date, County Judge Scott Bailey said. It was not known immediately by local school officials whether the Olden system would be continued as a separate system through this school year or not. It was held likely that the Olden system could continue to operate as is through this school term since the teachers and employees are under contract, and very little savings would be realized immediately in the physical bringing together of the two school systems.

The court named Mrs. Jeanette Harris of Eastland election judge with Mrs. Mertie Richardson as alternate election judge. Mrs. S. G. Evatts was named election judge at Olden with James Query alternate judge.

Peanut Growers Urged To Vote On Assessment

Texas producers of peanuts were reminded this week to vote in the referendum now being conducted to determine whether or not assessment for research funds will be collected or not an assessment for research funds will be collected on their crops.

The referendum voting will extend from September 9 to September 24. Ballots for the purpose have been mailed to producers, but should any not receive them, copies may be obtained from the office of the County Agricultural agent.

In order to be valid the ballot must be marked and returned to the office of the Southwestern Peanut Growers Association at Gorman not later than September 24.

SWPGA officials, under whose auspices the referendum is being conducted, have enclosed a return postage paid envelop with each ballot in order to facilitate the voting procedure.

Peanut growers who have not voted to date were urged to do so prior to the deadline. In order for their ballots to be counted, their 1968 production in pounds must be entered and certified on the ballot. This information is now available to all producers in each county at the county ASCS office.

If the self-assessment program is approved, it will become effective about October 1. Two-thirds of the growers must favor the assessment before it is put into effect, or those voting for the assessment must have produced at least 50 per cent of the peanuts in Texas in 1968.

Assessment amounts would be collected at the first point of sale or mortgage and would be remitted monthly by buyers and warehousemen to the board of producers elected on the same balloting to handle the funds. Growers dissatisfied with the program may obtain refunds of their assessment by contacting the producers board within 60 days following the date of the assessment.

Funds would be used in research to improve crop quality, production, new market opportunities and to find means of combating diseases and pests such as the growing infestation of the lesser corn borer.

A slate of 16 names of Texas peanut producers has been offered from which the growers balloting may choose a board of eight.

Ray Pryor Presented Eagle Plaque

Sunday evening Ray Pryor was surprised with a well earned plaque at an ice cream and cake party in the back yard of the Dr. and Mrs. Fehrman H. Lund home. The party was arranged to be held while Pryor's son, Chris, an Eagle Scout, was home on leave from the U.S. Navy, Norfolk, Virginia.

The plaque read, "Eagles, Ray Pryor, Scout Master, Troop 103, 1962-1969," and listed the following Eagle Scouts: Bill Garner, Jerry Franklin, Chris Pryor, Steve Lund, Bob Day, Jerry Doyle, Rickey Harrell, Rocky Maynard, Craig Lund, and Philip Smith. Eagle Scout is the highest rank a boy can achieve in Boy Scouts and it takes many hours of the Scoutmaster and the Boy Scout working together to attain this rank.

Local Eagle Scouts and their families were present for this special occasion.

Where there is no future there is no security...

In 1915 Eastland County was one of the major cotton producing counties of the State of Texas.

Within the space of a few months its cotton-based economy was almost wiped out. The boll weevil, a small insignificant-looking insect with a wicked snout, swarmed out of the post oak brush and attacked the cotton fields in such numbers that the county's production fell rapidly to a point where it could no longer be counted a significant economic resource. Not only the farmers who grew cotton suffered, but the county business community as well.

Only the timely arrival of the oil boom and the subsequent development of the present peanut production rescued the area from the low point to which it had fallen economically. It is sobering to reflect on what might have happened if there had been no oil development and no peanut crop to replace the lost production.

And now history threatens to repeat itself. The highly profitable peanut production, which annually for the past few years has put between $5 and $6 millions of dollars in the pockets of county growers, is threatened by a pest fully as destructive as the boll worm.

The lesser corn borer, an inch-long purplish worm with black bands, which feeds on the roots and formative peanuts of the plant, has begun a massive invasion of the peanut fields of the county. He threatens to wipe out the peanut economy or at least reduce it to the point where it will no longer be a substantial economic resource.

Back in 1915 the cotton growers were virtually helpless. Research facilities and techniques of control were primitive in character if effective at all. There was little the grower could do but abandon his fields to the intruder and look elsewhere for income.

But today, depending upon the determination of the growers to use the means available, the lesser corn borer has no such hopeless monopoly.

There is a means of controlling his prophetic invasion but it will take research, study and experimentation.

That is one of the purposes involved in the peanut self-assessment referendum in which peanut growers are now voting. Funds raised through the program, if approved would be used to finance the search for a means to counter the invasion and thus save what has become the most important money crop in this section.

For that one objective alone, the assessment program is worth the support of every grower whose future income or land values depend upon a profitable peanut crop.

"Where there is no future the people perish."

A SHORT PEANUT STORY:

Responsible for the recent upsurge of peanut production in the Eastland-Comanche Area. Whereas only 1% of the peanut farmers in the Eastland-Comanche Area irrigated their crops in 1964, it is estimated that about two-thirds of the growers irrigated in 1967. Farmers in the Eastland-Comanche Area have increased yields per acre from an average slightly under 30 bushels for dry land farming to from 65 to more than 100 bushels through the use of irrigation. The use of irrigation and heavier application of fertilizer which it permits, combined with new varieties of the Spanish peanut and advanced insecticides, fungicides and herbicides, have resulted in the doubling and tripling of yields. The peanut farmer is no longer limited by a combination of events beyond his control to produce a good crop. Today, the peanut farmer can be assured of good crops annually, as he utilizes advanced agricultural practices.

The Eastland-Comanche Area is the center of peanut activity in the Southwest. This peanut "activity" includes more than peanut production. Located in Gorman and DeLeon are two shelling plants, the Southwest Peanut Growers' Association's headquarters, and laboratories of the Texas Department of Agriculture. The Gorman Peanut Company and DeLeon Peanut Company are two of the largest peanut shelling plants in the United States. These two companies shell peanuts produced throughout the Southwest and sell the shelled peanuts to national markets. These modern shelling plants utilize the latest advances in peanut shelling equipment such as electric eye appraisal of each shelled peanut for quality control. Modern warehousing such as the 15,000,000 pound capacity cold storage facility of the Gorman Peanut Company assures a continuous supply of fresh peanuts. An additional, smaller shelling plant is located in Ranger.

The headquarters of the Southwest Peanut Growers' Association in Gorman is housed in a modern office building completed in 1967. The Southwest Peanut Growers' Association acts as an agent for the United States Department of Agriculture in arranging to store farmers' peanuts under loan. The 1966-67 operation of the Association included the storage and hauling of over 100,000 tons of farmers' stock peanuts and the hauling and supervision of some 9,000 tons of shelled peanuts for the Company Credit Corporation. In addition, the Association is active in fostering peanut research and in promoting the use of the peanut.

A peanut testing laboratory is operated in DeLeon by the Texas Department of Agriculture to test all lots of edible shelled peanuts for wholesomeness and to solve peanut insect and disease problems of area peanut farmers. This lab, the Southwestern Peanut Growers' Association and the shelling plants provide a concentration in the Eastland-Comanche Area of skilled personnel for solution of the production, marketing and utilization problems of peanuts.

Don't Delay, Do It Today, Says Social Security Man

"Don't delay, do it today" might sound like an overworn cliché, but it is a very important suggestion to any person nearing his 65th birthday. R. R. Tuley, Jr., Abilene social security district manager announced today.

Failure to make an application on time has resulted in a loss of cash benefits and Medicare protection to some Big Country residents, he reported.

A worker should file his social security claim during the three month period before his retirement date, he stated, and certainly during the three months before his 65th birthday, whether he is contemplating retirement or not.

He emphasized that early filing of the claim allows the social security office adequate time to assist the claimant in securing the required proofs for approval of his claim, and also assures the payment of benefits promptly.

Tuley said that cash benefit applications can be retroactive for a period of one year if all conditions of entitlement are met. But there is no retroactivity to a claimant's election of supplementary medical insurance under Medicare. This is why it is imperative that people make their applications in the three month period before age 65 for the "doctor bill" part of Medicare to be effective for the month 65 is reached.

Tuley urges everyone nearing 65 to contact a social security representative and file for these benefits. The Abilene office is open 9-5 Mondays through Fridays; it also remains open each Tuesday 5-7 p.m.

Bill Writes of Thailand As His Departure Nears

By Sgt. William S. Herridge
KORAT ROYAL THAI AIR FORCE BASE, THAILAND—The American presence in Thailand is very much a reality. The Air Force is located at U-Tapao Airfield, Nakhon Ratchasima (Korat),

While mess-hall cooking may not be the foul concoctions many G. I.'s would have one believe, it is safe to say that more palatable meals are being prepared somewhere else in the world. In what socioeconomists call the Rice-bowl of Asia, rice is a part of many meals. The long-dreaded C-rations appear periodically, and whole, fresh, sweet milk is only something to dream about. With the heat and the unappetizing results of the efforts of Air Force cooks, many buldges disappear, as well as double chins and sagging jowles. This reporter is able to claim, with pride, a 65 pound weight loss in eleven months.

The officers and aircrew members are the only personnel that rate air conditioning in their living quarters. But one soon learns to tolerate the sweltering heat and sleep every chance he gets. Other than the lack of air conditioning, the barracks are surprisingly good for Southeast Asia standards.

The working hours are long and hard. It isn't uncommon to work 16 to 18 hours a day, with as little as one day off every seven or eight working days. The current directive of at least 72 hours per man per week is easily met.

Another aspect of life on an airbase is the constant roar of the F4E Phantoms and F105 Thunderchiefs taking off for bombing missions in South Viet Nam. Rubber earplugs are a permanent part of the uniform to combat the noise.

When one first arrives at his duty station there is an air of excitement accompanying the task-off of heavily armed fighters and fighter-bombers. But one soon realizes that the brave men who sit at the controls may not return. Indeed many of them do not. But the majority return a few hours later with new tales to tell, with another day of war to look forward to.

It is during these moments, seeing the big birds taxi to the runway, that one observes one of the most comforting scenes anyone can hope to see here. The flightline ministry of the base Chaplain's office is a very important life of military life in this combat environment.

It is early morning. The rising sun heralds a new day. The fighter jock, settled into his cockpit, approaches the final run-up area at the end of the runway. He glances to one side and sees an officer in summer uniform with noise protectors over his ears. The morning sun glints on the Cross or Star of David, on the officer's breast. They look into each other's eyes for a brief moment; the pilot nods, the Chaplain gives him thumbs up. As the pilot pushes his after burner on and starts his take-off roll he knows that he is not alone in his cockpit. It is then that one realizes that the defense of liberty and freedom is indeed a God-given task.

There are opportunities for the GI to get away from it all for brief periods. These come in the form of three day passes, one each quarter, and a five day Rest and Recuperation leave (RAR) after serving six months in country. Another such opportunity is the religious retreat. The retreats hold twice a year for the different faiths and are usually located in a scenic spot away from the combat environment, usually in Bangkok, Pattaya Beach, or Chiang Mai.

News from home is very important to the military man in Thailand. Be it good or bad, in the form of a newspaper or letter, news helps the GI to identify with the environment to which he is accustomed. The base mail room is the most heavily patronized building on the base.

Every attempt is made to make the lot of the GI as easy as possible. The base exchange attempts to keep in stock such items as snacks, candy, and civilian clothing. The Base Theater shows nearly current movies twice nightly. The American Forces Thailand Network radio station broadcasts a wide variety of programming in an attempt to appeal to everyone's taste. The AFTN television station runs last season's programs. An excellent library, hobby shops, and educational center round out the facilities provided by the base Personnel Service office.

Driving presents a problem here. While American military personnel are prohibited from driving private owned four wheel vehicles, motorcycles and bicycles are allowed, and one's duty often calls upon the GI to drive government vehicles. Traffic in Thailand keeps to the left of the road as it does in Europe. But, like everything else, one grows accustomed to it.

The heavy work load makes time pass very quickly. And, as the day approaches that one boards the "Freedom Bird" to return to America,

DRAWING TOWARD GOD
The Art and Inspiration of
JACK HAMM

Introduction by CHARLES SCHULZ
Creator of "PEANUTS"

DRAWING TOWARD GOD is a book designed to apply scriptural truth to everyday living. By means of some 50 full-page drawings interspersed in the text, the reader is led to reflect with the artist-author on the great issues of life. Over a billion impressions of Jack Hamm's religious art have been printed in the U. S. and 17 foreign countries. For the first time he sets down his reasons behind the drawings. Winner of four national cartooning awards, Hamm contends that the nature of God and man's nature need to be, and can be, related one to the other.

"Jack Hamm has a way of using his brush, crayon, and words to cut through to some of the great theological truths that concern us all. This is a marvelous book for individual meditation, or for any group of dedicated people who wish to have a guide to promote inspirational discussion. Jack has a rich imagination and a fine sense of fundamentals. We have been blessed in our world with many great editorial cartoonists, but I know of no other man who has been able to turn his talents to interpreting religious truths as has Jack Hamm."
From the Introduction
By CHARLES M. SCHULZ
Creator of "Peanuts"

"I like the work of Jack Hamm. He has a great gift for picturing, and therefore making simple, important truths that would be difficult to express so explicitly in words."
Dr. NORMAN VINCENT PALLS

"A fine artistic portrayal... bringing the inspirational Word of God into American homes."
J. EDGAR HOOVER
Director of F. B. I.

"The most difficult task for a cartoonist is to sustain a point of view over a long period of time, even when the subject is the Word of God. Jack Hamm has kept his work in such sharp focus that it sustains the believer among his readers and most certainly gives hope to those who need it."
MILTON CANIFF
Creator of "Steve Canyon"

"Jack Hamm is helping to create a moral and spiritual atmosphere throughout the United States."
BILLY GRAMM

"How better to reach people of all ages than with the timeless scriptures retold in timely pictures."

Gov. Smith Designates Sept. 21 Hiway Week

AUSTIN — Governor Preston Smith has designated the period September 21-27 as "Highway Week in Texas." Gov. Smith set aside the seven-day period for annual tribute to the State's highway builders and its superb 69 thousand-mile highway network.

Theme for Highway Week this year is "Highways Bring

Better Living"

The observance in Texas is sponsored each year by the Texas Good Roads Association in cooperation with the Texas Highway Department and the highway-building industry. Chambers of Commerce and city, county and State leaders organize community programs for the Highway Week observance.

The Texas Good Roads Association is a non-profit organization composed of individual motorists, highway builders and industry-oriented groups joined together in support of a better highway program.

In his official memorandum, Governor Smith noted that "the State of Texas through its efficient Highway Department provides and maintains more than 69 thousand miles of highways for the use of Texans and their visitors."

He called the Texas highway system "one of our great and irreplaceable assets" because of its benefits to the Texas economy and to Texas citizens.

The benefits of adequate highways exceed their cost through reduced accident and driving expenses, time savings, enhancement of property values and encouragement of industrial, commercial and residential development, the Governor said.

He said modern highways are planned and built to improve the quality of the environment and to preserve and make more accessible the places of scenic, historic and recreational importance.

Texas motorists, the Governor said, support the highway program through highway-user taxes and should take every opportunity to inform themselves of the progress and planning in the highways.

As part of the Highway Week observance, members of the Texas Highway Commission will make appearances throughout the State. Members are Chairman Dewitt Greer of Austin, Herbert C. Pety Jr. of Carrizo Springs, and Garret Morris of Fort Worth.

In addition, many Highway Department employees will take part in special events marking Highway Week in local communities.

A number of Highway Department district offices will hold open house so local citizens can learn more about Department activities. Department representatives also will address civic groups in their areas.
