European Tourist In Years 1917-19 Says He Does Not Fear Number "13"

If you're one of those superstitious folk who believe that the number 13 is unlucky, ask Albert K. Moore, editor of the Salyersville (Ky.) Independent and one of the men who "toured Europe from 1917 to 1919," about it. Here's what he has to say about that: "Allow me to belatedly enter the ranks of those editors who 'toured Europe in 1917, 1918, 1919.' I fought, bled and several times died (figuratively, of course) in the ordnance corps of the United States army during the late unpleasantness, serving for 14 months overseas. I was for a part of this period a sergeant, being 'busted' four times for various things, and came back to the States as a private, first class. "I was a member of the One Hundred and Seventh M. O. S., Thirty-second division, which stands for Mobile Ordnance Re-

Argument in Favor of 12-Month School

The summer vacation is the hang-over of an old economic makeshift, the use of school children in the fields and about the homes of the agricultural regions. For some unknown reason the Gardner (Mass.) News says, the change from rural to urban life made little difference. The school year became a little longer, but the summer is still a vacation time. Questioning the wisdom of this obsolete plan, the News says:

the religion of the Etruscans, various scholars setting forth their conclusions as to its nature, derivations from and relations with other religions. The historical and archaeological sections also held interesting meetings and discussions. In his inaugural address, His Excellency, Alessandro Martelli, as representing the government, paid a high tribute to the value of the congress and referred especially to the importance of Professor Trombetti's researches into the Etruscan language, which, although the great and arduous task was not yet wholly accomplished, had the Government's hearty encouragement and support. He also declared the intention of the government to initiate without interrupting any of the excavations already in course of accomplishment an ample, systematic and complete exploration of some of the most important Etruscan centers.

MRS. G. A. DAVISSON ENTERTAINS CLUB Mrs. George A. Davison was club hostess to the Thursday Afternoon Bridge Club yesterday when three tables in the game were beautifully appointed in bridge books and tallies that harmonized with the pretty bouquets of roses and shasta daisies that adorned the rooms. At the close of the game, a delectable frozen fruit salad was served with sandwiches, olives, cake, and iced tea.

Favor for high score, a hand-painted sandwich plate was awarded Mrs. Beall. Members present were: Mmes. Garrett, Bohning, Curtis A. Hertig, Scott W. Key, Beall Smith, Milburn McCarty, Henry Brelsford, J. H. Cheatham Sr., Murray F. Gill, Jack Williamson, Miss Cecelia Haas, and guests, Mrs. Icard of Chickasha, Okla., and Mrs. I. N. Beall.

This club has recessed until September. SLUMBER PARTY AND HIKE ARE ENJOYED A lovely little party was arranged for Barbara Ann Arnold by her mother, Mrs. J. LeRoy Arnold, last evening when a big crowd of little folks were entertained at the family home, with an evening of games, terminating in a scampering of thinly clad youngsters over the lawn, who were getting a shower bath from the hose, and thoroughly enjoying the fun. Beds were everywhere, made up on springs and in delightful proximity for an all night whispered visit.

At five-thirty this morning the active bunch was ready for breakfast, for they had to hike to get it. But when they did reach the City Park, they found ample preparations started, and what they did to it was a plenty as they certainly enjoyed that early meal of scrambled eggs, bacon, fried potatoes, toast and marshmallows. Mrs. Arnold was assisted by Mrs. R. L. Perkins. The list of small guests included Ruth Harris, Frances Harris, May J. Pig With Eight Legs Is Born In This City (Ranger Times) A pig with two tails and eight legs was born on the Fourth of July here. The queer creature might have eclipsed the fame attained by Rip, the horned toad—but unfortunately the porker lacked the stamina of the court house sleeper and, after only a few hours, the peculiar pig passed away.

However, his body has been preserved in alcohol and it has been viewed by a great number of people. It belongs to J. W. Dodd, who lives on Eastland hill. The pig was brought to the Times office by Jim Searcy in order that the newspaper force might see for themselves one of the oddest animals ever born.

The pig had only one head but was the possessor of twice the number of legs and tails customary for its kind. It was a Duroc Jersey. Six brothers and sisters survive. They are normal in appearance.

Certain inks have affinities for certain papers. Part of the research will be to determine which combinations produce the most readable sheets.

Before that can be done, H. D. Ashby of the Plain Dealer explained, methods for producing a uniform quality of newsprint must be discovered. Today, one roll of paper may have more fuzz on it than its predecessor, throwing a previously perfect ink-to-paper combination out of kilter. Sometimes the variety of ink-to-paper combinations show in one copy.—Publishers Auxiliary.

As soon as she thought Oliver would be in his office she took a subway train down to Wall street.

He was not in but Miss Evans said she expected him soon, so Virginia decided to wait.

In about half an hour he arrived, coming in hurriedly and stopping for a few brief words with his secretary before going on to his office.

Virginia signified her willingness to wait. Miss Evans started toward her desk, appeared to change her mind and stopped, facing Virginia again.

"I'd rather wait," Virginia returned promptly. The secretary frowned, seemed about to speak, but nodded her head instead and hurriedly gathered up her pencil and notebook.

In five minutes she was back, flushed and angry looking. Virginia stood and Miss Evans said: "You may go in now," and turned at once to her work.

Virginia wondered at her abruptness but she was too anxious to hear what Oliver might have to say about her investment to stop and ask any questions, though she felt there was something Miss Evans had wanted to say to her.

When she opened Oliver's door she saw him coming across the room from a door on the opposite side with a glass of water in his hand. He looked haggard and miserable.

"Had a night," he said shortly and motioned Virginia to a chair. She sat down in it without taking her eyes off his face. He flopped into his own seat and gulped down the water thirstily.

"No sleep," he went on self-pityingly. "I thought you had given up dissipating," Virginia said regretfully.

"What else is there in life? A wife here, there and everywhere. And nothing but work, work, work."

"Oh, I'm sorry," Virginia cried, remembering that she had burdened him with more work. "Need someone to feel sorry for me," he said childishly. "Glad you came to me to help you, Virginia. Want you to be grateful."

"Of course I shall be, Oliver, but I'm afraid I shouldn't have troubled you with my affairs."

"Don't be a sill. I've got to be here anyhow. No extra effort to handle your investments. Well, I suppose you want to know what I've done for you."

"Yes, I would," Virginia's tone was hopefully eager. Oliver laughed. "I've made you some money," he replied happily. "Want it?"

"No no. I want you to reinvest it. You understand that, don't you?"

"Thought you might need some pin money. Better take a hundred. I won't need it."

Virginia was firm. "No, please," she said quietly. "I know it isn't going to be so easy, Oliver, for you to make a hundred thousand dollars for me in just one year, unless you have enough money to work with. I intend to bring in all my spare, so please don't urge me to take any of what there is now."

Oliver looked at her through half-closed, amused eyes. "Going to be a regular Hetty Green before you get through," he approved silkily.

"I don't care about tying any records," Virginia replied. "Just show me how to make $100,000 and I'll be the happiest person that Wall Street ever knew."

"Well, I'll try . . . make you happy," Oliver told her in a strangely portentous way. Virginia threw him a quick, startled glance, but he was looking as innocent as a toy balloon.

"Where you going?" he asked as she started to leave. "Say, Virginia, better give me your address," he added as she stood up. "I'll give it to Miss Evans," she evaded. "And thanks a lot, Oliver."

"Come in tomorrow," Virginia hesitated a moment. "Do you need me?" she countered. "I may be busy."

"Might," he replied laconically. "Like to keep in touch with my clients. Important decisions to make on a moment's notice at times."

"If I can't come I'll telephone," Virginia temporized, thinking that she must use her time to find employment.

that the secretary was confused about something.

"I wonder what's the matter," she puzzled over it, thinking back in an effort to discover if she had been cool, as might happen in the moods of preoccupation that came upon her lately.

"Will you lunch with me again today?" she invited pleasantly and was further troubled to see Miss Evans' lips draw together in a thin line and hear her answer, "I'm very sorry, Miss Brewster, I've another engagement."

"Some other time," Virginia suggested, to conceal the fact that she was slightly offended. Later, lunching alone, she smiled a little ruefully over Miss Evans' refusal to join her.

Plainly the "other engagement" had been merely an excuse. What a change a few short weeks had wrought in her life! Here was a woman as remote from her in the past as the earth from the sun insofar as social relations were concerned, actually refusing to lunch with her!

Virginia admitted the humor of it but not without a little pang of regret. "Perhaps Oliver was in an ill humor with her," she reflected, genuinely bothered about Miss Evans' strange conduct.

"I'm sure I did nothing to offend her." She was disappointed at losing an opportunity to talk again with a sensible person who had been in accord with her views.

Nathaniel would naturally expect, if she had sufficient money to pay her expenses, that she would take her time about living up to her new-found ideals and wait until some choice position came her way before taking one.

She dared not tell him how urgent it was for her to find employment and if he pondered at whatever she might finally do she would have to pretend that ambition did not count.

Only the fact that she was doing something mattered, she would tell him. Yes, but what was that something going to be? Should she go back to Mrs. Phelps? Telephoning would save time. And she must look up other agencies. She would do that right away.

When she reached Mrs. Phelps by telephone she was asked if she would not come in as soon as convenient. That afternoon? Yes, if she could. Virginia went up directly, by subway.

It was one of the very few times in her life that she had ridden in the underground trains and she found it exceedingly distasteful.

Unsavoury individuals started at her pointedly, giving particular attention to the fashionable brevity of her skirts. There was more crowding, too, than when she had come downtown and although she had a seat her feet were trodden upon and one lurching passenger barely escaped being deposited in her lap when the long train jolted to a stop.

Virginia was decidedly relieved to come up to the street level again, and the days when she had complained of the traffic congestion on Fifth Avenue came back to her now as blissfully free of any real contact with transportation problems.

Then, if caught in the vortex of New York's vast population, she could at least sit in decent isolation in a comfortable motor car until her way was cleared. Today she had been compelled to shoulder her path in and out of a subway train against the opposition of hardened straphangers who it seemed, thought nothing of a little buffeting and elbowing.

She felt sure she must be littered with black and blue spots. But there was the hope of finding a position at Mrs. Phelps to buoy her up and lessen her discomfort.

She was doomed to disappointment once more that day, however, for it soon became apparent that all Mrs. Phelps desired was to have a little motherly talk with her. Virginia could not understand her attitude at all and, frankness being native to her when fact did not prohibit it, she asked with direct simplicity, "Why are you trying to discourage me from seeking work, Mrs. Phelps?"

INDUSTRIAL TEACHERS IN EXTRA WORK

AUSTIN.—Open only to qualify industrial teachers, a special three weeks course in industrial training teaching has just been completed at the University of Texas in the Bureau of Industrial Teacher Training, according to Miss Laura Murray, chief of the Bureau.

A number of Texas public school teachers were in the group who have just finished the course as part of their work for vocational educational certificate offered by the State Board of Vocational Education, Miss Murray said.

Courses in extension work, such as job analysis, vocational guidance, the history of industrial education, lesson planning and methods of teaching, are offered by the University Bureau of Industrial Training. These courses may be counted eight as part of the work for a state certificate or credit for a University degree in education, according to Miss Murray.

Of particular interest are the courses offered in industrial training during the summer to resident students in the university, many of whom are public school teachers.

In addition to the work done on the campus, Miss Murray and her assistant, Hartman Dignowity, make trips to the larger Texas cities to establish what is known as "study centers" among interested students and there conduct six weeks courses in various types of industrial training.

Mr. Dignowity has been particularly interested in the oil industry during the past few years and has made a special study of industrial training and industrial foremanship among the oil field workers.

The University Bureau was established in 1922, according to Miss Murray. The work of the Bureau has been conducted as part of the Division of Extension, in order to give people who could not enroll in the University as resident students an opportunity to receive industrial teacher training.

However, the Bureau has now progressed to such a point and the value of the training offered has so developed that the University Board of Regents voted at its last session to establish a permanent Bureau of Industrial Teacher Training.

The Bureau is now planning to send out a number of industrial teachers to various parts of the state to give courses in industrial training.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Contest Like Horse Race. Dark Contenders Leaping Past Many Others As They Circle Each Series.

Jonnie May Murphy Leading In Count Ending Thursday, 3:30 P. M. Ralph Crouch Jr., 2nd. and Dean Hair 3rd.

At 3:30 p. m. when the third series ended in the Nemir's Stores Race for the Merry Go Round it was only speculation as to who would drive under the wire first. For a while it looked like Billie Sudderth of Ranger, was going to have a chance as one of the three leaders, when at the last hour he was overtaken by others.

But Billie, like many others in the race may be putting high gears in his machine and he may be a victor before it is over.

Yet to hear the talk of the many supporters of others, there are several whose names are listed but what is likely to be in line with the leaders before it is over, and who knows—a dark horse often wins.

To enlighten the readers as to the score count—votes are taken from ballot box each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 3:30 p. m., and counted and posted as soon after as possible.

Each of these two days period is called a series, and at no time will the score board show a total number of votes a contestant possesses from the beginning of contest.

In other words, each series is counted like a single contest of its own, and small tokens awarded the three winners. This gives an opportunity to let many more contestants secure something for the efforts they put forth.

For the benefit of those interested in who is leading in the grand total (and it is the grand total that counts when it comes to winning the Merry Go Round) the following list will give you an inside as to who is who now, yet who will be who next week may be the least expected. Watch and see.

Remember some of those at the bottom have entered in the past couple of days and they claim that if the other fellow can secure fifteen and twenty thousand votes during one series, they can too. This shows sportsmanship, and they are going to stay with it.

Butte Pool Pays $10,000 Daily

By United Press.
 BUTTE, Mont., July 5.—The Butte baseball pool has become one of the great gambling institutions of the world, rivaling even the Monte Carlo casino and the huge Chinese lotteries.
 Between $4,000 and $10,000 in prizes is distributed daily. The amount depends upon the number of chance-takers.

A ticket costs only a quarter. It entitles the holder to eight major league teams playing that day and the winner is the man whose eight teams piles up the largest total score.

Sometimes there are ties, more than one person holding tickets for the same teams. The teams are allocated to the ticket-buyer by shaking out rubber cubes from a dice-box.
 The pool occupies spacious quarters in a downtown office building and the daily announcement of the winner or winners is an event of great interest locally. The name of the lucky person is soon known all over town, and if it happens to be a miner, a bootblack or a newsboy there is an expression of general satisfaction. Often, however, it is a wealthy rancher or a rich mine-owner who took out a dollar's worth of tickets just to pass away the time.

Occasionally the winners are never known. A traveling man may take a ticket and then leave town, not waiting to learn whether he won. Several months ago the proprietors of the pool donated

MANUSCRIPT BRINGS LARGE CASH PRICE

Lewis Carroll's Story "Alice in Wonderland" To Be Displayed In U. S.

NEW YORK.—The original manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" will not be catalogued and tucked away on some dark library shelf, to be seen "by special permission only," at least until some time in the far future. "Alice" is to continue her "adventures" in country, and her admirers in various parts of the United States will be given an opportunity to see the manuscript penned by "Lewis Carroll" in 1865 to amaze some small playmates.

Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, who bought the manuscript at Sotheby's in London for $75,259, has just announced that he has resold it to "a famous American collector" whose name is not to be divulged at present. The new owner, Dr. Rosenbach said, has purchased the manuscript to display it to the public and give "Alice's" admirer an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the forms in which their heroine's adventures first appeared.

The manuscript will be placed on public display in the main entrance hall of the Philadelphia Free Library on June 27. After a short stay there, it will travel to other parts of the country and may even return to England for a visit.

"We have received requests from New York, Chicago, and cities as far west as Los Angeles for permission to see original manuscript," Dr. Rosenbach said. "Eighteen requests have come from New York, and there have been some from various cities in England. The itinerary has not been mapped out yet, and I cannot say whether 'Alice' will go to New York immediately after her debut in Philadelphia or not."
 The manuscript was said to be insured for $277,000.—Christie's Science Monitor.

RANCHMEN TO ASSEMBLE FOR BIG ROUND-UP

District Prize Winners Announced. Total of 773 Women In 78 Counties Participate.

COLLEGE STATION.—Questions affecting the cattle, sheep and goat industry of Texas will be discussed by outstanding experts at the fourth annual Ranchmen Roundup to be held at the Fanch Experiment Station at Sonora of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, August 14-15. Between 3,000 and 3,500 cattlemen, sheep and goat raisers and others interested in the livestock business are expected to attend, according to A. B. Conner, director of the Experiment Station. The attendance last year reached nearly 3,000.

In addition to the talks and discussions particularly for men, there will be a session for women the afternoon of the opening day and a sheep and goat judging contest will be held for boys the afternoon of August 15. A real western barbecue dinner, smacking of the old days of the range, will be held at noon on both days of the round-up. Entertainment feature for the afternoon of the opening day will be polo game between riders who know how to handle the hardy mounts required for that strenuous pastime.

A number of brief talks will be given at the opening session August 14, with W. H. Dameron superintendent of the Sonora station, presiding. A. B. Conner, director of the Experiment Station, will deliver address of welcome, while Judge Alex Collins, San Angelo, will deliver the response. Other speakers include T. A. Kincaid, Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, Corpus Christi; Dr. T. O. Walton, president A. & M. College of Texas; Roscoe Bunge, Mason; Dayton Moses, attorney for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, Fort Worth; Homer D. Wade, manager West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Stamford.

Numerous other speakers will appear on the two-day program, among them being James Callahan, Menard; J. M. O'Daniel, secretary-treasurer Wool Growers Central Storage Company, San Angelo; O. B. Martin, director Extension Service, A. & M. College; O. L. Carpenter, herdsman of the Sonora station.
 Miss Bess Edwards, assistant state home demonstration agent, Extension Service, and Miss Mamie Grimes, textile and clothing specialist, Experiment Station, will address the women's session.

COIN-IN-SLOT SWINGING SAET IS THE LATEST PARK CONVENIENCE

Patrons of parks, amusement resorts, and other places may enjoy a reserved swinging bench as a result of a California inventor's product which has just been introduced, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Dropping a nickel in a slot of the locking mechanism at the side tips the seat up for use and the bench automatically returns to a tilted position when the occupant leaves it, so that the next person also must insert a coin.

PATIENT WINS SUIT

LONDON.—A physician may not abandon a patient in a critical condition without first giving due notice so the patient may secure other medical aid, the supreme court held in an opinion handed down the other day.

The court held that a doctor leaving a patient critically ill guilty of a culpable dereliction of duty and is liable for damages occasioned.

The decision was rendered in the case of Leroy Stohlmman against Dr. B. B. Davis. The court upheld the jury verdict awarding Stohlmman $5,000.

Stohlmman was operated on by Dr. Davis for an infected thigh and ankle. He claimed abandonment by the doctor was responsible for his now having an im-

When Death Rode on English Sands

One of the most remarkable automobile racing photos ever taken in this tragic scene. It happened during a 100-mile race on the Southport Beach, England. The car, driven by Miss May Cunliffe, is shown at the moment of overturning while traveling at high speed. Miss Cunliffe's father, who was riding with them, was thrown to his death. She, still in the machine in this picture, escaped with injuries.

league, wielding his big war club at better than a 400 clip. The whole club perked up and began to play baseball, sweeping a most important series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

"As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees," they say of the Bambino and his world's champions.

Before the season is over, they may be saying the same thing about Goslin and the Senators.

The "Goose" is a ball player's ball player, for all he comes in for a deal of kidding from the others. All the "All-American" teams of recent years have included the name of Goslin. He is a hard worker and a fighter, always ready to give the extra ounce of effort or the left hook which any situation seems to require.

While injuries have handicapped the Senators during this and last season, Goslin played in 148 games during 1927, batting .334. Although he gives the impression of being a hardened veteran, the "Goose" is only 27 and this is only his ninth season in organized baseball. He broke in with Columbia of the South Atlantic league, going to Washington in 1921.

World Series Star.

Evidence that the Senators' star is a fighting ball player is found in his batting average for two world series. It frequently happens that the best batters do not excel during a championship series. They are too much in the limelight. Babe Ruth and others have been known to hit less than their weight in a post-season engagement, although the Babe's weight still makes quite a respectable batting average for most people.

Goslin, however, while he is a marked man in a world series and the butt of most of the jokes, keeps up his hitting and consequently is doubly useful to his club. Against the New York Giants, who were riding him hard, "Goose" hit .344 in the 1924 series when the Senators won the championship of the world. The following year, he hit .308 against the Pirates, nothing to write home to Salem, N. J., about, but still better than most of the other Senators did in that series.

The Senators are not going anywhere this season, since the New York Yankees already have appropriated the American league flag and are just playing out the schedule to get a little practice for an-

Interscholastic League Rules Are Changed this Year

AUSTIN, July 5.—Ratifying seven recommendations made at the state meeting of delegates last May 5, the executive committee of the Texas interscholastic league has just announced a number of changes in the constitution and rules, according to Roy Bedichek, chief of the league bureau at the University of Texas. This action is in accord with that part of the league's constitution which states that legislation shall be affected through recommendations passed at the bi-annual state meeting of delegates and ratified by the state executive committee, Mr. Bedichek explained.

Amendments and changes which have just been approved are as follows:

A new rule, to be effective in 1929, rendering ineligible for any interscholastic league contest any student who has ever attended a college as a regular college student. This rule will take care of any situation which arises through a student's taking high school work or special work in a junior college and returning to high school to enter some interscholastic league contest, whether or not he has participated in that activity while enrolled as a college student.

An amendment to a rule already in existence, to go into effect immediately, empowering the district once, providing for the establishment of a regional championship in class B football.

A ruling, to go into effect in 1929, rendering ineligible any student who has been attending high school for more than 10 semesters (five years).

A ruling, effective at once, providing that the question for debate in 1928-29 shall be so framed as to involve a discussion of the cabinet system of government as opposed to the committee system.

An amendment which changes the rules in the extempore speaking contests so that topics shall be on current news rather than on subjects selected from a printed list issued prior to the contest. This will eliminate the possibility of the contestants' memorizing speeches on certain subjects. This change goes into effect at once.

A rule, ratified by the state executive committee after it had been recommended by a referendum of the schools in the league, which provides that there shall be county elimination of all save two teams in debate contests prior to the county meet. This ruling is to go into effect with the 1928 season.

A rule, to go into effect at once, providing that in all districts composed of more than eight counties the number of debate teams contesting shall be reduced to eight by means of bi-county contests prior to the district meet.

Lowery Matched To Wrestle Headrick

"Schoolboy" Lowery has a new trainer fresh from S. M. U., who is rounding him up in shape for his coming battle with Young Headrick at the Eastland Elks Arena on July 10th. Lowery, it will be remembered, had a big edge on Kid Leon and every one at the match felt that he had earned a right for another match, but Leon insisted he defeat some one else before rematching him. Some say that Leon was only seeking an alibi as he felt this young boy would avoid the body slam this next time and win over him.

However, Promoter McLemore was able to get a tough opponent for Lowery and will give him another test before sending him against Leon. Schoolboy Lowery training hard and the new man helping him is especially giving him work in the way of blocking body slams and pickups from headlocks.

On the same card will be Bobby Edwards of Kansas City in a finish match with Jap Martin. The whole bill will start at 8:30 Tuesday, July 10th.

"Open House" For Birds Provides Food and Protection Year Round

DALLAS.—"Open house" for birds is the rule the whole year round at Cedar Acres, a sanctuary set apart in the suburbs of this city as a place where the little visitors may find protection and sustenance at any season.

Twenty years ago this project was started when Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Gilliam began to observe the few birds they found on their premises. Eight birds of three species visited them the first year. During the intervening years more than 30 species and thousands of individuals have been attracted. In winter great flocks of robins cover the lawn and swarm through the woodlot, feeding on the berries—cedar, hackberry, calliopsis.

Great numbers of migratory birds now come to the large feeding stations provided, among them several hundred white-throated sparrows, that may nest as far north as Hudson Bay or Labrador. Out of about 60 species of the sparrow family, more than 12 are winter residents.

Permanent Residents.
The permanent residents include the mocking bird, the state bird for Texas, of which there are at present approximately 20 pairs; the cardinal, over 50 pairs; the Carolina wren, blue jay, quail, dove, screech owl, meadow lark and several varieties of woodpecker.

Educational vantage points are afforded the dining room and living room windows, for close beside them large feeding stations are placed, so that one inside has ample opportunity to watch every movement of the little visitors and become intimately acquainted with their habits and characteristics. Close by are three bird baths constantly in use where excitement runs high.

In watching these joyous guests from inside, the observer has an insistent feeling that the old order is reversed—he is in the cage while the bird is outside.

Last year a ton and a half of small grain and over 400 pounds of sunflower seed were provided for the birds of Cedar Acres, besides suet, nuts, and many delicate tid-bits.

Mr. Gilliam says it should be remembered that birds are not beggars and rarely take food put

Soviet Flyers in Arctic Search

Two more flyers who have thrown themselves into the search for Noble's men and Roald Amundsen and his party are these Russian pilots, Straube, left, and Tshukhivski. They are among the Soviet forces now in the arctic with icebreakers and airplanes and are shown just before the start of their first flight.

out for them until the natural supply has been exhausted. This indicates the tremendous assistance rendered agriculturists and horticulturists by the birds' consumption of weed seeds and insects.

Church Of God Sunday Services

Rev. H. M. Sell, pastor of the Church of God, announces the following services at that church next Sunday:

"Next Sunday morning we study about the first meeting of the first evangelist and the first martyr. We are hoping to have a record attendance for July. We have installed a sand table in the primary department for the little 'olks, which will help to bring the lesson to them.

"Morning sermon will be on "The What, How and Why of Sanctification." This is an important subject, which is much neglected in these days, but we read of its importance in the history of the early church. Sanctification is just as important today as it was in Paul's or Wesley's time. We need to be separated from the world today. We need the Holy Spirit today. We need to know what the Scripture say about this wonderful experience. Be sure and hear this message Sunday morning.

"We will have our evening services outdoors next Sunday, and each Sunday following during the summer. We have cleared the grounds and made arrangements in the rear of the chapel. We will also hold our fall revival outdoors. Our revival will begin the 12th of August, immediately following the state camp meeting at Gorman. We have invited Rev. C. H. Featherston, of Decatur, Illinois, to be our evangelist. Brother Featherston is known as an outstanding Holiness evangelist, and has preached to large crowds in many of our big cities. We feel it a great privilege to secure his labors here in Eastland.

"Our message next Sunday will be 'Salvation.' We want you to hear this message."

Heavy Steers Sell At New Top Prices

Special to the Telegram
FORT WORTH, July 6.—Heavy steers reached a new high level on the Fort Worth market on Thursday when four loads sold straight at $13.75. They were very uniform and the average on the four loads was 1410 pounds.

These steers were fed in Tarrant county by the Scott Cattle company. They were bred and raised by James Callan, past president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association. They were sold to the Scott Cattle company last fall. The sale Thursday was made by the Cattle Raisers and Producers' Commission company of Texas.

RULINGS OF NEW SCHEDULE POSTAL RATES

Official Information Relative To Postal Law Which Becomes Effective July 1.

WASHINGTON — Official rulings on the new schedule of postal rates authorized by congress, are included in a recent issue of the postal bulletin, published under the direction of Postmaster and guidance of officers and employees of the postal service.

The sections which are of particular interest to publishers and printers are the following:

Postage Rates on Second-Class Matter
Office of the Postmaster General, Washington, June 7, 1928.

Order No. 7792.

Effective July 1, 1928, the Postal Laws and Regulations are amended as indicated below:

Subparagraph (b) of paragraph 1, section 412, Postal Laws and Regulations, is amended to read as shown below, and a new paragraph, numbered 4 1-2, is added to this section:

"(b) On that portion of any such publication devoted to advertisements the rates per pound or fraction thereof for delivery within the eight postal zones established for fourth-class matter shall be as follows:

For the first and second zones, 1 1-2 cents.
For the third zone, 2 cents.
For the fourth zone, 3 cents.
For the fifth zone, 4 cents.
For the sixth zone, 5 cents.
For the seventh zone, 6 cents.
For the eighth zone, and between the Philippine Islands and any portion of the United States, including the District of Columbia and the several territories and possessions, 7 cents.

(Act of May 29, 1928.)

"4 1-2. In the case of publications entered as second-class matter where the number of individual addressed copies or packages to the pound is more than 32 and not in excess of 48, the rates of postage thereon shall be double the rates prescribed by paragraphs (1), (2), and (3-a) of the act of February 28, 1925 (embodied in paragraphs 1 and 4 of this section); where the number or individual addressed copies or packages to the pound is more than 48 and not exceeding 64, the rates of postage shall be three times the regular rates, and for each additional 16 individuals, or fractional part of such number of copies or packages, there may be to the pound the rates of postage shall be correspondingly increased over the regular rates." (Act of May 29, 1928.)

Paragraph 1, Section 419, Postal Laws and Regulations is amended to read as follows.

"Section 419. The rate of postage on publications entered as second-class matter, when sent by others than the publisher or news agent, shall be 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof." (Act of May 29, 1928.)

HARRY S. NEW,
Postmaster General,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

Washington, June 7, 1928.

In connection with Order No. 7792 of June 7, 1928, amending the Postal Laws and Regulations so as to embody the provisions of the act of May 29, 1928, modifying the rates of postage on second-class matter, attention is invited to the fact that except for the first and second zones, a different rate of postage is prescribed for the advertising portion of copies of publications for each of the various zones and, therefore, the fourth, fifth and sixth zones and the seventh and eighth zones are no longer combined.

These changes will necessitate the submission of the zone analyses on Form 3539-A for July 1, 1928. Copies of this form on hand at postoffices should be modified by interlining or inserting additional lines to take care of the situation until a revised form is available.

When the number of individually addressed copies or packages of a publication sent outside the county of publication is more than 32 and not in excess of 48 to the pound, double the regular rates as set forth in paragraphs 1 and 4, Section 412, Postal Laws and Regulations, shall be charged; when there are more than 48 and not in excess of 64 such copies or packages to the pound, three times the regular rates shall be required, and for each additional 16 individually addressed copies or packages to the pound in excess of 64 there shall be a corresponding increase of postage over the regular rates.

Expensive Job.
"What do you charge for cleaning feathers?" asked the lady customer.
"Sixpence each, madam, was the reply."
"What!" gasped the lady. "I could never pay as much as that."
"How many have you madam? If you've a sufficient number, we might make a reduction of the price."
"Why, I've two birds full."—Exchange.

The Editor's Son.
"Did you ask dad if you could marry me?"
"Yes; but he sent me a rejection slip."

Hills Are Just Scenery When You Use Magnolia Anti-Knock Gasoline

Powerful Even Burning Knockless

Cool, green mountainside, tree bordered streams and quiet lakes, gentle valleys painted with the colors of approaching harvests, these things have the summer interest to the beautiful Ozark Mountains of Arkansas. The tallest enjoyment comes when you follow the highway. Your car will bank and turn through many a long climb to put you among the hills at sundown. There you will find facilities for any type of outing. You may enjoy camping, fishing, hiking, tennis, golf and horseback riding. You may rest in tents, cottages or modern resort hotels.

All these anticipated pleasures will be calling you to make haste. Grades will be heavy, and while you catch your breath with wonder at the beauty of Ozark mountain scenery, listen for the purring of the sturdy motor which pulls you there. It will not growl at the turns nor top the rises with a tattoo of pinging knocks when you have filled your tank at the Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline sign. Your motor will run quietly after a drink of our new fuel which keeps motors from over-heating and quiet with extra power on the heavy pull.

Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline is a pure petroleum product. Gasoline with that something extra for smooth, quiet power. Your motor will repay you for treating it to Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline in the hills.

Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline is a Red gasoline, but all Red gasolines are not ANTI-KNOCK. Look for the Magnolia sign.
