Reduced Freight Rates To Be Asked For Eastland EASTLAND COUNTY GASSER IS ABOUT CONTROLLED

Hittson Number One Has Been Running Wild

enormous Gas Pressure of 1,500 Pounds Encountered in Well Northwest of Eastland.

Efforts to bring the Warner Hittson Company's Hittson No. 1 gasser, under control after the gas had broken out below the eight and ten foot strata Friday were unsuccessful Saturday with some success. The enormous rock pressure, approximately 1,500 pounds—officially reported—had forced the gas under the seating of the well, inch strata in the Lake sand and under the six inch above the sand pay from which its enormous gas production is coming. The gas was circulated in the hole by water pressure applied with a result that the gas from under the bottom of the Lake sand was successfully shut off. Saturday morning efforts to control the gas by using cement and the Ranger pay and kill off the gas so that the six-inch could be lowered and seated on the lime appeared to have been unsuccessful to that point.

About 15 feet of open hole exists between the bottom of the small strata and the Ranger and to case it off it will be necessary to reduce the gas pressure from the hole and underream the hole, the casing can then be lowered to the bottom and cemented. With this done the well will be under complete control with no further danger of the gas breaking out around the casing. It was stated, High pressure pumps were at work Saturday morning forcing water to the hole and into the Ranger formation to control the gas. About 4 and a quarter million gallons of gas was found in the Lake sand together with a considerable amount of oil. This Lake gas is reported to be rich in gasoline content, capable of yielding three gallons of gasoline per barrel. The operators said, This showing has passed up for the Ranger pay and all production was expected. The well blew in a week yesterday, for big gas although unexpectedly. Gained the gas output was found to be about 50,000,000 with tools lodged in the hole. The line was broken and efforts to release the string and the Hittson gasser is in the area of the Texas company's Magie gasser which came in more than a year ago for 1,000 barrels daily and continues to produce approximately 300 barrels daily, near the Warner Hittson gasser. The Hittson gasser is also producing an oil well plucked in 400 feet production daily from the sand. The Texas Hittson is 1,160 feet north of the Warner Hittson. The Warner Hittson is located about a mile west of the Hittson No. 2.

Hittson wells are situated west of the old Breckenridge road about six miles north of Cisco. Magie Gray is located to the east of this old road.

Warner Hittson Hittson gasser was plucked up below the sand.

County Wide Committee Is Formed Friday

Railroad Commissioner to Be Asked to Include County in Drouth Area.

Reduced freight rates were discussed at a meeting held in Eastland Friday evening for the purpose of forming plans for relief for the farmers of Eastland county and the request for the reduction will be forwarded to the Texas Railroad Commission in the near future.

The commission announced earlier in the week that reduced rates would go into effect for the Texas drouth stricken areas, but the local railway agents have not been definitely notified that Eastland county has been included in the area that is to be benefitted by the rate reductions.

All drouth stricken areas will be benefitted by the reduced rates as far as shipments of livestock, feed stuff and grains is concerned. Farmers and ranchmen may ship livestock out of the drouth area to pastures and get the benefit of the lower rates. Shipments of livestock to markets does not command a lowered freight rate, the commission has ruled. Feed stuff and grains shipped into the drouth area will also get the benefit of lower rates.

The committee that is to work out the details of reduced freight rates is composed of the following members:

Clyde Garrett, Chairman, Eastland, Texas; J. E. Spencer, Cisco, Texas; C. G. Shultz, Rising Star, Texas; W. B. Starr, Cisco, Texas; R. L. Poe, Cisco, Texas; John M. Gholson, Ranger, Texas; O. P. Newberry, Gorman, Texas; W. W. Speer, Carbon, Texas.

Building, Repairs And Payment Of Interest Planned

Week Promises To Be More "Prosperous" Than Was At First Anticipated.

Indications point to a better "Prosperity Week" than had been expected by those who sponsored the movement.

Building has been planned for the week that will bring the total for the City of Eastland well above the average for any month during the year, according to a tabulation of the projects along this line that have been promised for the week and many others are expected to have little jobs of repairing and remodeling done that will help to increase the payroll of the citizens during the next few days.

Several major projects have been planned, some of which are to be given no publicity at the request of those doing the work or having it done.

One oil well is now being drilled and another is to be started soon, during prosperity week if possible. Several business houses are to make minor repairs and have odd jobs of construction done that will furnish employment for someone for a while and many re-roofing and painting contracts have been made throughout the city.

Vice-President Is In Power In Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6.—Buenos Aires, scene of political demonstrations and student riots during a week of unrest and excitement, was under martial law today.

President Hipolito Irigoyen has delegated the functions of his office to vice-president Enrique Martinez, after severe criticism from many sources, including leaders of his own radical party.

The president, it was said, was only temporarily relieved of his duties, for under the constitution he can resume the mandate when and if he desires. He thus remained an unknown factor in the country's political situation, with opinion divided as to whether he would tender a former resignation later.

Elsie Janis To Leave The Stage For Writer's Career

During the lifetime of Mrs. Josephine Janis, the mother and lifelong companion of the stage star, her daughter could not leave the footlights, although she greatly desired to do so in recent years.

But Mrs. Janis' death a few weeks ago has given her the opportunity to follow her chosen work as writer, and she will leave the stage forever, Miss Janis revealed today.

RESTING.

A motor manufacturer refuses to be glum about the present business situation, insisting that "it is in the time of depression that the seeds of prosperity are sown."

That is self-evident when you think it over. In a period of depression people buy less and wear out their old stuff. Sooner or later they have to replace what is gone. Thus a new market is created, and the business activity required to supply the deficit of goods makes prosperity.

He might have said also that it is in the time of prosperity that the seeds of depression are sown. We over-produce many things and throw the system out of balance. We borrow too much. We buy too many things on credit. Then there has to be a time of reckoning and thrift.

We have day and night, summer and winter, each of these "pairs of opposites" serving its purpose. Life rests in winter and in sleep. Business rests in depression. There have been many winters, but never one that failed to end in spring; many nights but never one that did not bring the dawn.

FLY-LESS TOWN.

A town without a fly is said to have been found. And it is, of all places, in Italy! In justice let the name of the place be recorded—Montecatini. Many a city has been famous for less cause.

Italy has certainly changed from the old days, remembered by many an American tourist, when cities were often memorable for their smells. Mussolini, we are told, is responsible. He seems to be making Italy as clean as Holland. There is less scrubbing, perhaps because there is less water. But there is ceaseless war against dirt, especially in the form of garbage. It is dirt that brings flies, as any good house-keeper knows.

If we could get up any enthusiasm for the arrogant and hard-boiled Mussolini, it would be for this reform.

BABY PARADES.

The 39th annual baby parade at Asbury Park, N. J., was a greater triumph than ever. There were about 1,000 entries and the spectators who assembled to give them the once-over numbered 100,000.

This was probably as big a crowd as ever witnessed a beauty show of grown-up babies. It might well have been bigger. What beauty is comparable to the beauty of an unspoiled baby?

Such contests may be a little hard on the babies, but they are far more wholesome and commendable in their general features and effects than the public exploitation which embitters so many girls, and wrecks the lives of many.

SOUND MONEY.

France, whose vaults after the war were almost empty of gold, now has nearly $2,000,000,000 of that metal in cold storage. The gold reserve is 52 per cent of circulation instead of the required 35 per cent. It is therefore suggested in Paris that the country return to a gold basis in fact as in theory, by freely issuing the gold coins which have been withdrawn from circulation.

It would make French depositors feel better, if they could get gold from their banks merely by asking for it.

The sound position of the Bank of France is typical of Europe and America generally. Recovering from the war, as far as monetary systems are concerned, has been more rapid than might have been expected. The present worldwide business depression has to do with production and distribution of goods and with the prices of commodities and stocks—not with finance. Dollars, pounds, francs and other units are sound. The bookkeeping of world business is undisturbed. Recovery, therefore, will be simpler than usual.

AIR SUPREMACY.

"America is destined to lead the world in aviation" says Antonio Strassman, distinguished German flyer, who is also a distinguished actress with a preference for Shakespeare.

"What you Americans have done in the development of aviation is nothing short of tremendous. In spite of the business depression, I find you are building airships and extending your lines at an amazing rate. I look upon aviation as international, and therefore I am not disloyal to my own country when I say that in a short time America will absolutely lead the world in flying."

We may readily admit it. And in fairness to the rest of the world, we might add that we would be hopelessly blind to our opportunity if we failed to gain such supremacy. With our matchless spread of home territory to fly over, our great homogeneous population, our two rich seacoasts calling for air connections, and our vast wealth and engineering skill, why shouldn't we build and operate more aircraft, and make progress more rapidly, than any other country?

We have only to do the easy and obvious thing to be in the air what Britain has long been on the sea.

WHEN HELD UP.

What to do when you are held up by bandits? It is a problem for which Emily Post has no answer. Everyone has to figure it out for himself.

Norris Miller, who runs a suit-renting store in New York, suspects by this time that he made a mistake. When two armed men faced him with drawn pistols, he had $50 in his pocket, and wanted to save it. He decided that flight was better than fight, so he dived through the second-story window.

He hit hard, crashed through a glass-studded walk and landed in a basement, with two broken ribs and various bruises and lacerations. Repairs to Miller will cost considerably more than the $50 he saved. He rejoiced, however, that he had escaped the menace of those pistols, until the police told him they had found one of the guns, and it was a child's toy pistol made of glass.

Oh, well, any of us can be wise after the event. And if they had been real pistols?

Mother, unavoidably absent from camp for a few weeks, makes this comment:

"Isn't it grand to watch men learn the things that every woman knows?"

OUT OUR WAY

Ford Says The Country Is In Better Condition

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Henry Ford believes America is economically sick, but that the illness is not nearly so severe as it was prior to a few months ago.

Ford discussed the nation's financial malady early today just before he sailed on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen for a six weeks' motor tour of Germany.

It took the country a long time to get sick, he said. The illness was brought on by frenzied speculation in the stock market. And by the same token, it will take as long for the cure.

"But it's a good thing the recovery is prolonged," he said. "Otherwise, the people wouldn't profit by the illness. It will take just as long to get well as it took to get sick and when it's all over, we'll know things we didn't know before."

"I am inclined to view the matter optimistically because I can see that people are thinking now. Everybody is thinking now. And that's something they didn't do last year or even two years ago. Very few people thought then. That is, the thought of one thing. They thought of buying and selling stocks."

Accompanying the manufacturer on the trip are Mrs. Ford and Mr. M. Charles H. Hodges of Detroit. They will go to Paris and motor into Germany. Among other places, they will visit Cologne and Munich. They will see the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Mother Jones, 100-year-old veteran of countless labor battles, has torn up her will and given all her savings to the cause of labor, it was learned today.

Of her money, $1,000 has gone to combat John L. Lewis and help those who would drive him from control of the United Mine Workers of America. The rest of her $100,000 has been sent to the Chicago Federation of Labor for use as its officials see fit.

Railroad Will Absorb Drayage Charge On Cotton

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 6.—The Missouri Pacific Railway had today won approval of the state railroad commission on its application to absorb 25c in its cotton freight charges for drayage from gins and cotton yards to loading platforms.

Truck operators entered vigorous protests, claiming that the railroads already had an advantage over them in carrying cotton and that such a right would increase that advantage.

The railroad asked the absorption charge in order that it might meet the competition of trucks which pick up cotton at gins or yards without drayage charges.

French Fliers Leave Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 6.—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, trans-Atlantic fliers, left Bowman field in their seaplane Question Mark at 7:37 a.m. today enroute to New York.

The State Republican convention meets in San Angelo Tuesday, with the state committee session Monday, and Creager was in Dallas on his way to the west Texas city.

Smith, attorney general, to make a thorough investigation of conditions and start such proceedings as the facts may warrant.

The governor called the attorney general's attention to the fact that more than a year ago the governor called the attention of the attorney general and the Sedgewick county attorney to the operations of the "Green Gables" which federal agents raided several weeks ago and nothing was done after the governor had asked for action.

Some Master-Minding

IT would not be strange if the Giants should win the National League pennant this year. John J. McGraw, man and boy, has won 10 pennants as manager of the Giants. The odd thing about this year's race is that the Giants, in their magnificent drive down the home stretch, have not been managed by Mr. McGraw.

The job of "master-minding" has been handled by Beauty Bancroft, a young fellow whose only experience as a major league manager was a stretch he went through several years ago as boss of the Boston Braves.

McGraw was away from the team for several weeks. While his athletes were out on the road, giving the Reds, the Pirates and the Cards the works, the master mind of the Giants was busy in New York with other business. What other business occupied the master mind during this succession of crucial battles in the west nobody seems to know. Maybe he was seeing a fellow about a dog. Or maybe he didn't want to miss seeing Whitecap and Gallant Fox struggle for second and third at Saratoga.

Meanwhile, at any rate, Dave Bancroft directed the club on the road. And now what puzzles the department, is how Bancroft so suddenly mastered the strenuous business of master-minding.

They Like His Minding

MR. MCGRAW, of course, during the crucial games, called Beauty every day long distance and master-minded a couple of minutes over the weather in St. Louis, the smoke in Pittsburgh and the traffic conditions in Cincinnati. But, aside from that, Beauty has taken upon his own shoulders almost the entire job of master-minding. And while he

Auto Registrations Show Increase

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 6.—Eastland county had registered nearly 50 per cent as many cars during the first six months of this year as during the entire year of 1929, according to highway department records.

For the first six months of 1930, it registered 10,254 motor vehicles, while total registrations for last year were 11,554.

Filling Station Operator Charged In Fatal Shooting

LUBBOCK, Tex., Sept. 6.—A charge of murder had been filed today against J. L. Fisher, gasoline station operator at Shallow Water, following the shooting last night of W. Glover of Littlefield.

Fisher was released on $2,000 bond.

He told officers he fired into the darkness when he heard prowlers near his station last night. He said he was not aware he had killed anyone until officers arrived at the scene.

Creager Thinks Dr. Butte Has A Chance Of Election

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 6.—Declaring that he had found widespread dissatisfaction among Texas Democrats with the nomination of Ross Sterling for governor, R. B. Creager of Brownville, Republican national committeeman, and the Texas party leader, said here Saturday that a vigorous campaign would be conducted for their nominee for governor against Sterling.

Some Master-Minding

IT would not be strange if the Giants should win the National League pennant this year. John J. McGraw, man and boy, has won 10 pennants as manager of the Giants. The odd thing about this year's race is that the Giants, in their magnificent drive down the home stretch, have not been managed by Mr. McGraw.

The job of "master-minding" has been handled by Beauty Bancroft, a young fellow whose only experience as a major league manager was a stretch he went through several years ago as boss of the Boston Braves.

McGraw was away from the team for several weeks. While his athletes were out on the road, giving the Reds, the Pirates and the Cards the works, the master mind of the Giants was busy in New York with other business. What other business occupied the master mind during this succession of crucial battles in the west nobody seems to know. Maybe he was seeing a fellow about a dog. Or maybe he didn't want to miss seeing Whitecap and Gallant Fox struggle for second and third at Saratoga.

Meanwhile, at any rate, Dave Bancroft directed the club on the road. And now what puzzles the department, is how Bancroft so suddenly mastered the strenuous business of master-minding.

First Picture of Dr. Gunnar Horn Returning To Norway After Finding Andree Balloonists

Photo copyrighted 1930, NEA Service, Inc. Transmitted by Telephoto and Radiophoto.

This picture, rushed to the Eastland Telegram by airplane, telephoto and radiophoto from far inside the Arctic circle, is the first to reach the United States showing Dr. Gunnar Horn and his sealing vessel Bratvaag en route to Tromsøe, Norway, with the bodies of Salomon Auguste Andree and his Swedish co-explorers, found on remote White Island, 23 years after the ill-fated balloonists took off for a flight over the North Pole. Dr. Horn is standing on the ship's bridge. Relics, including sleds and Andree's diary, also were brought back by the Bratvaag.

The picture, was taken from a seaplane chartered by NEA Service which met the sealer in the Barents Sea, north of Tromsøe. It was flown back to Tromsøe and then to Stockholm by another chartered plane. From Stockholm it was telephoted to London, via Berlin. The picture was radio-photocoded from London to New York, where it again was placed on telephoto wires for distribution throughout the United States.

Apportioning Of Pecos Water Is To Be Discussed

BY UNITED PRESS
 PECOS, Tex., Sept. 6.—Water Engineer A. H. Dunlap was holding conferences in Pecos today relative to the apportioning of water of the Pecos river.

New Mexico has failed to ratify the compact dividing the waters of the Pecos, although the Texas legislature approved it. The Red Bluff irrigation project is thus left in a difficult situation. Dunlap said the federal government might refuse to finance the construction of the Red Bluff dam in Texas to store water for the irrigation of 150,000 acres in this state for that reason.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 6.—John T. Soy, 65 year old gambler who was kidnaped Aug. 29, returned to his home today and was reported "in a state of collapse, too ill to talk."

Members of his family said Soy drove to the house in a taxicab at 8 a. m., had to be helped out and refused to discuss the kidnaping.

Since Soy was taken from his automobile near a Mississippi river bridge a week ago, his captors several times telephoned his associates that he was ill and asked $60,000 for his release.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beginning as an extra, ANNE WINTER has progressed rapidly and is now under contract to Grand United, one of the largest of the Hollywood motion picture studios. Anne has been living with two other girls, MONA MORISON and EVA H. GRAY. Mona and Eva are extras, but Mona works only occasionally and Eva but rarely. Eva is bitter over this, and over a tragic love experience. She leaves Hollywood finally, leaving behind her a heart-broken note for Anne and Mona.

DAN RORIMER, former New York newspaper man and now a scenario writer, is in love with Anne, but he has come to regard her as feeling for her as a hopeless one. Every step upward that Anne takes seems to remove her all the farther from him, especially since his release from Continental Pictures and his rather unsuccessful attempts to free lance.

PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, shares Dan's apartment with him. He has great faith in Dan's ability, despite the latter's discouragement. While in New York Dan had written a play for the legitimate stage. His agent, unable to place it, finally sends it back to him, and Anne Winter and Collier, when they read it, are enthusiastic over it. They urge Dan to devote it for the movies. Anne, who has not yet had a dramatic role on the screen, says she would love to play the part of the main girl character.

Dan follows their advice and the play is accepted by Grand United. He is given to understand that they think highly of him and may offer him a contract. Then he suggests to the studio executive that Anne Winter be considered for the picture.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV
"Well, I'll tell you, Rorimer," Mr. Johnson said, "it might be difficult to give that part to Miss Winter, even if she did qualify. In the first place, there are several nice girls around here who will probably want it."

He smiled. "Keeping peace in the family is one of our most difficult jobs at times. Isn't that right, Phillips?"

The scenario chief grinned. "I'll say."

"And it will be up to the director to decide anyway," Johnson went on. "There's no question about Lester Moore, of course; he's the logical choice for your gangster. But there are half a dozen girls at least, who might do for Jenny. So, you see . . ."

He smiled. Rorimer, of course, could understand that casting was not such a simple matter.

Rorimer nodded. He said he hoped the others would not think him so foolish, or presumptuous, as to try to tell him what to do. "Especially after you've been so kind to me. But I thought that if we all agreed on Moore—as I had hoped would happen—you might think a suggestion was in order. When I was working on that treatment there, I had Anne Winter in mind as well as Lester Moore."

He smiled apologetically. "You see, I know what Anne Winter can do, and I don't believe you do."

That, he admitted to himself, was not true; he didn't know what Anne was capable of; he only believed he did. But he knew what Anne Winter wanted to do.

"Wouldn't it be possible," he suggested, "to give Anne Winter a test for the part? You could soon find out whether she can play it or not. I've got a lot of grass, I know," he added with a grin, "but I've got an idea that in the end you may thank me for this."

Johnson and Phillips both laughed. "Well, you make it sound pretty reasonable," the former admitted. "I've got an open mind, but I don't mind telling you I'm from Missouri. I'll tell you, now; I'll suggest to the director that Miss Winter be given a test, but I won't go beyond that. We don't believe in extreme. It'll be Garry Sloan, I guess. If Sloan agrees—"

It would be Sloan, Dan thought, and the rest of the other's words were lost on him. He thought it strange then that it had not occurred to him before—the possibility of Garry Sloan's being chosen; but the idea had never entered his head.

Mr. Johnson let the matter rest there, he began to talk of other things. Might as well get down to brass tacks. Would Rorimer be ready to start at once on the scenario?

"First thing tomorrow morning," Dan said.

"That's fine." He rose and held out his hand, laid the other hand on Rorimer's shoulder as he walked with him to the door.

"Just to tip you off," Phillips said in a low voice as they walked down the hall, "when the boss says he MAY offer you a contract, that means he WILL. Johnson's pretty cautious, that way, but his word's better than a gold bond."

"And," he added, "I'll be darned glad to have you with us."

He asked then if Dan would like to be shown around the lot. "I'll be tied up myself, but we can get hold of someone in the publicity department to take you around. Might as well look the place over; now that you're going to be working here."

So Rorimer was taken in tow by an agreeable young man from the publicity department. The tour was a short one, though, because only one stage was busy at the time; and when they returned to the offices Dan asked him if he knew whether Miss Winter was around. After some inquiries his guide learned that she had left for the day.

Shortly afterward Dan departed, and he drove at once to the bungalow, where he found Anne and Mona in aprons, preparing dinner. Anne said at once, "Dan, you've brought good news! I can see it in your face."

And he admitted that that was true. "It went over, Anne; Grand United bought it."

"Oh, that's wonderful, Dan! Sit down and tell me all about it. Dinner can wait, Mona; we simply have to hear this right away; I can't wait another minute."

He laughed happily, knowing no other triumph that could equal this present one; and he followed them to the sofa, where they made him sit between them and relate the thing from beginning to end.

"Talk about a break!" Dan said joyfully, with an arm around each of them. "I still don't believe it, Anne, pinch me, will you?"

They were excited, animated listeners; they were unable to keep from interrupting his recital with eager exclamations.

"A contract, Dan! That's wonderful!"

"Well, maybe. That remains to be seen."

And Dan saved something for the end. "The best is yet to come," he said, looking at Anne. "They may give you a chance, Anne, at the part of Jenny. How'd that be? I spoke to Johnson about you, and he promised that he'd suggest to the director that you be given a test."

"I sure did."

"How did you ever dare?"

"Why don't you behave?" Mona demanded. "What do you mean, dare? Why shouldn't I?" said

Bromley Applies For Permit To Start Pacific Hop

BY UNITED PRESS
TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Harold Bromley, American aviator planning a trans-Pacific flight from Japan to the United States, today applied for a permit to take off from Samushiro Beach near Aomori on the northern tip of the main island of Japan.

A sufficient supply of gasoline for the long flight has already been sent to Aomori, Bromley said.

The aviator's permit to take off from Kasumigara flying field here, where he recently made an unsuccessful attempt to fly to Tacoma, Wash., expires next Sunday.

"First thing tomorrow morning," Dan said.

"That's fine." He rose and held out his hand, laid the other hand on Rorimer's shoulder as he walked with him to the door.

Mrs. Joyce Thinks Senator Was a Murder Victim

BY UNITED PRESS
CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Mary Joyce, widow of State Senator John T. Joyce, was unshaken today in her belief her husband had been murdered, despite State's attorney John A. Swanson's declaration he would drop consideration of the case because he believed Joyce's death suicidal or accidental.

The coroner's verdict was that Joyce died of one of the most deadly poisons.

Joyce died suddenly on August 16 shortly before he was to go before the grand jury and give names of gangsters whom he charged with intimidating voters on primary election day.

Wolf's Store Has Large Stock Of Newest Styles

Among the announcements for "Prosperity Week" in this issue of the Telegram is the advertisement of Wolf's, Eastland's newest exclusive ladies store.

The buyer, Mrs. Wolf, returned last week from a month's buying trip in New York and in a recent ad told of visits to various shops and beauty salons where she gained much information of interest to her friends back home.

In today's paper she announces the arrival of much of the goods purchased on this trip—and the arrival within a few days of the Paris models which are being made up for her.

Eastland should be proud of its stores today for they are bringing back to Eastland, buyers who have been going elsewhere and they also report new business from our neighboring towns.

Wolf's is doing its bit in bringing back to Eastland her rightful trade of this territory.

It is predicted that through the quality of the present stores in Eastland enough business will be returned here to make this fall business show greater volume than last year.

Eastland people can help themselves greatly by helping their home merchants.

United Believes In Helping Bring Prosperity Here

Among the new stores to locate in Eastland within the last year is the United Dry Goods Store, Inc. incorporated, a Texas corporation.

By remodeling, redecorating and building a new front the home of this new firm ranks as one of Eastland's most beautiful stores.

With many nationally known lines of merchandise on their shelves and well known Eastland people to serve the trade, this store fits into the business life of Eastland as few stores do.

The manager, W. L. Davis, gives much credit to the Eastland Chamber of Commerce for their efforts to bring about prosperity in Eastland and states that his store is always glad to cooperate in activities of this nature.

This store stands out as a factor in the progress and prosperity of Eastland.

L. C. Burr And Company Sees A Larger Eastland

After three months of serving the people of this section, we look back with pride and gratefulness for the splendid support we have received during these three short months.

We felt when locating in Eastland that we were entering one of the towns of west Texas that had before it a very bright future. We also felt that there was a need for this type of store.

The L. C. Burr company, after a thorough study and survey, brought to Eastland merchandise of the high type. Merchandising methods have changed in the past few years. Manufacturers are offering better values today than for the last few years.

It is just this service we are bringing to you.

Victoria—1,149 bales of cotton ginned by three gins in city up to recent date; gins running night shift to meet demand.

These eleven years in your service have been very pleasant. Your frequent helps and encouragements are highly appreciated. May the Eastland schools experience the greatest prosperity possible.

Mine is the privilege of studying this year in the Teacher's College at San Marcos and wherever I am later, I shall remember you kindly.

Dan. "But listen, Anne. Garry Sloan's the director. You'd better see him right away and tell him you'd like that screen test. Tell him you'd like to play that role and you want to show him what you can do. Don't be afraid to speak up, because if you don't he might make up his mind on somebody else before you get a chance."

Anne shook her head. "Oh, I can't do that." "Why not?" Johnson's going to suggest it to him. Sloan can't take your head off for telling him how much you'd like it." Dan said, "Sloan likes you, doesn't he?"

Anne looked at him a little queerly and made a denial. "Why should he?" He has been kind, of course, but—

"Just the same," Mona put in, "you do as Dan says. Don't be afraid to ask for what you want. They'll think a lot more of you for it, won't they, Dan?"

Rorimer agreed, and Mona said, "Remember what happened when you turned down that first contract. That didn't hurt your standing any, did it? Johnson didn't get sore, did he? Tell 'em what you want, Anne. If I ever get along as far as you've gone I'll speak my piece all right—loud and often."

Mona laughed. "You wouldn't see little Mona overlooking any breaks. Just let me at 'em!"

"Just what did you tell Mr. Johnson about me?" Anne asked, and Dan related what had taken place that afternoon. He and Mona argued persuasively enough to win her consent to speak to Garry Sloan at the first opportunity.

"Another thing," Dan said, "You might as well be learning a few of these lines. You can be going through them at home here. He brought a pencil out of his pocket and asked if there was any paper handy."

"There's a couple of scenes I'd like to give you a few notes on. Remember the place, Anne, where Michael is framed and the cops take him away, and Jenny learns that he thinks she was the one who framed him?"

She nodded. "Well, there's a real spot for Jenny there. It's a good scene. I'll jot down the lines for you."

He began to write on the pad that Mona brought him, and Anne beside him leaned close to him and watched the rapidly moving pencil, mouthing the words as he wrote them down.

"And here's another pretty good one, Anne. You might as well be going over this one too. Remember it?"

She bobbed her head eagerly, and her eyes shone. "I think I can remember everything in the play, Dan. Oh, it's just a wonder! Mona, tell him how much I've talked about the part. I'd give anything to play the part."

"I'm really beginning to think she would, Dan," Mona said, laughing. She got up then and slipped out of the room, and from the kitchen she called back to Anne that she was going ahead with the dinner.

"But don't worry about me spoiling anything. I'm just slicing the tomatoes."

Anne smiled and called out something in reply. "Poor Mona and her cooking!" she exclaimed softly, and bent once more over Dan's writing.

Rorimer leaned back and tapped the end of the pencil against his chin. "How does Mona feel now—better?"

"Yes, a great deal." "Heard from Iva?"

"No." Mona called again to ask Dan if he would stay for dinner. She came to the doorway to repeat the invitation, and the sun, streaming through the green-curtained window behind her, made flame of her red hair.

"Steak, Dan—and salad that little Mona is fixing all by herself. Better stay."

And Anne urged him. "Yes, do." "For the sake of the salad, then," he said, and Anne left his side and went to the kitchen.

He continued for a few more minutes to write, and when he put the pad aside he joined the girls in the kitchen, crying loudly that he wanted to be paid to work.

"And don't think I can't cook a steak. Say, this is going to be a regular party. It's Rorimer's night to howl, girls. After dinner, Miss Winter will entertain with a rendition of a couple of swell scenes from a swell play, and then we're all going to go places and do things. Right?"

Dr. Pepper Company Has Increase Of Business In 1930

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 6.—Talk of business depression and reduced sales volume finds no echo in the report of one southwestern corporation, the Dr. Pepper Company Inc. of Dallas, which has just made public through its vice president and general manager, J. B. O'Hara a statement of its sales record for the first seven months of 1930.

The statement shows net gains in sales volume for every month of 1930, from January through August, ranging from 51 to 200 percent over the corresponding months of 1929, with an average for the seven months of 72.9 percent.

"The Dr. Pepper Company has produced this increase in its sales volume by aggressive merchandising and advertising," said Mr. O'Hara. "We believe that this is the answer to talk of business depression. It is obvious that the buying public has not ceased to purchase the things that it wants, and that are aggressively and convincingly advertised. On this theory, we made large increases in our advertising appropriation for 1930, despite the economic situation which prevailed after the November stock market upset. Our sales results to date have fully justified our faith in the theory.

"Eastland Telegram along with more than 400 newspapers are carrying the advertising of Dr. Pepper this season, and our steadily mounting sales volume is the most convincing evidence of the effectiveness of this policy of increasing the advertising and sales effort during times when many other concerns are 'economizing' by reducing or suspending their advertising efforts.

"Persistent advertising pays in good times and bad. The Dr. Pepper Company began advertising on a large scale in 1927, and our sales volume has shown a consistent growth each year since. The average increase over the whole period has been more than 600 percent. Our advertising in one form or another is continued the year 'round, in season and out."

Current conditions have made no reduction in the Dr. Pepper Company's expansion program, and more than 50 bottling new plants have been opened during the current year, taking Dr. Pepper into a large new territory in the South and Southwest, according to Mr. O'Hara.

EXPLOSION PRODUCES TURMOIL

The destructive powers of even a small quantity of nitroglycerin were discussed in an interesting talk on chemistry by A. H. Seely at the Ranger Lions Club Thursday.

day. He referred to the recent occurrence in Amirillo when a man held for murder took his own life by setting off nitroglycerin in a vial which he wore, attached to a string, around his neck.

The speaker said that he had mixed a small amount of the explosive the evening before and he exhibited it in a little bottle attached to a string.

At this display, the members began to stir uneasily in their seats.

They were reassured however by the declaration that there was no danger as long as the explosive was handled carefully.

"I am now going to pass the nitroglycerin around so you can all see it," Seely said. As he handed the bottle to A. N. Larson, who was sitting next to him, the bottle dropped to the floor and there was a loud explosion.

Members leaped to their feet. Two or three who were "in" on the secret began laughing. The "nitroglycerin" had not been nitroglycerin at all and the "explosion" had been the firing of a blank cartridge in a pistol concealed under the table.
