Moore ABOUT EASTLAND by Dirgil E. Moore

Lions club tailtwisters are no-But Eastland Lions may have gotten more than they bargained for in James Smith, manager of Perry

Smith came up with a set of written rules this week. Included in the rules were the general charges, such as 10 cent fines for throwing wet napkins and so forth; but in addition James inserted a few new ones. He ruled that it would be a "death penalty" for throwing one of the bisquits made by Mrs. Seibert and Mrs. Bean and said that anyone hitting Court of Civil Appeals Judge Clyde Grissom would be fined $50. (Smith once accidentally hit the good judge between the eyes, much to his own embarrassment.,

The new tailtwister made one rule Lions in general liked, however. That one made throwing at four members-Norman Guess Williard Griffin, James Young and Harold Reese—free of charge.

Mrs. Johnnie Aaron has entered two "cute sayings" made by her granddaughter in our contest. You remember, Joe Canarris is going to give a free 8x1 inch picture of the child our judges say made the cutest remark.

"My little four-year-old grand-daughter, Debbie, has just recently made a trip with her father. She came home and was telling me about what a nice time she had swimming. It seems she was doing just fine until she changed from the small pool to the large one and then she went under. She exclaimed, 'Mam-Maw, it made me so mad I could have slapped myself."

Then Mrs. Aaron wrote, "A few weeks ago while driving through the State of Louisiana, we were passing through a section that was very beautiful with cotton, tall corn, and acres and acres of grass surrounding nice homes. The grass looked as if it had just been freshly mown. After talking of how beautiful the lawns were and how large, I asked the question, 'I wonder what kind of grass it is?' Debbie spoke up and said, 'Well, Mam-Maw, it's green

We always knew that Charlie Marshall, high school principal, had a lot of guts, but we didn't find out just how tough he was until Tuesday night. Marchall, umpiring the Little League play-off game, called a close pitch a third strike against Mike Seibert. Mike's father is Wendell Siebert, superintendent of Eastland Schools.

It's amazing how fast they are going up with the new Bethel Baptist Church. You can go by there just about anytime and see someone working that you thought you never would. We understand James Flaming, the minister, is champ of 'em all, however. One church member told us, "That guy works day and night."

Far be it from us to criticise J. Fyatts Haley, the self-appointed dictator of Texas Tech. Mr. Haley might someday make that goal he dreams of at night-being the governor of Texas—and flat chase us out of the state. Firing of the two Tech professors because they were liberals was about the most un-American thing we ever heard of, however. Mr. Haley, of course, is ultra-conservative. That is to say, he's for putting things back the way they were when he was born. It might do well for a few Texas Tech admirers to check his actions a little closer, however. The little Texan is a Canyon man, you know. Canyon, of course, is the home of West Texas State College which has long been fighting Tech for (Continued on Page 2)

to meeting old friends, making new ones, hearing their favorite speaker, enjoying good Christian fellowship and having their spiritual life lifted to a new height by the very atmosphere that prevails at an oldfashioned camp meeting," Rev. Hallenbeck said.

"Some will be coming for the first service and leaving only when the last amen is said," he stated. "Others will come for part of the week, while many will only be able to come for a day or so. Each wil try to crowd as much as possible into the time he will be able to spend here."

Rev. Hallenbeck said a typical day at the camp begins at 6 a.m. with prayer and praise service. At 7 the call for breakfast sounds and by 8:30 people are trying to find the conference room that they are interested in.

He said each age has something designed especially for him from the small children to the aged and ministers. Three general services of the day draw the entire group together. One is at 11 a.m., another at 2:45 p.m. and the third at 7:30 p.m.

Girard Case Horrible Example Of Status of Forces 'Justice'

The case of the American G. I. turned over to a Japanese court for trial on murder charges is a particularly flagrant one of its kind, for two reasons.

First, the soldier, William S. Girard, was on duty at the FOR RENT: 3 rooms and bath, time of the unfortunate incident. He was under orders to newly furnished, to couple. 1114 guard a gun position during a break in firing practice.

When the iniquitous status of forces treaties were being debated in Congress, Deputy Undersecretary of State Ro- MISC. They gather. Guss Hart, 7 miles northwere ratified despite the fact that they violated the Constitution and legal precedents dating from the famous enunciation of Chief Justice Marshall in 1811.

In the second place, this case is particularly flagrant in that Secretary Dulles and Wilson have decided that we must go through with the man's transfer to a Japanese court because the Army yielded jurisdiction in the case last month. Why could not the Army authorities in Tokyo have been overruled, when all are agreed that the soldier Texas' most profitable egg layers, was on duty at the time?

Here is a young man, drafted into the service of his country, who had no choice as to where he would serve. He didn't ask to go to Japan. Now, following what appears to have been an error of judgment on his part, carried out in uniform and while on duty, he is placed at the whim of Oriental ideas of justice.

The status of forces treaties, among other evil results, create two classes of American servicemen—those at home, protected by their constitutional rights, and those FOR SALE OR TRADE: Nice abroad, deprived of them. The effect on morale is bound to be depressing.

The major issue of the Girard case, however, goes deeper than the fate of one man and the capricious acts of officials in Tokyo and Washington. The status of forces treaties never should have been made. They should be denounced by the President. And the Bricker amendment which would provide that no international agreement conflicting with the Constitution is valid, must be enacted.

Lake Leon-

(Continued from Page One) ity of 4,000 people surrounded by many and varied industries, still shows the scars it won as the site of the world's greatest oil boom up until that time, the years 1918-21, when a population of 35,000 to 50,000 people swelled the place and mud was 3-feet deep on Main Street.
"Old Rip"

Eastland, one of the prettiest small towns in the state, boasting population of about 3,600, was also an oil boom city that once had a population of 25,000 or more. Perhaps its greatest attraction today is the body of "Old Rip" which lies entombed in a glass case in the foyer of Eastland County's court house. "Old Rip" is the famed horned toad that was buried for 30 years in the cornerstone of a former court house, to be taken out alive when the present one was built. The toad's fame became known in every corner of the world until he died a natural death of pneumonia a little more than a year after he was taken from his 30-year hibernation. Both Ranger and Eastland welcome visitors to the Lake Leon area and the Chambers of Commerce of either city stand ready to supply information to those who night wish to write for it.
