EVANGELIST CONDUCTING SERVICE HERE

L. B. Wilkerson of Buffalo Gap Preaching Each Evening On Old High School Grounds

Evangelist L. B. Wilkerson of Buffalo Gap is in Eastland for a few days conducting open-air services each evening on the old high school grounds. He held his first service Sunday night and preached to a fairly large audience.

T. P. Satterwhite and his daughter, of Caddo, have charge of the musical program. They have helped in several evangelistic services with good results.

Mr. Wilkerson says he wants the cooperation and help of local pastors and churches that Eastland may have a soul-stirring revival. "For years," said Evangelist Wilkerson, "I was a professed atheist and made many speeches urging atheistic doctrine. Part of the time I operated two stills and was doing it when I was converted. God saved me and that is definite proof that he can and will save others if they will only confess their sins and put their trust in Him."

Assailant Held For Questioning May Be Insane

By United Press. WICHITA, Kans., June 25.—Cornell Larson, 38, manager of a local brokerage firm, was shot and seriously wounded early this morning shortly after 10 o'clock as he sat at his desk in his office in the First National Bank Building.

Clarence Foy, 55, was arrested on the scene of the shooting and is held for questioning. He is believed to be insane.

According to witnesses, Foy approached Larson with some Cities Service Stock in his hand saying that he wished to sell it. Larson dipped a pen in an ink well for Foy to endorse the stock and as he handed the pen to him Foy shot the manager.

Nundborg Fails To Make Second Safe Landing At Nobile's Camp and Must Himself Await Rescue

VIRGE BAY, June 25.—Radio advices at 5 a. m. today said the airplane of Lieutenant Nundborg was badly damaged when it crashed on its second landing at the camp of Commander Nobile yesterday and that Nundborg himself might have to wait for rescue. Nundborg was not injured. In landing at Nobile's camp on his second flight, Nundborg's plane lost its balance and plunged through the ice. The plane's lower portion was broken in half.

Commander Nobile showed signs of undergoing terrific suffering and hardship. He is intensely worried regarding his companions safely.

The crash of Nundborg's plane added to his anxiety as he had said already that the ice was sinking fast and the rescue must be effected soon.

VIRGE BAY, Spitzbergen, June 25.—Lieutenant Lundborg, Swedish aviator who rescued Commander Nobile from the Arctic ice off Northeast Land, radioed from the Nobile camp today that his plane which crashed on his second landing there, could not be repaired on the spot. "If the weather is cold enough a plane equipped with ice run-

Missouri and Texas Leaders United In Efforts To Keep Nomination From Al Smith

HOUSTON, June 25.—Senator J. Reed of Missouri, long a bitter foe of the Anti-Saloon League, is here pulling in harness with the bone dry governor of Texas, Dan Moody, in a last-hour struggle to keep the already triumphant forces of Gov. Smith from pushing through to victory.

It is a strange team. Whether the movement succeeds depends upon developments within the next 48 hours or so, for Smith is conceded to be within 15 votes of the two-thirds majority that would insure his nomination.

It is a desperate struggle and for the moment the veteran Senator is fighting side by side with the boy, Moody, who, some of his friends think, may be another possible Bryan in the nation.

The Anti-Smithites have taken on new life because of the activity of George Fort Milton of Chattanooga and Daniel C. Roper, col.

Dr. Tanner Will Listen In When Democrats Meet

Dr. H. B. Tanner got so much pleasure listening to the radio report of the republican convention that he has decided to give a similar pleasure, so far as he can, to his democratic friends. He has moved his radio from his home to his office on the third floor of the Texas State Bank building, and has invited those of his friends who wish to hear the proceedings of the democratic convention, which opens tomorrow at Houston to come to his office and listen in.

French Object To Easy Divorces For American Visitors

By United Press. PARIS, France, June 25.—Premier Poincaré and Minister of Justice Barthelemy today intervened to force tightening of the system under which American society people obtain divorces after short terms of residence here. Barthelemy pointed out that divorces granted after short residence were irregular and insisted that the courts tighten the handling of divorce papers. Divorces must be refused Americans who were not properly domiciled in France, he said.

Missouri Pacific Train Derailed, 26 Persons Injured

TOLEDO, Kansas, June 25.—Twenty-six persons were injured, three seriously, when two sleepers and a chair car on the Missouri Pacific train were derailed on a bridge near Burand today. The derailed cars plunged over the bridge to the creek, about 15 feet below. A broken rail caused the accident, officials said. All of the injured were brought to a hospital here. Abe White, engineer, said his engine the baggage and mail cars passed safely over the rail and apparently tore it up before the passenger cars were on the bridge.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

Her mind was calmer now than at any time since she left the Dean's.

you," she added threateningly, "and I'm going to tip the office so you won't get away with anything; but if you're on the level and want a decent job, what'd yuh come here for anyway?"

"Because I didn't know anything about it, and I'm not interested in anything you may say to the manager," Virginia retorted with warmth, and fled precipitately.

The pseudo-blond jumped up and followed her into the hall, saw her enter the room next door and boldly walked in.

"Repayin' your call," she said mockingly when Virginia wheeled upon her.

"I'm leaving," Virginia said shortly and reached for her traveling bag.

"Well, take my hunch and get the real low-down on a joint before you register," the other girl remarked with a touch of conciliation. "I ain't sure yet that you're not after some kind of dirty info for some bull, but if you honestly want a respectable hotel, you're in the wrong place."

"Thank you," Virginia returned stiffly. "I shall make careful inquiries a second time." She gathered up her gloves and handbag in one hand and, taking the traveling bag in the other, walked hurriedly out of the room, leaving her guest holding the door open.

The elevator boy carried the heavier bag to the desk and put it down at her feet. "I wish to pay for my room," she said icily to the clerk when he came to her.

"Why, is there anything wrong?" he asked in astonishment.

"Nothing that you can rectify," Virginia answered with a positive emphasis. The clerk looked away with perfect comprehension, to get her bill.

"Try the Ritz or the Biltmore," he suggested when he handed her the change and summoned a bell boy to carry her bag. Virginia directed him to show her to a telephone and in a few minutes she was talking with Mr. Gardner.

She had thought of calling Nathaniel but she didn't want to tell him by telephone that she was no longer at the Deans.

Gardiner gave her the name of a respectable but obscure hotel, and very soon Virginia was being shown to another room. It was not a more pretentious hotel than the first, but the atmosphere was inexpressibly different. Virginia felt she would be reasonably safe here from contact with sordidness.

She unpacked her traveling bag and hung up her peach silk pajamas and negligee. Their fresh loveliness made her wish she had a lighter, cooler dress to change to and she remembered that she had told Colette she would send for her things that morning.

She called the office and gave Mr. Dean's address. They promised they would have the things that afternoon.

It was after one o'clock when Virginia decided to wait in for them before going to Mr. Gardner's office with the pearls. She was tired and hot and thought gratefully of a bath.

From her bag she got her bath salts and soap and went in to prepare the tub. The water ran rustily and lukewarm. Virginia shuddered fastidiously and turned it off. Gingerly taking a cloth by one corner, she forced the last drop of it down the drain pipe and then turned on the cold water to rinse the tub. She tried hard not to regret the spacious, sunken tub she had been accustomed to, with a shower of perfumed water, and thick fleecy towels, each as large as four of these that hung in this bathroom. It wouldn't have been such a miserable contrast if there'd been a shower of any sort, she thought. She would not plunge her immaculate body into that rusty stuff and Virginia liked a hot bath even in summer, and the tingle of rosy skin after the clear cold shower to follow.

She went back to the bedroom and took off her clothes. A moment later she was standing in the tub pouring cold water over herself from the drinking glass. The inadequacy of her makeshift ar-

MARJORIE NELL SMITH

"Sweetest Baby in Texas!"

For over fifty years, mothers, like this well-known Texas woman, have been telling each other about California Fig Syrup, and leading physicians have been endorsing it. Nothing else acts so gently and harmlessly to propel the souring waste from the delicate system of babies and children, which, when allowed to remain, keeps them cross, feverish, bilious, head-achy, weak, with coated tongue, bad breath, broken-out skin, no appetite or energy. Its rich, fruity goodness helps to give tone and strength to their little stomach and bowels so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. It helps to build their own accord, it helps to build their own strength and makes them active and happy.

"I have used California Fig Syrup with my little daughter since early babyhood," says Mrs. L. D. Smith, 109 S. Calaveras St., San Antonio. Whenever she has a cold, is the least bit constipated or doesn't seem just right, I always give her a little, and it fixes her up quick. She's the picture of health, now, and friends say she's the sweetest baby in Texas. She has never had a serious illness, and I give California Fig Syrup full credit for it."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. See that the cartoon bears the word "California."

Peggy French, Daniel's sister—Zena Brightwell. Letty Van, Peggy's chum—Ester Prestidge. Bebe Joan, a mountain dreamer—Nettie May Qenton. Mrs. Court Vane, a lovely woman—Mrs. Estelle Dicky. Mrs. Priscilla Tucker, the primary teacher for another year will be the coach.

Cottonwood Community Farmer Finds Cows and Chickens Pay Better Than Raising Cotton.

(Cisno American) Marshall Thomas is one of the prosperous young farmers of the Cottonwood community, where he has a farm of 100 acres, with only 25 acres in cultivation, the remainder in pasture, but he is making a splendid living and building a neat bank account, as he finds his pasture lands more profitable than the same amount of land planted to cotton. In fact, he has planted no cotton in the past three years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are comparatively young people, and there are no children in the home, but the couple are business partners in the operation of the farm. Mrs. Thomas keeps the record of produce sold and knows just how much their produce has paid them each month. Naturally, not being cotton raisers, they were interested when they were called upon by J. J. Collins and C. O. Pass, who canvassed the Cottonwood community in taking the census of dairy cows last Tuesday. J. J. Collins related the following facts regarding this progressive farmer, who lives about ten miles from Cisno.

"Thomas is milking eight cows, and from his milk, butter, eggs and chickens has a monthly income of about $60 net. All of his cultivated 25 acres is planted to feed crops for his cows, and sufficient truck for home consumption, and his crops were in a high state of cultivation and looking fine. He stated that he had not had a dime charged to his account since he quit growing cotton three years ago, and began giving his attention to dairying and poultry raising. He stated he was ready to buy additional cows just as soon as there was a market for the milk. Naturally he was enthusiastic for the milk plant, and gave us a most cordial reception. Mrs. Thomas keeps the books on their milk, butter, chicken and poultry sales, and Thomas had to call on his wife to give us the exact figures for each month's sales.

"The Thomas farm has an air of prosperity conspicuous for its cotton as their principal crop. His fences were all in good repair; the house and premises have an inviting appearance, and his stock are fat and appear to be well taken care of in the spacious barns that house his work stock, cattle and feed. All his dairy cattle are Jerseys and of a good butter strain.

"We did not find many like Thomas in the Cottonwood community. Most of the others are cotton farmers, and that air of prosperity was not apparent on their farms. We found one man who was milking six cows and was getting two gallons per day from the six. Most of the farmers in the Cottonwood community have chickens, turkeys and enough cows for milk for their families, but the cows are not of the better milk and butter strains. We saw very few hogs, but plenty of cotton, which was looking fine, and had every appearance of making a good yield.

MACEDONIA KEEPS TEMPERANCE DAY

BELGRADE.—South Serbia has just celebrated Temperance Day. In its chief city, Skopje, a large meeting was held, attended by delegates from various organizations, and by boys and girls from the high school. The principal speakers were Miss Rocklands Popovitch, a teacher, and Mr. Marshall from the Hygienic Institute. Similar meetings were also held at the cities of Schip, Veles, Monastir, Prilep, Radovitch and Kossovo. The temperance movement in South Serbia, or Macedonia, is growing steadily and gaining the support of an ever-increasing number of youth. M. Ranko, the director of the Hygienic Institute in Skopje, is one of the devoted supporters of the movement.

Babe Ruth Offers Prize For Leading Soldier-Athlete

SAN ANTONIO, June 23.—Through the courtesy of the manufacturers of Louisville Slugger bats and Col. Jacob Ruppert, of the New York Yankees, a baseball and bat, autographed by Babe Ruth, will be presented to the outstanding soldier-athlete of the Fort Sam Houston C. M. T. C.

The baseball and bat have been received at Fort Sam Houston and will be awarded to the student who makes the best record in athletics and excels in soldierly qualities. Hot weather fails to curb the enthusiastic participation of C. M. T. C. students at Fort Sam Houston in the daily football practice directed by First Lieut. James M. Kendrick, infantry service, coach of St. Mary's university and former Texas A. & M. and professional football star.

Headed by the entire Corpus Christi high school football team, which is getting an early start for the coming fall campaign, from 60 to 70 athletes are turning out daily for the practice session that lasts from 6:30 until 8 o'clock each afternoon.

Lieut. Kendrick, who coached and played on the most famous army team of all time, the great Second Texas Infantry team of 1916, is giving lectures on football and a baseball each day from 1:30 until 3 o'clock and plans to take some of the leaders in both branches of sport in the southwest to address the boys.

Two players gained statewide fame for their football prowess in the interscholastic league last year, are among those taking the training under Lieutenant Kendrick. They are Herbert M. Barrett and Kenneth K. Clark of Waco, who played guards on Coach Paul Tyson's championship team from Waco high school.

C. M. T. C. students in camp at Fort Sam Houston are being entertained at the hostess house during off hours by radio programs received over a set loaned and installed by the San Antonio Music company.

AUSTRALIA

The interstate shipping deadlock in Australia continues, with 35 vessels now tied up. No major or pastoral commodities are moving at this season, but the distribution of imports is delayed in some instances. Exhibits this year at the Victorian Motor Show are said to reach the high value of $1,000,000 and attendance has set a record. Victorian wheat growers have voted against compulsory wheat pool for handling next season's crop.

Alaska Literally "Taking the Air" Tom Green County Geological Map Is Being Distributed

WASHINGTON.—More use is made of the airplane in Alaska than in any other community in the world, reports received by the office of the Alaska Railroad of the Department of the Interior show.

The old days of poing boats up and down shallow streams and hauling supplies long distances by dog team are giving way to an era in which such services are performed expeditiously by airplane. Today when a prospector bears of a new strike 200 miles across trackless wastes he does not plod as in the Klondike days, but hops across in an airplane. Alaska commercial fliers have flown 300,000 miles with passenger loads. There are now 40 flying fields in Alaska and all of them are readily in use. Many communities have cleared fields to make possible the landing of airplanes at any time. Commercial hangars at Fairbanks and planes.

The Government is almost the only agency not using the airplane in Alaska, it is found. The mails are still carried by old-fashioned methods. As far back as 1924 the Government installed experimental air-mail service between Fairbanks and McGrath and the route was flown eight consecutive trips by Lieut. Carl B. Eielson, when recently flew across the north pole with Capt. George H. Wilkins from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen. The service was satisfactory but the funds ran out and it was discontinued. Later, during the breakup of ice in the Yukon, mail went to Nome by airplane for a trip or two but the service was temporary.
