Jury finally chosen to hear Valdez murder trial

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

Despite considerable difficulty, a jury of eight women and four men was selected Wednesday morning to hear the trial of a Pampa woman charged with murdering her infant daughter. Testimony was scheduled to begin this afternoon.

During jury selection in 223rd District Court Tuesday and today, many prospective jurors said they came to the courtroom with an unshakable opinion about the case. Others said they wouldn't consider probation as a possible penalty for murdering a child.

For the above reasons and others, the majority of the prospective jurors questioned were dismissed from jury service in the murder trial of Lorena Valdez.

But the required 32 persons were finally qualified for jury duty about 10:30 a.m. today, then the attorneys for both sides were allowed their 10 strikes to narrow it down to the final 12. Jurors chosen to hear the case included Ronald E. Hays, Carl Edwin Prater, Anna Lee Green, Elizabeth Johnston, Belinda Ruthene Stafford, Rita M. Simpson, Sylvia Foster Harpster, James Grant Allen, Mrs. Dan Stafford, Mrs. Harl Ray Green, Walter L. Worley Jr., and Lillian A. Carter.

They were sworn in by Judge Don Cain and ordered to return to court at 1:30 p.m. for the beginning of testimony.

Valdez, 31, is charged with murder in connection with the September beating death of her one-year-old daughter, Lisa Marie Valdez. Valdez is charged with killing the baby by pounding her with her fists and jabbing her in the neck with a broom handle.

"This is an emotional case. A baby is dead. That baby did not die a natural death," court-appointed defense lawyer Lee Waters told the panel of prospective jurors in opening remarks.

But the lawyer said Valdez, of 531 S. Somerville, is innocent. He said her defense will be based on the possibility that the "child was killed by another person."

"Mrs. Valdez will testify she did not kill the baby," Waters said.

He said his client's testimony may indicate Valdez "did have some involvement" in causing the infant's death, but she is not guilty of murder, the defense lawyer said.

Waters also told the prospective jurors that a reported statement Valdez gave police in connection with the beating death was extracted through "coercion or threats."

"This isn't like Perry Mason," Waters told prospective jurors. "Mrs. Valdez doesn't expect someone will break down, run to the judge, and say he killed the baby."

"Even if the state proves what it can, Mrs. Valdez is not guilty of a murder," he said, explaining the state must prove the suspect "intentionally and knowingly killed her baby."

Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley reserved his opening remarks until after a jury is selected in the case.

Waters told the panel the jury will consider the charge of murder along with lesser included crimes of involuntary manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide when it decides the case. He explained punishment upon conviction for one of the three crimes ranges from one year of probation up to life in prison.

"As she sits here now she is presumed innocent," Waters explained to the panel.

One prospective juror questioned Tuesday, though, said he doesn't agree with the law's presumption of innocence, and said the suspect would have to prove it to him. Presiding Judge Don Cain dismissed the man from jury service.

However, most excused from service

Tuesday morning said they held an opinion about the suspect's guilt or innocence, and said they could not decide a verdict based only on evidence presented at the trial.

"I don't know if I could (be impartial) after reading the papers and all," said one woman who was excused.

"When children are involved I get pretty emotional," said another allowed to leave.

In the first day of jury selection Tuesday, it took lawyers most of the day just to qualify the first 12 prospective jurors Judge Cain said. 32 prospective jurors must be qualified to hear the case, as each side will have 10 uncontested strikes in selecting the panel of 12.

The judge said the trial should be completed by Friday.

When court recessed about 5 p.m. Tuesday, lawyers had qualified another 12 prospective jurors, leaving eight more needed when jury selection resumed at 9:30 this morning.

During the repetitious questioning in selecting a jury, the obviously-pregnant suspect sat quietly at the counsel table, often resting her head on an arm cocked over the back of her chair.

Valdez's child died as a result of internal bleeding about 1:30 p.m. Sept. 12. The expectant mother was arrested in connection with the death later the same day.

According to an autopsy performed by pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann, the infant died as a result of "multiple blunt-force trauma to the abdomen and neck." According to the autopsy, the child also suffered a lacerated liver and spleen.

District Attorney Guy Hardin has said he believes the suspect severely beat the child with her fists one evening, and because the infant wouldn't stop crying, continued the pounding the morning she died.

Italy, Britain reassess Lebanon role

Israel promises revenge

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

Israel vowed to avenge the PLO bombing that killed four people aboard a crowded Jerusalem bus, and government leaders in Italy and Britain met today to reconsider their role in the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

In Syria, the state radio said the body of the American pilot killed when his plane was shot down during air raids on Syrian positions in Lebanon was turned over today by the Syrian army to the Lebanese army.

John Stewart, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Beirut, said he expected the body of Lt. Mark A. Lange to be given to U.S. Marines for its eventual return to the United States. Lange, 27, of Fraser, Mich., was killed Sunday after his A-6 Intruder was downed during a bombing raid by 28 American planes.

His navigator-bombardier, Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 26, of Virginia Beach, Va., was captured by the Syrians, and Syrian Defense Minister Mustafa Tlass said he would not be released until Americans troops leave Lebanon.

The attack on Syrian anti-aircraft batteries in Lebanon was in retaliation for the firing on U.S. reconnaissance flights.

In Beirut, the Lebanese army and Christian militiamen exchanged rocket and artillery fire today with Druse insurgents, and President Amin

Congress gets edgy over Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, increasingly edgy over the rising death toll and intensified military activities in Lebanon, is beginning to question what exactly it approved in authorizing President Reagan to commit U.S. forces.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, asked congressional leaders Tuesday to call a rare special session "to reopen the question of military involvement in Lebanon."

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., called for full hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to determine if the recent U.S. air attack on Syrian positions "represents an escalation which goes beyond the intent of Congress."

Leaders of the Foreign Relations Committee said after a closed-door briefing by the administration Tuesday that they saw little likelihood of a special session. But one agreed the Lebanon question is increasingly occupying the minds of lawmakers.

"I think everyone is concerned," said Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., charged Reagan with a technical violation of the War Powers Act by failing to file a report on the status of the mission. He said the report was due Nov. 29.

Gemayel was urged to appoint a new coalition Cabinet representing the country's warring factions.

Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan said he would press for a prompt decision by Gemayel on the resignation of the nine-man Cabinet to make way for a coalition government that might end the prolonged sectarian warfare.

Police in Jerusalem said today that two girls aged 12 and 14 and an elderly man were among the four victims of the bomb that blew apart a bus Tuesday. Forty-six people were injured in the worst terrorist incident in the city in five years.

A spokesman said police were holding five people for questioning. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir pledged an all-out effort to find those who planted the bomb and said "they shall not go unpunished." His statement raised the possibility that Israel, following its customary policy, might send aircraft on reprisal raids against Palestinian bases in Lebanon.

The Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the bombing in a statement released by the PLO news agency Wafa. It claimed the target was a military vehicle.

"This operation comes to escalate the actions of the Palestinian revolution against the Israeli occupiers," Wafa said.

In Rome, Premier Bettino Craxi called a special Cabinet meeting today in what appeared to be the first formal step to reconsider Italy's role as a peacekeeper in Lebanon.

The meeting was scheduled as pressures mounted to withdraw or substantially reduce Italy's 2,100-man contingent in the peacekeeping force, which also includes U.S., French and British troops.

In London, the Foreign Office said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government planned a top-level review today of the role of Britain's 100 troops in the peacekeeping force as a result of the U.S. air raids on Syrian positions.

In Beirut, anti-government shellfire struck outlying residential neighborhoods in predominantly Christian east Beirut.

42nd anniversary today

Survivors recall attack on Pearl Harbor

HONOLULU (AP) — Survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor gathered for aerial displays, formal presentations and a private sunset service marking the 42nd anniversary today of the bombing that launched the United States into World War II.

A moment of silence was to be observed across the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, to be signalled by a shipyard work whistle at 7:55 a.m., the exact minute the attack began on Dec. 7, 1941.

After that, four F-4C Phantom jets from the Hawaii Air National Guard were to fly over Pearl Harbor in a "missing man" formation, in which one of the flight positions remains vacant.

The attack by 190 Japanese attack planes had been prepared months in advance. The two-hour, four-minute bombardment killed 2,113 men, 1,177 of which were aboard the USS Arizona. An additional 987 men were wounded. Eighteen U.S. Navy warships were damaged or sunk.

A plaque was to be unveiled honoring the bravery of the men who were aboard the USS Nevada that day. The Nevada had been moored just behind the Arizona, and was the only battleship to get under way during the attack.

Despite several fires, heavy casualties and a 30-by-45-foot hole in her bow from a torpedo hit, the Nevada managed to limp toward the entrance to the harbor in a bid to escape the attack.

Navy brass, fearful the ship might sink in mid-channel and block the harbor, ordered it intentionally beached near Waipio Point, now also known as Nevada Point. Fifty-seven men died aboard the ship.

The memorial marker will list the ship's two Medal of Honor winners, the 13 USS Nevada sailors and Marines who won the Navy cross, and the 57 crewmen killed in action.

Also scheduled was a morning ceremony aboard the Arizona Memorial, including prayers, a wreath presentation, a gun salute and echo taps.

The day's scheduled observances were to close with a sunset Mass.

Battleship Arizona topples during attack on Pearl Harbor

National education study starts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Strategies for boosting pay and performance of the nation's teachers topped the agenda today for 2,300 educators, politicians and parents who jammed the Reagan administration's National Forum on Excellence in Education.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham, who pushed a tax hike through his legislature last summer to pay for a master teacher plan, an extended high school day and other reforms, was the leadoff speaker for the summit's second day.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell, in the opening address Tuesday night at the Indiana Convention Center, appealed to state lawmakers and school board leaders to press for master teacher plans.

He also urged teachers and their unions to accept the concept of providing higher pay for outstanding performance, saying, "If you can't buy that, please come up with some other workable plan because the single salary schedule simply isn't sufficient."

President Reagan will journey here Thursday to speak at the final session of the forum, which Bell said is intended to give "the decision-makers of American education" a chance to exchange ideas as they head into a period of "massive reforms" next year in most states.

Bell urged every parent with school-age children to make them study at home an hour a day, and he exhorted state lawmakers "to reward excellence and discourage mediocrity on the part of students, teachers, administrators, governing boards and institutions at all levels."

The conference drew eight governors, 10 members of Congress, 30 chief state school superintendents, more than 150 state legislators, 395 school board members, 60 college presidents and 395 teachers, principals and other school personnel, according to Gary L. Jones, the undersecretary of Bell's department, who originally had expected only 1,200 people to attend.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the 1.6 million-member National Education Association, told reporters after Bell's speech, "I don't disagree that there is a need for change in education."

But she criticized Bell's suggestion that states tie new money for education to adoption of particular reforms, saying, "you're holding the children hostage when you do that."

She also took issue with Bell's advocacy of "a career ladder" for teachers leading to the post of "master" teacher comparable to a college's full professor.

"What does he really mean by 'career ladder'? ... They went from merit pay to master teacher plan to career ladder," she said.

Blast kills 90 after two jetliners collide

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Two Spanish jetliners collided on the ground in heavy fog today as they prepared to take off from Madrid, touching off a fiery blast and killing about 90 of the 135 people aboard, civil defense officials said.

The accident occurred 10 days after a Colombian jet crashed near Madrid, killing 181 of the 192 people aboard, and six years after the worst crash in aviation history — the crash of two jumbos on the ground in heavy fog in the Canary Islands, which left 582 dead.

Involved in today's collision were an Iberia Air Lines Boeing 727 on its way to Rome with 84 passengers and nine crew members aboard and a DC-9 of Aviaco, a Spanish domestic airline, with 37 passengers and five crew aboard, on its way to Santander in northern Spain.

The officials said the DC-9 was hit near its fuel tank, and all aboard were killed.

Officials said about 47 were killed aboard the Boeing.

There was no official word on the cause of the accident, but Iberia and airport sources said the collision occurred as one or both airliners were accelerating in preparation for takeoff. Sources said they believed the Boeing 727 was traveling about 100 mph.

The DC-9 was said to be destroyed in the crash and ensuing explosion and its wreckage scattered over more than a mile.

"All we can see is a mass of wreckage, seats and screams coming from all sides," said one radio reporter at the scene.

Several hours after the collision hundreds of rescuers were seen combing through the steaming wreckage, wrapping parts of bodies in gray plaid blankets.

Middle School students suspended

Two Pampa Middle School students have been suspended for the remainder of the term for violation of school policies.

The suspensions were announced following an executive session of the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees during a regular meeting Tuesday.

In other action, board members approved an addition to the present lease contract with Clarendon Junior College to hold classes in this district. The contract revision will allow the college to get state funding for college courses offered at the Pampa annex.

According to the contract, courses taught in the Pampa Independent School District facility must be approved by the Coordinating Board and - or the Texas Education Agency, and the Panhandle Higher Education Council. The junior college is furnished use of the facilities without charge to the college.

The board changed the date students will resume classes after the Christmas vacation to coincide with the national holiday calendar. Students will return to school Jan. 3. The last day of school for the current year will be May 25, providing 175 class days as required by state law.

A paper change was made in the order of authority within the district. The Superintendent of Schools is followed by the Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services, then Assistant Superintendent for Support Services in the chain of authority.

Toys for tots drive launched by PMS

Pampa Medical Services has launched a local "Toys for Tots" drive to help underprivileged local children this Christmas.

Pampa area residents who wish to donate to the drive may bring toys to the PMS paramedic station at 1002 N. Hobart any time during the day or night.

PMS has asked that no broken toys be donated because it does not have the resources to have the repaired in time for Christmas.

The local Salvation will supply a list of children from needy families who will receive the toys. They will be delivered on Friday, Dec. 23, in a PMS paramedic unit, with the gasoline and time donated by PNS employees.

Returning U.S. Marine survivors greeted by flags, yellow ribbons

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Some 1,800 Marines who survived the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing in Beirut returned to the United States today to welcoming signs, American flags and thousands of yellow ribbons.

The first ship carrying the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit arrived at the State Ports Authority terminal at 9:40 a.m., said Helen McBride, a terminal employee. The Marines are based at Camp Lejeune, 60 miles east of Morehead City.

"They're docking one now in Berth Nine," Mrs. McBride said. "It's just great," she said, adding that a large crowd was on hand to greet the troops.

After welcoming ceremonies, the Marines were to take buses to Camp Geiger and Camp Lejeune to be reunited with their families.

The troops, serving with a multinational peacekeeping force, were among those attacked in a suicide bombing at the Beirut International Airport. The bombing killed 240 U.S. servicemen.

Aimee Williams of Jacksonville, whose husband, Donnie, is among the returning Marines, tied 100 yellow ribbons in her front yard and decked pillars with small flags in anticipation of his arrival.

"I've even hung up my father-in-law's flag from when he was a veteran," she said.

Williams was to meet his infant daughter for the first time.

"We've named her Tiffany Faith, the middle name symbolizing the faith it's taken to survive," Mrs. Williams said.

The wife of another Marine who asked not to be identified said she had been washing and waxing her husband's pickup truck, "which is his pride and joy, so it looks good when he gets home."

Lee Ann Kline, whose husband, Robert, is a Marine photographer, used felt-tipped markers to decorate a bed sheet saying "Welcome Home Daddy." She also covered an oak tree in yellow ribbons and horse shoes for good luck.

The Military Affairs Committee of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce distributed thousands of yellow ribbons to line the route into Jacksonville.

"We are distributing yellow ribbons to anyone who wants them," said John Peacock, executive director of the chamber. "We have already gotten 6,000 yards of yellow ribbon and there are 3,000 more yards coming in."

"We are asking anybody who wants to, to pick up ribbons to decorate trees, mailboxes and whatever," he said. "We are encouraging businesses on the route they will take from Morehead City to pick them up, too."

Salvadoran leader's relative is indicted

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A close relative of the president of El Salvador has been indicted on federal charges accusing him of fraudulently obtaining a $250,000 loan from a San Antonio bank.

The indictment said Jose Arturo Magana, 39, obtained the money from the University National Bank in February 1982 by telling officials he had a $500,000 certificate of deposit at the Frost National Bank of San Antonio.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Maeso said he thought Magana was the Central American president's nephew, but local consulate officials could not confirm that.

A federal magistrate issued an arrest warrant late Tuesday naming Jose Arturo Magana, who is related to Salvadoran President Alvaro Magana.

Democrat hopefuls seek Texas money

NO CONTACT — Houston ham radio operator Dale Martin tries in vain to Shuttle contact mission specialist Owen Garriott on the short wave Tuesday. Garriott's sons, Richard, 22, and Robert, 27, had hoped to talk with their father. Garriott could be heard calling Enid, Okla., where his mother lives.

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Democrats plunked down $500 for the opportunity to hear three candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination say in three minutes why Ronald Reagan should be replaced.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson and U.S. Sens. Gary Hart and John Glenn visited Houston on Tuesday as part of a two-day national fundraising drive.

The fundraising swing, which began Monday in Washington, made a breakfast stop Tuesday morning in Atlanta, then headed for Albuquerque after the visit to Houston.

Another entourage, including Walter Mondale, George McGovern and Sen. Ernest Hollings, was in Chicago on Tuesday before linking up with the others in New Mexico.

Reubin Askew, originally slated to travel with the southern group, had to bow out because of a death in his family, party chairman Charles T. Manatt said.

The party's other presidential candidate, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, declined to participate because of a dispute over selection of convention delegates from Iowa and New Hampshire.

Jackson also said Tuesday he was unhappy with the delegate selection process, and Manatt said a meeting would be held in a week or two to iron out the differences.

"There are a number of restrictions in the rules that tend to lock the majority out and lock the minority in," said Jackson, the only one of the trio to draw a standing ovation. "The fact of the matter is that it is tilted to those with the most money to put in the campaign."

Jackson, who only recently entered the race officially, said his opposition to the rules "was not a personal concern."

"If we make room for the majority of the party, it will be victory," he said. "This is a time for us to address this matter."

"It should be seen not in any way as a threat. It should be seen as a therapy, a chance to open up."

Jackson's complaint is that the delegate selection does not accurately represent "female, Hispanics, blacks, Asian and the young."

Manatt said, however, that under the party rules, 50 percent of the delegates to the party's convention next summer in San Francisco would be women, another 30 percent would be black and Hispanic.

"The meeting in a week or two should be interesting," Manatt said.

Glenn said it was getting late to change the rules, with only 90 days remaining before the Iowa caucuses. But while the rules were established before he entered the race, "I'm willing to look at them. Give us rules and we'll play by them," he said.

Manatt appealed to those attending the luncheon to spend $10,000 to become a presidential trustee, which is the title the party is bestowing on those who make the contribution. A trustee, he said, would get seating privileges at the convention and have access to the convention floor.

In their brief remarks to the crowd, Glenn called for an administration committed to honesty, courage to sacrifice, independence from special interests, common sense and "good Democratic programs."

Hart, complaining that "things are bad in Washington," advocated an "economic pie divided more fairly."

Jackson, urging a focus on "folks at the bottom," said the challenge facing the party was to "make new wine for the old wineskins."

Party officials hoped the Houston stop would raise $400,000. The goal of the national effort was $1.9 million.

'Bat Woman' goes to bat for the bats

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Donna Howell would like to put in a good word for bats.

Bats have an image problem. Ask yourself, what form does Dracula take when he goes in search of a midnight snack? What shape are the devil's wings? What flies out of hell and hangs around in a belfry? What carries rabies, gets tangled up in your hair and is all together loathesome?

Not a pretty picture, and not a particularly accurate one either, according to Ms. Howell, the Floyd B. James Trustee professor of biology at Southern Methodist University, where she is sometimes known as Bat Woman.

New Mexico-born, she got her Ph.D. in biology at the University of Arizona and then went to Princeton for postgraduate work, studying bats and bat sonar for the Navy. So she knows bats inside and out.

In the past few years, Ms. Howell and her bats have starred in a BBC documentary. They have been featured in national magazines. Recently, she took her bats to the University of Dallas for a lecture. Later, she read a paper on bats during a conference at the Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute in Alpine.

Nobody likes bats very much, but everyone seems to find them interesting.

According to Ms. Howell, there are from 1,000 to 1,200 species of bats in the order "Chiroptera" (from the Greek, meaning "hand wing," since the bat wing is a modification of hand and finger bones.)

"The earliest bat fossils, which are 60 million years old, look like perfectly good, modern bats," said Ms. Howell.

Next to rodents, bats are the second most common mammal.

"If you were to line up all the mammals in the world, every fourth or fifth one would be a bat. It's the most diverse group of mammals. The order of bats does more jobs, fills more ecological roles or niches than any other group of mammals," she said.

To human beings, the most important bats are the bug eaters.

"Bats are more important than birds for insect control," said Ms. Howell. "Most of the really economically injurious bugs are nocturnal."

She said the brown bat, the kind that lives in attics, consumes twice its weight in moths a night.

"A colony of little brown bats — the number a grown man could hold in his hand — is responsible for 4,000 grams of insects a night. That's nine pounds," Ms. Howell said.

A cave near San Antonio is known to harbor 20 million Mexican free-tail bats, she said, and the Congress Ave. bridge in Austin is home to another million.

If you discover a bat flapping around your house, Ms. Howell says not to panic.

"Open the window, shut the door and leave," she advises. "The bat will find its way out. If you can't do that, get a big Turkish towel and when the bat lands on something, gently gather it up, take it outside and shake it out. The bat cannot bite you through a thick towel. Most bats in Texas have a hard time breaking the skin."

If you want to get them out of your attic, ecologically the safest way to do it is alter their microenvironment.

"You can put a fan up there for a few weeks to dry it out, or an air conditioner to cool it down. Your bats are going to leave and eat their nine pounds of bugs over somebody else's garden," she said.

Exterminators use very dangerous poisons and they charge an arm and a leg. Then, too, with any animal you poison, the animal doesn't die right away. And while it is dying, that's the time it's flapping around out on the sidewalk where it's likely to bite your dog or your child."

No wild animal should be picked up, but tales of bats and rabies have been exaggerated, says Ms. Howell. She says only about three-tenths of one percent of all bats brought into public health departments turn out to be rabid.

Other than the vampire bat, "we have no evidence at all that bats make gratuitous attacks on humans," Ms. Howell said.

So where did bats get such a bad reputation?

"Bad press — movies and horror stories. Also, I think people are a little suspicious of nocturnal animals. If an animal was any good, it wouldn't be skulking around at night. This is not true in the Orient where bats are symbols of long life and good health."

"The weirdest superstition is the one about bats getting snarled in your hair. Bat sonar is so good they can tell a single hair on your head," she said. That is why the U.S. Navy "puts megabucks into bat research every year."

Navy sonar can tell approximately how far away an object is and how large it is, but it cannot tell yet whether a submarine is one of ours or one of theirs.

"But a bat on the wing can tell the difference between a mayfly and moth," said Ms. Howell. "The Navy would also like to know why bats' sonar is absolutely jam-resistant."

Bats are also the object of intense study because they live so long for a small mammal.

"Most mice burn themselves out in a year or two. But bats live 14 years and more," Ms. Howell said.

All other things being equal, if we were bats, we might expect to live to the ripe old age of 100,000 years. Something to think about the next time you call someone an old bat.

Humpy's son, two others agree to plea bargain

HOUSTON (AP) — A former deputy sheriff and two former bail bondsmen accused of setting up roadside "marijuana traps" to steal from unsuspecting motorists have pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

Gary Parker, 22, a former reserve deputy in San Jacinto County and the son of former Sheriff James C. "Humpy" Parker, pleaded guilty Tuesday to one count of conspiracy to deprive the civil rights of a motorist.

James L. Browder was prepared to plead guilty to one count of being an accessory after the fact to conspiracy and Herbert R. Atwood said he would plead guilty to one count of misprision of a felony, or failure to report a felony.

The trio will be sentenced Feb. 17 by U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor.

Parker could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in prison and fined $10,000. Browder could face a five-year, $5,000 maximum punishment and Atwood could face three years in prison and a $500 fine.

Former deputy Robert Rice, also charged in the case, had his case severed from the other defendants Tuesday. No new date was set for his trial.

The four men were charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of several motorists.

A federal indictment accused the four men of operating a lucrative "marijuana trap" to take drugs, weapons and money from drivers they stopped.

Parker's father, "Humpy" Parker, also is charged in the case but will be tried separately.

The elder Parker was earlier convicted of civil rights violations stemming from water torturing prisoners to gain confessions and was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison.

A woman whose car had been stopped by the younger Parker testified earlier that she had been ordered to submit to a strip search.

Kerry Thomas, 22, testified Gary Parker wrestled with her beside her car during a 1981 incident and tried to remove her clothing.

"He told me I had drugs and told me to give them up," Ms. Thomas testified. "I told him that if he thought I had drugs to take me downtown and have a federal officer search me."

Ms. Thomas said the scuffle followed.

The four men were accused of operating a lucrative "marijuana trap" to take drugs, weapons and money from drivers they stopped.

Brain disorder cited in defense testimony

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A brain disorder may have hampered the ability of a Conroe man accused of kidnapping another man and burying him alive for four days to determine right from wrong, a defense witness has testified.

Dr. Rudy Roden, a University of Texas Medical Branch associate professor of psychiatry, said Tuesday that Ronald Floyd White was suffering from the disorder in September 1982, when he allegedly abducted Michael Baucom, 22, of Santa Fe, and buried him alive for four days while trying to collect a $75,000 ransom.

White has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

"The fact that one is crazy doesn't mean that one is stupid," Roden replied when Assistant Galveston County District Attorney Jim James asked if the disorder would prevent a person from planning and carrying out a crime.

Dr. Martin Caperton of Conroe, who treated White for high blood pressure in 1981, testified that if White suffered from the disorder, called encephalopathy, he probably would not have been able to carry out the alleged crime or some of the simplest of daily activities.

Encephalopathy, commonly called organic brain syndrome, may be caused by very high blood pressure and consequent brain hemorrhaging that can't be detected by the most sophisticated medical brain scanning devices, Caperton said.

Earlier Tuesday, White's wife, Phyllis, 40, read a letter he wrote her just weeks before Baucom was kidnapped.

In the letter, White said he had the "power and the sorcery to slay the dragon. My powers are getting stronger."

White had no reaction as his wife read another letter he wrote from the Galveston County Jail shortly after his arrest.

"They will come for me soon," the letter said. "There is another dimension and I should have been there from the beginning and not with all of you."

White apparently was referring to "shrouded figures" that he said recur in his nightmares and that he has portrayed in his paintings.

Defense attorneys have maintained that the figures prove his increasing mental illness, and Dr. Roden told the jury that organic brain syndrome could account for White's claims that the shrouded figures threaten him.

If convicted, White could receive a prison sentence ranging from five years to life.

White, 38, a self-taught electrical engineer, also is accused of kidnapping two other men in Montgomery and Live Oak counties while trying to avoid arrest in Baucom's abduction.

Trust officer given prison sentence

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A former trust officer at InterFirst Bank Wichita Falls was sentenced Tuesday to three years in prison for embezzling $10,000 from the bank.

Greg James, 29, pleaded guilty in September to a charge of misapplying fiduciary trust funds May 25.

In return for the plea, prosecutors dismissed charges that he embezzled another $90,000.

James said he took the money to pay off some gambling debts.

His attorney, Hank Anderson Jr., several of James' called church and business associates to the stand during nearly two hours of character testimony.

But U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson later told

James, "I am not going to grant you probation Mr. James. What you committed is a very serious offense. It involves what is by any standard a great deal of money."

Final arguments set in smuggling, slavery trial

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two illegal aliens testified they were fed only every other day and forced to work as slaves at a tree farm to pay for their 500-mile journey in the back of a small trailer from the border to East Texas.

Steven Crawford, 20, of Center, who ran the farm, and Randall Waggoner, 22, of Nacogdoches, were indicted by a federal grand jury in June on 24 counts of transporting illegal aliens and keeping them in involuntary servitude.

Three of the smuggling charges and two of the slavery counts were dismissed on a defense motion Tuesday because the Mexicans named in the charges were not mentioned by government witnesses.

Each of the remaining charges carry possible prison sentences of five years and fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys finished their questioning Tuesday afternoon and were expected to begin final arguments today.

Julio Martinez-Rios and Antonio Arias-Cardosa said through an interpreter Tuesday that they were forced to plant pine seedlings, were not paid for any of their work and were fed every other day.

Crawford did not testify, but Waggoner admitted transporting 19 Mexicans from Rocksprings to Center in a 5-by-8 foot U-Haul trailer on Feb. 11. However, Waggoner denied that the Mexicans were held against their will.

"They were free to leave whenever they wanted to," Waggoner said. "I was an employee just like they were. I had sympathy for them myself."

Tuesday, Waggoner at first denied knowing that the Mexicans were illegal aliens when he drove them to Center, near the Louisiana border. But on cross-examination he admitted he had rigged the trailer doors shut so that the Mexicans would not be discovered.

Waggoner said he worked for Crawford about 45 days supervising Mexicans on the tree farm.

Arias-Cardosa testified Monday that the Mexicans were told they had to work two weeks to pay for the 500-mile trip from Rocksprings near the Mexican border.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Centralia is not the burning issue

Among $302 million worth of water projects and other ornaments on this year's congressional Christmas-tree bill was a relatively small appropriation of $42 million that allows the government to buy some real estate.

The property in question is the entire town of Centralia, Pa., beneath which a coal-mine fire has been burning for 21 years. Although the 1,000 residents of Centralia have been, not unexpectedly, fearful of living above the underground inferno, most have lived with it for many years now - until a government-funded study last year suggested that the extent and intensity of the fire was greater than had been earlier thought.

Since then, action by the federal government has been nearly inevitable. Last year's study offered only two options: excavate and extinguish the fire (priced at $600 million) or buy Centralia and move it elsewhere (priced at about $50 million).

Aside from the relative costs, the federal government already had set the precedent for buying out and moving Centralia, similar - and more costly - relocations have occurred at Love Canal, N.Y., and Times Beach, Mo. Thus it was inevitable, it seems, that Centralia, too, would be bought. What other option did the government have to offer the long-suffering residents who lived above a literal Hell?

There was, not surprisingly, little consideration given a third alternative: that is, do nothing. It sounds heartless, but it is nothing more than the recognition that perhaps the federal government (the taxpayers) really has no responsibility to hold communities harmless from the results of natural and man-made disasters.

The ultimate cost of the notion that the federal government has such a responsibility is staggering. There are more than 400 toxic waste sites on the government's Superfund list for clean-up. Given the precedents cited here, when does it become politically possible for Congress to turn down a request for relocation?

It is not altogether clear, in fact, that the risks actually made relocation from Love Canal, Times Beach and Centralia necessary, or that individuals exposed to the risk were not capable of making their own decisions about remaining (there is a waiting list of people who want to move in to the empty houses at Love Canal). No, the government's actions in each case clearly were politically motivated responses to hysteria and scare tactics.

What we fear is that, the precedent having been set on such questionable grounds, tax-funded buy-outs and relocations of entire communities have now become the accepted response to any calamity.

Taxes 'Right Stuff' for Glenn

On November 4, a last minute poll by the Columbus Dispatch showed that Ohio voters were poised to make history - by passing a referendum (Question 3) to repeal Governor Richard Celeste's 90-percent income tax increase.

Despite being outspent nearly four to one, and despite outrageous abuse of power by the public employee unions and bureaucrats that spent taxpayer funds to defeat them, the non-partisan Stop Excessive Taxation Committee (SET) felt confident that they would still squeak by.

But then, Ohio's favorite son and keeper of the "Right Stuff", Senator John Glenn began appearing on virtually all the state's television and radio stations with a powerful plea to voters to defeat the tax reductions referendum.

"Every time I turned on the set there was John Glenn telling me to vote against Question 2 and 3," said Ohio University Prof. Richard Vedder, one of SET's founders. "He was everywhere - and he was effective." Ohio voters rejected the measure by a whopping 60-40 margin. "It wasn't even close," Vedder admits.

Whether Glenn was responsible for this enormous turnaround in public sentiment may be debatable. The public may have been confused by the opposition's use of the same red "stop-sign" SET logo, with the words "Stop Unfair Taxes, Vote No." As Dennis Bechtel of SET said, "They stole our campaign symbols."

There's no doubt that Glenn invested all his considerable political capital to sustain the largest state income tax increase in U.S. history. For a man trying to project himself as the more-conservative or "centrist" Democrat presidential candidate, this could be a case of winning a battle and losing the war. Certainly it's a departure from Glenn's 1981 decision to support and vote for President Reagan's three-year income tax cut.

Walter Mondale has been excoriating the former astronaut for this "support of voodoo economics," and Glenn now seems to be trying to "atone" by turning into the nation's number 2 advocate of higher taxes - right behind Senator Robert Dole (R.-Kans.).

Just ten days after his triumphant "victory" for the pro-tax forces in Ohio, Glenn told a Georgetown University audience that he now favors a 10-percent surtax on personal and corporate incomes as his answer to the bulging federal deficits.

And, as if that $40-billion annual tax increase weren't enough, Glenn renewed his earlier call for "an indefinite postponement of indexing personal income taxes for inflation," a move that would have ten times as much impact on those earning under $20,000 as those earning over $50,000.

In short, it is now apparent that Glenn has decided that "the right stuff" for America in 1984 is new taxes. And in so doing, it would seem he has already begun to forfeit his "centrist" advantage over Mondale. By contrast, Mondale hasn't breathed a word about new taxes.

James Johnson, Mondale's acting campaign manager, crowed: "This shows the desperation of the Glenn campaign. First Glenn voted for voodoo economics; now he's using voodoo arithmetic to attack Mondale. I don't blame him for wanting to shift the spotlight from his support of $200-billion deficits."

At the same time, Mondale doesn't hesitate to promise every special interest group in the book vast new spending programs including $11 billion for education, billions in new export subsidies to appease the heavy industry income unions, and restoration of virtually all of Reagan's too-modest social program spending cuts. Glenn's dilemma is that facing attempting to stake out the "centrist" position these days. On the one hand you have to deplore the deficits, but on the other hand you dare not offend people on either side by cutting either social program or defense spending. This leaves only one alternative, to support, as Glenn has, vast new tax increases - hardly an appetizing political or economic platform for any presidential candidate.

And, his rousing and successful efforts to stop blue-collar tax revolt in Ohio may have won him some short-term political capital with public employees, but it has aligned him with the same powerful special spending interests that have captured Mondale. Which is to say John Glenn's fence - straddling voting record, coupled with his lackluster legislative record, and sporadic speaking style may not be the "right stuff" to launch his presidential campaign into orbit.

That may explain why Chuck Yeager, the heroic test pilot for whom Tom Wolfe coined his book title, has become one of President Reagan's strongest backers, deciding perhaps that "the right stuff" is now on the "right wing."

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 7, the 31st day of 1983. There are 24 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 7, 1941, Japan bombed Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, triggering U.S. involvement in World War II.

On this date: In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1917, the United States declared war on Austria-Hungary.

In 1944, Macy's rang up more than $1 million in sales in one day at its New York City department store - the first retail store to do so.

And in 1953, Ford Motor Co. introduced the Mercury Sun Valley, a sports coupe with green-tinted transparent plexiglass over the front section of the roof.

Ten years ago: In his first news conference as vice president, Gerald Ford predicted that when the facts were known, President Richard Nixon would be exonerated of wrongdoing in the Watergate affair.

Five years ago: The Army, Navy and Air Force began reviewing policies concerning homosexuals after a federal appeals court ruling limited the practice of automatically discharging homosexuals from the military.

One year ago: The House of Representatives voted to delete money to produce the MX missile in 1983.

Today's birthdays: Actor Eli Wallach is 68. Actor Ted Knight is 60.

Thought for today: "I must fight if I would win. Anything worth having is worth fighting for." - Lord Nelson, British naval commander (1758-1805).

'It's not that I don't trust you'

Ever since President Reagan gave his okay to allow the use of lie detector tests to find out who was leaking to the press, the atmosphere in the White House has been heavy with mistrust and suspicion.

I know this because someone leaked to me what took place during a recent meeting in the president's Cabinet room.

The president came in. "Where's Jim Baker?"

"He's in the lie detector room taking a test concerning the Carter briefing book investigation."

"Where's Bill Casey?"

"He's going over the results with his lawyers of the one he took yesterday."

"All right. Let's begin. Who leaked the story to Evans and Novak that we were deploying a Pershing II missile in the Rose Garden?"

"It wasn't me, sir. I haven't talked to Evans and Novak in a month."

"You're lying, Meese. I saw you having lunch with Novak last week."

"Don't call me a liar, Deaver. I'm telling the truth."

"Tell it to the polygraph machine," Deaver snarled.

The president said, "All right, gentlemen. Let's cool down. How many people knew about the Rose Garden deployment?"

Robert McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, said, "There was Secretary of Defense Weinberger, you, myself, Meese, Baker, Deaver and the gardener. You didn't tell Mrs. Reagan, did you?"

The president replied, "No, I didn't want to upset her until they started pouring the concrete over the roses. I'd like everyone to take a test as soon as this meeting is over. A leak like this could start a panic in the country."

"Sir, wouldn't it be easier to have a lie detector machine in the Cabinet room so we could find out who was lying right on the spot?" Deaver suggested.

"No," the president replied. "We'd be so busy taking tests we'd never get any work done. Were there any results on the leak to the Washington Post of what the deficit was really going to be in 1985?"

"Nothing concrete. The FBI polygraph director said he caught people lying about other things, but everyone came out clean on the budget deficit," Meese reported.

"Well, someone leaked it," the president said.

Deaver said, "The director was wondering if you might consent to taking a test to make his investigation complete."

"I've never leaked anything to the Post in my life," Mr. Reagan thundered. "Besides, whoever heard of a president of the U.S. submitting to a lie detector test?"

"It would be very bad politically," Meese agreed. "Particularly since the media would demand the results of the test."

Jim Baker and Bill Casey came into the room.

"How did you do?" Deaver asked them.

Baker was smiling. "I passed with flying colors."

Everyone looked at Casey. He said, "My lawyers assure me when I told the lie detector I couldn't remember seeing the briefing book I was telling the truth."

Baker said, "I'll bet."

"All right," said the president, "let's knock it off. We all know there is a mole in the White House and I'm going to find out who it is if it's the last thing I do. Are there any other methods of getting the truth out of people besides a polygraph test?"

Casey said, "The CIA has other methods." "What are they?" the president asked.

"Well, for one thing, we could put the electrodes on other parts of the body."

Everyone looked at the president in horror.

"I'd rather not go that route at the moment," Mr. Reagan said. "If the media got wind of it they would say I don't trust my staff."

'Lifeline' an idea for the times

A new organization that bears promise is "Lifeline," recently formed by the Social Service department of Lima (O.) Memorial Hospital. It is designed to save the lives of people who have faulty hearts that may quit at any moment.

People living alone are in special danger. They may suffer a sudden collapse and be unable to let neighbors know about it. Such a person needs a way to send out a signal, calling a neighbor to come, give aid, and if necessary call an ambulance to take them to the hospital. One can do this if he is a member of Lifeline.

The essential equipment is a small radio transmitter which each member carries at all times. Whenever he has an attack, he presses a button which operates the transmitter. It sends a call to the hospital, which may be ten or twenty miles away. The people operating Lifeline immediately phone one or more "responders," who are neighbors of the stricken member and who will go to his rescue. They check his condition, call police and get an ambulance if necessary to get him to the hospital.

The responders, maybe three or four different neighbors, have agreed to "respond" for him when called. Presumably, at least one of their numbers will be at home and will act promptly. If none respond, the Lifeliners at the hospital call the police, who check the ailing person and call an ambulance if necessary.

To be protected in this manner costs the Lifeline member $10 a month. He also must have a private telephone, which costs about $6 a month more than my 4-party line. The cost of the transmitter is borne by the hospital.

Already, Lifeline has a growing membership. My guess is that it will continue to grow and that similar organizations will be set up in other areas.

They are a response to the risk that is incurred when people live alone, as more and more are doing. In turn they will encourage people to retain their own homes - people who now hesitate to do so because of the risk they are running. Perhaps they should be called "reassurance societies," for they reassure both the member and his relatives and friends.

Examples of how lives have been saved, thanks to Lifeline membership, should be published in the press.

Shultz sees meeting with Gromyko

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today predicted the allies will send foreign ministers to a disarmament conference in Stockholm next month, creating the opportunity for him to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"Surely if we are both there, I will be more than ready to meet with Mr. Gromyko," Shultz said at a news conference. He said he will do what he can "to make such a meeting possible."

Shultz said Tuesday he would discuss the possibility of a meeting with Gromyko when he goes to Brussels today to meet with NATO foreign ministers. He indicated he expected them to approve.

NATO defense ministers were concluding a separate two-day meeting in Brussels today. Thirty-five nations are scheduled to attend the European Disarmament Conference, which opens Jan. 17. Shultz said he and West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher discussed the possibility of having foreign ministers attend the opening session.

"It's an important conference and there are strong arguments for the presence of foreign ministers to emphasize our commitment to it and its importance," Shultz said.

Shultz and Genscher held a joint news conference before Shultz left for Brussels.

In a statement, Shultz said he and Genscher agreed to continue with the present course of deploying medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe while emphasizing a willingness to negotiate a missile agreement with Moscow.

The Soviet Union broke off those talks Nov. 23 after NATO began deploying new U.S. missiles in Europe. But Shultz said the United States remains ready to negotiate "at any and all times."

A Shultz-Gromyko meeting could produce a signal of Moscow's readiness to return to the Geneva talks on intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are expected to reaffirm their decision to deploy 572 U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe, while holding the door open for Moscow to return to the Geneva talks.

NATO defense ministers also were expected to send a fresh appeal today to Moscow to resume the negotiations.

But it appeared unlikely either NATO group would offer concessions for a resumption of the talks.

The European defense ministers discussed merging the Geneva talks on long-range nuclear missiles with those on medium-range arms as one way of giving disarmament a new impetus.

But U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger reiterated U.S. objections to the merger idea.

Gas discovered in Fort Bend County

HOUSTON (AP) — Aminoil Inc., a subsidiary of R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc. of Winston-Salem, N.C., has discovered natural gas at a wildcat well in Fort Bend County, officials announced Tuesday.

J.B. Coffman, Aminoil's president and chief operating officer, said a 55-hour tests at the Denton A. Cooley No. 1 well produced 1.98 million cubic feet of natural gas and 50 barrels of condensate per day.

The depth of the well is 14,600 feet.

Aminoil holds 50 percent interest in the well and is operator of the venture. The Anschutz Corp. holds the remaining 50 percent.

Aminoil, the nation's second largest independent petroleum exploration and production company, processes natural gas to extract byproducts, markets crude oil, natural gas and other petroleum products and develops and sells geothermal steam for use in electricity generation.

Expecting the unexpected?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — To read the economic forecasts coming out in recent days is sort of like opening your Christmas presents early. They are that good.

So good, in fact, that readers whose nerves are worn thin from their economic experience of the past few years might find in them a nagging source of concern.

How do you avoid suspicions when you recall that the consensus forecast made one year ago didn't prepare people for the burst of energy that ensued? — when it was off the mark, and when performance greatly exceeded the forecast?

Walter Fackler, the well-known professor of business economics at the University of Chicago, didn't foresee the size of the recovery either, but this did not prevent him from making his annual look at the year to come.

In the world of economics it seems that you re-establish your forecasting credentials merely by confessing errors and getting them out of the way, which is what Fackler did this week when the university's annual forecast was issued.

"We are in the midst of a whacking good economic upswing," his written report began. "The recovery has outrun all expectations voiced a year ago — including my own," he confessed.

Fackler's forecast last year was for a stronger recovery than foreseen by the consensus, but it still wasn't strong enough. At midyear, in keeping with a long tradition of forecasting, which is to forecast often, he raised his estimates. Still, he said, the economy turned out even stronger.

Last year he forecast a 3.5 percent rise in real (inflation-adjusted) output for the year as a whole, and a 5 percent increase when measured from fourth quarter to fourth quarter.

"It is clear now," he conceded, "that we will have at least 3.5 percent real growth over the 1982 average, and around 6.5 percent growth from yearend to yearend."

With the debris cleared from the table, the way was now clear for a look into 1984. "The present strength of the recovery and the momentum which has built up makes 1984 an easy year to forecast," he began.

The Conference Board, which convenes a forum of a dozen authorities with differing perspectives on the economy, has also indicated that 1984 poses little problem. It will be a strong year, said forum members.

Albert Sommers, Conference Board economist and forum chairman, summed up the outlook: "We see no local explosions and no virtuoso performances in any sector of the economy next year," he announced Monday.

"Instead," he continued, "we expect a broadly distributed expansion, as distinguished from the powerful but not fully coordinated recovery of 1983."

Female panda at National Zoo ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ling-Ling, the National Zoo's female giant panda whose rocky love life has captivated America, is "seriously ill" with kidney failure and her chances of recovery are poor.

Robert Hoag, special assistant to the zoo director, said Tuesday night Ling-Ling is suffering from kidney dysfunction and severe secondary anemia.

"Her kidneys are impaired and ultimately may fail," Hoag said. "We have a seriously ill panda. Her prognosis for recovery is poor."

Hoag said blood tests taken Tuesday afternoon showed the 12-year-old panda "to be extremely anemic and there is evidence of kidney failure."

He said that as of Tuesday night, veterinarians had ruled out a kidney transplant or dialysis.

Hoag said Ling-Ling was anesthetized Tuesday afternoon and given a transfusion of blood from Hsing-Hsing, the zoo's male panda, "to boost her critically low red blood cell count." He added that she was being treated with antibiotics as well.

"Ling-Ling's medical condition is much more serious than her general condition indicates," Hoag said. "We hope it can be treated. However, her prognosis for recovery is poor. Her condition is not something that can last forever."

Hoag said Ling-Ling's problem was first discovered on Nov. 25. She was lethargic, didn't eat and passed blood in her urine.

"The day before she was active and appeared to be in good health," Hoag said. He added that on Nov. 26, she was given antibiotics for a suspected urinary infection and that the treatment continued for six days.

"After the treatment, her condition improved, but improvement was not sustained," Hoag said.

He added that Hsing-Hsing's blood cell count is normal and that the male panda "is in good health."

Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing have been America's first and only giant panda couple for more than a decade. Their off-again, on-again love life has been romanticized, scrutinized, analyzed, televised; their sex life has been ridiculed, their failures photographed.

After seven years of unsuccessful mating, imported panda lovers and several trials of artificial insemination, Ling-Ling became pregnant and gave birth to a panda cub last July. But the baby died in its mother's arms when it was only three hours old, suffering from a buildup of fluid in its chest cavity. Extensive tests made public a few weeks ago proved Hsing-Hsing to be the father.

Giant pandas, thought to be members of the raccoon family, are rare outside China. Three pandas have been born in Mexico City; two survived. Twin pandas were born last year in Madrid, and one survived.

Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing were given to the United States by the People's Republic of China during President Nixon's historic visit to that country in 1972.

President Reagan has scheduled a trip to China this spring.

Shiite threat prompted dump truck deployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service blocked White House entrances with sand-filled dump trucks after receiving reports that Shiite Moslems planned to blow up the presidential mansion, The Washington Post said in Wednesday editions.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified sources, said police in Manassas, Va., received an anonymous letter warning that Shiites planned to ram the State Department headquarters on Thanksgiving Day with a truck filled with explosives.

The Secret Service then received information, possibly from foreign sources, that the Shiites planned to blow up the White House, the Post said.

Jack Smith, a spokesman for the Secret Service, declined to comment on the Post story. "We have never discussed any of our intelligence," he said. "It doesn't do us any good to air that in public."

He called the report "sheer speculation." Trucks laden with sand were placed at White House entrances on Thanksgiving Day, one day after patrol cars and vans were used to block entrances to the State Department.

SECURITY AT BUNKER — U.S. Marine Pfc. Jim McGuire, from Mung, Ind., equipped with an automatic rifle-grenade launcher, stands guard Tuesday as Marines in the background rebuild a rooftop sandbagged bunker that was destroyed Sunday night. Eight Marines were killed and two wounded when the bunker took a direct hit from a 120mm mortar shell. The bunker was hit during an exchange of fire between Druse militiamen and U.S. Marines.

Continental seeks employee stock plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines has filed for registration of a stock membership plan which officials say will initially give employees ownership of almost five percent of the carrier and up to nine percent ownership during the next two years.

"This plan provides employees of Continental an immediate share in the airline's profitability," Chairman Frank Lorenzo said in a prepared statement.

The proposal, along with a profit-sharing plan, was submitted for approval to the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Houston last week, said Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks.

The company filed for registration of the plan Monday with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Hicks said.

The economically-troubled carrier, which in September sought protection from its creditors under federal bankruptcy laws, filed with the commission to register two million shares of Continental common stock.

One million shares, now owned by the parent company Texas Air Corp., will be given as bonuses to workers employed by the airline on Oct. 31, officials said. The remaining one million shares will be available on an option-to-purchase basis during the next two years.

"The employees of the new Continental will be significant partners in the company," Lorenzo said.

The first phase of the plan calls for one million shares to be distributed equally among about 4,000 employees as bonuses. The second phase will allow the employees to voluntarily purchase an equal number of shares at 85 percent of the current market price at the time the plan is approved and implemented.

Employees also will participate in the profit-sharing plan, which will provide 15 percent to 25 percent of the company's profits to employees.

Steady volunteer says he's paid in smiles

By SUSAN McCARY
Sulphur Springs News-Telegram
SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — Lawson Peugh is a square-shouldered man with the strong square hands of a laborer and the ruddy and roughened skin of a man who has spent 40 or more years in hay fields. He is the kind of man who would look in place on a construction site, or in a dairy barn or on a tractor.

Now, he looks in place in a Northeast Texas center for children with multiple disabilities.

One morning about nine years ago, the retired grandfather brought his wife, Lou Jane, to her job as a teacher at the Hopkins County Opportunity Center and stopped to look in. "I saw things that needed to be done, so I offered to help," said the soft-voiced Peugh.

The center, a part of the Denton State School's Mental Health-Mental Retardation outreach program, provides therapy, educational services and day care for children with multiple handicaps. It opened in its present location on Church Street 12 years ago.

Doris Rawls, director of the center, said a number of people volunteer to help at the center "but they come and go. Lawson has been here so long that I don't think that any of us can really remember when he wasn't here for us whenever we needed him."

Peugh, when asked what kind of services he does for the center, thought for a minute and said with a slow, easy smile. "It would be easier for me to tell what I don't do." He paused and then added, "I don't change diapers, but I don't know if you should say anything about that."

Over the years, Peugh, in addition to doing a lengthy list of handyman chores of painting, carpentry, yard work and all manner of things that it takes to keep an old, large frame house habitable and functional, also keeps the center's bus running, fills in as substitute bus driver and rescues stranded center personnel when their own transportation fails.

He also washes dishes, feeds children and helps to exercise stiffened and palsied limbs of children who do not have control of their arms and legs. He is often the arms and legs for students who cannot stand, sit or feed themselves.

Most of all, Mrs. Rawls said, he is a warm, loving grandfather to all of the children, and someone who can get a smile from a child when the rest of the staff cannot get the smallest response.

Peugh, who spent most of his adult life doing farm work and running a dairy, said an early retirement, forced on him by a medical problem, suddenly left him with a lot of vacant hours to fill. At that time, he was worried about what he could do to occupy himself. "But now I find that I don't have enough hours in the day," he said.

Working with young children, especially children with so many needs and problems, is not something that most men would find satisfying, but for him it has become an important part of his life. "I've just fallen in love with all of these children," and with a little twinkle in his eye, he added, "the teachers, too."

At the center, different members of the staff passed through the room as Peugh watched several napping children. They stopped to tell of times that Peugh had helped out in a difficult moment, or day, or even filled in for an absent teacher for several weeks. Each time, Peugh's ears glowed red from embarrassment at all the attention he was receiving.

Mrs. Rawls added that Peugh is modest to the point of being shy, "and I guess that makes it easy for us just to take him for granted. He just comes in and does whatever we need done. We've become so used to it that we don't even stop to say thank you, and that's the only way he gets."

Peugh said firmly, "I get paid with every smile I get — with the eyes that light up when they see me."

Peugh added that in some ways he has discovered some of the joys of parenting that he missed with his own children.

Grenada invasion contributes to one-party rule in Jamaica

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The U.S. invasion of Grenada has contributed indirectly to the concentration of unprecedented political power in the hands of one man and one party in Jamaica.

With elections less than two weeks away, Prime Minister Edward Seaga's conservative Jamaican Labor Party is virtually assured winning all 60 seats in parliament following the withdrawal of former Prime Minister Michael Manley's People's National Party, affiliated with the Socialist International.

The prospect of one-party rule has caught everyone by surprise, even Seaga. Some observers are alarmed by the situation.

"The exclusion of the PNP (People's National Party) from the country's parliament is a threat to stable politics in Jamaica," said Carl Stone, a political scientist without ties to either party and whose accurate opinion polls encouraged Seaga's successful power play.

Seaga's decision to hold elections on Dec. 15, two years before they were scheduled, was influenced by a surge of popularity resulting from his support for the Grenada invasion by the United States.

It was Manley's decision not to contest the elections which assured Seaga of a one-party parliament.

Since the Jamaican parliamentary system allows unopposed candidates to win elections in their constituencies without any balloting, 54 of Seaga's party candidates were elected automatically on Nomination Day Nov. 29.

Elections will be held in the other six constituencies, but no one doubts the ruling party's candidates will easily defeat their opponents, who are independents or members of tiny parties with negligible support.

Manley says he didn't field candidates because the election will use an outdated voters list which he claims opens the door to fraud.

Although Manley denies it, it is widely believed that he didn't contest the elections because he was not prepared for them. He had been leading Seaga in opinion polls since the fall of 1982, but fell behind when the Grenada crisis began in October.

Stone puts it this way: "The JLP (Seaga's party) wanted an election date that minimized its chances of losing the support built up over Grenada, while the PNP (Manley's party) could not face the starter as its jockey was out of shape and overweight and not ready to ride."

"The country is bigger than both JLP and PNP, and a way has to be found to climb back from the edge of the political precipice we now face," Stone said in a column published in the Daily Gleaner newspaper.

Seaga announced on Nov. 25 that he would dissolve parliament, gave only four days for candidates to be named for the 60 constituencies and limited campaigning to 15 days.

Seaga was elected in October 1980 for a five-year term of office, although under the constitution he can call early elections whenever he wants. His new term of office will be for another five years.

Seaga blames Manley for precipitating the elections by demanding the former's resignation as finance minister — a post he holds in addition to prime minister — after he announced a 77 percent devaluation of the Jamaican currency and disclosed that Jamaica had failed to meet performance criteria established by the International Monetary Fund in exchange for loans.

Seaga said the resignation call undermined his leadership and forced him to seek a new mandate from the people to continue with his economic belt-tightening.

Ironically, Manley's decision not to field candidates kept Seaga from getting a clear expression of public support.

There are signs that Seaga, with a reputation as a champion of representative democracy, is uncomfortable with the voteless victory. He talks vaguely of creating the "mechanism" for giving the Jamaican people full representation without an opposition party in parliament.

Manley says his party's opposition will continue outside parliament and has named 60 party representatives to a shadow parliament which will meet once a month to express opposition positions.

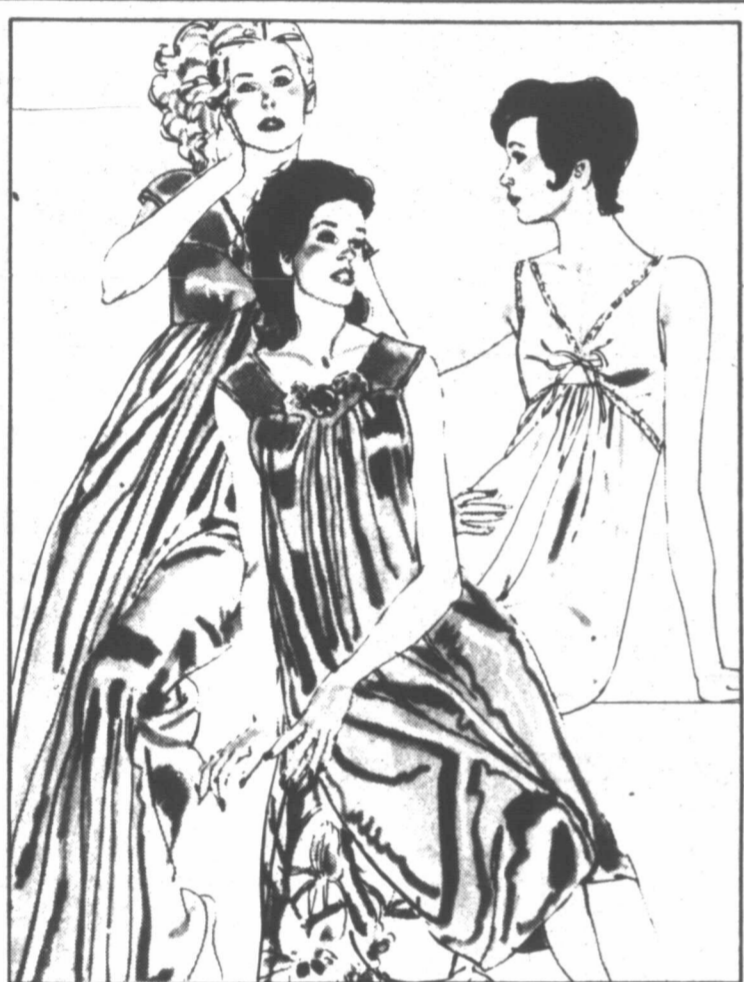

Seaga said one reason he sought early elections was to assure investors of a secure political climate before they committed their dollars to Jamaica, an island nation the size of Maryland with a population of 2.2 million.

Even Seaga's supporters tend to agree with Manley's assessment that investors will be wary of a government which sidestepped the electoral process, the bedrock of our stable two-party democracy which, up to now, has been regarded as a model in the world.

Manley has offered a way out of the impasse by saying his party will participate in the first elections held after new voter identification cards are issued and the voters list prepared. They are expected to be ready within six months.

In press conferences and political rallies, Manley has challenged Seaga to contest elections then. But by then, however, the question will be whether Seaga will feel obliged to hold new parliamentary elections before 1988, when his new term of office will expire.

Board rescinds dividend and by-law

HOUSTON (AP) — The board of directors of Superior Oil Co. has rescinded the convertible preferred stock dividend and a by-law that would have abolished a procedure for company shareholders seeking action by written consent.

The board, in a statement released by the Houston-based company, said it hoped the action would terminate all litigation between the company and Howard Keck, the company's largest single shareholder. The board said the dividend declared Nov. 23 was designed to protect Superior shareholders from an unfair takeover and to assure all shareholders were treated equally.

Keck owns 18.7 percent of the 123.5 million outstanding share of Superior Oil, the nation's largest independent oil and gas producer.

According to the by-law adopted Nov. 30, a shareholder wishing to have any action taken in writing rather than a general shareholder's meeting must ask the board to establish a date of record for determining holders entitled to express consent.

The board said Keck has requested adoption of a resolution providing for the active participation of the company in his effort to sell his stock by selling the entire company. The board declined.

Dear Abby

Niece fears her uncle's touches

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem I can't talk to anybody about. I have an uncle who everybody thinks is the greatest. He's 39 and married.

Lately he has been pulling me on his lap, feeling me, and trying to give me grown-up kisses on the mouth. He used to be my favorite uncle, but now I feel funny when he gets near me.

I can't prove that he has done anything wrong because he really hasn't, but I think he would if he got the chance.

If I told my mother she probably wouldn't believe me. I don't have a father, so I can't tell him. My uncle comes over a lot and wants to teach me how to drive. I'd like to learn, but I really am afraid to get into his car and go for a ride because of this funny feeling that comes over me when he touches me. I don't think it's just my imagination.

What should I do?

ASHAMED AND AFRAID

DEAR ASHAMED: It is not your imagination. That "funny feeling" you get is a warning signal.

The next time you see your uncle, tell him that you do not want to sit on his lap, that you do not want him to put his hands on you and that you do not want any "grown-up" kisses. Tell him that if he tries to do any of these things, you will tell your mother. And if she doesn't believe you, tell another adult—a relative, a teacher or your minister.

Don't be afraid, honey. And don't be ashamed. You have done nothing wrong. Just make sure your uncle knows that you are not to be touched! Please write again soon and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what my correct name is presently, based on the following facts: (1) I was born Janet Sue Flanagan. (2) I married John Donlevy and became Janet Flanagan Donlevy. (3) John died and I recently married George Williams.

Am I now Janet Donlevy Williams, Janet Flanagan Williams or Janet Sue Williams?

JANET

DEAR JANET: When a widow remarries, she has the option of using her first husband's name as a middle name or of dropping his name and using her maiden name. If she was married for a long time and has children, she will undoubtedly prefer to keep the name of the man with whom she spent many years and which identifies her with her children.

So, take your choice: Janet Donlevy Williams or Janet Flanagan Williams.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column in which you quoted the late, beloved Sam Levenson, contained an error.

In listing some outstanding contributions to medical science made by Jews, he credited a Dr. Z. Woronan with the discovery of streptomycin.

Abby, I hope the Nobel Committee in Sweden doesn't hear about this, because in 1952 they awarded the Nobel Prize for medicine to Dr. Selman Waksman of Rutgers University for discovering streptomycin!

However, Dr. Waksman belongs on that list because he, too, was Jewish.

ARTHUR ISBIT, PH.D., CHULA VISTA, CALIF.

The holidays are usually a blend of old and new. It's fun to hang a few new ornaments on the tree, deck the house with some different decorations and try new holiday recipes. But the tradition and customs that are enjoyed year after year are also important for they have special meaning and stir warm, pleasant memories of Christmases past.

When planning Christmas dinner, make it a combination of traditional as well as new foods. For a traditional entree, set an impressive beef rib roast in the place of honor on the holiday table. As the aroma of beef roasting slowly in the oven fills the house, all will know that an old-fashioned Christmas dinner is in the making.

Fortunately, the holiday-special beef roast is not only one of the most delicious entrees you can choose, it is also one of the easiest. The roast practically prepares itself, for once it is placed in a slow oven, no watching or basting is necessary. While cooking time can be estimated, it is best to rely on a roast meat thermometer to determine exact degree of doneness.

For a new offering for dessert, delight diners with Cranberry Yogurt Cloud. Cranberries, a traditional holiday fruit, are presented in up-to-date fashion in a fluffy yogurt and egg white mixture. The result is light and refreshing - the perfect ending to a holiday meal.

Beef Rib Roast

3 to 4 - beef rib roast
Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part of roast. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 F.) to desired degree of doneness. The meat thermometer will register 140 F. for rare; 160 F. for medium; 170 F. for well done.

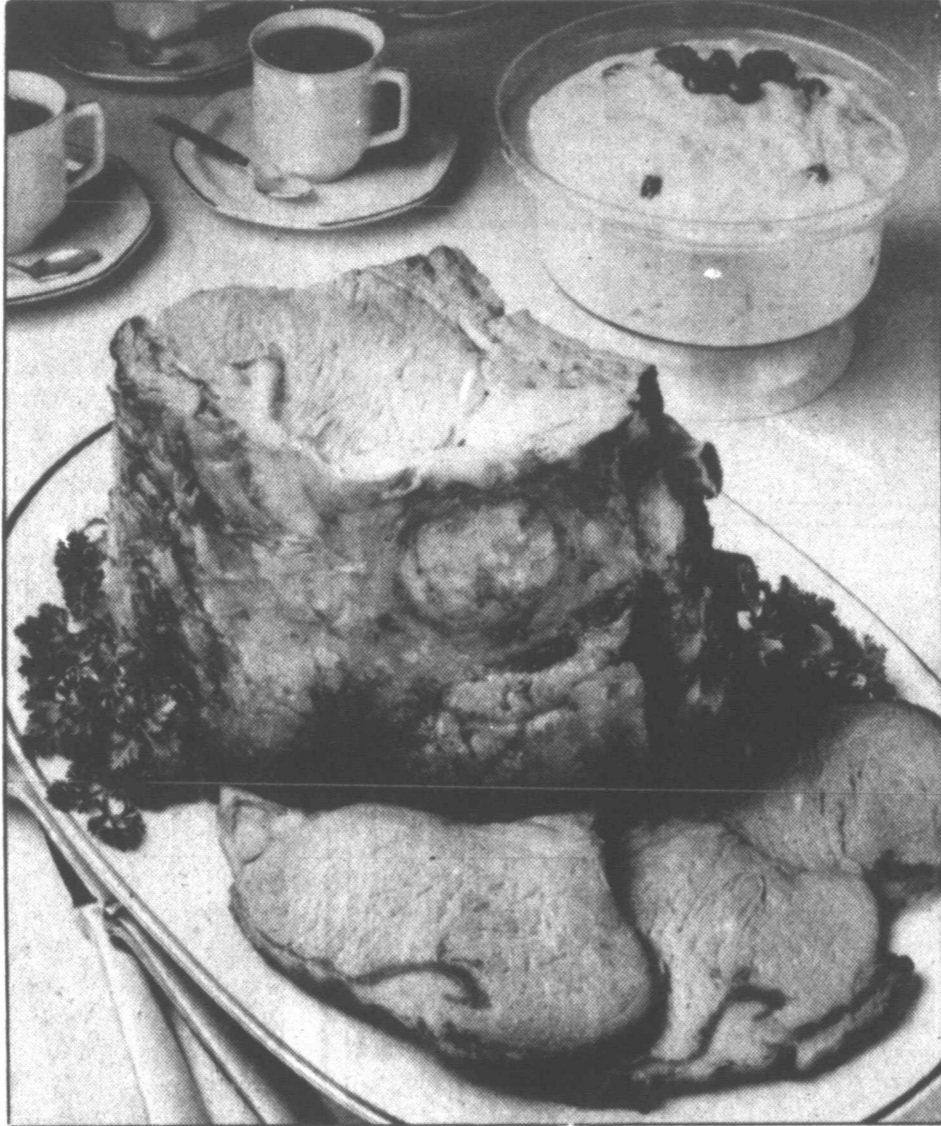

For a 4 to 6 - pound roast, allow 26 to 32 minutes per pound for rare, 34 to 38 minutes for medium and 40 to 42 minutes for well done. For a 6 to 8 - pound, allow 23 to 25 minutes per pound for rare, 27 to 30 minutes for medium and 32 - to 35 for well done. For easier carving, allow roast to "stand" in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven.

Since roasts usually continue to cook after removal from oven, it is best to remove them when the thermometer registers about 5 F. below the temperature of doneness desired.

Cranberry Yogurt Cloud
1 large orange
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2-3rds tablespoons cold water
1 cup cranberries
32 ounces plain yogurt
2 egg whites

Grate orange to obtain 1 tablespoon peel; reserve. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water; reserve. Squeeze orange to obtain 1-3rd cup juice. Combine juice and sugar in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer until sugar is dissolved, stirring frequently. Add cranberries and orange peel and continue cooking 5 to 7 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir softened gelatine into cranberry mixture; cool to room temperature. Combine cranberry mixture and yogurt in large bowl. Chill 15 to 20 minutes. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Fold into yogurt mixture. Chill 30 minutes. Spoon mixture into 6 - cup serving bowl or individual dessert dishes. Chill at least 2 hours. 6 to 8 servings.

KEEP THE tradition of beef for roast. Then try something new for dessert Christmas with an impressive beef rib - Cranberry Yogurt Cloud.

Plan for holiday leftovers

Whether you choose a beef roast, ham, pork roast or leg of lamb for a special holiday dinner, you'll want to buy enough so that you'll have some leftover for a bonus meal or two. Not only will the leftover meat make future meal preparation easier during this time of year, it will also help stretch the budget, another important holiday consideration.

Quick hors d'oeuvres make entertaining simpler

Warm and gracious hospitality has been the hallmark of the holiday season for centuries. It's the time of year when any event can be reason for a party — trimming the tree, wrapping gifts, even caroling can get family and friends in the festive spirit.

But planning these parties can sometimes be difficult. With hors d'oeuvres like Smoked Salmon Canapes, Cucumber Mousse and Puff Pastry Pinwheels, among others, the part will be off to a good beginning.

Smoked Salmon Canapes are as pleasing to the eye as they are to the palate. Smoked salmon is blended with butter and dill then piped through a pastry tube onto slices of party pumpernickel bread. Cucumber slices and parsley are used for garnish.

SMOKED SALMON CANAPES

1-3rd lb. smoked salmon, sliced
5T. butter or margerine, at room temperature
1/4 t. ground pepper
1/4 to 1/2 t. dried dill weed
1 loaf (8 oz.) pumpernickel cucumber slices, cut in half
Put salmon, butter, pepper and dill weed in a food processor or blender. Process until very smooth and pureed. Pack into a pastry bag fitted with a star tip. Pipe salmon butter diagonally on each slice of bread. Cover with plastic wrap and chill until ready to serve. Makes about 20 canapes.

Cucumber Mousse mixes cucumber with yogurt, cream and cottage cheese, green onion and chives to create a cool and creamy spread that is an excellent topping for slices of party rye and pumpernickel breads. The mousse can be made ahead of time and kept refrigerated overnight.

COOL AND CREAMY CUCUMBER MOUSSE

2c. peeled, seeded and diced cucumber (about 1 large)
1T. salt
5T. red wine vinegar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 c. water
1c. plain yogurt
1pkg. (8 oz.) Neufchatel or cream cheese at room temperature
1/2 lb. low-fat cottage cheese
1/4 c. chopped parsley
2T. chopped green onion
1T. chopped chives
1/2 t. sugar

Salt and pepper

Chicory and cherry tomatoes, (optional) for garnish
1 loaf (8 oz.) pumpernickle
Mix cucumber, salt and 3 tablespoons of the vinegar; let stand one hour. Drain and squeeze dry. In a small saucepan sprinkle gelatin over water; let stand five minutes to soften and heat over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves. Whisk gelatin into yogurt. Using an electric mixer, beat Neufchatel cheese with cottage cheese until smooth. Gradually beat in yogurt mixture and then stir in parsley, onion, chives, sugar and 1 to 2 tablespoons of the remaining vinegar. Season with salt and pepper. Pour into a lightly oiled five cup mold and chill four hours or until set. Unmold onto serving plate and garnish with chicory and cherry tomatoes. Serve with party pumpernickel bread.

NOTE: Preparation is even easier if cheeses and yogurt are mixed in a food processor. Add gelatin mixture while machine is running.

The Puff Pastry Pinwheels and Boursin Puffs may sound difficult, but made with frozen puff pastry, the two are easy and unique. Creamy Seafood Dip, another savory, yet uncomplicated hors d'oeuvre, is made with garlic, anchovies and cream. This dip is wonderful with sesame pumpernickel snack sticks and fresh raw vegetables.

PUFF PASTRY PINWHEELS

1 sheet frozen puff pastry
Fillings (listed below)
1 egg beaten with 1T. water
Thaw pastry 20 minutes. Roll a lightly floured surface, roll pastry to a 15 - inch square. Cut into 25 three - inch squares and spread each with one of the fillings listed below.

Cut filled pastry squares from each corner to within 1/2 inch of center. Fold one cut edge of each corner into the center of the square to form a pinwheel. Press down firmly in the center, sealing with egg mixture. Brush pinwheels with more egg mixture and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 25 pinwheels.

FILLINGS:

— 1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese mixed with 1 teaspoon curry powder; top baked pinwheel with chopped chutney.

— Any mustard of your choice such as Dijon, Pommery, German - style or honeycup; top baked pinwheels with ground ham.

— Any cheese spread such as pimiento, blue cheese, bacon and horseradish.

BOURSIN PUFFS

1 sheet frozen puff pastry
1 lg. egg, beaten with 1t. water
1 pkg. Boursin cheese spread
Thaw puff pastry 20 minutes; unfold and brush with egg mixture. Using a pastry wheel, cut pastry into 24 rectangles. Place on an ungreased baking sheet about 1 inch apart and bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes until puffed and browned.

Transfer to a wire rack; when cool, cut each piece of pastry in half horizontally, fill each with cheese spread and return to baking sheet. Just before serving, bake 5 to 10 minutes or until cheese is hot and just begins to melt. Serve immediately. Makes 24 puffs.

CREAMY SEAFOOD DIP

2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can (2 oz.) flat anchovies, drained and finely chopped
4T. butter or margerine
1/4 c. all-purpose flour
2c. heavy cream
1 pkg. pumpernickel snack sticks

1pkg. cheese snacksticks
Assorted fresh raw vegetables

Saute garlic and anchovies in butter for one minute, stirring constantly. Stir in flour and cook one minute longer. Remove from heat and stir in cream, mixing until no lumps of flour

HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING can be made easier if you plan ahead. Here are several unusual hors d'oeuvre ideas: (Clockwise from top left) Cucumber Mousse, Goldfish

Butter Crunch, Creamy Seafood Dip, Puff Pastry Pinwheels and Smoked Salmon Canapes.

Homemade treats for special holiday gifts

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Homemade treats make special gifts for the holidays. These may include jams, jellies, chutneys and relishes.

The quantity need not be great. Small gift jars of your personal favorites say happy holidays in a big way. Start your gifts-from-the-kitchen production now so you will have time to add a cheery bow and a special note when gift-giving time arrives.

KIWI FRUIT FREEZER JAM
3 cups mashed, peeled New Zealand kiwi fruit (about 10 kiwi fruit), at room temperature
1/4 cup lemon juice
5 1/4 cups sugar
3/4 cup water
1 package (1 3/4 ounces) powdered fruit pectin
Sterilized jars with tight-fitting lids, for freezing

In bowl, combine kiwi fruit, lemon juice and sugar. Stir to blend thoroughly; let stand 30 minutes. Meanwhile, mix water and pectin in small saucepan. Bring to full boil; boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into kiwi fruit mixture all at once. Continue stirring 3 minutes. Immediately ladle into sterilized jars, leaving 1/2-inch space at top. Wipe clean with damp towel. Cover with lids. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours, then store in freezer. (Jam also will keep in refrigerator up to 3 weeks.) This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 7 cups.

(Note: This is not a firm jam. It should be of soft, spreadable consistency.)
ROSE CRYSTAL STRAWBERRY JELLY
5 baskets strawberries (about 15 cups)
7 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup strained fresh lemon juice
1 8-ounce bottle liquid pectin

Crush the berries. Mix with 2 cups of the sugar in large kettle. Bring to boil, then simmer 5 minutes. Pour mixture into jelly bag or through a strainer lined with several layers of cheesecloth. Let juices drip without squeezing to keep jelly crystal clear. Measure 3 1/2 cups of juice back into kettle. Stir in remaining sugar and lemon juice. Bring to a boil over high heat, stirring all the time. Stir in pectin and bring to a full, rolling boil. Boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon and pour quickly into hot, sterilized jars. Seal with lids or cover at once with 1/8 inch paraffin. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 7 cups.

STRAWBERRY LEMONADE JELLY

FREEZER jams, such as one made with kiwi fruit, make special holiday gifts.

2 lemons
5 cups cold water
1 basket strawberries, crushed
4 cups sugar

Slice lemons very thin and place in bowl with water. Cover and let stand 18 hours. Pour into a stainless steel saucepan with strawberries; bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 40 minutes. Line colander with several layers of cheesecloth or use jelly bag.

Pour mixture through, letting it drip undisturbed. When mixture stops dripping, measure juice. If it measures more than 4 cups, boil rapidly to reduce to 4 cups. Mix with sugar in large kettle. Boil rapidly until mixture sheets off spoon. Remove from heat, skim foam and ladle into hot jelly glasses. Cover at once with 1/8-inch paraffin. This kitchen-tested recipe makes four 8-ounce jars.

SPICY RAISIN CHUTNEY

2 cups cider vinegar
1 1/2 cups packed brown sugar
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
Grated peel of 3 oranges
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon each allspice and ground cloves
1/8 teaspoon cayenne (optional)
1 cinnamon stick
1 can (13 1/4 ounces) pineapple tidbits, undrained
3 oranges, peeled and cut up
2 apples, peeled, cored and coarsely chopped
1 1/2 cups raisins
1 cup chopped nuts

In large kettle, combine all ingredients except fruits and nuts. Bring to a boil. Boil 5 minutes; then add pineapple, oranges, apples and raisins. Simmer uncovered over medium heat, stirring occasionally until thickened, about 40 to 45 minutes. Stir in nuts. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Place jars on rack in large kettle, covering with water 1 inch above tops of jars. Bring to boil. Boil, covered, 5 minutes. Remove jars, tighten lids if necessary, and cool. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 5 cups. (Note: Omit hot water bath process if chutney is to be used within a month or so. Refrigerate instead.)

EASY CRANBERRY-WALNUT RELISH
3 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
1 1/2 cups orange marmalade
1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped walnuts

In large saucepan, mix cranberries and orange marmalade. Simmer over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture starts to bubble. Cook slowly for 5 minutes or until cranberries are tender but still hold their shape. Remove from heat and stir in walnuts. Chill until ready to serve. Store in refrigerator until used. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 6 cups.

3 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
3 pears, peeled, cored and diced
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 1/2 navel oranges, peeled and cut into chunks, seeds removed
3/4 can (3 ounces) slivered almonds

3/4 cup port wine or sauterne
3 cinnamon sticks
Combine all ingredients in 5-quart Dutch oven and simmer over low heat at a bottle for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour into hot jars, seal, cool and refrigerate until needed. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 4 pints.

Interesting look at American breakfast

By Jacqueline Heriveau

The favorite American breakfast food is cereal. The United States is the only country where cold grain is commonly eaten first thing in the morning.

One hundred years ago, an English listing of breakfast foods included finnan haddie, smoked haddock fillets, sausage, Sally Lunn's (which are rather like English muffins), squab pie and sheep's head with potatoes as typical morning fare.

The French offered frogs' legs. Pickled herring pleased the Dutch. The Tartars ate raw horse flesh. Dog meat was breakfast for the Northwest Indians; curry for East Indians. Hungarians had a cold breakfast early and a hot breakfast later.

The Japanese came to work in Hawaiian plantations where they ate a breakfast of unpolished steamed rice. On the mainland, the average folk ate slightly stale bread and slabs of cold bacon.

In the 1830s, Rev. Sylvester Graham developed a flour retaining the bran in wheat, which was traditionally removed to make fashionably white bread. By 1840, Graham boarding houses had been set up to serve health foods, including Graham's bread, served slightly stale (eventually becoming the Graham cracker.)

Health spas flourished after the Civil War, and a famous vegetarian, James Caleb Jackson, baked and ground up zwieback, which he called granola, to be eaten with a sweetener and milk for breakfast.

Dr. John Harvey Kellogg took this idea to Battle Creek, Mich. He wanted something that encouraged his jaws to chew. There, Kellogg's brother developed corn flakes. Charles W. Post picked up on the Kellogg brothers' idea and called his variation on chewable breakfast food Grape Nuts, which remains today as the hardest of the morning cereals. Post made a corn flake, too, and called it Post Toasties.

Farther west, Dr. Henry Perky developed the process that made shredded wheat. Within the next 100 years, cereals proliferated, but corn flakes still holds 10 percent of the market.

Maple sugar
"In contemplating the present opening prospects of human affairs, I am led to expect that a material part of the general happiness which heaven seems to have prepared for mankind, will be derived from the manufacture and general use of Maple Sugar."

— Benjamin Rush, in a letter to Thomas Jefferson, Aug. 19, 1791

Many retail meat cuts are welcome gifts. Sure to be enjoyed is a regal beef rib roast or an impressive pork or lamb crown roast. Or give a gift box of prestigious beef steaks such as T-bone, Porterhouse, rib eye, strip or sirloin. Or select extra-thick pork loin, rib or butterfly chops or lamb loin or rib chops.

Canned hams are another popular gift choice. Or consider giving a selection of sausages.

FDA reports:

No need to fear microwave radiation

Quietly you place the meatloaf in the oven, quickly you push the starter button and madly you dash for cover. If that's your idea of how you have to cook with a microwave oven, think again.

The Food and Drug Administration set safety standards for all microwave ovens in 1971. The standards limit the amount of microwave leakage over the lifetime of an oven to a level far below that which would harm anyone. The FDA has also published a pamphlet that describes how you are protected and how to use microwave ovens safely. For your free copy of Microwave Oven Radiation, send your name and address to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 594L, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Microwaves are not very mysterious or very complicated. They are, in fact, electromagnetic energy. The energy particles travel through the air in waves just like radio waves. These waves are reflected by metal but pass through glass, paper and ceramic cookware.

In your oven, microwaves are produced by a magnetron. The waves bounce off the metal interior walls until they are absorbed by the food. Only the outer layers of the food actually absorb the microwaves and become heated. The inner layers are cooked by the conduction of heat from the hot outer layers.

For this reason special steps are needed when cooking thick foods, such as roasts. To insure more even cooking, turn the roast a couple of times while cooking, and then let it sit covered with foil for a few minutes before removing it from the oven.

The Department of Agriculture has always warned consumers against eating undercooked pork, and it's particularly important to make sure that pork roasts cooked in a microwave reach a uniform internal temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit to rule out the dangers of trichinosis.

While undercooked pork can be a cause for concern, you don't have to worry about the oven itself. All microwave ovens sold after 1971 are required to pass standard safety tests established by the FDA.

If you have an older oven, or if the hinges, latch, or seal to your oven door is defective, the booklet, Microwave Oven Radiation notes that you should contact the oven manufacturer, your state health department, or your nearest Food and Drug Administration office. They will test your oven or tell you where to go for testing. However, be careful if you decide to test your oven yourself. The FDA has found that many of the home testing devices sold on the market are unreliable or inaccurate.

If you follow the manufacturer's instructions for recommended operating use of a microwave oven, you should be able to put away your worries and have extra time to sit down to a relaxing dinner.

For more information, send for your free copy of Microwave Oven Radiation. At the same time you will also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the U. S. General Services Administration.

Recipe makeovers for healthier meals

In recent years, there has been mounting evidence that the typical American diet — which is high in salt, fats and refined sugar — may be an important factor in the development of heart disease, stroke, high blood pressure and other illnesses.

However, you may not have to give up your favorite recipes for the sake of your family's health. According to a recent Family Circle magazine article, you can make the following substitutions suggested by the New York Heart Association, in many dishes without significantly affecting their taste:

ORIGINAL
butter or lard whole milk cream
sour cream

cream cheese

whole milk cheese

whole egg

1 oz. baking chocolate

salt

soy sauce

SUBSTITUTE
margarine
skim milk
evaporated milk
yogurt

Tomato-artichoke molds

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor
SATURDAY LUNCH
Tomato-Artichoke Molds
Devised Eggs & Rolls
Cookies & Coffee
TOMATO AND ARTICHOKE MOLDS
They are both attractive and delicious.

6 oz. can tomato juice from concentrate (¾ cup)
1¼ cups vegetable cocktail juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
6 oz. jar marinated artichoke hearts
Lettuce
4 deviled eggs (8 halves)

Into a medium bowl pour the tomato juice and ¼ cup of the vegetable cocktail juice; sprinkle with the gelatin and let soften. In a small saucepan heat the remaining 1 cup vegetable cocktail juice until it begins to boil; pour it over the gelatin mixture and stir vigorously until gelatin dissolves. With a fork, remove the artichokes, one at a time, from the marinade in the jar and cut the hearts lengthwise into halves, thirds or quarters, depending on their size; as you do so add to the gelatin mixture. (Cover the artichoke marinade and refrigerate.) Chill the gelatin mixture until it begins to thicken; ladle into four 6 oz. custard cups or individual molds. Chill to set; cover. At serving time, unmold on lunch plates, garnish with the lettuce and drizzle it with the reserved artichoke marinade. Add the deviled eggs. Makes 4 servings.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

Conditions look promising for you over the coming months. However, you must guard against letting your impulsiveness take you off in the wrong direction. All will go well if you plan wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One of your greatest assets is your ability to view situations optimistically. However, today you may see more dark clouds than silver linings. Order now: The New Matchmaker wheel and booklet, which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Mail an additional $1 and your zodiac sign for your Sagittarian Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to make do with what you have today, rather than borrow anything from friends. Also, think carefully before making loans yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Success could be denied you today if you persist in doing everything the hard way. Look for easy routes, not bumpy roads.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) That which you wish to do today can be accomplished, provided you are not defeated by your own self-doubts. See yourself as a winner, not a loser.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra careful in any dealings today with friends where money is involved. If things are managed poorly, misunderstandings could result.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates are not in accord with your career objectives today could do you more harm than good. Don't proceed if you're unsure of your allies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good helpers may be difficult to find today, so select co-workers with care. Be certain they're willing to follow your instructions to the letter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not take financial gambles on things today where the control is in the hands of others. They could fall flat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to skirt issues today where you and your mate take opposing positions. Small disagreements could easily be blown out of proportion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mental faculties are extremely sharp today. Unfortunately, you might focus on the faults of others rather than on their virtues. Be tolerant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not permit your wasteful or extravagant tendencies to gain the upper hand today. If you do, they'll cause you regrets that could be avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not come on too strong today when dealing with others, especially if you are in a position of authority. Harsh words produce negative results.

Harvesters hold off Clovis, 71-67

CLOVIS, N.M.—Gaylon Faggins hit two clutch foul shots with nine seconds to go to give Pampa a 71-67 win over Clovis, New Mexico Tuesday night.

It was an unexpected finish after Pampa had piled up a 15-point lead in the third quarter. But missed foul shots, including five in a row in the last two minutes, got the Harvesters in trouble.

Clovis nibbled away at Pampa's lead and cut the margin to two (69-67) with 0:28 to go on Dan Brenning's 12-foot jumper.

After two foul line misses by Pampa, it was Faggins who fouled Brenning on a rebound to give the Wildcats a chance to knot the score. But Brenning misfired. Clovis rebounded and Faggins was fouled when he grabbed Reggie Stanton's missed shot.

Faggins calmly sank both foul shots to give him 12 points for the night and help lift the Harvesters record to 5-2.

Clovis, who had defeated Amarillo High, a victor over Pampa, is 2-1 for the season.

"It was a great win for us," Pampa coach Garland Nichols said. "When the New Mexico ratings come out this week, I look for Clovis to be ranked either one or two."

Faggins, a 6-3 senior, also played a part in helping the Harvesters pull away from

Clovis late in the first quarter after the score had been deadlocked five times.

Faggins hit a 10-foot jumper and then canned a foul shot after being fouled on a layup to give Pampa an 18-12 lead after the score had been tied at 12-12.

Clovis led only briefly, by two points, in the first quarter.

Pampa's 6-7 Coyle Winborn cast a big shadow as he scored 19 points, ripped off 16 rebounds and blocked a half-dozen shots.

Craig Chapin chipped in 12 points for the Harvesters.

Jimmy Robinson paced the losers with 22 points.

Pampa had one of its better shooting nights, hitting over 60 percent from the floor. Clovis hit just over 40 percent of its field goal tries.

Pampa is on the road again Thursday for the Bi-State Tournament in Lawton, Okla. Pampa's first-round opponent is W.T. White of Dallas.

"We have four more road games and then we come back and play an easy home game with Abernathy, the No. 1 team in Class 3A," kidded Nichols.

PAMPA (71)
Winborn 19, Faggins 12, Chapin 12, Cross 8, Buchanan 8, Davis 6, Harris 2, McQueen 2, Young 2.

CLOVIS (67)
Robinson 22, Burns 17,

Bryant 12, Byrd 8, Brenning 6, Stanton 2.

Clovis got revenge in the varsity girls' game, defeating Pampa, 44-34, last night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Clovis led by only one, 20-19, at halftime, but gradually starting pulling away the second half.

Donna Trullinger led the winners with 14 points.

Kerri Richardson led Pampa with 17 points while Stephanie Smith and Melanie Morgan had seven and six respectively. Melanie Morgan added four.

Brown leading commissioner's race

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Major league owners at the winter meetings find the election of a commissioner and new president for the American League the chief items on their agenda.

Dr. Bobby Brown, the noted Dallas heart surgeon and ex-New York Yankee infielder, remained the leading candidate for the AL job with a decision expected Thursday.

A new name—White House chief of staff James Baker—was mentioned as a possibility for the commissioner's post. Baker, a 53-year-old Texan has served in President Reagan's administration since 1980. He possesses the prominent Washington status which would fit the current profile for the job being discussed by the search committee, according to two sources.

But White House press aide Kim Hoggard issued a statement saying, "In the past three years, there have been several press reports of job changes for Mr. Baker and we didn't choose to comment on them then and we don't intend to start now."

Eddie Chiles, owner of the Texas Rangers and a friend of Baker's, said "I saw him at the White House six weeks ago and he didn't say anything about it to me then. I've never heard his name mentioned in connection with baseball."

"With the state of affairs of the country right now, I think maybe we need him more in the White House than we do in baseball, so I'd like to see him stay where he is."

Meanwhile, New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner checked in Tuesday night but refused to clarify his team's managerial situation.

"Fellas, I'm not going to have anything to say," he told newsmen who had waited some three hours for his arrival.

Only one trade was announced Tuesday as Pittsburgh came away with one of the most sought-after players at the meetings, acquiring left-hander John Tudor from Boston in exchange for outfielder Mike Easler.

The Red Sox, equipped with a surplus of left-handed pitchers, came here prepared to trade Tudor to the highest bidder. And Pittsburgh won the auction by supplying the Red Sox with the left-handed hitter they were after.

"We think we helped our club," said Haywood Sullivan, Boston's general manager. "We think this was the best deal we could make at this point in time. We were looking for a bat and we envision him as a hitter."

The retirement of Carl Yastrzemski sent the Sox on the search for another long ball threat, with Tudor the bait.

Rangers forced to regroup

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Two potential trades involving the Texas Rangers fell through, forcing the swap-hungry team to regroup at baseball's winter meetings.

"Now, we have to re-develop things," Rangers general manager Joe Klein told the Dallas Morning News Tuesday. "Things sure have changed in 48 hours here. All the other players are getting better, and mine are getting worse. My guys are in a slump. I guess we'll have to play our way out of it. But we are up on what's available."

The News reported that Pittsburgh second baseman Johnny Ray and outfielder-designated hitter Mike Easler were offered for Texas outfielder Larry Parrish, but while the Rangers were thinking about it, Easler was traded to Boston for pitcher John Tudor.

The newspaper said the other deal that fell through was with the Chicago Cubs. The Rangers offered pitchers Danny Darwin and Mike Sisson and outfielder Billy Sample for outfielder Leon Durham and outfielder-DH Keith Moreland.

Cowboys-Redskins game may be biggest ever

By DENNEH FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP)—Of all the epic Redskin-Cowboy football wars, the one on Sunday could top them all.

That's the opinion of Tex Schramm, who has seen every Washington Redskin-Dallas Cowboy joust since 1960.

"I can't remember a (Washington-Dallas) game that has attracted as much national attention as this one has," said the Cowboy Club President and General Manager. "I don't remember when there were two teams so clearly ahead in the standings playing each other for what amounts to the division championship."

Dallas and Washington are tied with 12-2 records atop the National Conference Eastern Division of the National Football League.

A Cowboy victory would assure them the title while Washington would have to beat the New York Giants the next week to clinch a Redskin pennant. Both have wild card berths clinched.

"The rivalry between the two teams always seems to catch the public imagination, not just the rivalry between the two cities," Schramm said.

It started long ago when owner Clint Murchison tried to get an NFL franchise. Washington owner George Preston Marshall opposed Dallas but finally relented if Murchison would give him back his "Hail to the Redskins" theme song.

Murchison had wheeled and dealt his way to rights for the Redskin song.

"I remember Clint released some chickens on the field at halftime while the Redskin band was marching as a joke," Schramm said.

George Allen's arrival as Redskins coach 1971 through 1977 "brought the rivalry to a peak," Schramm said. "The Allen era is what brought it into a feverish state."

Allen gave the Redskins their first NFC title in 30 years with a 26-3 victory over the Cowboys in 1972. Washington lost to Miami in Super Bowl VII.

Not only did Allen breakup the Dallas NFC East monopoly, but he did so in a manner which Cowboy officials found unsavory.

The Cowboys didn't like his finger-licking, cheer-leading style and they became convinced he was spying on practices.

"Allen made the rivalry more personal," Schramm said.

The Cowboys used to rent out the top floor of a nearby hotel so Allen couldn't slip in spotters to chart Dallas practices.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said this week "I trust Joe Gibbs more than I did the other man."

Then he joked "We saved a lot of money when Allen left."

After Allen departed in 1977, the Redskins began to nosedive under Jack Pardee.

Gibbs, hired in 1981, brought them a long-cherished Super Bowl victory last year.

"NFL rivalries are generally based on the competition in the standings," Schramm said. "Then when you have the background like we do with the Redskins it becomes something special."

Schramm ticked off some memorable confrontations.

"We killed the Redskins in 1979 for the NFC title when Roger Staubach threw two touchdown passes in the last two minutes for a 35-34 victory," said Schramm. "Then there was Clint Longley coming off the bench to win a Thanksgiving Day game."

"The Redskins have beaten us like that, including the tough loss we had last year in the NFC title games and the title game in 1972 under Allen."

Schramm said the rivalry was an emotionally draining one to those involved.

"I like big games," Schramm said. "You shouldn't be in the business if you don't like them."

Then he added with a wince: "I don't enjoy them, but I like them."

Billy Kilmer, former Redskin quarterback who makes his home in Dallas and, ironically, works for Murchison in banking, said "It's going to be a great game."

Murphy gives free throw lessons

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Cougars, known for flamboyant dunk shots, took lessons from former National Basketball Association star Calvin Murphy on the art of successful free throw shooting.

The Cougars have been hitting a mere 57.1 percent of their free throws this season. Murphy, the second best free throw shooter in NBA history, patiently explained to the team about relaxation, concentration and building confidence at the line.

But the lesson might have been lost on the Cougars, who responded last Saturday by hitting only 13 of 28 shots en route to a victory over Biscayne.

Murphy is only the latest in Coach Guy Lewis' efforts to improve his team's free throw percentage that has not exceeded 70 percent since the 1970-71 season.

Most have met with failure similar to an occasion last season when an elderly man told Lewis he had the solution to the problem.

After free throw practice the following day, Lewis told his team "I bet I can pick somebody out of the seats who could do better than that" and summoned the man to the court.

Lewis instructed the Cougars to watch closely.

Swim squad loaded with quality, but lack quantity

The quality was there, but the quantity was missing in Pampa's loss to Tascosa in a dual swim meet last weekend at the Pampa Youth Center.

"We had a super meet. I am really proud of these kids," said Pampa coach Shannon McLachlan. "They swam their hearts out."

Tascosa won by 44-35 in the boys' dual and by 40-33 in the girls' dual.

"We were one point behind until the relays in the boys events and five points in the girls,'" coach McLachlan said. "If we would have had the same number of swimmers, we would have beat Tascosa."

Tascosa outnumbered Pampa, 26-12.

"To have the scores that close, you have to realize they gave their all," added coach McLachlan. "Quantity has hurt us, but we have quality. Everyone was a standout. It was a great team effort."

"We had three girl divers who dove for the first time. They were Joanna Barbaree, Kathleen Dunigan and Becci Holland. All three did a fantastic job. They were nervous. I think they surprised themselves. Shawn White, our only boy diver, did a good job also."

White won both the one-meter diving and the 50 freestyle events for the Pampa boys. Miss Barbaree won the diving event for the girls with 127.6 points. Miss Holland and Miss Dunigan finished second and third respectively.

Amy Raymond won the 100 freestyle and 200 individual medley for the Pampa girls.

Both boys' and girls' teams leave for Odessa on Thursday to enter an invitational there.

Canadian wins over Follett

FOLLETT—Canadian went on a second-half scoring blitz to defeat Follett, 58-31, in high school girls' basketball action Tuesday night.

Canadian, which has won six of seven outings this season, outscored the hosts, 19-5, in the third quarter after leading by only six, 25-19, at halftime.

"We shot only 29 percent the first half, but then we came back and hit 54 percent the second half," said Canadian coach Steve Zurline. It was one of our better shooting nights. "We did a good job on the boards and we were able to execute our fast break."

Stephanie Mitchell paced Canadian with 20 points while Dana Johnson added 12. Tracie Ross had five, Mitzi Hoots, Regina Cano and Liz McPherson, four points each; Kelly Schoenhals three; Beth Ramp and Stephanie Byard, two apiece.

Robbie Taylor led Follett with 13 points.

Canadian had a 36-22 rebounding advantage with Johnson and Hoots pulled down seven boards apiece.

Canadian will meet Nazareth in the first round of the Canyon Tournament Thursday.

Canadian also won the junior varsity game, 47-44, with Sharon Mitchell scoring 18 points for the winners.

Ed Hedgecoke scored 17 points to lead Canadian to a 58-35 win in the boys game.

Pickett, Beers gain early lead in team roping event

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Talk about pressure: With only $500 separating the top two money-earners in team roping at the National Finals Rodeo, the second-place team completed a marvelous run to grab the early lead.

But whatever tension might have been envisioned by the sellout crowd at the Myriad arena at the rodeo's fourth go-round Tuesday night, it had no effect on the leaders in the team roping competition.

Dee Pickett and Mike Beers instead matched the 5.7-second ride of their nearest competitors, Leo Camarillo and Jake Barnes. By splitting the first-place winnings, they remained narrowly in the lead.

But Pickett of Caldwell, Idaho, said he and his partner, of Rufus, Ore., weren't worried.

"Naw, we didn't feel any extra pressure," Pickett said. "We're just trying to place in every round. They've gained some ground, but there's a lot of money and a lot of go-rounds to go."

taken a re-ride, but stayed with the animal as it got back on its feet, and completed his triumphant ride.

"You don't have a whole lot of time to make a decision," Wilcox said. "He had my leg pinned under him and he slapped my head on the ground."

"There's a real fine line about when you give up," he said. "Had it been anywhere else, I would have gotten off and taken a re-ride."

"But being here and being all psyched up and pumped up, you just want to go all-out."

Mel Coleman of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, Canada, won the saddle bronc riding go-round with an 85-point ride. Brad Gjermundson remained far ahead in the overall earnings rankings.

In bareback riding, Steve Carter of Klamath Falls, Ore., placed first with 78 points. Overall earnings leader Bruce Ford of Kersey, Colo., tied for third place with Jim Dunn of Balzac, Alberta, Canada, and Robin Burwash of Airdrie, Alberta, Canada, with 74 points.

Jimmie Cooper of Monument, N.M., won the fourth go-round in calf roping with a time of 9.2 seconds. Cooper's cousin, Roy Cooper of Durant, Okla., remained far ahead in the overall earnings, although he did not place Tuesday night.

Cooper also has a hefty lead in the all-around world champion cowboy title. That title is given to the cowboy with the most earnings in two or more events.

Jimmie Cooper also gained ground by placing third in steer wrestling, while overall earnings leader Joel Edmondson of Columbus, Kan., and John W. Jones of Morro Bay, Calif., did not place. Paul Hughes of Kim, Colo., won Tuesday's go-round.

Marlene Eddleman of Ordway, Colo., won the go-round in barrel racing, creeping closer to overall leader Sherry Elms, who finished second in the go-round. Elms leads the overall earnings list with $41,579.99, and Eddleman now has $38,784.

Sparlis traveled strange road to hall of fame

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Of all the men in the College Football Hall of Fame, it is doubtful anyone traveled a stranger road than Al Sparlis.

From an orphanage — although not an orphan — to a Nevada reformatory for 6½ years to top student in his high school class to a star on the gridiron for UCLA to a heavily decorated hero in three wars to associate vice president of Coldwell Banker, the nation's largest brokerage house.

There were more famous names among the inductees Tuesday night at the National Football Foundation's annual awards banquet — Woody Hayes, Darrell Royal and Frank Broyles as coaches, and 10 former college stars.

The players, in addition to Sparlis, were Dick Butkus, Illinois linebacker, 1962-64; Bill "Moose" Fischer, Notre Dame guard, 1945-48; Lee Roy Jordan, Alabama center, 1960-62; Charlie Krueger, Texas A&M tackle, 1955-57; Floyd Little, Syracuse halfback, 1964-66; Lewis "Bud" McFadin, Texas guard, 1948-50; George Owen Jr., Harvard halfback, 1920-22; O.J. Simpson, Southern Cal running back, 1967-68 and Jack Scarbath, Maryland quarterback, 1950-52.

But Sparlis' story was something special.

"My parents were divorced when I was 4," Sparlis, now 63, recalled. "I had two brothers, 2 and 6. My mother took my little brother because he needed a mother's companionship and my father took my older brother because he could put him in school. I ended up in several homes and finally wound up in a Carson City orphanage at the age of 8."

"My father, who was in the mining business, finally came and got me, but he took off for Europe when I was 9½. We were living just outside Ely, Nev., and I hung around with a gang that robbed the company store and other places. I never went inside, but stayed outside and made noise if anyone came along."

"When I was 10 I was sent to a reformatory. My sentence was supposed to run until I was 21 or at the disposition of the court. Four years later, the warden told me that as far as the state was concerned I was free to go, but no one wanted me."

Sparlis' mother had remarried and was living in Phoenix. Eventually she came for him.

"But I didn't get along with my stepfather," Sparlis recalled. "so I took off and bummed my way on a freight train to Los Angeles, where I was born. I thought I might find some relatives there, but all I could find was a grandmother who was unable to take care of me. I slept in a dry cleaning store and worked in a creamery after school. On weekends I worked as a gardener."

School was Los Angeles Polytechnic High, where Sparlis was introduced to organized football. "I also had the highest grade in my graduating class of 289 students, but I didn't have a proper suit to accept the award," he said.

His one year of competitive football had impressed UCLA, and so did his marks — "In those days, you had to have a 'B' average to get into school" — in 1½ years at Polytechnic.

"I played a couple of years at UCLA, including the 1942 Rose Bowl against Georgia, but I had already signed up for the Air Force," he said.

Sparlis flew 70 missions in light bombers in the China-Burma Theater during World War II and won seven campaign medals before returning to UCLA for the 1945 season and doing some acting.

Dupree ineligible until 1985

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The NCAA reportedly has informed University of Southern Mississippi officials that former Oklahoma football star Marcus Dupree will be unable to play for the Golden Eagles until the 1985 season.

The newspaper USA Today reported in today's editions that an NCAA official had sent a letter to Southern Mississippi, where Dupree is now enrolled, informing school officials that the athlete would not be eligible to play in 1984.

Southern Mississippi officials had requested an interpretation of the one-year residence requirement for transfer students as it applied to Dupree, who will be a junior in eligibility in 1985.

Dupree could not be reached for comment.

Athletic director Roland Dale said he had not received the letter but that any ruling would be accepted without further appeal.

"I thought there was a question he might be (eligible) or we wouldn't have asked for a ruling. I don't know the rule," Dale said. "I don't think there was ever any case of there being a clearcut advantage one way or the other."

Dupree, a former standout at Philadelphia, Miss., High School, left Oklahoma at mid-season this fall, saying he was unhappy at the school and wanted to be closer to home.

They've been able to maintain their lead by placing in three of the first four rounds of the NFR. The first-place tie by Camarillo, of Lockeford, Calif., and Barnes, of Bloomfield, N.M., was the first time the pair had placed at the finals.

The NFR concludes after the 10th go-round next Sunday.

In bull riding, Bobby DelVecchio of the Bronx, N.Y., finished second to tighten a three-man race for the overall earnings lead. His win pushed his earnings to $62,934.23, behind Lonnie Wyatt of Kimball, Neb., who has $63,338.30 and Cody Snyder of Redcliff, Alberta, Canada, with $63,126.98. Wyatt and Snyder did not finish in the money in Tuesday night's go-round.

Ken Wilcox of Greenbrier, Ark. won the go-round with a 80 on a courageous ride during the rugged event, in which seven riders were thrown off.

As the gate opened, Wilcox's bull fell over, pinning the rider's leg. Wilcox could have

Cougars down LSU

By The Associated Press
Akeem Olajuwon could still intimidate ninth-ranked Louisiana State, despite picking up his fourth foul early in the second half.

Olajuwon fouled out with 6:31 left in the game, but the damage had been done, and the sixth-ranked Cougars whipped LSU 100-91 Tuesday night.

"Every time we got the ball inside, we kept looking over our shoulders. We can't play scared," said LSU point guard Derrick Taylor.

In other games Monday night involving Southwest Conference teams, Texas held off Biscayne 51-50, Southern Methodist routed Pennsylvania 98-66 and North Texas State nipped Texas Christian 66-65.

Twelve of Olajuwon's points came in the first half of the Cougars' game in Baton Rouge.

"I think, at first, inside, we were intimidated," LSU's John Tudor said after the game. "I say intimidated, because we didn't take it to him and make him prove he could put it back down our throats."

"The second half, we did a better job of taking it to him."

Houston opened a 9-point margin in the final 6:17 of the first half with Olajuwon scoring five of his team's points in a 12-5 surge. LSU pulled to within two points seven minutes into the second half, 50-52, but Young got 13 of his game-high total of 25 after that.

Gettys finished with 14 points for Houston, now 5-1, and Alvin Franklin had 21.

Taylor scored 22 points, and Tudor had 21 for LSU, also 5-1.

Jon Koncak scored 14 points and blocked four shots as SMU clobbered the visiting Quakers. SMU hit 64 percent of its shots from the field and out-rebounded Penn 43-25 to raise the Mustang's season record to 4-1. The loss dropped Penn to 1-2 for the year.

Kevin Lewis scored 14 points for the Mustangs and Butch more scored 13 and had six assists.

Penn center Bruce Lefkowitz was the game's leading scorer with 18 points.

"We played well both offensively and defensively tonight," said SMU coach Dave Bliss.

JANE RUSSELL DIANE SAWYER

Names in news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Jane Russell, who caused a stir with her plunging necklines in the 1943 movie 'The Outlaw,' is making her television debut on NBC's 'The Yellow Rose' series...

Cash credited his second wife, singer Jane Carr Cash, with helping him kick the habit about 20 years ago. 'She fought me tooth and nail. She would find my medication and would take it and flush it,' he said...

The author of the hit song 'A Boy Named Sue' said he took 100 pills a day — '50 to get me up and keep me up and when I got ready to crash, at least 50 to bring me down.'

Miss Walters also interviewed talk show host Johnny Carson and 'CBS Evening News' anchorman Walter Cronkite, who said he's considered a second career in politics, though 'I'd hate to run for office.'

Asked whether he would accept a cabinet post, Cronkite, 67, replied: 'I might now, at this stage I think I'm far enough from the daily news to possibly do that.'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — As 'CBS Morning News' co-anchor Diane Sawyer describes it, she faces a lie detector test every day.

The television camera is a 'lie detector,' says the 37-year-old Ms. Sawyer, and the public is 'going to know whether you know what you're talking about.'

'The camera reads what you know over the long run,' Ms. Sawyer told about 400 representatives of the news media at the Pittsburgh Press club Tuesday.

Concerning objectivity as a newswoman, Ms. Sawyer admitted 'You do find yourself in tough situations.' 'But in the end,' she added, 'you have to fall back on your own sense of fairness.'

NEW YORK (AP) — When the New York City Ballet danced George Balanchine's 'The Nutcracker' for the 1,000th time, Peter Martins was making his farewell appearance as a star male dancer.

The 36-year-old Martins danced the cavalier Tuesday night, the part he first danced with the company in New York on Christmas Day 1967.
