

Absentee vote heavy in city, school races

Balloting in Saturday's runoff city and school elections is likely to be heavy, if the numbers of absentee ballots cast are any indication of voter interest.

City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers reported this morning that 437 persons have voted by absentee ballot in the mayoralty race runoff between incumbent Mayor Calvin Whatley and his challenger, Sherman Cowan.

The absentee balloting, which ended Tuesday, was heavy, Jeffers said. The number "is nearly double what we had last time," she said; 284 absentee ballots were cast for the April 6 election.

In the Pampa Independent School District trustee elections, 443 voters cast absentee ballots, "the heaviest we've ever had," reported Business Manager Jerry Haralson. In the April elections 428 absentee ballots were cast at the school office.

Incumbent trustee Mary Braswell will face challenger David Robertson in Saturday's runoff for the Place 4 position. For the Place 5 spot, incumbent Curt Beck faces opponent Joe Van Zandt.

The runoffs were all necessitated from three-way races in the April elections when none of the candidates gained a majority of the votes in their respective races.

Polls for both the city and school elections will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

For the mayor's race, voters will cast ballots at the usual places: Ward 1, Travis School; Ward 2, North Fire Substation; Ward 3, Optimist Club, and Ward 4, South Fire Substation.

Voting in the school elections will take place in the Music Building at Pampa High School.

Nicaragua embargoed

President cuts off all trade with country

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan ordered a total embargo on trade with leftist Nicaragua today and moved to deny U.S. access to Nicaraguan commercial airliners and flag vessels.

To counter Nicaragua's aggressive actions in Central America, Reagan also is abrogating a 27-year-old U.S.-Nicaraguan friendship treaty.

"The activities of Nicaragua, supported by the Soviet Union and its allies, are incompatible with normal commercial relations," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said.

"The president authorized these steps in response to the emergency situation created by the Nicaraguan government's aggressive action in Central America," Speakes said in an announcement to reporters shortly after Reagan arrived in the West German capital for a seven-nation economic summit.

Speakes said the president was signing orders for the embargo today and sending a message on the action to Congress.

Speakes emphasized, however, that Reagan still would press Congress to provide aid for the Contra guerrillas battling the Nicaraguan government.

A week after congressional rejection of Reagan's request for aid to the Contras, Speakes said the president was imposing trade sanctions in view of "the new ties between Nicaragua and the Soviet Union" announced by the Soviet news agency Tass in connection with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's visit to Moscow earlier this week.

Speakes also cited the apprehension in Honduras of seven agents of the Nicaraguan state security service "who admitted that they had traveled to Honduras from Nicaragua in order to aid and assist Honduran insurgents."

In addition, Speakes pointed to the delivery of Soviet and East German military equipment to Nicaragua and that government's rejection of church-mediated talks with opposition leaders and its rejection of Reagan's peace proposal for Central America.

In Managua, Bayardo Arce, one of the nine members of the ruling Sandinista directorate, said Tuesday that Reagan administration officials "want us to yield to hunger and put us on our knees ... but they will never succeed in it."

Reagan acted after the House voted last week to kill an administration bid, as well as compromise proposals, for a resumption of U.S. aid to the Contra rebels fighting the Sandinista government.

Nicaragua's trade with the United States has declined sharply since 1981, reflecting the deterioration in relations between the two countries. Nicaragua imported about $110 million in U.S. goods last year while exporting about half that much to the United States, mostly bananas, coffee and other agricultural products, according to official figures.

A Nicaraguan Embassy spokeswoman, Sara Lee Porter, said Aeronica, the Nicaraguan national airline whose U.S. flights would be suspended, flies on alternate days between Managua and Miami, the only U.S. city served by the carrier.

The White House draft statement said the administration believes there is far greater support for economic measures against Nicaragua in Congress than there is for military involvement.

"Direct pressure represents the only effective means of moderating Nicaraguan behavior," the statement said.

Reagan gets started on controversial trip

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Emphasizing peace and reconciliation among former enemies, President Reagan arrived in West Germany today for a 10-day European tour and economic summit bedeviled by controversy over his plans for a 10-minute visit to a German military cemetery.

Reagan drew cheers from about 100 onlookers who came to Cologne-Bonn airport despite a chilly rain. He and his wife Nancy were given a 21-gun salute by a West German honor guard and waved to the crowd before walking to a helicopter for the brief flight to Gymnich Castle, the government guest house where they will stay.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher escorted the couple to the U.S. Marine helicopter as four West German jet fighters buzzed the field in salute.

Upon his departure from the White House on Tuesday night, the president said, "We leave tonight for a Europe rebuilt from the disaster of war and morally restored from the despair of 1945."

"We visit Europe determined to carry forward the spirit of peace and reconciliation among old adversaries and the power of our democratic ideals," he added.

"The friendship between the American and German peoples—a great blessing that has grown rich and strong over our three centuries of shared national experience—is dramatic proof of how former enemies can be brought together again," he added.

But bitter memories of World War II have focused attention on Reagan's scheduled visit Sunday to a cemetery containing Nazi SS graves.

Just hours before Reagan's departure, the House of Representatives voted 390-26 to urge Reagan to reconsider his visit to the cemetery at Bitburg, West Germany. Reagan, though, is standing fast, having insisted he will go through with the cemetery visit.

"The president has made a commitment and the president is going to stick by his commitment," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said late Tuesday aboard Air Force One.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, meanwhile, said Tuesday he believes history will endorse Reagan's visit to Bitburg.

Following the overnight flight from Washington, the president and his wife were spending the day resting at Schloss Gymnich, a castle 25 miles outside Bonn that will be home for five nights.

The 10-day trip includes state visits to West Germany, Spain and Portugal; an address to the European Parliament in Strasbourg, France, on the 40th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe; and an economic summit of the seven major industrialized democracies, running Thursday through Saturday.

Before the summit opens, Reagan will have private meetings Thursday with Kohl, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, French President Francois Mitterrand and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Texas House poised to approve repeal of blue law

AUSTIN (AP) — Blue Law repeal advocates have the House votes needed to win approval today of a bill that would free Texans to shop on Sundays, says Speaker Gib Lewis.

He predicted the repeal bill would get as many as 95 votes in the 150-member House.

"It's been resolved. They've got the votes on it," Lewis said Tuesday.

House approval would send the bill to the Senate, where supporters say the vote would be close.

"Same old fight," Bay City Rep. Tom Uher said of the latest round in the long battle of the Blue Law.

This year's repeal push has been aided by a coalition of major stores that want to open on Sunday. The Blue Law effectively bans Sunday shopping by prohibiting the sale of 42 items on both consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

The bill set for House floor debate today is a total repeal measure, except that it would continue to bar auto dealers from selling cars on Sundays.

The Texas Automobile Dealers Association has been the most effective supporter of the Blue Law. The association does not like the repeal bill, even though it keeps them under the Sunday closing law. Co-sponsor Hugo Berlanga of Corpus Christi, House speaker pro tem, agreed with Lewis that the House outcome seems assured. "I think it looks good. We've got upwards of 90 votes," he said.

"I think on the Senate side it's very close. I think the action on our bill will have an impact on the Senate side," said Berlanga.

Senate sponsor Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, has said he is within "striking distance" of the votes needed to bring the bill to the Senate floor.

Uher plans to offer a "little amendment" to the repeal bill to add a "more modernized menu as to what items will be prohibited from being sold on a Sunday."

But the Uher plan would effectively keep most stores closed on Sundays, except during a Christmas shopping "window."

"Our approach will be representing the family, that's our primary concern," he said. "With both the husband and wife working today, if you have mama working on Sunday how are you going to have Sunday lunch? How do you go to church?"

Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton and chairman of the calendars committee, questioned many members before allowing the repeal bill to reach the floor. He predicted something short of total repeal.

Salvadorans agree to give up millions

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two men who have been linked to El Salvador's rightwing ARENA party have agreed in a plea bargain to give up claims to nearly $6 million seized from them at a south Texas airport.

For a promise of probation, Francisco Guirola Beeche, 34, pleaded no contest and Oscar Rodriguez Feo, 48, pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate a federal law which prohibits anyone from taking more than $10,000 out of the country without notifying federal officials.

Documents confiscated upon their arrest linked them to the ARENA party, controlled by Roberto d'Aubuisson.

If U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. accepts the pleas on June 12, federal prosecutors said they will drop charges against a third man, pilot Gus Maestralés, 38. The trio, originally scheduled for a final pre-trial hearing today, were arrested Feb. 6 at Kleberg County Airport near Kingsville with $5.9 million stuffed in seven suitcases. The arrests were made as the three men were refueling Maestralés' T-39 Sabreliner jet.

The men have been free on bond. Maestralés has maintained he had no knowledge of the plane's cargo and that the two men were no more than passengers.

One of four passports Guirola was carrying listed him as an independent adviser to the Salvadoran state assembly and was signed by d'Aubuisson.

Both Guirola and Rodriguez carried documents which identified them as "special counselors" to Salvadoran attorney General Jose Francisco Guerrero, a ranking member of the ARENA party, the Corpus Christi Caller reported in a copyright story.

Siren test set Thursday

The city's warning system sirens will be tested Thursday afternoon, weather permitting, according to Steve Vaughn, coordinator of the Office of Emergency Management.

Vaughn said the sirens would be tested between 2 and 4 p.m. Thursday. All will be sounded together at one time and then sounded individually.

Some of the radio-activated sirens apparently showed problems during the use of the sirens during the tornado warning Friday afternoon, Vaughn said.

City personnel will be out checking the sirens tomorrow to find out which ones have problems and then get them back into working order, he said.

Vaughn said he wanted the public to know about the testing so they will not be surprised or disturbed to hear the sirens tomorrow afternoon.

If weather conditions portend developing storms, the siren testing will be delayed until better weather, he said.

'Missing child' found with mother after TV broadcast

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A 9-year-old girl whose picture was shown on the "Missing" broadcast that followed Monday's reshewing of "Adam" was found in Denton Tuesday afternoon with her 7-year-old brother and her mother, police said.

The mother, identified as Terry Lanotte-McDonald, 34, was arrested about 4 p.m. on a Fresno, Calif., warrant that alleged child abduction, and the children were placed in the temporary custody of the Texas Department of Human Resources, Denton Police Lt. Joe Waddill told The Associated Press.

Teresa McDonald, 9, had not been seen since her abduction in Fresno on Aug. 1, 1983, California authorities said.

Denton Juvenile Officer Dennis Baker located the woman and her children after receiving information earlier Tuesday from Fresno authorities about the possibility they were in Denton, Waddill said.

Mrs. Lanotte-McDonald was taken to Denton County Jail, and bond was set at $8,000, Waddill added.

Placed in temporary foster care

along with Teresa was her brother, Edwin, 7, but it was uncertain whether he had been abducted in what apparently was a custody dispute.

An aide to California Assemblyman Gray Davis, D-Los Angeles, who has spearheaded missing children activities, said the arrest followed an anonymous tip to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, who referred the tip to the district attorney in Fresno, who forwarded it to Denton police.

Davis had worked with the missing kids center to get Teresa featured on the "Missing" program, said the aide, Steve Glazer.

Teresa's picture had been featured on posters on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system in San Francisco, as well as on products.

According to Glazer, the girl's father told Davis late Tuesday night that he was on his way to Denton for a hearing today.

In New York, it was announced Tuesday that two teen-age sisters missing for seven years and an 8-year-old girl missing since July were reunited with their mothers after viewers of the telecast about missing children called authorities with leads.

The girls' fathers were arrested, officials said.

They were living with their father, who was being held on Illinois felony warrants for abduction, authorities said. The girls were recognized by school authorities in Ohio, who alerted police.

Alex Ferguson, deputy director of the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, said the girls' father had taken them from his ex-wife's home while on a visit.

County accepts return of land

Gray County Commissioners passed a resolution today to take back from the state a strip of land along a farm-to-market road under construction east of Lefors.

The state highway department slightly altered a curve on FM 1474, reducing the amount of right of way needed. The county passed the resolution to take back the unneeded strip five miles east of Lefors, so that it can be returned to the landowner, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said.

In other action in their short, regular meeting today, commissioners approved buying two used half-ton trucks from the City of McLean for a total of $2,000.

The panel also agreed to pay poll workers in a past election calling for the establishment of a noxious weed control district, a proposal that was defeated. The commissioners approved paying the election workers a total of $466.

The panel also approved the purchase of an asphalt spreader from McDonald's Trading Post of Plainview for about $4,900.

Trustees to meet

Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District have scheduled a special called meeting for 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Carver Educational Service Center to discuss personnel matters.

The school board will meet in executive session to discuss resignation, retirement and employment of personnel in the school district.

Senate panel approves budget

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today unanimously approved a $36.8 billion state budget for 1986-87.

Committee members said the spending bill could be financed without new taxes if legislators also approve a $220 million fee increase, a $275 million increase in college tuition and a net $72.5 million increase from reduced contributions to teachers and state employee retirement funds.

The Senate bill, which will be debated next week, compares with a $36.4 billion bill, from all funds, approved by the House.

The Texas State Employees Union immediately said it would fight the bill because it does not contain a 3 percent a year pay hike for state employees as is included in the House bill.

The final appropriations bill for the next two years will be written by a 10-member Senate-House conference committee.

The Senate bill is 4.35 percent above 1984-85 spending from all funds and would require $26.2 billion from state general revenue funds, an increase of $1.37 billion increase or 5.5 percent above current spending.

The Senate committee also unanimously approved the $220 million revenue increase from the package that increases many state fees, permits and court costs.

The proposal compares with the $106 million fee increase bill already approved by the House, said Tom Scott, financial consultant to the Senate Finance Committee.

In one of the final actions Tuesday the committee voted to approve an increase in the yearly auto inspection fee from $5.25 to $9. A separate bill with the same increase has already been approved by the committee. It would yield $24 million.

A series of increases in fees charged by the secretary of state's office would produce an additional $12.7 million.

Another $40 million hike in revenue would come from a new schedule of oil and gas production fees and permits. The schedule does not include the $100 drilling fee proposed by Gov. Mark White.

The committee also approved a separate bill with a series of state court fee increases, including an increase from $25 to $75 for filing a civil suit in a state district court. The bill would produce $25 million additional in 1986-87.

Baylor prexy rebukes fundamentalists but accedes to their demand over film showing

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor University's president, rebuking some fundamentalist students as a "religious KGB" who spy on their classmates, has nevertheless given in to their complaints about a film group.

President Herbert Reynolds has suspended the Baylor Film Society until the 1986 spring semester for showing an R-rated British farce he said Tuesday ridicules the standards of most Southern Baptists.

He said he issued the ban Monday in part because he didn't want the students — whom he accused of snooping and snitching "to fundamentalist leaders among Southern and Texas Baptists" — to have grounds to attack the Baptist school.

The Southern Baptist Convention's fundamentalist faction has increasingly attacked Baylor as being too liberal, and some professors say a few students are collecting information and reporting to leaders of the faction.

The 1969 movie that sparked this latest controversy — "If" — depicts life in an exclusive British academy where the system turns boys into homosexuals and revolutionaries. It ends with a revolt where students machine-gun Anglicans as they come out of church.

Reynolds said he made his decision after a student complained about "If" being shown April 10. He said the film violated guidelines he had established and discussed with the society in February.

But former society president Glen Yarneau says the film was within Reynolds' guidelines and added that the society viewed the film in March and felt its nudity and obscenity was "not excessive."

Yarneau says he probably would never have gone to Baylor if he'd known how potent the small group of fundamentalist students could be.

"I am sad that this happened," he said. "I'm sad for the film society. And I'm concerned about the film society's future."

Besides suspending the group, Reynolds also told a university committee to study the society's charter and guidelines to recommend whether the society should continue to exist.

While saying he couldn't allow the incident to go unpunished, "nor can I permit the fundamentalist student faction to create apprehension and concern within our faculty and student body to the point that they cannot go about their work in an atmosphere of freedom."

"We need healthy diversity within our student body, but we do not need the arrogance and lack of discerning leadership which both of these groups and their associates have displayed to the detriment of the entire campus community."

Professor Ann Miller, an English professor and a film society sponsor, said she regrets the suspension but noted the sponsors had recommended against showing "If."

"The faculty members were concerned about the current climate of suspicion" in the Southern Baptist Convention, Ms. Miller said, adding that the film was too violent for her tastes.

"I have no words strong enough to describe the parties who are acting as spies, with the express purpose of negating the freedom of others," she said.

Collazo reportedly used his influence for partnerships

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A Beaumont businessman testified that state Rep. Frank Collazo offered to "get the heat off" him in exchange for a partnership in the businessman's shipyard.

Chester Slay, a shipyard owner and former state representative, said Tuesday that Collazo promised to use his influence with the Texas Water Quality Board in exchange for an interest in the Golden Triangle Shipyard.

Collazo, 53, D-Port Arthur, was indicted by a Jefferson County grand jury March 21 on a single charge of bribery, a second-degree felony.

The indictment alleges Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two of Slay's businesses — the shipyard and State Welding and Marine

Works — in exchange for offering to influence the Water Quality Board and the state Department of Water Resources.

Slay last year lost a water pollution lawsuit brought by the state.

Slay said during the first day of testimony Tuesday that after a July 1982 oil spill, the U.S. Coast Guard and Texas water resources staff frequently visited his shipyard business.

Slay testified part of the business included buying waste oil from Elias Vasquez, owner of an oil reclamation business, treating it and selling it back to Vasquez.

About one month after the spill, Collazo called Slay and offered to use his influence as a legislator, Slay testified in state District

Judge Leonard Giblin Jr.'s court.

"His reason for calling was point blank to offer a partnership agreement between us. He said he could remove pressure from the Texas Water Quality Board. In return, he wanted part of my shipyard," Slay said.

"He said he could help me with problems with the water quality board. He said he was on various (legislative) committees and could get the heat off," Slay said. "He said, 'I don't have to have half, just 40 percent.'"

Vasquez testified he met Collazo after a friend suggested the Collazo might be able to help him with "a position" he was in.

He said that during their first meeting Collazo told him that "people like me, he would put out of business... that he done a lot of things for people and didn't get paid, so he wasn't going to help anyone else" without getting paid.

SCATTERED WRECKAGE—Peter Hale looks over the scattered wreckage of a twin-engine Beechcraft airplane Tuesday afternoon as investigators prepared to piece together what happened early Tuesday morning to cause the plane's crash only 1½ miles north of the main runway at Brownwood Airport. The plane apparently flew into heavy fog while trying to land at the airport, clipped some trees and crashed. Two men, Dennis McCoy and Pilot Gene Thornton, both of San Marcos, died in the crash. Take look inside ourselves

Everyone has probably heard at least something about the uproar over President Reagan's proposed visit to the Kolmesheo cemetery in Bitburg, West Germany, near the Luxembourg border.

The press has gone wild, printing the President's every comment on the matter, all kinds of Jews' comments, war veterans' comments, West German politicians' comments, everybody's comments who would care to comment.

Reagan's purpose for the overseas jaunt, his first during his second term, was to "celebrate 40 years of Western European peace and reconciliation," news reports say.

Well, the President's plan to visit the cemetery where among the 2,000 bodies buried there are 49 of Hitler's SS soldiers, has made it obvious that this supposed "peace" in Western Europe is in reality a veneer of civility covering deeply felt wounds that may take generations to heal.

And this uproar in the newspapers makes it clear to me that although we are no longer at war with Germany, we have not forgiven the country for what it has done.

I know, I know. How can we forgive them for the young sons, fathers and brothers they killed in combat? How can we forgive the five million Jewish men, women and children who were brutally tortured and murdered because they were of a certain race?

And how can I say, "Let's forgive," when I didn't live through that time and did not lose someone I loved in that horror? How can I say "forgive" when I didn't go through the terror and heartbreak?

We ran a story in our paper recently about sets of twins who met at a concentration camp where the Nazi conducted unspeakable "experiments." They were among the few survivors. One set of twins could speak of nothing but catching the Nazi war criminal they believed responsible for the tortures they endured during this time. Forty years later, and the bitterness, hatred was still there.

Another man, a Jew, said he did not really know why he had to return to the concentration camp where he remembers kissing his mother "goodbye" as she walked into the gas chambers, but still he had to. He, too, wanted revenge. He wanted the men who had made him suffer, to suffer, as well.

The twins mentioned earlier did not want the Nazi doctors who "experimented" on them killed; they wanted these men to be locked away in a cell to listen to the screams of their victims forever.

I believe that the people who committed these unspeakable atrocities will suffer. I believe they will pay dearly for what they did in ways we could never dream of. I'm not concerned about them. They will be judged by a more competent Judge than even their victims could ever be.

But I am concerned about the victims — the Jews who cried out so loudly when Reagan said he would visit that cemetery where Nazis are buried — the veterans groups and the members of Congress who have condemned Reagan's appearance at the cemetery.

They are the ones who need to worry. The revenge, the hatred they harbor inside of them damages no one but themselves.

Yes, the crimes that were done to them are too much to forgive. And yet, for their own sakes they must forgive as we all must forgive others who have done wrong to us. Forgiveness is not only for the sake of those who have done wrong, but also for the victim.

Holding that resentment, hatred and feelings of revenge inside does not harm others, only ourselves.

I'm not about to say what is actually going on in President Reagan's mind or what his real reasons are for going to the Bitburg cemetery are.

I'm not a political analyst.

But whatever his reasons are, it wouldn't hurt those who are so adamant against him going there to look inside themselves and see if they haven't been living with hatred for 40 years. For their sakes, not those of the Nazis, isn't it time to forgive?

White vows to defend school reform

AUSTIN (AP) — While some parents have attacked the 1984 education reform act as a backwards step in public schools, a group of PTA members came to Austin to say they don't want lawmakers to tamper with it.

"We oppose any bills intended to amend House Bill 72," Parents For House Bill 72 said in a letter to White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and lawmakers.

Speaking before the group Tuesday, Gov. Mark White promised the group he would block any legislative efforts to stray from the public school reform bill.

White told the group to "never let up" in working for better schools.

The Senate has approved a bill aimed at cleaning up, but not weakening, the reform measure approved last summer. The clean-up bill is sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, author of the reform bill.

The House is working on a series of clean-up bills. Lewis has said he prefers to deal with each problem in a separate bill. But he said Tuesday the House might have to accept the Parker omnibus bill.

"I don't think it's that harmful. I don't think it deviates away from the true intent or damages HB72 to any great degree," he said.

Lewis added that Parker has given him "pretty good assurances" that Parker would fight weakening amendments added by the House.

Mattox criticized, praised for Lucas probe

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox has been criticized and praised for his part in a Waco probe into the murder confessions of Henry Lee Lucas.

Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh, a possible Republican candidate for attorney general next year, told a Capitol news conference Tuesday that Mattox, a Democrat, and Waco District Attorney Vic Feazell were jeopardizing unsolved murder cases by listening to Luca's claim he was "led" to confess by enforcement officers.

Mattox had no immediate comment. He was due in Waco Friday for a resumption of the grand jury probe into Lucas confessions.

However, the father of a Lubbock woman believed to be a Lucas victim said the attorney general seems to be the only official interested in questioning Lucas' mass murder claims.

"What I think is it's about damned time somebody paid attention," said Bob Lemons of Gainesville. "I think Mr. Mattox has."

Deborah Sue Williamson, 18, was killed Aug. 24, 1975. Lucas was indicted last year after confessing. But Lemons, who mounted a personal investigation, said he does not believe Lucas was the killer.

"The fact is they messed up," Lemons, 50, said of investigators who have worked on the Lucas case.

Lucas has been questioned by a Waco grand jury and another session is scheduled Friday.

Walsh said his comments about Mattox had nothing to do with a political campaign in 1986 because he had not yet decided if he will run.

Walsh successfully prosecuted Lucas in the slaying of an unidentified woman near Georgetown.

Walsh said Mattox was trying to turn the Waco grand jury session into a "statewide grand jury" to investigate things he had no power to investigate.

Lemon law is revised by Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved and sent to the House amendments to the 1983 "lemon law" bill which until recently was tied up in federal courts.

Approved 28-0 Tuesday was the change that would prevent car dealer members of the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission from taking part in any contested case involving the brand of vehicle he handles.

The so-called "lemon law" was first passed in 1971 then amended by the 1983 Legislature. However, a U.S. district court ruled the 1983 legislation was unconstitutional because there were new car dealers on the commission and no manufacturers. The challenge was brought by Chrysler Corp.

However, in March the 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals in New Orleans overruled the district court and declared the 1983 measure still effective in Texas.

Under the law, the nine-member commission is empowered to enforce new car guarantees and settle complaints from unhappy new car owners.

Other action by the Senate Tuesday included:

- A bill that would require the Department of Health charge annual fees of $30 to $30,000 for review of permit applications for municipal solid waste facilities. The measure was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.
- Establish a Texas Savings and Loan Supplemental Fund Corporation to supplement protection afforded by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. It would not replace deposit insurance. The bill was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.
- Allow the unsworn testimony of a child of 9 years or younger unless inadmissible under other law. It was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.

- Allow state employees to continue to be paid monthly instead of semi-monthly. Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, said it would double state payroll administrative costs if the state switched to semi-monthly payments.

'Missing child' found with mother after TV broadcast

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A 9-year-old girl whose picture was shown on the "Missing" broadcast that followed Monday's reshooting of "Adam" was found in Denton Tuesday afternoon with her 7-year-old brother and her mother, police said.

The mother, identified as Terry Lanotte-McDonald, 34, was arrested about 4 p.m. on a Fresno, Calif., warrant that alleged child abduction, and the children were placed in the temporary custody of the Texas Department of Human Resources, Denton Police Lt. Joe Waddill told The Associated Press.

Teresa McDonald, 9, had not been seen since her abduction in Fresno on Aug. 1, 1983, California authorities said.

Denton Juvenile Officer Dennis Baker located the woman and her children after receiving information earlier Tuesday from Fresno authorities about the possibility they were in Denton, Waddill said.

Ms. Lanotte-McDonald was taken to Denton County Jail, and bond was set at $8,000, Waddill added.

Placed in temporary foster care

along with Teresa was her brother, Edwin, 7, but it was uncertain whether he had been abducted in what apparently was a custody dispute.

An aide to California Assemblyman Gray Davis, D-Los Angeles, who has spearheaded missing children activities, said the arrest followed an anonymous tip to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, who referred the tip to the district attorney in Fresno, who forwarded it to Denton police.

Davis had worked with the missing kids center to get Teresa featured on the "Missing" program, said the aide, Steve Glazer.

Teresa's picture had been featured on posters on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system in San Francisco, as well as on products.

According to Glazer, the girl's father told Davis late Tuesday night that he was on his way to Denton for a hearing today.

In New York, it was announced Tuesday that two teen-age sisters missing for seven years and an 8-year-old girl missing since July were reunited with their mothers after viewers of the telecast about missing children called authorities with leads.

The girls' fathers were arrested, officials said.

They were living with their father, who was being held on Illinois felony warrants for abduction, authorities said. The girls were recognized by school authorities in Ohio, who alerted police.

Alex Ferguson, deputy director of the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, said the girls' father had taken them from his ex-wife's home while on a visit.

County accepts return of land

Gray County Commissioners passed a resolution today to take back from the state a strip of land along a farm-to-market road under construction east of Lefors.

The state highway department slightly altered a curve on FM 1474, reducing the amount of right of way needed. The county passed the resolution to take back the unneeded strip five miles east of Lefors, so that it can be returned to the landowner, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said.

In other action in their short, regular meeting today, commissioners approved buying two used half-ton trucks from the City of McLean for a total of $2,000.

The panel also agreed to pay poll workers in a past election calling for the establishment of a noxious weed control district, a proposal that was defeated. The commissioners approved paying the election workers a total of $466.

The panel also approved the purchase of an asphalt spreader from McDonald's Trading Post of Plainview for about $4,900.

Trustees to meet

Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District have scheduled a special called meeting for 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Carver Educational Service Center to discuss personnel matters.

The school board will meet in executive session to discuss resignation, retirement and employment of personnel in the school district.

Senate panel approves budget

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today unanimously approved a $36.8 billion state budget for 1986-87.

Committee members said the spending bill could be financed without new taxes if legislators also approve a $220 million fee increase, a $275 million increase in college tuition and a net $72.5 million increase from reduced contributions to teachers and state employee retirement funds.

The Senate bill, which will be debated next week, compares with a $36.4 billion bill, from all funds, approved by the House.

The Texas State Employees Union immediately said it would fight the bill because it does not contain a 3 percent a year pay hike for state employees as is included in the House bill.

The final appropriations bill for the next two years will be written by a 10-member Senate-House conference committee.

The Senate bill is 4.35 percent above 1984-85 spending from all funds and would require $26.2 billion from state general revenue funds, an increase of $1.37 billion increase or 5.5 percent above current spending.

The Senate committee also unanimously approved the $220 million revenue increase from the package that increases many state fees, permits and court costs.

The proposal compares with the $106 million fee increase bill already approved by the House, said Tom Scott, financial consultant to the Senate Finance Committee.

In one of the final actions Tuesday the committee voted to approve an increase in the yearly auto inspection fee from $5.25 to $9. A separate bill with the same increase has already been approved by the committee. It would yield $24 million.

A series of increases in fees charged by the secretary of state's office would produce an additional $12.7 million.

Another $40 million hike in revenue would come from a new schedule of oil and gas production fees and permits. The schedule does not include the $100 drilling fee proposed by Gov. Mark White.

The committee also approved a separate bill with a series of state court fee increases, including an increase from $25 to $75 for filing a civil suit in a state district court. The bill would produce $25 million additional in 1986-87.

Baylor prexy rebukes fundamentalists but accedes to their demand over film showing

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor University's president, rebuking some fundamentalist students as a "religious KGB" who spy on their classmates, has nevertheless given in to their complaints about a film group.

President Herbert Reynolds has suspended the Baylor Film Society until the 1986 spring semester for showing an R-rated British farce he said Tuesday ridicules the standards of most Southern Baptists.

He said he issued the ban Monday in part because he didn't want the students — whom he accused of snooping and snitching "to fundamentalist leaders among Southern and Texas Baptists" — to have grounds to attack the Baptist school.

The Southern Baptist Convention's fundamentalist faction has increasingly attacked Baylor as being too liberal, and some professors say a few students are collecting information and reporting to leaders of the faction.

The 1969 movie that sparked this latest controversy — "If" — depicts life in an exclusive British academy where the system turns boys into homosexuals and revolutionaries. It ends with a revolt where students machine-gun Anglicans as they come out of church.

Reynolds said he made his decision after a student complained about "If" being shown April 16. He said the film violated guidelines he had established and discussed with the society in February.

But former society president Glen Yarneau says the film was within Reynolds' guidelines and added that the society viewed the film in March and felt its nudity and obscenity was "not excessive."

Yarneau says he probably would never have gone to Baylor if he'd known how potent the small group of fundamentalist students could be.

"I am sad that this happened," he said. "I'm sad for the film society. And I'm concerned about the film society's future."

Besides suspending the group, Reynolds also told a university committee to study the society's charter and guidelines to recommend whether the society should continue to exist.

While saying he couldn't allow the incident to go unpunished, "nor can I permit the fundamentalist student faction to create apprehension and concern within our faculty and student body to the point that they cannot go about their work in an atmosphere of freedom."

"We need healthy diversity within our student body, but we do not need the arrogance and lack of discerning leadership which both of these groups and their associates have displayed to the detriment of the entire campus community."

Professor Ann Miller, an English professor and a film society sponsor, said she regrets the suspension, but noted the sponsors had recommended against showing "If."

"The faculty members were concerned about the current climate of suspicion" in the Southern Baptist Convention, Ms. Miller said, adding that the film was too violent for her tastes.

"I have no words strong enough to describe the parties who are acting as spies, with the express purpose of negating the freedom of others," she said.

Collazo reportedly used his influence for partnerships

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A Beaumont businessman testified that state Rep. Frank Collazo offered to "get the heat off" him in exchange for a partnership in the businessman's shipyard.

Chester Slay, a shipyard owner and former state representative, said Tuesday that Collazo promised to use his influence with the Texas Water Quality Board in exchange for an interest in the Golden Triangle Shipyard.

Collazo, 53, D-Port Arthur, was indicted by a Jefferson County grand jury March 21 on a single charge of bribery, a second-degree felony.

The indictment alleges Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two of Slay's businesses — the shipyard and State Welding and Marine

Works — in exchange for offering to influence the Water Quality Board and the state Department of Water Resources.

Slay last year lost a water pollution lawsuit brought by the state.

Slay said during the first day of testimony Tuesday that after a July 1982 oil spill, the U.S. Coast Guard and Texas water resources staff frequently visited his shipyard business.

Slay testified part of the business included buying waste oil from Elias Vasquez, owner of an oil reclamation business, treating it and selling it back to Vasquez.

About one month after the spill, Collazo called Slay and offered to use his influence as a legislator, Slay testified in state District

Judge Leonard Giblin Jr.'s court.

"His reason for calling was point blank to offer a partnership agreement between us. He said he could remove pressure from the Texas Water Quality Board. In return, he wanted part of my shipyard," Slay said.

"He said he could help me with problems with the water quality board. He said he was on various (legislative) committees and could get the heat off," Slay said. "He said, 'I don't have to have half, just 40 percent.'"

Vasquez testified he met Collazo after a friend suggested the Collazo might be able to help him with "a position" he was in.

He said that during their first meeting Collazo told him that "people like me, he would put out of business ... that he done a lot of things for people and didn't get paid, so he wasn't going to help anyone else" without getting paid.

SCATTERED WRECKAGE—Peter Hale looks over the scattered wreckage of a twin-engine Beechcraft airplane Tuesday afternoon as investigators prepared to piece together what happened early Tuesday morning to cause the plane's crash only 1 1/2 miles north of the main runway at Brownwood Airport. The plane apparently flew into heavy fog while trying to land at the airport, clipped some trees and crashed. Two men, Dennis McCoy and Pilot Gene Thornton, both of San Marcos, died in the crash. Take look inside ourselves

Everyone has probably heard at least something about the uproar over President Reagan's proposed visit to the Kolimeshohe cemetery in Bitburg, West Germany, near the Luxembourg border.

The press has gone wild, printing the President's every comment on the matter, all kinds of Jews' comments, war veterans' comments, West German politicians comments, everybody's comments who would care to comment.

Reagan's purpose for the overseas jaunt, his first during his second term, was to "celebrate 40 years of Western European peace and reconciliation," news reports say.

Well, the President's plan to visit the cemetery where among the 2,000 bodies buried there are 49 of Hitler's SS soldiers, has made it obvious that this supposed "peace" in Western Europe is in reality a veneer of civility covering deeply felt wounds that may take generations to heal.

And this uproar in the newspapers makes it clear to me that although we are no longer at war with Germany, we have not forgiven the country for what it has done.

I know. I know. How can we forgive them for the young sons, fathers and brothers they killed in combat? How can we forgive the five million Jewish men, women and children who were brutally tortured and murdered because they were of a certain race?

And how can I say, "Let's forgive," when I didn't live through that time and did not lose someone I loved in that horror? How can I say "forgive" when I didn't go through the terror and heartbreak?

We ran a story in our paper recently about sets of twins who met at a concentration camp where the Nazi conducted unspeakable "experiments." They were among the few survivors. One set of twins could speak of nothing but catching the Nazi war criminal they believed responsible for the tortures they endured during this time. Forty years later, and the bitterness, hatred was still there.

Another man, a Jew, said he did not really know why he had to return to the concentration camp where he remembers kissing his mother "goodbye" as she walked into the gas chambers, but still he had to. He, too, wanted revenge. He wanted the men who had made him suffer, to suffer, as well.

The twins mentioned earlier did not want the Nazi doctors who "experimented" on them killed; they wanted these men to be locked away in a cell to listen to the screams of their victims forever.

I believe that the people who committed these unspeakable atrocities will suffer. I believe they will pay dearly for what they did in ways we could never dream of. I'm not concerned about them. They will be judged by a more competent Judge than even their victims could ever be.

But I am concerned about the victims — the Jews who cried out so loudly when Reagan said he would visit that cemetery where Nazis are buried — the veterans groups and the members of Congress who have condemned Reagan's appearance at the cemetery.

They are the ones who need to worry. The revenge, the hatred they harbor inside of them damages no one but themselves.

Yes, the crimes that were done to them are too much to forgive. And yet, for their own sakes they must forgive as we all must forgive others who have done wrong to us. Forgiveness is not only for the sake of those who have done wrong, but also for the victim.

Holding that resentment, hatred and feelings of revenge inside does not harm others, only ourselves.

I'm not about to say what is actually going on in President Reagan's mind or what his real reasons are for going to the Bitburg cemetery are.

I'm not a political analyst.

But whatever his reasons are, it wouldn't hurt those who are so adamant against him going there to look inside themselves and see if they haven't been living with hatred for 40 years. For their sakes, not those of the Nazis, isn't it time to forgive?

White vows to defend school reform

AUSTIN (AP) — While some parents have attacked the 1984 education reform act as a backwards step in public schools, a group of PTA members came to Austin to say they don't want lawmakers to tamper with it.

"We oppose any bills intended to amend House Bill 72," Parents For House Bill 72 said in a letter to White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and lawmakers.

Speaking before the group Tuesday, Gov. Mark White promised the group he would block any legislative efforts to stray from the public school reform bill.

White told the group to "never let up" in working for better schools.

The Senate has approved a bill aimed at cleaning up, but not weakening, the reform measure approved last summer. The clean-up bill is sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, author of the reform bill.

The House is working on a series of clean-up bills. Lewis has said he prefers to deal with each problem in a separate bill. But he said Tuesday the House might have to accept the Parker omnibus bill.

"I don't think it's that harmful. I don't think it deviates away from the true intent or damages HB72 to any great degree," he said.

Lewis added that Parker has given him "pretty good assurances" that Parker would fight weakening amendments added by the House.

Mattox criticized, praised for Lucas probe

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox has been criticized and praised for his part in a Waco probe into the murder confessions of Henry Lee Lucas.

Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh, a possible Republican candidate for attorney general next year, told a Capitol news conference Tuesday that Mattox, a Democrat, and Waco District Attorney Vic Feazell were jeopardizing unsolved murder cases by listening to Luca's claim he was "led" to confess by enforcement officers.

Mattox had no immediate comment. He was due in Waco Friday for a resumption of the grand jury probe into Lucas confessions.

However, the father of a Lubbock woman believed to be a Lucas victim said the attorney general seems to be the only official interested in questioning Lucas' mass murder claims.

"What I think is it's about damned time somebody paid attention," said Bob Lemons of Gainesville. "I think Mr. Mattox has."

Deborah Sue Williamson, 18, was killed Aug. 24, 1975. Lucas was indicted last year after confessing. But Lemons, who mounted a personal investigation, said he does not believe Lucas was the killer.

"The fact is they messed up," Lemons, 50, said of investigators who have worked on the Lucas case.

Lucas has been questioned by a Waco grand jury and another session is scheduled Friday.

Walsh said his comments about Mattox had nothing to do with a political campaign in 1986 because he had not yet decided if he will run.

Walsh successfully prosecuted Lucas in the slaying of an unidentified woman near Georgetown.

Walsh said Mattox was trying to turn the Waco grand jury session into a "statewide grand jury" to investigate things he had no power to investigate.

Lemon law is revised by Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved and sent to the House amendments to the 1983 "lemon law" bill which until recently was tied up in federal courts.

Approved 28-0 Tuesday was the change that would prevent car dealer members of the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission from taking part in any contested case involving the brand of vehicle he handles.

The so-called "lemon law" was first passed in 1971 then amended by the 1983 Legislature. However, a U.S. district court ruled the 1983 legislation was unconstitutional because there were new car dealers on the commission and no manufacturers. The challenge was brought by Chrysler Corp.

However, in March the 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals in New Orleans overruled the district court and declared the 1983 measure still effective in Texas.

Under the law, the nine-member commission is empowered to enforce new car guarantees and settle complaints from unhappy new car owners.

Other action by the Senate Tuesday included:

- A bill that would require the Department of Health charge annual fees for $30 to $30,000 for review of permit applications for municipal solid waste facilities. The measure was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.
- Establish a Texas Savings and Loan Supplemental Fund Corporation to supplement protection afforded by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. It would not replace deposit insurance. The bill was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.
- Allow the unsworn testimony of a child of 9 years or younger unless inadmissible under other law. It was approved on voice vote and sent to the House.

- Allow state employees to continue to be paid monthly instead of semi-monthly. Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, said it would double state payroll administrative costs if the state switched to semi-monthly payments.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Policy abolishing quotas welcomed

Recently, the U.S. Justice Department informed 56 state, county, and city agencies that they should modify their affirmative-action plans so as to eliminate employment quotas for women and minorities. Similarly, the department is urging federal courts to amend previous consent decrees and court orders that contain numerical hiring goals.

In so doing, the department has correctly concluded that preferential hiring treatment based on race, sex or national origin is a violation of Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The Justice Department's prudent policy has alarmed a number of cities, such as Los Angeles and New York, that are presently engaged in a numbers game to ensure that their public work force reflects a cross-section of their populations.

The net result has been blatant examples of reverse discrimination that in turn have spawned an endless succession of lawsuits concerning minority and majority access to the workplace.

The U.S. Supreme Court has not decided in what circumstances, if any, public employers may use goals and quotas in hiring and promotion. The high court did rule last summer, in the Memphis firefighters' case, that courts cannot order quotas or give preferential treatment to job seekers who have not been the actual victims of racial discrimination.

In principle, affirmative action is an effective means to attract women and minorities to jobs that have previously been denied them. In practice, however, the means often become an end for those who insist that a rigid percentage of public-sector positions be reserved for women and minorities regardless of the applicants' qualifications. And therein lies a primary evil of employment quotas. They perpetuate the impression that these individuals cannot make it on their own merits.

The Justice Department's policy reaffirms the principle of equal opportunity in employment.

Nixon's new book praised

Holy Saturday, 1975 - a day of winds and relentless rain. I vividly recall sitting by a wood fire, as television news matter-of-factly reported the headlong flight of millions of South Vietnamese from their North Vietnamese "liberators."

Never before nor since have I felt so depressed about the United States of America, through whose lassitude and moral cowardice the fall of Southeast Asia was taking place - right there on television!

I would not commend President Richard M. Nixon's new book on Vietnam (No More Vietnams; Arbor House, $14.95, 240 pp.) for spiritual uplift. It will not, cannot, make one feel better about the way Congress turned its back on South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos, following the U.S. military pullout in 1973.

What I think the book might do, if read attentively, is make Americans aware of how perilous a world it is, and how essential are power and resolve to the maintenance of freedom.

I'm not certain how attentively the book will be read. That's the problem when the author is named Richard M. Nixon. The former president's enemies have long memories, dating back especially to the period under discussion in "No More Vietnams."

For hostile reviewers, the book is a piece of cake. "Won't the man ever leave us alone? Here he comes now to justify his immoral conduct of an immoral war. Blah, blah, blah."

Nixon, with minor exceptions, DOES justify his conduct of the war. But that is not what the book is about. "We won the war in Vietnam," he writes, "but we lost the peace. All that we had achieved in twelve years of fighting was thrown away in a spasm of congressional irresponsibility." That's what the book is about.

May I suggest that, on the hard, factual evidence, is it difficult to argue with that view of things? Nixon himself acknowledges that the peace agreement of January 1973 was defective. The agreement presumed North Vietnamese willingness to be at peace, at least for a while.

The truth was, the North Vietnamese, backed and provisioned by the Soviet Union, began violating the agreement right from the start, pouring additional troops and supplies into the south, ignoring international attempts to police the truce.

This eventually had been foreseen. Nixon expected, in such a case, to be able to unleash American power. No way. Congress cut off funds for bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Then it slashed aid to the South Vietnamese: so savagely indeed that our allies couldn't use many of the weapons they had for lack of spare parts.

When the big Communist offensive came in 1975, South Vietnam had only a third of the firepower it had enjoyed in 1972. "Congress," says Nixon, who by then was out of office, "turned its back on a noble cause and a brave people."

The end came quickly. Liberal doves in Washington congratulated themselves on how their obstruction of the Nixon policy had Brought Peace to Indochina.

Peace, nothing! Murder and slavery are what the Communist conquest brought. Genocide in Cambodia; concentration camps in Vietnam; the tragedy of the boat people, 600,000 of whom are thought to have drowned trying to escape - here is infinitely more depressing matter than we had at hand on Holy Saturday, 1975.

Nixon does not let the matter rest quite here. He bids us learn from the past. "We must purge ourselves of the paralyzing sickness of the Vietnam syndrome if we are to avoid other defeats in the battles of the Third World War."

We must quit moralistically judging our allies, as we did during Vietnam, remembering how much worse than anybody else are the Communists. We should support true "liberation" forces as in Nicaragua. We should retaliate against terrorism. We should help the Third World build free and prosperous economies.

"No More Vietnams" is terse, well-written, and, best of all, full of good sense and sound analysis. Which is why I'm concerned about the kind of impact it will make. When, ten years after Indochina, Congress bars funds to freedom fighters in Nicaragua - well, I ask you, how brisk can the demand be for good sense and sound analysis?

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1985. There are 244 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On May 1, 1960, the Soviet Union shot down an American U-2 reconnaissance plane near Sverdlovsk and captured its pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

On this date:
Ten years ago: The U.S. House of Representatives overwhelmingly rejected a bill to authorize $327 million in aid for Vietnamese refugees.

Five years ago: The Army commander of the ground forces in the aborted rescue of the hostages in Iran told reporters in Washington he had urged cancellation of the mission after three of the eight helicopters in the operation failed. Colonel Charles Beckwith denied he had favored pressing ahead with the five remaining copters.

Today's birthdays: Singer Kate Smith is 76. Actor Glenn Ford is 69. Actor John Berardino is 68. TV personality Jack Parr is 67. Author Joseph Heller is 62.

Let Japan buy our food

If Japan wants to sell more cars in the United States, let Japan buy more grain from the United States.

And that goes for anybody else wishing to sell anything else in the United States. They should buy our farm products instead of cancelling $255 million in orders for our wheat and corn so they can buy those grains in Argentina and France instead.

Even Mexico insists on selling us expensive oil while shopping elsewhere for cut-rate wheat.

Our country used to be agrarian, and used to be mostly farmers.

We led the industrial revolution and became the world's supplier of manufactured things instead. Now the world has learned to manufacture things. If we are going to have to be an agrarian society again - then let's make it pay.

Example: Last year we imported from Japan more than Japan imported from us by $37 billion.

Yet Japan, at that same time, was buying most of its farm products elsewhere.

The U.S. share of world grain trade has declined in five years from 60 percent to 48 percent.

Our traditional trading partners, trading elsewhere, explain that the expensive American dollar has made our foodstuffs cost 30 percent more than they can buy for elsewhere. Yet, Russia still buys wheat from us; 17.35 million tons since October.

Japan can and should. Since 1960 the number of farms in the United States has shrunk by 41 percent, the size of the average farm has increased from 297 acres to 437.

While government has thought it necessary to limit bigness in industry, modern economics requires bigness in agriculture.

Though that transition - however inevitable - told in cold numbers represents a lot of sweat and tears and more than a few suicides.

To shuck right down to the cob: While America's farmers are producing twice as much food as Americans can eat, let's tell anybody who wants to sell his cars, clothes or gizmos here that he will also buy his groceries here.

I hear the free trade advocates protest, "It's not as simple as that!" Gentlemen, it is as simple as that.

Academy works for peace

Suppose there were an outside party that could take in hand the endless Iran-Iraq war, bringing the combatants together in a search for a mutually satisfactory solution.

It wouldn't be easy. It might mean not even meeting face to face at first. The hostile parties might have to be segregated in separate rooms, with the third party's representatives shuttling between, relaying suggestions and counter-suggestions.

But eventually the process just might produce a formula that could be the basis of a cease-fire and even peace.

As a matter of fact, there is such a party, the International Peace Academy. Based in New York, its modest offices on First Avenue look out on the monumental buildings of another institution - the United Nations - which hasn't proved to be of much help in situations such as just described.

The IPA, in its low-profile way, seeks to remedy that failing. It works for the U.N., but is not technically of it. It is a non-governmental organization with consultant status to the U.N. The IPA was established in 1970 by private internationalists, largely Americans, to strengthen U.N. peace-keeping capabilities, which the U.N. was unable to do.

The reason, as IPA President Indarjit Rikhye delicately puts it, was "because of the political difficulties that exist" within the U.N. structure itself, i.e., Soviet resistance to institutionalizing such procedures.

Rikhye is a military man who has made a career of the pursuit of peace. A retired general of the Indian army, he was a military adviser to two U.N. secretaries-general - Dag Hammarskjöld and U Thant - and was the top military on the spot during the upheaval when the former Belgian Congo became independent in the early '60s.

He also saw service with the first U.N. peace-keeping force - UNEF-1 - following the 1956 Suez war.

Rikhye assisted in the establishment of the peace academy and has been its head from the start.

As it has developed, the IPA is a multipurpose operation. Its first function is as a research and training institute in the ways of establishing and maintaining peace. To that end, it operates training programs for professionals - diplomats, military officers, civil servants - from interested countries. Their skills are then available to their own governments and, when requested, on assignment to U.N. missions.

The IPA acts as a friend of the court in such cases, never as a party to the negotiations itself. It provides only the framework for the discussions, Rikhye explains, leaving it to the disputants to argue out their differences and explore the options.

"If in the meanwhile the parties should come to a set of conclusions that lead to a conclusion," he adds, "we are only too pleased."

The IPA pursues its mission with slim resources. The annual budget is under $1 million and funding is largely private - foundations, corporations and individuals. Governments on occasion host workshops and pick up the tab, Austria having been outstandingly helpful in this respect. Vienna has underwritten workshops every year since the IPA's first.

The full-time staff in New York consists of eight officers and about the same number of support personnel.

There are from six to eight training programs per year and five to six crisis workshops.

The IPA has had its successes, notably a workshop that produced what ultimately became the formula for Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai.

It is now looking at South Lebanon, surveying the situation and talking to parties involved.

Iran and Iraq are another matter. There has been preliminary work, Rikhye says, as part of studies of general security in the Gulf.

Wanted: sponsor for Christian club

HOUSTON (AP) — A group of high school students who sued the school district that prohibited their religious club from meeting on campus must overcome one more hurdle before it can meet — choosing a teacher-sponsor.

"We've found two teachers who would be willing to act as monitors. We've just have to decide which one we want," said Tony Amidei, 18, who originally filed the suit.

Amidei, a senior at Westchester High School, sued the district in November after administrators denied the student group's request for a club room.

Six other students from Westchester and Spring Woods High School, both in the Houston area, joined the lawsuit and the U.S. Justice Department intervened in the case.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black last week ordered the two high schools to permit the Christian Club to meet on campus, upholding the controversial Equal Access Act passed by Congress last year.

The club, said Amidei, is a "small group of students who have a common interest in Christianity and the life and teachings of Jesus Christ to meet once a week for one hour to discuss common experiences."

Amidei had planned the group's first meeting on school grounds Tuesday night and expected about 20 students. But the meeting was postponed a week so the group could organize, he said.

School policy states that every student organization must have a teacher-sponsor, said Mary Kay Coleman, spokeswoman for the Spring Branch Independent School District.

District Superintendent Henry Wheeler said the school district would comply with Black's order.

Officer admits to building shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston homicide sergeant has confessed to last week's shooting at the Houston Police Officers' Association building, an incident initially blamed on militant homosexuals, the police chief says.

Police Chief Lee P. Brown said Monday that the officer, whom he did not identify, came to his office Friday afternoon and admitted he had fired six shots into the building, adjacent to the Houston Police Department, at about 5 a.m. Thursday.

The officer was relieved with pending an internal affairs division investigation, Brown said.

Three other officers were present during the shooting and any disciplinary action against them will be decided when the investigation is complete, Brown said.

All four officers were on duty at the time of the shooting, he said.

HPOA president Mark Clark originally suggested members of the city's gay community shot at the headquarters in response to an anti-gay flier the association started mailing out last week.

Gay leaders had denied any knowledge of the shots.

The flier included a copy of a photograph from the Houston Post depicting Mayor Kathy Whitmire thanking supporters in a gay bar after she was re-elected. Over the picture was superimposed the caption, "Remember?"

When the criminal investigation is complete the case will be presented to District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr., Brown said.

"I think we'll probably air the whole thing out in front of the grand jury" regardless of whether HPOA officials want to press charges, Holmes said.

Clark said the HPOA directors will meet after the department's investigation is complete and decide whether to press charges.

"We'll look at what led up to the shooting and the rationale behind it," he said. "He (the officer) went to the chief on his own accord and has offered to pay for the damage to the building."

"If he loses his job and makes restitution ... that's when we have to decide what compassion we have for a brother officer," Clark said.

Holmes said HPOA officials must act as the complainant if charges involving crimes against person or property are filed.

If HPOA will not press charges, the state could act as the complainant and file charges if the investigation shows "crimes against the state" were committed, Holmes said.

Woman recalls horror of kidnapping ordeal

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — When she closes her eyes, she says, she can see the scraggly beards and smell the stench of the two men who abducted her after beating her companion and shooting three innocent passers-by.

An 18-year-old Fort Worth woman talked to newsmen Tuesday about the two men who she said raped her and drove toward the east coast after robbing and pistol-whipping her boyfriend and shooting three men, one of them fatally, who came to their aid.

One of her abductors, she said, chattered about changing the color of her blond hair and keeping her in Fort Lauderdale as his girlfriend. But both had threatened to kill her if she tried to reveal them as they fled to Florida from the crime scene at Inspiration Point, overlooking Lake Worth near Fort Worth, she says.

Delbert Boyd Teague Jr., 23, and Robin Partine, 28, both of Arlington and still in a Louisiana jail late Tuesday, were charged with capital murder late Tuesday in the incident that began late Sunday, said Robert Nelson, a Tarrant County assistant district attorney.

Doug Clarke, Fort Worth police spokesman, said the suspects have waived extradition and will be returned to Fort Worth after their arraignment in Plaquemine, La.

The woman and her parents returned home about 3:15 p.m. Tuesday to banners, balloons, streamers and cake. She hugged Thomas Emmitt Cox, 22, her boyfriend of two weeks, who was with her in his pickup truck when the gunmen appeared.

They men had pulled up to the truck and later robbed them of $4, she says. They then jerked Cox out and beat him with a gun butt before kidnapping her, she said.

As the gunmen drove away with her sandwiched between them, they shot three men who had just pulled up at the scenic overlook, she said.

Kevin Allen, Cox's childhood friend, was killed. David Suson, 32, was in critical condition late Tuesday and James Bell, 31, was in good condition at John Peter Smith Hospital.

About 3:30 a.m. Monday, the kidnapers stopped at a hotel, she said Tuesday. One man slept at the door, Ms. Irwin said. They got up about 7:30, planning to make New Orleans by evening, she added.

One of the men "didn't even change clothes," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "He stunk.

He made me sick. He kept trying to make me laugh. He would say: 'Cheer up — it's going to be OK.' He said I would like the life he had planned for me."

"He said he would buy her new clothes; he said they would live in Fort Lauderdale and 'hustle around,'" she said.

At one gas station, she told them she had to go to the bathroom. They agreed to her request, but stood guard outside the door after demanding she "make it faster" than previous trips.

She said she walked calmly to the door, her purse under her arm, took out a pencil and piece of paper and scratched a note, then laid it on the sink and left.

Another woman found the message a short time later and gave it to an attendant, who notified law enforcement officials.

UNITED STATES GOV'T. SILVER DOLLARS

ALL COINS UP TO 100 YEARS OLD

UNITED STATES COIN RESERVE

U. S. Coin Reserve, a distributor of Government Currency is officially announcing the release of its famous collection of 3000 high grade U.S. Government Silver Dollars. Due to the market surge and tremendous demand from the American Public the Officers of the U. S. Coin Reserve have been forced to authorize the release of their last current stockpiles of silver dollars. Most of these 50 to 100 year old coins are Brilliant Uncirculated and include many from the Carson City Mint. Since this collection must be sold out completely in only one week we are offering these coins for $50.10 less than a major national advertiser! Only $38.90 each! Orders received later may not be honored due to volatile fluctuations in the precious metals market, and checks may be returned uncashed.

NO LOSE INVESTMENT

American citizens from all walks of life including Bankers, Lawyers, Doctors, Stockbrokers, Collectors and Investors are searching frantically for what is considered by experts the world over to be a No Lose Investment. Once thought to be plentiful 50 years ago investors are now scrambling to get their hands on the nearly impossible to find Gem United States Government Silver Dollars. Well-known brokers such as Salomon Brothers have published reports stating that for the last 10 years, rare coins have outperformed all other investments, tangible as well as financial. Silver dollars alone have had an annual appreciation rate of 26.4% despite fluctuations in the price of silver! It is a proven fact that smart investors, for the last 10 years, have been secretly hoarding these coins. They are sitting on a silver mine which they will not sell and already have at least 1000% overall appreciation! This is just the "Tip of the iceberg" in terms of what is to come, for example the 1891-0 is now worth $85 and is projected by experts in only 10 years to be worth approximately $1000! Even more startling is the fact that only 10 years ago this coin could be bought for $7-$10! This is a proven fact and documented in records of American History.

CONGRESS MELTDOWNS CREATE SHORTAGE

These beautiful pieces of American History were created by the millions at the United States Mint over a century ago. Although when one studies U. S. History it becomes obvious why these treasured relics are so rare today. In 1918 during WWI, Congress authorized the melting down of 350,000,000 (350 million) silver dollars, after this regrettable event the value and scarcity of these coins increased dramatically. Also in 1980 when silver exploded to $50.00 per ounce, the private sector melted down millions more U.S. silver dollars leaving a decimated and widely scattered supply. Our staff of experts at the U.S. Coin Reserve has estimated that only 1% of the original mintage of uncirculated coins still exist. Most of these are not for sale but are being held by large investors until they are worth at least $1000 each. Remember that this treasured, historical silver represents some of this great nation's most illustrious periods in history, the frontier of The Wild West including the silver mines of Carson City, Nevada, Jesse James and rough stage coach travel, Henry Ford and the newfangled Model T and lastly the Roaring 20's and the beginning of American Jazz Music. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity to invest in a piece of this country's most valuable resource, the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HISTORICAL SILVER DOLLARS.

LAST KNOWN GOVT SILVER RELEASED

Through our national coin networks the U. S. Coin Reserve, a division of Verret Enterprises, a private corporation, has taken a major audit of the silver dollar supply of the entire United States. The results indicate that this famous hoard of 3000 Gems is the last known public collection of its size and quality available. NO other comparable collection is for sale anywhere in the United States. Also consider the fact that investments such as oil, diamonds, gold or silver bullion, represent commodities of unlimited supply. Through modern mining techniques the supply of these commodities never really runs out, but the highly collectible Government Silver Dollars have a LIMITED, FINITE and ever DECREASING supply.

The poster contest was sponsored by the local board of Realtors during Private Property Week activities last week.

about my DREAM HOME is..."

The art work was displayed last weekend at the Pampa Mall. First and second place winners received a $75 and a $50 bond, respectively. Honorable mentions were also recognized.

Winners are as follows:

TRAVIS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL — Jessica Garren, first; Julian Chen, second; Elasha Hanks, honorable mention.

Wedding cake 'tradition' is hard for some brides to face

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "November Bride" wrote: "My fiance insists that when we feed each other the first two pieces of wedding cake, we should grind it into each other's faces. We've seen this done at other weddings, and I think it's stupid and disgusting, but he is adamant. Am I wrong, or is he being inconsiderate and immature?"

You replied: "You're not wrong. And if your fiance is 'adamant' knowing how you feel, perhaps you'd better take a second look at him. Marriage to such a man would be no piece of cake."

Abby, do you realize that you advised this bride to consider not going through with the wedding over a trivial difference of opinion? Smearing each other's faces with wedding cake at a bridal dinner is all in fun. We did it at our wedding, and the picture we have of it in our wedding album is hilarious!

What's the matter with you, Abby? Have you lost your sense of humor?

JANUARY BRIDE

Please print this. You will be doing other brides a favor and helping me, because I never told this to the man I married, although I've always wanted him to know how deeply hurt I was by that cruel and insensitive act.

DIVORCED A YEAR LATER

DEAR ABBY: In recommending that a small-town newspaper editor leave bad alone, you quoted his disastrous attempts to correct a typographical error.

On my side of the Atlantic, we have a pithier example of the same problem:

An editor apologizes to his readers: "We very much regret our error in yesterday's edition in which we most unfortunately referred to the defective branch of the police force. We meant, of course, the detective branch of the police force."

A BRIT IN PASADENA

DEAR BRIDE: My sense of humor is still intact, but unless both parties agree to the cake-smearing bit, it should not be done.

There is more involved here than a "trivial difference of opinion"—it's essential that this bride realizes that she is about to make a lifelong commitment to a man who insists that she submit to something she considers stupid, disgusting, inconsiderate and immature. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've heard this question before because it's been around for a long time, but I've never known anyone who came up with the answer:

Which came first... the chicken or the egg?

I.M. SERIOUS
IN MOLINE, ILL.

DEAR SERIOUS: According to the Bible, the chicken came first: God said, "Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." (Genesis 1:20)

Gena on Genealogy

Editor's note: The following Gena on Genealogy column was inadvertently omitted from Friday's edition of The Pampa News. The column will continue to be published on Fridays as usual. We regret any inconvenience to our readers.

By GENA WALLS
NEW MEXICO presents a problem due to the lack of records available. However, many territorial papers were preserved and should be considered in any search of the area.

For nearly 20 years, the territory included what is now Arizona and Colorado. During the early years, the territory was connected with Mexico more than the new United States. You might find your Spanish or Indian ancestor in this area.

Land records should be checked carefully. Land grant records can be found in the State Records Center and Archives or the State Land Office in Santa Fe. These records are often neglected, yet they can supply missing links such as names or place of origin. Tax records are another possibility.

When checking either of these records, search the time period allowing several years before and after the known date. Watch for families with the same surname and property acquired at the same time. Often, these new settlers arrived together and you may be able to find the place of origin on one of the other deeds if not on your actual ancestor.

Make a list of records checked for each family to avoid duplicating the same work at a latter time. Record keeping is a must in tracing the families or you might discover that you have wasted your time by searching the same record several times. This is true when several months pass between your investigation of the records.

Project focuses on lost quilts

By MARY SHERWOOD
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Karey Bresnahan and her cousin, Nancy Puentes, call themselves quilt missionaries. They have been on a quilt quest for nearly a year, criss-crossing the state ferreting out quilts that have been stashed or lovingly stored for decades in closets, under beds and in cedar chests.

Fifty of the almost 3,500 quilts they have looked at will become a traveling Sesquicentennial exhibit that will open in the rotunda of the State Capitol April 21, 1986 — San Jacinto Day. The exhibit, which will include only quilts made in Texas before 1936, will subsequently travel to art museums around the state.

"Lone Stars: A Legacy of Texas Quilts, 1836-1936" will be published by the University of Texas Press as a catalog for the exhibit.

"Quilts are a uniquely female art form," said Ms. Puentes. "We want to see that the cultural and artistic contributions women made to the state are not overlooked for the Sesquicentennial."

The Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association, a statewide non-profit organization formed by Ms. Bresnahan and Ms. Puentes, is behind the quilt project.

A recent "Quilt Day" in Corpus Christi brought out nearly 50 quilts for Ms. Bresnahan to inspect and date, which she can do, give or take five or 10 years, by examining the fabrics used in the quilt top and back.

Along with the quilts, whose patterns had names like double wedding ring, Dresden plate, lone star, prairie rose, carpenter's wheel and drunkard's path, came stories.

The owners shared with the group all the facts and family myths they knew about their quilts — where they were made, when they were brought to Texas and whatever anecdotes were known about the maker or the quilt's history.

"A quilt becomes a means by which people identify with their roots," said Ms. Puentes.

Clara Escobar brought a lone star quilt made during 1935 in Yorktown by her then 16-year-old sister. The lone star pattern has always been popular in Texas — Ms. Bresnahan calls it the national quilt of Texas — but the unusual color combination in Mrs. Escobar's quilt makes it distinctive. The eight-pointed red, yellow and green star rests on a red appliqued border.

It was the first quilt her sister made, said Mrs. Escobar, who still quilts as often as she can with her sister.

Despite the fact that she was catching a plane to Europe in less than an hour, Joyce Chase brought a quilt called Mexican rose that was made between 1860 and 1865 by two old maid great-great aunts in Kentucky. "I just had to come," she said.

The aunts gave the quilt to their niece who took it to Indiana. When the niece became ill, Mrs. Chase's grandmother nursed her and was given the quilt. It was brought to Texas in the 1940s, said Mrs. Chase. The story passed down with the quilt is that a corset stay was used to mark the spiral feather quilting pattern.

Many quilts, especially those with hearts or the double wedding ring pattern, dated to the engagement or marriage of the maker. It was traditional for girls to have 13 quilts when they married, said Ms. Puentes.

Her family, she said, has continued this tradition. Her grandmother pieced 13 quilt tops for each of the girls in the family and when their engagements were announced, all the women of the family met to quilt the tops.

"My grandmother sat us at the head of the frame and told us to take tiny stitches," said Ms. Puentes. "She said, 'Think about having to look at it every morning when you wake up.' I think she ripped our stitches out at night."

One quilt with a pattern called Whig Rose was chosen to receive a $100 prize as the "Oldest, best preserved, most beautiful quilt" that was brought to the event.

Ms. Bresnahan estimates it was made in 1865. It has a white background and six large roses puffed high by cotton stuffing. Each rose is surrounded by a green circle and four stems that each have a smaller puffed rose at the end.

The quilt, which belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Needham Smyth, was found while cleaning out his mother's house in Uvalde after her death last August. It was stuffed in a paper bag at the back of a closet on a screen porch.

No one in the family had ever seen it. They Smyths surmise that it was hidden away because it was given to his mother by her mother-in-law, whom she did not like.

There are some brown spots on the quilt. Many expressed concern about similar marks on their old quilts. Ms. Bresnahan's response was: "If you were as old as your quilt and all you had were a few brown spots, you'd be in good shape."

Fold lines are much, much more serious, she said. They cause the fabric to deteriorate along the line and also become soiled. If quilts are folded, they should be refolded along different lines two or three times each year and the fold should be padded with acid-free tissue paper.

Rolling quilts is a preferable way to store them if you have room, said Ms. Bresnahan. They can be rolled around a closet pole padded with white sheets and suspended on bricks under a bed, she said. A second white sheet should be wrapped around the quilt.

Never, under any circumstances, store them in plastic, brown-paper bags or where they are touching any kind of wood, said Ms. Bresnahan.

Citrus pudding

FRESH ORANGE TAPIOCA PUDDING

- 2 1/2 cups fresh orange juice
- 1/4 cup quick-cooking tapioca
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup fresh orange sections, cut in half
- Sour cream
- Chocolate cookie crumbs

In medium saucepan combine orange juice, tapioca, salt and sugar; let stand 5 minutes. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool at room temperature for 20 minutes.

Stir in orange sections; turn into dessert dishes. Chill. Just before serving, garnish with a dollop of sour cream and top with chocolate cookie crumbs. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Note: To section oranges, cut slice from top and cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, or round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Cut along each dividing membrane to center core; remove sections over bowl to retain juice.

Take salads along

CREATE A COLORFUL Summer Fruit Slaw with a variety of fresh vegetables and fruit and refreshing, sweet - tangy salad contains only 180 calories per serving. This flavorful French reduced calorie dressing. This Salads are popular, portable foods, ideal to take along on summertime outings. In fact, many salads may be made ahead of time, chilled overnight, and then brought to picnics in insulated containers. That way the flavors have a chance to mingle, bringing out the best of both the salad ingredients and the dressing.

Pasta salads have become increasingly popular in recent years, giving a new dimension to both side dish and main dish salads. An unusual pasta salad with entree potential combines cheese or meat - filled tortellini with a variety of fresh vegetables. Use either dried or frozen prepared tortellini, both of which are available at many supermarkets.

Italian dressing blended with Dijon - style mustard is a tangy topping for the tortellini salad, a mixture of broccoli flowerets, mushroom slices, cherry tomato halves and zucchini chunks. If you plan to take it to a picnic, mix it several hours in advance, refrigerate, and pack it in ice or in an insulated container. Add cheese, bread, fresh fruit and a beverage to complete the alfresco menu.

A marinated Bouquet Salad is another good summertime take - along salad. The marinade is a combination of dry white wine and Italian dressing. Cooked chicken, bow noodles, broccoli flowerets and mushrooms are the key ingredients, mixed with the marinade several hours before serving. Spoon the chicken, pasta and vegetables into a plastic container, then pack it into an insulated cooler. At serving time, top with a sprinkling of grated Parmesan cheese.

These salads are just two of the many fresh - tasting offerings to enjoy during summer's salad days.

TORTELLINI VEGETABLE TOSS

- 1 c. broccoli flowerets
- 1 c. mushroom slices
- 1 c. cherry tomato halves
- 1 c. zucchini chunks
- 7 oz. meat or cheese - filled tortellini, cooked, drained
- 1/2 c. pitted ripe olive slices
- 1 (8 oz.) bottle Italian dressing
- 2 T. Dijon - style mustard

Combine broccoli, mushrooms, tomatoes, zucchini, tortellini and olives. Add combined dressing and mustard; mix lightly. Chill. Six servings.

Variation: substitute 1/2 lb. frozen tortellini for dried tortellini.

BOUQUET SALAD

- 1 (8 oz.) bottle Italian dressing
- 1/4 c. dry white wine
- 2 c. chopped cooked chicken
- 2 c. bow noodles, cooked, drained
- 2 c. broccoli flowerets
- 2 c. mushroom halves
- 1/2 c. red pepper chunks
- 1/4 c. red onion rings
- 1/4 c. grated parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper

Combine dressing and wine. Add chicken, noodles, broccoli, mushrooms, red pepper and onions; mix lightly. Season to taste. Chill. Sprinkle with cheese before serving. 4 to 6 servings.

PASTA — in this case meat or cheese - filled tortellini — is mixed with fresh vegetables and a tangy dressing made with Italian dressing and Dijon - style mustard for a fresh - tasting, easily - prepared main dish salad.

Summer salads offer variety

Salad consumption usually surges in the summertime because meals tend to be lighter, and because supermarket produce departments are brimming with fresh vegetables and fruits. To take advantage of the pick of the season, try dressing up traditional favorite salads with fresh approaches.

Popular coleslaw, which according to the most recent "Restaurants & Institutions" magazine Menu Census, heads all other salad offerings on restaurant menus, can be enhanced by the addition of other interesting fresh vegetables and fruits. In Summer Fruit Slaw, a new version of the salad, shredded cabbage, zucchini and carrots are combined with red grape halves and apple matchsticks. This crunchy salad gets its refreshing sweet - sour taste from the fruit and vegetable combination and French low - calorie dressing. This salad can be prepared in minutes with the help of a food processor, and may be made a day in advance. For an attractive party and barbecue accompaniment, serve it in a hollowed - out cabbage head or in a bowl lined with dark green outer cabbage leaves. Calorie counting guests will appreciate that each serving of Summer Fruit Slaw contains only 180 calories.

Another tempting cabbage slaw combines two varieties of cabbage with cubed cooked potatoes. This coleslaw - potato salad is accented with chopped red or green pepper and is blended with creamy thousand island low - calorie dressing. Colorful Cabbage - Potato Slaw can be served in a cabbage leaf - lined bowl as well, if desired.

SUMMER FRUIT SLAW

- 2 c. red grape halves
- 1 c. shredded zucchini
- 1 c. shredded cabbage
- 1 medium apple, cut julienne style
- 1/2 c. French low calorie dressing
- 1/2 c. shredded carrots
- 1/2 c. coarsely chopped walnuts

Combine ingredients; mix lightly. Chill. Makes six servings, 180 calories per serving.

COLORFUL CABBAGE POTATO SLAW

- 6 c. cubed cooked potatoes
- 1 qt. shredded red and green cabbage
- 1 (8 oz.) bottle thousand island low calorie dressing
- 1/2 c. chopped red or green pepper
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1/4 t. pepper
- Cabbage leaves

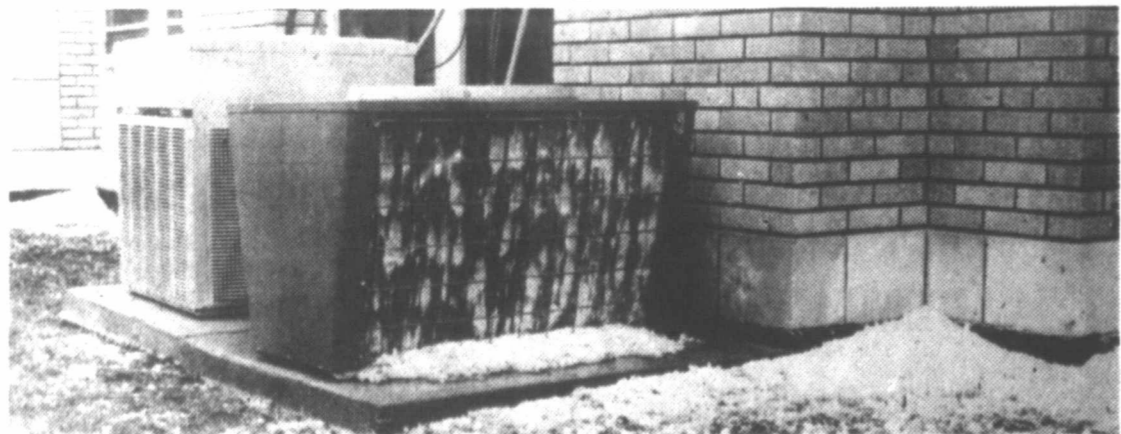

Combine ingredients except cabbage leaves; toss lightly. Chill. Serve in a cabbage leaf - lined bowl. Makes six to eight servings.

—Research indicates that the most popular salad ingredients are, not surprisingly, lettuce and pourable dressing, served respectively in 100 and 97 percent of green salads. These salad basics are followed in popularity by tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, carrots, celery, green pepper and radishes. Other popular salad ingredients include fruit, cheese and eggs. —Americans are heeding advice to "eat their vegetables." Consumption of fresh vegetables such as lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, cucumbers and broccoli has increased over the past 10 years. Currently Americans eat almost 26 pounds of lettuce per person annually, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

BOMB SCENE—A car parked in front of the Belgian Employers Federation building in Brussels exploded early Wednesday killing one fireman, injuring 13 other people and causing heavy damages to surrounding buildings. Remains of the car are in the foreground. The explosion is claimed by the left-wing terrorist group "Cellules Communistes Combattantes."

Court orders Dotson freed on bond during his appeals

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson, who has spent six years in prison for a rape his accuser now says never happened, was impassive but relieved by an Illinois Supreme Court ruling that he can be released on bond during appeals, officials say.

Dotson's mother, Barbara Dotson, said she had arranged a $10,000 bank loan to meet the cash requirements for the $100,000 bond ordered Tuesday and that she planned to bring her son home today for the second time in a month.

"I'm a little scared, but I just don't feel they can do it again to him," Mrs. Dotson said. "I just know in my heart they aren't going to take him back again."

Dotson said, "Oh, fine," when told by Dixon Correctional Center Warden Linda Giesen, said corrections department spokesman Nic Howell. Ms. Giesen described Dotson as impassive but "relieved," Howell said.

"I think it's the correct decision," said Warren Lupel, Dotson's attorney. But, "after what has happened in the past, it's difficult to be confident."

The supreme court overturned an appeals court's denial of bond, but postponed a decision on Dotson's request that it hear an appeal of Circuit Judge Richard Samuels' April 11 ruling upholding Dotson's conviction.

If it heard the case, it would bypass an intermediate appeals court.

Samuels in 1969 sentenced

Dotson to 25 to 50 years in prison on a conviction of aggravated kidnapping and rape on the basis of testimony from a teen-ager, Cathleen Crowell Webb, now married and living in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Webb in March recanted her testimony, claiming she had concocted the 1977 rape because she thought a boyfriend had impregnated her and she wanted to keep her foster parents from learning of the affair.

Samuels freed Dotson April 4 on $100,000 bond until he could hold a hearing on the new claims by Mrs. Webb, 23, of Jaffrey, N.H. A week later, the judge ordered Dotson, 28, back to prison because he didn't believe her new story.

Iacocca's tarnished halo

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Iacocca may be a folk hero to readers of his autobiography, now leading many of the best-seller lists, but at best he is just another businessman among his peers in corporate America.

That assessment comes from Professor Eugene Jennings, who believes Iacocca has much more distance to cover before joining the ranks of business greats. And he fears the Chrysler chairman's ego might prevent him from getting there.

Already, he says, executives are commenting critically on Iacocca's breach of an unwritten standard of corporate behavior, which is to neither complain nor explain when fired, as Iacocca was by Henry Ford II years ago.

By remaining silent in spite of what many see as a personal vendetta against him, Ford has upheld the corporate credo and won the admiration of many of his peers, says Jennings, management professor at Michigan State University.

Some of those same executives, says Jennings, are now breaking their silence and speaking openly of "what could be Iacocca's fatal weakness — his Caesar-like ego" which "allows for no humility."

Jennings, who says he has spent three decades helping corporate chairmen substitute intelligent action for the traps of egocentricity, and who has studied and written about leadership back to ancient times, maintains that "Iacocca: An Autobiography," unfairly portrays events.

"Iacocca would have been fired from any company the closer he came to the top," says Jennings, who contends that Iacocca did not by himself do all that he claims, and that Henry Ford II is hardly the ogre he is made out to be.

"Caesar cannot be No. 2," Jennings says, asserting that Iacocca represents an archetype — along with Douglas MacArthur, George Steinbrenner of the N.Y. Yankees, among others — who finds it nearly impossible to adapt to legitimate authority.

Many other people managed to advance under Henry Ford II, he observes, among them Donald E. Petersen, Ford Motor president and an executive who, he says, had a business approach as different from Henry Ford's as was Iacocca's.

Jennings also contends that other executives have performed as well or better than Iacocca in saving major corporations, among them David Roderick of U.S. Steel and Donald Lennox of International Harvester.

According to Jennings, ego can be both strength and weakness, allowing executives to attract believers to a cause, but also causing the executives to prove themselves over and over.

More important to others, he says, is the tendency of the Caesar archetype to allow ego to impede judgement.

"Many men of great achievement have had severe and unfair trials of character but most have become stronger and grown to fit the American ideal of a hero," says Jennings.

Republicans win Reagan budget test vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a move to spare Social Security from this year's budget knife are predicting decisive victory, despite preliminary Senate approval of a White House-backed plan that would limit cost-of-living benefit increases.

"We're going to win by a wide margin. We're going to leave Social Security alone," said Sen.

Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., coauthor with Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., of a budget amendment to strip Social Security curtailment from President Reagan's $52 billion package of spending cuts.

The Republican-run Senate voted 50-49 on Tuesday night to consider the administration-backed plan as a package. All the chamber's 47 Democrats voted against the plan, joined by two rebelling Republicans, Sens. Robert Kasten of Wisconsin and Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland.

Senate GOP leaders hailed the first-step approval as an important — if razor-close — symbolic victory.

Amendments to the plan were up for consideration in the Senate today.

Cowboys draft Walker

DALLAS (AP) — Nobody will deal with the Dallas Cowboys. Since the Cowboys obtained Tony Dorsett in a much ballyhooed trade with Seattle in 1977, Dallas has had difficulty getting any action.

The Cowboys couldn't pull off a big trade Tuesday during the National Football League draft.

"We did more to try to make a trade than we have in 10 years," club president Tex Schramm said.

"In the long run what happened is probably for the best. We would have loved to have an impact wide receiver, but we got some solid players for the future."

Cowboys coach Tom Landry picked 6-7, 275-pound Michigan defensive tackle Kevin Brooks in the first round and Virginia Tech linebacker Jesse Penn in the second round.

"I feel very good about those two players," Landry said. "We tried to move up in the draft and came close to making a trade, but it didn't work out."

Landry also liked the third-round selection, 295-pound offensive tackle Crawford Kerr of Florida, who can bench press 515 pounds.

"We'll play him at guard," said Landry. "He's strong, big and powerful. He's one of the first real big linemen we have drafted."

In the fourth round, Landry decided on backup help for Dorsett by taking Robert Lavette of Georgia Tech. Lavette rushed for 886 yards on 188 carries.

"We need backup help for Dorsett," said Landry. "We need some depth at the position."

The fifth round was strictly a longshot gamble, taking running back Herschel Walker of the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals, whose contract isn't up until 1988. The Cowboys also got Texas A&M center Matt Darwin in the round.

"If it works out that Herschel isn't in the USFL anymore, then he's ours," said Schramm.

Landry said he doesn't expect

Brooks to play right away.

"Brooks fills a defensive need for the future of the Cowboys," Landry said. "We have security in our down linemen positions where we are starting to get some age."

Landry said he wasn't certain whether Brooks would play end or tackle.

"Brooks has good size, like Ed Jones. He was very active on the film I saw of him," Landry added.

Brooks was elated.

"I'm very excited about moving here and learning the Cowboys' system. I've been a Cowboy fan all my life," Brooks said.

Landry said Penn could be the outside linebacking help the Cowboys desperately need.

"The guy can play," said Landry, who had Penn flown to Dallas for an interview last week. "We feel this kid can be a top player and hope he will contribute right away. He is very good at pass coverage and makes a lot of tackled. He can deliver a blow."

49ers pull off coup in NFL draft

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's 50th draft put a premium on quick thinking. So it was no surprise that those who thought the quickest were the guys on top — the San Francisco 49ers.

The draft, an 18-hour, 27-minute affair that began just after 8 a.m. EDT Tuesday and didn't wind up until 2:29 a.m. today, was one of the most unique in its history, as unexpected picks gave rise to more unexpected picks and sudden trades to gain advantage.

Or, as Mike Hickey, the New York Jets' player personnel director, put it midway through the day: "Things are coming from left field and you'd better have strong conviction when you take a player."

That was perfect for the 49ers, whose past convictions were strong enough to carry them to a Super Bowl victory in two of the past four years. On Tuesday, they scored a victory in maneuver over the Dallas Cowboys that could give them another Super Bowl or two.

The Cowboys, who drafted 17th, and the 49ers, with the 28th and final pick in the first round, both coveted a fleet wide receiver in a draft where the three prime members of that species were expected to go in the top 10 choices.

But when the teams that chose early bypassed them in favor of offensive linemen, defensive linemen and linebackers, the 49ers and Cowboys made their moves.

The 49ers succeeded, exchanging their pick for New England's, the 16th, one ahead of the Cowboys. Dallas tried to leapfrog the 49ers and failed, leaving San Francisco to grab the man both wanted, wide receiver Jerry Rice of Mississippi Valley State.

"We did more to try to make a trade than we have in the last 10 years," said Tex Schramm, the Cowboys' president. "We would have liked to have an impact wide receiver. We started trying to trade from the fourth pick on down to ours."

"We just felt we should put it all into one player," said Bill Walsh, the San Francisco coach. "Fortunately, we were able to get one of three players who we thought would have been really outstanding for us."

Dallas may have partially atoned for that by choosing Herschel Walker with the second pick of the fifth round, the 114th overall.

The 1982 Heisman Trophy winner, Walker is under contract to the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals through 1990, but if the financially shaky USFL should collapse, the Cowboys have a running back who would probably have been the first player taken rather than the 114th.

There were few players of Walker's name value in this draft, although many teams regarded it as deep in bread-and-butter players. The next biggest name, in fact, may have been Walker's New Jersey teammate, Heisman-winning quarterback Doug Flutie, chosen by the Los Angeles Rams with the fifth pick of the 11th round, the 285th pick in the draft.

The first nine players taken were offensive and defensive linemen or linebackers, the longest the draft has gone since 1968 without a quarterback, running back or receiver being taken. For the second straight year, no quarterbacks were taken in the first round — the plum there was Bernie Kosar of Miami, who will probably opt for a supplemental draft in which his hometown team of Cleveland can take him.

Even the school with the most first-round picks was unusual — Wisconsin, rarely a prime supplier of NFL players, had three taken — wide receiver Al Toon, taken by the Jets; cornerback Richard Johnson, Houston; and defensive end Daryl Sims, Pittsburgh. The Badgers, 7-4 including a loss to Kentucky in the Hall of Fame Bowl, had six players chosen in the first four rounds.

Southern California, Pitt and Florida, more traditional sources of pro talent, had two first-round picks each.

There were relatively few USFL players taken, largely because the new league signed few highly rated players this year. But the Los Angeles Raiders used a seventh-round choice on Bret Clark, a safety from Nebraska, signed last week by John Bassett, who is pulling his Tampa Bay Bandits out of the USFL and says he's forming a new spring league.

The dealing started right from the top.

Chief's Crown, Proud Truth favored in Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The only reason Alydar didn't win the 1978 Kentucky Derby and the Triple Crown was Affirmed.

Proud Truth might not win Saturday's Kentucky Derby because of a pace not to his liking or because of the versatility of Chief's Crown, who has proved he can win on the lead or coming from behind.

Proud Truth, however, is a one-run colt.

John Veitch, who trained Alydar for Calumet Farm, is back at Churchill Downs for his second Derby, this time with Proud Truth, a typical Darby Dan Farm late-charger.

There will be a dozen or more other horses going to the starting gate for the 11th Derby, but Chief's Crown and Proud Truth generally are rated the prime contenders for the 1 1/4-mile, 3-year-old classic with Chief's Crown the standout.

"He's the second best horse in the race," Veitch said Tuesday with a broad grin about Chief's Crown, a consistent performer who has put together six straight wins, including a controversial victory over Proud Truth in the Flamingo Stakes.

Proud Truth has scored five victories, including the Florida Derby, in eight lifetime starts. He is coming off a second, by 2 1/2 lengths to Eternal Prince, in the Wood Memorial March 30 at Aqueduct.

In the Wood, Eternal Prince was able to go in front and stay there the rest of the way as Proud Truth couldn't catch him.

Veitch believes having two "speed" horses in the Derby — Eternal Prince and Garden State Stakes winner Spend A Buck — could benefit Proud Truth, who'll again be ridden by Jorge Velasquez.

Harvester game re-scheduled

Pampa hosts Dumas at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in a District 1-4A baseball contest. The game was originally scheduled to be played Tuesday, but was postponed because of wet grounds.

The Harvesters will be out to avenge an earlier 6-5 loss to Dumas.

In other district games, Canyon defeated Borger, 10-6, Tuesday.

The win gave the Eagles second place.

Lubbock Estacado has already clinched the district championship.

Lubbock Estacado, 10-1 (17-6); Canyon, 8-3 (16-8); Borger, 7-4 (10-8); Lubbock Dunbar, 6-4 (10-9); Dumas, 4-7 (7-11); Pampa, 2-8 (7-13); Levelland, 0-10 (1-16).

Maleeva downs Yanagi Hurdle leads Mets past Astros, 4-1 in Virginia Slims

HOUSTON (AP) — Second-seeded Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria was on the baseline and on her favorite surface and it added up to an easy 6-3, 6-1 victory over Japan's Masako Yanagi in a second round match of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Houston tennis tournament.

"I can't say it was easy because she won three games on her serve in the first set," said Maleeva, ranked No. 4 in the world. "She was serving good but I felt good the way I played."

Maleeva, playing on the newly constructed clay court at Sweetwater Country Club Tuesday, played a steady baseline game from the start and broke Yanagi in the second game of the match and jumped to a 4-1 lead in the set.

Yanagi held to start the second set but it was her only lead of the match. She was broken in the third and fifth games and never was in the match.

Fourth-seeded Zina Garrison of Houston, still glowing from her upset victory over Chris Evert Lloyd almost two weeks ago, beat Debbie Spence, 6-3, 6-1, despite serve problems.

"I'm usually upset about my serve," Garrison said. "I think I played up and down. I had some loose game but I had her moving and that was what I wanted to do."

Beating Lloyd has caused her to concentrate more, Garrison said.

"Once you get a good win like that, you have to out and play twice as hard," she said.

"Mentally, that was my best match but my stroke was a little off."

Japan's Emiko Okagawa, Japan, sent another seeded player to the sidelines with a 1-6, 6-1, 6-3 victory over seventh-seeded Pam Casale.

Sixth seeded Peanut Louie lost her opening match on Monday to Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia.

Hana Mandlikova, originally seeded second, and fifth-seeded Andrea Temesvari, earlier withdrew with injuries.

In other matches Tuesday, Elise Burgin, United States, defeated Etsuko Inoue, Japan, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3; Mary Lou Piatek, U.S., defeated Marianne Groat, Canada, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 and Stephanie Rehe, U.S., defeated Terry Phelps, 6-4, 7-6.

Finals in the tournament will be played Sunday with $30,000 going to the winner.

NEW YORK (AP) — Clint Hurdle, who once adorned the cover of Sports Illustrated before his baseball career took a nosedive, has learned a lesson.

"Just don't ever quit," he says.

Up and down between the majors and minor leagues since breaking in with Kansas City in 1978 as an outfielder, Hurdle's hard work is beginning to show dividends. Last year in the Mets' minor league system, he learned how to catch, and he appears to have found a place to play in New York.

Tuesday night, Hurdle came in to play against Houston in the fifth inning after starting catcher Gary Carter left with bruised ribs he had sustained Sunday. Hurdle singled twice, scoring one run and driving in another as Dwight Gooden and the Mets beat the Astros 4-1.

"If you came from another planet, you'd never know he's been catching only two years," Gooden said of Hurdle. "He's a hard worker, and he's made a big improvement since last year."

Gooden, 3-1, pitched a four-hitter, allowing a first-inning homer by Denny Walling, then shutting out Houston the rest of the way. He struck out eight and walked just two batters, one each in the eighth and ninth innings.

Astros knuckleballer Joe Niekro, 1-3, took a one-hitter into the seventh inning when New York scored two of its runs. The Mets got two more in the eighth off left-handed reliever Frank DiPino. Keith Hernandez led off the Mets seventh with a single, and Hurdle came to bat for the first time, having been instructed to bunt Hernandez to second. He failed in two bunt attempts, and the count was 0-2.

"Have you ever tried to bunt a knuckleball?" Hurdle asked. "It was 0-2 and I hadn't even come close to getting it down. There were times when I'd have been out — down and out."

Instead of being out, however, Hurdle singled into center field, sending Hernandez to second. After Niekro got Darryl Strawberry to pop out to center field, George Foster singled home Hernandez, with Hurdle going to third on the throw home. Astros left fielder Jose Cruz made a strong throw to the plate, but the ball squirted out of catcher Alan Ashby's glove.

"Foster hit a good pitch," Niekro said. "I threw the ball well. If we had hit onto the ball at the plate, it would have been a different game."

Instead, Niekro was gone, and Danny Heep, who had the only previous hit for the Mets, singled to center to score Hurdle.

In the next inning, Gooden led off with a walk and went to second on a bouncer to third by Wally Backman. One out later, Hernandez was walked intentionally and Hurdle, a left-handed hitter facing a lefty pitcher, singled into right to score Gooden. Hernandez went to third on the play, and Hurdle took second on the late throw home. Strawberry was then walked intentionally, and John Christensen broke an 0-for-17 start with a single off DiPino's leg that scored Hernandez.

"I've removed all the pressure from myself," Hurdle said. "I'm not trying to live up to anybody's expectations now. I just go out and do the best I can. The ball had me for so long, and now I've got the ball. It's not life or death anymore."

Dallas businessman is oldest man to reach Everest summit

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A 55-year-old businessman from Dallas has become the oldest man ever to reach the top of Mount Everest, the world's tallest mountain, the ministry of tourism reported today.

The ministry said Dick Bass reached the top of the 29,029-foot peak on the Nepal-China border at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday after a 10-hour climb from his highest assault camp.

Bass, part of a Norwegian Everest expedition, reached the top with American filmmaker David Breashears, 29, of Newton, Mass., and Nepalese Sherpa guide Ang Phurba, 25.

The three men went up the traditional southeast ridge route pioneered by Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand and sherpa Tenzing Norgay in the first successful scaling of Everest in 1953.

Bass, an entrepreneur who has developed ski resorts in Snowbird, Utah, is five years older than Chris Bonington of northern England, who reached the peak on April 21, and Jozef Patka of Czechoslovakia, another 50-year-old who climbed Everest last October.

Bass has been on three previous expeditions to the Himalayan peak, but was stopped short of the summit on each of these occasions.

Bass, Breashears and Ang launched their summit bid at 2 a.m. Monday from camp four at 26,174 feet, the ministry said, quoting radio reports from the team's base camp. The base camp said the weather was clear through the morning hours while the three were on the summit, but snow fell as they descended.

During their 15-minute stay on the pinnacle, the three hoisted flags of the United States, Nepal and of the seven continents. Breashears filmed their activities during the summit climb, the base camp said.

All three used oxygen during the final stages of the climb.

Ang made it back to camp four at 2:15 p.m., followed 30 minutes later by Bass and Breashears, the only Americans in the Norwegian expedition. The three men slept at the camp Tuesday night.

Four Norwegians and four sherpa guides used the same camp four as a starting point in making their successful climb to the peak on Monday.

Breashears was making his second trip up Everest, following a first conquest of the mountain on May 7, 1983.

Bass previously had failed in attempts from both sides of the mountain. In 1982 he joined an American team stopped by bad weather as it tried to scale Everest from the northern Tibetan route. Bass reached 25,000 feet in that assault.

In the spring of 1983 he made it to the 28,000-foot level with a West German team, but turned back because of bad weather and a sick colleague.

Then last August he joined an American team stopped by bad weather as it tried to scale Everest from the northern Tibetan route. Bass reached 25,000 feet in that assault.

joined a Nepalese police Everest cleaning expedition, but was asked to leave the mountain by the Nepalese government, which accused him of paying the police for a place on the team in order to get ahead of other climbers waiting for their chance on the mountain.

The Norwegian expedition, which concluded its climbing Tuesday, put a record 17 men on the peak, including Sherpas Dunggare, who Monday became the first man to scale the mountain four times, and Ang Rita, who climbed Everest for the third time without oxygen.

Two child abuse bills are proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Bill Blackwood, R-Mesquite, has two legislative proposals he says will protect parents accused of abusing their children after being "outraged by cases of parents' rights being violated in suspected child abuse cases."

"Child abuse is indeed a shocking crime, but equally disturbing is the fact that innocent parents have been harassed and even had their children taken away without knowledge of who took them and why," Blackwood said in a statement Tuesday.

"Taking a child from his or her parent without notifying the parent of who took the child or why is a clear and blatant violation of the parent's right," Blackwood said.

The bill proposes requiring the agency to present written notice to the parents explaining why the child was taken, who reported the case, who to contact in the agency for information and a summary of the parents rights.

The second bill would hold people who make a false report of child abuse liable for damage to the child and any other person affected by the report.

It also allows false reports made by a parent involved in a custody suit to be introduced as evidence against the reporting parent.

"Persons who report child abuse are presently immune from both civil and criminal liability unless the report is made with malice or in bad faith," Blackwood said.

"Nowhere is false reporting more prevalent than in cases involving a custody suit," he said.

Agencies would be allowed to investigate the child abuse reports made by one parent against the other and could terminate the investigation if the complaining parent refused to sign a statement of liability if the reports are false.

Texas briefs

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A Navy pilot, his F-4 Phantom fighter crippled by an engine explosion, aimed the jet at a vacant lot surrounded by houses before he and his co-pilot ejected to safety Tuesday night, officials said.

The Dallas Naval Air Station jet, already ablaze and upside down when the two men ejected, smashed into the lot and scattered across 300 square yards of land, NAS spokesman Chief Wayne Mishler said.

The wreckage injured no one and damaged no property even though the lot was surrounded by houses, Mishler said.

The pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Tony Cook of Duncanville, suffered slight injuries and was in good condition in a Dallas-area hospital, Mishler said. The co-pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Dave Jagers of Arlington, was not injured.

Moments after the jet took off from the air station at 6:39 p.m., one of its engines burst into flame, he said.

"The pilot and co-pilot stayed with the aircraft for five minutes looking for a vacant spot," Mishler said. "They essentially put that plane down on a square on a chess board before ejecting at the last minute."

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A man who was willing to accept a $100,000 settlement from a nurse's malpractice insurers but was turned down, has won a jury's recommendation that could be worth between $3.1 and $6.3 million, attorneys say.

Joe Don Bassham of Longview, whose wife, Ena, died in childbirth at Good Shepherd Hospital in Longview in 1978, would receive the award because of a lawsuit by nurse Peggy Woods against her insurers.

Mrs. Woods sued after the company refused to defend her in a medical malpractice suit Bassham filed against her, his wife's doctor, and the hospital.

The jury recommended that Bassham and the son born in the 1978 delivery receive $1.6 million in actual damages and $1.5 million in punitive damages.

State District Judge Ben Z. Grant, who presided over the trial last week, will have to issue a final judgment.

Guidelines for a great GARAGE SALE

With a little planning and preparation, you can turn your garage sale into a big event! To assure that both you and your customers have the best possible garage sale experience, follow these tips:

1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Hope for the best. Expect the worst. Be prepared for accidents. Have small bandages, aspirin and a rest area for minor problems. Also, be sure to have emergency numbers for police, ambulance, fire and doctor in a handy location.
4. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling it: muffin tins, nail aprons, small compartments of some kind to keep coins separated. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location, preferably with a calculator or adding machine.
5. Checks? No checks? Decide ahead of time if you will accept checks; then stick to your decision.
6. Be kind to your customers. Assist them with purchases. Provide a place to try on clothing. Answer all questions courteously. Help them carry large or unwieldy purchases to their cars. Offer a free cup of coffee.
7. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
8. Get an early start! Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
9. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly ones. Group furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise.
10. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5," another for "Under $1." Consider having a batch of items that are "Free with purchase of $3." Remember the youngsters, too. Children enjoy visiting garage sales and buying treats for themselves and gifts for family members. Encourage this with small, low-priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
11. Time your sale carefully! Do not hold it on or near a holiday. Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events.
12. Combine your efforts! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact. If you follow this suggestion, be sure to label all items with color-coded tape or initials so proper credit can be given. Use an inventory sheet to keep track of sale items as they are sold.
13. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
14. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!

Stun guns source of controversy

By The Associated Press
Stun guns are new additions to police arsenals, but they have already generated a civil rights conviction in San Antonio, allegations of torture in New York City and questions about the safety and effectiveness of weapons that discharge with an electric shock.

Police and sheriffs departments around the nation have purchased the pocket-size weapons, which temporarily immobilize people with a touch. On the market for two years, stun guns send a 5,000-volt jolt that "can cause an attacker to fall to the ground and result in some mental confusion," according to the manufacturer, Nova Technologies of Austin, Texas.

The City Council of Baltimore, where police do not use stun guns, banned the sale of the weapons to the public Monday night. Council members cited the recent controversy in New York City, where some police officers were accused of torturing suspects with stun guns, which are not police issue.

Nova, which says it is the only U.S. manufacturer of stun guns, contends the device has been widely used without problems. Clinton Giles, vice president of law enforcement marketing for the company, said there has not been a decline in sales since the New York allegations.

In San Antonio, Texas, a Bexar County sheriff's lieutenant was convicted last month of using a stun gun on a handcuffed man and was sentenced to two years probation. The county has since banned the use of the weapons by officers.

Two people in Los Angeles died after being shocked by police with a weapon similar to the stun gun, including a man who died April 11 after being shocked five times for five to eight seconds each time.

The weapon, called a taser, fires electrically charged darts attached to wires. It can be used at a distance, but a stun gun must be applied directly. Both weapons work through clothing.

The first death, in 1983, was caused by the drug PCP and riot the taser shock, said police officer Sergio Diaz. The second victim was also using PCP, and "we feel strongly that it probably was not caused by the taser," said Diaz. The coroner has not completed his report in that case.

Los Angeles police used their 510 tasers 622 times in 1984, often to break up fights among inmates, said Diaz. They were effective about 80 percent of the time, he said.

In Norfolk, Va., the police department's experiment with stun guns ended because "they didn't work," said Sgt. Adams of the 1st Precinct, who declined to give her first name. "I've seen people just stare at you after being hit by one."

Deputy Jerry Hobbs of Forsyth County, N.C., said his stun gun works well. He bought it about a year ago, and used it recently on a drunk man who "announced his intention to use me as a football and kick me up and down the street." One five-second shock and "it took about three minutes before he could stand."

Are arms talks nearing an impasse?

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is blaming the Soviet Union for "no constructive move forward" in negotiations to slow the nuclear arms race.

A senior U.S. official, demanding anonymity, said Tuesday the Soviets not only had failed to put new proposals on the table in the Geneva talks but "backtracked" on offers they had made in the past.

He said it was possible the talks already had reached an impasse, but that a judgment was being withheld until results of the first round, which wound up last week in the Swiss city, were reviewed.

"There's been no constructive move forward, but it's what I expected," the official said.

He said the Soviets had not threatened a walkout and "were perfectly willing to discuss meetings into the fall." The next round is due to open on May 30.

Former CIA Director Stansfield Turner offered a different appraisal Tuesday, saying the United States was "in a marvelous position" to reach an agreement in Geneva because the Soviets were eager to put restrictions on Star Wars.

Turner, who served in the Carter administration, told reporters at the Arms Control Association, a private group, that the Soviets would probably make concessions if the United States offered not to deploy a space defense for American land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Reagan began the administration review Tuesday with a meeting at the White House with the three U.S. negotiators, Max Kampelman, John Tower and Maynard Glitman.

Before attending the session, Secretary of State George P. Shultz offered a gloomy appraisal of the Geneva talks. Interviewed on a U.S. Information Agency program, he said "nothing substantively, particularly significant took place" during the six weeks of talks.

The negotiations, which resumed after a 15-month lapse, may simply be "settling down" at this point, Shultz said. But, he said, "at least as I look at it, the Soviet Union has been engaged in a process to see if there are things they can get from us without bargaining..."

Later, a senior U.S. official gave reporters an even more negative account of the status of the negotiations on strategic and intermediate-range nuclear weapons and space-based defense systems.

The official said there were "lots and lots of instances" in which Soviet negotiators had "backtracked" in Geneva from previous positions.

He gave as an example of "backtracking" by the Soviets:
