

ROTARIANS AND LIONS HOLD JOINT MEETING Millions Of Voters In 47 States Go To Polls

Administration And Prohibition Are Chief Issues

Members of the Eastland Rotary and Lions Clubs, together with a number of invited guests, heard a splendid address on the subject, "The Pioneers," delivered by a joint meeting of the clubs today at noon by Judge V. H. Stone of Landers, Wyo. Both clubs held business sessions, making up their regular meetings, the Rotarians for Monday and the Lions for today.

Twelve Births, One Death Are Reported Here

Twelve births and one death are reported recorded in Eastland and precinct No. 1, which includes Olden and Mangum for the month of October by Mrs. John Matthews, registrar of births and deaths. This report, which is required by law, shows three babies unnamed. This should not be, Mrs. Matthews states. Parents should see that their children's births, name, etc., are put on record. It may save them much trouble and embarrassment in the future.

Aids Husband's Campaign

NEA New York Bureau Political success for her husband, the Republican candidate for governor of New York, would mean that Mrs. Charles H. Tuttle would be the next first lady of the Empire State. Here she is shown in her most recent posed portrait. She is active in his campaign.

SMALL VOTE IS EXPECTED IN ELECTION

Seasoned Political Observers Predict a Vote Not to Exceed 265,000 Today. DALLAS, Nov. 4.—Texans for whom democracy is a habit as well as a political theory, were expected to install new administrative machinery in the capital plant at Austin today with a vote not exceeding 265,000, according to the forecasts of seasoned political observers. Small unaligned groups of Texas' vast electorate drifted to the polls this morning to vote colorless partisan tickets in a routine manner.

Scenes of vengeful rioting in the capital city of Rio de Janeiro followed the spectacular coup d'etat which brought about the swift overthrow of the Brazilian government. Mobs surged through the Plaza Marcial Floriano, shown at the right, and other main thoroughfares as news of the revolution was broadcast through the city; note, in the background, the dome of Mirao Palace, the Brazilian Senate Building, now in control of a revolutionary committee. At the left is Dr. Washington Luis, the deposed president, who yielded to arrest after hours of defying the rebels from the sanctuary of his executive mansion, the Palacio Guanabara.

Gasoline Plant Explosion Does Much Damage

GARY, Ind., Nov. 4.—Explosion at a high pressure still in the plant of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, largest refinery in the world, caused damage estimated at $750,000 today. No one was injured, and the fire which resulted from the explosion was brought under control by the plant department.

Rangers Guard Against Riots In Hidalgo County

McALLEN, Tex., Nov. 4.—Six Texas Rangers under the command of Captain Bill Sterling mingled with Hidalgo county voters today, following a night of political rallies in which feeling attained a high pitch. It was reported that Capt. Sterling had been told that if an "honest" election were held in Hidalgo county Tuesday it would pass as quietly as a Sunday school picnic. "Special police and many special deputies assisted the ranger force in safeguarding the purity of the polls.

Reports On Boy Scout Collections Are Requested

John M. Mouser, general chairman for the local Boy Scout membership fund campaign, has issued a request for all committee members to have their final reports make returns to him immediately in order that the campaign may be closed as soon as possible. The following gifts and individual names have been published: Southwest Bell Tel. Co. $15.00; Rev. W. T. Turner 2.00; A. L. Clark 2.50; Alex. P. Grocery 15.00; Community Natural Gas Co 15.00.

Newark Gang Leader Killed In Hospital

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 4.—John Passelli, 25, known to the Newark underworld as "The Ape," was shot to death last night in his private room at Newark general hospital, where he had sought refuge from enemies he knew had marked him for execution. The men The Ape apparently trusted walked into the hospital and straight to his room. They fired two shots. Then while attendants waited about in confusion seeking to learn the source of the shots, they walked out again, got in an automobile they had left outside, and drove away.

Shuley Davis Confesses To Forging Checks

In a signed confession given Assistant County Attorney W. B. Collier, Shuley Davis, recently arrested on a number of forgery charges, states that he forged checks on the Lone Star Gas Company and passed them. Davis, in his written confession, stated that a man by the name of John W. Whorton was his accomplice in forging the checks and that he or Whorton cashed them and divided the proceeds. Their plan was to go into a store, buy a small quantity of merchandise and offer the check, getting the balance in cash. Davis, who gave his age as 43 years, lives in Dallas. Whorton, Davis said, also lives in Dallas.

Peter V. Ross, C. S. B. of San Francisco, California, a member of the Board of Lecturership of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Mass., will deliver a lecture at the City Hall in Eastland tonight at 8:00 p. m. Mr. Ross is here by invitation of the First Church of Christ, Scientist of this city. All are most cordially invited to hear the lecture.

Music Clubs Elect Officers At Meet Today

Mrs. S. E. Hittson of Cisco is slated for election as president of the Sixth District Federated Music Clubs today as she was the only nominee for the office. She was formerly vice president of the Federation and will succeed Mrs. J. D. Turk of Amarillo. Representatives from Eastland, Abilene, Coleman, San Angelo, Brownwood and other towns in the district are present at the meeting, with several district and State officers present. Among the officers who are attending are Mrs. W. E. Cheaney of Coleman, first vice-president of the State Board. Mrs. J. O. Montfort of Port Worth State president was not able to attend. The session opened at 9:00 o'clock this morning with Mrs. Hittson presiding and she turned the reins over to Mrs. Turk for the business session.

Dallas Pastors To Preach Politics, Not Religion

DALLAS, Nov. 4.—Dallas pastors drew off the shackles that bound them to purely ecclesiastical matters today, and opened their pulpits to the civil strife that revolves about prohibition, politics, and other matters. The ministers officially selected new texts for sermons at a meeting of the Dallas Pastors' Association yesterday, when 15 of the 40 members present voted for the changed policy, the vote standing 9 to 6.

18,000 Men Will Get Work Getting Ready For Fair

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The heads of 18,000 Chicago families will be given steady employment at $5 a day this winter "dressing up" the city preparation for the 1933 World Fair, according to an announcement by the recently organized state unemployment commission. None but family heads will be employed on the work, which will be undertaken as a means of emergency relief during the general business depression. The plan is to raise money to pay the men through a "community chest fund," to which wealthy residents will be asked to donate.

Good Samaritan Business Has Too Many Drawbacks

DALLAS, Nov. 4.—This good Samaritan business has its advantages; also its unsavory angles, particularly as regards hitch hikers Stanley Emmanuel of Salem, Ore., had decided today, he supported his opinion by showing two bullet holes in his hat. The route from Chicago to the southwest, the magazine salesman picked up a thumper near Memphis. For four days he bought the passenger's meals, and they arrived in Dallas. The car sped to a point on the outskirts of Dallas, Emmanuel gave his guest 50c and was allowed to regain possession of his car. On the way back downtown he discovered two bullet holes in his hat at the time of the explosions. Officers to whom Emmanuel reported said today they might make an arrest.

Wichita Falls Policeman Shoots South Dakota Man

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Nov. 4.—Andrew Jansen, 22, of New Effington, South Dakota, was near death in a hospital here today, both lungs pierced by bullets from the sun of a city policeman. Jess Leverett, the officer, said he fired in self defense when he had halted an automobile containing Jansen and two companions one of the occupants grabbed his flashlight, another struck him, as the car started to move away. Jansen and his companions denied the charges and said they thought the officers were hitchhikers. William and Arthur Greenlund, other occupants of the car, were lodged in jail, but on charges had been filed.

Bandits Rob Jewelry Store

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4.—Four armed bandits, entering a jewelry store here as it was opened for the day, held up M. L. Ziman, the proprietor, his brother, and two clerks, and escaped with diamonds valued at $7,000. The bandits overtook a $700 cash payroll of the company, which was in the open vault.

Delegation From Menard County See Courthouse

A delegation of about fifteen citizens from Menard county, headed by County Judge J. W. Matthews and County Attorney Joe P. Fluck of Menard, were in Eastland Monday for the purpose of inspecting Eastland county's new courthouse. They stated that Menard county was planning to build a new courthouse soon. The delegation was very much favorably impressed with the Eastland county building, after having thoroughly inspected it and secured data as to cost, kinds of materials used in its construction, etc.

Little Interest Is Being Taken In Election Here

Very little interest was being taken in the election here today and at 2:30 o'clock only 222 votes had been cast. The election judges estimated that only about 450 votes would be cast before the poll close at 7:00 o'clock tonight. The Telegram is not going to receive the election returns from over the state as it did in the two primary elections as the interest has not been sufficient to justify the extra work and expense.

MORE ABOUT SHEEP AND GOATS

"Sheep and goats, if placed on the farms and ranches of Eastland county, will be the salvation of the county," M. G. Williamson, farmer and business man, told a group of Eastland business men Monday in a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce.

Money necessary to finance every farmer and rancher in this county who wishes to place sheep and goats on his farm, can be secured Mr. Williamson said. He urged those present to continue to work to put the movement over, declaring it could not fail of success if the proper effort is put forth by those interested in it.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S DUTY

It is conceded by many that the women do eightyfive per cent of the buying done by the American people. If this is true then it is the housewife that those who are interested in the "Day It In Eastland County" campaign, must appeal.

When the housewife fully understands that when she buys Eastland county products and buys merchandise from local town and county merchants, she is helping to put money in her own pockets, and that when she demands products grown and produced elsewhere and buys merchandise out of town she is helping to build up the other communities and tearing down her own, she will not do it. Her sense of duty and fairness will not permit her to do it.

LABOR WAS REPRESENTED

C. D. Rattikin, who gave his trade as day laborer, was present at the meeting of Eastland business men Monday morning at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and spoke in the interest of the laboring men. His talk was listened to attentively by those present. He offered some good suggestions and made it clear that the laboring people of Eastland were just as much interested and concerned about the growth and betterment of the town as other classes.

The business men were glad that Mr. Rattikin was present and took part in the meeting. More laboring men should do this. They are just as much a part of the town and a part of the Chamber of Commerce as any one. The Chamber of Commerce is supported by taxes levied by the city for the purpose and if one is a property taxpayer in the city he automatically becomes a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

A CLOUD WITH A SILVER LINING

A September increase in the output of factories and in residential buildings reported by the federal reserve board in its summary of business and financial conditions is another cloud with a silver lining. A second cloud with a silver lining is the opinion expressed by Lynn P. Talley, governor of the federal reserve bank of Dallas, at a Credit Men's luncheon "that the country at large had given a good account of itself in the recent business depression." He advised that the application of sound business principles and not political expedient action is to be found the real basis for readjustment. America always scores a comeback. Americans are built that way. History merely repeats itself.

RACE AGAINST HUMAN MISERY

Col. Arthur Woods of New York was named as jobless relief director by Pres. Hoover. He has a long record of achievement, at home and abroad. He is on the job. He will serve without pay. He said most of the work of the federal government would probably lie in coordination of local activity and plans will be adapted to the varying needs of different sections of the country. He asserted the problem would be met with all the information and vigor that can be summoned and the committee named by the president would take immediate steps to meet the situation.

Describing the situation as a "race against human misery," Col. Woods said: "The government must and will win." Procuring jobs for the jobless is one of his tasks. America is the richest of nations and in a race against "human misery" for its effacement the American people are certain to win.

WOMEN AS NIGHT WORKERS

There is a National Woman's political party clamoring for equal rights for women as well as men. That is all the alleged rights and privileges men enjoy the directors of the National Woman's party demand. Walker D. Hines, chairman of the board of the Cotton Textile institute, declared in favor of a plan for the gradual elimination of night work for women in the cotton mills of the country.

This aroused the ire of the national chairman of the woman's party. She entered a vigorous protest. One of the grounds of her protests was that such a plan would throw out of work women who need the wages derived from night work. Furthermore she said women work in cotton mills at night, not for the diversion but because they need the pay and it was silly to argue that to take work away from a group of women in order to give it to a group of men "does not decrease the number of unemployed."

At a New York hotel about 125 representatives of mills from all sections of the United States, including the Southern textile sections, voted unanimously in favor of the abolition of night work for women and minors under 18 years old. This plan would become operative after March 1, 1931, and women and minors would be eliminated gradually in a period of three years. In the not remote past national welfare workers offered bitter opposition to the employment of women and minors for night work in the textile factories of America. Now when a plan for the abolition of night work has been ordered the political director of the National Woman's party advises the organization that it is a discrimination in favor of men.

This is a world of change. Col. Walker D. Hines has stirred up a nest of feminine hornets and the sting of a hornet isn't to be taken in the nature of a joke.

Governor Moody

Does Not Regret Leaving Office

Although making it plain that financial considerations would prevent him holding a public post right now, the governor said he believed the state could well utilize the services of men who are trained in public life. He declined to say where he will locate in his law practice, admitting several offers.

Governor Moody's first public office was that of county attorney at Georgetown. Pat Neff appointed him district attorney. In that office he secured the first penitentiary sentences for mob whipping and became a statewide figure. He ran for attorney general on an anti-klan platform and was elected. He advanced to the governor's office from that post when only 32 years old.

Homicide Charge

May Be Issued Because Of Neglect

DALLAS, Nov. 4.—Charges of negligent homicide were considered today following the death of a child Monday from diphtheria, after its parents refused medical attention because of their religious beliefs. Sunday afternoon Dr. Homer Powell called on the child and diagnosed the case, saying antitoxin was necessary. The parents refused to allow the administration of any medicine, affirming they had called the physician merely to find out what was wrong with their child. The matter has been taken under the advisement of the city health board.

Capone Tries To

'Make Deals' With Chicago Judge

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Reports tempt of Scarface Al Capone "make deals" with two Chicago judges who have led the attack against him and other gangsters was cited by the judges today. The matter has been taken under the advisement of the city health board. In delivering his charge in November grand jury case Judge John P. McCorty stated "overtures" had been made by "the most heralded and powerful gangster leader in Cook county."

He said the gangster had tried to buy back approval of his activities and leave the beer needs here from some remote place. Later Judge John H. Kyle, with McCorty, has led the wide drive against crime, said also to have been approached by representatives of Capone and the gangster had offered to render on a vagrancy warrant leave the city of assured he would not be prosecuted.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The impression grows that the Wickersham Commission, otherwise known as the President's National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, will come along one of these days with a report which will recommend, in effect, light wines and beer.

Your correspondent puts that forth as a matter of common report rather than as a prediction. The commission has said and done so many funny things, both collectively and individually—not forgetting that individual, Chairman George W. Wickersham—that your correspondent is little short of delighted to have predictions about the commission to them as cares to make 'em.

In speculating about this commission one doesn't feel just like depending on the premise that all known facts point to the theory that the commission will suggest modification of the Volstead act. Of course, all the known facts do.

There are several splendid minds among the membership and when you get such a group of acknowledged intellects accompanied by strong prejudices you are likely to get almost anything when everybody gets together and tries to make a report with recommendations.

Can't Ignore Report Assuming that the reader is impartial on the subject of prohibition—a which certainly established a new record for optimism to suggest that a definitely moist recommendation from the commission would cause a great deal of commotion. It simply can't be ignored. Even President Hoover couldn't ignore it. It's his commission. It includes several so-called "best minds" and it is leading with a great national problem.

Everybody knows that Hoover isn't either a fanatical wet or a fanatical dry. It can be stated with confidence that the president is for whatever he thinks is best for the country and for the Republican party and for the success of the party ticket in 1932. In passing the commission's recommendation to Congress, Mr. Hoover can endorse it, remain non-committal or make adverse comment. Assuming that the commission is somewhat less than completely dry in its suggestions, subsequent attitude of the president becomes a lively subject for speculation. Nobody knows, however, what he would do. A great many persons are convinced that there are enough "Hoover men" on the commission—such as Wickersham and Kenneth Mackintosh of Washington—to make sure that the forty attitude is not unsatisfactory to the president.

Those who have watched the commission most closely—where they have taken it seriously—where they think it will be best that the Volstead act be amended to allow the various states to define the term "intoxicating beverage."

According to this belief, the commission is unlikely to suggest any tinkering with the eighteenth amendment. But the recommendation were carried into legislation, those who where Volstead act enforcement difficult—or impossible—would allow themselves light wine and real beer and those who where are really dry would continue to go along on near-prohibition and illicit products.

That proposition wouldn't appeal to the organized drys—the organized wets—who are all well for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But might look attractive to Mr. Hoover as he thinks of 1932. It were publicly to throw the thing into the lap of Congress, announcing that decision on a commission's recommendation is entirely up to the people. Their will might be expressed through their chosen representatives, he might be able to stand on any such strong personal stand on the prohibition law as is likely to be demanded by both presidential candidates in 1932. Of course, it is quite by that the president will do just what he will do in 1932. It is dead certain that he is doing the matter plenty of those everyone is familiar with the book tale of the lad who tamed the giant; and now all fans of the Oil Belt are well-acquainted with the story of how the hitherto lightly-regarded and oft-neglected Eastland Mavericks tamed the Abilene Eagles vir-lity out of the race Friday in the major upsets of all in this district.

Abilene, fresh from a 0-0 battle with Ranger the week before, conceded the game with Eastland, as far as the "experts" were concerned, by a margin of four touchdowns, provided the game coaching staff cared to up the score to that extent.

Which reminds this writer of the story of the man who was attacked by a big dog, barking loudly. The man's companion said: "Don't be alarmed—a bark-dog never bites." To which the man replied: "I know it and you know it, but the question is does dog know it?"

The point in this case being that the "experts" knew Abilene would win with ease and Abilene fans were sure that the Mavericks didn't know it and they show up all the sports writers in the Oil Belt. Which really didn't disgrace the sports writers at all, as the possible exception of the Abilene scribe, of course.

Today, the Eastland Mavericks hear the plaudits of the end-district ringing in their ears all future opponents are view-

Coach Gibson's crew with a handsome amount of respect.

The tie game—6 to 6—in which Eastland outplayed the Eagles and did not eliminate the latter crew from the race but, in conjunction with a tie the week before with Ranger, Abilene has the equivalent of a defeat.

The "Athens of West Texas" stay in the race, comes Saturday when the Eagles meet the undefeated Breckenridge Buckaroos.

Loss to the Buckies—which is rather likely—will sound the death knell of Abilene's flag hopes this year. A victory over Breckenridge would reinstate the Eagles in the race with a loud bang.

The second upset of the past week was Brownwood's victory over Big Spring. The Lions hadn't won a point in a conference game for a year but on the Big Spring gridiron Friday they pushed over touchdown and won, 6 to 0.

Records Are Made No game in the district this season has had as much action as Ranger-Mineral Wells struggle Friday. (All the feature tilts are on that day, by the way).

Finally Ranger began to solve the splendid passing attack of Mineral Wells, to some extent at least, and the Bulldogs pulled out in front, 53 to 13.

Dan McCarty scored six touchdowns and kicked five tries after touchdown to give him 41 points, which is believed to be a scoring record in Oil Belt conference play.

Thornton, Mineral Wells quarterback, threw passes for 251 yards, which is believed to be a district record. Brunson caught 151 yards worth of passes, probably a record for a receiver.

It was the first time this season that the Ranger starting lineup has been scored on—and it was scored on twice.

The Breckenridge Buckaroos steamed through to a 52-7 victory over the Sweetwater Mustangs, who dropped to the cellar as the

Interest Centers In High School Football Races

By THOMAS C. CLUCK
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Nov. 4.—Texas high school football localized and overshadowed by big time games to date, will crash district lines and burst into full power while the college teams round out the season and pack away their mole-skins.

Interest in the state's gridiron fare from Thanksgiving to Christmas is already beyond the lukewarm stage. Increasingly important games as the race narrows and hundreds of schoolboys go the limbo line in 1930 football are dead ahead.

The 1929 race was never narrowed to a single team, and Breckenridge and Port Arthur have shared the championship for a year. They slushed to a tie on the snow-covered Cotton Palace gridiron at Waco and did not play it off.

Thirteen class A teams are now waving unblotted 'scutcheons. Amarillo, Breckenridge, Corsicana, Tyler, Athens, Greenville, Denison, Sherman, Oak Cliff (Dallas), Highland Park, Beaumont, John Reagan and Arkin.

By districts they line up in this order:
District 1
The Amarillo Golden Sandstorms ride the crest, and have practically clinched the sectional honors. They squeezed through a much tighter race for the decision over Lubbock last week on the penetration rule after both failed to score. Pampa has dropped a decision, and trail the Sandies with Lubbock third.

District 2
Breckenridge, goalkeeper of the 1929 bunting, leads the loop with five victories, climaxed by its 52-7 drubbing of Sweetwater. Ranger trails by a length, with one tie against its record. Abilene and Cisco are tied for third place. Cisco has lost one game and Abilene has a tie with Ranger and one with Eastland to mar its record.

District 3
Oak Cliff and Highland Park virtually nailed the Dallas-Port Worth district honors, and if dope pans out should meet Thanksgiving Day in the playoff. Cliff is finishing a form it has not known since 1924, when Roy Lumpkin, W. C. Lynch, Ira Hooper and their mates annexed the State crown.

District 4
For the second consecutive year the Corsicana Tigers shattered the hopes of Paul Tyson's celebrated Waco Tigers, and the former are riding high. They have an off week and are resting on their laurels. These are lean years down on the Brazos, in the wake of the sterling record climaxed by Waco's state championship and defeat of Latin high, Cleveland, to claim the national schoolboys' title.

District 5
Armistice Day will probably find the sectional question settled between Greenville and Denison. Tyler was kept in the elite class by trouncing Denton 38-0 last week.

District 6
Athens is the team they're talking loudest over in East Texas. It romped over Texasiana 46-6, while Tyler was keeping its record unspotted with a 20-18 win over Palestine.

District 7
Port Arthur is not keeping the pace it set last year, and has a 7-5 standing, topped by the perfect records of Beaumont and John Reagan. The leaders are idle this week.

District 8
Austin High school ride easy on its unchallenged lead this week with a second-rate game with Trinity High of Kerrville. Main of San Antonio and Corpus Christi are trailing with 7-5 each.

Four Teams In T.I.A.A. Undeclared

BROWNWOOD, Tex., Nov. 4.—As T. I. A. A. teams swing into the final mouth of play this week-end, only four squads possess more than mathematical chances for copping the conference crown.

North Texas State Teachers, Daniel Baker, San Houston, and West Texas Teachers are undeclared contenders for the title, although score cards for West Texas and Daniel Baker are marred by one tie game each.

The eleven members of the circuit spent a hectic week on the gridiron last Friday and Saturday. Southwest Texas Teachers, unofficial 1929 champions, and McMurry battled to a scoreless tie that blasted the title hopes of both teams. Daniel Baker profited most through a 20 to 0 triumph over the Sul Ross Lobos that put them in the thick of the conference leadership.

AUSTIN, Nov. 4.—Offers to open negotiations for a football game between the University of Texas and the University of Kentucky for the 1931 season have been declined by the Texas athletic council, according to Ed Olie, business manager of athletics.

The Texas schedule for 1931 is complete. In addition to five conference tilts, the University of Missouri, the University of Oklahoma and Harvard College have been carded. The Harvard game will be played at Cambridge.

SAN MARCOS, Nov. 4.—The South Texas Golfers' association tournament which will involve competition between fourteen South Texas towns, is to be held here Nov. 11, officials announced today. Last week the meet was held at Kenedy. Jack Wood of San Marcos won individual low score.

DALLAS, Nov. 4.—Terrill Prep school gained a 20 to 0 decision over the North Texas State Teachers' college reserves here Monday afternoon. Joe Taylor, stellar half back for the Terrill Tigers, suffered a broken leg which will keep him out of the team the rest of the season.

I DON'T think I got such a bad break, after all," Joe McCarthy told one of the boys in New York the other day.

The Big Parade

WHEN I saw Notre Dame's football players dash onto the field for the game with Carnegie Tech, it was mindful of the old event in the regiment on the dog trot, away poured from the tunnel-like entrance to the field, by ones and twos, squads and platoons and company corps.

They Can't All Play

That, I didn't really see Notre Dame's football strength, here are 600 football players at Notre Dame. Of this battalion, Rockne in the spring chooses about 120 of the best talent.

One is Barred

WHEN the call is issued for spring practice, no one is

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

NOTRE DAME has a stronger team this year than the team that went undefeated last year. . . . sez Judge Walter Steffen, coach of Carnegie Tech. . . . the Judge still thinks this year's team at Tech is the greatest he ever had. . . . the Notre Dame forward wall is stronger this year than it was last, sez the Judge. . . . If Arnie Horween really decides he will not coach at Harvard another minute, next year each may not be Eddie Casey after all. . . . but Jesse Hawley, former Dartmouth mentor. . . . Hawley and Horween have been close friends for years. . . . Hawley quit coaching at Dartmouth in 1928, but he's still hot on football. . . . Hawley coached there five years, and in the first three years his teams lost only one game, that one to Cornell in George Pfann's big year.

barred at Notre Dame. Every student who can walk on legs comes out for football. The sharp eye of Rockne looks for the work of the men of whom he has heard, as high school or prep school players. It takes only about two weeks to pick the 120 men of the varsity squad.

The squad is divided into groups. The men in each group understand that if they play good football, they will receive consideration at once for the main squad.

Mr. Zero Offers "Men for Sale" At $1 a Week

Homeless, jobless men were being offered for sale again—at $1 a week—when this picture was taken at Urban Ledoux's "human auction" in the New York Bowery. Here you see Ledoux, known as Mr. Zero, as he "sold" one man to an apartment house janitor who wanted an assistant to sift ashes. Others are hewn waiting their turn on the block as an employment campaign for hungry men was opened in Mr. Zero's Lame Duck club.

N. E. W. S.

The advertising columns are "News" as much as the editorial columns. Advertising is packed with news. News of the latest styles, of a new food, of an improved household utensil, of a powerful and low-priced automobile, of trips to Europe and all ports of the world—and so on. Advertising has become "news," and people depend on advertisements for accurate information about things they wish to know.

Reading advertising is a useful and profitable habit. It saves time, by telling you where desired articles may be purchased. It saves money because advertised merchandise is more dependable as to quality and durability than non-advertised wares. And, advertising is accurate. You can trust the "news" that you read in advertisements. Read them as you do the editorial columns.

Advertising is "news" of the latest and best in merchandise. . . keep posted by reading the advertising columns daily

Apple Tree In Ranger Making Second Yield

RANGER Texas, Nov. 4.—An apple tree is bearing its second load of fruit here this year. A June apple tree, as usual, produced an excellent yield of apples in the summer. Then, a few days ago, doubtless encouraged by the abundant rain and the sunshine, it blossomed and is now a beautiful sight. The tree is in the yard of the residence of Mrs. J. D. Williams, on Blackwell road. In the office of the Times is a sprig of blossoms and three small red apples from the tree.

criminals' Colonel Rollet insisted today. "There have been many men come through the Legion who piv-erred not to tell their real names, but they were not necessarily criminals. Some were men whose love was blighted. Others were sons of good families who ran away from home because of some scrape with a girl. Many are venturesome youths who are glad to work off steam in an organization that is known to do plenty of fighting, without leaving a trace later of their service. It is an insult to the Legion to say that our men are criminals."

ROBBERS BUSY IN RANGER

RANGER, Texas, Nov. 4.—Two burglaries occurred in Ranger Sunday night or early Monday morning. The O. K. Grocery & Market and the Wrecking Yard, the latter on the Eastland highway, were broken into. Chief of Police Jim Ingram, who investigated, said that the robbery of the grocery store apparently was by a tramp as an old pair of shoes wrapped in an out-of-state newspaper, dated Aug. 20, was found. Entrance was gained by prying out the glass in the door with a knife and then reaching in and turning the lock. A small box of candy was opened and several pieces were eaten. A complete checkup had not been made this morning but it is thought that only a small amount of groceries was taken. At the wrecking yard, half a dozen used batteries and a pair of clippers were taken.

Honor First Yank Killed in France

NEA Evansville Bureau
A national shrine to mark the last resting place of Private James B. Gresham, honored by Evansville, Ind., Gold Star mothers as the first American soldier killed in France, is planned in that city. Gresham, Private Thomas F. Enright of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Private Merle D. Hay of Gilden, Iowa, met death when Germans raided the 16th Infantry's trenches near Bathelmont on the night of Nov. 2-3, 1917. Gresham, who now rests in an obscure grave at Evansville, is shown here with the memorial planned in his honor.

Club Girl Tells Of Her Trip To State Fair

Miss Mary Mack Spurlen, 4-H Club girl who made the trip to the State Fair of Texas along with some 295 other girls and 32 chaperones, is quite enthusiastic over the club work that made the trip possible. She took a keen interest in the trip to Dallas and was much interested in the things she saw while there. "We arrived in Dallas about 2:30 in the afternoon," she told a representative of the Eastland Telegram. "The next morning, which was Tuesday, we had our pictures taken. Mr. Ollie B. Webb, representative of the Texas & Pacific Railway made us an interesting talk as did Miss Horton of A. & M. College. That night we went to see 'Sons o' Gums' which we all enjoyed. "One of the most impressive things we saw was the huge picture showing the battle of Gettysburg. It was 400 yards long, required seven and one half tons of lead to mix the paint, weighs nine tons complete and it took 14 men two years to paint it. "The Agricultural building was, of course, very interesting to us, too, and especially the county exhibits with the Eastland county exhibit among the others. "We saw the exhibits from the Byrd Antarctic Expedition and saw the sled dogs that he used while at the South Pole. We even shook hands with the dogs." Miss Spurlen, who lives three and a half miles east of town, said that she won the opportunity to attend the fair by winning high points in sewing, canning and in keeping the best record book. She made a little over $100 on blackberries, which were raised as her productive project in the 4-H club work for the year. She is very much interested in the club work and says that she is anxious for the other girls in the county to have an opportunity to visit the fair in the future and hopes that the various clubs will endeavor to raise sufficient money to send them.

French Foreign Legion Bars All U. S. Gangsters

SIDEL ABRES, Nov. 4.—The famed French Foreign Legion, long known as a haven for mystery men who sought to hide a past under the uniform of the desert army, will close its ranks to American gangster, the only man in the world the Legion does not want. He said he expected to challenge for the America's cup in 1932, but was undecided about the design of his yacht and the selection of a skipper. The Leviathan also carried two women stowaways. One was Mrs. Edith Gibson of San Antonio, Tex., who stowed away on the vessel when it left here on its east bound voyage and made the round trip on 25 cents. The other was Mrs. Percy Albro of Detroit who said she went to England to accept a position and found on her arrival that there was no job open.

Oil should clean and protect as well as lubricate—says household expert

The oiling of household devices presents a problem different from that of factory equipment, says a nationally known household expert. Household appliances are not used constantly and therefore collect dirt and rust when idle. Consequently, oil intended for general household use should clean and protect as well as lubricate. 3-in-One, a scientific blend of mineral, vegetable and animal oils, does these three things better than any other oil. It costs a little more to buy but much less to use, for it will save you many dollars in repairs and replacements on sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, washers, the electric motors of fans, refrigerators, irons and other household devices. At good stores everywhere in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

Mrs. Parsons, a beautiful widow, introduced her daughter to the young man. Mrs. Parsons agrees, learning that Celia means to win Mitchell's affections. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and tries to get rid of her by engaging a romance between Celia and Ted Jordan, a fascinating and dubious character. Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan at his office, she goes about with young man frequently. Lisi, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Shields, a New York work for a photographic service and meets her. She tells him she has lost heart to Jordan. Mitchell realizes that it is really Celia who loves comes to Celia in the young man's imprisonment in a burning building. He is unhurt except for a broken arm. Shields calls but Celia has opportunity to talk to him privately. Mrs. Parsons, who pretends to be friendly to Shields, goes to see Mitchell at his office. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

The man looked as though he had been struck. "Celia?" he asked. "What's happened? What's the matter?"

Evelyn Parsons met his gaze flinchingly.

"It's going to be difficult to tell you," she said, "I only learned this morning. As soon as I could I came."

Mitchell seemed to be stunned. Apparently he did not hear her words.

"Good God!" he cried. "She's injured?"

Evelyn shook her head. "Celia has not been hurt. Nothing has happened. Nothing—yet!"

The man's answer was a blank stare.

"May I sit down?" Mrs. Parsons asked quietly. "I'll try to tell you as quickly as possible."

She took the chair Mitchell offered and sank into it gratefully. Then she leaned forward and her deep blue eyes rest on the man.

"I learned today," she said slowly, "that Celia has been meeting a young man secretly for several weeks. I'm afraid she has been continuing the affair with Ted Jordan, the man you forbade her to see."

Mitchell's exclamation was short, half inaudible.

"I thought it was my duty to tell you," Evelyn went on, "since she's staying with me I feel responsible. It's made me perfectly miserable, John! I wouldn't believe it if I hadn't heard it with my own ears. This morning I picked ed up the telephone to call Fancher Marlow and I heard a man's voice.

"At first I thought there was something wrong with the service, and then I heard Celia answer. She asked him to meet her this afternoon, and I distinctly heard her use the word 'dear'. Well, of course at that I felt it was something you should know, so I listened to the conversation. It's something that has been going on for weeks. Oh, to think that the child could have deceived me so!"

"Have you any idea who the man is?"

Evelyn shook her head. "I didn't recognize the voice. I don't think I've heard it before. Neither could I catch the name she called him, but there were terms of endearments. The thing has upset me so I'm not myself! Suppose it's another fortune hunter—like Jordan. Or it might even lead to blackmail. There's the Mitchell name to think about! That's why I came to you immediately."

"I can't believe it," John Mitchell said slowly. "I can't believe it of Celia."

"Of course you can't. Neither could I. What are we to do?"

"Why do you think she's been seeing Jordan?"

"I'm not sure about that. It's only that I'm afraid it's true. You see, after the shock this morning I began to realize that, although Celia and I have been such close companions, there have been several afternoons and evenings when I've had engagements and supposed she was at home."

"I asked Rose, my maid, if any young man had called to see Celia. She said yes, there was one who had come several times. Then I asked her to describe him, and she said his name was Mr. Jordan, and her words fit Jordan perfectly. I met him, you remember, the night of Celia's birthday party. It's only a servant's word, and I wouldn't accept it as final, but I thought day I'm going to be able to tell you all you've meant to me."

"But if this thing is true," the woman persisted, "and Celia has broken her word, will you send her away?"

The man's face colored darkly. "It may be best," he said. "We'll see."

Evelyn pressed his arm lightly and without another word departed.

After she had gone Mitchell sat frowning for a moment, then picked up the manuscript before him. Five minutes later he cast the sheet aside, rose, took his hat and left the building.

At one o'clock and Celia had lunch together. Mrs. Parsons said nothing of her morning errand. She announced that she had to be at a dress shop for a fitting at 2:30. The black more which she had ordered was not coming along at all as she wanted it.

"We'll have to be thinking about what you're going to take on your trip abroad," she told the girl brightly.

Celia agreed indifferently. She took no interest in the meal and was not inclined toward conversation. Mrs. Parsons asked her plans for the afternoon and Celia answered that she intended to take a walk.

"If you haven't anything else planned why don't you come with me?" Evelyn urged, a malicious light in her eyes. "Perhaps we could pick up the right kind of a topcoat for you. Bendis usually are very good, and you'll need something warm for the ocean trip."

Celia declined—much too promptly as she would have known if she had been skilled in the art of deception. Her excuse was a flimsy one. She wanted to have another look at a little shop window on Madison avenue, providing she could first find the shop. It was really going to be another exploration trip, she said.

"Oh, you're not going to the park today?" Mrs. Parsons inquired coolly.

"No, I—well, perhaps later," the girl floundered. She was flushing painfully, but Evelyn let the subject rest.

By 2:30 Celia was out of the building. It was one of those sunny, leisurely September afternoons. The air was cool enough to be agreeable, but it lacked the tang and crispness of later fall. She chose a circuitous route because she had several minutes to waste. Her color was high and she was aware of a pleasurable excitement. A shop window gave back her reflection and Celia discovered that she had been smiling. Immediately her face sobered, but she could not quiet the singing of her heart. Over and over again it was singing: "Barney Shields, Barney, I love you!"

She glanced at her wrist watch. Three o'clock, and she had abundant time to spare.

Celia crossed Fifth avenue and took up her stand near the Plaza. There was plenty of action and going. Children with nursemaids. Two elderly men talking. A woman with a handsome Harlequin drape on a leash. Young men and groups of girls. Motor cars flashing by, and a high-topped green bus.

She saw Barney coming toward her. He was early, too! Celia's pulse beat more rapidly.

"Sorry you had to wait," Shields greeted her.

"That's all right, Barney. I didn't mind a bit."

The girl's smile was glorious. Barney's face brightened.

"Want to walk?" he asked.

She nodded and they turned into the park. Shields matched the rhythm of her footsteps, and for a few moments they walked silently. Then Celia glanced happily into the young man's face.

"I've been wanting to talk to you, Barney," she said softly.

"Been wanting to talk to you, too."

It was then that John Mitchell interrupted.

Well-planned improvements more than pay for themselves

- From a strictly dollars-and-cents standpoint, remodeling an old business building or home is a good investment. Permanent, well-planned improvements lower the cost of upkeep, increase the rental value and also the selling price. Often a building that does not find a ready market will sell easily after a few well-designed improvements have been made. In such cases, the increased selling price frequently more than covers the cost of the alterations and improvements.
- Such improvements as refinishing the exterior of a building with a light-tinted stucco, changing the front, building a watertight concrete basement or putting on a fireproof roof will often make an attractive property out of a shabby building.
- If you own an old building, ask your building material dealer, architect or contractor to help you with suggestions for remodeling. This is a good year to make improvements economically.

U.S. CANNED FOODS

WHEN Americans began to eat foods in quantities some seventy years ago, their chief concern was to make the foods good, safe and wholesome. On that they realized, their future depended. The canning industry, as a whole, has never deviated from this practice which has built up their business from blank in 1857 to approximately one billion dollars.

Today the National Canners Association keeps on the road complete biological laboratories mounted on trucks, moving from plant to plant and field to field, warning and safeguarding against every stage of contamination. Large scientific laboratories are maintained by individual canners, manufacturers and the Association, and the problem of keeping all canned foods bacteriologically sterile under conditions of quantity output has been ideally and commercially solved.

Underselling Asia

These facts were gleaned from an article in the canning industry by Oliver Weason in a recent issue of the American Bakers Association Journal. The article stated that one of the industry's greatest and least known feats has been the creation of an immense and growing business in the supply of canned fish and canned milk to the coolie population of Asia, and went on to say:

"An American industry, paying American wage scales to its own workers, utilizing American business institutions, American transport lines, and processing American products is profitably surmounting the cost obstacles in the way of purveying an increasingly important element of diet for the lowest paid laboring populations of the world. The yellow, brown and black hordes of China, Malaysia and the Dutch East Indies, among whose numbers the laborer with an income of thirty cents a day is counted, is actually being fed, he and his family, more and more out of an American tin can that moves at least 6000 miles before it reaches his hut."

120,000,000 Lbs. of Sardines

"Last year," this article stated, "total shipments of canned sardines to Far Eastern territory from the United States ranged around 120,000,000 pounds, as reported by the Commerce Department. It grew so that total from an entirely negligible export of five or six years back. A post-war development, the trade began to swell in total from the day when the Maine and California sardine packers demonstrated ability to lay down their products in far Eastern ports at costs which would enable the Chinese and Malayan consumer to buy a fifteen-ounce can at about twelve cents."

"A golden flood of re-orders tapped right then. The brown-skinned worker in the rubber jungles and the yellow-skinned deliver in the rice paddies alike seem to have discovered at this price the cheapest item of protein food that his huckstering markets have ever afforded. Pacific waters teem with fish; vegetable food is in supply in tropic abundance at insignificant cost; but the essential protein and oil ingredients of an instinctively preferred diet even of thirty cents a day is counted economically out of the can from far-off America."

How the Other Half Lives

This interesting article then leaped from the lowest paid masses in the world economic scale to the other extreme, and went on to say:

"The American producer supplies, too, and without affective competition, the demand for dietary luxury to classes of people throughout the world who occupy in the economic sense the opposite position to that of the Asiatic toilers. The pleasure and the pear, the higher grades of salmon and the sardine, and all the processed vegetables and potted meats that Americans include in their diet at little less of favor or shape for years have found the dinner tables of the prosperous all round the globe."

you ought to know."

John Mitchell was on his feet. He crossed the office, turned and strode back.

"Tell me what you heard over again!" he exclaimed.

Mrs. Parsons repeated the story. There were a few sly allusions to the ingratitude of a young girl who could impose upon the trust and kindness of such a father, constantly Evelyn repeated that she herself did not want to believe the evidence. She had loved Celia like a daughter. She was devoted to the child. That was why she could not look on and let the girl ruin her life.

"What I can't understand," Evelyn said in her soft voice, "is why she shouldn't have brought the young man to the apartment and introduced him instead of meeting him—in a park! You know I've done everything to encourage her confidence. Of course if it's someone she met through Jordan that might explain it. Celia knows I was aware you had forbidden her to see him. Oh, I do hope it's nothing dreadful!"

Mitchell nodded his hand down on the desk.

"If Celia's broken her word to me," he declared darkly, "she's going to pay for it. I gave her warning!"

Evelyn touched a dainty handkerchief to her eyes.

"But you mustn't be hard on her," she begged. "She does seem to be such a sweet child. After all, I'm sure she can't have meant any wrong."

When she shot a quick glance at Mitchell and then added, "perhaps Celia's not to blame. Do you think possibly it might be—her mother's influence?"

"What do you mean by that?"

Mrs. Parsons' eyes were downcast. "I know her mother's story, John. I was only wondering if it's true that 'blood will tell.' Celia is her daughter as well as yours, you know."

When she glanced up she saw that John Mitchell had sunk back in his chair. He looked like a man in torment. Evelyn remained silent, but suddenly Mitchell aroused himself.

"Did you speak to Celia about this?" he asked.

"Oh, no! I thought that would be your place, John."

"Perhaps it's not so bad as it looks. There may be some explanation. I'll come with you now and ask her."

Mrs. Parsons interrupted. "You've said the very thing I hope," she said, "that there is an explanation. But it seems to me there's a better way to be sure. Celia said she would meet this man at 3:15 at Central Park Plaza. If you could arrange to be there you'd soon learn the truth. Since you've told me what a dangerous character Jordan is, I can't help worrying for fear this may be an accomplice. Don't you think you think you should go yourself?"

Mitchell nodded in agreement. "You're right."

"Then I'll leave you now. You're a busy man, I know, and I must be on my way."

But before Evelyn rose she put a hand on the man's arm.

"The child is dear to me," she said softly. "Very dear. But, John, it means even more to me to understand what you're suffering. Oh, I do pray Celia hasn't proven unworthy of you! I do hope she hasn't harmed the Mitchell name! You see, I couldn't bear to have it happen again. I couldn't bear to have your heart broken!"

Evelyn's low voice held more than tenderness. No man could have mistaken its meaning.

Mitchell's hand covered hers. "Thanks," he said huskily. "Some

"If any one fashion can be singled out as the most important because newest, it is the evening pajama. All along the Riviera coast, pajamas if the evening have become accepted, and "pajama nights" at hotels and pajama parties at private homes testify to this. It is confirmed by the number of Paris couturiers who are now showing models which appear to be evening gowns but really have wide trouser legs, for one can argue that these couturiers have either been impressed with the vogue themselves or have had demands for such clothes from their private clients.

"In general, for daytime, the fashion for pajamas has increased. Even at the northern resorts, in spite of the cold weather, more pajamas were worn this year than last; while yachtswomen as a whole have taken enthusiastically to the idea, and women bearing some of the smartest names in Europe's social registers have

Mrs. M. A. Herring Is Buried Sunday At Pleasant Valley

Mrs. M. A. Herring, 91, mother of Mrs. W. E. Downing, died Saturday and was buried Sunday afternoon at Pleasant Valley cemetery near Grapevine, southwest of Eastland.

Mrs. Herring, whose maiden name was Kirkpatrick had been a widow for 40 years and had been a resident of Eastland county 51 years, coming here when the Indians infested the county. Just a few days before her death she returned to Eastland from a trip which she made unaccompanied. She celebrated her 81st birthday on Friday before she died Saturday.

Mrs. Herring was the mother of 11 children, only three of whom survive her. These are Mrs. W. E. Downing, Eastland; Mrs. Maggie Benvega formerly Mrs. Bone, of Encino, Texas; R. M. Herring, Cheyenne, Okla. She has a surviving brother, W. A. Kirkpatrick of Hillsboro, Texas, who is 93 years of age.

Mrs. Herring had 25 grand children, 61 great grandchildren and a number of great great grandchildren.

notably Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Herbert J. Bulkley of Ohio, Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey and Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Prohibition Issue
Running in and out of congressional and state contests throughout the country is the prohibition issue, and this seems to overshadow most others in public interest, even though the business depression is expected to affect many voters.

Wets do not expect to get a majority in congress, which appears practically impossible, but they are counting on the psychological effect of gains they hope to make, figuring a strong trend toward their side would swing over many half-hearted prohibitionists.

They have concentrated their attention on many congressional districts where the issue is doubtful, on referendums in four states, Massachusetts, Illinois, Rhode Island and Wyoming, and on senatorial elections where victory would command attention such as the election of J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic wet, who is running against Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormack in Illinois; Bulkley who is running against the Republican incumbent, Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch in Ohio, an ardent dry; John Albert Galen, Republican wet, who is seeking to unseat the veteran Democratic Senator Thomas J. Walsh in Montana; and Marcus A. Cosentino, Democrat, who is opposing William M. Butler, Republican dry in Massachusetts.

Hopes Are High
Democratic hopes were high today. The party faced a tremendous task in the election of a Democratic congress, but they were optimistic of the work of their political machine which they built upon the wreckage of 1928.

President Hoover and Republican leaders looked with some satisfaction at the majorities which they rolled up in congress in 1928, which gives the Democrats a good deal to whittle down.

Democrats would have to elect 137 candidates in addition to the 81 who are unopposed, to win control of the House of Representatives. This would necessitate victories in what are considered strong Republican districts. In the Senate, they would have to elect 18 in 34 contests to gain numerical control while the Republicans have to elect only 13. A House majority is 218, a Senate majority, 49.

But even though the Democrats do not gain actual control, they are given a splendid chance to increase their strength enough to form both houses and senate, effective coalitions as were in action for a time during the Coolidge administration in both houses and last session in the senate. Most estimates do not figure over 20,000,000 in the election today.

Failure to get off the full vote may prove the decisive factor today in several close contests which have attracted much attention.

Democrats are making a strong bid in Illinois, Ohio, and Massachusetts, with the issue apparently close in the Lewis-McCormack, the Bulkley-McCulloch and the Coolidge-Butler races. Democratic victories in these states would be important psychologically, especially in Ohio, the home state of Chairman Simeon D. Pess of the Republican national committee.

Another race that holds interest is that of Senator John H. Hefflin of Alabama to retain his hold in that state in an independent campaign against John H. Bankhead, lawyer, businessman and member of a political family. If Hefflin wins, he will be the only political ticket who bolted the party ticket in the south in 1928 to retain his place.

The Pennsylvania gubernatorial race was watched closely. There

As Rebels Seized Power In Brazil

This picture, one of the first to reach this country since the rebels seized control of the government in Brazil, shows pretty Brazilian señoritas giving out clothing and other supplies to a group of volunteer rebel troops in the streets of Uruguaian Brazil. It was taken at the same time that the military junta in Rio de Janeiro was forcing Dr. Washington Luis Pereira de Souza to resign as president.
