TEXAS COAST VAST CEMETERY AS 50,000 CATTLE FREEZE

Death rode a howling blizzard out of the north which struck with record fury along the Texas coast and 50,000 cattle were its toll, freezing in the marshes and beaches over a wide area along the Gulf of Mexico. Carcasses are shown strewn along the beach in this picture, the animals having died by hundreds as they huddled together, vainly seeking warmth as the norther raged over the vast grazing ground. Cattle-tlement estimate the loss at more than $1,000,000.

Absolutely new in punishment is the penalty which Edward Foster, 16, above, is paying for a grocery robbery. He was sentenced by Judge Charles Smith of Anderson, Ind., to carry the 20-pound sack of bricks shown on his shoulder from Anderson to Alexandria and back, 24 miles, daily for 60 days, or to take three years in the reformatory. Edward chose the hike.

that reminds me...

Friday and Saturday of this week the Martha Dorcas Sunday school class will hold a rummage sale in the Harrison building next to the Eastland National bank. The ladies are eager to get contributions of wearing apparel of all kinds in order that a good selection can be on hand. The proceeds will go for retiring the church debt. These sales are beneficial to those who cannot buy more expensive things and there are lots of folks who make a little money enough to keep off relief and with the opportunity offered to buy some of the necessary wearing apparel at an extreme low price and at the same time let their money go to a worthy cause, it should wind up successfully. Everybody gets the benefit.

Clouds and cold weather greeted the folks in this community again today. Little flurries of drizzles give promise to possibly another much needed rain. It would come just in time. Farmers in some sections are still burning prickly pears to feed their cattle with. A good soaking four or five inch rain would do much to stop that and give the ranges plenty of grass in the near future. If only we could get it.

What Once We Dreaded Today We Welcome

Perhaps the most interesting thing about the security program offered to Congress by President Roosevelt is not the program itself, but the Congressional reaction to it. So far, hardly a voice has been raised in opposition to the measure itself. On the contrary, criticism seems to be based almost entirely on the contention that the measure does not go far enough. In that fact you have a yardstick to measure the distance which our viewpoint on such matters has traveled in recent years. If such a measure had been presented to Congress at any time before, say, 1933, it would have aroused a great deal of protest. It would have been called dangerous experimentation, and its attempts to provide protection for the victims of economic stress would have been dubbed an un-American form of coddling, designed to sap our national self-reliance.

This comment is not made in criticism of any party or any individuals. Most of us would have looked on it in that fashion. We simply were not ready to admit that things can happen in our country against which no amount of individual effort could avail.

But now the plan is offered—and the objection most commonly heard is the charge that it isn't strong enough; that it does not provide enough security, or promise to pay out enough money.

Washington correspondents agree that there is no question whether the security bill will pass; the question is whether it will not be amended to give greater benefits.

We have had a revolution in this country, after all; and it has taken place in our minds. Our point of view has shifted. We don't look at things with the same eyes that we use half a dozen years ago.

Yesterday's dangerous radicalism is the height of today's conservatism—in this one field, at any rate.

This simply means that we have found out some things about our country and about ourselves.

We have found out that a country in which great masses of the people never earn more than fifteen to twenty dollars a week, and are subject to spells of complete unemployment at varying intervals, is not a country in which every man can attain any measure of independence and security by his own efforts.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

"OUT OUR WAY" - - - - - By Williams

And we have found out, simultaneously, that we are individuals cannot stand it to have that state of affairs continue indefinitely.

We are willing to subject ourselves to a complicated and expensive program to end it.

Income Tax In A Nutshell

How to Avoid Common Errors The period for the filing of income tax returns covering the calendar years 1934 begin January 1 and ends at midnight of March 15. Within this period are filed annually millions of individual income tax returns, a large proportion of which report income subject to the tax. The latter contain a considerable percentage of errors, which if uncorrected by the audit would result to the disadvantage of the taxpayer. Many are errors of computation easily discovered on the face of the return, which usually is accompanied by a payment of more than the amount of tax due. In other returns it is readily discernible that the taxpayer has failed to take advantage of the personal exemption, credit allowed for dependents, or deductions from gross income to which he is entitled.

To avoid these and other errors, the Bureau of Internal Revenue urges careful reading of the instructions on the forms for filing the returns. Additional information, if needed, may be obtained at the office of a collector of internal revenue, deputy collector or an internal revenue agent in charge. Also, as a further aid in the preparation of a correct income-tax return for the year 1934, the Bureau has prepared a series of short newspaper articles, of which this is the first, advising the salaried man, the wage earner, professional and business man—in fact, every class of individual taxpayer—of his requirements and privileges as interpreted under the latest regulations, rulings, and decisions relating to the income-tax law.

Will Rogers Rescues Woman From Long's Police at Capitol

By United Press

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—Will Rogers, noted humorist, rescued Mrs. J. S. Roussel, president of the woman's division of the Square Deal Association, from police today and told her he was "going to Washington to talk with Senator Long." Rogers had invited Mrs. Roussel to present the association's views to him. As they were entering Rogers' hotel three policemen approached. Mrs. Roussel eluded the first, slapped the second in the face and grappled with the third. She screamed for Rogers, who came to her aid and forced the policemen to unhand her. They then entered the hotel.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gal Henderson, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her brother, Phil, 19, support their invalid father.

Steven Meyers, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Later that evening Gale goes skating on the river, goes through the ice and is rescued by Brian Westmore, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian asks Gale to wait while he gets his car but when he returns she is gone.

Brian has come home after two years in Paris, convinced he can never become an artist and ready to go to work in the mill. Vicky Thatcher, daughter of Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian.

Brian sees Gale in the mill, recognizes her and is amazed to find she is an employee. Vicky telephones that her car has broken down and asks Brian to come for her. On the ride back into town they witness a street fight.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI

Vicky said, "What is it Brian? What's happened?"

"I don't know," he told her, "but I'll find out." He opened the door of the car and stepped into the street. The two men were on their feet now. One was a slender fellow, hatless, wearing soiled work clothes. He said something and the other—broad, heavily-built—lunged forward. The blow missed. Someone shouted profanely and a man in front moved so that Brian could not see what was happening.

The youngster stared. "Ed Vogel an' Phil Henderson," he said. He mumbled the names, slurred them almost unintelligibly.

"Do they work in the mill?"

"Sure." The boy's eyes became wary. With a sudden movement he wriggled forward, disappeared in the group of men.

Brian moved so he could see the two in the street. They had separated. Suddenly they sprang together and there was a sharp oath and another, as the stout man's fist jabbed into the other's face. Three times. Savagely. Cutting the flesh. The younger man fought back, but less effectively. There was blood on his face now; his clothing was torn.

But he kept on hitting. The slender body was a dynamo—whirling, slashing, now landing blows, now missing them. The stout man's fist smashed against the other's stomach, driving him back. It wasn't a fair fight; it wasn't anything like it.

Brian stepped nearer. "Somebody stop them," he shouted. "Why doesn't somebody—?"

A man wearing a battered black hat turned and looked at Brian. There was no change in the expression on the man's face but he edged away. Another turned and somehow, without a word spoken, Brian felt the eyes of all of them on him. There was something about the way these men looked at him that was disturbing. Almost as though they hated him—or was it fear? Something he couldn't understand, couldn't have put into words if he'd tried.

A hoarse voice called, "Ed—Phil!" and then other voices joined in, coarse, excited, furtive. The crowd was breaking apart. A big man with a red face forced his way between the two fighters.

CHAPTER XI

Others were there, too now, keeping the two apart. Talking. Gesturing.

The slim youth tried to push them aside, to get his arms free. He was breathing heavily and his eyes flashed.

"Let me go!" His voice was almost a sob. "Get away from me! Let me—"

The stout man cut in with a stream of oaths, ending abruptly as his eyes fell on Brian Westmore.

The youth continued to try to free himself. "Let me go!" he cried again and then, to the stout man, "Come on and fight, if you aren't afraid! I'll knock your lying teeth in! I'll—"

The rest was lost as a voice cut in. "Hey—cop's comin'!"

Vogel turned and made for the sidewalk, a trifle unsteadily. Figures disappeared, as though by magic. By the time the policeman had arrived there was only Phil Henderson and a shorter, dark-haired man beside him. One or two older men were back in the darkness.

The policeman said, "What's going on here?"

"Nothing."

"Nothing, huh? Looks to me like there's been a fight. You in it?"

Phil Henderson did not reply. The dark-haired man put in, "It wasn't anything, officer. Just a little argument."

The man in uniform said, "Well, see that you do your arguing without your fists after this. Better go on home and get that face bandaged. On the move now, and no more brawling!"

The whole thing had happened in less than five minutes. The two turned away and the policeman looked toward Brian, taking in the English overcoat and dapper felt. He hesitated an instant, then walked on.

"Brian!"

It was Vicky calling. She had opened the door of the car. "Brian!" she called again sharply.

He came up beside her. "Guess the excitement's over," he grinned. "Weren't frightened, were you?"

"Frightened? Of course not!" There was scorn in the girl's dark eyes. "But, Brian, why didn't that policeman arrest those men? I think you should report him for failing to do his duty."

Brian stepped into the car and started the motor. The traffic light had turned red again.

"Oh, there wasn't any reason to arrest them," he said easily. "I'm glad they stopped, though. The younger fellow was game but he was taking a beating—"

"Brian Westmore!" The girl's lips set in a thin line. "I'm surprised at you. I think it's disgraceful to have such things happening. Fighting in the streets! Brawling! If those men work in the mill they ought to be discharged. I'd tell father if I could find out their names!"

Brian released the clutch and the car moved forward. "See here, Vicky," he said, "aren't you getting unnecessarily excited about all this? It was just a couple of hot-headed young fellows exchanging a few blows. I've seen worse scraps at plenty of clubs."

Fire leaped in the girl's eyes. She moved impatiently—and as suddenly she was still. She waited a moment, searching the young man's face, then laughed. "You— you really thought I meant it, Brian? Silly! What do I care about those working men? You should have known I was joking."

"Well, I'm glad you didn't mean it. I don't quite see the joke, though."

Vicky settled the soft fur more comfortably about her shoulders. "The joke," she said, "was in fooling you. And I did it, apparently. But let's forget about that. Tell me some more about Paris."

Brian said, "All right." He began talking, but his manner was preoccupied. "Vicky," he said suddenly, "I wish I knew the men who work in the mill. I wish I knew what they talk about—when they're together the way they were on the street corner. There was something—I can't quite describe it—in the way they looked at me—"

The girl said, "You just imagined that, Brian."

"It was more than imagination," he insisted. "It was as though they disliked me, or were afraid. Your father says our men are getting good wages. If they weren't, or were being mistreated in any way, I could understand it."

"Brian, darling," Vicky told him, "your artistic temperament is getting the best of you. Oh, that reminds me—Claire Shotwell has some new etchings she wants to show you. She wondered if you knew anything about the man who did them?"

"Who was it?"

"I don't remember. Claire'll tell you." Vicky prattled on. Something about the Gardner boy and that movie actress he'd taken to a college prom.

Brian couldn't remember the hand and pushed my left into his face. The car bumped against the curb and stopped. I believe the gun was snapped a second time before it fired.

"When the gun exploded, I had turned it around with my left hand and my finger was inside the trigger guard. I do not know whether it was my finger or Gorrell's which fired the first shot. Immediately, there was another shot, which might have been the jolt of the car stopping or reflex action. Gorrell was dead."

The conversation was almost a monologue by Gorrell and consisted chiefly of ideas he had of perpetrating various crimes, from petty hijacking to kidnappings and extortions. But at the time I didn't pay much attention to it, but thought the conversation the effect of too vivid imagination and too much liquor."

Later, however, he came to believe Gorrell was dangerous and might harm members of the Wilcox family, or others of Kennamer's friends, Kennamer said.

Kennamer told police that he met Gorrell at a Kansas City hotel, and suggested that Gorrell write the extortion note.

"I wanted something tangible like that to get a hold over him and checkmate him in anything he might try to do," Kennamer said.

"No," he told her, smiling. "I don't think you meant it." Vicky was all right. He'd always liked her—

But later, stepping on the accelerator, driving off into the night, it was another girl's face that came before him—a girl with gray eyes and brown hair, slightly tumbled. A girl wearing a blue apron-dress.

"I wonder," Brian asked himself once more, "what her name is?"

Hardin-Baylor To Observe Charter Day February 1

BELTON, Texas, Jan. 29.—Ninety years ago on Feb. 1 a charter was granted by the Republic of Texas to the Baptists of the state for the founding of a college. Establishment of two Baylor colleges resulted. That anniversary will be honored at Mary Hardin-Baylor this year with a service of unusual significance.

Honoring those early students of the college, the alumnae association has invited all former students and graduates between the years 1856 and 1886 to attend this celebration and participate in it.

The charter day service has traditionally become the day for the official recognition of the senior class members of the alumnae association. Robed in cap and gown they will take their places on the stage of Alma Reeves chapel the morning of Feb. 1, after the professional, written by one of the alumnae, Mrs. Olive Chaffee Boggs, Dallas, president of the alumnae association, will recognize the seniors, accepting them into full membership.

Response to the recognition will be made by Miss Doris Estes, Roane, president of the class, after which two other seniors, Miss Virginia McNolly, Elgin, and Miss Catherine Butte, Manila, P. I., will tell of the romantic history and development of their alma mater.

Miss Mary Lile, '26, who is an instructor in Highland Park high school, Dallas, will be the speaker of the morning.

Baylor college was founded at Old Independence in 1845. Judge R. E. S. Baylor was among the group who made possible the development of the idea, and for him the college was named.

The original charter of the school provided for both a male and female division, which eventually were located on neighboring hills in that community. At first the work of the two was carried on together, but after the first administration they were separated. In 1866 the female department was separated and became known as Baylor Female college, held and controlled by a separate board of trustees. The college was moved to Belton in 1866.

In 1916 the name of the college was again modified, this time to Baylor College for Women, and at the beginning of this session further modification was made when it became Mary Hardin-Baylor.

Six presidents have served the college at Belton. Dr. J. C. Hardy, who is now president, will have completed 23 years of service next June. Dr. Hardy is more largely responsible for the material development and growth of the college than any other man, for he has increased its material holdings from less than $25,000 to what is estimated at present to be worth more than $2,000,000.

One-Ninth Federal Taxes From Autos

WASHINGTON.—The federal government collected one-ninth of its entire tax revenue during 1934 from the various excise taxes on motor transportation, according to figures made public today by the National Highway Users conference, of which Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, is chairman.

Based upon returns to the treasury department during 1934, the conference's tabulations show motor vehicle owners of the country paid $273,156,947.08 through excise taxes on gasoline, lubricating oil, passenger cars, trucks, tires and tubes, parts and accessories, pipe line transportation of oil and the petroleum processing tax.

Collections from automotive taxes in 1934 were more than 2 per cent greater than in 1933, when the total was $267,454,790.68, it was pointed out.

Commenting on the figures, Roy F. Britton, director of the National Highway Users conference, said today:

"The treasury department figures clearly indicate the very heavy burden these levies impose on motor transportation and they show the existence of a flagrant opposition against motor vehicle owners in the matter of tax increases.

"The attempt to justify the volume of these taxes on motor transportation would be, in effect, a denial that the United States government should single out one mode of transportation to be the recipient of one-ninth of the excise revenue it obtains.

"The increase shown over the figures, of course, indicates improvement in general conditions. Major industries linked with motor transportation might have experienced still greater improvement if these federal excise taxes had not been superimposed in such large volume upon the extremely low levies made by smaller units of government."

Angry, excited voices talking in English and Spanish at the same time, and loud protests were to be heard from the large group of Nacogdoches settlers gathered around the Mexican, Ignacio Sertuche. Ignacio, waving his hands wildly, denounced the new Empresario, Haden Edwards. Going over his outrage for the tenth time that morning, Ignacio explained to the people the thing which Edwards had done. Unable to produce a land deed to his grant near the Trinity, Sertuche had lost entire claim to his land, and Edwards had taken it away, and sold it to an American for $2.50 per acre.

"We will get up a petition and report his actions to the legislature!" the spokesman for the group said.

"We will disregard his proclamation entirely," said another. "I will write Colonel Austin," said a third as he left the indignant men.

THE array of palate tantalizing, appetite stirring salads which suggest themselves for every meal is so endless that it is hard to believe that salads are the culinary perfection of the last few years.

Look through any old cook book and you'll immediately notice what an important place salad had in the scheme of things during grandmother's girlhood. One in my library dated 1863 makes mention of salad only twice. Under the simple heading, "Salad," it only says that "salad, to be in perfection, should be fresh gathered, and put into salted cold water, which will remove all insects. Let them stand for half an hour, and then drain them thoroughly."

Only One Dressing
The second mention is the "Mode of Dressing Salad" and is vaguely helpful, advising "Take the yolks of one or two eggs boiled hard, mash them fine, mix with them pepper salt, mustard, oil and vinegar to your taste. Then cut up the salad, and mix it with this preparation. This is usually done at table."

Fortunately the salad pioneers dared to venture far afield from this simple recipe and the dressings now are nearly as varied as the fruits and vegetables that may be combined.

Most important contribution to the salad makers' art, however, is the improvement in salad greens used as a foundation. Romaine, chicory, escarole and watercress because of their wonderful flavors give new character to any vegetable combination.

Vary Seasonings
For a dinner salad, French dressing usually is more desirable than mayonnaise. It is less rich and more piquant. And if you change the seasonings in French dressing, it never becomes monotonous.

Fresh vegetable salad can be served with any cut of meat and all fowl or fish.

and malicious. There were to be many unpleasant incidents before the Haden Edwards' affairs were closed.

Chichester Chaplin continued to read his book and calmly ignored those men who had come to inform him of the order of the political chief, Saucedo.

"If Saucedo has annulled my election as alcalde of Nacogdoches, let Norris show me the order," "But, sir," insisted one of the men, "Norris has said that you must come to his house to see the order."

Chaplin would not hear of such a thing. A formal presentation must be made of the political chief's order, or it would not be observed. He was not afraid of any man.

The trouble had begun when Chichester Chaplin, son-in-law of Haden Edwards, and Samuel Norris, a long-time settler in Nacogdoches, had been rivals for the position of alcalde on Dec. 15, 1825. Chaplin had received the votes of the squatters in the twilight zone, and Norris had received the unanimous vote of all the old settlers. Chaplin immediately took over the office and possession of the Archives. Norris' voters appealed to Saucedo to annul the election, believing their candidate to be the rightful winner.

Not wishing to cause more ill feeling or further arguments, Chaplin said he would relinquish the archives after he was allowed to make a list of the documents them, in order to get a receipt for them. Believing that Chaplin was merely quibbling for time, Norris called for the assistance of Sepulveda and his force of 82 men. Chaplin gave up the archives and held to the office before Norris had time to act, however, and considered the incident closed.

Perhaps all would have been well had Haden Edwards stayed out of the matter. Instead, he wrote a tactless letter to Saucedo questioning the ruling, and by doing so justified the people's opinions toward him. From that time on, he was subject to much persecution. False and true statements alike were believed by all.

The climax of the Edwards' affairs had not yet been reached. Worse things were to happen than land quarrels and election disagreements. The people of Texas were on the verge of a minor revolution.

Tax Sources Are Being Studied

By United Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—California joins the nation in the biennial problem of how to raise money. Faced with a deficit of $30,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year in June, and a possible deficit of $130,000,000 at the end of the next biennium unless new revenue is subscribed, the 51st legislature is turning over every tax source in search of new dollars.

To finance state operations, a total of $260,000,000 is necessary, with only $130,000,000 available from present sources.

The highly successful state sales tax provides $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 and probably will be continued on the same basis, legislators agree. A state income tax, to provide an additional $20,000,000, seems certain, since it carries administration approval. Other tax sources include a state liquor tax, increased motor vehicle fee, severance tax on oil, diversion of highway bond sinking fund revenues, bank and stock transfer taxes.

Governor Frank Merriam has indicated his opposition to retention of utility taxes by the state and the creation of an ad valorem tax which would provide the state with approximately $120,000,000, thus presenting a grave problem in budget fixing to the legislature now in session.

A midwestern judge ruled that an 8-year-old girl must be taught to love her divorced mother. No riches were involved, so the Gloria Vanderbilt case didn't apply.

Many Women Are Employed Each Month on Projects

AUSTIN.—Between 30,000 and 50,000 women relief clients are now employed each month on Texas Relief Commission work projects, it has been announced by Adam R. Johnson, state relief director.

"We believe our projects for women, in addition to keeping them from the despair of idleness, provide the more lasting benefit of permanently equipping these women to meet responsibilities in the home and to accept industrial opportunities as they develop," Mr. Johnson said.

These projects employ only those people actually on relief rolls. Legally, the Texas Relief Commission cannot expend its relief money for those needy people who are not on relief rolls.

"Our community canneries, for instance, not only have afforded work relief, but have served as a practical method of canning and to impress the value of food conservation. At its height, this program employed 6,000 to 7,000 women monthly," Mrs. Taylor said.

The sewing room projects are exceedingly valuable. Many women clients have been taught to sew and they have taken this knowledge home with them and put it to use in making garments for their own families. There are now 254 sewing rooms in 133 counties where from 4,000 to 6,000 women are employed every month.

Approximately 1,200 women are receiving work relief through school lunch program wherein the Texas Relief Commission cooperates with schools interested in giving hot lunches to children of relief families by furnishing cost of such lunches and such additional help from relief rolls as may be required to cook, serve, and wash dishes for the relief children.

Library projects, wherein the commission assists county, school or city libraries which can not operate for lack of funds, is furnishing employment to an increasingly large number of relief women. In some counties this project has been extended to include a county-wide rural library program, serving the entire rural population of the county.

The "visiting housekeeper" or domestic project provides for selection of women from relief rolls, under supervision of a trained home economist, visit homes of relief clients and demonstrate best methods of cooking low cost foods, balanced menus, methods of laundering, efficient ways of doing general housework.

"Practical work in sewing and cooking instruction are calculated to enable the homemaker to make her purchasing dollar stretch as far as possible and thus improve the material status of the entire family," Mrs. Taylor declared. "Records of 'visiting housekeeper' projects disclose increase in weight and improvement in health of families so instructed."

Another constructive piece of work is done through the commission's nursing projects. These are inaugurated only after careful investigation in counties having efficient health officers who are willing to supervise the commission's workers. These women do bedside nursing for relief clients only, some counties using as many as 12 persons daily to help where there is sickness in the home of relief families who would be unable to pay for such services.

Handicraft projects are being fostered in many counties with such articles as rugs, door mats, and simple things of service in the home being manufactured. Furniture is repaired and clients are taught in this way to keep their homes more neatly arranged and in better order.

REALLY clever use of left-overs will justify the initial cost of the bird and save a slightly sensitive budget-ridden conscience. There's usually one meal from food sized pieces, neatly arranged on a platter and garnished with cranberry jelly. With a hot vegetable such as potatoes au gratin, a crisp salad and steamed pudding which may be a left-over, there's one attractive meal that's easy.

The "pickings" on the bones and the little slivers of meat that break off in carving are what supply meals that are to be interesting. Keep one precaution in mind when making left-over dishes. Whenever turkey or any fowl that has been thoroughly cooked is reheated, they are likely to be overcooked into a dry, tasteless state. To obviate this, any part of the made dish that requires much cooking should be attended to before the meat is added.

Luncheon Dish
Turkey au gratin uses tiny bits of meat to advantage and will be good with baked potatoes for Saturday's luncheon.
Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1 cup diced turkey, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 cup coarse buttered crumbs.
Melt butter and when bubbling stir in flour. Cook and stir until smooth and bubbly. Add celery and cook, covered, over a low fire for five minutes. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and let boil three minutes. Add turkey, salt and pepper and turn into a buttered baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes, until crumbs are brown.

LUNCHEON: Clam and tomato soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, apple pudding, milk, tea.
DINNER: Baked cod steaks with oyster sauce, twice baked sweet potatoes, buttered green beans, Chinese cabbage and green pepper salad, pineapple up-side-down cake, milk, coffee.

Turkey a la King makes an excellent party dish for Sunday night. It can be made at the table in a chafing dish or on the stove in the kitchen and kept hot over hot water.
Three tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1 cup cream, 2 egg yolks, 1 1/2 cups diced turkey, 1 pimiento, 1 cup broken mushroom caps, 2 tablespoons sherry, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, few drops tabasco sauce.

Preparation
Melt butter and stir in flour. Add mushroom caps and cook over a low fire for ten minutes. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Stir in cream and season with salt and pepper. Bring to the boiling point but do not let boil. Beat yolks of eggs with sherry and stir into mixture.
All a la Kings are properly served on toast but for a change try waffles, pop-overs, timbale shells or party shells.

Babies Susceptible To Tuberculosis, Health Officer Says

AUSTIN.—Speaking of children and their susceptibility to tuberculosis, Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer, said: "Few people realize that babies and young children are very likely to catch tuberculosis if they are kept in the rooms with people who have the disease, use the same dishes, sleep in the same beds or are handled and kissed by people who have tuberculosis."

"Babies and young children pick up the germs of tuberculosis just as readily as they pick up the germs of measles or whooping cough or of any other of the so-called children's diseases. But tuberculosis is different from other diseases in certain particulars. Unlike most diseases, it has more than one form. Babies who get tuberculosis may not show the symptoms we associate with the disease in older people. But the disease in most cases develops rapidly and is likely to end fatally. Tuberculosis in babies and young children is a very serious matter, but recent studies have shown that if young children are removed promptly from contact with the disease and given the necessary care, many lives can be saved."

"A great deal can be accomplished whenever tuberculosis develops, whether in young or old, if the presence of the disease is recognized when it is in its early stages and if medical attention is secured promptly.

"Tuberculosis doesn't just simply happen. Everybody is born with the disease. Everybody who develops tuberculosis gets it from some other source. Children and young people who have been in contact with persons ill with tuberculosis are especially likely to contract it.

Hangman's Noose Saved As a Relic

By United Press
WICHITA FALLS, Tex.—The hempen noose which strangled Frank Crawford and Elmer (The Kid) Lewis was brought back to this city after 39 years.

It was a grim reminder of the famous lynching in 1896 when the two bank bandits were hanged by an enraged mob for robbing the bank here and killing the cashier.

Crowds of curious people, many of whom remembered the lynching, gathered again to see the noose when it was returned by Lester Jones, vice president and cashier of the Wichita National Bank.

Jones secured the noose from Seth Mayfield, a former resident. He plans to keep it as a souvenir of the days when Texans dealt summary "justice" to bank robbers.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Designing the Flower Garden

Design has become a most important factor in horticulture and upon design depends the appearance of the home surroundings, whether they are artistic and appealing or whether they are commonplace and lacking in distinction. The flower garden should be carefully planned in its relation to the entire ground area of the home. It should be laid out to scale, the entire lot being drawn and decision made as to the location of the flower planting and what shape it shall take—whether it shall be a border around the boundaries of the yard, whether it shall be a formal garden, or whether it shall consist of borders along the walks or drives.

The simplest and most effective plan for the average small home usually is a boundary planting with a background of shrubbery or vines. A border from 6 to 10 feet wide, according to the dimensions of the lot, with colonies of plants selected as to color harmony and season of bloom.

Small formal gardens to occupy the entire area of the small backyards have proved one of the most attractive plans. In this case the first decision is as to whether the lines shall be straight or curved. Straight-line beds and borders are the easiest to handle and keep in order. It is also a popular feature now to dig a small pool for the beauty of the reflections of surrounding foliage and also to grow a water lily to give its fine summer bloom.

The simplest and most lavish display of color may be secured by the use of annuals in these borders, especially if the dweller is a renter or if he is newly developing the property, the annuals furnishing color while a stock of perennials is being raised for permanent decoration. In any event plenty of annuals will be needed to furnish a mid-summer and fall display when the perennial sea-

It is a wise plan to visit yards which have attracted admiration in your neighborhood during the winter and inspect the lines and general design with a view to adapting the best features for your own yard. In addition there are a number of excellent books on design for the home grounds at reasonable prices.

Outstanding Ad Of 1935 Already Selected By Paper

The first month of the year is a little early to select the best advertisement of the year but the opinion of the Humble Oil & Refining Co. copy which appears in this issue will stand throughout the year as the most unusual.

Use of "white space" instead of cramming copy into every available space, is most forcibly shown in the advertisement prepared by Franke, Wilkinson, Schiweitz, Inc., Advertising Agency of Houston, Texas.

Many advertisers spend hours conscientiously working out a lot of copy to go into a small space, there to be lost to the eye of the reader because the amount of reading repels him. A study of the use of "white space" as a silent salesman might profitably be made of the Humble display.

A child was born in Baltimore with a closed gullet. Any child who shows this to his parents gets an extra piece of cake.

Terracing Body to Meet February 8

By United Press
PERRYTON, Tex.—Members of the Great Plains Farm Pond and Terracing association, an organization formed to urge government aid in construction of a series of small water reservoirs for use in time of drought, will meet in Amarillo Feb. 8.

Announcement of the meeting was made by Irvin R. Buchanan, Perryton, regional director of the organization which was formed here Dec. 11. The second meeting of the group was held in Elkhart, Kan., and was attended by more than 300 Kansans, Texans and Oklahomans.

A group of men familiar with soil and water conservation in the plains area have been invited to speak, Buchanan said. The group includes C. M. Evans, director of rural rehabilitation in Texas, and Southwestern states; W. R. Bentley, terracing specialist from Texas A. & M. college, and J. R. Evans of the government agricultural experimental station at Goodwell, Okla.

The plan calls for the construction of ponds and terracing in the plains area. Labor for the project is to be supplied by the government relief agencies, according to the plan.

Banquet for Baptist Brotherhood

A meeting of all the men of the Eastland Baptist church was called at their Sunday school hour by the Men's Bible class for a union meeting, with W. D. R. Owen as chairman, to elect the officers of the Eastland Baptist Brotherhood branch.

Judge B. W. Patterson was elected president; Judge Clyde L. Garrett, vice president; Ray Larner, second vice president; F. D. Crosland, secretary-treasurer.

Others to be elected or appointed will be the concluding business of the Eastland organization, and will take place at the banquet, Thursday of this week at 7 o'clock in lower assembly room of Baptist church, with the Women's Missionary society as hostesses.

The Eastland organization will be prepared to be inducted into the Cisco association, one of the seven associations in the seventeenth district of the Baptist Brotherhood.

Two hundred and fifty of the Baptist Brotherhood are expected at the banquet.

Home Makers Class

Baptist Church
Mrs. W. P. Palm, president of the Home Makers class of the Baptist church Sunday school, opened the Sunday morning session with the necessary business procedure.

Mrs. E. E. Layton brought the subject of prospective members before the class and suggested that these be called upon by the church members.

The class was visited by the Fidelis Matrons class, a courtesy call. The topic of the lesson, "How Jesus is Denied Today," was involved with the continued study of the life of Peter, taught by Mrs. Ray Larner, the class teacher, who entered more into a description of the man, his nature; and the high light brought that Peter was an extremist, and very responsive to suggestion. A man of faith at times, and other times unfaithful.

Thursday Study Club

The Thursday Afternoon club will reach the peak of its year's study in the "Citizenship" program, the middle of 17 programs passed, which has been gradually led up to in former programs, on education, peace, the Bible, the Christmas meaning; federation and parliamentary government, and this one, to be conducted on the topic, citizenship.

The trend of the study has been very interesting, and the climaxing gradual and instructive.

The quotation in the year book, for Thursday, is a fine explanation of the study to follow: "Duty is the Great Mountain Road to God."

Booster Class

Hymns led by Mrs. Courtney Vaughn, with Mrs. Neil A. Moore as pianist, was the opening feature of the Booster class meeting, conducted by Mrs. C. W. Priebe, president, in Methodist church, Sunday morning.

There was no business. Reports of the sick committees showed that Mrs. Milton Lawrence is still very ill.

Judge W. P. Leslie, the class teacher, presented a vibrant lecture on "Peter's Denial of Christ." That, after he had denied Christ thrice, he was full of repentance, and Christ in a state of forgiveness.

The keynote struck by the teacher was the large place in our life that forgiveness must take, after all.

Truth Seekers Class

The Baptist Brotherhood banquet hosted by the Women's Missionary society, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, was announced by the president of the Truth Seekers class, Mrs. L. G. Rogers, during Sunday morning church service.

Those invited all the men and women to attend.
On the current topic of the Bible schools, "Peter's Denial of Christ," from the fourteenth chapter of Mark, brought to the attention of Mrs. Clyde L. Layton, one of the most interesting character studies the class has heard. She stated that Peter was the only one to deny Him, and the wise Christian shuns the atmosphere of denial, and emphasizes the fact that if we avoid temptation and evil, we need not come in contact with it.

Hymns, followed with prayer by T. M. Johnson, opened the Men's 9:49 Bible class, Sunday morning, with President Earl Bender in the chair.

A voice solo by Mrs. Grady Pipkin, "O Rest in the Lord," with Mrs. T. J. Haley as accompanist, was followed by a quartet, in two numbers; personnel, Mrs. Pipkin, A. E. Herring, B. M. Collie, John Turner, who sang, beautifully, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone," and a negro spiritual, "Standing in the Need of Prayer."

Union Program

Epworth Leagues
The union program put on by the Young People's Epworth league and the Senior league, was a special feature and opened at 6 p. m., Sunday, in Methodist church with a large attendance, grouped eager to hear their guest speaker, introduced later on the program.

Miss Maxine Coleman presided as program chairman, following the opening Scripture reading by Miss Gladys Davis.

Mrs. Bert McGlamery introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. A. W. Hall of Weatherford, whose talk was directed to the young people and opened with the thought, they could accomplish anything they wanted to attempt or anything they might dream, on certain conditions. That we are to be strong, of good courage, and must ask God, for help, strength and courage, the background to her subject paper, "Standing Up for One's Convictions."

A conviction she said, is something you are sure is right. Martin Luther had his own convictions, and because of them was in trouble with the high officials of the church. Luther refused to retract anything, and he was conquered by his convictions. Convictions are potent factors in character building.

Having convictions makes you dependable and give self respect. One cannot always be a good sport as your convictions forbid you doing certain things; takes courage to stand up for your convictions. Must have strong convictions to refrain from drinking and smoking. She closed her address with the statement, "A worth while life, is hard, but it is worth while at the end," and the verse, "To every soul, there openeth a high way and a low; and each determines the way his soul will go."

The program closed with a violin trio, beautifully played by Misses Clara June Kimble, Alma Williamson, and Jo Earl Uitz.

A social hour followed in the young people's rooms, with Mrs. J. E. Hickman as sponsor, assisted by Mrs. Bert McGlamery and Mrs. F. O. Hunter.

When Resident Not Home
If the lady isn't at home when a member of the Martha Dorcas class calls at her door to ask for something for their rummage sale, for the benefit of the church work, when she returns, she will find this neatly typed card stuck in her door.

"The Martha Dorcas class of the Methodist church is calling on you for used clothing, such as shoes, dresses, coats, sweaters, men's clothing, baby clothes, or worn clothing for making rugs, or household articles, for the rummage sale to be held in the May Harrison building, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 1 and 2, all day. If you have anything, notify us, or telephone Mrs. F. A. Jones, chairman, 267-W."

The cards were typed by Mrs. H. O. Satterwhite and Mrs. J. Atchley. The chairman also requests that should anyone appointed be unable to serve to phone her immediately.

Martha Dorcas Bible Class

A song service led by Mrs. June Kimble, with Mrs. C. J. Germany at piano, opened the Martha Dorcas Bible class with Mrs. Mack O'Neal, president, in charge, Sunday morning at Sunday school in the Methodist church.

Prayer was followed by a piano solo by Billy Allen Kenny.
During a short business session the president announced the Martha Dorcas rummage sale, on Friday and Saturday of this week, and presented Mrs. F. A. Jones, chairman in charge, who announced a number of chairmen and others who will assist.

Bert McGlamery presented the Standard Training School, which opened its registration Sunday afternoon, and invited all to attend the class periods each night, 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., inclusive of Friday.
Mrs. W. P. Leslie, assistant class teacher, brought a very fine lesson on "How Jesus is Denied Today," showing the many ways in which we, as Christians, yet often deny Him.

Second Play of Little Theater Given Tuesday

"This Thing Called Love," a three-act comedy-drama by Edwin Barker presented by Eastland Little Theater Monday night in the Eastland high school auditorium. Staged and directed by Mrs. Hazel Carter Ammerman.

Harry Bertrand, Loyd Hughes, Florence Bertrand, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Ann Marvyn, Miss Margaret McLaughlin, Dumary, Curtis Hertig, Dolly Garrett, Mrs. J. H. Cheatham Jr., Fred Garrett, J. H. Cheatham Jr., Tice Collins, Jack Ammer, Miss Alvarez, Mrs. Agnes Harwood Doyle, Normie DeWitt, Karl Tanner, Marie, Mrs. Layton Eppler.

Eastland playgoers Monday were ushered into a bright and sometimes risque atmosphere when they witnessed the Little Theater's second production, "This Thing Called Love," Monday night.

Though with its some lines obviously deleted, the production retained much of flavor intended by the author Edwin Barker.

The production was off into a racey start when curtains unfolded revealing the Harry Bertrands (Loyd Hughes and Mrs. A. H. Johnson) in a marital hub-bub heading for the divorce rocks.

From high pitched epithets at the other the couple occasionally would become into a near physical combat. Loyd Hughes of Ciscob played an imaginative Harry Bertrand, who half indifferently and other times in heated emotion would decry marriage and his wife, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, as far as many Eastlanders can remember, this is one of her few appearances on Eastland boards, enacted the role effectively.

Ann Marvyn (Peggy McLaughlin), a friend of the family and sister to Mrs. Bertrand who took life automatically with no false creeds portrayed her role believably. Government interference with business, in this case, closing of Ann Marvyn's inn by officials, had just been completed when the production opened.

A friend from South America, Tice Collin (Jack Ammer), who was soon to visit necessitated a change in the Bertrands relations so outwardly to Collins they would appear happily married.

Arrival of Ammer and circumstances in the continental atmosphere where wife and husband were happy finally drew themselves to the point where announcement of the hypocrisy was made by the couple. Even in the setting revealed to himself, Collins made a bid for the hand of Miss Marvyn. A business proposition, that of employing her as housekeeper was the suggestion offered.

Briefly, Collins and Marvyn married on the business basis, their marriage changed from one unreal to real, meantime before the revivement of their relation, the couple had their friends in their home.

The Bertrands, since then, divorced and planning to re-marry awed at the first arrangement of the Collins. Miss Alvarez (Mrs. Agnes Harwood Doyle) with Spanish air finally became one of the near-breaking point factors of the Collins marriage after they decided to conduct marriage on the normal plan.

Normie DeWitt (Garl Tanner) with youthful fervor became an ardent admirer of Mrs. Collins. Finally the inevitable conclusion came when DeWitt, drunken, came to the Collins home avowed to kill Collins. At the crucial moment, firing, with Mrs. Collins throwing herself in front of her husband, was shot and slightly injured. The couple decided with good intent to re-embark on the marital cruise at the conclusion.

Voices of the cast carried with ease over the auditorium, noted in school circles as being one of the best with its acoustics.

Mrs. Agnes Harwood Doyle played an adventurous Miss Alvarez with a surprising Spanish accent. Loyd Hughes enacted his role according to its course.

Miss McLaughlin with Mrs. A. H. Johnson and Mrs. James H. Cheatham, gowned in attractive clothes, delivered their parts pleasingly.

Curtis A. Hertig, as Dumary, faithful butler of Collins and Bertrands, played the role faithfully of a servant who had grown fond of surroundings known from years of service.

Jack Ammer as Collins, business man, who even made his proposal on a business proposition in his days run, played his role satisfactorily.

Miss McLaughlin, with the stellar role, had all the points required for her casting. Gestures, inflection and all points were duly observed.

Karl Tanner played the role of DeWitt as a young upstart breaking up homes in believable manner.

The high point of his characterization was the instance when rocking and reeling from drink he entered the Collins home to kill Tice.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cheatham Jr., though their role small in comparison with others were good in their parts. Mr. Layton Eppler made one appearance, as Marie, the maid.

Settings and furnishings were arranged by Mmes. J. Horton, Dixie Williamson and H. O. Satterwhite.

Between number tap dance act was presented with Miss Edna Clark accompanied on piano by Miss Wilma Beard and drums by Billy Satterwhite.

Playgoers were ushered by Misses Jane Ferguson, Doris Lawrence, Helen Butler, Betty Kissinger, and Jean Kissinger.

Roy Birmingham performed with ropes and stage settings for the Little Theater. Conrad Reeves was advertising solicitor for the programs.

"LADY BY CHOICE" FEATURES LOMBARD, ROBSON AT STATE

"Lady By Choice," co-featuring Carole Lombard and May Robson, with Roger Pryor and Walter Connolly in support, will head the new program bill at the Lyric theatre starting Wednesday.

This new Columbia film presents Miss Lombard in the role of a gorgeous young fan dancer and Miss Robson as a delirious gin-hound who spends most of her spare time before the bar—facing a judge.

Briefly, "Lady By Choice" tells the story of the two women, far different in appearance and station, but really sisters under the skin. When Miss Robson, as Patsy Patterson, is arrested for assault and battery, being drunk and disorderly and disturbing the peace, she is given a suspended sentence on condition that she go to the old ladies' home. In court at the same time is Alabama, the fan dancer, arrested for whatever fan dancers are arrested. She sees and feels sorry for the aged deliric.

Sometime later, as a publicity stunt, Alabama decides to adopt a "mother," and it is Patsy whom she selects. The two women grow attached to each other. Patsy has lived a hard life, and she gives to the younger woman the advantage of her experience with men and the world. The climax is filled with heightened drama and pleasant surprises.

Arthur Hohl, Raymond Walburn, Henry Kolker and Snowflake are among the members of the supporting players. David Burton directed from a screen play by Jo Swerling.

To the Citizens of This Community--- Our Customers And Friends

With sincerest regrets we make the announcement that our Eastland Furniture Exchange store is now closed. Due to circumstances over which we had no control this move on our part became necessary at this time.

This announcement does not mean that we are not still in a position to serve you with your furniture needs. . . no matter what it may be as we have in our Ranger store a most complete line of everything to furnish the home at the right prices and at terms if desired.

We are grateful from every standpoint for the patronage given us by the people of Eastland and trade territory. To the we extend a steady invitation to visit us at any time in Ranger and let us serve you. When we announced that we were quitting business in Eastland, the large stock we had on hand was reduced at a most unusual low prices in appreciation for your patronage of the past and we were glad of the opportunity to save you money on every purchase that was made. We almost sold out which was proof that our prices and merchandise were right.

Our Mr. W. E. Brashier, who has been manager of the Eastland Furniture Exchange will continue to make his home in Eastland looking after collections and at the same time will be glad to visit any home and give estimates on anything in furniture and floor coverings. A telephone call, 552-J, his residence phone, will get in touch with him on any occasion.

Again thanking everybody, and assuring you that our Ranger store will always welcome you whether for business or a social visit, and that we can give you the best in home furnishings at the right price, we solicit a continuance of your valued business.

COL BRASHIER.

How Do You CHOOSE?

Every time you make a purchase you make a choice. Buying a certain product may be so much a matter of habit that you don't realize you are choosing. But the fact remains that in accepting one brand of goods you are always rejecting others; and the satisfaction you get from what you buy depends on the knowledge of quality and values that guides your selection.

How do you know which bed-sheets, or which roofing materials, or which radio will give you service you require? You can't personally test everything you buy and compare it with all the other products in its class. But there is a way to find out which brand fits your needs.

The people who are most successful in their buying—who achieve the highest percentage of satisfaction from the things they own and use—are those who consistently read the advertising columns, and buy consistently advertised goods.

Choosing isn't just "guessing" when you follow the guidance of the advertisements.

You can depend on advertised goods. It pays to read the advertisements.
