Sheppard Urges Civilian Conscription Bill

TWO FATALLY INJURED IN A CAR ACCIDENT

R. V. Watson of Gordon and Morris Sears of Santo were fatally injured in an automobile crash between Strawn and Mings Sunday night, when the car in which they were riding crashed with a truck on a bridge over Palo Pinto Creek.

To Speak Tonight

Congressman Clyde L. Garrett, who will open his campaign for re-election in a district-wide rally to be held at Eastland tonight at 8 o'clock.

Garrett Praised For Work Upon Defense Program

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Clyde L. Garrett, representative from the 17th District of Texas, was praised for his outstanding work in the passage of the Defense Program, by Congressional leaders on the floor of the House this week.

Those praising Representative Garrett's work on the Defense program were Representative Carl Vinson, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, Representative Buel Snyder, Chairman of the Military Affairs Sub-Committee on Appropriations in the War Department, and Representative Charles H. Leavy, Member of the Appropriations Committee.

The tributes followed a stirring speech made on the floor by Representative Garrett Wednesday when the House considered the $5,000,000,000 National Defense measure which passed the House with only one dissenting vote.

Representative Garrett was praised by Chairman Vinson for his splendid record of attendance on the floor at all times. He said, "As Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs I want publicly to thank him for the invaluable aid and assistance he has rendered the Committee. Let me say also that I have closely observed the Gentleman from Texas since he came here 3 1/2 years ago and he has been very punctual in his attendance on the sessions of the House. In fact I know of no member who spends more time on the floor of the House when business is being transacted than does the Gentleman from Texas."

Mr. Snyder said, "No member of this House has been more enthusiastic in his support of National Defense measures than has the Gentleman from Texas. Not only has he rendered that invaluable service to the Sub-Committee on Appropriations in the War Department but to the entire Defense Program of the Nation. We need more men of his courage, vision, and statesmanship in the Congress of the United States."

Mr. Leavy said, "If any District in the United States has been represented well, conscientiously, yet ably, it is the Gentleman's own District, the 17th District of Texas. Truly no member of Congress is more earnest or conscientious in his efforts to serve his constituents than he."

A few days later Commodore Peary returned from the arctic and reported that no evidence had been found at the pole that Dr. Cook had reached that far north. Later Dr. Cook became interested in the oil business and was sentenced to 14 years in the federal penitentiary for alleged mail frauds. He was sentenced at Fort Worth.

In 1930 he was pardoned, and spent the last years of his life trying to prove that he was the original discoverer of the north pole.

Guards Wondering If They Will Come Back After Training

FORT WORTH, Aug. 5.—Ten thousand Texas National Guardsmen went off to "war" this weekend, wondering whether they would return in three weeks or 12 months.

The home town soldiers will engage in maneuvers Aug. 3-24 in Louisiana, part of the three weeks of mock warfare by which U. S. military leaders hope to coordinate the various national guard units and to become part of the army of 325,000 "trained and seasoned" troops that President Roosevelt wants to augment the regular army.

"See you next year!" is the half-joking farewell of many Texas guardsmen. But a number of them believed that actually would happen.

The National Guard maneuvers were extended from two to three weeks this summer. If President Roosevelt can obtain passage of Congress of the bill to keep the various state national guard units under arms for a year to make them a "trained and seasoned" force, the three weeks may well extend to 12 months.

Most employers of National Guardsmen are allowing them to take three or four weeks' vacations, but little has been said about what might happen if the guard stays mobilized for a year. Members who have "essential" jobs at home probably will be allowed to return, but the others will be "in the army now."

The National Guard troops will be hampered in their exercises by lack of equipment, but the Louisiana maneuvers will aid in bringing them up to date on the organized operation of an army equipped with the use of new, mechanized equipment.

High point of the Louisiana maneuvers will be Aug. 17-20, when the troops will engage in mock battle, seeking to imitate as nearly as possible actual combat conditions.

Guardsmen from North Texas are to be stationed at Cravens and Boyce, La.

Dr. Cook, Claimant To Pole Discovery, Dies at Age of 75

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Dr. Frederick Cook, 75, who claimed to be the first to reach the north pole, died today.

Dr. Cook first drew public attention in 1896 when he claimed he climbed Mt. McKinley. He later went on an arctic expedition, and was unreported for nearly a year, finally showing up with the claim that he had discovered the north pole.

German Envoy—Mystery Man

The day after widespread publication of the fact that Dr. Gerhardt Alois Westrick, special Nazi trade emissary to the U. S., was secluded with his family in a 12-room house in New York's suburb of Scarsdale, Dr. Westrick was reported to have disappeared as mysteriously as he had come.

Close State Races Are Expected In Second Primary Election August 24

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Tex.—Two close state races are expected in the run-off Democratic primary election this month. The Democratic candidate for railroad commissioner will be Pierce P. Brooks of Dallas, or Olin Culberson of Edna, former head of the gas utilities division of the railroad commission.

Justice James P. Alexander of the Waco court of appeals and Hal Lattimore of Fort Worth, son of the late Justice O. S. Lattimore of the state court of criminal appeals, will contest in the other state-wide race for the chief justiceship of the state supreme court.

No wide margin separated the leaders in the first Democratic primary election and the large field of defeated contestants indicate that both races will be exciting.

Culberson lost no time starting his campaign. He commenced speaking last Monday on his return trip from Dallas to his campaign headquarters and has mapped a full itinerary for the remaining time. Brooks' remarkable first-primary race for lieutenant governor two years ago demonstrated his vote-getting ability.

Results of the race between Culberson and Brooks is being watched with particular interest because it may change the control of the three-member railroad commission.

Culberson was asked to resign from his post as head of the gas utilities division of the commission once before and was defeated by Thompson. This did not prevent Thompson joining in appointing Culberson head of the gas utilities division. They remained personal friends and worked together on important gas rate cases.

If Culberson becomes commissioner he would naturally be an ally of Thompson. The Sadler, who recently has dominated the commission affairs, might be the one "out on a limb."

Next to the run-off races the strange campaign of Attorney General Gerald C. Mann without an opponent has been causing much speculation. Mann explained that his tour of the state this month is to give the account of his stewardship. Observers believe it may also serve to keep the attorney general in the limelight as a prospective candidate for governor in 1942.

Pellagra Rate In State Not High, but Creates Concern

AUSTIN, Texas.—Pellagra, while not a communicable disease, is of concern to the State Health Department since the Texas pellagra mortality over the last five years shows an annual rate of 69, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Pellagra is a dietary deficiency disease caused by insufficiency of the proper foods. The disease infects a person slowly and may not be recognized until the victim begins to have a sore mouth, stomach trouble, and reddening and scaling of the skin. When these symptoms appear, the disease has been present for some time," Dr. Cox pointed out.

The longer period of time a person has been infected with pellagra, the harder it is to cure, so one should be on the lookout for the early symptoms, such as nervousness, indigestion and burning of the feet and hands. In its late stages, pellagra may be so severe as to affect the mind.

Pellagra is not contagious. If a person maintains the right dietary and is not otherwise diseased, he is in no danger even if he lives with a pellagra patient.

The prevention of pellagra is easier than its cure. Simplest rules of prevention is careful attention to the diet at all times. To make sure that your daily quota of foods includes pellagra-preventive vitamins it should include plenty of milk, some fresh meat, and as many fresh vegetables as possible. Tomatoes, whole wheat products, salmon, and brewer's yeast are particularly valuable for their pellagra-preventive qualities.

Having provided the essentials in your dietary, you should by all means consult your family physician when you need specialized assistance in diet corrections or procedures.

Sunbathing Should Be Only 30 Minutes

AUSTIN, Tex.—Attention August sun-worshippers!

Sunbathing should be limited to a 30-minute sizzle, but is good for you nine months out of the year, declares Miss Anna Hiss, University of Texas director of physical training for women.

Fifteen minutes on back and face is the maximum sun that can be taken without danger of a primary burn, dry skin, sapped energy. March to November is sun season. The first sunbath should be about two minutes long, stepping up a minute each day until the half-hour maximum is reached.

To show she means it, Miss Hiss points to the big solarium atop the University's Women's Gymnasium, considered one of the finest in the country. Texas co-eds take their sunbaths right through the year, she pointed out.

Home Exemptions Would Cut Revenues Of City One Fourth

AUSTIN, Tex.—The oft-proposed municipal exemption bill, dropping homesteads up to $3,000 from city tax rolls would mean, if enacted, a loss of between 17 and 25 per cent revenue for every Texas city, a University of Texas municipal research expert declared here today.

Dallas Man Makes A Strange Catch

SENATE WILL BEGIN DEBATE BY NEXT WEEK

Draft of Bill Approved by Senate Committee Calls for Registration of Men From 21 to 31.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, told the senate today that civilian conscription and mobilization of the National Guard are necessary because Germany "will try to attack the United States, in my judgment."

Opponents of these measures countered with charges that the country is being alarmed unnecessarily by talk of "grave emergencies."

Sen. Sheppard spoke at the opening of debate on the measure to mobilize the National Guard and the United States Army Reserves for one year.

A few hours earlier his committee had approved, 13 to 3, a bill for registering all men between the ages of 21 and 31 for military service.

The bill, as approved by the committee calls for registration of approximately 12,000,000 men within the age groups, of which about 4,500,000 would be called for one year of training, after the others had been exempt because of dependents and for other reasons.

The senate will begin consideration of the bill next week, and the opposition leaders plan to wage a bitter fight against its enactment.

The United States army officials want 400,000 of those drafted to be called for training this fall, and an additional 400,000 next spring.

Summer Brings Out Queer Fire Hazards

AUSTIN, Tex.—Summer's terrific heat waves bring out stories of some mighty peculiar fire hazards, reports Marvin Hall, state fire insurance commissioner.

A fish bowl, placed on a table where it could catch the full force of the sun rays, was responsible for a fire in Fredericksburg, Hall declared. He said a water bottle was held to be the cause of a blaze in Dallas.

"Of course fires from this cause are few and far between," the Commissioner explained, "but one fire is one too many."

U. S. Will Restore Historical Scene

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Land in the area of the old Appomattox court house where Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered his Confederate army to the Union forces of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant on April 9, 1865 will be reclaimed by the National Park Service this year as a national historical monument.

The 900-acre acquisition includes the headquarters of both Lee and Grant, the sites of the McLean house where the actual surrender took place, Appomattox court house and two other buildings—the county jail and a brick tavern.

The two-story McLean house was razed in 1892 by promoters who intended to reassemble it at the Chicago Columbian Exposition in 1893. It is believed that the finances failed and that the materials were moved no farther than the local railroad station.

According to the park service, the Appomattox court house was destroyed by fire in February, 1892, together with all its county records.

The two buildings will be reconstructed from old photographs. Old roads and fences will also be restored.

The War Within

Within every man and woman in these days there rages a war as relentless as that which sweeps over Europe.

We are all at war with ourselves. Conflicting passions and emotions, conflicting sympathies and antipathies rush through all of us, taking their toll of strain and stress.

Most people try to be decent. They are taught to choose the better rather than the worse cause, to keep good rather than evil. They try to do it.

But in a world in which values are shifting, many of the old moral price-tags look out of date and unfitting. The problem of every man is: How, in today's hard-boiled world, to be hard enough to survive and persist, yet soft enough to preserve the love of all those things which alone distinguish man from the brute.

Every man today is a dual self. He must have one for action, for the brutal necessities of the world, yet keep one hidden against the day when it may emerge again. Also civilization dies.

Militarism and war are abhorrent, and like all violence they negate man the reasoning, thinking being. Yet we know from what we have seen that those who trust in reason alone are betrayed into the hands of those to whom evidence is a god. So a man must be violent if need be, yet retain within himself the consciousness that violence is not the best way, and that a better must be found.

Are men torn by these dualisms the necessary victims of men taught from babyhood to worship force? In plainer words, can a man fight in full consciousness that it is all a dirty business that should have been done sensibly instead, and still prevail over those who believe the battle a glorious thing in and for itself?

The answer, we have full faith, is yes. For a time the devotee of force appears to prevail, does, perhaps for a time prevail. But the seed of his destruction lies in the very absence of that hidden corner of the mind where the better way should lie dormant, ready to build when violence is done tearing down.

To fight if fight one must, and having fought, to win and still remain firmly sure that there is a better way—that is the only way to reconcile those forces that contend within us all.

Because of the new defense taxes, the nation is suffering from a shortage of pennies. It wasn't so long ago when the complaint most often heard was lack of dollars.

The Burma road has been shut down, but a flick of the dial still finds the Road to Mandalay being used, and misused, by premier baritones of the airwaves.

IF THE BRITISH FLEET fell to the dictators, our battle fleet would be outnumbered more than two to one by the capital ships of Germany, Italy, and Japan, as shown in the above chart of our two-ocean protection today, prepared by the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, of which William Allen White is chairman. Sale of sixty over-age United States destroyers, of the 162 left over from the World War, to Great Britain to aid in her defense against Nazi and Fascist invasion is urged by the Committee, in the interests of our own security. Thousands of Committee adherents are now communicating with the President, Senators, and Congressmen asking that immediate legislative action be taken to speed the sale of the destroyers, which the Committee says the United States could easily spare now.

Dairymaids Drop A Game At Ft. Worth

Saturday night the Dairy Maids dropped a well played game to the Trimble Dairy girls of Fort Worth, 4 to 0. The Trimble team has been playing together for the last ten years with very few changes in line up in the last five, and are considered by many a favorite to win the State Championship this year.

The Trimble team will play in Kanger next Saturday night and in order to allow everyone to see this wonderful girl team, the starting time has been moved up to 9 o'clock.

Joe Kennedy, the pitcher for Trimble, showed the Dairy Maids a different brand of pitching from anything they had looked at this year, and had the girls hand cuffed most of the way, but they think they can do a lot better the next time they face her.

Business Waiting For Defense Plan To Get Underway

AUSTIN, Tex.—National business is quietly waiting for the U. S. defense program to move from blueprint to construction stages; by fall, the present business lull will disappear in booming activity.

This was the optimistic prediction today by Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. An extended lull in industrial activity, lagging since early July, was Dr. Buechel's outlook for the weeks immediately ahead.

Deer Preserve Is Planned By Group

JACKSBORO, Tex.—A 40,000-acre preserve for deer is expected to be established in Jack County by fall.

Negotiations for the restocking plan have been carried on by the Jacksboro Chamber of Commerce and the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission. The program will include addition of breeding stock to the area each year for five years, with the 40,000-acre sector to be closed to all hunters.

Deer Preserve Is Planned By Group

The deer are expected to overflow onto non-posted lands, however, and will be available for hunting within a few years. The preserve probably will be located southwest of Jacksboro, where a number of deer already have been driven from the rough country where Possum Kingdom dam is being built in Palo Pinto County.

THE PAY OFF

THIS isn't exactly hockey weather, but those with a financial and rooting interest in puck pursuing are thinking of it just the same.

They are wondering if the National League and the various minors will operate come winter. The reason for doubt, of course, is that 90 per cent of the players hail from Canada.

Although the dominion government stands pledged not to invoke conscription for overseas service, 100,000 Canadians are in active service in England, en route or in training. Legislation is pending to invoke compulsory military training for 800,000 more.

Canada supplied more than 50 per cent of the Royal Air Force in World War I. Canadian youngsters had better eyesight... superior aptitude.

A big force of pilots is being trained across the border, where gasoline is plentiful, and no enemy interferes with practice flying.

More than a few of the brightest stars of hockey are bound to hear the call.

CONNIE SMYTHE, a veteran of World War I and now managing director of the Toronto Maple Leafs, gives a clue to the situation in advising his players to enroll immediately for military training. He wants his athletes to do their stints early, so as to be free for hockey, if any.

The Canadian government may not tolerate citizens of military age coming to the United States for a professional sport while the nation is embattled.

The precedent of World War I indicates hockey may be shelved for the duration of World War II. The professional game was confined to Canada and the Pacific northwest 25 years ago.

Stars were encouraged to join as good propaganda for recruits.

THE fate of arenas in New York, Chicago, Boston, Detroit, Montreal, Toronto, and Cleveland and numerous minor league cities are at the mercy of the whims of Adolf Hitler and the decision of Premier Mackenzie King. Hockey has kept all of them open. Winter without it would be well nigh ruinous.

Many hockey luminaries distinguished themselves in World War I—Bill Cook, Ching Johnson, Red Dutton, and Rabbit McVeigh among them.

If I were a German soldier, I wouldn't want to face a battalion of hockey players, because hockey, like war, is a game in which only thoroughly game guys break through.

CHAPTER VII
HAS Andre Masters seen Jean? Molly asked again, with a curious, panic-stricken glance.

"What in the world has Andre Masters got to do with this?" Johnny wanted to know. He took her blank, blue stare, the nervousness of her slim fingers. "Jean said he was being nice to you. Is that it?"

"Good heavens, after that scene just interrupted—you kissing Jean—that's a fine note to hand me!" She spoke mechanically as something were still bothering her. Or was she merely evading?

"I told you, Jean was only saying goodby. We always kiss, somehow."

"Oh, yes, casually!" she sniffed. "Listen, Molly, don't get off the point. Is Andre Masters taking you for a spin?"

"I told you I haven't any time for romance," she snapped. "I like you and I like him. If we've got to strain that remark—I like you most. Oh, why can't you quit harping?"

"You like me. Sounds as if I were a recreation center. What am I to do, anyway? Summer-time diversion?"

"Oh, stop being so intense!"

SHE changed the subject abruptly. "You never did tell me whether Jean had seen Andre. He wants the cameo, and I don't want him to know yet that it belongs to her."

It was Johnny's turn to wheel on her suddenly. "What are you talking about? I'm in charge of that cameo. Jean said she lent it to you for the play. When the play is over, I'm to get it back and send it to her."

"How perfectly wonderful," said Molly, plants working behind her eyes.

"What do you mean, 'wonderful'? I'm about that brooch the way the Louvre is about the Mona Lisa. Anyway, it's bad luck for you."

"Bad luck? How fascinating. Tell me about it."

Johnny shrugged. "Just an old story. It was fashioned especially for Jean's great-grandmother. Her fiancé was bringing it to her from Italy. He wagered the thing in a card game and lost. He handed it over to the winner, and the YESTERDAY: Molly develops growing interest in the Reynolds cameo. Jean asks Johnny to bring back for her. Molly interrupts as well, accusing Jean of running out on a job, then turns on Johnny, whom she asks if he's afraid she won't get to wear the cameo.

CHAPTER VIII
MOLLY in Johnny's arms whispering that she loved him and would marry him as he had asked her to, sent his senses whirling. That she wanted the cameo to be his gift to the bride was only a small hurdle easily cleared so near the real goal.

"Then you'll ask Jean to sell it to you. I want it so desperately, Johnny darling," Molly was saying rather than asking. Her mouth hung against his, his arms about her, made everything possible.

"Jean will give it to us for a wedding present. We won't need to buy it. And if there's anything to that luck legend, we needn't even worry about that. Jean and I are so nearly brother and sister that the Reynolds luck has probably diffused after all these years."

Molly laughed softly and stood away from him. She was so beautiful, so lovely—and she was going to marry him!

"You're sweet, Johnny," Molly said, stroking his face. "Don't worry about the luck, you funny fishman. Things are turning out wonderfully. Now don't forget to ask Jean—right away. She'll be at the theater tonight."

He walked back down Cottage street towards his garage, almost in a dream. Molly was going to marry him. After this summer she would say farewell forever to the theater!

He stopped short. Would she? He wanted for Molly and himself the dream of love in a cottage. Jean had imagined! What kind of a marriage did Molly want? He wondered.

When Johnny came backstage at 7:30, Jean was already there. "Hello, Johnny." She hardly looked up.

"I came to talk to you," he began, wondering how he should start. Away from Molly, the task of asking Jean for the cameo seemed difficult. "Isn't that the Carstairs coffee service?"

Jean nodded. "But I told Miss Bessie I'd be personally responsible for it."

Johnny had an opportunity to look around. He whistled. "Are you going to be personally responsible for all the other Cape Cod antiques you've got in this barn? Isn't that Mr. Dumtrow's man's mistress killed him that night. Reynolds got the pin back. Bad luck number one.

"But it's not unlucky for the Reynolds. It fosters love, understanding and all the rest of that muck. But on all the occasions when it's ever got out of their hands, something terrible has happened to the one who has worn it."

"Andre will love that," she said. Johnny frowned. "What have you got on your mind, apprentice? Tell me or I won't let you wear the cameo even in the play."

Molly laughed. "It's nothing to get upset about. Remember what I told you about a wedge to get in on Broadway? Well, Andre is my wedge. He's interested in me now because he likes the cameo. By the time I give the cameo back, he'll be interested in me because I'm potentially a great actress. And it's all wonderful, because there's no hurry about getting it back, now that you're responsible."

Johnny shook his head. "You're wrong there, so you might as well come clean with Andre. When the play ends that cameo goes back to Miss Jean Reynolds with my compliments."

Molly came over to him, held up her pretty mouth. He kissed her.

"Could we have another picnic tonight before rehearsal? I've missed you, Johnny, more than I let myself believe."

Johnny's blood was singing in his veins. He said, "Yes, darling." And then he looked toward the door to see Jean Reynolds standing there, a look of desperate resignation in her face. Before he could step away from Molly, Jean had masked that look with one of defiance.

"My turn to beg your pardons," she said, "but Johnny's such a Casanova this summer, I never know when I might interrupt a little scene of this sort. I saw Mr. Earl."

Molly stopped smoothing her hair, and smiled at Jean sweetly. "It doesn't matter. I'm sorry I was so rude. I'd just come from rehearsal and was pretty fagged out. Of course, some of us can get the stuff back."

Jean stared at her, incredulously. "Mr. Earl didn't seem to think so. He blew up. He had quite a lot to say about apprentices. Once a play is over, no one seems to know who's responsible for last week's props. That's why I am elected. And here I am, pals, in your hair again."

BUT Jean didn't get in their way. Johnny did not see her again after Saturday. The play opened on Monday and the Cape Cod papers raved about Molly's performance as Mrs. Lyons. Talent scouts appeared like mushrooms and asked thousands of questions. Johnny knew with the sadness of realization expected but un hoped for, that this summer would be a success, and that Molly would go far in the theater.

Molly told him of her dreams, confided in him each clew that indicated any Broadway job for October. There were more picnics, but she kept the affair as light as the spray which stung their faces. She would kiss him, but when he mentioned their future, she would say:

"Let's enjoy the present, Johnny. Isn't it enough that I'm loving you—like this?"

THEY climbed upon their bicycles and started for home, just as they had a dozen other times. Johnny wondered sadly what would come of the summer.

"Johnny," said Molly when they reached her porch, having pedaled home in almost silence, "I've been thinking."

"You're too beautiful to think," Johnny smiled. "What's on your mind?"

"Make Jean sell me the cameo. I don't even want Andre to have it. I'm a fool about luck, and it does seem lucky for me, even if I'm not a Reynolds. Often in my dressing room I take the brooch from Lyons' costume and just look at it, wishing it were mine forever instead of just a week."

Johnny shook his head. No, he couldn't ask Jean to sell him the cameo; even for Molly he couldn't do that. He remembered too well what she had said when they discussed their own wedding plans, "The cameo, a prayer-book and you, Johnny. That's all I want on my wedding day. No orchids, no champagne, no cake with a funny little bride and groom."

"I think she'd sell it to me, but I can't ask her. She'd like your feeling the way you do about the cameo; she loves it herself. That was why I was so surprised she lent it to you."

Molly reached over and touched his cheek. Her eyes looked into his, deeply and compellingly.

"You'd want your bride to have it for a gift from her groom, wouldn't you, sweetheart?"

Johnny's breath left his body. "I'm serious, Johnny," Molly said. "I'm going to take you up on that marriage bid."

ised Molly. He took a deep breath. "Jean," he said, "I didn't come back stage for a fight. I came to ask a favor of you."

"If it's about going home, I can put up with just about all I'm going to from you. I let you boss me around all my life. Took it and liked it. No matter what a sap Sue said I was. Now I'll thank you to mind your own business. I've done a pretty good job of minding mine."

Two spots of pink appeared on her cheeks. She turned angrily, and started down the stairs.

"If you're talking about Molly, you can retract anything detrimental you've thought. She's a good actress. Didn't you read her notices?"

Jean almost snorted. "Who could help it? She waved them around like American flags. And it's gone to her head completely. The whole cast is pretty sick of her. Upstage, cutting in on lines. I doubt if Mr. Earl ever gives her another part."

The words came with such pent-up fury that Johnny thought she was glad of this opportunity to hurl them at him. Now was the time to tell her, he decided. "Oh, well," he tried to say casually, "it won't matter whether he does or not. This acting is just a stop-gap, anyway. Molly's going to marry me."

He thought he heard Jean gasp, but the answer didn't betray her. "Marry you? That is a laugh. I thought she had Andre Masters in mind."

"He is strictly business," Johnny quoted. "We're to be married soon, if that means anything to you."

Jean continued to rearrange the Bohemian liqueur glasses in a circle around the decanter. "It apparently means something to her," she said with vehemence. "I haven't seen that girl make a move since I've known her that didn't further her own campaign a league or two. Though I can't for the life of me see how marrying you could help her. No money. No job."

Johnny felt as if she had slapped him, but he answered with control. "Get nasty. I'll get a good job and it won't be with the Reynolds Advertising Agency. I might remind you that it wasn't too long ago that you regarded me as a fairly safe 'marriage bet' yourself."

She shrugged. "I'm trying to forget I was such a fool, but seeing you makes it doubly difficult."

IT hardly seemed the perfect opportunity to ask Jean to sell him the cameo, but he had prom-

Farmers Urged To Cut Pasture Fires

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas farmers and ranchers today were advised by Marvin Hall, state fire insurance commissioner, to exercise every precaution in the prevention of costly pasture fires.

The danger of such fires is high in the late summer and early fall, he said, especially in areas scorched by prolonged drought such as the panhandle region in West Texas. Land owners in South Texas also were advised to take steps to protect grazing areas.

Land scorched by fire may take two years for reseeding, necessitating heavy expense on the part of livestock men who may be forced to lease other pastures of purchase feed.

Hall advised the adoption of practices of old-time cowboys and Rangers in breaking off the heads of matches after they have been ignited. Small land owners have plowed furrows around pastures to guard against the spread of fire.

WILMINGTON, Del.—The number of boys participating in home economics courses in Delaware public schools almost equal that of the girls, according to Miss Emily King, supervisor of home economics.

Miss King said that boys are as much interested in style, design, and color schemes as the girls are. But they want to know more about customs and behavior, she added.

A & M Teaches Its Students To Be On Alert For Defense

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—One of the requirements of citizenship of the United States is to be ready and willing to defend the country. A. & M. College teaches its students to be good citizens and they do not neglect the "be prepared" angle.

In the last war 2200 students and ex-students of the college answered the call, 55 of them paying the supreme sacrifice. Those 2200 represented the largest number of any school in the country furnished and most of those men were commissioned officers.

A. & M. still is prepared to send her trained sons in defense of our great nation, this time better prepared than before because since 1918 she has sent approximately 4600 commissioned reserve officers into the world and they all stand ready for call.

In 1937 the federal government allotted 515 contracts to A. & M. students who wished to take advanced military work. These contracts provide that the government will pay the students, approved by the college military department, about $90 each school year, and upon completion of the course, they will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the reserves. The student's part of the contract is that he will take the course, attend the summer training camp between his senior and junior year, and stand ready to serve should his country become involved in a national emergency.

Veterinary medicine students are eligible for rank of first lieutenant in the medical corps reserve. In 1939 Texas A. & M. was allotted more than 900 contracts, showing that the government more and more is depending on the school.

There is hardly a limit to the number of officers A. & M. can train if the need presents itself. Last June 350 commissioned reserve officers were graduated from the institution, many of whom went directly into the regular army.

The college degree and the reserve commission give an A. & M. graduate two advantages. He may follow his selected field or he may try for an appointment as an officer in the regular army.

KEEP cool with economy. All those specialties which make summer more pleasant, such as ice cream, frozen desserts and tall glasses of sparkling beverages, can find a welcome in the "spend wisely" food budget. In order to spend wisely and still have the so-called little luxuries of summer, the rule to follow is a simple and sound one.

Serve no food or drink unless it contains an abundant supply of nutrients.

An egg is a rich source of many nutrients whether it is served scrambled for breakfast or shaken to a froth in a fruit beverage. Milk is a valuable source of nutrients, whether drunk in a glass or eaten in the form of a fruit ice cream.

You can take your daily quota of fresh fruits either from the fruit bowl or else in tall glasses of sparkling beverages or in smooth sherbets. However, make it an absolute rule, never to serve any food, no matter how tempting you may be, unless that food contains some of the requirements in nutrients which you know every member of your family must have each day in order to insure growth and vigorous health.

By studying your markets, the daily food requirements for your family and your newspaper food columns and cook books, you can make many menus tailored for summer appetite, full of sheer Combine first 5 ingredients, and cook until thick like a custard. Cool. Fold in whipped cream and stiffly beaten egg whites. Sprinkle half the finely crushed vanilla wafers in freezing tray of gas or electric refrigerator. Pour over mixture and cover with remaining crumbs. Freeze until firm. Serve in finger-length slices.

Quail Restoration Areas Cover Big Tracts In State

AUSTIN, Tex. — Forty-nine quail demonstration areas have been set up by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission in 45 counties of the state, according to a report by the director of wildlife restoration to the executive secretary of the Game Department. These areas total 88,735 acres.

Demonstration areas are set up with the aid of federal funds to show what can be done by way of restoring the crop of quail in various parts of the state. Fenced areas are constructed on most of the plots of ground, but various practices are followed in the providing of suitable habitat for the birds, the methods used depending upon the section of the state in which the areas are located. Landowners interested in raising more quail visit the areas in large numbers and are given a visual example of how to proceed.

The largest of the quail demonstration areas is 4,000 acres and the smallest is 160. The areas average 1,775 acres. Fifteen of the areas are set up in central Texas, 4 in East Texas, 11 in South Texas, 9 in the western part of the state and 10 in the Panhandle.

The project is one of a half dozen with which the Game Department is helping to restore game in the Lone Star State by the use of Pittman-Robertson federal funds. Three-fourths of the cost of the projects are borne by federal funds and the Game Department provides the other one-fourth.

Goodwill Highway To Latin America Is Being Studied

AUSTIN, Tex.—For a $38,000,000 drop in the bucket—compared with defense program appropriations—the U. S. can and should "invade" Latin-America—via a giant "good will" highway from Canada to the Argentine.

Such a highway is already under consideration by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, John A. Focht, University of Texas highway engineer, said today. He estimated that $38,000,000 would push a highway below Mexico City all the way to the Panama Canal.

"The new Mexico City highway, which links with U. S. arteries converging on the Mexican border has opened that country to tourist traffic tremendously," Focht said.

Although of little commercial value because of cheap water transportation, Focht believed an inter-continental artery to be the best means of bringing the people of Pan-American nations together. "Americans," he pointed out, "are automobile tourists almost altogether."

THE PAY OFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

BECAUSE it sometimes has difficulty in understanding questions which come to it due to confusion in terms used, the rules committee of the United States Golf Association straightens us out after all these years.

For example, "bogey" does not mean "one over par," as we have always believed. It means the score which a fair player should make on a given hole and so for an entire course. It parallels par. If a word meaning "one over par" is needed, the committee suggests a word be coined which will not conflict with one of established meaning. "Birdie" and "eagle" are such useful words.

"Twosome" is not a golf term at all. If one man plays against another, the match is a "single." In stroke play, two players competing together are a "couple."

"THREESOME" designates a match in which one player plays against two playing alternate strokes with one ball, such a match being rare. The word does not mean three players, each playing against the other. That is a three-ball match. Neither does "threesome" correctly designate three players competing together in a stroke competition, the proper word in such case being simply "three."

"Foursome" covers two players playing alternate strokes with one ball against two others playing one ball in match play, or against the field in stroke play. There has been a tendency to use the word to cover a four-ball match, and so "Scotch foursome" has been used in some cases to distinguish between the two.

In some parts of the country, "Scotch foursome" is used to mean a four-ball match in which the best and worst ball or best and aggregate count. Another use of "Scotch foursome" is to describe a four-ball match in which only the total of the scores on one side counts on each hole. "California Scotch foursome" has been used to mean some form of four-ball match.

The rules do not cover best ball and aggregate, best and worst or similar types of matches. The committee suggests that "foursome" and "four-ball" be used in their proper sense.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with stinging and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. When you're looking for some place in the country, and haven't a road map, you naturally stop along the road to ask directions. Almost always, your volunteer guide winds up his bewildering list of local landmarks and his vague arm-wavings with the cheerful comment, "You can't miss it!"

But sometimes you do.

When you're looking for "good buys" in town, don't grope your way along. Shop first in the pages of this paper, to get your bearings. Here the best merchants advertise their best merchandise. Here real values pass in review. Sitting comfortably at home, you can compare products and prices—then go straight to the store, the floor, the counter that has exactly what you want!

You save hours of hunting, hoping. You save money too.

"You can't miss it!"
