Texas Law Center was set in ceremonies May 22. A time capsule placed there will be opened in 2026.

Courts Speak
 The State Supreme Court set a June 16 hearing on a suit to determine if the state can levy charges on river dredgers for spill from a pipeline company's wharves on the Neches River near Port Arthur.
 The high court upheld Arlington in an annexation controversy with the Kennedale community.
 In another case, the Supreme Court affirmed a $2,500 award to a Fort Worth man fired for instituting a workmen's compensation claim.
 Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the murder

From The Living Bible

SHABBOUTH

Moses was up on the mountain with the Lord for forty days and forty nights, and in all that time he neither ate nor drank. At that time God wrote out the Covenant—the Ten Commandments—on the stone tablets. Moses didn't realize as he came back down the mountain with the tablets that his face glowed from being in the presence of God. Because of this radiance upon his face, Aaron and the people of Israel were afraid to come near him.

Adios, Au Revoir, Auf Wiedersehen Theme Of Thursday Club

Adios, Au Revoir, Auf Wiedersehen, and goodbye was the theme of the Thursday Afternoon Club as the members met in the beautiful hilltop home of Mrs. Dan Childress for a covered dish luncheon on May 20th. Mrs. Iral Inzer was Program Leader for the day and read the quotation from the yearbook, "When you come to the end of a perfect year--year--" And you sit alone with your thoughts". She read the Club Collect, stressing the inspiration and meaning of the advice and kindly words of Mary Stewart, the author.

Mrs. H.L. Hassell presided over the business session and displayed the main part of the Bicentennial quilt which will soon be finished. She gave a talk on the past two years, 1974-1976 on Parade, during her presidency of the club. The new officers for the years 1976-1978 were installed. Each outgoing officer presented her successor with a pink carnation.

The club flower, as a symbol of office. The new president of the club, Mrs. L.E. Corbell, gave a short talk on our goals for the coming year. The following members were present: Mmes W.L. Bourdeau, W.J. Cauble, Dan Childress, I.F. Corbell, Pat Crawford.

Gorman Bicentennial Summer To Begin

The Gorman Bicentennial Summer will begin on Friday night, May 28, with a Country and Western Dance. The dance will be held at the Birdsong Warehouse on Texas Hwy. 6 east. In 1919, Desdemona was the site of an oil discovery that gave the town a permanent place in the annals of boom town folklore.

The Midas-rich town that might have been

"If I'd known I was going to live so long I'd have taken better care of myself when I was young."

Charlie Greenhaw, 78, veteran of the Desdemona oil boom.

By MARY FICKLEN

County community in the cross timbers, 125 miles southwest of Dallas, looks at oil and gas prices today and wishes its youth had been more conservative.

Like Charlie Greenhaw, Desdemona is sprightly for its age.

Late spring rains greened up coastal bermuda and range grasses. The cattle are putting on weight.

Air-conditioned tractors tall as a small house creep across fields planting peanuts.

Some of the local folks are going to Hawaii this month.

There's a labor shortage, and association president Moody B. Koonce searches for workers to maintain the cemetery.

At the cafe adjoining the Post Office, coffee talk hits on the necessity for raising estate tax exemptions from $60,000 to $200,000.

Nobody has time for regrets.

But when the Post Office crowd compares electricity bills or sees another headline about the energy crisis, somebody may say, "Man alive, if they had just known then what they know now."

"They" means oil producers, drillers, landowners, government regulators, conservationists.

"Then" refers to 1918 and 1919 when Desdemona, or Hogtown, was the site of an oil discovery which gave the town a permanent place in the annals of boom town folklore.

Oil then flowed from the 3,000-foot deep, dark gray, porous Desdemona oil sand in rivers of sweet-smelling, high gravity, paraffin base, golden-green crude.

The crude went over the top of wooden storage tanks and filled earthen over-flow pools. Sometimes it ran over the levees, across the roads, down barrow ditches, into Hog Creek, and dotted the Leon River.

Gas spewed 100 feet high from open holes and floated, on humid days, in low-lying clouds over abandoned cotton fields.

And, as driller John McCain used to say, "a man could pick up more money on the streets of Hogtown than than he could make working a few years later."

If "they" had known that gas was immensely valuable, both in itself and as a primer for oil production, and if they had been subject to current Railroad Commission regulations, Desdemona might be the Midas-rich community today it was at 40.

Bill Greenhaw, operator of several stripper wells, and C. M. "Pug" Guthery, who plans to drill a shallow well next year, are among those who believe that much of the oil remains in the old pool.

"The trouble is in getting it out," says Greenhaw. "To recover oil you have to have pressure to push it up or you have to use something to pull it up."

"Vacuum is one way to pull it up. The wells here now generally operate off the Mobil plant vacuum. That gets expensive on new wells. Gas pressure was the easy way to get the oil."

Desdemona was developed by independent operators with small leases. Rigs abutted each other over the townsite, and the production philosophy was "get the crude up before the s.o.b. next to you gets it."

Gas usually preceded a gusher. Drillers let the wells blow in hopes that oil would follow.

The Payne gasser, alone threw an estimated 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 cubic feet of gas into the atmosphere daily for nearly two months.

At 1976 prices the Payne wasted, conservatively, $2 billion in energy.

Conservation of the gas would have lengthened and enriched production in the field for decades.

Today it is hard to separate fact from myth about Desdemona.

The myth — rural community, rich overnight, runs wild with adventurers, crime, and corruption, then poorer than ever — again overnight — began with reporters who compared it with the Klondike.

Stories grew as a generation of tool pushers and roustabouts, who got their first smell of black gold at Hogtown, repeated them around the world.

Mrs. Jimmy (Inez Snodgrass) Heeter, a native and a Baylor University student in 1918, debunks the "poverty" of her neighbors.

"People wrote that we were starving and ignorant when the strike came," she says, bright eyes snapping.

"None of that was true. The people here had land, good horses, livestock, and plenty to eat. It had been dry, and nobody had much cash, but Desdemona had substantial people, big families. Doctors, lawyers, school teachers, and fine citizens came from those families."

"One of the oldest continuing settlements west of the Brazos River, the community developed after the Blairs and Ellisons and other pioneers 'fortified up' near spring-fed Hog Creek during the Civil War.

It was originally called Hogtown, probably because many hogs ran free along the creek. In 1877, it became Desdemona when the Post Office was established and named after farmer J. J. Wynn's daughter.

In 1918, Desdemona had a school with upper grades, three churches, and served as a trading center for farmers from 5 to 10 miles around.

J. W. "Shorty" Carruth, town barber, talked settlers into putting up money for an oil well on his Hog Creek place in 1914. In the spring of 1918, Tom Dees, a Midlothian banker, started another well on Carruth's place. Neither hole went beyond 1,000 feet, and neither looked promising.

Walter Greenhaw worked on the Dees well and remembers that the star rig wasn't much bigger than a water well driller.

Local people organized the Hog Creek Oil Company. They contracted for a 3,500-foot well south of town on the Joe Duke place.

About midnight, Labor Day, 1918, the Duke hit gas and caught fire. The earth rumbled. Flaming oil blew 300 feet high.

"The roar woke up the world," says Ben Koonce, a Duke neighbor.

The next day, he adds, "everybody went out and bought an automobile. I spent all fall teaching folks to drive."

The next day, too, Dees sold half of his 2,000 acres in leases to Mobil (then Magnolia) Oil Company for $750,000 and paid off $10,000 for each $100 invested in the venture by his friends.

The Duke burned three days, lighting up the countryside for several miles.

Speculators arrived within hours of the roar. They offered everything from Model Ts to thousands of dollars for leases and royalty (the 1/3 of production income that a landowner retains when he leases).

Within a month 10 wells had been started. Six months later a reporter counted 329 wooden derricks in plain sight from Main Street.

Population was estimated at 10,000, or 20,000, even 50,000.

Drilling crews worked 12-hour shifts, two shifts a day.

Oil, at World War I prices, sold from $3 to $4 a barrel.

The Duke No. 1 gauged 2,000 barrels daily, the nearby Knowles, 8,000, the Hogg, 15,000.

Skelly-Sankey, forerunner of the Skelly Oil Company, hit 14 producers on 120 acres. Twenty-seven producers came in on the Hamilton place, a farm half that size.

Fortunes were truly made within days.

Questions remain about the town's "wildness."

Felix Sparks says ex-doughboys came to the field looking for work and oil field wages rather than adventure.

"There wasn't as much meanness then as there is now. People didn't have to worry about somebody breaking into their home," he says.

The Snodgrass house on Main Street was never locked the whole time of the boom, according to Mrs. Heeter.

"There was thievery around the drilling rigs," says John Arnold. "Somebody might steal a string of pipe if they needed it, but crime wasn't like it is today."

Charlie Greenhaw, Cisco, says there were lots of fistfights and some high-jacking.

"Most of the fights started when drillers from up north or way off made remarks about how green us Texas boys were. We'd fight one night and get up and work together the next day."

—He and Koonce and Mrs. Ford Reid say they never knew of a murder, but Dr. Audie Brown, Gorman, and Arlie Brown, Stephenville, remember that a man's body was found in a slush pit on the Brown place.

The town was first governed by a temporary committee headed by Dr. S. E. Snodgrass. Later citizens voted 26-0 to incorporate.

Lawmen were accused of joining forces with crooks who ran gambling houses like The Cottage and brothels like the Royal Duke.

Ku Klux Klansmen marched to protest corruption. American Legionnaires ran off several officials. Texas Rangers came to keep order in April, 1920.

Greenhaw says, "The gamblers and girls didn't bother working people, and they operated even after Rangers arrived."

"The gamblers and women left when the men and the money left," he says.

He witnessed the riot when workmen pulled the jail over with a rig sandline and freed a man arrested for refusing to pay what he considered an exorbitant price for a steak. The mob then vandalized restaurants and some stores, festooning the street with bolts of candy-striped silk shirting.

"Lawyers and promoters were the worst crooks in Hogtown," says Greenhaw. "They robbed everybody they could get a hold of."

Some people lost fortunes by guessing wrong — selling royalty or leasing too early or too late — too early if a good well came in, too late if the hole nearby was dry.

Others, however, were conned. "People here trusted each other," says Mrs. Heeter. "A man's word or his handshake was considered good." Speculators exploited that trust.

Most landowners missed by failing in 1919, retaining mineral rights in local holdings, but leasing or selling surface rights.

In 1919, 7,375,825 barrels of oil were sold from Desdemona; and in 1921, 2,488,755. Production was slightly up in 1922, then began a steady decline.

Dozens of wells were capped when they stopped flowing, though by today's standards they would be good producers. Some ran into destructive salt water.

Dry holes defined the size of the pool: it was slightly more than three miles from north to south and about that wide, with the Duke in the southeast quadrant and the town in the center.

L. E. "Compound" Clark, retired blacksmith and local political leader, says that when he arrived in 1920 fences were down, livestock roamed wild, fields lay fallow, and slush pits and drilling debris pockmarked the land.

Stories of the town's sudden demise are not accurate.

While similar rural communities lost crossroad stores, schools, and churches in the mid-30s, Desdemona hung on.

In 1938, 11 refineries were in operation.

as farmers switched from cotton to cattle, peanuts, and poultry and from teams and plows to irrigated, fertilized, mechanized agriculture.

About 90 wells produce gas or oil now. A handful go back to 1919. Others were drilled in the 1950s and early '60s. A crooked hole may have sabotaged the most recent try, a dry hole on the Skelly hill.

A Mobil plant distills butane and other products from gas.

The city government dissolved about 1936. A 12-grade school closed in 1969 as smaller families sent fewer than 100 students to enroll, but Desdemona's Mark McKollop made All-State on nearby De Leon High's football championship team last year and Mark Pigg's was "most likely to succeed" in De Leon's senior class.

There are 243 registered voters, according to Clark.

Today, Desdemona still has its lary bench on Main Street where Bill Callum rests, but the oil fields are gone.

Oil tales

Desdemonans have lived to tell the tales of those wild oil boom days

About oil money:

I heard Joe Duke say at a community supper that he and one other fellow were the only millionaires at his table. Of course, he died broke...

Fellows kept coming to our house trying to trade. They would hang around out front. One afternoon a fellow saw my dad. "I'm leaving," the fellow said, "but I'm coming back tomorrow. Are you coming back in the morning?" My dad said, "Why, I live here. This is my home."

When Dad did sell some royalty for $75,000 he got the flu. He gave me the check to take to the bank. I was just a kid, and I sure felt important, depositing $75,000 in the bank.

Ben Koonce

On crime:

The gambler on one side of the street would be raided, and they would be in operation before officers had completed raids across the street.

Charlie Greenhaw

One time a flea bag hotel caught fire, and all the girls came running out into the street, dragging their mattresses behind them.

Dr. Audie Brown

A driller told me that he and his tool dresser were going to eat, and the dresser said, "Let's rob the game upstairs in that hotel."

The driller said he told the fellow, "Why, man, nobody could rob that game and come out alive." Sometimes there were tens, hundreds of thousands of dollars in one of those games.

The driller sat down in a cafe next door to eat, and in a few minutes a guy came running in and said some fool had robbed the gamblers in the hotel.

Well, the next morning the driller didn't have a tool dresser.

About a week later the dresser showed up. "Did you rob that bunch?" the driller asked.

"You know I didn't rob them," answered the dresser. "You said yourself, no man could rob that bunch and live. Well, I'm alive, ain't I?"

Turned out that the dresser had gone upstairs, told everybody to face the wall with their hands up. He scooped the money into a bag, stepped out on the outside stair landing, dropped down, disappeared in the crowd. There was always a crowd on the streets, no matter what time of day.

The dresser got his things and left. And, you know, the driller said he worked all over the oil fields, but he never did run into that dresser again.

Hardy Tidwell

I had to go to town to get the doctor once, and he was scared to go out at night. He strapped a big pistol on and charged $25 for the call. That was a lot of money then.

The scariest we ever were, was the night the kraut exploded.

We had a lot of cabbage, and, of course, back then everybody saved everything. So the women folks packed a big barrel with kraut. We set it in a side shed and went to bed. We were sleeping out in the yard because it was hot.

Way in the night there was a terrible, loud noise. We thought somebody was shooting at us or had set off an explosion. I jumped up, and I stepped in something wet and gooey. Finally we got a light going, and I saw that the kraut had busted the barrel staves, and kraut was running down the yard.

Ben Koonce

On living conditions:

We'd married in 1917 and lived with my folks until I went into the Army. When I got home after the Duke came in we got a surplus Army tent and lived in it. I made $4 a day firing wood into boilers at drilling rigs.

Felix Sparks

I worked at the telephone office. Not many people had phones, but we got calls from all over the country. They would ask for Mr. so-and-so, and when we said he had no phone, they would say, "Well, can't you go and find him?"

Mrs. Felix Sparks

The Charlie Terrells had so much oil rain down on their roof that they had to move.

Arlie Brown

It had been dry for two years, but the dry after the Duke came in it began to rain. It rained for a year. The roads, none of them were paved — they got to be just deep mud holes, hub cap and wagon wheel deep.

Walter Greenhaw

Everybody had the flu that fall. And people were living in shacks and tents all over. When it got cold they would put a stove in the tent and run a stove pipe out the side or the roof. You can still see old wood piles out in these pastures.

TESCO To Implement Average Billing Plan

Texas Electric Service Co. will implement an "average billing plan" as a new service to residential customers. The new plan, designed to replace the company's current "level pay" plan, will permit customers to pay an average amount each month with automatic monthly adjustments in the average.

Under the old level pay plan, customers who wished to do so could pay a fixed amount each month, avoiding large seasonal fluctuations in their bills. The fixed amount was based on the customer's use and was revised periodically if actual use differed from that being paid for.

"The plan has been a good idea and many of our customers have liked it," said W.G. Marquardt, Texas Electric president. "But it has become more difficult to predict a customer's bill because of changes in use patterns, increasing fuel costs, and increasing rates," he said.

The result has been frequent changes in level pay amounts, and sometimes the changes have been relatively large. The new average billing plan will also level out seasonal fluctuations in bills. But large changes in bill amounts should be avoided, because the customer will pay a new average each month, based on his use over the previous 12 months.

If his payments don't match his use, a small percentage of the difference (10 percent) will be added to his bill.

Customers now on the level pay plan will be switched to the new average billing plan on July 1. Other customers may also request the new plan.

4-H To Represent Eastland County

Eastland County will be well represented at the State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M next week in three first-class demonstrations.

The three teams won top honors at the recent district competition in Stephenville and will be vying for state honors, and presented a practice session for members of the Eastland Lions Club here Tuesday.

Tabby Chambers and Shelly Gray, both of Rising Star, have a horticulture presentation in which they demonstrate preparations and servings of the nutritious sweet potato.

Ordinarily served as a vegetable, the sweet potato may also be incorporated into main dishes, and prepared as fancy desserts, they explained. "They're high in vitamin A and C," they said.

Theresa Scott and Joanna Hounsel, both of Rising Star, gave a family life demonstration on child abuse, pointing out that "The Ugly Subject" may take several forms: abuse, physical, sexual, emotional and neglect, and may be committed by parents and - or adults who are troubled, immature, insecure, mentally ill or psychotic.

Revise Laminack of Gorman and Clint Tucker of Carbon, county agronomy team, demonstrated the keys to increased peanut production, listing them as follows: crop rotation, use of cover crops, correct fertilization, proper land preparation, control of nematoids, weeds, leaf spot, blight and insects, careful seed selection, planting, irrigation and harvesting and curing processes.

County Agent Dee Gordon introduced 4-H leaders Danny Phillips and Susan McMillan who introduced the 4-H demonstrators.

President Ray Pryor presided and guests included Thomas Moore of DeLeon. Tom Ward will have the program next week.

Ronald Bailey Meets With County Commissioners On Road Projects

Three roadside erosion control projects and Highway 183 between Romney and Rising Star were among the main topics discussed by the Eastland County commissioners Monday.

Ronald Bailey, with the Soil Conservation Service, met with commissioners and told of plans for the roadside erosion control projects for the future in cooperation with the county.

Commissioners also agreed to write a letter to the state highway department in Brownwood and to send a copy to Austin concerning Highway 183, between Romney and Rising Star.

The county has already purchased the right-of-way and landowners have moved fences and the area is now ready for work by the state.

This stretch of road is considered to be one of the most dangerous in the state and
