Decision Up To Voting Public Now

A question has been raised and Texas Legislators are asking the citizens of this state, "do we need a new constitution?"

The voters approved a constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to sit as a Constitutional Convention.

In January 1975, basically the same group of people who had failed to adopt the Convention's document, met again and overwhelmingly endorsed eight separate revision proposals that are substantially the same as the ill-fated Convention document.

Operation Identification Helps To Deter Burglars

An electric engraving pen is the only tool you need to participate in the Muleshoe Police Department's Operation Identification Program.

Wayne Holmes, Muleshoe Police Dept., crime prevention officer said, "the engraver is very easy and safe to use. You follow a few basic steps of operation. It works from any standard 110 volt electrical outlet.

Quickly get the feel of the engraver by writing your name a few times on a piece of scrap material. There's no need to press down on the engraver--just move your hand slowly and easily... let the vibrating point do the work.

Governor Takes Negative Stand On Amendments

"When I campaigned for the Legislature in 1948, one of the issues of the day was the rewriting of the Texas Constitution. The dynamic young president of the Texas Jaycees was speaking throughout the state concerning the need for a new Constitution to meet the demands of the era of the Fifties for the people of the State of Texas. He compared the existing Constitution to "the surrey of the past with the fringe on top," said Governor Dolph Briscoe.

and developed. I am convinced that Texas today provides a better opportunity for all of the people to seek and secure their destiny than any other state in the Union. Reasonable means to amend the existing Constitution are provided when the Legislature sees the necessity and a majority of the people agree. And this has been done numerous times.

"In comparing our state government with that of any other state, I think there are many things of which we can be most proud. One is that, unlike all other industrial states, we do not have a state income tax. Another is that we rank low - 44th - in the per capita tax burden to support state government. Another is that we have the economic climate here in Texas that encourages additional investment in our state, that encourages new industries to locate here, existing industries to expand, thereby providing more and better job opportunities for all the people of this state. Another source of pride is the fact that we met the financial needs of this state for the current four years without new or additional state taxes.

"I am convinced that we can do this in the year's ahead. I am firmly convinced that there is absolutely no need for annual sessions of the Legislature. In fact, annual sessions would be counter productive. They would make it more difficult to hold the line on new taxes and would, in my opinion, lead us down the road to a state income tax. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind but that annual sessions of the Legislature will sharply increase state spending.

"I do not believe that we should move even a small step in the direction of patterning our state government after the Federal government, where Congress is in session the year 'round, accomplishes very little, slow to come by and where spending is completely out of control. Therefore, I am unalterably opposed to annual sessions of the Legislature. There is, in my opinion, nothing in the Legislative Executive articles that in any small degree offsets the detrimental effects of annual sessions of the Legislature.

"The proposed new Constitution is based upon an entirely different philosophy. Following the adoption of the Constitution of 1876, Governor Richard Coke pointed out that 'the accepted theory of American constitutional government is a state Constitution of limitations upon, rather than grants of power and that 'the accepted theory of American constitutional government is a state Constitution of limitations upon, rather than grants of power and that expressed prohibitions are necessary upon the powers that the people will withhold from the state government.'"

"If the Legislative Executive Proposition on the ballot this November 4th was to be adopted, Texas would move toward a fulltime Legislative Branch to replace the traditional concept of citizen-legislator. Using Congress as an example, it should be abundantly clear that annual sessions and full-time legislative activity do not necessarily bring about effective management of state government, to say nothing of fiscal responsibility. I believe in the concept of citizen-legislators who are engaged in private pursuit but willing to render public service on a part-time basis in a regular legislative session every other year and in special sessions when emergencies arise. I have always supported adequate salaries for this service.

"In Texas, we have been blessed with a fairly stable system of checks and balances even though the Legislature has been dominate in the terms of authority. This system has worked because in major policy issues the final decision is vested in the people for approval or disapproval for constitutional amendments.

"In regard to Article Two of the Judiciary, I most certainly agree that something must be done to speed the process of justice in this state but I cannot see how the combination of the Supreme Court and the Court of Criminal Appeals into one court can do anything but slow the process of justice. In addition to that, the provision in this section that might allow some form of the Missouri plan for the selection of judges is in my opinion unneeded.

"I am opposed to the removal of too many of the checks and balances the people themselves have had on our state and local government.

done, we are anticipating actual start of construction to be about February of 1976," he said.

"I am opposed to removing the last restraint on welfare spending. "I am opposed to increasing the bonding authority of the Permanent University Fund at a time when enrollment in institutions of higher learning is leveling off. "In my opinion, this proposed new document would be subject to endless court tests and interpretation, thereby creating confusion and chaos in state government in the years ahead. "I think it is most important to put this matter in proper perspective. The Constitution is that basic document which protects the people from the government they create to govern themselves. Therefore, any change, however small, is most important and vital to the future of this state. I encourage all citizens to study this proposed new document, make up their own minds, and then vote based upon their convictions.

"I hope that we have a large turnout of voters in this most important election," the Governor concluded.

Decision...

is against the amendments. "Not enough legislators have come out and explained this thing," he said. "Very few of them have said they liked it and those who are for it have not come out enough and explained it." Bass pointed out. Bass said, "There are not enough things above the old constitution to make me want to go ahead now and support the proposed revisions."

"I'm not saying there aren't some good things in the new proposals, but I feel with time and study, we could come out with one a lot better than the one proposed," he explained.

"I feel we need to maintain the Right to Work Laws throughout the state," said Bass, and he is also against government Gun Control Laws, which are facing Congress shortly.

Voting in the November 4, Constitution Revision Election will begin at 7 a.m. and polls will close at 7 p.m.

The use of the engraver to mark all items with the owner's Texas driver's license number makes stolen property harder to 'fence' and, thus, less likely to be stolen.

The identification program also helps law enforcement agencies nationwide return recovered property to its rightful owner.

A LOADED BEAR... A new twist to the saying, "loaded for bear". This 300 pound black bear was shot and killed at Pagosa Springs, Colo. by Edward Boyd of Seamore, Texas, late Saturday evening, October 25. There were six men in the deer hunting party. While hunting deer, they noticed numerous bear tracks and since they had a permit, they were able to shoot one. Shown with the bear is John Hogue of Vera, Texas, near Seamore. The hunters propped the bear up behind the wheel of their jeep, placed a fifth of whisky in his arms and proceeded home, creating quite a bit of interest as travelers "looked and took a second look" as they passed by. Hogue said they also bagged two deer. They were on their way home when they experienced mechanical trouble with the pickup pulling the jeep and stopped at Muleshoe Motors to get it fixed.

Enochs Club Toured Mills At Lubbock

The Enochs Home Demonstration club met in the home of Mrs. Lillian Fort, on October 28. President, Dorothy Nichols presided. Roll call was answered with "a talent I would like to have". Wilma Petree read the meaning of the club emblem and discussed it some. There was a discussion and they viewed several quilt patterns in view of making a bicentennial quilt. The next meeting will be with Zelma Fred.

On November 11, the program will be on Christmas In Another Land. Those attending were Wilma Petree, Zelma Fred, Rose Nichols, Dorothy Nichols, Elnita Key, Alma Altman, Winnie Byars, Bonnie Long and the hostess, Mrs. Lillian Fort. The club will sell sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee, cake and other items, at the auction. It will be held November 8, at the old Bula School. It will begin at 10:00.

Seven members of the club journeyed over to Lubbock, Oct. 23, to tour the different mills. Everyone met at the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, the world's largest oil mill and the first commercial cottonseed flour mill, by Nell Roper. Nell Roper showed some films of the plants, with audio to tell about it also.

Dick McClung had a question and answer session. We went on to the Textile Research Center on the Texas Tech Campus. Penny is the information Specialist, who showed us through the different plants.

The members saw the process of cotton from the bale as it comes from gins. It is cleaned, spun, dried and then woven of several types of material. Some finished products that were made there were also shown.

Next, the club toured the Feather Fabrics, Inc. where Zelma Fuller guided everyone through the plant. It was a commercial plant, that processed cotton from the bale also.

Those members attending were Dorothy Nichols, Ada Long, Winnie Byars, Wilma Petree, Zelma Fred, Rose Nichols, Bonnie Long and a guest Ellen Bayless.

The reason so many bathing suits look good is because they are so well filled.

It's pretty easy to voice an opinion before one knows much about the subject involved.

Reasons For Poor Mums Is Given

COLLEGE STATION--Don't be a grump if your chrysanthemums aren't doing as well as they should. There may be a good reason for it. Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says there are several things which affect the performance of chrysanthemums.

"Mums should be planted in a spot with full sunlight throughout the day, good air circulation and well-drained soil. There should be no tree roots to interfere with plant growth."

He also advises planting mums where they will not be affected by supplemental night lights.

"Mums need a succession of short days before they will flower. A street light or yard lamp can upset a plant's biological clock and fool it into thinking the day is longer," says the horticulturist for the Texas A&M University System. The best way to water the plants is to give them a good thorough soaking every few days. Try not to get the leaves wet as this will encourage leaf diseases.

"To get the best results with chrysanthemums, buy healthy plants, plant them in the right location, and give them tender loving care," says Janne.

Those who founded the United States would probably be amazed at what it is today.

RULES FOR DAILY LIFE Begin the Day with God; Kneel down to Him in prayer; Lift up thy heart to His abode. And seek His love to share. Open the Book of God, And read a portion there; That it may hallow all thy thoughts. And sweeten all thy care. Go through the day with God, Whatever thy work may be; Where're thou art - at home, abroad. He still is near to thee. Converse in mind with God, Thy spirit heavenward raise; Acknowledge every good bestowed. And offer grateful praise. Conclude the day with God, Thy sins to Him confess; Trust in the Lord's atoning blood. And plead His righteousness. Lie down at night with God, Who gives His servants sleep; And when thou treadest the vale of death, He will thee guard and keep.

Warm nightwear is becoming increasingly popular this winter due to two things. The first one is the energy crisis, with houses much colder than usual. The other is the fact that gowns and pajamas, made of warm fabrics, are much more attractive than they were in years past. It pays to buy clothes which are made of good materials and well tailored, if one has the required money. Such clothes last longer and stay in style with fewer changes than cheaper garments do.

Student Council Shows Movie

The Muleshoe Student Council broke the everyday rut of the MHS students Wednesday. The student council showed the movie "Ride the Wild Surf," and the students really enjoyed the movie. It was shown in the auditorium and admission was 50c.

This was a money making project for the student council and they hope everyone enjoyed the movie and that it was a welcome change from everyday school work.

In the last meeting, the Student Council voted to change the time of their morning meetings to 8:00 a.m. President Robert Shafer encourages everyone's perfect attendance. The next meeting will be at 8:00 a.m. Tuesday.

Friday, October 24, the Mules Mules went against the Perryton Rangers. Final score Perryton 56, Muleshoe 8.

Offensively the Mules played a pretty good game. As a team the Mules amassed approximately 337 yards. The leading rusher for the Mules was halfback Tommy St. Clair. Dean Northcutt came up with 93 yards.

Coach Chuck Stout commented on the game, "We did not feel like there was that much difference between the two teams".

Friday, October 31, the Mules played their second District game of the season, against the Levelland Lobos.

Wheat Forage Irrigation

LUBBOCK--With prevailing dry weather these days, irrigation is likely to be a key factor in producing good wheat forage this fall and winter, an irrigation specialist says.

Leon New, area specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says that if dry weather continues and feed costs remain high, there will be an extra bonus for the lower-cost forage.

"Two fall irrigations, especially in dry years, in addition to either a watering-up or preplant application will usually produce maximum forage," he adds.

New says that good, early fall grazing can normally be obtained from late August-planted wheat with an irrigation from mid to late October or early November while temperatures are still up. Water use is low prior to this time, he explains, but adequate soil moisture is still needed in growing well-tillered crowns and extensive root systems. By Nov. 1, however, the water use rate is likely to be one-and-one half inches every ten days or more.

"Dry matter forage production is normally increased about 1800 pounds per acre from similarly timed irrigations," the irrigation engineer says.

"It is best and often more convenient to make the first application before cattle are placed on wheat pasture. This prevents trampling of valuable forage and compacting wet soil. Compacted soil can severely limit water penetration into especially heavier soils such as Pullman clay loam."

A second irrigation in December or January will usually produce an additional 1500 to 1800 pounds of dry matter forage per acre. Moisture stored by this application also encourages early spring growth and can be especially important during dry years to maintain forage quality and even stand survival. Vegetative growth is usually slow since temperatures during late January and February, and water use is low.

New says fall irrigation has very little influence on grain yield. Therefore, ungrazed wheat should be irrigated only to sustain stands.

High soil moisture during unusually warm periods can promote water uptake and cause freeze damage later, especially to less winter-hardy wheat varieties and to oats and barley, he adds. Over-grazed plants may also be susceptible to freeze damage under similar weather and moisture conditions. Research has shown no response to a third fall irrigation, even when the seeding rate was 90 pounds per acre.

Adequate moisture is important, though, for forage production in early spring when soil and air temperatures increase, New says. An irrigation in March is likely to boost forage production, especially if winter snow and rainfall are light and the wheat is to be grazed out.

Ag Finance To Be Student

COLLEGE STATION--What will be the economic and political setting of the agricultural finance community at the beginning of the next 100 years of this nation? Texas bankers will take an in-depth look at this question during the upcoming Texas Farm and Ranch Credit School at Texas A&M University, Feb. 9-11, 1976.

"One of the key issues to be discussed will be the role, responsibilities and opportunities of the financial community in supporting the diverse and growing agricultural production and marketing complex in Texas," says Tom Prater, general program chairman and economist in management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, which is sponsoring the school along with the Texas Bankers Association.

The theme of the school will be built around the American Bicentennial--"Starting the Third Hundred Years."

Keynote speakers, with as much insight as they can muster, will be featured at four general sessions. A General Outlook session will include discussions on grain, cotton, livestock and the money market.

A second session will concern the implications for agriculture in the areas of politics, marketing, resource control and financing.

Another session of the bankers school will deal with the role of bank examiners and the mechanics of making agricultural loans. The image of the banker in a community will also be discussed at this session.

A fourth part of the school is designed for the bank director and will deal with his overall responsibilities.

Following the school, a two-day in-depth Agricultural Credit Workshop will be conducted at which participants will analyze financial statements and reconcile farm records.

Gene Garrison, president of the Alice National Bank and Chairman of the Agricultural Affairs Committee of the Texas Bankers Association, is working closely with Prater and other committee members in planning the annual event.

MARY DESHAZO WINNERS . . . First Row, L to R are third grade winners, Connie Puckett, Most Spookiest; Kristi Campbell, Most Funniest and Betsy Lunsford, Most Original. Second row, fourth graders were Mary Kay Flowers, Most Original; Delma Garcia, Most Spookiest and Jason Scoggins, Most Funniest. Third row, fifth graders winners were Johnnie Maddox, Most Spookiest; Scott Campbell and Eddie Flowers, Most Funniest and Misti Prater and Tamara Gilliland won the Most Original. The winners were chosen and judged during the Halloween Carnival, sponsored by the Muleshoe PTA, held in the Mary DeShazo gym, Thursday night, Oct. 30, from 7 to 10 p.m.

B. Wimberly Becomes Cadet

COLLEGE STATION--William (Billy) Finch Wimberly of Muleshoe has been inducted into the Ross Volunteers at Texas A&M University.

Texas' oldest organized student activity, the elite honor military unit of Texas A&M's Corps of Cadets takes only top students into its ranks.

The company officially represents the state as escort and honor guard at the inauguration of Governors of Texas. It also acts as an honor guard to other distinguished personages and as an honor escort company at other occasions throughout the state and nation.

From Ross Volunteers ranks comes the firing squad for the 21-gun salute given at Silver Taps and the Texas Aggies' famous April 21 Muster. Silver Taps is held on the darkened campus for A&M students who have passed away.

The company formed in 1887 is named in honor of Texas A&M's seventh president (1891-98), the late Texas governor and Confederate Gen. Lawrence Sullivan Ross. His statue in front of the Academic Building includes the inscription "Soldier, Statesman and Knightly Gentleman."

"Gen. Ross was a statesman, a fine soldier and a great gentleman," the induction banquet speaker told 72 new RVs Thursday. "You are dedicated to his memory, and don't you forget it."

The RV company is composed of seniors and juniors in the Corps, chosen in their junior year for academic and military proficiency and qualities described by speaker Frank Litters.

Wimberly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.F. Wimberly, and a Muleshoe High School graduate. He is an agricultural economics major at Texas A&M.

Wimberly is technical sergeant of Squadron 6 in the Corps and member of the Polaris Council. He has received Forestry Club Jaycees and Ag Economics Club Awards and Air Force Expert Marksmanship Award. Wimberly has also earned Distinguished Student status.

Straight as an Arrow

In Archery you score only when you hit the target. To score well, you must have straight arrows.

When you attend church, it makes it easier to stay on the straight path. The church wants to help you in all ways of life, but can only do so, if you stay within its circle. Attend church and know the joy of a good life.

"For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints."

BEYOND IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN FEELING

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Cattle Raisers Call For Brucellosis Investigation

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, Oct. 21, 1975.—Calling on Congress to authorize a high-level feasibility study of the stumbling USDA brucellosis program, the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association reiterated its stand that brucellosis can be controlled to the point where it is virtually eliminated, but it cannot be "eradicated" as the USDA's present program is attempting.

In seeking a congressional investigation by reliable scientists, the TSCRA is following the lead instigated last summer by Congress when it authorized an unbiased team to thoroughly study the Screwworm Eradication Program and report back its findings. The screwworm efforts are praised by the study.

The TSCRA statement claimed that three major "reservoirs" of the disease which cannot be eliminated will keep the eradication program from ever wiping out the disease as federal regulatory officials assume. These reservoirs are (1) wild game, including known infection in bison in national parks, (2) wild and semi-wild title along the Gulf Coast, and (3) the herds of dissident or restless cattle producers.

"We believe that if the energies and monies now applied to the test-slaughter-traceback elements of the program were directed to an updated, industry-wide vaccination effort, brucellosis could be virtually eliminated from the domestic livestock industry and kept at bay," the TSCRA statement reported.

A threat to embargo Texas cattle was the USDA's response to the decision of the Texas Animal Health Commission in September to reject the USDA's revisions to the Uniform Methods & Rules pertaining to brucellosis. Primary objections were the increased economic load put on cattlemen already overburdened and the lack of confidence by the industry in the USDA's approach.

The TSCRA was one of a number of organizations recommending that the TAHC oppose the USDA's new and more stringent regulations. President Hilmar G. Moore, in testifying at the state-wide meeting, stated that the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, for the last 11 years, has attempted to persuade USDA animal health officials "to abandon their impossible dream of brucellosis eradication in favor of a sensible program of control through the use of vaccines and other procedures."

The over-condemnatory blood test and slaughter program along with the added prolonged traceback system, "has only frustrated many producers in the heavier infected regions to the point where real cooperation with health authorities is impossible," the TSCRA statement continued. "A reversal of this attitude is an absolute necessity if brucellosis is ever to be eliminated."

While recommending a strong vaccination program in a control effort, the TSCRA chided the USDA for not developing more effective serums than Strain 19. "Certainly though, there can be found an improvement on strain 19," continues the TSCRA report. "No other medicine is on the veterinarian's shelf that is almost 35 years old."

The conclusion of the statement reads:

"We do not ask for this opinion to be accepted as fact. What we do ask is that the possibility be accepted that the present USDA Brucellosis Eradication Program may be founded on questionable scientific and social axioms. To ascertain whether this present program is sound and workable or whether an alternate program is more feasible, we believe that an unbiased team of reliable scientists, not associated with the program, should thoroughly investigate all facets of this disease and combatting efforts, and thereafter recommend a course of action. In order to establish creditability for such a study, we recommend that Congressional funding and approval of the personnel involved be sought."

GSPA Points Out Advantages

LUBBOCK--The Soviet Union is reaping great financial and psychological benefits from the current U.S. embargo on grain sales against them, an official of Grain Sorghum Producers Association has told President Ford.

"The embargo has cost the American farmer and the U.S. economy dearly," according to GSPA executive director, Elbert Harp. "The net result is that we have been out-traded by the Soviets."

The embargo was enacted by President Ford in August in spite of angry protest by American farmers. The Administration assured farmers it would be lifted following subsequent crop reports. When the October 10 crop report was released, an embargo extension to Eastern Europe was immediately removed, but the Soviet embargo remained.

According to Harp, world grain markets are established by speculators and traders on the Chicago Board of Trade. "It is here that an embargo depresses the grain markets, which tend to react and over-react to the announcement."

The embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union has driven down grain prices in the United States and throughout the world, and the Russians have continued to make large grain purchases from traders in other countries at prices which are greatly reduced because of the U.S. embargo against them, Harp explained.

"It has been reported that many of the sales made from other countries carry a 'seller's origin optional' clause which means this grain can be shipped from the U.S. when the embargo is lifted," Harp said. "This will have very little effect toward improving prices even if the grain is shipped from the United States because there will be no new sales. Much of the psychological benefit (resulting from the embargo being lifted) will be gone."

"The net result is that farmers are now selling their grain for $20 per ton less than parity—and the Russians are the winners because of the lower market prices."

The GSPA official reminded the President that the American farmer was asked last spring to produce to his maximum ability and was promised free access to foreign markets. "But confidence in the Administration, which had been shared by our farmers and also our customers around the world, has been shattered by the embargo."

"Is there anything we can count on in 1976 as we made plans for planting next year's crop?"

Proposals Too Much

One indisputable fact has emerged from the spirited debate over the proposed new state constitution on the November 4th ballot: many of its provisions, written by the legislature, are so vague and ambiguous that they are subject to many different interpretations by state officials, including top-notch lawyers.

Presiding Judge John F. Onion Jr. of the Court of Criminal Appeals and former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Robert Calvert disagree strongly, for instance, on the effect of the judiciary article. Onion contends that combining the state's two top courts into one, which would handle appeals in both civil and criminal cases, would slow down the wheels of justice; Calvert says it would speed them up.

Both sides do agree that the complete revision of the constitution would give vast new powers to the legislature. It would require annual legislative sessions, permit the legislature to set its own salaries and even permit the members to call themselves into session. Proponents claim this is good and that the people should just "trust the legislature". The opponents' view seems much more logical: ours is a government of laws, not of men, and should stay that way. We need a strong constitution to protect our basic rights from a legislature which can change complexion completely every two years.

Governor Dolph Briscoe strongly opposes all eight propositions on next Tuesday's ballot. So do former Governors Allan Shivers and Preston Smith. And none of them are running for higher office. They have had some serious differences on political matters in the past but their experiences in government have led all three to the conclusion that the present constitution should be preserved.

Comptroller Bob Bullock says the new constitution would give so much power to the legislature that it is impossible to estimate how much it would cost the taxpayers.

Some proponents argue that there are some good features in the new constitution which outweigh the bad. But there is no urgency involved in revising the constitution and there is no reason to adopt any provisions which are known to be bad. The good features involved can be singled out in the future and adopted as individual amendments, without turning our Texas Legislature into a fulltime "little Congress" which would exercise enormous control over our lives.

The main proponents of the new constitution are members of the legislature. We prefer to keep them as our servants, instead of making them our masters. The way to do that is to vote "no" on all eight propositions next Tuesday.

Power Grab Calls For 'No'

WHATEVER ELSE might be said about the proposed Constitution on which Texans will ballot Tuesday, Propositions 1 and 7 would remove far too many safeguards against fiscal irresponsibility and excessive government.

They would grant far too much power to the state Legislature.

They would create more problems than they would solve.

They would be expensive.

They would establish as state policy vague and undefined goals and mandates that are too open to interpretation by an unrestrained legislative or judicial body.

FOR STARTERS, Proposition 1 would go far beyond merely substituting annual sessions of the Legislature for biennial sessions.

In addition to meeting every year in regular session, the Legislature would have the power to call itself into "organizational assembly" each year and into special sessions designed specifically to override gubernatorial vetoes.

And, much like the U.S. Congress already does, the legislators would set their own pay and allowances within maximums allowed by a commission appointed by top state officials.

THE LEGISLATURE would get the upper hand over the governor. Vetoes would be easier to override.

In the House of Representatives, for example, three-fifths of the membership (90 of 150 votes) would be sufficient, instead of two-thirds (100 of 150 votes) as now is required. In the Senate, 19 votes instead of 21 would suffice.

Also, the governor would be granted powers of fiscal control—but only as the Legislature might see fit at any point in time.

THE GOVERNOR would get quicker control over state agencies by making more appointments sooner and designating the board chairmen. Whether the governor is in a better position to designate a chairman than are other members of the same board is debatable.

Subject to concurrence by the Senate, the governor also could remove board members. All agencies would self-destruct in 10 years unless renewed, which sounds good in theory but which in practice probably would cause considerable furor but little if any economy.

THE GENERAL Provisions article squanders power on the Legislature. For example, it sets an interest rate ceiling of 10 per cent "except as otherwise provided by law," which means the Legislature can set it at whatever rate it desires.

"A goal of this state is to provide every resident access to adequate, comprehensive health care as may be provided by law," is a nebulous and unnecessary provision which reeks of inherent dangers.

So is a section that mandates: "The quality of the environment of the State of Texas is to be protected. The Legislature by law shall implement and enforce this policy."

Other sections grant excessive powers to the Legislature, which will be dominated increasingly by three metropolitan areas which already elect nearly half the members.

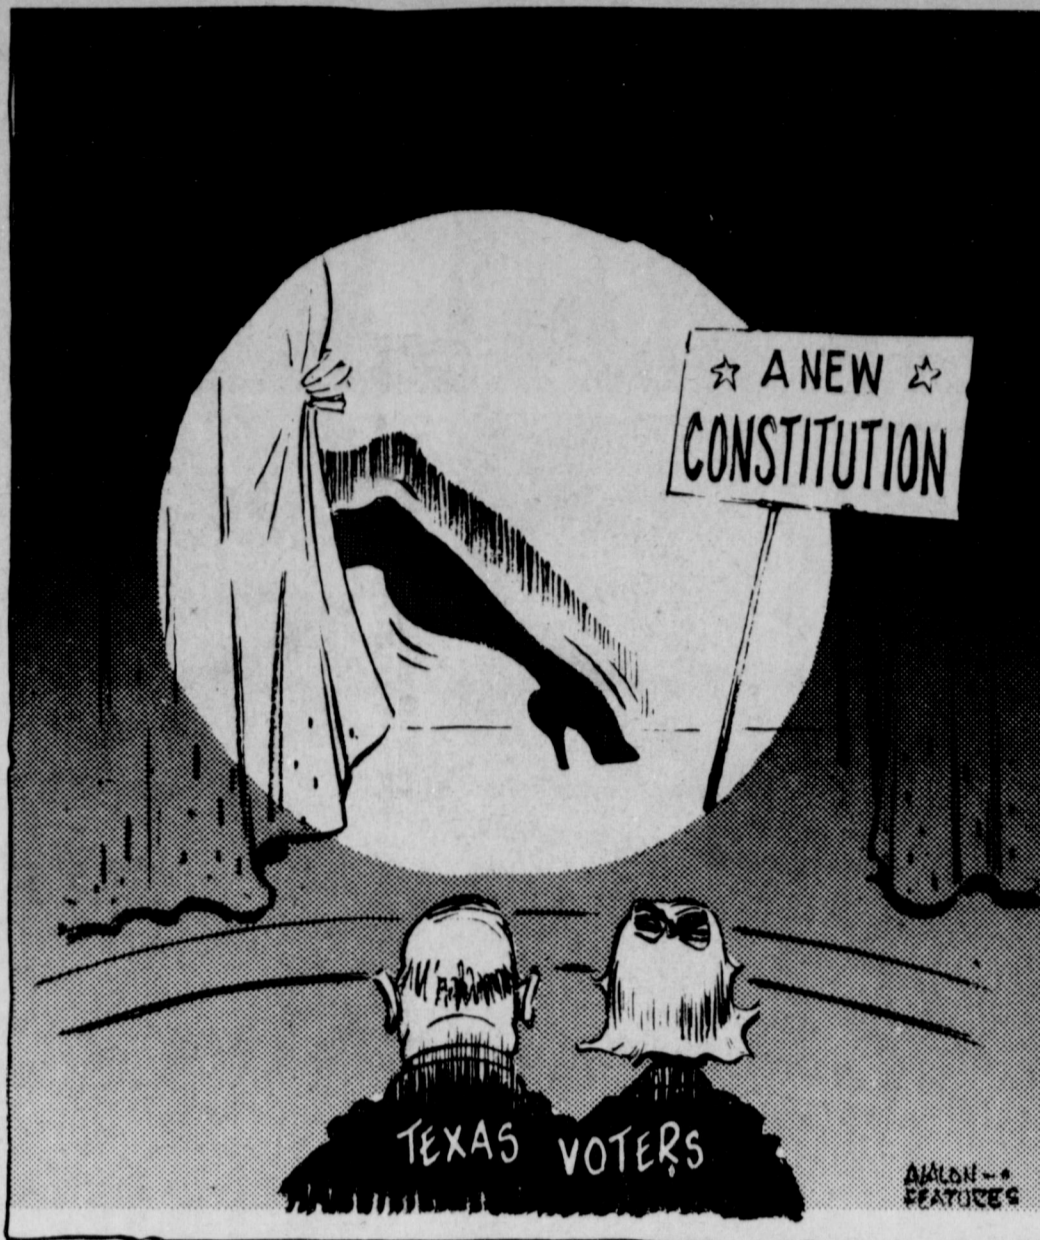

IN ESSENCE, the Legislature, which wrote the proposed Constitution, gathered unto itself the tools for an unrestrained abuse of power and runaway spending.

A good Constitution puts limits on all three branches of government, so that none is vulnerable to wild and fleeting fluctuations in political moods and movements.

The present Constitution has been accused in this regard of being too rigid and inflexible. Even if that point has some degree of merit, the proposed one represents an "over-reaction" in which the cure is far worse than any handicaps, real or imagined, under which Texas government now labors.

The Avalanche-Journal votes "against" Proposition 1 (Legislative and Executive provisions) and Proposition 7 (General provisions) of the proposed document.

Those who remember him and who have enjoyed his entertainment, books and reporting look back on Will Rogers as the type humorist this country needs more of. Rogers was born November 4th, 1879.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

The New York Bailout-Default-The Bankers-Other Cities-

WASHINGTON, D.C.—For many months now the affluent in New York have been bringing all kinds of pressure on Washington to bail the nation's largest city out of its financial difficulties.

Day after day there were predictions by politicians, foreigners, bankers, other mayors, etc., that a default by New York City could touch off disastrous consequences.

It's true that a New York City default would make borrowing harder for other cities and states. In fact, New York's troubles already have had that effect. But a default doesn't mean the chaos and doom some pushing for federal aid would have the public believe.

A default could last only twenty-four hours. It would, in effect, signify that the city was bankrupt. Creditors and bondholders would be stuck. But after that, things would proceed on an orderly basis.

A default might be the only way the administration in New York can regain enough authority from union employee groups to put the city on a sound financial basis.

After months of howling for federal aid, the city's threatened bankers finally got through to Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis) and others on Capitol Hill. Proxmire, noted as a money saver and budget-cutter, scheduled Senate Banking Committee hearings to begin on October 22nd.

But the President, and perhaps the majority in Congress, would prefer to see New York City work its own way out of the financial mess, since the precedent for federal help to a city which has recklessly over-spent is considered an unacceptable one.

Bula News

Thanks to mother nature for her cooperation with the good weather for harvesting. Most of the grain harvesting is completed, and a few have started gathering cotton.

The past week the Young Gin ginned their first bale of the season for Jimmy Cannon. The first bale for the Claunch Gin was brought in by Freddie Maxwell.

The 11 first place winners in the Bailey-Lamb County "Sew it With Cotton" contest, were at Lubbock, Saturday, Oct. 25, for the District contest and style show, held at the Lubbock Christian College Development center. Our county winners brought back three firsts, one second and one third place. Dayna Hamilton, first in Lollipop Division; Shelly Sain, third in Sleepy Time and Vanissa Demel, second in Teen Time; Dane Richardson, first in Little Esquire; and Monica Locke, first in School Time. There were nine county's entered in the district contest.

140-Day Feed Test Begins At Tech

AMARILLO-Eighty-eight bulls, representing Herefords, Angus, Santa Gertrudis, Charolais and cross-breeds have begun a 140-day feed test at the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo (Pantex).

There are 26 Herefords, 23 Angus, three Charolais, one Santa Gertrudis and 35 cross-bred bulls which began the test Oct. 9, according to Nolan Poteet, director of the annual performance test.

The bulls are tested for their ability to gain weight on feed. They will be sold at the annual field day and performance tested bull sale at Pantex to be held at the center east of Amarillo March 11, 1976.

Records are kept and provided for prospective buyers on all animals which tell their daily gain, weight at the beginning and end of the test, and other information pertinent to their ability to convert feed into meat.

"All bulls are in good shape and have had no problems other than minor stress," Poteet said. "Weather has been good and they are on feed good. I feel that the quality of the bulls is much better than any year that I have been associated with the test."

The bulls are consigned to the center by "cooperators" for the test and are auctioned at the sale. Herefords have been consigned by Bob Andrews of Olney, the Barber Ranch of Channing, Bankwright and Son of Hereford, Bathem Ranch of Dalhart and Clarence Mason of Muleshoe, Angus by Worth Jones of Hart, Harold O'Neal of Panhandle, Patrice Shadid of Panhandle, Henry Leven of Panhandle, Hinkson-Lust of Lazbuddie and Duane Jenkins of Higgins; Santa Gertrudis by Bryon Thoms of White Deer; Charolais by Vernon Wilhelm of Happy; and crossbreeds by Henry Fields of Claude, Circle J Cattle Company of Claude, Joe Robinson and Jim Robinson of Clarendon, Champion Creek Cattle Company of Colorado City, Harlan Barber of Hereford, Barbour and Howell of Tulia.
