HISTORY OF THE CARBON SCHOOL Taken From Records in the Office Of Eastland County School Supt. (Subject to Revision)

On July 29th, 1884, R.M. Black, County Judge for Eastland County, issued a check in the amount of $78.20 to C.B. Jordan, A. Warner, and W.B. Cole, school trustees of Carbon to build a school house.

A small structure was built near the present home of John Guy, and provided a place for educating the pupils in Carbon at that time. W.B. Train, was the first schoolmaster, and thirty pupils were enrolled in 1884.

School was held during a three month period, and total expenditures totaled $173.85.

By 1890, the school at Carbon had 80 eligible pupils: $200.51 was spent for an addition to the school and S.W. Wharton taught school from January through May.

By this time other schools had sprung up in the surrounding territory; records show that Union (Flatwood) had 65 students; Jewel, 113; Center Point, 19; Latham, (Pickett) 55; Long Branch, 70; Rodgers (Bear Springs), 44; Pleasant Valley, 45; Nash Creek, 50.

By 1900 Carbon had grown to such an extent that a new four room structure was built at the present site, and in 1902 the attendance there was 152 students. The school at Britton had 20 students; Pleasant Hill, 26; Oak Grove, 51; High Knob, 32; Grapevine, 29; Hallmark, 39; and High Point (Mangum) 65, were in operation by 1900; the area became very educationally minded.

It was not until 1910 that graduation exercises were held in the Carbon High School and at that time Willie Stubblefield, Flora Reese, and Vici Dover received their diplomas.

Some schools changed names, some were dissolved; others were created; however, it was 1929 before consolidation had any effect on the Carbon Schools.

At that time, the State of Texas decided to consolidate many of the smaller schools, and since Carbon had completed a modern structure in 1915, it was chosen as the center for the schools of Jewel, Wheat Springs, Bear Springs, and Oak Grove.

By April, 1931, the consolidation was affected, and Carbon became the educational center of this area of Eastland County.

In March, 1940, Mangum became a part of the Carbon schools, and by 1942, an addition of eight classrooms and an auditorium was completed, making sixteen rooms available for class instruction, and providing other needed space.

Also in the 1940's a new gymnasium replaced the one that burned, and an Agricultural Building, Homemaking Cottage, and lunchroom were added to the existing facilities.

These facilities were needed, for it was during the same period that the schools of Flatwood, Long Branch, Center Point and Kokomo became a part of the Carbon Schools. By 1950 Carbon School served the same area that it presently serves.

Constant renovations, repairs, and remodeling have kept the facilities of Carbon School in good condition.

A bus barn and lighted baseball field was completed in the early 1960's, the football field has been renovated and bleachers added; city water has replaced the three wells that were used as a water supply.

But the basic buildings are still those who housed the many students after the consolidation of the 1940's.
