County to offer its own juvenile probation budget

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

The Gray County Commissioners Court tabled the Juvenile Probation Department's proposed 1983-84 budget and decided to suggest one of its own at a regular meeting Tuesday.

The commissioners also viewed the testing of the county's new automatic vote tabulators. After the tests, the voting machines were sealed in preparation for the Constitutional amendments election to be held Tuesday.

Judge Kennedy said the county purchased the voting machines and tabulators in the interest of "accuracy in counting."

During past general elections when the voter turnout is very high, the election judges were still manually counting the votes at two and three o'clock in the morning, Kennedy said. Having the automatic tabulators will help reduce errors in counting which are often caused by fatigue, he said.

Earl North Jr. of Hartgraphics was designated as the "tabulation manager" for Tuesday's election.

District Judge Don Cain, a member of the Gray County Juvenile Probation Board, attended the meeting and was invited to discuss the proposed juvenile probation budget.

The county had previously rejected the proposed 1983-84 budget because commissioners considered the total amount of $48,000 exorbitant. In addition to the county's proposed share, ($21,000 for operating expenses plus $5,000 to pay for legal expenses should the county deny the budget request) the juvenile department was to receive $27,000 from the state.

The juvenile department's proposed budget includes $19,500 annual salary for the probation officer and a starting annual salary of $13,740 for the department clerk. Probation officer Bill Leonard reportedly told the board he didn't need a clerk, but was told by one of the board members "that's how the state wants it."

Judge Cain gave a brief history of the juvenile probation department. Since 1959 when Leonard became the probation officer, the scope and guidelines for the juvenile department has changed, Cain said.

"Everything was done in the best interest of the child," and there was no advisory proceeding, he said. In the 60s, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled that juvenile offenders had to be tried, with full protection of their rights, putting the juvenile and the juvenile probation officer in an advisory position, he said. Gradually, Austin and Washington were telling the local authorities how to handle juveniles, Cain said.

Under the new guidelines, an individual who is between 10 and 17 years is considered a "juvenile" and must be arranged within 48 hours and have a new hearing every 10 days until disposition of his case in court, Cain said. Once a juvenile reaches 17, he can be tried as an adult, he said.

Cain then spoke in favor of the state funding those programs over which it has control, such as the juvenile department. He said services such as having a female in the juvenile department when female juveniles are brought in could be added.

Commissioner Ron Rice, asked why the tremendous jump in expenditures (from last year's $22,000 to the proposed $48,000)?

"Because that's what is happening," Cain responded.

"More money obviously isn't the only answer," he said.

However, other counties are spending more money "up-grading juvenile services," and the Gray County juvenile department is "trying to keep the kids out of the court system - to rehabilitate them" before they become delinquents, Cain added.

Commissioner O.L. Presley asked, "What would happen if we refused state money and have the county continue" as before?

"We're willing to put $22,000 in the budget (without using the state funds), commissioner Rice said. "We'd rather pay, then we could keep a closer eye on the taxpayers' funds. Do you see a justification for $48,000?"

"We need to pay the juvenile probation officer a salary comparable with other areas," Cain answered.

"The salary wouldn't be near that," Rice said.

Cain said the juvenile probation board didn't anticipate spending all the $48,000, and offered to send the excess back to the state at the end of the fiscal year. He also said the subject of whether or not a clerk should be hired was still open.

Commissioner Jim McCracken commented it was still a matter of the state "putting us in a binding contract - telling us how much money we're going to spend - without asking" us.

Commissioners asked if they could meet with the juvenile probation board to discuss the budget further. Judge Kennedy said anyone could request to be placed on the agenda of the next meeting.

The commissioners then decided to prepare a budget within which they feel comfortable and present it to the juvenile probation board as an offer to compromise.

Judge Kennedy informed the commissioners the state had given the Juvenile Probation Board permission to continue use of allocated state funds to pay the juvenile probation officer in recognition of the two governing entities' "good faith" promise to settle the problem.

In other business, the commissioners unanimously selected Judge Kennedy as their choice to serve on the Board of Directors for the Gray County Appraisal District for 1984 and 1985. Kennedy has 510 votes on the board.

In the continuing attempt to get the main runway at Perry Lefors Field lengthened, the commissioners received another letter from Transwestern Pipeline. Transwestern has a section of pipeline at the end of the present runway. The county has been trying to get permission from

For Congressmen's sons

Judge declines to set sentences

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

A Beaumont federal judge has disqualified himself from sentencing the sons of two former Panhandle Congressmen who pleaded guilty to federal drug charges, because the judge once worked as a congressional aide and says he's acquainted with former federal legislators, according to a federal prosecutor.

U.S. District Judge Robert Parker, who worked as an administrative assistant for a Texas congressman in Washington during 1965 and 1966, is apparently acquainted with former Panhandle Congressmen Bob Price of Pampa and Graham Purcell of Arlington, Va., and wants to avoid any appearance of a potential conflict of interest in sentencing their sons, who pleaded guilty last September to federal drug charges linking them with international drug smugglers, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Wes Rivers of Beaumont.

Robert Grant Price, 28, of Pampa, and Kell Purcell, 25, were indicted last June along with 43 other people who prosecutors say were involved in a smuggling ring that brought 210 tons of marijuana into the U.S. from Columbia.

The sons of the former Panhandle Congressmen, who once battled for election to the same House seat in Washington, were each charged with two counts of federal drug violations in connection with the smuggling conspiracy. The younger Price and Purcell both pleaded guilty to reduced, single charges of "use of an interstate communications facility (telephone) in the furtherance of narcotics violations."

The pleas were the result of a plea-bargain with federal prosecutors. Judge Parker accepted Price and Purcell's guilty pleas and terms of the plea-bargain Sept. 6, the day before other defendants in the case went on trial in Beaumont.

A few days after the trial of the other defendants began, Judge Parker said in open court that he should not sentence Price and Purcell as he is acquainted with their fathers, and "wanted to avoid the appearance of any impropriety," Rivers said.

Parker, 44, worked as an administrative assistant to former U.S. Representative Ray Roberts, a Democrat from McKinney, in the mid 60s. Roberts's 4th Congressional District included Tyler, Denton and Longview.

Bob Price, 55, a Republican, represented the Panhandle district in Congress from 1966 through 1974. Graham Purcell, 64, a Democrat, served in Congress from 1962 through 1972 in the Texas district that included part of the Panhandle and the area to the southeast. Purcell and Price's congressional districts were merged in the 1972 election, and Price whipped his fellow incumbent that year for election in the new district.

The cases of the former congressmen's sons were transferred from Parker's court to that of another Beaumont federal judge, Joe Fisher.

According to a spokeswoman for Judge Parker, who refused to be identified, the judge will not discuss the reason he disqualified himself from the Price and Purcell cases.

"The judge will not speak to you about that. He just doesn't speak to reporters about pending cases," the spokeswoman said.

Judge Fisher is reportedly away from Beaumont until the 14th of this month, the earliest date he might announce when he will sentence Price and Purcell, according to Rivers.

On Nov. 28, Judge Parker will sentence another five convicted smugglers, who were found guilty

Captured Cubans build their own prison

POINT SALINES, Grenada (AP) — Cuban, Soviet and Libyan diplomats were ordered to leave Grenada by today, but an official in Havana says Cuba's delegation will stay put until Cubans captured or wounded during the U.S.-led invasion are evacuated.

About 70 of the 600 Cuban prisoners worked Tuesday on construction of a detention camp to house them until they are sent back to Cuba.

By nightfall, after 36 hours' work, prisoners moved into the complex of 30 tents and a concrete building at Point Salines.

The complex is near an airport many of the Cubans were helping build before the United States invaded the Caribbean island to oust a Marxist, pro-Cuban regime that seized power in a military coup two weeks earlier.

Shortly before a nightly curfew began, Capt. Bob Willey, a U.S. Army spokesman, said there had been no reports of any shots fired on Grenada Tuesday. But 17 Grenadian troops were reported to have surrendered to the 292 Marines who took Carriacou, a tiny island dependency of Grenada, and five other Grenadian soldiers were captured in the northern part of Grenada.

Cuba's deputy foreign minister, Ricardo Alarcon, said the expulsion order from Governor General Paul Scoon of Grenada "will only be carried out by force and by U.S. troops."

Scoon, "evidently acting under instructions by the U.S. government, ordered the Cuban diplomatic personnel on Grenada to leave the country in 24 hours," Alarcon said, adding that the message was received before noon Tuesday.

Libya and the Soviet Union did not publicly comment on the order.

International Red Cross officials said they hoped 35 wounded and 15 ill Cuban prisoners would be airlifted today or Thursday to Barbados, where a Swiss jet waited to take them home.

Two Cubans, one with a spinal injury and the other with a fractured skull, have been admitted to a U.S. hospital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where 44 American servicemen and one Grenadian have also been treated for injuries in the invasion.

The Cuban prisoners working on their new prison were "good, fast workers, and they've done a super job," said Capt. John Ramey of the Army 82nd Airborne's 307th Engineer Battalion.

Country on cash basis

Red ink blues spread in government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today is the second day the federal government operated without authority to borrow money and the red ink blues were everywhere.

Its credit exhausted, the Treasury Department struggled to do business on a cash-only basis.

"The U.S. government is living on a hand-to-mouth basis as the Congress creates uncertainty in the financial markets," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Tuesday in response to the Senate's 56-39 refusal Monday night to raise the national debt limit above its current ceiling of $1.389 trillion.

That limit was reached Tuesday when the Treasury Department made a $4 billion payment to the Social Security system. Until the limit is raised, the government will be operating only on the cash it has on hand.

Congressional leaders have indicated they may let the problem worsen as a way to prod reluctant legislators to go along with increasing the borrowing authority.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Tuesday he would delay further consideration of the debt bill until next week. An aide said Baker will "wait and see if there is a crisis and how people react to it."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said that when there is a crisis, "we can accomplish things that you can't accomplish a month previously."

The House already has acted to meet a Reagan administration request to raise the debt limit to $1.615 trillion.

However, Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., who was among the majority voting against raising the debt limit, said Tuesday, "There is a growing consensus ... that growing deficits put our whole future at hazard."

Having hit the debt limit, the government has suspended all sales of Savings Bonds and delayed sales of billions of dollars worth of other notes, bills and bonds because the government has no authority to issue them.

Meanwhile, Congress still is grappling with the deficit reduction goals it set for itself.

The Senate Budget Committee was meeting today to piece together a nearly $25 billion package of spending savings and tax increases over three years that was drafted by various Senate committees.

The House last week passed a $10.3 billion package of spending savings, but a measure to raise an estimated $8 billion in taxes over three years is bogged down.

Under the budget adopted in June, three-year spending cuts of $12.3 billion and tax increases of $73 billion were mandated.

Building permits show decline in October

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The Pampa Department of Building Inspection began its fiscal year by issuing 14 building permits for October, only half of the 28 issued last October, according to Shirley Muns, assistant building inspector.

Total value for the buildings is $167,490, down $550,698 from the value of $718,188 for building in October, 1982. The city collected $602.50 in building permit fees last month, compared to $1,990.25 last October.

In September, the city had issued 22 building permit fees, collecting $2,317.75 for the building values of $1,097,655.

Despite the monthly decline, value of building in the city is still ahead of the pace set in 1982. For the calendar year, 290 building permits have been issued with a total value of $13,424,636. This is an increase of $1,565,126 over the $11,859,510 issue for the same period in 1982.

The building permits include one single-family unit, one commercial building, one relocation, six mobile homes, four alterations or additions to dwellings, and one alteration or addition to a commercial building, Ms. Muns reported.

The department issued nine electrical permits with fees of $114.53, compared to 21 permits for $133.65 in October, 1982. In September the department had issued 18 electrical permits with fees of $420.29.

Thirty-nine plumbing permits were issued last month, with fees of $397.18. Last October the city had issued 52 such permits with collected fees of $309.55. In September the department issued 56 plumbing permits for $872.74 in fees.

Total fees collected by the department in October were $1,114.21. In September total fees were $3,850.78, and in October, 1982, $2,593.45 was collected.

The department has issued 214 electrical permits for the calendar year and 438 plumbing permits.

Total fees collected for the calendar year for building permits is $24,319.75. Total for all fees has reached $39,347.53 since Jan. 1, 1983.

Department personnel conducted 49 building inspections, 42 electrical, 98 plumbing and 15 miscellaneous in October, Ms. Muns said, for a total of 204 inspections. This compares with 47 building, 53 electrical, 91 plumbing and 39 miscellaneous for last October. In September the department conducted 87 building, 53 electrical, 103 plumbing and 34 miscellaneous inspections, she reported.

Total inspections for the calendar year are 637 for buildings, 463 for electrical, 910 for plumbing and 285 miscellaneous. This makes a total of 2,295 inspections conducted by the department for the year to date.

No fines were assessed in October. Last October the city collected $270 in fines, with $240 in fines received in September. Total fines for the calendar year to date are $357.

Job hunter

"I've done a little bit of everything," said Billy Brumbalow, 31. "I would really like to get back into farm and ranch management."

Brumbalow is now working on an underground house being constructed north of Pampa, but the house is nearly completed and he has been seeking more permanent work.

He has had experience in all phases of construction of residential homes and in home carpentry work. But he feels he can better handle farm and ranch management. He has managed a farm-ranch of 15 sections near Tulia and a 22-section farm, all irrigated corn, in Colorado.

"I can run just about any kind of farm machinery," he said. He also hauled cattle as a second job for about a year.

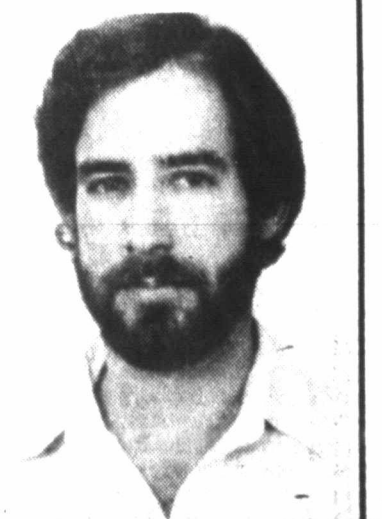

He has worked with cattle and horses and "about every kind of crop you can grow in the Texas Panhandle."

Though his main interest is farm and ranch management, Brumbalow has had a variety of work experience. In addition to home construction, he also had a window manufacturing job in East Texas, where he lived before moving to the Panhandle.

He helped set up "from scratch" a brake applicator manufacturing company in Memphis, Texas. There he served as plant manager and helped establish the operations of the company. He also is experienced "in all kinds of warehouse work."

He has had two years of in-field training in microwave communications and related computer hook-ups, gaining the equivalent of an associate degree.

He has had supervisory positions in several areas since he was 16, supervising as many as 75 people at one time. He worked in an oil field when he first moved to Pampa, employed with Wy-Vel. He also was a policeman for a while in Dallas, going through the training program there.

Other management positions have included a motel in California, an apartment house in Tulia and several fast-food restaurants.

He is married, with two children. His wife recently had a major operation, with all the resultant bills requiring employment to insure their payment.

"I've been doing just about anything I can pick up around here," Brumbalow said. He is looking for permanent full-time work, "but I'd take just about anything."

He lives at 514 Yeager. He can be contacted at 665-4473 or through the Texas Employment Commission, where he is registered.

during the Beaumont trial that began Sept. 7 and ended Sept. 24.

Of the 45 charged in connection with the smuggling conspiracy, five were found guilty during the Beaumont trial and another six, including the younger Price and Purcell, pleaded guilty.

The convictions and guilty pleas "have made a significant dent in shutting off the funnel of drugs into this country," Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Coselli of Beaumont said previously.

According to a two-year investigation by the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, the 45 people charged in the smuggling case, who include Americans, Cubans and Columbians, imported at least 210 tons of marijuana worth $300 million from Columbia to the U.S. during the years 1978 through 1980. The marijuana was brought into this country by boat. The drug organization transported and distributed the Columbian marijuana from the U.S. coasts stretching from Florida to Texas, according to the federal charges.

The five found guilty in Beaumont, David Brydie Mitchell of Atlanta, John Doyle of Silk, Colo., Jose Carlos Prado and Reinaldo Rabiero, both of Miami, and Robert Webster Cary III of Kemah, were convicted of a total of 46 counts of racketeering, conspiracy and smuggling. Judge Parker could sentence the five to as many as 40 years in prison and assess fines up to $50,000.

The single charges to which Price and Purcell pleaded guilty carry a maximum penalty of four years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Graham Purcell now works as a congressional lobbyist in Washington.

Bob Price presently owns and operates a 9,600-acre ranch northwest of Pampa. Price filed for bankruptcy Oct. 4, just hours before the Small Business Administration tried to auction off the ranch to collect delinquent loans Price owes the government agency. Price's bankruptcy action stalled off the foreclosure sale. The former congressman has 120 days from the date of the Chapter 11 filing to show the federal bankruptcy court a plan to repay his many creditors.

Fighting city hall proves bit costly

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A man who patiently waited for 20 minutes to file some paperwork - only to be told he was in the wrong line - responded by smashing a glass door and storming out of a county tax office, deputies said.

No charges were filed against Stanley E. Duncan after he agreed to pay $100 to replace the shattered window at the Bexar County Courthouse, said bailiff Joe Garcia.

"I think he just got mad and he hit the glass too hard," Garcia said. "I think he's got a boxer punch and doesn't know it. He seemed to be very upset."

Tax Assessor-Collector Rudy Garza intervened Tuesday after deputies arrested the bleeding Duncan, and said reimbursement for the window would be enough.

"He was in the wrong line and, besides, his paperwork was not right," Garza said. "I examined it to see what the problem was. He will have to come back another time."

Deputies bandaged Duncan's hand and wrist and he did not require hospital treatment.

He had gone to the tax office to transfer the title of a car, Garza said.

Pampan's nephew killed at sea

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) - The nephew of a Pampa resident was one of the six crewmen killed when a fire swept through a machinery space aboard the aircraft carrier Ranger as it operated in the Arabian Sea Tuesday.

Petty Officer 3rd class Larry Wayne Stommer, 21, of Henderson, Nev., was the nephew of Mrs. Doug Miller of Pampa.

The U.S. Navy has released the names of four of the six crewmen. The names of the other two men are being withheld, pending notification of relatives, said a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet Command.

The other dead were identified as Seaman Recruit Paul Richard Chappell Jr., 20, Crowley, Tex.; Fireman Gregory Wayne Cochran, 27, Washington, W. Va.; Petty Officer 3rd Class Rick Allen Teichert, 25, Calendar, Iowa.

Lebanon's warring factions try to work out their differences

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - Leaders of Lebanon's warring factions debated their country's role in the Arab world today, the third day of reconciliation talks, conference sources said.

The delegates opened the working session with a discussion of the cultural and political heritage of their country, including its "Arab identity."

A conference spokesman announced Tuesday the delegates had agreed to form a committee to submit proposals on defining Lebanon's nature and determining how it fits into the Arab world.

The question of identity for Lebanon, with its diverse religious and cultural communities, goes to the heart of the divisions between Western-oriented Christians and their more Arab-conscious Moslem compatriots.

The differences have caused years of political instability.

On Tuesday, Syria pressured the Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel to renounce a troop withdrawal pact with Israel as a first step toward reconciling Lebanon's warring factions.

Conference sources said Foreign Minister Abdel-Halim Khaddam of Syria denounced the May 17th accord in a morning session and then met Gemayel privately to hammer the point home.

Beirut radio said Gemayel tried to convince Khaddam to concentrate instead on constitutional reforms and the broader issue of removing both Syrian and Palestinian forces from Lebanon.

Purves resigns hospital post

Stephen A. Purves, assistant administrator at Coronado Community Hospital since February, 1982, resigned this week to accept a job in Tennessee.

Purves will begin work in early December as assistant administrator of Park West Hospital at Knoxville, Tenn. He will be in charge of support and clinical departments at the 325-bed facility.

Norman Knox, CCH administrator, said no replacement has been named yet for Purves.

Since moving to Pampa from Roanoke, Va., Purves has been active in Pampa Rotary Club and Toastmasters International. His wife, Mary Ann, a registered nurse, has been working in the CCH emergency room.

"We've enjoyed living in Pampa," Purves said. "I've been most impressed since I came here with the competency of the department heads and administrative staff at the hospital. I certainly predict a bright future for Pampa and for the hospital's ability to keep pace with the growing health needs of Gray County and the surrounding area."

The son of a career military man, Purves graduated from Augsburg American High School at Augsburg, West Germany. He has a bachelor of science degree from Springfield College at Springfield, Mass., and a master of science degree in health care administration from Trinity University at San Antonio.

included a call for the reconciliation conference. The cease-fire was supposed to end three weeks of Druse-Christian fighting in Lebanon's central mountains, but it has been broken repeatedly.

Israel, which has occupied much of southern Lebanon since last year's invasion, has warned the Lebanese government against scapping the withdrawal accord. Syria has rejected the accord because it grants Israel political and security concessions for withdrawing its troops.

Druse leader Walid Jumblatt told reporters he considered the question of Lebanon's identity a major issue.

"Is it (Lebanon) an American base, a Soviet base, an Arab state, and independent state? Up to now, nobody knows," Jumblatt said.

Transwestern to encase the pipeline for some time, however the two have not been able to reach an agreement.

This time Transwestern said the company which submitted the low bid to the county to encase the pipeline under the runway extension is not qualified. Under a previous agreement with the county, Transwestern had the right to accept or reject the low bidder's qualifications, and if it rejected the low bidder's qualifications, Transwestern has the right to do the job itself for the low bid amount.

On Oct. 14, the commissioners' court awarded a $62,584 contract to Carlson and Craddock Construction Company for encasing Transwestern's pipeline. The contract met the specifications as set down by Transwestern.

A pre-construction conference between representatives of the FAA, Transwestern and the county is scheduled for 9:30 Thursday morning at Perry Lefors Field.

"We need to sit down face to face" with the people from Transwestern who are directly involved with the project, Judge Kennedy said. He said he hoped the difficulties could be resolved at the conference Thursday.

Steve Vaughn presented the emergency management plan to the commissioners, saying all the plan does is outline the duties and responsibilities of each elected official in the case of an emergency, such as a tornado.

Vaughn said a two channel scanner is going to be made available to the hospital, nursing homes, schools, day care centers, so during tornado season and other such times of emergency, these places will be more immediately aware of impending danger and can react accordingly.

A copy of the Emergency Management Plan can be seen in the County Clerk's office and the City Secretary's office.

Joe Slater of the Texas Jail Standards Commission, gave the Gray County Jail a clean bill of health. He said the jail is "back in compliance," with state regulations. However, he added, if the population of the jail increases, the jail could fall back out of compliance.

Commissioner Ted Simmons said, "We are beginning to realize we have to look to the future."

The jail is only 53 years old and solidly built, according to Sheriff Rufe Jordan, who also said prisoners don't easily escape from his jail.

House not expected to remove Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) - After a narrow victory for his plans to build the MX "Peacekeeper" missile, President Reagan is expected to survive a determined House challenge to his authority to keep the U.S. Marine peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

Despite rising concern over the safety of the Marines, a head count by the Democratic House leadership showed "a lot of votes to spare" to defeat a move to cut off funds for the troops after March 1, a Democratic congressman said.

Although it was expected the Lebanon measure would be rejected, lawmakers said the Marines' presence in Lebanon might not be endorsed as strongly as in September. Then the House passed by a 253-156 margin a resolution authorizing the Marines to stay at their posts for up to 18 months. The mood of Congress has stiffened since the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing which killed at least 230 U.S. servicemen.

The vote scheduled today came as the House completed action on a $247 billion defense spending bill with $2.1 billion for production of the first 21 MX

Weather focus

By The Associated Press
 Much of the state was foggy early today because of moisture from the Gulf of Mexico streaming northward, and travelers advisories were issued in parts of East and South Texas because of low visibility.

Skies were expected to be partly to mostly cloudy across the state, except for some showers southeast later today.

The National Weather Service said the fog dropped visibility to under five miles in much of South, South Central and East Texas. The travelers advisories were issued in areas of Southeast, extreme South and Northeast Texas, where visibility was almost zero.

Partly cloudy skies were the rule elsewhere, except for some areas of the lower Rio Grande Valley and the Edwards Plateau, where skies were clear.

Predawn temperatures ranged from the upper 50s over the Trans Pecos and the Panhandle to the low 70s over the coastal plains. The 4 a.m. extremes were recorded at El Paso, with 57 degrees, and at Galveston, which had a 73.

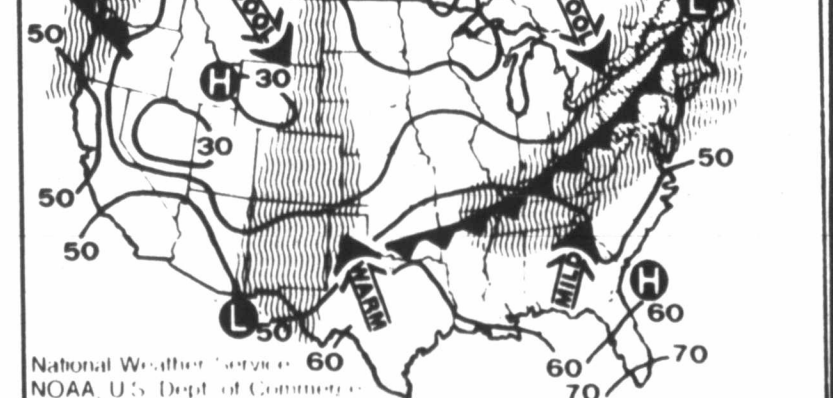

Forecasters called for mostly cloudy skies across West Texas with partly cloudy conditions elsewhere. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected across Southeast Texas and along the upper coast. The highs will range from the low 70s to the mid-80s.

REGIONAL FORECASTS
 North Texas - Areas of dense fog this morning eastern third will at times reduce visibilities to near zero causing hazardous driving conditions. Otherwise partly cloudy today with highs in the upper 70s to low 80s. Partly cloudy tonight with lows in the upper 50s to mid-60s. Cloudy west Thursday with a chance of thundershowers and partly cloudy east. Highs in the upper 70s to lower 80s.

South Texas - Widely scattered thundershowers southeast and upper coast today. Becoming cloudy late tonight through Thursday with scattered thundershowers Thursday, more numerous north and west. Not as warm north Thursday. Highs today mostly 80s except upper 70s southeast. Lows tonight mostly 60s except 70s extreme south. Highs Thursday 70s north to 80s south.

West Texas - Mostly cloudy through Thursday. Scattered showers or thundershowers tonight through Thursday. Turning cooler north tonight and most areas Thursday. Highs today 70s mountains and north to mid-80s Big Bend. Lows tonight mid-40s Panhandle to near 60 southeast. Highs Thursday low 60s north to near 80 extreme south.

East Texas - Cloudy becoming partly cloudy today. High in the low 80s. Partly cloudy tonight. Low in near 60. Partly cloudy Thursday with a 20 percent chance of thundershowers. High in the low 80s.

Lower Texas Coast - Southeast winds 15 to 20 knots today, tonight and Thursday. Seas 4 to 6 feet today, increasing to 5 to 7 feet tonight. Isolated thundershowers.

BORDER STATES
 Oklahoma - Considerable cloudiness today through Thursday. Widely scattered showers mainly east today. Scattered thundershowers west tonight and central and west Thursday. Continued mild. Highs today and Thursday in the 70s. Lows tonight around 50 Panhandle to upper 60s southeast.

New Mexico - Areas of fog and low clouds southeast this morning. Otherwise, partly cloudy statewide today with widely scattered thundershowers west. Highs 60s mountains and northwest, 70s and low 80s elsewhere. Variable clouds tonight with widely scattered showers and thundershowers. Lows 25 to 40 mountains, 40s to mid-50s elsewhere. Scattered showers and thundershowers Thursday, most numerous east. Cooler Thursday with highs 50 to 65 mountains, 60s to low 70s east and north, 70s southwest.

Texas Baptists to elect new president

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas is in danger of losing some of its schools or hospitals if it does not regain an awareness of its religious heritage, the organization's outgoing leader says.

The Rev. D.L. Lowrie, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lubbock, warned 2,500 convention delegates Tuesday that there is "something destructive" in the state organization.

Lowrie is ending his second one-year term as convention president, the maximum allowed. Delegates were expected to elect a new president today.

Possible successors include Dr. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has served on many Baptist boards and commissions, and the Rev. Morris Chapman, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls.

Moore is a mainstream conservative Baptist considered more theologically and politically moderate than Chapman, who has advocated a constitutional amendment to restore prayer to public schools.

In remarks to the opening session of the convention, Lowrie urged Texas Baptists to plot greater spiritual, financial and human support into the convention's institutions, which he said have been criticized too often and praised not often enough.

"Over these four years that you have allowed me to fill a place of leadership in this great denomination, I have sensed something destructive," he said. "Some of our institutional leaders feel like they are under a constant state of siege. They are in danger of developing a defensive mind set toward this convention."

"Some members of this convention have forgotten how to do everything except be a critic," he said.

Lowrie blamed the heads of Texas Baptist institutions for some of the rift.

"Some administrators, because of their loyalty to their institutions, may tend to forget this vital relationship between the institution and the convention," he said. "They may be tempted to label every critic an enemy."

The BGCT owns eight hospitals, four children's homes and eight universities in Texas, including Baylor in Waco and Houston Baptist.

Lowrie also referred to a remark made last year by the Rev. Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church of Dallas. Criswell warned that Baptist universities in the South were in danger of being taken over by "liberals" and pulling out of the Southern Baptist Convention.

"Some of his conclusions may be debatable, but his basic thesis is not debatable," said Lowrie. "The tendency is for denominations to lose their institutions as they get older."

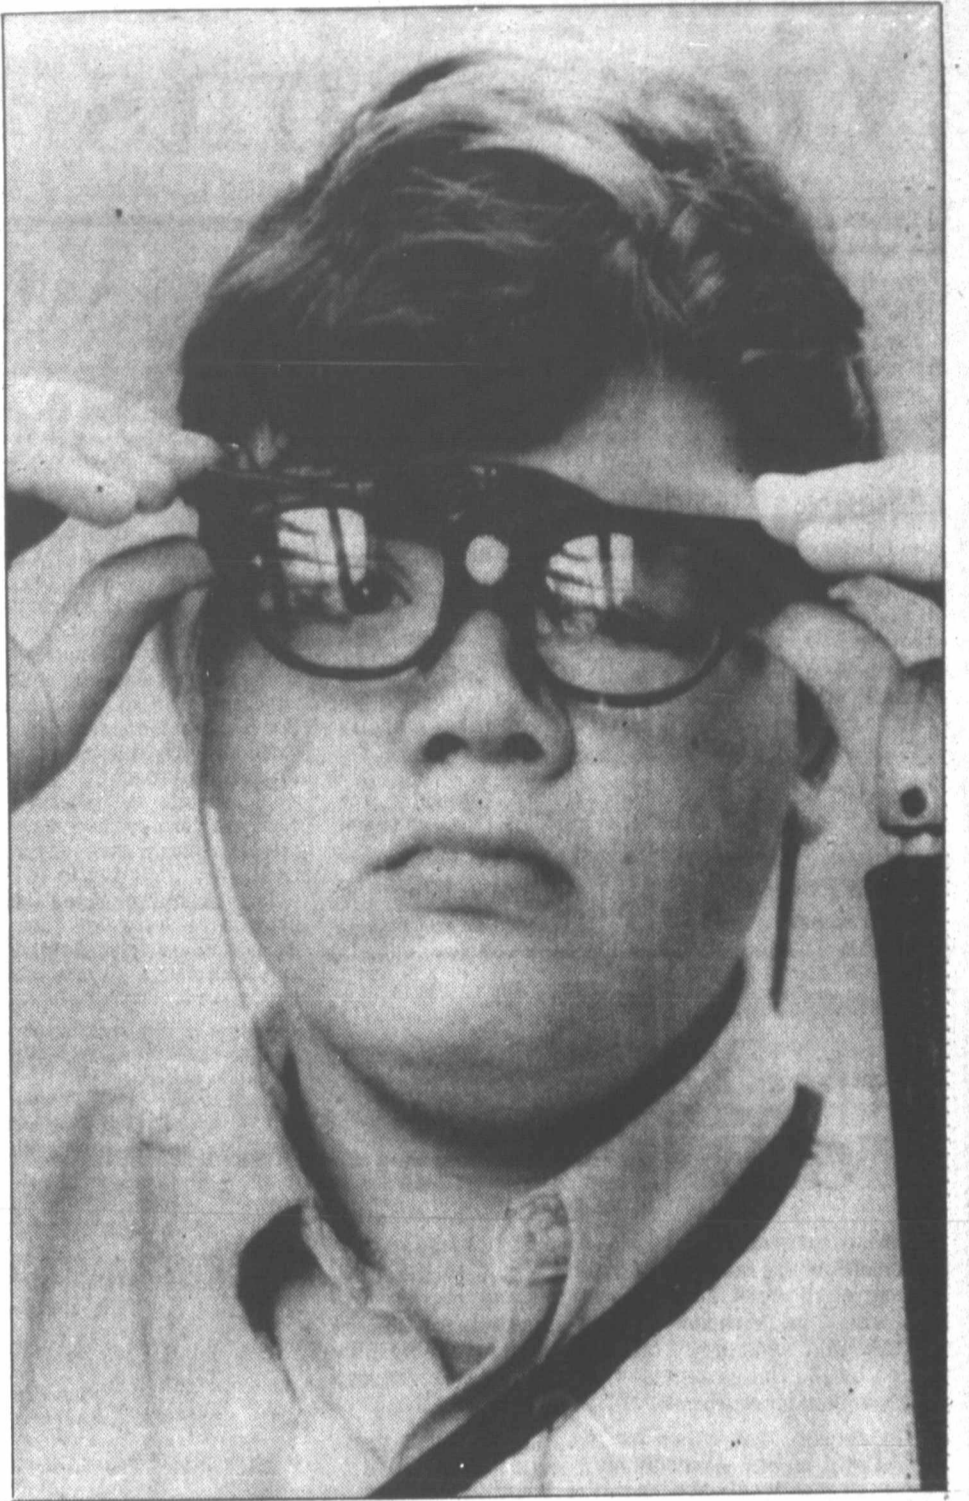

William M. Pinson Jr., convention executive director, said in other remarks that Baptists need to build hundreds of new churches to serve Texans' needs.

"We need churches for all people," he said. "We need churches in all places — churches in the inner city, churches in the suburbs, in the open country, in recreational areas, in apartment houses, trailer courts, storefronts."

Pinson said some 7 million Texans are not active members of any church.

Other business in the convention at the Amarillo Convention Center, which ends Thursday, includes expanding missions and a $53.7 million budget.

The state convention has a long-range goal of more than 2,000 new churches and missions in Texas by 1990, said Dr. Wayne Allen of the First Baptist Church of Carrollton, head of the long-range planning committee.

Baptists will build hospitality house at prison

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Texas Baptist Men, a group within the Baptist General Convention of Texas, has approved the building of the first hospitality house in the state for the use of prison inmates' families.

The 35- to 50-bed project would be built near the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit in Huntsville at a cost of $75,000. The donation was proposed by former Cleveland Browns football player Bill Glass, vice president of prison ministries, who has been active in liaison with Texas prisons.

The house would provide low-cost overnight lodging for visiting families of the 37,000 prison inmates in that area, said executive board members of Texas Baptist Men, who unanimously approved the donation.

The project approval Monday preceded the Baptist General Convention here this week.

"There may be no greater sociological need of these inmates than to have visits from their loved ones," Glass told the group.

He said one inmate told him during a prison visit that his wife had never missed a week of visiting. But another inmate said he had not had a visit in 15 years, Glass said, and a third asked for a hug because he had not had one in 20 years behind bars.

"If we're going to help the crime situation in this country, we'd better get to the prisons, because that's where the criminals are... The only hope is that these people can have a born-again experience in their lives and be transformed," Glass said.

"We think we can win many inmates' families to the Lord and that is very pivotal to the inmates' rehabilitation," he said.

The Huntsville house will be built on land donated by the local Baptist association, operated jointly by the Evergreen Baptist Association and Texas Baptist Men, and staffed by evangelistic teams.

It will be built by volunteers led by Olan Miles and his team of mission action retirees, who hope to finish construction in just one day. Glass said Texas Attorney Gen. Jim Mattox, a former Baptist Royal Ambassador, has agreed to help the volunteer construction crew.

The building will have two wings with 40 to 50 beds placed about four to a room, and will also have a common area and a kitchen where visitors can prepare meals. Guests will be charged $3 dollars a night to help maintain the facility.

The facility will be modeled after one in Jefferson City, Mo., believed to be the only other one like it in the nation, and Missouri sponsors will help the Texas group with its plans.

Texas sues Block over drought aid feed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has named U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block as defendant in a federal court suit aimed at getting emergency feed supplies for drought-stricken livestock in 27 West Texas counties.

Attorney General Jim Mattox and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told a Capitol news conference the suit was filed Tuesday morning in a Midland federal court.

Mattox said he hoped U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton would hold a hearing on the requested court order before the end of the month.

"Ranchers throughout West Texas will watch their cattle die unless some relief is given them," Mattox said. "This inhumane attitude of Mr. Block makes absolutely no sense at all. He has the authority right now to release this grain — grain that is being hoarded by the federal government for no good reason — but he claims he wants to wait for the passage of federal legislation."

The suit claims between 15 million to 17 million bushels of federally-owned grain is deteriorating while in storage at several facilities in Texas. "At the same time the grain is in storage — at a cost to taxpayers of approximately $5 million a year — Texas ranchers and farmers are suffering from the worst drought in decades," the petition said.

"Frankly, it's ridiculous that the situation should reach the point where, to fulfill our obligations to serve the people of Texas, we have to file a lawsuit to make the federal government fulfill its obligation to serve the people," Hightower said. "We've now been working on getting some drought relief for our farmers and ranchers since June 21. That's 134 days — nearly 4½ months."

Mattox told the news conference he has asked the Midland court "to rule on whether Mr. Block's attitude is reasonable. I submit to you that the court will find the federal government has entrenched itself in a position that is totally indefensible."

Mattox said the state seeks a court order requiring the federal government to implement the Emergency Feed Program and the federal Livestock Feed Program and to make the benefits available to eligible farmers and ranchers in 27 West Texas counties.

"I'm fed up with this charade," Hightower told the news conference. "Not only does Secretary Block have the authority to release the corn, he has it under seven separate provisions of federal law. It's a sad day when farmers and ranchers have to turn to lawyers for help rather than to their secretary of agriculture, but that's what we've been forced to do in this case."

Lubbock begins computing TI firings impact

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Consumers looking for bargains scrambled today to snatch up the remaining Texas Instruments home computers on store shelves, as company employees worried about TI's move to eliminate 1,000 jobs at its plant here.

"Everyone in the financial community is concerned whenever a portion of our work force is put on furlough or laid off," said Jim Cummings, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Lubbock.

"Every payroll dollar turns seven times in the community so that definitely will have an impact," he said.

Beginning today, workers fired from the home computer assembly plant have three days of scheduled sessions with the Texas Employment Commission, said TEC office manager Velma Burkham.

The workers will receive interviews in alphabetical order, she said.

The employment official said the job market in this West Texas city of 174,000 was tight before the firings were announced Monday.

"There is not anything available in manufacturing that I know of," Ms. Burkham said. "It's going to be very competitive."

Texas Instruments officials announced on Friday that they were getting out of the home computer business, which they claimed was primarily responsible for a second consecutive quarterly loss of more than $10 million.

The company is uncertain when or if more layoffs could occur, said TI spokesman Norman Neureiter. But the consumer division headquarters would stay in Lubbock, the company said in a statement.

TI's Lubbock plant once operated 24 hours a day, producing the Dallas-based electronics giant's popular 99-4A home computer. An estimated 4,000 people were employed at that time.

Several hundred more employees work in the home computer area at Abilene.

Industry observers predicted an exodus of workers from Lubbock. Realtor Nita Kiesling said the move would have a devastating impact on the local real estate market.

"It's going to become a buyers' market because there will be so many things to choose from," said Ms. Kiesling. "Some of our sellers are getting very competitive in order to enhance their chances of selling in this kind of situation."

But Cummings said he had confidence that TI's consumer electronics division would rebound.

Fire officials dropping case against hotel employees

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fire officials say no further charges will be filed against employees of a motel where a five-alarm fire last summer killed five people after stacks of rolled carpeting ignited.

Deputy Fire Chief Don Peacock announced the department's decision after a half-hour meeting Tuesday with city prosecutors. A decision on whether to seek charges against the motel's owner was still pending, however, fire officials said.

Five guests died and 34 others were injured in the June 14 blaze at the Ramada Inn Central on Fort Worth's east side.

The motel's general manager, Eugene F. Slape, was acquitted in municipal court of a charge that he blocked an exit in the wing of the motel destroyed by the fire. But Peacock said that, despite the jury's decision, department officials believe they charged "the right person" when they issued the citation against Slape.

Slape's attorneys argued in the trial that Slape acted on orders from motel owner Ernest Barker of Mount Carmel, Ill. Slape testified that Barker personally ordered him to stack the carpeting in the hallway exit.

Jurors who commented after the trial said they believed that Slape was acting on orders and shouldn't be penalized.

The rolls of carpeting and padding were awaiting installation in guest rooms. Fire officials said they determined that the fire started in the carpeting, but did not determine how the blaze began.

Many motel guests said they were unaware of the early morning fire until they were awakened by honking car horns and the sound of breaking glass. The motel was built before a city ordinance requiring fire alarms in guest rooms went into effect.

Municipal prosecutor Terry Diveley, who met with Peacock and Assistant Fire Marshal Chester Robinson Tuesday afternoon, said he left the decision of filing charges against Barker up to Peacock and Robinson.

Diveley declined to specify what was discussed during the meeting.

Judge orders cable firm to wire home in remote area

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — In a decision that lawyers said is a legal first, a state district judge has ordered an Abilene cable television company to spend an estimated $57,000 to run a line to a single home in a remote section of the city.

Attorney Jack Bryant sued United Cable Television of Abilene in 1981 because the company would not wire his neighborhood even though it is within the city limits.

State District Judge Billy John Edwards ruled that under the company's 1984 franchise agreement, it must provide "prompt and reasonable service" to any resident of Abilene upon request.

Attorneys for the cable company said the ruling was unfair and might cause rates for all Abilene cable subscribers to go up. They contended that "reasonable" also includes a "reasonable expectation of a profit" for the cable company.

Bryant, who represented himself in the case, said the decision could also benefit about 400 of his neighbors in the Lake Fort Phantom Hill section of the city and other Texas residents in similar situations.

Bryant and attorney Glenn Heatherly, who represented UCTV, both said they found no legal precedent for the decision.

"We broke some new ground here today," Bryant said after Edwards ordered the cable company to run a line to his home, which cable company officials estimated would cost $57,000.

Heatherly said it got a "terribly dangerous precedent" to require UCTV to run a cable out to one home because it would invite a mountain of litigation.

"Whether it sets a dangerous precedent or not, I don't know," said Edwards. "But the cable company agreed to offer this service to all citizens and they haven't. I'm going to require that they live up to the agreement."

Edwards gave the company six months to comply with his order.

After the verdict, Barry

Wilson of Denver, vice president for operations for United Cable's parent corporation, said furnishing the cable service to Bryant "is going to be pouring money down a rathole; it is not economically feasible. It is not a fair way to run a cable company."

Wilson testified during the trial that if Bryant won the case, it could lead to a rate increase for the other 28,300 cable subscribers in Abilene.

The anticipated rate of annual return would be minus 8.2 percent if cable were installed in the Fort Phantom area, Wilson said. He said an 18 to 20 percent return is standard for the industry.

Heatherly contended that Bryant should have petitioned the city council for the service instead of filing a lawsuit.

"If the city council says for us to go, the cable company would be happy to go out there, but then we're going to bring in the books ... to determine how much will have to be subsidized to make a fair return," Heatherly said in his final arguments.

Heatherly said he would confer with his clients before deciding if the verdict will be appealed.

"It's been 18 years in coming," said Bryant.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Press restrictions in Grenada mistake

The Reagan administration's decision to ban press coverage of the invasion of Grenada and to not allow unrestricted press access to the island in the days following the invasion was a gigantic mistake—a mistake that could play a large role in determining if the action by the United States is ultimately perceived as a political blunder or a heroic action.

The decision was wrong for two reasons. First, press censorship of any government activity, in addition to being wrong, is always counterproductive because it raises public suspicion by creating the impression that government is trying to hide something.

Second, the national television networks, which attempt to discredit any actions taken by President Reagan anyway, will unsheath their knives with even more vigor than in the past and try to convince the American public that the invasion was nothing more than an illegal action by a trigger-happy president. You can bet on that.

Concerning that first reason, for example, the Grenadian ambassador to the United States has already charged that those arms caches the government says it discovered on the island were planted there by U.S. troops, themselves. Nobody takes that charge very seriously, but if the American press had been on the island when they were discovered, the ambassador would not have even dared to make that charge.

Unrestricted coverage of the invasion and subsequent activities would have also provided more credible answers to other lingering questions if those answers came from a supposedly unbiased press rather than an administration that has a vested interest in making itself look good. The American public would have had the information necessary to quickly decide for itself if the medical school students were really in danger, if the Grenadian people really wanted the United States to cast out its government and if the Cuban and Soviet presence on the island really constituted a serious threat to the United States.

In fact, unrestricted press coverage would have also removed from Congress the excuse to go on a "fact-finding" trip to Grenada and saved American taxpayers the cost of a totally useless excursion. The only "facts" members of Congress will find are the facts they want to find.

On the other side of the coin, you can be assured that Dan Rather and his colleagues from the other networks will do whatever they can to discredit the motives of the administration in the days ahead. If they can find a single Grenadian willing to call the American invasion an unwarranted attack on the freedom of the people of the island to determine their own fate, he will be given the opportunity to say so on national television.

If there is one student who will say Americans on the island were in no danger, he will also be paraded before the network cameras.

And, if there is a military man anywhere who thinks the administration has overstated the threat from the Cuban and Soviet presence on the island, he will become the star of the 5:30 news.

Press censorship by government in a free society always backfires. But that is a lesson conservatives seem to have a great deal of difficulty learning.

Stopping government competition

Government procurement from federal sources is getting to be a problem. Government competition with private, taxpaying firms is much more extensive than most Americans realize.

One member of Congress who is aware that government competition is at an unacceptably high level is U.S. Sen. Warren B. Rudman of New Hampshire. Sen. Rudman has introduced the "Freedom From Government Competition Act" which would require the federal government to purchase most goods and services from the private sector rather than producing them itself.

Sen. Rudman acted because of the growing government role in producing goods and services. He noted that in 1967 approximately 60 percent of the commercial goods and services required by the government were procured from the private sector. By 1981, that percentage had fallen to 40 percent.

The senator argues that numerous studies show that private firms can produce the commercial goods and services at lower cost and that procurement from private sources could save the taxpayers up to $1 billion annually.

The senator recognizes that there may be special situations where procurement from government sources is necessary, but it should not be standard operating procedure for the federal government. There are few goods and services that can't be obtained from the private sector.

As the senate explained it, "Procurement from the private sector represents the least possible distortion of the economy, stimulates private investment, creates jobs, and generates tax revenue." He holds that "we owe it to the citizens of the country to adopt this as stated national policy."

For years, there have been those in government who wanted to get government into a variety of economic activities. The entire public power apparatus created in the 1930s was designed to displace investor-owned utilities. Public power entities, such as TVA, were supposed to function as "yardsticks." They have been anything but that. Despite decades of subsidization, their rates are high.

For years, the federal government has been in the shipyard business, overhauling and building warships. It is well known that the government shipyards are far less capable than the privately operated shipyards. The government finds it very difficult to impose work discipline or establish efficiency in government shipyards.

A few years ago, in the midst of the energy crisis, the late Sen. Henry Jackson and other legislators wanted the federal government to get into exploration and drilling for oil. Fortunately for the country, the federal government wasn't allowed to create any oil companies of its own. The cost to the taxpayers would have been staggering.

Sen. Rudman's bill is aimed at equipment upkeep, facility support, and data processing. But it has wider implications. Down the road, liberal politicians undoubtedly will insist upon new government ventures in competition with taxpaying businesses. Now is a good time to pass a law to prevent that kind of subsidized competition.

Legacy

In this feature we excerpt material that has appeared on The Pampa News's editorial pages in previous years, whether from the editorials, the column written for many years by former editor and publisher R.C. Hollies.

You may make, buy, rent, borrow or receive as a gift. But you may not steal and retain at the same time either the respect and trust of others, or your own self-respect. Stealing is wrong. It is the basic crime. In a sense, there is no other crime at all.

Murder is nothing more than the theft of a life that is not yours.

All physically violent crimes consist of taking a privilege which is not granted voluntarily by the victim.

What this generation fails to understand is that there are certain rights that belong to the individual that are over and above the government.

It is largely because we have not realized that people must be equally free, that individuals have rights over and above the government, that we have had before the war the worst and longest depression in our history. The cause of our trouble was that we passed laws that interfere with the natural right of men to trade with each other without interference from the state. Besides, we have failed to have the state protect these rights there are over and above the state.

Making Fritz look good not easy

The Mondale people are going ga-ga trying to figure out how to counteract all the publicity John Glenn is getting from the film "The Right Stuff." The movie hype has made Glenn a far more serious candidate than he was before, and Mondale's headquarters is running scared.

"What we need," said one of Mondale's top advisers, "is our own film with Mondale as a hero. We could call it 'The Real Thing.'"

"The title's fine but what about a story line? Fritz never orbited into space."

"He flew in Air Force One when he was vice president."

"I'm not sure most people would consider that as risky as being an astronaut."

"But we could make it into a dramatic story. No one has ever done the thrilling saga of what goes into becoming a vice president of the U.S. We could show how they're chosen after rigorous testing, and how they're trained to handle one of the most important missions in the country."

"Yeah, so what role does Fritz play?"

"He's the serious one who rides herd on the other vice presidential candidates, who are always horsing around and getting into trouble with their superiors and sometimes their wives. Fritz is a true-blue straight arrow, because he knows how much is riding on the vice presidential program."

"You really think people will pay money to see that?"

"It all depends on the way it's done. This has to be a human story and what makes it human are the vice presidential candidates' wives who have to support them, not showing fear and trepidation whenever their men are sent on a training mission to raise a million dollars for the party."

"Joan will be the heroine of our story. We'll show her trying to keep busy, ignoring the thought that at the very moment she and her children are watching him on television, her husband has his hand on the throttle which will open a new federal dam in New Mexico."

"Don't forget the press, and the role they played in making our vice presidents America's heroes."

"It will be in the script. We'll show an ordinary guy from the wheat fields of Minnesota being thrust into the limelight by a hungry, voracious media. We'll depict the invasion of his private life, and how he and Joan were able to handle it. We'll have a scene in which Fritz chews out all the other Democratic vice presidential candidates because they're partying and living it up, and not taking their roles seriously."

"We don't want Fritz to look too much like a boy scout."

"Why not? The American people always believed their vice presidents were boy scouts. 'The Real Thing' will portray Mondale as the most serious and the most qualified of all those who ever had the office."

"Yeah, that's all well and good. But what about drama? How do we match a guy going into orbit from the top of a rocket?"

"The drama comes when President Jimmy Carter chooses Fritz over all the other members of his staff, and decides he will be the first American ever to attend the inauguration of a new chief of state of Sierra Leone."

"So?"

"Fritz, cramped in Air Force One, sits waiting for the air controller's countdown. We cut to Joan nervously biting her nails. All systems are gone and suddenly the 707 is streaking down the runway. The world, with bated breath, is waiting as it wings across the Atlantic Ocean. One of the engines starts giving trouble, and President Carter calls Mondale and asks him if he wants to abort the mission. But Fritz knows if he fails, the vice presidential program will be set back for years. He says he'll keep going. Finally, with barely enough fuel to make it, Air Force One sees the Sierra Leone runway and makes a perfect landing."

"When Fritz gets back to the U.S., he gets a ticker tape parade down Broadway. He has proven to America and the world he has 'The Real Thing.'"

"It sounds good to me. Does anyone know somebody in Hollywood who will make it?"

"Everybody will want to make it. How many pictures about former vice presidents have they produced in the last 10 years?"

MIB protects its information

WESTWOOD, Mass. (NEA) - Housed in a nondescript building in this Boston suburb is a computerized data bank that contains extraordinarily sensitive information about the physical and mental health of millions of people.

In many cases, the files identify individuals with high blood pressure or other relatively common maladies. In other instances, however, the data relates to very delicate and highly personal matters ranging from a diagnosis of terminal cancer to a history of mental instability.

That's information most people would want disclosed only to their immediate family and closest friends - and the organization entrusted with the data does a superb job of maintaining its confidentiality.

Its corporate name is MIB, Inc., but it is better known as the Medical Information Bureau - a clearinghouse for almost 800 participating life insurance companies that pay approximately $12 million yearly for its services.

Life insurance companies often ask prospective policyholders to submit to a routine medical or to authorize the release of medical information from their doctors' otherwise confidential files.

Much of that data is routinely transmitted to MIB so that, for example, a person whose life insurance application is rejected by one company for valid medical reasons cannot suppress that data when applying to another company.

At its headquarters in an industrial park here, MIB is the custodian of such data on almost 13 million U.S. and Canadian citizens. Approximately 2.5 million new medical reports on individuals are received every year and the organization responds to about 22 million inquiries submitted annually by participating insurance companies.

MIB traditionally has been sensitive to the problem of unauthorized disclosure of that information. Thus, the almost 200 impairments with which it deals with are recorded in a code (three digits followed by as many as five letters) that is carefully kept secret from most of its 240 employees.

The organization today is a model of integrity in other aspects of its operation, but it has attained that status only after a decade of investigation and examination on the part of federal agencies, congressional committees and non-government consumer advocates.

As recently as 1973, the insurance industry sought to conceal even the fact that MIB existed, prompting Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to describe it as the "medical CIA."

Its files contained not only legitimate medical data, but also confirmed observations from neighbors and co-workers who offered conjecture such as, "He seems to have high blood pressure" or, "I think she once had cancer."

Moreover, MIB maintained reporting classification that related not to individuals' health, but instead to their lifestyles. Its data bank contained information on alleged drinking habits, sexual deviation, financial problems and assorted other forms of "social maladjustment."

Finally, individuals who insisted on reviewing the information about themselves contained in MIB's files had to locate an organization that purposely wasn't listed in the telephone directory, submit a notarized request for the data and sign a document immunizing MIB from virtually all lawsuits based on claims of invasion of privacy.

The passage of several federal laws - notably the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1970 and the Privacy Act of 1974 - as well as investigations conducted by congressional committees and the Federal Trade Commission, have encouraged MIB to adopt a comprehensive set of reforms.

Every person who applies for life insurance now is routinely informed of MIB's procedures.

Grenada scenery and the signs of war

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Caribbean News Editor Dan Sewell was one of the few American reporters to visit Grenada and write about its mounting turmoil before the military coup and U.S. invasion. He spent a week on the island in July, and was one of the first reporters to return last week. This is his impression now.

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The first glimpse of this lush little island from high in the sky is like seeing a jewel, an emerald set off by the brilliant blue of the Caribbean. It's an unlikely setting for bloody war.

The military plane lands hard on the 9,000-foot

Cuban-built runway, eight miles south of the capital. The asphalt stretches for nearly two miles, according to some, so jumbo jets crammed with money-waving tourists can land there. Others say it is that long to accommodate big transport planes bringing weapons from Cuba.

When the airplane doors pop open, heat rushes in. Temperatures are in the 90s, the sun is intense and the humidity is high. But this airstrip is on Point Salines, once one of the most beautiful beaches in the Caribbean, and occasionally a waft of cool sea air brings a moment of relief.

Men in fatigues point the way toward waiting trucks or vans, past the reinforced-concrete shell of what was to have been a terminal building. (People on Grenada seem to think the Americans will finish the terminal, but there's no official word on that.)

All around the tarmac are more soldiers, most of them busy, a few standing idly. A Cuban-made truck captured in the Oct. 25 invasion by U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers rolls by with a grinning GI at the wheel.

The ride into St. George's, the capital, is even bumpier than the landing. The potholed road winds past a crushed armored personnel carrier. Three Cubans were found dead inside, and then the wreckage was simply shoved to the side of the road into the banana trees.

Outside town, much of the refurbishing the government did before reopening the Grenada Beach Hotel in August has been wiped out by bombs. Rolled barbed wire blocks the entrance to the Ross Point Inn, probably the best restaurant on the island. Top U.S. officials have claimed it as sort of a makeshift American Embassy.

In St. George's, the first look at the small harbor — the "carenage" it is called — can be breathtaking. The dark green hills, dotted with pastel-painted Georgian-style homes, seem to plunge right into the double-horseshoe Caribbean basin where small boats bob on the soft waves.

Ten boys wearing shorts, laugh and yell and take turns leaping from a concrete wall into the warm, translucent water, seeing who can make the biggest splash.

A young man eyes American soldiers going home to house looking for weapons. "Hey, man, they're doing good things," he says.

"This has been really good for our young people," says Genty Jacobs, a hotel owner whose nephew is Grenada's ambassador to the Soviet Union. "With all the propaganda they thought America was all white colonialists. It was good for them to see all these black Marines and let me tell you if they ever let these Marines on the loose on this island a lot of our girls would be very happy."

Indeed, a few blocks away a gaggle of teen-age girls stare and giggle and whisper at a group of young Marines. True heroes, they act like they don't notice the girls. One of them asks how the Steelers did last weekend.

At Fort Rupert, the Grenada army headquarters where Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and his closest followers were executed Oct. 19, a soldier from Barbados offers a tour.

In the courtyard, a bullet-deflated basketball lies under a hoop.

Hustler publisher arrested, swears at judge, released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hustler magazine's publisher, promoting himself in a "Larry Flynt for President" T-shirt, cursed at a judge who ordered his arrest for failing to hand over a tape connected with John De Lorean's drug trial — but avoided a contempt citation.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi released the paraplegic Flynt after the publisher apologized for his outburst Tuesday.

Flynt, who was delivered to the courtroom by a platoon of federal marshals who arrested him at his heavily guarded Bel-Air mansion, had said he feared for his life if he went out.

He had threatened to shoot anyone who tried to serve a contempt warrant, but he offered no resistance and told 100 assembled reporters and photographers that his threat was "a publicity gimmick."

"If anyone is going to put a bullet in me, I want the whole world to be watching," said Flynt, 40, who has been confined to a gold-plated wheelchair since a 1978 assassination attempt in Georgia.

Takasugi had found Flynt in contempt for failing to appear in court with a barely audible tape recording which allegedly shows a government informant, James Timothy Hoffman, 42, threatening De Lorean if he refused to go through with a drug deal. The 58-year-old former automaker faces federal charges that he conspired to distribute $24 million in cocaine, part of an FBI "sting" operation.

"Mr. Flynt does not have the tape referred to in the subpoena," attorney Alan Isaacman told Takasugi. "We are reluctant to put him on the stand and have him answer questions for fear he may waive his Fifth Amendment privileges ... we feel he does not have to answer questions."

At one point in Tuesday's bizarre proceeding, Flynt loudly fired his three lawyers and said, "I'm my own attorney now. I have the right to defend myself." He later changed his mind.

When the judge sought assurances that Flynt would appear in court again if released, Flynt shouted, "Please, I'm begging you, Your Honor. If you're so interested in justice, let me talk." His comments were punctuated by obscenities and a blunt sexual epithet.

Explosions ignite cargo on barges

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — Firefighters were keeping watch over a blaze that started when explosions ignited the contents of two petrochemical barges at a manufacturing company's docks on an artery of the Intercoastal Waterway.

No injuries were reported in the fire or explosions, which occurred at about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, rattling windows as far as 20 miles away and producing billowing black clouds of smoke. Authorities said area residents were not threatened by the fire on the Victoria Barge Canal. The cause of the explosions was undetermined.

The fire blazed through the night, but firefighters said they expected it to go out today.

Officials of Vistron Chemical Corp. said the barges were less than 10 percent full at the time of the explosion.

Recovery vs. expansion

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It is true the U.S. economy is recovering. You hear it from the economists and you hear it from the president. And you probably feel it in your pocketbook too.

But some observers — including Continental Bank and Citicorp — warn of a possible burn-out.

But one of the best analyses is from John Wright of Wright Investors' Service and chairman of the Committee on Developing American Capitalism. Amid what he calls a series of monetary policy blunders, he remains an optimist about America.

"American workers, business management and free-enterprise capitalism are as full of energy, as efficient and as innovative as ever and have not lost their ability to lead the world," he says, but adds: "... given the opportunity and freedom from governmental restrictions and impediments."

Then he reminds us of "a series of unfavorable developments which continue to weaken our basic situation."

First, he said, the recovery isn't warm enough to talk about because the recovery phase has not been completed and the country is not entering an economic expansion.

In fact, he says, the gross national product is still at 5 percent or $172 billion a year below where it would have been had there been no recession of 1981-1983.

At the bottom of the recession last November, U.S. industry was operating at about 69 percent of capacity vs. a postwar average norm of about 85 percent. Now it is at 78 percent.

Next, the problem with interest rates, which he said are "still in a double-digit range which for centuries has been regarded as usurious by civilized society, rates which simply cannot be supported by the normal earnings of capital."

Thus, he argues, "the current growth of productive capacity is far below normal and is grossly inadequate for the nation's needs despite all of the tax incentives which have already been enacted."

The high rates have so stagnated production, he says, that it is unlikely the economy can adequately meet the nation's needs in regard to full employment, national defense and consumption requirements.

The underdeveloped world remains a problem. "There will not and cannot be any lasting solution to the financial bankruptcy and social turmoil of the underdeveloped world while interest rates are so high," he says. Those rates, he said, make debt service impossible for underdeveloped nations.

And he calls world trade "a maze of blind alleys and inequities," preventing "the free, international flow of goods and services at real competitive values." New rules must be drawn, he said.

The energy problem has not been resolved: "The nation with the cheapest energy will dominate the world economically."

And there is the federal budget deficit, which he said could crowd producers from credit markets, bar reconstruction of roads and bridges, limit industrial capacity and employment and emasculate national defense.

COUNTRY BLACKSMITH — Richard Ross quit his desk job three years ago to become a country blacksmith in Ingram, a small town in the Hill Country. (AP Laserphoto)

Blacksmith revives ancient art in country

By KRISTIN GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer
INGRAM, Texas (AP) — Richard Ross creates precision work with a hammer and red-hot steel, deftly striking tempered pieces of metal until they twist and gracefully bend into rugged objects of art.

Ross quit his desk job with an Alabama medical school about three years ago to settle in the Hill Country and make his living as a blacksmith.

"People look in the door here and say, 'Oh, poor man. He should have been born 100 years ago.' But that's not the case," Ross said. "There's a misconception that modern blacksmiths are somehow trying to live in the past. Actually, I think we're on the cutting edge."

Ross, 33, said he's actually more of a "housesmith," since most of the items he pounds out on his anvil are designed for use in homes.

"I'm basically self-taught," he said. "I received some guidance from individuals, but what's more important is to get a hammer and some hot metal and to shape it to your will."

Ross moved to this pastoral town after stumbling across the Guadalupe Forge, a downtown building with soot-stained rafters from the almost-constant fire smoking in the forge.

"I envisioned something more modern, but that's a tradeoff," he said. "Now I enjoy the rustic, old-style setting."

As he talked, he struck a glowing strand of steel on the 130-pound anvil, which squats next to a table loaded with a stack of fireplace tools in progress. Some sport longhorns and rams' heads, a traditional smithy subject.

Ross uses his expertise and muscular arms to hammer out trivets, branding irons, bootscrapers, hooks and a host of other items, but considers fireplace tools his specialty.

Test brands blanket almost the entire wall behind the forge, where the coals are kept hot by airblasts from a motor blower.

Ross said he works mostly on commissions — almost entirely from Texans — with finished pieces going for prices ranging from about $20 to $80.

"There's a revival of interest in blacksmithing," he said. "There are doctors and lawyers who do this as a hobby. You'd be surprised — but just look at the Smiths in the phone book and realize the history of the art."

Blacksmithing began, Ross explained, when alchemists heated the metals found in fallen meteorites and fashioned them into animal shapes.

"It started as an art form and worked its way through the industrial revolution, but machines have taken over most of that," he said. "It's up to the modern blacksmith to bring it back as an art form."

Ross, who eschews the traditional leather apron in favor of T-shirts and jeans, said he makes about everything — but not horseshoes.

"I just have no interest in doing that," he said. "I think I'd get bored."

About ditching the desk job, Ross said he had no regrets or second thoughts.

"When I first got here, I probably worked 46 days straight without a day off," he recalled. "It was almost like I couldn't stop. I felt like I had to learn my craft."

"To me, it's a form of wealth," he said.

Organization says it has located eight children

NEW PALTZ, N. Y. (AP) — Since it kicked off a national campaign to locate missing children three weeks ago, Child Find, Inc., an organization based here, has aided in the "recovery" of eight missing children, according to a spokeswoman for the group.

And, according to Ann DeSandis, tips about other children are still coming in.

The campaign began Oct. 10 when snapshots of 55 missing children and Child Find's toll-free number were shown viewers following the airing of a television movie about Adam Walsh, a Florida boy who was abducted and slain.

Child Find was immediately flooded with telephone calls after the movie, many of them from people who thought they had information about children whose pictures were aired.

DeSandis said the FBI has since located Lisa M. Stock, a 5½-year-old girl missing for three years whose picture was among those aired.

Lisa, who was missing from her home in San Antonio, Texas, was found Oct. 28 near Dallas, Ms. DeSandis told the Middletown, N.Y. Times-Herald Record.

An FBI agent involved in the case told the paper agents arrested the girl's father, Robert Dale Stock, Oct. 27 at his sister's home in Coppell, Texas, on a warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Stock had lost custody of the child to his wife, Dorothy Stock Lombardo, who has since remarried and moved to Omaha, Neb., Ms. DeSandis said.

When the FBI arrested Stock, the girl was not at home, according to agent Greg Vandelo.

Ms. DeSandis said Stock's sister had dyed her hair and taken Lisa to a nearby town, where the girl stayed with another sister.

Ultralight plane is do-it-yourself project

AUBURN, Pa. (AP) — What allows anyone worth his salt in the thrills department to climb into the equivalent of a superstrength lawn chair and then climb into the sky?

What comes in a box, looks like a tangle of pipes and wires and brightly colored Dacron, and flies?

What soars like an eagle, sometimes flits like a butterfly and shares a niche in evolution with the hang-glider?

It's an ultralight aircraft and it's being introduced and sold in Schuylkill County by an adventurous man named John Clauser of Auburn.

His product is a modern-day descendant of the creature that lifted the Wright brothers to fame at Kitty Hawk many years ago. And anyone with a few thousand bucks to spare can buy one, put it together and cruise the airways.

The relatively new phenomenon of ultralights remains largely unaffected by Federal Aviation Administration restrictions. Weighing in at 265 pounds, the craft is too light to be covered by FAA rules. The two-seat model carries a maximum of 400 pounds and has an 84-mile range using regular gasoline.

Ultralights were invented in Wisconsin by an ambitious engineer who, tired of lugging his hang-glider up hills for takeoffs, decided to attach an engine to it.

Clauser, an avid flyer, says ultralights are a cheap way to fly compared with other aircraft. They require no license, use much less fuel and do not need hangar storage.

"Flying is too expensive," Clauser said. He pointed out that an aviator's license costs about $3,000 and that small aircraft rent for $34 an hour. Although no licensing is needed to fly solo in ultralights, certification is needed for those who wish to carry a passenger.

Clauser suggests that 10 hours of rudimentary flight training be taken, half on the ground and the rest in flying time. This, combined with practice landings and takeoffs in a large field, round out the lessons, which cost about $150.

Clauser controls the craft by a single stick that hangs from the overhead wings. An end piece similar to a motorcycle handgrip serves as a throttle. The pilot sits under the main wings, which are 31 feet across for single seaters and 38 feet for doubles.

The engine is situated above the pilot and the propeller behind the seat — out of reach from passenger and crew.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

You will establish several enviable relationships this coming year. The ones apt to prove the most beneficial will be with persons older than yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Appealing to the nobler emotions of others could work to your benefit in financial matters today, especially when dealing with persons you've helped. Scorpio predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Stronger bonds can be forged today with an acquaintance you may have felt had little to offer. In fact, a real friendship could begin to blossom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You'll conduct yourself graciously in situations where you have authority today. Although fair and just, you'll be firm if necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're extremely perceptive today and you should be able to perceive the outcome of events if you put your mind to it. Study important matters judiciously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Your greatest abilities will come to the fore today when masterminding joint ventures. Ways and means obscure to others will be obvious to you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Negotiate from strength when putting agreements together today, but at the same time strive to be idealistic and fair. All will benefit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Your chances for getting appropriate help pertaining to a difficult task you've been avoiding look good today. Seek assistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Don't keep feelings to yourself regarding someone to whom you're attracted but have been hesitant to approach. It's likely the interest will be mutual.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
This should prove to be a very productive day, even though you may perform your tasks in ways which will baffle the curious observer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
When you voice your opinions today, all within earshot are apt to sit up and take notice. They'll sense you're not making idle comments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your instincts and imagination in commercial matters today could be rather extraordinary. All it will take is the profit motive to arouse them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
A slight air of mystery will make your personality more appealing today. Your performance will be natural, not role-playing.

Peace protesters

Ready to defy threat to shoot them

LONDON (AP) — Women peace protesters camped outside a U.S. Air Force base say they are ready to risk being shot by British soldiers in their effort to stop the deployment of nuclear missiles.

Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine said in a television interview Tuesday night that troops might use firearms if demonstrators entered the most heavily guarded areas of the base.

"It is my duty to make it clear that there are extreme circumstances where people could be at risk," he warned. He said guards had to consider the possibility that an intruder might be a terrorist.

"The difficulty is that you can't tell the difference between a terrorist and a peace protester if the terrorist has taken the trouble to make himself look like one," Heseltine said in an interview with Channel 4 commercial television.

Heseltine's threat drew a defiant reaction from women protesters stationed outside the Greenham Common air base, 50 miles west of London, where the first of the new U.S. missiles to be deployed in Europe are due to arrive shortly.

"If they want to shoot us, that's what will happen. There will be a public outcry and maybe more people will listen to our protest," said one, who refused to be named.

Monsignor Bruce Kent, general secretary of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, called Heseltine's statement "brutal and shocking."

"It has always been in our mind that it was going to get to that point," he said.

So far this week, about 200 women have been arrested in protests that included using bolt cutters to get through sections of the nine-mile chainlink fence around the base. They dodged guards and rushed on to taxiways.

Police said another 26 protesters were arrested Tuesday when demonstrators rushed at the fence, thinking a just-landed C-5A Galaxy transport plane had brought the first missiles.

Screaming "it's bloody well here," about 100 women clawed at the wire in but did not breach it.

Journalists reported seeing two large containers unloaded from the plane, put on trucks and taken to a nearby building.

Heseltine, who has promised to tell the Commons when the missiles arrive, described the consignment as "equipment."

The Guardian newspaper said the handling of the containers did not suggest they contained nuclear warheads for the missiles.

Cheating can be healthy, psychologist says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What Cynthia Silverman teaches some women to enjoy earned author Nathaniel Hawthorne's heroine Hester Prynne a scarlet letter.

The 43-year-old psychologist conducts a workshop for married women who are having, or thinking of having, extramarital affairs. "This is not advice on free love," Ms. Silverman says. "Men and women both have affairs and the frequency of women having affairs is now almost as great as the men. The goal is to educate women to make a meaningful decision. Let's see they don't do it moronically or hurt themselves or their families."

To that end, workshop participants are given practical advice such as remembering to cover absences with excuses a husband cannot check, and to resist the temptation to confess because "a white lie is better than a black truth."

There are also hints on discretion (don't clutch his hand or look longingly into his

Phoenix elects activist mayor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Democratic activist Terry Goddard was elected mayor of the nation's ninth-largest city Tuesday.

Republican Pete Dunn congratulated Goddard in a brief concession speech shortly before midnight.

"I have just called Terry Goddard and congratulated him and pledged my support," said Dunn, urging his supporters to unite behind the winner.

Goddard recalled his campaign pledges of open government to wild applause at his headquarters. "Now we're going to do it," he said to louder cheers.

"If we're going to do anything, we're going to need the help and understanding of all of you," he said.

With 266 of 317 precincts reporting in the nonpartisan mayoral contest, Goddard led Dunn 59,514 to 50,466, or 56 percent to 44 percent.

Dunn, a former Republican state representative had held out hope that wealthy northern precincts would come in strongly for him late in the day, but reports from key northern precincts showed Goddard winning some outright and staying close to Dunn in others.

eyes at the neighborhood restaurant) and partner selection (married men are better because they, too, must be discreet).

"I think the No. 1 reason for women (having affairs) is romantic adventure, the Cary Grant type of romance that doesn't exist in marriage," says Ms. Silverman, who admits gaining some of her expertise outside her first two marriages.

"A normal, happy comfortable marriage doesn't have that excitement... the feeling that you're alive, the tingling, the anxiety."

The workshops — which cost $7.50 for a 1 hour, 45 minute session each week — stress enjoyment without guilt.

"I was a basket case when I went in there," says one wife who was involved with another man for about two years when she began attending the workshop last summer.

"I still feel a little bit (guilty), but not to the same degree," says the woman, who sees her lover once or twice a week.

The workshop, she added, "helped me set my priorities differently. I always made sure that my family came first, especially my children, but now I realize I have a right to happiness also."

Ms. Silverman practices Rational Emotive Therapy, a psychological method developed by Dr. Albert Ellis. It features counselors who try to identify irrational thought and change behavior.

There are currently four women, between age 20 and 50, in her extramarital affairs workshop, which originally was intended for women whose husbands were having affairs.

Ms. Silverman's first marriage came and went at age 18, but she believes her second lasted 16 years in part because she had affairs.

Her current marriage, three years old, is "the kind of relationship I never thought I'd have."

Lack of rushing offense hurt Pampa

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor

What was the matter with the Pampa Harvesters in last week's 14-0 loss to the Canyon Eagles? Well, it was nothing that a good rushing offense couldn't have cured, according to Pampa head coach John Kendall.

"We just couldn't get a good sustained drive going," said Kendall. "Our passing game was the only thing we had going for us."

Senior quarterback Robert Knight had his best passing game of the season despite being sacked four times. Knight completed nine of 20 passes for 143 yards, including a 39-yarder to Ricky Poole.

Pampa had only 17 yards on the ground compared to 237 for Canyon.

"We played a pretty good defensive game, but they did a lot of stunting and we just didn't pick them up," Kendall said.

Pampa's defense, which is ranked third among the eight district teams in overall games, was led by senior linebacker Danny Sebastian, who had 14 tackles (solos, assists combined) and a fumble recovery. Swasey Brainard was next with 12 tackles, while Dwayne Roberts and Ricky Stout had 11 tackles each. Roberts had a fumble recovery.

Dennis Kuempel and Bill Fritz had 10 and nine tackles respectively. David Carter and Dean Birkes each caused a fumble.

Ironically, only Brownfield and Pampa have had a less productive offense than Canyon in all games played.

With Pampa tied with Canyon and Lubbock Dunbar for second in the District 1-4A standings, the Harvesters' hopes for a state playoff spot could hinge on this Friday night's outcome with Lubbock Dunbar.

"It looks like it's going to boil down to what we do against Dunbar and what Canyon does against Levelland," Kendall said. "We really need to win our next two games and Canyon has to lose."

Pampa got a break last Friday night when Berger surprised Dunbar, 13-10. Dunbar would have been all alone in second place with a victory.

"That was a plus for us,"

Kendall added. Lubbock Estacado, 5-0 in district play, tightened its hold on first place with a 62-0 walloping of Brownfield last week.

Mathematically speaking, all the district teams with the exception of winless Brownfield have a chance making the playoffs. Berger, Dumas and Levelland all have 2-3 records.

Dodge named SWC's top offensive player

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers loves a "competitor" on the football field, but he says Longhorn quarterback Todd Dodge may carry it too far in testing his 170-pound body against much larger defenders.

Nevertheless, Akers has had little but praise for Dodge the past two weeks as the Port Arthur junior has relieved starter Rob Moerschell and helped No. 2-ranked Texas remain undefeated, 7-0.

Dodge, who lost the starting job when he suffered a shoulder separation in preseason, threw a 7-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter as Texas edged Southern Methodist 15-12 on Oct. 22 and had an even better relief effort against Texas last Saturday. Akers replaced Moerschell with Dodge late in the second half, and in less than two quarters the former all-star generated 234 yards total offense, throwing for 118 yards and scoring on a 12-yard bootleg as Texas overcame a 3-0 deficit to win 20-3.

Dodge had the Texas offense in such high gear that the Longhorns did not have to punt in the second half.

For his performance, The Associated Press selected Dodge as the offensive player of the week in the Southwest Conference. Akers on Tuesday announced that Dodge would start Saturday against Houston.

Baylor sophomore safety Johnny Subia of Odessa was chosen as the top SWC defensive player after intercepting a pass and making 14 tackles in Baylor's 24-18 victory over Tulane.

"I thought Dodge came in and did a very good job," said Akers. "He handled the ball well and, for the most part, threw the ball well."

"I think he's a good passer," Akers said of Dodge, who was the first Texas schoolboy to throw for more than 3,000 yards in a single season with 3,135 his senior year. "He's got a good, quick release. He's active, he's very quick."

Perhaps as important as Dodge's passing, says Akers, is the threat of the pass, which makes Texas' running game more effective.

Rustlers on top of bantam league

The Rustlers have rustled up a 14-3 record in leading the Bantam Prep League bowling standings at Harvester Lanes.

Todd Mason carries a 97 average to lead the Rustlers while Jeremy Stone and Donnie Medley has averages of 67 and 60 respectively.

Halas, Grange laid NFL foundation

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

A little bit of Red Grange must have died with the news that his old coach and close friend, George Halas, had passed away in Chicago at the age of 88.

"He is very distraught — he really doesn't want to talk to anybody for a while," Grange's wife said Tuesday from their home in Indian Lake, Fla. "The phone has been ringing constantly. Later on, I'm sure, he will feel up to it. But not now. It was a great shock to him. And he is taking it badly."

Halas and Grange. The two names are synonymous with the birth of pro football — one, the former player, coach and owner of the Chicago Bears; the other, football's greatest player of his time and the magnet that gave the game a stimulus.

"I always thought of the Bears as my alma mater and so did many of the other players," Grange, Illinois' famed No. 77 said a few years ago in writing the foreword to Richard Whittingham's Illustrated History of the Chicago Bears.

"George Halas built the Bears into what they are today. When I joined them, George used to sell a half-dozen tickets and run across the road and buy tape, then tape the players' ankles before they would run on the field.

"He ran everything at the ballpark. Nobody ever worked as hard as George. And if it hadn't been for the Bears and the Green Bay Packers I don't believe there would have been a National Football League."

The key date was Oct. 16, 1921. That was the day that Halas and Edward C. "Dutch" Sternaman, both 26, launched the Chicago franchise by moving a team from Decatur, Ill. — about 125 miles to the southwest — into the hustling Windy City with the financial backing of a cornstarch manufacturer named A. E. Staley.

The Staleys had been part of a ragtag league of semipro players from close-by cities — Massillon, Decatur, Rochester, Detroit, etc. — forming the American Professional Football Association, which later became the NFL. The great Jim Thorpe was made president to provide stability and arouse public interest.

Some 8,000 paid $1 to watch the Staleys beat the Rochester Jeffersons 16-13. Halas and Sternaman got $100 each, same as the players, who worked as miners, farmers and store clerks during the week.

In 1922 the Staleys became the Chicago Bears, which bore the cleat print of Halas as player, owner, manager and coach for better than half a century and as coach setting an all-time record of 326 victories.

His great coup was in signing Grange, who as All-America tailback for Illinois who was the biggest name in college football, to a pro contract in 1925.

Cowboys: A big play team

DALLAS (AP) - Asked to characterize his team, Dallas Coach Tom Landry uses two words: Big Play.

"We've been a big play team all year," Landry said of his 8-1 Cowboys.

"What we need to do is eliminate our errors so we don't have to be."

Landry added "We are winning - that's the main point. We make the plays that enable us to win."

Unfortunately for the Cowboys, they have been giving up too many big plays defensively which is why Landry says the Washington Redskins are better.

"Washington is best right now," Landry said Tuesday at his weekly press luncheon. "They are the Super Bowl champions and playing like they did when they won it - no mistakes.

"Washington is playing solid football."

Landry watched the Redskins' 27-24 victory over San Diego Monday night which pulled Washington within a game of the Cowboys in the National Conference Eastern Division.

Asked if he felt the division title would be on the line when the two teams meet Dec. 11 at Texas Stadium, Landry said "I hope it comes down to that."

The Cowboys defeated the Giants 38-20 Sunday but were victimized by several defensive breakdowns.

Dallas travels to Philadelphia Sunday to play a team it defeated 37-7 three weeks ago.

"Philadelphia has played very well the last two weeks," Landry said. "Their defense has been playing very well. They had a down game against us but that happens every once in a while."

"They'll want to prove they are not as bad as they looked last time. Everything we did seemed to work."

He termed the Eagle game as "very important."

"We need to win against division teams," Landry said. "This will be as important a game as we play."

"If it comes down to head-and-head (with Washington) then the tie-breakers are awful important."

Landry said there would be no lineup changes although Larry Bethea has been splitting time with right defensive end Harvey Martin.

"Martin will start," Landry said.

Landry said it will come down to "who plays best will be in there. The best player will start."

The only questionable Cowboys for the game are defensive lineman Don Smerek and punter John Warren.

The Cowboys were rated early 6 1/2-point favorites over the Eagles, who have lost nine of their last 10 games at home.

Um-kumph! 'Heels ready to stomp on Tigers

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Pigskin Prophet

Egad, friends, as the chill winds of November sweep across the nation's gridirons, the conference races begin, conversely, to heat up to the boiling point. Har-rumph!

The league races reach fever pitch in the ACC, with conference leader North Carolina taking on rough-and-ready Clemson. In the very tough SEC, there are three big ones on tap: with Georgia taking on Florida in the - heh-heh - neutral Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., the Louisiana State Fighting Tigers hosting Alabama, and the up-and-coming Kentucky Wildcats visiting Vanderbilt.

The North Carolina-Clemson fray is the 32nd in this series. Clemson holds the edge with 18 victories to 12 for the Tarheels and one standoff. Clemson - kaff-kaff - has won the last two games by a total of just five points, 10-8 in '81 and 16-13 last year. Um-kumph!

After feeding all the pertinent data through the Hoople computers, Chaw Cobbleco, our North Carolina field rep, sees the Tarheels avenging those narrow defeats by slipping past Clemson, 24-21. Har-rumph!

The action in the SEC will be ferocious. Georgia and Florida get it on for the 62nd time; the LSU-Alabama affair will be their 47th repeat, and the Kent-ky-Vanderbilt joust will be their 56th.

Georgia has dominated the Florida series with a margin of 39-20-2 and the Bulldogs have won the last five in a row. This year the Gators have other plans and - kaff-kaff - the Hoople System agrees with them. We see it: Florida 24, Georgia 22, in a down-to-the-wire finish. Har-rumph!

Look for Alabama to take home a hard-won 30-21 decision from LSU, and Kentucky to prevail over Vanderbilt, 25-21.

Out West, the Pac 10 has two very important matchups on tap. The Washington Huskies meet the up-and-down Arizona Wildcats, and the Arizona State Sun Devils tangle with the hard-to-figure California Golden Bears.

The Huskies seem to be at the top of their game and should deck Arizona, 37-31, in a free-scoring affair. The same goes for Arizona State, which should win a free-wheeling contest from California, 38-28. Hak-kaff!

Elsewhere in the Pac 10, UCLA 32-15 over Oregon; Washington State 24-10 over Oregon State, and Southern California 21-20 over Stanford.

Big Eight leader Nebraska holds a commanding 62-13-2 lead in its series with Iowa State. It will make it victory No. 63, deflating the Cyclones, 39-18, as Mike Rosier continues his drive for the Heisman Trophy.

Other Big Eight contests figure to follow the script as Oklahoma outpoints Missouri, 31-19, Oklahoma State takes Kansas State, 34-17; and Kansas edges Colorado, 21-18.

The strong Southwest Conference boasts a full slate with Texas meeting Houston; SMU going against Rice; Texas Tech entertaining TCU, and Arkansas at home to Baylor.

The Longhorns should have little trouble in knocking off Houston, 35-10, and SMU will romp over Rice, 35-8, in their 63rd repeat performance. The other two contests appear to be very close - with Texas Tech edging TCU, 14-13, and Baylor and Arkansas staging an old-fashioned barn-burner: the Baylor Bears will emerge victorious, 17-15 - um-kumph!

Brigham Young will stay atop the WAC with an easy

54-7 trouncing of Texas-E-Paso.

Meanwhile, things will come to a head in the Mid-American as all three leaders see action. Toledo gets the Hoople nod to top Western Michigan, 31-21; Northern Illinois is the favorite to defeat Central Michigan, 26-22; and Bowling Green will down Ball State by a 28-10 count.

There are some pairings on the independent front as Boston College takes on Army, with the Eagles' Doug Flutie expected to bomb the Cadets, 42-13. Auburn of the SEC should edge Maryland of the ACC, 27-21. In the Sunshine State, Florida State will topple visiting South Carolina, 38-21, and Miami's Hurricanes will win a tough one from the excellent East Carolina Pirates, 28-20.

Pittsburgh and Notre Dame will have it for the 47th time. ND holds a big edge in the series, 32-13-1. In a bruising battle we look for the Irish to win at home, 31-22.

West Virginia and Temple have played 20 times with both teams capturing 10 victories. The series edge will go the Mountaineers as they take the Temple Owls, 44-7. And Joe Paterno's Penn State Nittany Lions continue their climb in the ratings by devastating Brown, 49-6 - har-rumph!

Now go on with my forecast:

Denny wins NL Cy Young award

NEW YORK (AP) - John Denny, who turned his career around last season to become the winningest pitcher in the National League, was named the winner of the NL Cy Young Award today.

Denny, 30, posted a 19-6 record in helping the Philadelphia Phillies win the NL East division title. It was the best season of the right-hander's nine-year career and came directly after a year in which he was 6-11 with the Cleveland Indians and 0-2 with the Phillies, who acquired him on Sept. 11, 1982, to help them chase the East flag.

He faltered in that short stint but made up for it in style in 1983. In 242 2-3 innings, Denny registered a 2.37 earned run average (second in the league), struck out 139 and walked 53 while hurling seven complete games.

Denny was a landslide winner in the balloting by 24 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America - two from each of the league's 12 cities. He received 20 first-place votes and 103 points in outdistancing Cincinnati's Mario Soto. Denny appeared on 21 of the 24 ballots cast.

Following Soto, who was 17-13 for the last-place Reds and led the league in complete games with 18, was New York Mets reliever Jesse Orosco. Soto collected 61 points and had two first-place votes, while Orosco had one first-place selection and 19 points. Orosco, a left-hander, was 13-7 with a 1.47 ERA and 17 saves.

The other first-place vote went to Montreal's Steve Rogers, who fourth with 15 points.

Pittsburgh's Larry McWilliams (seven points), Phillies reliever Al Holland (four), Atlanta rookie Craig McMurty (three), Bob Welch of the Dodgers (two), Nolan Ryan of the Astros (one) and reliever Lee Smith of the Chicago Cubs (one) also received votes. The writers voted for three pitchers, with five points awarded for first place, three for second and one for third.

Denny began his major league career with St. Louis and was 51-46 for the Cardinals before being dealt to Cleveland on Dec. 7, 1979. He had a 24-23 record with the Indians and even re-signed with them prior to the 1982 season after becoming a free agent.

When the Phillies were searching for added pitching in the 1982 pennant chase, they sent three minor leaguers to Cleveland for Denny. But he pitched poorly and was considered the Phillies' No. 4 starter when the season began.

However, with Philadelphia's other starters either hurt or faltering, Denny became the team's stopper, at one point winning seven straight decisions.

Breakers now in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The United States Football League's Breakers, whose move here from Boston took less than a week, announced Tuesday they now have big local bucks and the world's biggest indoor stadium in which to play.

The disclosure came on the 17th anniversary of Commissioner Pete Rozelle's 1966 announcement that New Orleans was being awarded a National Football League expansion franchise. The team was later named the Saints.

"I've been a Saints fan since Day One, and I'm looking forward to the day the Saints and Breakers can play in the World Bowl," said Joseph C. Canizaro, a millionaire real estate developer who disclosed he owns 31 percent of New Orleans' USFL franchise.

Canizaro promised to buy controlling interest if fans support the Breakers next season.

Majority owner George Matthews moved the Breakers here from Boston last month. The move was approved by league owners within a week after it was disclosed New Orleans apparently had the inside track on a half-dozen other cities.

One reason Matthews gave for the move was the team's inability to find an arena larger than Boston University's 21,000-seat Nickerson Field.

That problem also was resolved Tuesday with an announcement by Randy Vataha, the Breakers' president, that the team has reached a "tentative, long-term agreement" to play its home games in the 72,000-seat Louisiana Superdome.

"We have an understanding with the Dome people. We're here. We still have some details to work out, but we are definitely here," said Vataha.

"We're moving from the league's worst facility to the world's best in one step," said Matthews.

Canizaro would not disclose the amount of his investment, but others estimated his financial involvement at more than $2 million.

NBA roundup

Pacers beat Sampson, Rockets, 116-108

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

Ralph Sampson, who came within a coin flip of becoming a member of the Indiana Pacers, nevertheless was a hit with the Indianapolis fans.

Sampson had 21 points and 18 rebounds in his second National Basketball Association game for Houston Tuesday night, but Butch Carter scored 42 points for Indiana and a crowd of 14,629 at Market Square Arena provided an emotional lift for the Pacers as they beat the Rockets 116-108.

"What a fantastic crowd. Holy smoke, it was incredible," the Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said. "The crowd had emotion, and from that it permeates to the players and coaches. They helped us out an awful lot."

In other NBA games, it was Philadelphia 99, Chicago 91; New Jersey 125, Cleveland 113; Detroit 108, Milwaukee 93; Atlanta 95, Washington

92; Portland 126, San Antonio 124; Kansas City 116, Golden State 114; Dallas 130, Denver 124; Seattle 103, Phoenix 93.

The Pacers have drawn nearly 32,000 fans in their first two home games. It took eight games for them to reach that total last year, a season in which they recorded the worst record in their 16-year history and the second-worst overall in the NBA.

The team with the worst record last season was the Rockets, who won the rights to draft the 7-foot-4 Sampson in a coin flip with the Pacers.

"Give him time," McKinney said. "In time, he will be one of the best in the league. I just have to project greatness for him."

Sampson was matched at center against Indiana's Steve Stipanovich, a 7-footer from Missouri who was the second player chosen in last June's college draft. Stipanovich had 12 points and seven rebounds Tuesday night.

"Steve played very well tonight," McKinney said. "He played good defense and ran the break well and didn't make any mistakes that I had to correct him for. He is coming along faster than I expected."

But the Pacers' firepower came from Carter, who matched his career high, and second-year forward Clark Kellogg, who had 27 points and nine assists.

"The shots were there, and once they started falling, my teammates started looking for me," Carter said. "I think I just caught Houston off-guard."

Carter said it would have been the best game in his career if he hadn't missed six of 14 free-throw attempts.

Sampson was on the bench in the second quarter when Indiana turned an eight-point deficit into a six-point lead, thanks to 18 points in the period by Carter, who hit 11 of 13 shots in the first half and 16 of 23 in the game. The Rockets closed within two points early in the third quarter, but a burst of 11 straight points helped the Pacers take an 88-73 lead later in the period.

Indiana never led by less than four points after that.

76ers 99, Bulls 93

Unbeaten Philadelphia had to rally at home after scoring only 13 points in the second quarter and trailing Chicago 53-39 at halftime.

Julius Erving scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half, including a layup with 2:35 left in the game to put the 76ers ahead for the first time.

Bulls Coach Kevin Loughery protested the game, citing poor officiating from referees substituting for regular officials locked out by the league in a contract dispute.

Sonic 103, Suns 93

Seattle handed Phoenix its first home-opening loss in 11 years as Gus Williams scored 31 points for the SuperSonics.

Suns forward Maurice Lucas and Sonics forward Tom Chambers were ejected for fighting in the fourth quarter.

Mavericks 130, Nuggets 124

Mark Aguirre scored 39 points and Rolando Blackman 10 of his 22 in the fourth period as Dallas came from behind for a road victory at Denver.

The Nuggets, who got 28 points from Kiki Vandeweghe and 27 from Alex English, led for most of the second half until the Mavericks went on a 21-10 spurt in the fourth period to grab a 122-116 lead.

Kings 116, Warriors 114

Eddie Johnson, who has 79 points in his last two games, scored 39 points at Kansas City to help the Kings beat Golden State.

The Warriors, who got 25 points from Purvis Short, led by eight midway through the final period before the Kings rallied. They took the lead for good at 113-112 on a field goal by Mark Olberding.

Nets 125, Cavaliers 113

At East Rutherford, N.J., Otis Birdsong and Albert King both scored 10 points in the third quarter, when New Jersey took control of the game with a 24-7 streak.

Cleveland, winless in three starts, led 72-70 midway through the third period and trailed 94-79 going into the fourth quarter. World B. Free led all scorers with 24 points for the Cavs.

Pistons 106, Bucks 93

Kelly Tripucka scored 23 of his 39 points in the second half to give Detroit its home victory over Milwaukee.

With Tripucka and Isiah Thomas each scoring 10 points, the Pistons easily overcame a 51-48 halftime deficit by outscoring the Bucks 33-21 in the third period. Milwaukee was led by Marques Johnson with 23 points.

Trail Blazers 126, Spurs 124

Jim Paxson hit a 22-foot shot with 47 seconds left to give Portland a road triumph over San Antonio.

Calvin Natt scored 26 points to lead the Trail Blazers, while Gene Banks led San Antonio with 27.

Hawks 95, Bullets 92

Atlanta led by only two points at home with five seconds left, but Johnny Davis' steal and foul shot preserved the victory over Washington.

Dan Roundfield led the Hawks with 18 points, while Jeff Ruland had 19 for the Bullets, who have lost all three of their games by three points.

Dodge regains starting job

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas head football coach Fred Akers says quarterback Todd Dodge has regained the starting job he lost because of a preseason shoulder injury.

Dodge, a Port Arthur junior, came off the bench to lead the second-ranked, unbeaten Longhorns to consecutive victories over Southern Methodist and Texas Tech. Texas, 7-0, visits Houston Saturday.

"He's played well, and he deserved it. He's done the best job," Akers said Tuesday after watching his team practice. "Todd has been there when we needed him, and he's gotten his confidence back."

Rob Moerschell started the Longhorns' opening-game win over Auburn and had started every game since. However, he had been plagued with turnovers in the 15-12 win over SMU Oct. 22 and last Saturday's 20-3 win over Tech.

"All of us know we need more than just one quarterback," Akers said. "I've really been pleased with the effort the quarterbacks have given all fall. They've complemented each other very well."

Dodge, who was played in all five games since his left shoulder healed, said he got the news at lunch Tuesday.

"I'm glad that I know early," he said. "I think I've done what they expected of me. When they put me in the last two weeks, they expected me to produce."

Dodge entered the SMU game two Saturdays ago with the score tied 6-6 late in the third quarter. He eventually took the Longhorns on an 85-yard drive that led to a 15-12 victory. Last Saturday he took over with Texas Tech leading, 3-0, and drove the team 72 and 85 yards to second-half touchdowns en route to a 20-3 win that moved UT into the Southwest Conference lead.

His performance against Tech earned him The Associated Press offensive-player-of-the-week recognition in the SWC.

HOPING FOR BETTER FUTURE — Salim Radwan, a Lebanese Druse who lives near the American Embassy in Beirut, said that he hopes the results of the Lebanese reconciliation conference being held in Geneva will be "very good," as he reads his newspaper early Wednesday morning. Radwan has four sons living in Florida continuing their studies. (AP Laserphoto)

Jury selection continuing in Williams robbery trial

DALLAS (AP) — An all-white jury will probably hear the armed robbery case of a young black engineer who claims the charges against him are racially motivated, a defense attorney says.

Edwin M. Sigel, a several attorneys for the 25-year-old defendant, Anthony Williams, said Tuesday that only six of 72 people in the jury pool for the case are black.

"That's just an unlucky draw" that there are so few blacks in the jury pool, Sigel said.

A prosecutor was expected today to continue asking prospective jurors individually how much they know about the case that has drawn nationwide publicity because of allegations that the charges were racially motivated.

Williams, of Swansea, S.C., is accused of stealing $31 in the Aug. 22, 1982, armed robbery of a suburban Dallas convenience store. Williams says he is innocent.

No jurors were chosen in the first day of jury selection Monday, although Assistant District Attorney Steve Miller individually questioned more than 20 prospective jurors.

Prosecutors said that it would be this afternoon at the earliest before a jury is chosen.

Williams moved to the Northeast Texas city of Greenville from South Carolina to go to work for E-Systems Inc., a major defense contractor, last year.

Lenell Geter, 25, his former roommate and co-worker, received a life sentence last fall for a similar robbery Aug. 23, 1982, at a Balch Springs fast-food restaurant, despite testimony from 10 E-Systems employees that Geter was at work when the crime occurred.

Both defendants' cases have drawn national attention, including investigations by CBS' "60 Minutes" and exposure on Phil Donahue's syndicated talk show.

State District Judge Ed Kinkeade ordered a jury pool larger than the usual 42 people because of publicity surrounding the case.

"We don't try lawsuits in the media," Kinkeade told prospective jurors Tuesday.

Williams' trial was to have begun Monday, but it was delayed by Kinkeade because of his infant son's illness.

Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade said there is solid evidence against Williams. Wade has refused a request by NAACP attorney George Hairston to drop the charges against Williams until Geter's conviction could be appealed.

Williams was the victim of overzealous detective work and mistaken identification, said co-workers and civil rights groups.

"We feel very strongly for these guys," said Ed Garrett, an E-Systems supervisor who testified for Geter. "We feel it was a grave injustice."

Williams and Geter were recent graduates of South Carolina State College working at $22,000 a year jobs at E-Systems when the investigations began.

Greenville police allege the two men were linked to the two crimes when a woman called Lt. James Fortenberry and gave him the license number of a car she had spotted about two miles from the scene of another robbery.

Police later traced the license number to Williams and Geter. Photographs of the pair later were identified by victims of separate robberies in Dallas County, officers said.

Some birds migrate in style

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Migration will never be the same again for two hummingbirds and a black-headed grosbeak, after they head south on a jet airliner for the winter.

The birds leave Thursday in an attempt to catch up with their migrating buddies heading south — courtesy American Airlines.

A spokesman for an Arlington bird rehabilitation program said the hummingbirds abandoned their annual flight south about five or six weeks ago when they got caught in the Fort Worth-Dallas area during one of the season's first cold snaps.

George Stewart, a spokesman for Phoenix of Arlington, said the tiny birds can't function in cold weather because of their high metabolisms.

Joan Roberts of Dallas, who will accompany the three birds south, said one was found by a woman in downtown Dallas almost frozen after the cold snap.

She said another hummingbird was brought to her the next day, after the cold weather stopped its flight and a cat almost ended its life.

By the time the birds had recovered their strength with food provided by Ms. Roberts, they were too late to join the migration south.

Ms. Roberts said the third traveling companion, the grosbeak, a large yellow and black bird with a large beak, got into the Fort Worth area by mistake.

The bird was found at a summer camp in Aspen, Colo., earlier in the year and brought to the Fort Worth area. It normally would have flown south for the winter in a path west of North Texas about this time of the year.

Ms. Roberts made arrangements with Phoenix of Arlington to release the birds onto a wildlife preserve on the Texas-Mexico border. She wanted to prevent having to keep the birds through the winter.

Ms. Roberts will carry the birds — each in its own separate padded box inside a small cat carrier — onto the American Airlines plane where they can be placed

Troubled airline hires new pilots

HOUSTON (AP) — Between 40 and 50 newly hired pilots will begin training classes next week designed to let Continental Airlines expand its schedule in December, a company spokesman says.

Continental began hiring pilots this week to replace those who are on strike, Bruce Hicks said Tuesday.

"These guys will take one to two weeks of training" before they start flying, said Hicks. "These guys have thousands of hours of flying time on the type of aircraft we fly."

Continental will start additional training classes weekly with an average of 20 new pilots in each class to meet plans "for our continuing expansion starting in December and beyond," said Hicks.

Continental filed Sept. 24 for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. The airline stopped flying for two days and then returned to the air with its domestic routes slashed by two-thirds and the salaries of employees cut as much as 50 percent. It also laid off about two-thirds of its employees. A week later, on Oct. 1, the pilots and flight attendants walked off their jobs, joining the mechanics who already were on strike.

Since then, the airline has slowly beefed up its schedule, using pilots, flight attendants and mechanics who crossed the picket lines. The pilots who start training next week will be the first group hired to replace the striking pilots.

"We expect by this spring to be at 80 to 90 percent of the seat capacity we had before" filing for bankruptcy, said Hicks. The airline will need 800 to 900 pilots to meet the planned schedule, he said, and currently has 400 to 500.

By Nov. 15, said Hicks, Continental expects to have 54 aircraft flying and will be scheduling about 35 percent of the number of flights the airline serviced before bankruptcy.

Hicks said the airline is not hiring new flight attendants. He said the carrier has a preferential hiring list and "will pull on that list" as needed.

Under new work rules Continental put into place last month, senior pilots are being paid about $43,000 a year for 83 flying hours a month. Under the union contract, senior pilots' annual salaries were paid $83,000 for 55 flying hours a month.

New work rules for flight attendants call for salaries of $15,000 a year, compared to an average of $28,000 a year under the union contract, Hicks said.

In its bankruptcy filing on Sept. 24, Continental said it lost $135.5 million in 1982, and almost a half billion dollars since 1979.

Group to warn children about alcohol urged

AUSTIN (AP) — The same day that State Treasurer Ann Richards urged a group of educators and counselors to warn children about the dangers of alcohol, she attended a court hearing for son in connection with a marijuana charge.

Mrs. Richards told the group Tuesday that she was successfully treated for alcoholism and noted that children of alcoholics have a greater chance of abuse themselves.

Daniel Richards, her 24-year-old son, was arrested early Tuesday morning in connection with a misdemeanor marijuana charge.

He was charged with possession of less than 2 ounces of marijuana, a Class B misdemeanor. Richards was released on a $300 personal recognizance bond.

In her speech, Mrs. Richards said that her problems with alcohol had adversely affected her family. She urged the teachers and counselors to educate children about its dangers.

The state official said she was treated for alcoholism in late 1980 and stopped drinking.

Lawsuit filed in dialysis death

DALLAS (AP) — The family of one of three patients who died within minutes of each other after receiving kidney dialysis treatment has filed a $1 million federal lawsuit against the treatment center and the manufacturer of the dialysis equipment.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday on behalf of Jeroline Thompson, alleges that her death was caused by the negligence of the staff at the Dallas Kidney Disease Center. Extracorporeal Medical Specialties, Inc., a Pennsylvania-based company and subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson Inc., was also named as a defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Thompson, 59, was one of three people who suffered nearly simultaneous heart attacks Friday when their blood rose to fatal temperatures while they were connected to dialysis equipment at the treatment center, authorities said.

Two other patients were hospitalized but have been discharged.

Investigators probing the deaths completed an on-site inspection of the equipment and pronounced it safe for continued use, a spokeswoman for the center said Tuesday.

Investigators from the Food and Drug Administration, the owner of the clinic and the manufacturer of the equipment completed their examinations Monday night, said a spokesman for the center who asked not to be identified.

The fatal malfunction was apparently caused by two wires that crossed, resulting in overheating of the cleansing saline solution flowing into the patients' bloodstreams, officials said.

Extracorporeal said it was examining 75 of its units in 50 dialysis centers nationwide, but has found no problems.

"The centers are being alerted by the company to this situation and Extracorporeal technicians are visiting each one to inspect equipment and assure it is working properly," said

Ed Watson, a company spokesman.

The FDA said Tuesday that a Brooklyn, N.Y., woman died two weeks ago while undergoing dialysis on an Extracorporeal machine, also because her blood overheated. FDA investigators said the machine at the Brooklyn Kidney Center apparently malfunctioned because of faulty maintenance.

The FDA may have a decision later this week on whether it should take any action against Extracorporeal, said Ted Rotto, chief regional investigator for the FDA in Dallas.

"I guess if it went so far that we could demonstrate negligence, the FDA could take legal action," Rotto said. "But it would be extremely unlikely. The idea of a recall is kind of stupid because these people need these machines to live."

"The firm has done everything possible," said Rotto. "When that happens, we more or less oversee the operation to see that the problem is corrected."

Rotto said investigators agree that "two wires were crossed," causing the malfunction, but disagree on why a temperature alarm system never was activated.

Watson said his company's preliminary investigation indicates two power transformer leads were improperly wired to the machine. However, "the exact cause of the malfunction is still not known," he said.

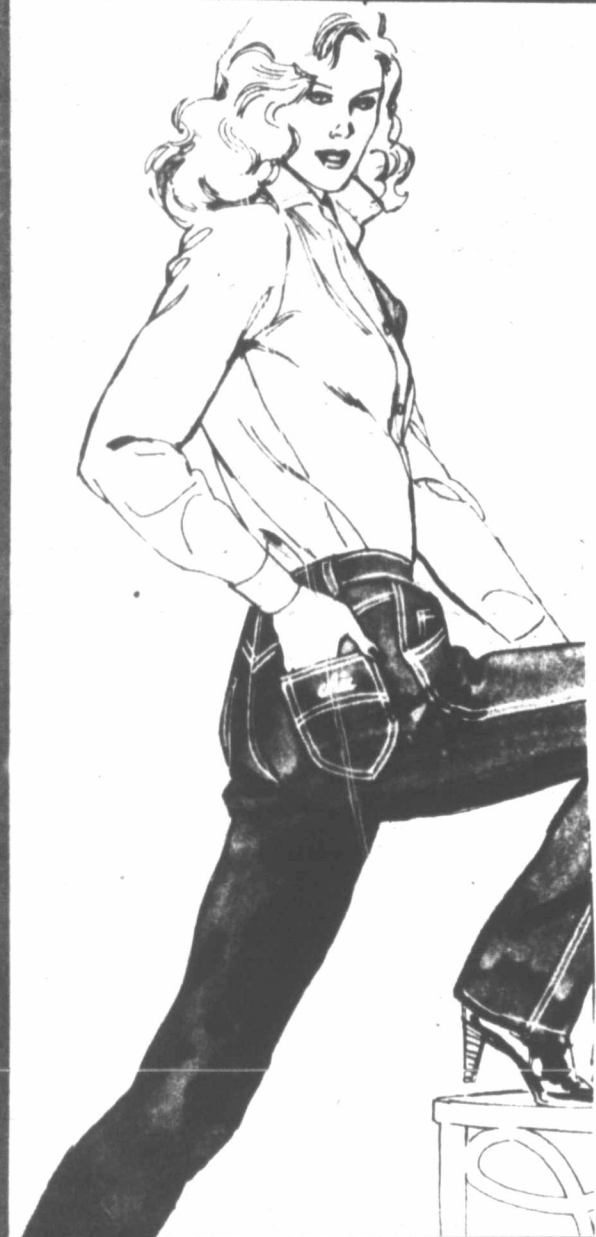

Johnson & Johnson also issued a statement Tuesday, saying the firm was only partly responsible for the malfunction of the machine's heating equipment. Johnson & Johnson said the equipment was improperly maintained and used.

But Dr. Tom Parker, the center's medical director, disputed Johnson & Johnson's statements.

"It is perfectly safe to dialyze at the Dallas Kidney Disease Center," Parker said. Parker said the center follows maintenance guidelines and noted that the FDA on Saturday had approved continued operation of the equipment.
