Independent Oil Men In Meeting Thursday Night

Nearly 100 Attend County-Wide Meeting From Cisco, Ranger And Eastland

The independent oil men do not want war with the major companies; all he asks is a fair profit for all, speakers declared at a county-wide meeting of independent operators, royalty owners and business men at the Gholson hotel in Ranger Thursday evening.

Nearly 100 attended the banquet, representatives from Eastland, Cisco, Ranger and other cities being present.

W. D. Conway, Ranger oil man, was toastmaster. Mayor John Thurman delivered an address of welcome.

On the theme, "What the Oil Industry Means to Eastland County," L. R. Pearson, attorney and city commissioner of Ranger, pointed out that nationally oil has developed until it is the third industry. There are more than 300,000 wells in the United States and while this country might consider itself as a small producer, yet it is interesting to note that the average for the entire nation is only 7.4 barrels per well a day and Texas, with only 10 per cent of the wells, is producing 24 per cent of the oil.

The oil industry has built Eastland county, said Judge Pearson. It bears its part of the taxes with readiness; it pays high wages; it has big investments and it has contributed immeasurably to the development of this territory. "The oil industry is the oil belt's chief asset," he concluded.

"A tariff on oil is needed or ultimately it will mean an oil monopoly in the United States," declared Frank Killough, assistant to the executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum association. He pointed out that Venezuela crude can be procured and shipped to the United States at so low a price that the cost of Mid-Continent crude, not counting transportation, is $1.70 a barrel. Refuting the contention of opponents of an oil tariff that the supply of oil in the United States is so limited that it is necessary to import, the speaker said there are 80,000,000,000 barrels of oil that can be extracted from shale deposits; that half the world's supply of coal is in the United States and oil and coal are produced from the same source; that there is no danger of an oil shortage for 800 years and he quoted Tom Cranfill, president of the Independent association, who said, "I'm not interested after the first 800 years."

John M. Gholson, Ranger operator, spoke briefly, expressing the hope that it was possible to evolve recognition that there was identity of interest between the majors and the independents.

"We are not organizing to put the majors out of business," said Claude C. Wild, executive vice president of the Independent association, in agreeing with Mr. Gholson's statement. "They have a right to be in business. So do we."

A fair profit for all is the aim of the association, he declared. If concentration continues, however, he predicted that the American people always swing from one extreme to the other, there will be a trust-busting campaign. This is not desired by the independents for it means chaos. As a step to that understanding, he cited the conundrum of progress between representatives of the independents, the majors and the pipelines.

Pipe Line Rates

The Independent Petroleum association is investigating pipe line rates, said C. L. Morgan, secretary of the organization. These rates have never been looked into as in the case of railroad rates, he said, and if it should be found proper to reduce them, the amount received by the producers for their oil would be correspondingly increased. He mentioned that the rate from McCamey to the Gulf is 41 cents a barrel and from Ranger to Fort Worth, 45 cents. One major company made more in 1929 than ever before, he declared, and the company explained it largely on the basis of pipeline profits.

The new pipeline law, sponsored by the Independent association and drawn up by Judge Morgan, was explained by the speaker. It means proportion for the State and not just some fields. However, it will affect only one well and go to another where they would take the oil. A pipe line would take the oil from an extension well until an offset by a company with which the pipe line company was affiliated would come in and then only the oil from the second well would

CONTEMPT ACTION AGAINST CANNON IS UP TO CURTIS

Congressman Tinkham Says He Is Laying Plans To Force An Accounting From Bishop

WASHINGTON, June 13—The possibility of contempt action against Bishop James Cannon Jr., for his refusal to answer questions propounded by the Senate Lobby Committee rested today with Vice President Curtis. Members of the committee indicated they would institute no further action.

Senator Blaine reiterated his belief that the law is mandatory upon the vice president to certify the record in the case to the district attorney for prosecution. However he said he probably would take no action himself.

Meanwhile, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who has advocated asking the senate for additional authority to question the Bishop, said he has abandoned this effort as a result of the committee's refusal to sponsor it.

Vice President Curtis would not comment on the situation until he has stated further.

Blaine contends the responsibility rests upon the vice president as a result of the committee's action yesterday ordering the entire record of the case to be laid before the Senate.

Meanwhile, Rep. George Holden Tinkham, Rep., Mass., whose charges against Cannon's alleged lobbying activities started the Senate committee's investigation, said today he was laying plans to force the Bishop to make a public accounting of certain funds during the past presidential campaign. He said he was "disappointed but not surprised" by the lobby committee's failure to act against Cannon.

Pinkham said he is not interested in Cannon's "political activities."

He declined to reveal the nature of his plans now.

Famous English Racer Killed In Motorboat Test

One Mechanic Also Killed And Another Seriously Injured When Boat Capsizes At High Speed

WINDERMERE, Eng., June 13—Major Sir Henry Segrave's speed boat Miss England, hurtling over the water of Lake Windermere at more than 100 miles an hour for a new world speed record, suddenly dived like a bullet today, hurtling her crew of three into the water, injuring Segrave fatally.

Sir Henry and his mechanic, E. Wilcocks, were taken out of the water in a daring rescue by a man and a woman spectator, the other mechanic, E. Halliwell never appeared above the surface again.

At the hospital here Segrave was found to have both arms and a rib broken and died from his injuries. Wilcocks had a broken thigh.

Segrave, who was attempting to set a new world mark for speed boats when the accident occurred, was rescued by two spectators—a man and a woman.

The woman aided in dragging Segrave into their boat. When both men were safe she fainted.

Wilcocks, with blood streaming from his face, waved his rescuers away and shouted for them to aid Segrave. No trace could be found of Halliwell. Segrave was unconscious until after he had been taken to the Windermere hospital.

The speedboat was wrecked just after she had entered the marked mile course. For a moment the craft was lost to view in a great cloud of spray. When the spray vanished the motorboat had overturned.

Segrave died shortly after 5 p. m. He was one of the most famous automobile and motorboat speed drivers in the world, noted for his skill and daring. He also held a world record for an automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour, made in Florida and shortly before the accident had set a new world motorboat record with an average of 98.76 miles an hour.

The record was made on two runs which preceded the fatal one. His official time for the first run was 96.4 miles an hour, and for the second 101.1. The previous record was held by the American, Gar Wood, at 93.4 miles an hour.

Segrave was estimated to have been well above 100 miles an hour on the third run when the boat, roaring over the water with a deafening noise, suddenly disappeared in a great shower of water.

Hundreds of spectators saw the accident and all manner of craft hurried to the scene. But it remained for a spectator, named King to rescue. King dived into the water fully clothed and brought up Segrave. A woman helped them both into a boat and then fainted.

The cause of the accident was not determined by the coroner. But it was a gaping hole in the bottom. It was believed either she had struck a piece of driftwood or one of the whirling propellers broke and crashed through the hull.

TWO SISTERS TAKE POISON

DALLAS, Tex., June 13—Two sisters, Mrs. Ruby Simon, 23, and Mrs. Mary Smith, 16, whose residence is a cabin at a tourist camp on the Fort Worth park, near El Tirol Club, were in a critical condition at a local hospital today from the effects of bichloride of mercury poisoning.

House Expected To Pass Measure By Large Vote

Some of Supporters Cast Votes With Misgivings About Benefits of the Measure

By PAUL R. MALLON
WASHINGTON, June 13—The Smoot-Hawley bill raising the tariff on imports $107,000,000 a year or more was passed in final form by the senate today, a year and a half after it began its legislative career.

Containing increased duties on sugar, shoes, butter, cements, lumber and bricks among many others, the measure now goes to the house where passage is scheduled tomorrow.

The prospects are it will become a law next week by President Hoover's signature.

Designed originally to equalize the tariff disadvantages of agriculture with those of industry, the measure lost the almost unanimous support of the Senate farm group on the final roll call. The rejected coalition of farm Republicans and Democrats turned overwhelmingly against the measure now that the debenture system of farm relief is omitted. They took the position the increased duties on agriculture will be ineffective while the upward adjustment of many agricultural rates can only add further to the burdens of the farmers.

The votes of the administration Republican group and a few Democrats furnish the small majority for the measure which was one of the most controversial in history.

Some of the bill's supporters, notably Senators Reed and Grundy Republican protectionists from Pennsylvania, cast their votes with public misgivings about the benefits of the measure. Taking exactly the opposite position of many agriculturists, they felt that the tariff rates are too high and the industrial rates insufficiently adjusted to protect American manufacturers fully against foreign competition.

Like others who voted for the bill, they made clear they were not in favor of the measure. In fact, feeling business would be better with the question definitely settled.

The final vote came upon the technical parliamentary question of adopting the conference report by a majority of two-thirds. The measure passed by House and Senate conferees in adjusting the differences in the measure originally passed by both houses. Rejection of this report would have sent the bill again to conference for further adjustments to make it acceptable to a majority of the senate.

There is no doubt but that a more substantial majority will be piled up in favor of the measure when a similar vote is taken in the house tomorrow. There is likewise every reason to expect Mr. Hoover will increase the measure.

His friends have indicated he feels substantially the same way about the measure as Reed and Grundy.

What the bill will do economically is disputed. During the eighteen months since the measure first was introduced in the house, various legislative paths, various and divergent prophesies have been made by economists and public officials.

The textile industry gets some added protection from the measure. The agricultural rates have now been increased from 20 to 30 per cent. The first time in recent years, hides, cement, bricks, and soft lumber will bear a tariff. Bricks carry a duty of $1.25 per thousand; cement 6 cents per 100 pounds; shoes 50 per cent; soft lumber $1 per 1,000 and hides 10 per cent. All have been on the free list heretofore.

The agricultural schedule is the one which has been increased most. Lemon duties were raised one half a cent to 2 1/2 cents a pound, dried cherries from 2 to 6 cents per pound; milk from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents a gallon; butter from 8 cents to 14 cents.

Manager Connie Mack rallied his Philadelphia Athletics today for a final attempt to turn back the Cleveland Indians' determined bid for the American League lead. The Indians have won two straight from the 1929 world champions and a victory in the final game of the three game series will give them first place.

Clint Brown held Philadelphia to four singles to capture yesterday's contest, 4 to 0. Earnshaw held Cleveland to 5 hits, but two homers by Morgan and one by Myatt scored 4 runs.

Ted Lyons pitched his ninth victory of the season for the Chicago White Sox, defeating Washington, 10 to 6, and dropping the Senators to third place.

The New York Yankees drove their former star, Waite Hoyt, from the mound in two innings and defeated Detroit, 14 to 2. Wells, a former Detroit pitcher, held the Tigers to 6 hits.

Walter Stewart turned in his eighth victory of the season, pitching St. Louis to a 6 to 5 triumph over Boston. Five Red Sox errors aided the Browns.

The Detroit Robins defeated Cincinnati, 3 to 2, and extended their National League lead to 4½ games. A double by pinch hitter Jake Flowers gave the Robins the tying and winning runs in the Pittsburgh snapped the New York Giants' 9-game winning streak, pounding three pitchers for 14 hits and a 10 to 7 victory.

Rain halted a game between the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies in the sixth inning, with the Phils leading 5 to 3. Claude Willoughby held the Cubs to six hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals-Boston Braves game was postponed because of wet grounds.

Yesterday's Hero

Clint Brown of the Indians held the world champion Philadelphia Athletics to 4 singles, winning his game, 4 to 0. Brown's pitching was so effective that the Cleveland outfielders had an idle day, not a single putout being made in the outfield. The four hits were Texas Leaguers which dropped just behind the infielders.

cool this time and with none of the hysteria which marked his performance under similar circumstances at Miami in his bout with Phil Scott, dashed across the ring.

Schmeling couldn't get up. His seconds remained around him. The count which would have been a signal for victory for Sharkey began. But before the knockout time-keeper had beat out the measure with his little wooden hammer, referee Crowley had come to a decision. On the word of one judge, the only one who claimed to have seen the blow land low, the arbiter awarded the fight to the German on a foul.

"I told Jack to keep his punches up. I will give him a return bout," Schmeling said after the fight. But the German youth probably will be advised away from any such course by his handlers. On the form dispensed last night, Sharkey is far the better man.

Scheduling will take the championship of the world to Germany, the first time it has left the country since Jimmy Burrs, a Canadian born Noah Brusso, skipped off to Australia bank in 1906.

There will be a clamor for Jack Dempsey's return to the ring, the former champion having said that he would do so if Sharkey did not succeed in keeping the title in the United States, but Dempsey, on his own admission to the United Press today, is in no shape to fight, and probably never again will be.

As for Gene Tunney, the undefeated champion who lightly tossed aside the crown for which Schmeling and Sharkey fought, was a ringside spectator at last night's affair.

"I thought the blow was foul," said Gene, who incidentally was in no position to judge accurately. "Beyond that I have nothing to say except that I have retired from the ring for all time."

Although Max Schmeling is the acknowledged champion of the world, richer by $175,000 as a result of last night's bout, (he and Sharkey both receiving 25 per cent of a $700,000 gate,) and in a position to cash in upon the rich rewards that go with the title.

In the fourth round of last night's spectacular fight in Yankee Stadium, Jack Sharkey, who had outclassed Schmeling in every way, whipped home a terrific left hook which landed below Max's belt.

The German, a badly beaten fighter until that moment, went down helpless and incapacitated, and after an inexcusable delay and amidst scene of tremendous confusion, referee Jimmy Crowley awarded the fight and the championship to Schmeling.

No other decision was possible, since the only judge in a position to see where that swishing left hook landed declared it a palpable foul.

Max Schmeling is the new champion of the world, but champion by virtue of the same good luck which has marked his career. The marble base of the "Tunney-Muldoon Trophy" will be carved with the name of the German youth, but no one among the vast throng which packed every nook and cranny of the towering Yankee stadium last night left with any doubt that Jack Sharkey was the better man.

In the third round, Schmeling was all but out on his feet, a battered and beaten victim of a worthy successor to the long line of heavyweight champions from John L. Sullivan down through Gene Tunney.

Five minutes later, after the confusion caused by the indecision of the referee, the clamor of seconds and upon the word of a lone judge, Harold Barnes, it was Max Schmeling instead of Jack Sharkey who was declared champion of the world.

Never before in prize ring history has a heavyweight title been awarded on a foul.

It happened this way, Sharkey, toward the end of the fourth round, whipped over a right to the jaw which sent Schmeling sagging against the ropes. As Max came off the ropes, the Bostonian started a long, low left swing from the

NEW YORK, June 13.—The fistie world has a new heavyweight champion today, but the decision which brought that honor to Max Schmeling, the fortunate youth of Germany, still ranks in the breasts of some 80,000 spectators who witnessed the unfortunate ending to the battle for the title.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NRA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—While Congress takes its time about authorizing a couple of new federal prisons the Hoover administration is taking no chances on a disaster similar to the holocaust at the Ohio state prison in Columbus.

The existing federal prisons are crowded to about twice their capacity, by official admission. Recent policy has been to get the boys out of the cells and behind barbed wire or in some other safe place. Army camps are being used to handle as many as possible and the Department of Justice is trying to extend its policy of arrangements with local jails for the incarceration of short-term federal convicts.

Prisons Now Hold 13,000

Present population of the three federal prisons at Leavenworth, Atlanta and McNeil Island is about 13,000. Approximately an equal number of federal prisoners are awaiting trial or serving short sentences in more than a thousand different county or local institutions throughout the country.

The first batch of men to be sent from penitentiaries to army camps numbers about 1000. More will follow as facilities for handling the prisoners are extended and further arrangements are made between the Justice and War Departments.

Early reports are that everyone is happy about the experiment. Sanford Bates, superintendent of federal prisons, who is credited with the idea, is relieved at the prospect of temporarily relieving congestion. The War Department doesn't mind getting free labor for improvements on its property. And the prisoners themselves are said to be happier working outdoors than cooped up in narrow, crowded cells as they were.

Prisoners from Atlanta have been sent to Fort Bragg, N. C., and Camp Meade, Md. Leavenworth inmates are being sent to Fort Riley, Kan. Another prison camp will be established at Camp Lee, Va., with facilities for about 600 men. Some 200 there have been sent to a camp at Alderson, W. Va., where they can work on improvements for the federal women's reformatory. Further extension of the camp system is expected. Whether such camps will be operated during the winter will depend on what winter conditions are in the vicinity.

The policy of Superintendent Bates is to send picked men into the camps. They must be strong, adapted for outdoor work and reasonably trustworthy. They will be well guarded, of course, but the idea is to make them regard camp work as a privilege and to establish compulsory return to the cells as a penalty in case they don't behave themselves.

In return for the free labor the army will provide living quarters, medical treatment and hospitalization. The prisoners will be entirely separated from the military units. Although they may occupy barracks alongside those used by troops, these barracks will be surrounded by barbed wire and strict prison discipline and supervision will be maintained.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Matt. 27:33-50.

And when they were come unto a place called Galgotha, that it is to say, a place of askull.

They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with gall; and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.

And sitting down they watched him there;

And set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS

THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Then there were two thieves crucified with him; one on the right hand, and another on the left.

Any they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads, and saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.

Likewise also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said, He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him; for he said, I am the Son of God.

The thieves also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias.

And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 15. Calvary. Matt. 27:33-50.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

Calvary was the end of the way that reached its final stage in Gethsemane, though the shadow of the "cross" long before that had loomed over the pathway of our Lord.

How clearly Jesus in his earthly life knew from the beginning this end of the way is not made plain in the Scriptures. In fact, the writers of the New Testament may so easily have read into the records the things that they only understood after the death and resurrection of Jesus that we have no exact means of knowing just what was in the consciousness of Jesus or how vividly he realized what was to be the final sacrifice.

Expect His Martyrdom.

That he understood the probable means of effecting his ministry would seem evident from the fact that he referred so constantly to the fate of the prophets who had gone before him. He had seen, also, the martyrdom of John the Baptist, and there must always have been in his mind the realization that some such fate was also to be his. The earnestness of his prayer in Gethsemane that the cup might pass would seem, on the other hand, to suggest the hope that his ministry might be fulfilled without going the way of the cross.

Possibly in connection with all such speculation it is worth while only to fix our minds on the fact that from the very beginning to the end of the earthly way, the one supreme purpose of Jesus was to do his Father's will. The idea of his own personal safety or welfare was entirely secondary to that supreme purpose. That he was human and tempted, like as we are, is made sufficiently apparent not only in the three great temptations, but in the evidence of struggle and trial throughout his earthly ministry and in the representation of those experiences in which only through agony and prayer did he seem to find strength.

The fact is that we must feel felt in terms of actual suffering.

Nor was the physical pain its greatest mark. The law of sacrifice and its mystery are perplexing. The disappointment of one's hopes and the turning back of life into channels of seeming loss and bitterness constitute the most difficult part of the cross. Yet human life in its revelations of sacrifice and right reveals the fact that it is out of the darkest and saddest experience of mankind 'that have come the most glorious days.

The scene of Calvary portrayed in our lesson is vivid enough in its detail—the cross in the center of the group with the ironic inscription "This is Jesus the King of the Jews," upon the cross to which he was nailed, and the two thieves, one on either side—none railing against him with the mockery with which the base and brutal have always reviled the saint and the saintly, the other, with that genuine goodness beneath his unfortunate career of evil, recognizing the justice of his own punishment and turning in his last hour to find communion with the Friend of Sinners and salvation through his grace.

Beyond Our Comprehension. No detail, however, can make one appreciate the full horror of the tragedy or the full glory of the light that came in the dawn following this darkness. It revolutionizes man's thought of himself and of the world when he comes face to face with Christ on the cross and realizes what Calvary meant in the experience of the Man of Sorrows and what it has meant in the economy of the universe.

To know Christ and to share the fellowship of his sufferings is to meet Christ with a new sense of courage and power, and if not with an understanding of life's mystery, at least with a new faith that through the mystery there lies a path of honor and goodness and truth from which the man who seeks salvation cannot be turned even by suffering or loss and along which he finds the way to the deepest satisfaction and the highest communion of life.

Condemned Man Blames Crimes On Crooked Cops

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—An appeal to the city to rid itself of "dishonest policemen" who they said start youngsters on the road to crime in order to collect part of the spoils was voiced here today by two men who will die July 15 for murdering a patrolman of a different calibre.
