Turner of the Eastland Baptist Church, who is leading the Olden Baptist church in a revival, reported that, though the meeting started off quietly, the interest is increasing with each passing service. #### Seven Survivors of Airship Italia Moving Homeward

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, July 19.—Seven survivors of the dirigible Italia disaster arrived here today aboard the Russian ice-breaker, Krassin, nearly two months after their departure in the airship on May 25, for a flight over the north pole, relatively well. Capt. A. D'Albeto Marianno, whose frozen leg had been amputated during the night, was the most seriously ill.

Railroads Open Negotiations To Acquire Express

NEW YORK, July 19.—A report on its plans for acquiring the American railroad express was announced today by the express committee of the Association of Railway Executives, which called for the participation of 86 railroads in sharing the cost of taking over the properties of the express companies. The roads have authorized four agents to act for them in negotiations looking to the acquisition of the company's physical properties of capital stock. The purchase price of the express company properties, if that method is decided upon, probably would be in the neighborhood of $28,000,000.

Director Campbell is indefatigable in his efforts to bring the band to a high state of efficiency and is meeting with pronounced success.

R. L. Shaw Learns Of Death Of His Aged Grandfather

J. A. Faulkner, 85, Whitney merchant and grandfather of R. L. Shaw of Eastland, was killed late Wednesday afternoon when struck by a truck on the highway, one mile east of Waco, according to information reaching relatives in Eastland. The truck driver, who lives in Waco, told police he was returning to the city when another automobile coming from Waco forced him to swerve his truck to the side of the road. In the attempt to get back on the highway, the truck driver said, the rear of his machine hit Faulkner who was walking on the road. Mr. Shaw stated this morning that it was the opinion of the family that Mr. Faulkner, who, despite his advanced age, drives his own car, had started home from Waco and running out of gas was walking back to Waco when struck by the truck.

WOOL COTTON GETS TRIAL IN DAWSON COUNTY

Six Seed, Costing $1 Each, Planted For Experiment In West Texas Plains Country.

Six seed of a new variety of cotton, known as wool cotton, costing one dollar per seed, have been planted for experimental purposes in Dawson county this year. Jimmie Odell and A. B. Hefferman of Lamesa are conducting the trial, believing that the South Plains will prove an adaptable habitat. The seed was grown with fairly successful reproduction and adaptation in Taylor and Haskell counties last year. The wool cotton grows as does ordinary cotton with about the same stalk, bolls and the same sort of cultivation. The lint is of the finer and more silken type, strong and with extra long staple. At present there are no gin plants that can take care of this cotton if produced in large quantities. It is estimated that it will take four years to complete the experiment, owing to the fact that only a very limited number of wool cotton seed are now available.

Church and Dry Leaders Urging Vote For Hoover

ASHVILLE, N. C., July 19.—A statement of principles urging southern dry democrats to vote for Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential nominee, was adopted at the closing session of the conference of 200 southern church and prohibition leaders today. Organization of a formal campaign was immediately started with taking a collection, which was reported to have brought in pledges of between $4,000 and 5,000. The statement of principles adopted at the closing session, about 4,000 words long, was to be made public probably tomorrow.

HIGHWAYMAN'S VICTIM DIES FROM WOUNDS

Twenty-five suspects have been arrested in an effort to apprehend the bandit. Scores of police and special officers have been pressed into service. Three daring holdups a few hours before the attempt to hold up the Dundee bank were attributed to the lone bandit. The bandit was chased through three counties last night. He stole three autos, abandoning each one for another, during the chase. The last car he used was found on the streets of Wichita Falls.

AIRMEN WILL PAY TRIBUTE TO CARRANZA

Imposing Military Funeral Ceremony To Mark Passage of Body Through San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, July 19.—One of the greatest aerial tributes ever paid during a military funeral ceremony will accompany the arrival of the special train bearing the body of Captain Emilio Carranza into San Antonio tomorrow afternoon. Major James B. Cheney, acting commander of the air corps at Brooks, Kelly, Dodd, and Duncan fields, announced that 100 airplanes will drop flowers about the train as it enters San Antonio. Flying in five-ship formation, the planes will concentrate at New Braunfels, 30 miles north of here. They will remain aloft until the train is beneath them and then resume their flying formation to accompany the train into this city, each one dropping flowers over the train. During the funeral ceremonies in the municipal auditorium the planes will circle above at a safe altitude. Saturday Major Cheney will lead a formation of 10 planes to Laredo to participate in the ceremonies when the United States officially surrenders the body to Mexico in the middle of the International bridge.

Trouble for Fair Helen?

AFTER the brilliant form she showed in defending her world's tennis championship at Wimbledon, tennis critics feel sure that it will be some time before Miss Helen Willis will be in danger of losing her crown. Most prominent among the young players who may cause her trouble, however, is "Midge" Gladman, the charming 19-year-old Santa Monica miss, who is pictured above. Miss Gladman is the national girls' champion, the western women's champion, the Southern California woman's champion, the Iowa State woman's champion, the Missouri Valley woman's champion, and last recently she started her summer campaign by winning the Tri-State (Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky) championship.

Conflicting Codes of Civility Hold Sway In China's Cosmopolitan Capital

PEKING—Social etiquette in Peking is having a hard time now. It is a struggle to maintain itself among the various conflicting codes which abound in this cosmopolitan capital. Not only does each foreign nationality have standards of politeness all its own, but certain distinct fashions are peculiar to the diplomatic set, the missionaries, and the business community. Accordingly when meeting strangers here, much time must be spent in ascertaining what rules are in vogue. Formerly, when one set in his card, the servant returned holding up in his hand the card of the host, if the guest was to be admitted. This signified that the host in person invited one to enter. This custom is now almost extinct, but most of the other old courtesies of visitors are still practiced in Chinese homes. The guest must feign an attempt to take the seat on the right hand side or near the door and the host must urge him to be seated in the more honorable position on the left away from the door, and some moments must be spent in coyly refusing this honor. Conversation must then begin with certain formal phrases before the real object of the visit is broached. It is still considered the duty of Peking hosts to tip the rickshaws and chauffeurs who bring guests to their dinner parties, but the reciprocal custom of having the (Continued on Page 6)

STERN-FACED FEMALE HEADS RAID ON TRAIN

Bandits Wreck and Try To Loot Passenger Express Near Rincon, North of Mexico City.

LAREDO, July 19.—Mexican federal troops have been dispatched in search of a woman bandit leader and 200 rebels under her command who wrecked and attempted to loot the Laredo-Mexico City passenger express, near Rincon, about 275 miles from Mexico City, early Tuesday. First news of the attack and subsequent gun battle between the rebels and train guards was received when the southbound Mexico City train, which returned here with passengers of the wrecked train, arrived in Laredo last night. Three rebels were killed, according to reports brought here. Seven passengers aboard the derailed train, were slightly injured. Passengers aboard the train, including 35 Americans, were thrown into a panic when the train was derailed. Only two of the nine coaches remained on the track. The coach in which the Americans were sleeping toppled against a water tower which prevented it from rolling into a deep water-filled arroyo. While women and children ran screaming through the aisles of the train, guards aboard the train staged a successful gun battle with the bandits. After being driven off the first time, the bandits—spurred on by their leader—made a second attack. Three of their number were taken captive in the second attack. The stories told by the passengers brought here described a stern-faced woman as leader of the bandits. Several reports have reached here in recent weeks of a band of rebels led by a woman. It is unusual for Mexican bandit bands to submit to the leadership of a woman, and army officers at the Nuevo Laredo barracks were skeptical that such was the case. No credence was given to rumors that the train wrecking may have had connection with the assassination of Alvaro Obregon. The bandit attack occurred several hours before General Obregon was assassinated Tuesday.

Magee Continues To Press Attack On Chief Justice

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 19.—Charging that Chief Justice Fred P. Branson "is guilty of trafficking with litigants," in the Oklahoma Supreme Court, Carl Magee, editor of the Oklahoma News and critic of the supreme judge, called upon him today to withdraw from the race for reelection. Magee asserted Chief Justice Branson "owes it to the remainder of the court, blessed with a finer sense of proprieties." The editor, whom the chief justice has warned never to publish his name again in the News, characterized as "bar room talk" Branson's credited reply to the charge. The chief justice had refused to comment, but was later quoted by the News as saying Magee's allegations were "damned lies."

WILL THE SOUTH BOLT?

What will the majority of the try democrats do next November? A friend has clipped the following and sent it in and whether you agree or not, at least you may find a chuckle:

Shortly after the war between the states an old Kentucky farmer drove over to see Colonel Breckenridge.

"Colonel," he said, "I hear the democrats are thinking of nominating General Butler. Colonel, you know what General Butler did to the womanhood of the south at New Orleans.

"You know the insults and the heaped and heaped on the womanhood of the south. Colonel, our country will never vote for General Butler. We request you, sir, to go to the convention and prevent the nomination of General Butler."

"The colonel went, and he returned and the old farmer came to see him again.

"Well, colonel," he said, "how did the convention go?"

"It was a sad day for the south, my friend. We fought and we fought and we fought. We fought to the last ballot. But they nominated Butler."

The old farmer seemed frozen to his chair. Then he revived and pulled his chair over toward the colonel and sat on the edge of it and said:

"Colonel, I never did believe half those stories about General Butler."

HOW TO VOTE.

Not who to vote for but "how to vote," as there are a number of young citizens who do not know the details is thus told by the Mineral Wells Index:

"How to vote is yet somewhat a puzzle to many, and for their information the following information is given. First present your poll tax receipt to the election manager (or make affidavit that it has been paid) and he will give you a ticket. Go to the booth and "scratch" all the candidates you do not wish to support, leaving only one one you wish to vote for. This is done with a pencil, and the scratch lines should be definite enough to show but not so hard as to break through the paper, thus mutilating the ballot.

"Then fold the ballot, giving it to the receiving clerk, at the same time giving to that party your name. You will then be registered as "voted" and a number placed on your ballot and same deposited in the box.

"In order to vote intelligently, the ticket should be studied and a selection made prior to election day. By doing this you will be serving your country and state more intelligently."

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., July 18.—A treasurer's account book which had been in use in one school district for 50 years was recently brought to the office of the county superintendent here.

The first entry in the book was made in May, 1877. The volume has been neatly bound in leather and contains entries of every expenditure of the district for 50 years.

In comparing the teachers' salaries paid during the half century it was found that in 1877 the teacher was paid $40 a month; in 1890 the salary was reduced to $25 where it remained for several years. The present figure is $80.

6000-YEAR OLD CITIES LEAVE THEIR MARKS

Prehistoric Remains Found in Basin of Indus. Fine Collection of Relics.

BOMBAY.—Remains of prehistoric cities, which flourished in the basin of the Indus in the third and fourth millennium before Christ, have been discovered at Harappa and Mohenjo-Daro. The work which is in progress at these sites will, it is anticipated by archaeologists, shed a fresh chapter to the knowledge of the history of a civilization of almost unsuspected antiquity.

In this connection much importance is attached to the recent opening of the Archaeological Museum at Taxila, on the northwest frontier, by Sir Muhammad Habibullah, member of the Viceroy's cabinet. This museum occupies a unique place as a representative storehouse of the relics of an ancient center of learning, wealth, and power.

The museum owes its existence to certain improvements in the methods of excavation initiated by Sir John Marshall. Previous archaeologists, after sinking some scanty pits and trenches upon ancient sites in Taxila, concluded that further excavations would yield no results.

When, however, Sir John Marshall assumed charge of the archaeological department in 1902, he introduced new methods, and his success is enshrined not only in the Museum, as Sir Muhammad Habibullah pointed out, but in the fine collections of relics of many fascinating phases of India's history.

LIKE DRAMAS

MOSCOW.—Motion picture thrillers of the type which dominated the American screen some years ago are still at the height of popularity in the Soviet Union. American "westerns" daredevil jumping, melodramatic serials—some of them apparently years old and long ago discarded at home—can be seen in scores of cinema houses here.

They foster a peculiar notion of American life among the more literal-minded Russians who have come to think of the United States as a place where folks do breathless stunts and make hair-breadth escapes every day of their shocking lives.

Recently a mock trial over one such picture was conducted in a Moscow theatre. After the showing of an American thriller, it was put on trial. The prosecutor charged that such films are "dust on the Soviet screen," that they inculcate "an anarchistic individualistic conception of life" contrary to the communist ideals of the Russians. Various witnesses testified that such pictures had started their children on the wrong road.

The judges found the thriller "guilty" and condemned it to "exile from the Soviet Union. The verdict, however, was overruled by the audience. When it was submitted to a vote, the fathers and mothers supported the court, but the children, who were in a majority, stuck by the thriller.

...Chiri here? Nathaniel...
...seemed to treasure this...

...bundles, hurt, too. She...
...found that Nathaniel was...
...much of Chiri. The...
...gave a distinctly...
...impression.

...Nathaniel did not come...
...bundles at dinner time...
...new. He was with her...
...that hour. Unless, per...
...et was in the habit of...
...when Nathaniel and...
...met uptown. On those...
...Nathaniel might have...
...the food in for her...
...asked herself why he...
...have mentioned it if...

...a little as the...
...to her that Nathan...
...believed she would be...
...But why should Chiri

...want to dine here alone? Surely...
...she was not a person to find her...
...own company sufficient.

...Virginia concluded that Chiri...
...must have referred to other hours...
...of the day. Lunch time perhaps...
...It might even be breakfast, con...
...sidering Chiri's complete lack of...
...regard for worldly conventions. She...
...knew enough about Chiri to...
...invest her with daring enough to...
...rush into Nathaniel's studio in any...
...sort of morning garb—black silk...
...pajamas most likely—and order...
...him out to buy the groceries.

...Virginia tried to turn her mind...
...from the whole thing, feeling...
...wounded and somehow cheapened...
...by the presence of this girl who...
...made herself so much at home in...
...Nathaniel's studio.

...The problem of her future need...
...ed immediate attention and Vir...
...ginia sought to occupy her...
...thoughts with it to the exclusion...
...of everything else. She succeed...
...ed only in realizing that the out...
...look was black indeed—black as...
...the heart of a man who held her...
...loyalty like a sword over her head.

...She could hear Chiri stirring...
...round in the tiny kitchen, a noisy...
...cook, humming a naughty little...
..."French chanson."
..."She's very much at home," she...
...thought wistfully. "I suppose Niel...
...likes to have someone around him...
...who is happy. I'm not so sure...
...that a man doesn't prefer a cheerful...
...companion to a loving one."

...It was in her mind that she...
...would be incapable of singing in...
...his kitchen. Was Chiri, after all...
...the superior person of the two?
..."She loves Niel," she thought as...
...she tried to make a comparison of...
...herself and the model. "I know...
...she does. Yet she sings. There...
...must be something fine and strong...
...about her, in spite of her gamin...
...ways."

...For the first time since she had...
...known Chiri, Virginia felt a touch...
...of sympathy for her. Her dis...
...pleasure had melted, lost in the...
...deep worry that weighted upon her.

...Her spirits sank lower and low...
...er as the flames died in the grate...
...and Nathaniel did not come. The...
...false courage she had buoyed her...
...hopes with all afternoon vanish...
...ed in the growing darkness of the...
...studio.

...How long before Chiri came in...
...and put a match to the tapers on...
...the table she had laid for dinner...
...Virginia did not know, but when...
...the room became shadowy with...
...candlelight she knew at least that...
...one decision was definitely made.

...Nathaniel should be spared as...
...much as she could spare him. And...
...another woman would have her...
...chance.
..."I'll take the trip on the Agena...
...Virginia told herself, "and give...
...Chiri the field. She may find a...
...way into Niel's love. Then, if I...
...must keep my bargain with Freder...
...rick Dean, his heart will not be...
...broken. One is enough. Better...
...that he and Chiri should be hap...
...py than that all three of us should...
...suffer."

...There was one bright angle in...
...regard to her decision, one that...
...gave her a shred of comfort. If...
...fortune should by chance favor...
...her and she found a way to free...
...herself from Frederick Dean she...
...would know beyond the slightest...
...question of doubt that Niel's love...
...was hers—that is, if Chiri, having...
...had her chance, had failed, and...
...Nathaniel remained true.

...It was something to hug to her...
...sorely-troubled heart and Virginia...
...staked all that meant life to her...
...upon it. It was the only chance...
...she could give Nathaniel in case...
...she lost to Dean—the chance of...
...falling in love with a girl whose...
...soul was not in pawn.
...Nathaniel found her animated...
...and sparkling like her old self...
...when he came in a few minutes...
...later. He was inclined to resent...
...Chiri's presence, but Virginia's...
...lively conversation and ready...
...acceptance of the girl's intrusion...
...at dinner prevented an open...
...declaration of war on the model.

...Virginia wondered what he...
...thought of it—did he expect her...
...to mind? Well, she'd give him...
...no opportunity to tell her. If he...
...had asked Chiri to prepare the...
...dinner, as she believed, Virginia...
...did not care to have him explain...
...But if he had not she did not want...
...him to quarrel with the girl over...
...it.
...Finally, when they were sipping...
...Chiri's strong black coffee from...
...thimble-size cups, Virginia told...
...them of the Agena's southern...
...cruise.
..."It was splendid of Mr. Welk...
...ins to choose me as hostess," she...
...advised, with well simulated...
...elation. She studiously avoided...
...looking at Nathaniel as she spoke...
...But from her lowered eyes she...
...could see his lean brown fingers...
...suddenly crush the cigaret he had...
...reached for.
...No one spoke for a few seconds...
...that held the count of minutes...
...for the group. At last: "Virginia...
...you aren't going?" from Nathaniel...
...in stricken disbelief.
...Virginia did not hesitate. "Why...
...of course, I am," she said firmly...
...ly. "I wouldn't miss it for the...
...world. Think of getting away...
...from New York for the winter...
...The summer has been dreadful...
...but when the slush is piled up...
...knee high I can't stand it."
...She risked a glance now, fear...
...ful lest she over-act. But Nathaniel's...
...expression satisfied her that he...
...believed she was in earnest.
...He could not argue with her in...
...Chiri's presence, and Virginia...
...lingered long after she knew that...
...he wanted her to leave so that he...
...could take her home and talk it...
...out.
...Chiri ignored several well-d...
...irected hints regarding her own de-

Discovery of Mummified Bodies On Aleutian Islands Interests Scientists

NEW YORK.—Natural scientists here hail as exceptionally important the discovery of mummified remains of four persons believed to have lived during the Stone Age, which was reported by the McCracken-Stoll expedition to the Aleutian Islands in an exclusive, copyrighted dispatch to the New York Times on Friday.

Dr. Henry Fairchild Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History, which sponsored the expedition, declared that the description of the mummies indicated that they were of great antiquity. Whether they will date as far back as the neolithic period cannot be determined, he added, until a detailed examination is made.

The expedition, according to word received by Dr. Osborn, expects to continue its explorations along the arctic coast of Siberia. The full significance of its find, he added, cannot be estimated until ethnologists make a detailed examination of the bodies and the clothing and implements found with them.

The unique aspect of the discovery is the manner in which the bodies were buried, according to Vilhjalmr Stefansson, arctic explorer. Natural scientists, he declared, have no knowledge of burial customs by any race which is recorded as having inhabited the Alaskan regions similar to those displayed in the discovery of the McCracken-Stoll expedition. This, he added, is the most convincing evidence as to antiquity of the find.

From the New York Times dispatch from Harold McCracken, it is evident that the bodies are not mummies in the ordinary sense of the word. Mr. Stefansson continued. They were evidently not artificially preserved, but their condition was probably due to their having remained buried deep in frozen ground.

George G. Hays, director of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, said that the burial of the extent or type reported by the expedition had been discovered before on the Aleutian Islands. It is impossible as yet to judge from the short descriptions whether the bodies were those of pure Indians or of a Mongoloid type, he declared. Decision as to the antiquity of the mummies, he added, will be greatly aided by examination of the instruments found with them in the burial vault.

Witnesses said they saw a young man leap under the wheel when the owner got out and drive rapidly away.

BUTTERNUTS RICH IN OIL GROW IN UNITED STATES

Butternuts, sometimes called white walnuts, are grown in the United States. They are so rich in oil that not many can be eaten at one time.

"I can't marry every man I know," Peggy Joyce replied to a newspaper interviewer's question the other day. She might had added, "but I can try."

MONKEY "DEAD" ALMOST HOUR; THEN REVIVES

Soviet Scientist Finds Life Begins Anew With Rejection Of Blood

TASHKENT, U. S. S. R., July 18.—A monkey "dead" for 55 minutes was fully revived here recently by Prof. Mikhaelovsky, of the Physiological Institute of the Mid-Asiatic university.

The experiment is being widely commented upon in soviet scientific circles, where intensive research has been going on on the general subject of post-mortem revivals. The possibility of restoring life as long as a month after "death" is boldly advanced by reputable physiologists.

Prof. Mikhaelovsky took a small monkey from the Tashkent zoo, and emptied it completely of its blood. The animal remained outwardly dead—breathing had ceased and the heart stopped beating.

The blood was kept from coagulating through chemical means, and after a while was re-injected into the organism. The monkey immediately stirred, as if waking from a deep sleep. Its breathing and heart-beats were resumed.

In a few minutes it was completely alive and tried to bite the professor's hand. It had been dead 55 minutes and must have had a marvelous tale to tell its cage-mates at the zoo, whither it was returned.

Tulia Farmer Now Gets Good Income Off Small Farm

(By Bob Anglin in West Texas Today)

John H. Adams, local diversified farmer, near Tulia, Texas, says that he was a "down and out" farmer a few years ago, trying to "get rich quick" by sowing large acreage to wheat each year. After getting deeper in debt each season with this method, Adams decided he would try to just make a living on a small farm and from that time his earnings have far exceeded the salary of the average man, including his living. His income from 185 acres is more than $300 per month.

Adams settled down on a 185 acre farm, 100 acres of which he plants to hay, grain and sorghums, 50 acres to alfalfa and 35 acres to pasture land. His feed products are fed to live stock on his farm to increase his profits. He maintains from six to ten head of fine milk cows, four purebred brood sows and 50 standard-bred hogs.

Books of the Adam farm tells of the following earnings for the dry year of 1927: Purebred hogs, $1,400.25; sale of dairy cattle, $490.00; sale of mules, $200; cream checks, $799.80; sale of eggs, $26.50; standard-bred poultry, $70.00; garden truck, $147.31; wheat, $391.26, and sudan seed, $204.00; a total of $3,794.12.

Adams also canned a sufficient supply of vegetables and fruit to feed his family for more than a year, cured 1,400 pounds of meat and put up 40 gallons of lard.

CACTI TRANSPLANTED. SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—An expanse of land in the Pacoima Wash near here has been made to produce desert flowers, many of which, including the cacti, are being transferred by tourists to home gardens.

The yellow and pink flowering cacti attract many persons, and since the plant readily grows from "slips," visitors often take home a leaf to be set out.

The plant is protected against animals and the elements by its prickly surface. It is a subject that must be handled with gloves.

MEN ADMIRE HEALTHY AND ACTIVE WOMEN

It is not only beauty of face and form that men admire in women; very often it is the youthful energy and radiant health that enables them to be joyfully active.

Men admire women who take an enthusiastic part in the activities of modern life and women who possess the necessary health and strength for such activity invariably win and hold the admiration of their family and friends.

If you are leading a monotonous, shut-in existence because of that "tired-feeling," due to physical neglect, why not start taking a good tonic? Thousands of women who were run-down, weakened and discouraged have gratefully testified to the help they have received from St. Joseph's G.F.P.

This rich, vegetable tonic contains Nature's own medicines in the form of roots and herbs which have been used for over a century to invigorate and strengthen women.

BUILDINGS OF 300 FLOORS ARE POSSIBILITIES

But Are Not Probable Says Londoner Who Enumerates Many Difficulties

LONDON.—Skyscrapers more than 300 stories high are quite possible, according to Alfred C. Bossom, builder of many tall structures in the United States.

In an interview with the United Press Bossom emphasized the fact that such mammoths are not likely ever to materialize because, he said, they would defeat the very economic purpose which skyscrapers were originally intended to fulfill.

"But I am convinced," he declared during the interview, "that within ten years from now people will no longer express surprise at seeing 100-story buildings in great cities."

"Of course," he added, "even constructions of this size will not be very numerous then. I should think, for instance, that their total might reach 10 or 12. I doubt very much whether there are ever likely to be more than say one in each of America's greatest cities."

Must Insure Adequate Return. Bossom then explained that the building of skyscrapers was subject to questions of practical economics. The same problem will face builders of the future, he declared, as faces those of today.

"To be of practical value," he explained, "a skyscraper must be planned that it will secure for its owner an adequate return for the money invested both as regards the actual expense of building and the land involved."

"According to present statistics and experience," he continued, "a building 100 stories high is about the limit which can be attained with any chance of making a successful investment. I could understand a very, very rich man indulging in a building of say 120 to 125 stories. In doing this, he would be disregarding the actual practical value of the building for investment purposes but he might regenerate this in the advertising value of what would doubtless remain for many years the tallest building in the world."

Many Technical Problems. Besides economic considerations, there are technical questions to be taken into account. In any building of more than 1,300 feet in height, he said, there would be too much sway. In the case of a building 300 stories or more, which he pointed out, would be over 2,000 feet high, the sway would reach from seven to eight feet at the top of the building.

"If only for this reason," he said with a significant smile, "I doubt very much that any but ex-sailors could be induced to inhabit such a building."

Also, he stated, the width of the pillars required to support the framework of a 300-story building would have to be so great at the base that there would hardly be room for anything but the elevator. Then, he added, probably the first 150 floors would be useless for the accommodation of human beings as, he said, those first floors would be almost entirely taken up with the building's lower framework.

The number of orange trees in Texas increased in five years from 55,000 to 190,000 and grapefruit from 79,000 to 1,650,000.

ART TREASURES WORTH FORTUNE STILL MISSING

Marshal Feng's Return Revives Interest In Quarter-Billion Loss

By C. D. FESS United Press Staff Correspondent PEKING.—The return to power of Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang in North China has renewed interest of Chinese and foreign art connoisseurs in Peking in the question, "What has happened to the art treasures taken from the Boy Emperor?"

Some four years ago, in 1924, when Marshal Feng seized Peking by a coup d'etat, he summarily ejected the Boy Emperor from the Imperial Palace, and a great number of art treasures held by the former Manchu ruler disappeared.

A few of the smaller objects have since appeared on the market in Peking, but these are attributed to thieving eunuchs who used the excitement of the occasion to get away with whatever they could. The more important objects, however, have never appeared, either in China or abroad.

A group of prominent Chinese curio dealers in Peking were much interested when they learned that Marshal Feng had decided to evict the Boy Emperor from the Forbidden City. They knew that the boy emperor had gathered together a hoard of the Manchu treasures, covering centuries of Chinese history, and of great historic and intrinsic value. They suspected that these treasures might disappear, and placed spies around the Forbidden City to see what would happen.

Believed Still Hidden. A spokesman of this group has informed the United Press that all the more valuable articles were removed from the boy emperor's quarters in 1924, and that many boxes and bales were loaded on camels held in waiting. These camel trains were traced to one of Peking's gates, through which they passed on their way to the northwest. The spies did not dare proceed further, so it is not known where the camels went. The curio dealers are convinced that these art treasures still are hidden somewhere in the northwest, subject to the disposal of Marshal Feng or some of his subordinates.

While none can be certain of the value of the articles taken, it is stated by experts that the Boy Emperor had treasures estimated at $250,000,000 gold, and that almost all of them disappeared.

It has been commonly supposed that the boy emperor was permitted to retain many of his treasures and that he has existed since in his miniature court in Tientsin on the proceeds of some of them. But Chinese who appear to know what they are talking about declare that the boy emperor is dependent upon gifts from all parts of China. They declare that, strangely enough, the large part of his support at present comes from wealthy Cantonese, in spite of the fact that the south was chiefly responsible for the overthrow of the Manchus.

The disposition of great art treasures is extremely difficult, even for a war lord. Proof must be given that they are genuine, and there are only a few experts competent to pass upon them. No warlord cares to admit that he has taken the treasures from the palace, and would like to make a sale secretly, but the only persons with money enough to pay a reasonable price for the best of the Manchu treasures will not enter into any doubtful transaction.

Agricultural Outlook In Texas Appears Very Good

AUSTIN.—With increased acreage and no great decline in prices, the agricultural outlook in Texas is generally bright, according to Bernard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review, issued monthly by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"Acreage under cultivation in the state is about two per cent greater than that of a year ago," he explained, "and farm prices have declined very little so far this year. In some districts crops have been backward because of the unfavorable weather during and just after the planting season. During June and the first part of July weather conditions have been much more favorable. As a result crops have materially improved, and farmers are greatly encouraged in the outlook."

"Acreage planted to cotton in Texas according to the United States Department of Agriculture estimated at 18,560,000 acres, or an increase of nine per cent over plantings a year ago. In most areas of the state, the crop is doing nicely, although rains are needed in the West and Southwest."

"Fruits and vegetables are moving to market at record rates, shipments of watermelons and tomatoes being especially heavy at this time. Prices declined somewhat.

"Many farm products advanced in price. Cotton gained two cents a pound, while corn and wheat went up several cents a bushel. Oats and rye held steady, but hay and feeds show a seasonal decline.

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that!

It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Miller Huggins, who has his Yankees so far out in front that he can look along the road as he travels, names Fox, Barnes, Reeves, Kress and Durocher as the best young players in the American league this year.

Fox and Reeves were around last year, of course, but they did not get enough work to classify them as veterans.

By almost common consent Fox, the great all-around kid of the Athletics, is rated as the best young player in the league.

When Ed Hamm broke the world's record for the broad jump in the final Olympic trials, his schoolmates at Georgia Tech intimated that it wasn't nothing much for him and he would jump 26 feet before he finishes school.

Steve Farrell, Michigan coach, who handled the former record holder, De Hart Hubbard, when he was breaking in, says that Hubbard will do 26 feet also.

He pointed out that Hubbard hurt the ankle on his jumping foot in the 1924 Olympic Games and hurt it again last year.

He was forced to learn to jump off the other foot, and even with that handicap has been near the record.

About Cockroaches; Can Be Controlled

WASHINGTON, July 17.—It may surprise many people to learn that the cockroach has one redeeming trait.

It is not recommended, however, that cockroaches be kept for eradicating the bedbug.

entirely, by elimination of all attractive substances, according to farmers' Bulletin 658-F. "Cockroaches." If care is taken to keep food from living rooms, offices, desk drawers, and no attractive odors of food are permitted to remain, the roach nuisance can be restricted largely to places where it is necessary for food to be kept. In such places the storage of food material in insect-proof containers or in ice boxes, together with thorough going cleanliness, will go a long way toward preventing serious annoyance.

Roaches may be controlled by the use of poisons and repellents, fumigants, and traps. One of the most effective and simple means of ridding premises of the pests is by the use of commercial sodium fluoride, a powder easily obtainable. It may be used in the pure form or diluted one-half with some inert substance such as powdered gypsum or flour. With a dust gun or blower the sodium fluoride can be thoroughly dusted about the runways and hiding places of the roaches. The immediate effect is to cause these insects to rush out of their hiding places and run about more or less blindly, showing evidence of discomfort, to be followed in the course of a few hours by their death. The dust acts both as a stomach poison and as a contact poison.

A copy of the bulletin, describing a number of other methods of reducing or eradicating the nuisance, may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

PEANUTS HAVE VARIETY OF BY-PRODUCTS

Yields Ten Kinds of Milk, Flour, Sauces, Oils, Tonics, Etc., 165 Varieties In All.

Peanuts are worthy of a story all their own. Who could imagine the lot of one who had never enjoyed a fresh roasted peanut? And when it is meal time, and you are hungry, what is so maddening as to have somebody crack and eat a few, especially when the very first one makes your mouth water. And when you have eaten one, where is the place to stop? Fresh roasted peanuts have about the most "morish" taste of any article of human food.

Dr. George Washington Carver, of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, one of the leading chemists of the world, a modest, gentle negro, regards the peanut as man's universal food. A legume, with power to bring nitrogen from the air, it is a soil-builder, rather than a soil-robbing.

Dr. Carver has developed 165 by-products of the peanut, ranging from the purest of milk for the sick-room to a useful variety of ink. These discoveries include ten kinds of milk, two grades of flour, two grades of meal, five breakfast foods, three relishes, nine wood stains, Worcestershire sauce, several kinds of oils, face powder, face cream, food flavorings, pastries, confections, stock foods, tonics, punches, etc. One of the milks obtained looks like milk, tastes like milk, and will yield butter and cheese just like cow's milk.

Peanuts were introduced into Virginia as food for slaves, but as they have been found in ancient mummy graves in Peru it would look as if they are indigenous to the Western world. They grow all over the southern and southeastern parts of the United States, the crop amounting to about 307,000,000 pounds a year, from 1,000,000 acres of land.

Peanut butter is popular, but should be more so, as it is an important food, containing a high per cent of both protein and fat. Peanut oil is of higher grade than cottonseed oil, and only slightly lower in grade than olive oil. A bushel of Spanish peanuts will make a gallon of oil and twenty pounds of oil-cake and hull. Peanut vines and waste make excellent feed for cows and other live stock. China has erected a stone tablet in memory of the American missionary who introduced American peanuts into China.

BEHAVIOR OF CHILD GUIDED BY SUGGESTION

Teaching In Sunday Schools Throughout World Said To Be More Practical.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Sunday schools throughout the world are changing from merely a place where children learn to answer questions about the Bible correctly to one where they are so transformed that their spiritual progress shows in their daily behavior. This statement was made before a seminary conference of the world's tenth Sunday school convention here by Mrs. Dorothy Dickinson Barbour, professor of religious education at Peking University, China.

"The Sunday school teacher, instead of merely accepting assigned Biblical lessons, now gives his pupils opportunity to learn to be better Christians," she said. "Whether or not it is worth the trouble depends upon whether we are satisfied when pupils know certain Bible facts, stories and verses or whether we think every child of such worth that we will make the effort necessary to transform his desires, his conduct and his judgments."

At another seminary group, Dr. Harry N. Holmes of New York City, field secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship, declared that "for the first time in history, the pedestal on which Mars stands is shaking." Tremendous applause greeted the announcement that France and Germany have accepted Mr. Kellogg's proposal to outlaw war. Learning more about our neighbors throughout the world and the fostering of good will are two ways of promoting world peace, Dr. Holmes said.

Messages from the missionary field of Africa and India disclosed that more than 500,000 natives attend religious services of the Christian faith in Central Africa, where there are more than 5,000 Sunday schools. In South Africa there are 27,000 registered Sunday school pupils, while in India there are some 6,000,000 Christians.

Callaway Rally In Comanche Brings Out Enthusiasm

Special to The Telegram. COMANCHE, July 19.—Speaking before the largest political gathering that has assembled in Comanche in many years, in behalf of Hon. Oscar Callaway for Congress from the 17th District, Allen Dabney of Eastland said: "There is a demand all over this district for a man of vision and courage who knows the needs of the farmer and stockman as Callaway unquestionably does and has the ability to initiate legislation that will give a square deal to the producer. In other words the call is for Callaway and he will unquestionably head the ticket in the first primary."

Hon. John A. Lomax reviewed at length Callaway's career from his entry into the University with out money but armed with courage and ambition. Through his successful career as attorney, legislator, farmer-stockman, and dwelt at length on Callaway's ability to see the people's needs and courage to fight their battles.

The meeting which was presided over by Mayor J. R. Eanes was a testimonial of Callaway's friends whose slogan: "Comanche County unanimous for Callaway!" Preceding the speaking a joint concert was given by the bands from De Leon and Comanche.

Oscar Callaway, candidate for congress, is to speak in Eastland next Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, and in Ranger at 8 o'clock Saturday, according to announcement made here. He is to be introduced by Allen Dabney.

Eastland Bar Endorses Justice W.C. Marrow

Fully appreciating the great legal ability of Presiding Justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas and his matchless qualifications for the high position he has so ably filled in the past, we, members of the Eastland County Bar, heartily endorse his candidacy for re-election to that high place in our judiciary, the Honorable W. C. Marrow.

EASTLAND TELEGRAM

Telegram Bicycle Contest Gets Going

This Morning Marks Beginning of Contest For Boys of Eastland.

Several of the most energetic boys in Eastland were down this morning before the doors were open—ready to go, already some of the boys have turned in several thousand points, gotten either with subscriptions or with the little coupon the friends and well wishers of the boys are saving for them. It is nearly too early in the game to give the total points of all the boys but below we will give what we may, then each day the score up to 2:30 or 3:00 o'clock will be given.

There are lots of boys already working but there is room for lots more and even though a few are already a few points ahead it won't take the hard workers but a few hours to come abreast of the leaders and but a few more to forge ahead of the field—and we ask you, isn't the prize worth the little time it would take to make it yours?

Come on down boys, take a look at this beautiful bicycle and then if you don't get in the race we'll be very surprised because it's a peach.
