North will be first to face trial in Iran-Contra

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fired National Security Council aide Oliver L. North is first on the prosecution's lineup of defendants to be tried individually in four separate Iran-Contra conspiracy trials ordered by the judge in the case.

But independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh is trying to minimize the tactical setback imposed by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's decision to hold separate trials of North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and arms dealers Albert Hakim and Richard V. Secord.

Walsh on Thursday proposed trying North and his former boss, Poindexter, simultaneously before two juries and then holding a similar proceeding for Hakim and Secord, former business partners who brokered the U.S.-Iran arms deals and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Gesell said four separate trials are needed to allow the defendants to use each other's immunized congressional testimony to defend the charges.

A joint trial would compromise an individual defendant's right not to have what he told Congress last year used against him as evidence, the judge said.

Legal experts said North was a logical choice as the leadoff defendant.

"You pick North first because he is the top banana in terms of expansiveness" of the evidence, said former U.S. Attorney Joseph diGenova.

"It gives you the chance, if you are only to have one trial, to get most of your evidence in and tell your story about the conspiracy," he said, referring to the possibility of presidential pardons that might avert subsequent trials.

'You pick North first because he is the top banana in terms of expansiveness' of the evidence ...

"Normally you lead with strength," said E. Lawrence Barcella, a former federal prosecutor here. "If you get a conviction you therefore may likely get a succeeding defendant to cave in and plead guilty."

The strategy could backfire if "you lose the strongest case and the evidence against the other defendants is the same," Barcella said. "You have a bit of a dilemma as to whether or not you can go forward with succeeding prosecutions."

By sheer numbers, the probability of getting a conviction against North is greater. He is named in 16 counts of the indictment, while Poindexter is charged in seven.

North is accused of conspiring to illegally use a tax-exempt foundation to raise money to help arm the Contras and he is charged with converting to his own use $4,300 of the $90,000 in travelers checks he was given by a Contra leader for expenses incurred helping the rebels.

Unlike Poindexter, he is also accused of personally profiting from the venture.

The indictment also charges him with accepting an illegal gratuity — a $15,000 security fence that was installed around his suburban Virginia house that Secord is accused of financing.

North is also charged with obstructing the FBI's investigation to determine who paid for the fence.

Police search for baby in city landfill

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A discarded child's doll lay in the road to the Pampa City Landfill this morning as police searched several hundred feet away for a real baby's body reportedly dumped there after being left in a trash can near Silverton.

No body had been found by 11:30 a.m. today, police reported.

"We don't know for sure if it's even here ... but we can't take a chance on it not being here," Lt. Jesse Wallace said at the site this morning, as he and seven other officers continued the search in the area of the landfill reserved for household goods.

Wallace said Pampa police were contacted by Briscoe County Sheriff Dick Roehr about the possibility of the baby's body after an Amarillo man, who had stopped to pick up cans at a trash barrel along Texas Highway 86 in Briscoe County, told Roehr there was a baby's body inside a plastic bag in the barrel. The load of trash eventually was traced to the Pampa landfill.

Pampa Police Chief Robert Eberz said the baby appeared to be dead, according to the man who reported it. Eberz said he does not know the man's name.

Texas 86 runs east west through Quitaque and Silverton. A Briscoe County dispatcher said this morning she didn't know where on the highway the baby was supposed to have been deposited, but Pampa police said they believe it was near Silverton.

Sheriff Roehr was en route to Pampa to assist in the search and could not be reached for comment by press time today. Eberz said Roehr was to have stopped in Amarillo to pick up the man who says he found the baby.

"It'll be Briscoe County's case," Eberz said. "We'll just recover evidence."

Lt. Wallace said the man discovered the body Monday but panicked and didn't report it to Roehr's office until Thursday. Pampa police searched until dark Thursday night, then cordoned the area off and resumed their search at 7 a.m. today.

A city backhoe arrived at the scene at about 9 a.m. today to help speed up the search. A truck also arrived this morning to dump a load of trash but was refused entrance to the area by police.

Wallace said police don't know the age, sex or race of the child.

He said they believe it is 18 inches to 2 feet long.

Also expected to assist in the search was the driver of the BFI Waste Systems truck which dumped the load of trash at the landfill Wednesday, Chief Eberz said. A woman answering the telephone at the Amarillo sanitation firm this morning said she didn't know the route the trash took from Silverton to Pampa, and all company spokesmen were out of the office.

Eberz said authorities believe the trash was taken from the roadside trash barrel to a larger dumpster in Clarendon, then transported to the Pampa landfill, located on Loop 171, east of town. The chief said he doesn't know if the trash was compacted in Clarendon.

Senate moves toward drug bill approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is moving toward approval of a bill permitting the death penalty for drug dealers who kill police, a proposal derided by opponents as election-year grandstanding.

The Senate planned to vote on the bill today. The action was set up Thursday when the chamber voted 69-27 to shut off debate, ending a filibuster by opponents who had stalled a vote.

Senate approval would send the measure to the House, where its fate is less certain. The bill would be referred to the House Judiciary Committee, whose leaders oppose the death penalty provision.

"I'm not saying the death penalty will eliminate the drug problem, but I do think it will serve as a deterrent," said Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., chief author of the Senate bill.

But opponents decried the bill as election-year politics, saying it would do nothing to deter drug dealing and represented a cynical response to public demands to do something about illegal drugs.

Sen. Dan Evans, R-Wash., referred to a similar bill proposed in 1986 and said: "Once again, we're going for an election-year slam dunk on drugs ... We're taking precipitous steps to indulge our own political vanity."

The D'Amato bill provides that the death penalty can be imposed on people who are convicted in federal courts of running a drug

BT-13s to converge on Pampa in fly-in

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Pampans won't be reliving World War II this weekend, but it may seem like it when members of the BT Association converge on Perry Lefors Field and participate in several flybys.

Pampa attorney Ken Fields, a member of the Confederate Air Force DEW Line Squadron, said the association's meeting could feature the most BT-13s in one place since World War II.

"There are very few of them still flying, and if we are able to gather eight or more of them here in Pampa, it will be the largest gathering of BT-13s since World War II," Fields said. "We're expecting as many as 15 of them."

BT stands for basic trainer, and Fields said the planes, manufactured by Vultee Aircraft, were used to train pilots who later went on to fly bombers and fighters in combat. The company manufactured about 7,800 of the planes.

Fields said the group chose Pampa for this year's meeting because it is centrally located and has suitable runways and airport facilities at Perry Lefors. The association has no home base, he explained, but includes flyers from all over the country.

The meeting is a fly-in, not an air show, but Fields said the public is welcome to come out to the airport to view the planes and watch the several scheduled fly-bys. The DEW Line Squadron is hosting the meeting, assisted by the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce, he said.

Also expected to attend is a special BT group called the Flight of Four, which does formation flying at air shows and other events, Fields said. They participated in Amarillo's air show in 1987.

BT-13s have a 42-foot wingspan, are about 28 feet in length and 10 feet high, Fields said. They hold a crew of two — a student and instructor in their day — and no armament. With a 450-horsepower engine the planes could reach speeds of 230 mph "in a hard dive" and cruised at 125 mph, Fields said. Landing speed was 65 mph.

A schedule of the association's activities follows. All events are at Perry Lefors Field:

- 5 p.m. Friday — Aircraft begin arriving.
- 5:30 p.m. Friday — Reception for flyers at Confederate

Air Force hangar, hosted by chamber of commerce Gold Coats.

- 1 p.m. Saturday — Vultee clinic on restoring airplanes and maintaining BT-13s.
- 3 p.m. Saturday — Briefing followed by flying activities until 5 p.m.
- 5:30 p.m. Saturday — DEW Line Squadron hosting dinner for participants.
- 7 p.m. Saturday — BT-13 Association meeting.
- 6 a.m. Sunday — Dawn patrol.
- 10 a.m. Sunday — Vultee clinic continues on restoration and maintenance.
- 11 a.m. Sunday — Flyby.
- 1 p.m. Sunday — Briefing.
- 1:30 p.m. Sunday — Mass flyby and head for home.

For more information on the BT-13 fly-in, contact Fields at 665-2635.

Bush stresses his Texas political roots to GOP convention

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, returned to Texas to kick off his one-on-one campaigning against Michael Dukakis, saying the state where his political roots are planted is the best place to show where the Democratic party really stands.

In a wide-ranging speech to the state Republican convention, Bush slammed the Massachusetts governor as the voice of liberals past and said his own past has made him the best candidate.

"When I wanted to learn the ways of the world, I didn't go to the Kennedy school, I came to Texas," Bush told some 10,000 convention delegates who interrupted his speech 18 times.

"I didn't go to a symposium on job creation, I started a business. I didn't study a monograph on the effects of economic growth, I met a payroll. We created, our little company, 215 jobs for 215 families," he said.

The one-time oilman, who maintains a voting address in Houston, also reminded his audience Thursday of the high inflation, unemployment and interest rates the nation was suffering when he and President Reagan took office in 1981.

"We were like a patient in intensive care, flat on our back, wired up, tubes all over and not too confident in the physician in charge," he said.

"Now who do we hear knocking on the door but the doctors who made him sick. And they're asking to be put in charge of the case again. My friends, they're lucky we don't bring a malpractice suit."

Bush used his convention keynote speech to recall his early political career, which included representing Texas in Congress and GOP organizing efforts in Houston at a time when Republicans were heavily outnumbered by Democrats in the state.

"This is where my career in politics began 25 years ago," Bush said. "I was county chairman of Harris County, serving with no combat pay at all."

Bush swept the March Texas primary and won all 111 state GOP delegates to the national convention. Those were to be named by the state convention on Saturday.

But a recent Texas Poll showed Bush with just a 7 percentage-point lead over Dukakis in the vice president's adopted home state, and several other polls have shown him trailing the Massachusetts Democrat nationwide.

Of the Texas survey, Bush said, "I'll settle for that (margin) in every state in the country right now. I am the underdog."

Having wrapped up the GOP nomination sooner than expected, Bush said he lost publicity while attention focused on the Democratic contest.

"I disappeared off the radar screen ... and was out there being flailed by the last two survivors on the Democratic side," he said.

Also addressing the convention was Gov. Bill Clements, who said having Bush's name atop the GOP ballot should help all Republican candidates this fall.

But Clements warned that philosophical differences among Republicans would jeopardize these improved chances for ballot box success.

"This time there is even more reason for a unified front. This time, a Republican from Texas has the opportunity to become president. This is an unprecedented opportunity for our nation, for our state, for our party," he said.

"We must join together in full and enthusiastic support of George Bush ... Be assured, passive support won't cut it. Division, lackluster effort, will sound the death knell. This will be a tough campaign. Nothing can be taken for granted," Clements said.

The opening day of the convention also saw supporters of former candidate Pat Robertson claim one victory, when the delegates voted to seat a Robertson delegation from Lubbock County rather than a Bush delegation chosen in an alternative "rump" convention.

"It was a substantial vote for the Robertson delegation," said party spokesman Mark Sanders.

But Jim Oberwetter, Bush's Texas campaign director, said he had no fears that the convention would end Saturday with the state party anything but unified behind the vice president.

Investigation continues into youths' drownings

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

LUBBOCK — Lubbock police continue their investigation of the drownings of two brothers, grandsons of a Pampa couple, who died Wednesday afternoon in a playa lake near a south Lubbock residential area.

"I still have a few questions that I want answers to," Detective Terry Fahrlander said today.

Autopsies were performed late Thursday, he said, and cause of death appears to be accidental drowning. Officials have ruled the drownings an accident, he added.

However, because of the city of Lubbock's involvement in the accident, an extensive investigation will continue.

"The City's involved in it, too," Det. Fahrlander said. "We have to check water levels and temperatures and things like that. I have to interview the parents. I should be through by this time next week."

Jason Matthew Ivey, 7, and Phillip Wayne Ivey, 8, sons of Tommy and Carla Ivey of Lubbock and grandsons of Wayne and Maggie Ivey of Pampa, were pronounced dead at Lubbock General Hospital shortly before 4 p.m. Wednesday.

The boys' mother was cleaning a townhouse near the lake and had given the boys permission to go outside and play while she

Plane crash kills 4 near Austin

ELGIN (AP) — A single-engine plane headed for Austin crashed in a field near this Central Texas community today and all four persons on board were believed dead, the Department of Public Safety said.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Mitch Barker said the Cessna 205 crashed three miles west of state Highway 95 and six miles south-southwest of Farm-to-Market Road 969.

The origin of the flight had not been determined, and passengers have not been identified.

A line of trees near the field blocked much of the roadside view of the wreckage, witnesses said.

The wreckage was discovered at 8:51 a.m. by a Department of Public Safety helicopter on a training mission from Austin, DPS spokesman Mike Cox said.

Barker said the plane was on an instrument landing approach shortly after 7 a.m. when radio and radar contact was lost.

Cox said the Federal Aviation Administration reported losing the plane on radar at 8:45 a.m.

The helicopter pilot told ground crews the plane appeared to have hit the ground at a severe angle.

"All you could see was a crumpled up plane," said Bobby Dodds, who lives about a mile north of the crash site.

ring and who are then separately convicted of killing law enforcement officers or private citizens.

Many states, including those with severe drug problems, already have the death penalty and it hasn't had much deterrent effect, opponents of the bill said.

Before invoking cloture, the Senate voted 65-31 against an amendment that would have imposed a penalty of life imprisonment without parole, instead of the death penalty, for people convicted under the terms of D'Amato's bill.

to's bill.

D'Amato's proposal was originally attached as an amendment to the Pentagon budget bill, but opponents filibustered and D'Amato withdrew his proposal in return for a promise by Senate leaders to give him a vote on a separate bill.

Supporters said the death penalty would deter drug kingpins.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said, "To go on talking about a war on drugs and not commit ourselves to a death penalty for those who kill our law enforcement officers in that war is to make a mockery of saying we have a war on drugs."

But Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "The evidence that the death penalty is a deterrent is just not there at all."

Also Thursday, the House Banking Committee approved legislation to make it more difficult for drug dealers and other criminals to hide their profits.

The bill would require banks to file transaction reports with the government for all cashiers' checks, money orders and travelers' checks of $3,000 or more. Now, banks need to file such reports on transactions of $10,000 or more.

worked, police said.

A man fishing in the lake saw the boys playing in the water near the shore, close to a "no swimming" sign. He told police he warned the boys to get out of the water to no avail. After showing a fish he had caught in the lake to his wife, the man returned to find the boys missing.

Spying something red floating in the water, the man hooked the object with his fishing line. As he tried to pull it in to shore, he discovered it was the younger of the two boys. Phillip Ivey was found by Lubbock Fire Department divers about 20 minutes later in five-foot water near an old concrete boat ramp.

Services for Phillip and Jason Ivey have been set for 10 a.m. Saturday in Franklin-Bartley Chapel of Lubbock with the Rev. Gene Hawkins, director of missions for Lubbock Baptist Association, officiating. Graveside services are to be at 3 p.m. Saturday in Memory Gardens Cemetery of Amarillo.

Both boys were born in Amarillo. They moved to Lubbock from Midland in January.

Phillip Ivey had just completed the third grade at Haynes Elementary School in Lubbock. He was a member of the Blue Jay PeeWee League of the Southwest Lubbock Little League.

Jason Ivey was a member of the Yankee T-Ball Team of the Southwest Lubbock Little League. He had recently completed first grade at Haynes Elementary School.

Survivors include their parents, Tom and Carla Ivey of Lubbock, and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ivey of Pampa and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson of Amarillo.

Teen murderer gets 45 years

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — A Midlothian teen-ager has been sentenced to 45 years in prison following his conviction on charges of murdering an undercover police officer.

It took jurors 6 hours Thursday to reach that sentence for Greg Knighten, 16.

Knighten, the son of a Dallas police officer, was convicted of murder Wednesday in the Oct. 23, 1987 shooting death of officer George Raffield.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers declined comment after the verdict was returned, citing a gag order issued by District Judge Gene Knize.

Two other defendants in the Raffield slaying also were sentenced under plea-bargain agreements arranged before the Knighten trial.

Richard Goeglein, 17, also received a 45-year sentence for murder. He had testified against Knighten in exchange for a sen-ence of 50 years or no more than Knighten's term.

Knighten and Goeglein originally were charged with capital murder.

Cynthia Fedrick, 23, accepted an eight-year sentence in exchange for her testimony, in which she admitted she may have encouraged Knighten to retaliate against Raffield after discovering that Raffield had been posing as a high school student to uncover drug deals.

Jonathon Jobe, the fourth defendant, accused of aiding Goeglein and Knighten in the shooting, is free on bond on a capital murder charge and is expected to plead guilty to murder at a later date.

No one appeared to be happy with the outcome of the trial.

Prosecutors said they couldn't comment because of the gag order, but a Texas Ranger who headed the investigation said the prosecution was "disappointed" with the outcome.

"I'm not happy with it (the sentence). But I can live with it," said Raffield's mother, Shirley Moore. "He (Knighten) is going to serve some time. I would have rather seen life (sentence), but when the verdict came down it was just a calm feeling."

"He was my only son, and he'll never be back, but he died doing what he wanted to do," she said. Knighten cried and hung his head when he heard the sentence.

The Knighten family released a statement through a pastor expressing sympathy for the Raffields and disappointment that the court did not allow "certain evidence that would have been helpful in Greg's defense."

"I think anybody would be disappointed with a 45-year sentence for a 16-year-old boy," said Knighten family friend Judy Manor.

Wright faces House investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee announced today that it has voted to start an official inquiry into the financial dealings of Speaker Jim Wright.

Committee chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said the panel voted unanimously to probe five possible violations of the House rules.

"Last night, the committee ... voted a preliminary investigation in the matter of Speaker Jim Wright," said Dixon. "The speaker of the House has been notified and has pledged his full cooperation."

Wright, in advance of the committee announcement, today released papers he said would refute charges that he violated ethics rules.

But the speaker said he still welcomed an official inquiry.

"The committee properly wants to look very carefully and exhaustively into each of the items of which I've been accused," said Wright, D-Texas. "Ultimately I'm certain that exposure to all the facts will assure the committee that there is no warrantable charge."

Wright released an inch-thick sheaf of papers with a statement saying they "will demonstrate conclusively that my official conduct has not violated any rule of the House."

The papers included news stories, letters between Wright and past and present administration officials, financial disclosure documents, copies of bank checks and statements, investment information and documents relating to a book he wrote.

"There've been so many innuendoes, so many planted stories, so many reprints of stories that were inaccurate," Wright said, that he had several times sought an inquiry in order to clear his name.

The ethics panel, asked to investigate the speaker's financial dealings, met privately for nearly 8 1/2 hours on Thursday in its second session on the topic.

When the committee broke its meeting at 11:25 p.m. Thursday, the lawmakers refused to say if any decisions had been made.

Committee chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., told reporters he planned to make a public statement at midday today on the case.

Man arrested on arson charges

A 21-year-old Pampa man was arrested by city police Thursday on charges of arson stemming from an early morning house fire June 6.

Johnny Rodriguez, 423 N. Crest, was taken into custody in the 600 block of North Russell by Pampa Police Det. Charles Love and Gary Stevens, arson investigator.

Pampa fire officials, suspecting arson was the cause of the fire which destroyed the interior of a stucco rent house at 415 Crest, began their investigation immediately.

Stevens said burn patterns indicated the fire had been started at several different places. "That's something that doesn't normally happen," he said.

After studying the evidence and talking with witnesses, officials requested an arrest warrant, which was issued.

Following his arrest, Rodriguez was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Wayne Roberts, who set bail at $10,000. Rodriguez remained in police custody at press time today.

No other arrests are expected, Stevens said.

Firefighters were called to the scene of the fire shortly after 1:30 a.m. Monday, with three fire units and five men responding. The small four-room rent house, reportedly owned by Juan Rodriguez, received an estimated $3,000 damage to the entire interior of the structure. Two men who were in the house when the fire began escaped without injury.

Stevens said that according to witnesses he had interviewed, there appeared to be an on-going quarrel between the occupants of the burned house and Rodriguez.

Group calls for absentee board members to resign

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas prison board chairman strongly defended board members who were criticized by Associated Texans Against Crime for missing meetings of the state panel.

The anti-crime group said Joe La Mantia Jr. of McAllen and Dennis Hendrix of Houston should resign if they cannot improve their record of attending prison board meetings. The group also noted meetings missed by board member Deralyn Davis of Fort Worth.

"These are valued members doing a good job," said board Chairman Charles Terrell of Dallas Thursday. "I don't appreciate a surprise attack on good members when the board is working so diligently."

The anti-crime group said La Mantia has missed five of the last 12 meetings, and has not attended any meetings in 1988. Hendrix missed four of the last 12 meetings, it said, and Ms. Davis has missed three of the five meetings held by the nine-member board this year.

"While there are always reasons for absenteeism, missing from 25 to 40 percent of the meetings is inexcusable," said Tex Lezar, president of Associated Texans Against Crime, in a statement.

"If there was ever a time for leadership in every facet of our criminal justice system, it is now. However, the governing body of our prison system cannot exert strong leadership unless it can count on its members to at least show up," Lezar said.

Terrell said a number of meetings missed by the three members were special or emergency meetings not on the regular schedule. Of the last 12 regularly scheduled meetings, Ms. Davis has missed one, Hendrix two and La Mantia four, said Terrell.

Besides board meetings, members serve on board committees that meet separately, Terrell noted.

"In the old days, (Texas Department of Corrections) board members went to board meetings, and that's it. Our board members are active all the time," he said.

La Mantia, noting he first was appointed to the board in November 1973, said the anti-crime group's criticism is unfair. He said he has missed a total of 20 of the 128 meetings held from November 1973 to January 1988.

All but three of those 128 meetings were outside of McAllen, and many required overnight stays, he said.

"This has been one of those periods of time that I have not been able to be there in person, although I have been kept abreast of what's taking place," La Mantia said.

"It is unfair for them to criticize me for this short period of time, when I've been on the board for over 14 years and, in my opinion, have an excellent attendance record," he said.

La Mantia, who is involved in agriculture, said business has kept him from attending meetings this year.

"I still have to feed my family and make a living," he said. La Mantia, whose term expires in February, said he plans to "get back on schedule" and attend board meetings.

Neither Hendrix nor Ms. Davis immediately returned telephone calls from The Associated Press. Hendrix's term expires in February 1991, and Ms. Davis' term expires in February 1989. Board members are appointed to six-year terms.

Gets life sentence shooting her husband, Cadillac-Oldsmobile dealer Bill Mowbray, 43, after a three-week trial.

Fire forces evacuation of dozens of hospital patients

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An estimated 40 patients were hurriedly evacuated from their rooms when a three-alarm fire damaged a second-floor room and spread smoke into two floors of the 12-story Santa Rosa Hospital, authorities said.

No injuries were reported, and officials said patients would be returned to their rooms after the smoke was cleared.

Officials dispatched 21 firefighting units and 10 ambulances to the hospital in downtown San Antonio, fire officials said.

It took more than 80 firefighters about 20-25 minutes to bring the fire under control Thursday night, but smoke and water damage appeared extensive, officials said.

Janitors joined doctors and hospital visitors, using sheets as litters to ferry patients to the first floor and sidewalks, where the patients were laid out on mattresses or whatever could be found.

Patients wound up in corridors and on sidewalks, some moaning from pain. Many patients had IVs still inserted, and some were breathing through oxygen masks.

Patient Carmen Velasco said she had taken a sleeping pill before she was ordered to leave her room because of the fire.

"I didn't panic till I smelled smoke," she said. "Then I started to run. I had to carry my own IV unit. One of the firemen stepped on it."

Ms. Velasco wound up in a yellow plastic chair on a sidewalk outside the hospital, her IV on the sidewalk in front of her.

Standing at the foot of the fire escape, Ross Rodgers comforted his wife, Jacqueline, gently massaging her shoulder with his right hand.

In his left hand he held an IV unit inserted in the wrist of a patient who had buried her head in her lap.

"I don't know her," Rodgers said looking down at the second woman, "but she was coming down the stairs and looked like she was in pain."

"It took us about 20 to 25 minutes to get the blaze under control," said Assistant Fire Chief Eugene Garza.

The blaze went to three alarms because "we were afraid we would start to have to evacuate all patients from the hospital," Garza said.

Lt. Benito DeLeon, the first firefighter to arrive, said he was led to the fire in a pantry room on the second floor by a hospital security guard.

"It was real dark and real hot. We got a house line (fire hose) and put the fire out," DeLeon said.

"I asked the nurse to get the patients out," DeLeon said. "She said they were in the process of doing that."

The fire was contained to the one room, but extensive smoke and water damage resulted, Garza said. A water pipe of copper tubing that burst from the heat contributed to the damage, fire officials said.

There were no sprinklers on the second floor, District Chief George Christiansen said.

"The only sprinklers were in the basement," Christiansen said.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined and arson investigators were called to the scene early today.

Hospital employees said more than 40 patients and staff on the second and third floors of the 482-bed general hospital were evacuated. The entire medical center, including the Children's Hospital, was not evacuated.

The second floor, which includes cancer wards, was filled with thick, noxious smoke that burned the eyes and irritated the throat.

The third floor houses about 35 beds of the medical and surgical units, along with various laboratories.

For a while, firefighters were worried the fire would spread to a third-floor laboratory, where a special chemistry department housed highly flammable solvents and chemicals.

"We were told to evacuate the laboratory. It was filled with smoke, and we could not breathe," said Cruz Herrera, a lab technician.

Fire officials said a security guard spotted a blaze in a pantry on the second floor by a stairwell near a dumbwaiter that leads to the kitchen.

Son files $6 million lawsuit in zoo keeper's mauling death

HOUSTON (AP) — A $6 million suit alleging the city of Houston ignored safety deficiencies at the Houston zoo has been filed by the son of a zoo keeper fatally mauled by a lion.

"The city in this case was grossly negligent. The city owes this man some money, and we're going to get it," said Fred Hofheinz, attorney for Jack Tovar, 35.

On May 12, a Siberian tiger broke through a glass security window, dragged Tovar's father, 58-year-old Ricardo, into the exhibit and mauled him, crushing his chest and breaking his neck.

The elder Tovar was performing his morning duties at the zoo when the attack occurred.

Named as defendants were the city, Mayor Kathy Whitmire, Parks Department Director Donald Olson and Houston Zoo Director John Werler, as well as CRS Serrine Inc., the firm that designed the large cat exhibit and W.J. Hessert Construction Co. Inc., which built it.

Paul Mabry, a spokesman for the mayor, said he could not comment on the lawsuit. There was no answer at CRS Serrine offices Thursday.

Bill Hessert, chairman of Houston-based W.J. Hessert Construction Co., said he had not seen the lawsuit and could not comment.

Tovar's lawsuit claims the city and other parties were "grossly negligent" in his father's death in several respects.

After zoo employees arrived at the scene, they refused to shoot the tiger even when the animal attacked the zoo keeper again as he lay in the exhibit.

The window the tiger broke was made of thin glass that was not standard in most zoos, where specially strengthened glass or plastic commonly are used.

Tovar was required to work alone around dangerous animals because of staff shortages.

City officials, specifically Mrs. Whitmire, Olson and Werler, supported cost-cutting measures at the zoo even though the cuts were known to be imprudent and resulted in unsafe conditions.

Hofheinz, who served two terms as mayor from 1974 to 1978, said he intends to prove city officials knew of these hazards but ignored them.

Tovar said he became upset when he read published reports describing how zoo employees, one of them carrying a rifle, watched as the tiger grabbed his father by the head and lifted him after he had been dragged through the window.

"The tiger grabbed him by the neck and they didn't shoot him. They thought the tiger was more important than my father," Tovar said.

Zoo employees could not have been certain Tovar was dead when they refused to shoot, he said.

As the litigation begins, city officials are continuing their reassessment of the zoo's new naturalistic cat facility, which has been plagued with design problems since its construction began in 1982.

As part of that review, on Wednesday the City Council approved a $10,000 contract with Southwestern Laboratories to test the strength of hundreds of glass and plastic panels in the center. Public Works spokesman Dan Jones said the study will determine if the materials specified in the city's design were actually used, and if those specified materials are strong enough.

Peace group weighs next move

LAREDO (AP) — A U.S. congressman lent his support to getting the Veterans' Peace Convoy past trade restrictions as the caravan waited for a second day at the border.

Leaders of the convoy met Thursday night to plan strategy, saying they were determined to wait out the federal government.

"Copping out is not one of the options," Sean Gullette, a member of the convoy said.

Ninety-four convoy members have made a commercial campground in northern Laredo their base since Wednesday.

Thursday, U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, wrote Treasury Secretary James Baker urging him to allow the convoy to cross the border.

"The International Emergency Economic Powers Act, with its accompanying report language, makes clear that Congress, in giving (Reagan) the broad economic powers, did not intend to authorize the President to interdict effort by United States citizens to relieve human suffering," Bustamante wrote.

A Treasury Department spokesman in Washington said Thursday that the department's Office of Foreign Assets Control told convoy supporters last month that the vehicles would violate the Nicaraguan Trade Control Regulations in effect since 1985.

"They were notified in late May what the law was and what the facts were on what can be exported to Nicaragua," said the Treasury spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity. "I mean there's no surprise here."

Members of the convoy came from four different regions of the country on May 21, and arrived at Laredo Tuesday night, planning to cross into Mexico on Wednesday morning.

But on Tuesday night, Treasury Department officials served notice that although the 30 tons of food, clothing and medical supplies would be allowed, the 37 trucks, buses and cars hauling the cargo could not be left in Nicaragua because of restrictions on trade with that country.

The convoy's position is that the vehicles are needed to distribute the supplies, and are a form of humanitarian aid allowed under the embargo, said Gerry Condon, one of the convoy's organizers.

The trade restrictions allow unlicensed export to Nicaragua of "donated articles such as food, clothing and medicine, intended to relieve human suffering."

Margaret Ratner, an attorney with the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights, which is considering a federal lawsuit on behalf of the convoy, said the group intended for the vehicles fit into the embargo rules.

"On the basis of 'such as,' it's not just food, clothing and medicine" that are acceptable for export to Nicaragua, Ms. Ratner said.

She said other groups similarly opposed to U.S. policies in Central America have taken vehicles to Nicaragua since the trade embargo took effect in May 1985.

The Treasury Department spokesman, however, said the group needs to apply for a license to take the trucks to Nicaragua. The government told the convoy it would have to post bonds equal to the total value of all the vehicles, and bring them back to the United States within 30 days.

"The Nicaraguan army, I believe, can use trucks, too," the Treasury official said.

About 50 people picketed the federal building in Austin at noon Thursday in support of the peace convoy's efforts.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

But the facts refute protectionist theory!

Economists disagree about most things, but the majority agree protectionism is bad for the economy. Nevertheless, the economists who support protectionism, generally called "labor economists" because they have often been associated with labor unions, is gaining in prominence.

Recently these protectionist economists have taken to pointing accusatory fingers at the policies of Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan. The assumption is that we should use American trade restrictions both to "protect" American industries, as the Asian countries "protect" their industries, and as a lever to force the Asian countries to open up their markets.

One of these economists is Clyde V. Prestowitz Jr., formerly a trade negotiator with the Japanese during the Reagan administration and now a scholar with the Carnegie Endowment. Prestowitz points out that the Asian countries protect young industries and encourage home companies to exploit foreign markets. He recently told The New York Times, "The open market that is the sine qua non of free trade may not be possible to achieve."

All that's true enough — but beside the point. Given that human beings are flawed creatures, their governments will never allow absolute free trade. But they can come close, and the tendency is important. Do Asian countries practice protectionism? Yes, but that's no excuse for American trade retaliation because retaliation only hurts our own industries.

A case in point are the quotas, imposed in the summer of 1986, on imports of Japanese microchips. Prices on these chips had been falling at least 30 percent per year, providing a bonanza for American computer manufacturers, whose sales, in turn, generated business for American software companies. But after quotas were imposed, prices increased, and fewer manufacturers could afford to buy them.

"The Japanese can price-fix and who's to stop them? What's happening, of course, is what the most-paranoid experts (i.e., free traders) said would happen: The Japanese would increase market share, take over the market, then gouge the hapless buyer with fixed prices. The American firms now wait until they can jump in and take part in the feeding frenzy."

The result could spell disaster for our computer industry, one of America's most vital, and a lynchpin of Yankee exports. Instead of prices falling rapidly, Dvorak writes, "For the first time in the history of the computer industry we will watch the price-performance ratio reverse itself. We'll have to pay more money for less power."

The facts refute the protectionist economists' theories. Unfortunately, though still a tiny minority in their profession, these professors may be winning in the political realm.

Berry's World

"I've HAD it! I want everything REGULATED again."

There's still big trouble ahead

WASHINGTON — If a student of public affairs stayed up all night trying to compose a brief description of Social Security, he could not put the matter more succinctly: "Social Security is a program which transfers income from those who have less to those who have more."

That concise little masterpiece comes from a study of the Social Security system released by the National Center for Policy Analysis, a think tank in Dallas. Most critiques of Social Security come in book form, and most of them seem to be written by actuaries who are writing for other actuaries. This study runs to only 29 pages and even a newspaperman can understand it.

The authors' findings boil down to this: For the immediate future, Social Security is in fat city. Revenues flowing into the three fictitious "trust funds" will comfortably exceed outgo for retirement, Medicare and disability benefits. On down the road — and not very far down the road — big trouble lies ahead.

"Beginning about 2015, this pattern will change dramatically as the baby boom generation begins to retire and looks for support to the small generation of workers born during the relatively low fertility years since the mid-1960s."

It is hard for most of us to adjust to dates in the 21st century. It seems a little sci-fi. But the period the authors have in mind lies no further in the future than the 1960s lie in the past, and to most of us the 1960s are still of vivid memory. I won't live to see this critical time; my grandchildren will.

Drawing upon projections from the Social Security Administration itself, the authors paint a disturbing picture. If Social Security benefits are to be maintained at current levels, staggering increases in Social Security taxes ultimately will have to be imposed.

The tax is now at 7.15 percent on both employee and employer — 14.3 percent combined. Seventy years hence, the payroll tax may have to exceed a combined 40 percent if promised retirement benefits are to be paid to the child born today.

Will the people of 2057 accept such a burden? The question, of course, is unanswerable. Too many contributing factors cannot be foreseen. By way of example, if cures should be found for cancer and for heart disease, it would be wonderful for mankind; it would be catastrophic for Social Security. Actuarial assumptions on longevity would have to be rewritten. Birth rates may change significantly, up or down, over the next 70 years, either enlarging or diminishing the pool of productive workers who must pay the bill for the old folks.

Meanwhile, while these speculations, projections and forecasts are of demographic interest, the Social Security systems, as such, continues along its uncertain way. The authors of this tightly compressed study don't waste words. Is Social Security analogous to a private pension plan? "Nothing could be further from the truth." Are the famous trust funds truly trust funds? "These funds are 'trust funds' in name only." The system offers none of the binding contracts that go with life insurance. Social Security lives at the whim, the caprice or the judgment of Congress; its rules can be modified at any time.

The system has proved a bonanza for today's retirees. They will recover four to five times more in benefits than they ever paid in taxes. They will be eligible for Medicare benefits from 12 to 14 times greater than their Medicare taxes.

Today's young workers will not be so fortunate. By the authors' calculations, based upon Social Security data, a young working couple now in their 20s will pay upward of $80,000 more in Social Security taxes than they will draw in benefits. A young professional couple will have a lifetime loss in excess of $200,000.

Blacks and women suffer especially under the government's retirement system. A black male at birth has a life expectancy of 65.6 years. Actuarially speaking, it is likely that this taxpayer will die before he ever recovers a dime. The system lays heavy penalties on working wives; they pay the same taxes exacted from working husbands, but get a spouse's benefit of only half the husband's benefit.

The author's purpose is not primarily to advance the idea of "privatization," the phasing in of Super Individual Retirement Accounts. Their purpose is to make us think about whether Social Security is going. The system is going great now. It won't be going great for long.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 10, the 162nd day of 1988. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 10, 1935, Alcoholics Anonymous was founded in Akron, Ohio, by William G. Wilson and Dr. Robert Smith.

On this date:
In 1801, the North African state of Tripoli declared war on the United States in a dispute over safe passage of merchant vessels through the Mediterranean.

In 1865, the opera Tristan und Isolde by Richard Wagner premiered in Munich, Germany.

In 1922, singer-actress Judy Garland was born Frances Gumm in Grand Rapids, Minn.

In 1940, Italy declared war on France and Britain.

In 1942, the Gestapo massacred 173 male residents of Lidice, Czechoslovakia, in retaliation for the killing of a Nazi official.

In 1946, Italy replaced its abolished monarchy with a republic.

In 1964, the U.S. Senate voted to limit further debate on a proposed civil rights bill, shutting off a filibuster by Southern states.

In 1967, the Six-Day War ended as Israel and Syria agreed to observe a United Nations-mediated cease-fire.

There's not much of a choice

The next President of the United States, whether George Bush or Michael Dukakis, will have to fill more than 2,000 high-level jobs in 60 days. And most who come aboard will have to accept a cut in pay.

It can't be done. Inevitably, for all the good friends, good fortune and help "from the stars," some of those 2,000 are going to prove disappointments. Some even disloyal.

Mr. Reagan went to Washington taking with him much of his "official family" from California. Yet, tried and true as were these who had served him as governor, under the pressures of presidential proximity plus the attendant lime-light, several were let out or had to let go: Richard Allen, Al Haig, Anne Burford, Jim Watt, Ray Donovan, Bill Clark, Tom Reed, Jim Beggs, Bud McFarlane, John Poindexter, Ollie North — Don Regan.

The Wall Street Journal once described the orifice that chews up and spits out public personnel as "The Beltway Maw — a corrosive brew of ideological hostility, partisan sharpshooting, congressional arrogance, company-town rumormongering and predator journalism."

Paul Harvey

Good men — good-enough men — are hard to find.

Further, an office-holder in a job that's over his head, is most likely when removed to react resentfully; maybe write a book.

Now, if we the people are going to have to choose between George Bush and Mike Dukakis, which of these men is best equipped to coach a winning team?

Dukakis was a straight-A student, four-letter athlete, student council president. Went to Swarthmore College and Harvard Law School. Bush was captain of the baseball team at Yale, Phi Beta Kappa.

Dukakis' military experience included Army "study" in South America and a tour of duty in South Korea. Bush volunteered for the Navy, flew combat missions against the Japanese, was shot down over the Pacific, rescued by an American submarine.

Dukakis has been governor of Massachusetts, going on three terms. He believes in "active government," doing "what's best" for the most people.

Bush prefers "passive government," with citizens making as many as possible of their own decisions, individual enterprise, self-happy.

In foreign affairs, Dukakis is largely untested.

In foreign affairs, Bush may be the best-equipped candidate for the Presidency ever. Former member of Congress, ambassador to the United Nations, director of the CIA and national chairman of the Republican Party.

Dukakis as governor has attracted bright, energetic people to serve his administration. Bush, in each of his posts, earned a reputation as "a capable manager."

Admittedly, this is a superficial overview. The voters of the United States in the next election will not go far wrong — nor far right.

States wrongly skew the poor on taxes

By ROBERT WALTERS

SANTA ANA, Calif. (NEA) — Like the residents of most other states, Californians seldom give much thought to the sales tax they must pay every time they purchase any of thousands of items, ranging from a bottle of beer to a pair of shoes.

If they were more aware of how that levy is structured, however, many people might be outraged. State sales taxes are universally regressive, which means they consume a far larger portion of the financial resources of low- and middle-income families than of wealthy households.

"Imagine the political firestorm that state legislators would face if they devised a tax that explicitly took four or five times as great a share of the incomes of poor families as from the rich," says a recent report issued by Citizens for Tax Justice, a Washington, D.C. public-interest group. "That is exactly what state sales and excise taxes do."

Regressivity is not limited to sales taxes, however. Another new report, from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, documents the existence of the same phenomenon in the structure of state income taxes.

Many state governments, says AFSCME, have been victimized by corporate "propaganda campaigns" suggesting that progressive income taxes would harm their "business climate" and their ability to attract industry.

"This has led states in many cases to deliberately skew income tax cuts toward the wealthy rather than the middle class or the poor," adds the union's analysis.

Exacerbating the problem is the fact that the trend in the states is matched at the federal level, where the personal income tax has been stripped of much of its progressiveness.

California's 6-percent sales tax is slightly higher than the national average, but the exclusions for food and other necessities place the state a respectable seventh in Citizen for Tax Justice's regressivity ranking.

Atop that list, with the most equitably balanced sales tax is Massachusetts, followed by Vermont, New Jersey, Kansas, Wyoming, Maryland, California, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Colorado.

(Not included on that list are five states that impose little or no sales tax — Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon.)

At the bottom of the rankings, Mississippi is the state with the most regressive sales tax, followed by Tennessee, Louisiana, Alabama, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Utah, Arkansas, Texas and Washington.

Most of them are among the 16 states that impose sales taxes on all food purchases — an especially regressive practice because food constitutes a relatively large share of the budgets of low- and middle-income families.

"But there is not a state in the union that has devised a sales-tax system that is even close to yielding a proportional result," adds the report. "Indeed, every state sales tax system is regressive, sometimes astonishingly so."

California is ranked first on AFSCME's list of states with the most progressive income tax, followed by Mississippi, New Mexico, Maine, Rhode Island, Vermont, New York, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Ohio.

(Not ranked were 10 other states that levy little or no income tax — Alaska, Connecticut, Florida, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and Wyoming.)

At the bottom of that list, with the most regressive income tax, was Pennsylvania, followed by Alabama, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, Maryland, Missouri, Colorado and New Jersey.

"While a number of states improved the progressivity of their personal income taxes last year, the trend was far from universal," says the AFSCME report. Nebraska, for example, transformed a progressive tax into a regressive levy.

Overall, the evidence is dismaying because of the tendency to shift the burden of financing government services from those who can afford it to those who cannot.

Bush attacks Dukakis, says he's 'out of mainstream'

By The Associated Press

Republican George Bush launched one of his harshest attacks to date on Democrat Michael Dukakis, denouncing his opponent for a "flawed world view" and "old-style 60's liberalism." The Dukakis camp suggested that the vice president's weakness in the polls prompted the "mudslinging."

Meanwhile, a pair of polls published today suggested the Democratic ticket would be hurt if Jesse Jackson were Dukakis' running mate. A USA Today-CNN survey indicated Dukakis has a clear lead over Bush — unless he picks Jackson as his running mate. And an ABC-Washington Post poll suggested Jackson's presence on the ticket would hurt Dukakis among key groups whose backing he needs to win in November.

Both Bush and Dukakis looked ready for a long hot summer leading up to their respective parties' conventions.

"There's no reason to wait till the World Series to start swinging," said Bush, in Texas to address delegates at the state GOP convention on Thursday. "This is a new ball game — spring training is over."

The vice president criticized Dukakis' positions on a variety of topics, saying the Massachusetts governor would raise taxes, plague innocent taxpayers with IRS audits, weaken national defense, be soft on crime and put forth an isolationist foreign policy.

"My opponent is an articulate defender of a flawed world view," said Bush. "His views and values are too often ... out of the mainstream."

Dukakis campaign spokesman Leslie Dach said "it's clear that the vice president doesn't think his own record or vision can bring him the votes he needs in November."

"Given where George Bush is in the polls, I think it's no surprise that he's chosen to spend his time mudslinging and tearing down," Dach said.

A series of recent nationwide polls suggested Dukakis had the edge in a faceoff with Bush, with some surveys putting the lead in double digits.

The latest such survey, the CNN-USA Today poll, gave Dukakis a 6-point lead over Bush, 45 to 39 percent.

Dukakis became the certain Democratic nominee on Tuesday, when the final four primaries of the season gave him the delegates he needs for a first-ballot victory in Atlanta.

Bush put away his GOP rivals months ago.

On the Democratic side, party chief Paul Kirk was on hand as a panel gathered at Mackinac Island, Mich., to begin working on the party platform. He played down reports that a preliminary platform statement drew complaints from the campaigns of both Dukakis and Jackson.

Asked if he expected bickering over the platform draft, Kirk replied: "I'd be shocked if we didn't have some discussion."

The platform-drafting committee is headed by a Jackson backer, Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania.

Jackson himself was out of public view on Thursday, resting up at the posh La Costa resort outside San Diego.

Dr. Marc Wallack, right, administers a vaccine that he hopes will stop the recurrences of melanoma to patient Angela Rose of Dallas Thursday afternoon at Mount Sinai Medical Center in Miami Beach, Fla.

Skin cancer vaccine trials begin on patients across the nation

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A promising vaccine to prevent recurrence of melanoma is being tested in nationwide clinical trials involving at least 200 patients suffering from the deadliest form of skin cancer, its developer says.

"What it means is there is potential for some hope, and perhaps we're going to be able to immunize a patient against potential recurrence," said Marc Wallack, a cancer specialist and chairman of general surgery of Mount Sinai Medical Center.

Wallack on Thursday announced the beginning of the three-year trial of the vaccine he has been testing for 15 years.

Melanoma, which strikes about 27,000 Americans each year, is easily treated by removing the tumor if the disease is discovered before cancer cells spread. But death rates can climb as high as 70 percent if it spreads to lymph nodes.

The disease resists traditional chemical and radiation treatments, making it the hardest skin cancer to treat, said Wallack.

Cancer vaccines aren't a new idea, and vaccines for various cancers are being studied around the nation. Like others, Wallack's aims to prevent the disease from recurring by energizing the body's immune system to seek out and destroy stray malignant cells that may have broken off tumors.

"We specifically activate the immune system against the patient's melanoma," said Wallack, who will oversee the trials involving at least 200 patients whose tumors have been recently removed and whose lymph nodes have been invaded.

It will be a double-blind study, meaning neither doctors nor patients will know who gets the vaccine and who gets a placebo.

The trials are beginning at the University of Florida; Duke University in Durham, N.C.; the M.D. Anderson cancer institute in Houston; the University of Alabama; and Emory University in Atlanta, Wallack said.

The vaccine is created by infecting four types of melanoma cells with smallpox vaccine viruses. Membranes from the infected cells are injected into patients weekly for 13 weeks, then biweekly for the rest of a year.

Wallack believes the smallpox "wakes up" the immune system, prompting it to act against the cancer.

Wallack plans to compare in follow-ups the cancer recurrence and survival rates of the two groups of patients. He hopes to repeat the results of early experiments, which helped at least 15 percent of smaller numbers of patients.

"Surgery is very important to remove the primary lesion, and also any (lymph) nodes that are positive. After this, that's when this approach, specific immunotherapy, comes into play," he said.

A different type of melanoma vaccine is being developed by Dr. Philip Livingston of Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

"I'm not saying one is better than the other, but it's a different approach," said Livingston, whose work uses purified chemicals taken from cancer cells.

Wholesale prices up in May

WASHINGTON (AP)— Wholesale prices, led by the steepest increase in food costs since January, rose a moderate 0.5 percent in May, the government said today.

If the May increase held steady for 12 straight months, inflation at the wholesale level would be 5.8 percent, nearly triple the modest 2 percent increase of the past 12 months, the Labor Department said.

The May increase differed little from the 0.4 percent rise in April and a 0.6 percent hike in March, except for the fact that food replaced energy as the main propellant of inflation.

Egg prices jumped 12.5 percent, mostly offsetting a 16 percent decline in April. Poultry prices were up 8.2 percent, pork was up 5.5 percent and vegetable prices rose 3.3 percent.

However, wholesale prices for fruit declined nearly 0.9 percent, rice was down 3.2 percent, limiting the overall average increase for food to 0.9 percent. That was the biggest increase since 1.7 percent in January.

Energy prices, which had surged 3.1 percent in April, rose only 0.2 percent in May, largely because of a 3.8 percent drop in natural gas prices. Home heating oil rose a modest 0.7 percent, compared with hikes of 5.2 percent in April and 2.6 percent in March. Gasoline prices jumped 3.8 percent last month, but were still only 1.5 percent higher than a year ago.

The Labor Department's index for wholesale prices at the finished goods level minus energy and food was up 0.3 percent. Analysts consider this a more reliable indicator of underlying inflation because of the month-to-month volatility of food and energy costs.

Over the past year, wholesale prices excluding food and energy have risen 2.8 percent.

Leading the May increase were higher prices of 1.3 percent for soaps and detergent, 0.8 percent for women's clothing, 3 percent for tires, and 0.7 percent for prescription drugs.

Car prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in May after declining 1 percent in April on manufacturers' rebates to dealers. Higher prices also were recorded for cosmetics, household flatware and home electronic equipment, all of which had declined in April.

Children's clothing prices dropped 1.3 percent after rising slightly more than half a percent in April. The only other product which had a price drop was alcoholic beverages, down 0.4 percent.

The May increase brought the overall wholesale price index for finished goods to 107.5, meaning that a basket of products costing $100 in 1982 would cost $107.50 last month, up 60 cents from April.

So far this year, wholesale prices are rising slower than consumer prices.

Botha extends state of emergency to third year

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha today extended the two-year nationwide state of emergency for another year and said ordinary laws were inadequate to control unrest.

His proclamation, which means hundreds of prominent activists will remain in jail without charge, was assailed by anti-apartheid leaders. White women from the Black Sash civil rights group stood along highways in Johannesburg during the morning rush hour with posters saying: "Apartheid is the emergency."

The Rev. Frank Chikane, general secretary of the South African Council of Churches, said activists must "intensify our call for comprehensive economic sanctions against this apartheid regime."

Botha's announcement came two days after blacks ended their biggest and longest general strike against the white-controlled government. Black labor federations said about 1,000 workers who joined the protest have been fired.

The new emergency decree took effect immediately upon publication of a special government gazette in Pretoria. New press restrictions published in the gazette bar all media from quoting any member of an outlawed organization and require local news agencies to register with the government.

These domestic news agencies, many of them aggressive in their coverage of anti-apartheid activity, could be ordered to submit all their dispatches to a government censor before publication, the regulations say.

Journalists are already restricted in coverage of unrest, security force action, treatment of emergency detainees and a wide range of political statements the government considers subversive.

Another section gives the government power to extend the suspensions of two anti-apartheid newspapers, New Nation and South, which were closed down in recent months. New Nation's editor, Zwelakhe Sisulu, has been detained without charge since December 1986.

"It is indeed the aspiration of the government that conditions will change to such an extent that the declared state of emergency can be lifted," Botha said in a statement.

The emergency regulations allow sweeping powers of detention, outlaw many forms of peaceful anti-government protest and restrict freedom of speech, press and assembly.

Helen Suzman, long-serving member of Parliament for the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party, said Botha's announcement was "extremely depressing and hardly likely to restore confidence in the future stability of South Africa."

"We might just as well prepare ourselves for a permanent state of emergency," independent member of Parliament Jan van Eck told a gathering in Johannesburg on Thursday. "A minority regime will not be able to govern this country without the very wide and very arbitrary powers afforded by the state of emergency."

Under apartheid, South Africa's 26 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

Despite banning of apartheid groups and restrictions on their leaders, more than 2 million blacks stayed away from work, school and shops from Monday to Wednesday.

Newspapers say Israel arrests Arab journalists

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel arrested two Palestinian reporters and a writer in a continuing crackdown on Arab journalists, Arab newspapers reported today. An Israeli report said the government may shut down West Bank schools again.

The Hebrew daily newspaper Haretz quoted army sources as saying schools could close again if students follow orders given in underground leaflets to leave classes at noon.

Authorities have extended classroom time to 12:30 or 1 p.m. to make up for the four months schools were closed during the height of the Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

A spokesman for the West Bank's military government could not be reached for comment on the Haretz report. A day earlier, spokesman Olivier Rafowicz said the army had no immediate plans to close schools again because of increased violence.

The Haretz story came a day after protests and a general strike marked six months of the "intifadeh," or uprising. Students and young people played a major role in clashes with the army Thursday in the West Bank.

Ahmed Hassan Hawari, 17, was killed when he was shot in the head by an Israeli officer in the village of Sebastiya near Nablus. The army said he was about to throw a cement block at troops from a terrace when he was shot.

An 18-year-old youth and a 12-year-old girl were wounded in the legs during a protest in the West Bank town of Tulkarem, hospital officials said.

The army said only one person was shot in the protest, but said two other protesters were wounded when dozens of Palestinians attacked troops with bottles and stones in Nablus' Arab bazaar.

A 40-year-old Arab motorist, Rouhi Mohammed Khaliya, also was a victim of Thursday's violence. He died of heart failure after his car was stoned as he passed the Dheishe refugee camp near Bethlehem, the army command said.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

God Bless...

God bless Mommie, Daddie, and all my friends at church...

"Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God."

God's word has a great deal to say about prayer, for prayer is our means to communicate with God. Through prayer we can give thanks, petition for our friends, and seek God's wisdom for our daily living.

Make prayer a daily practice in your life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Methodists name new ministers

ABILENE - Changes in assignments for ministers were among business items conducted this week during the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church held in Abilene.

Six changes in the Pampa District were among a total of 47 new appointments made in the Conference, which includes United Methodist churches in seven districts — Pampa, Abilene, Amarillo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Plainview and Seymour.

W. Weldon Rives is the new pastor at Wheeler-Allison UMC. He comes from St. Andrew UMC at Borger, where he served eight years. He replaces Michael Struve, who served three years; Struve has been appointed to Quanah.

Landrum Medlock is the new pastor at White Deer, replacing Ivan E. Allen, who served six years. Medlock comes from Lubbock Cooper, where he served three years.

Other new appointments in the Pampa District include Sammie Ellis-Rainey, Borger St. Andrew; Terry Tamplen, Clarendon-Hedley; Jon Nichols, Higgins; and C. Edward Allsup, Perryton.

Named new superintendent of the Plainview District was Rev. Earl N. Blair, who is moving from Floydada, where he served five years as pastor. Rev. Blair replaces Rev. E. Bruce Parks, who served six years as district superintendent.

The Big Spring District had the most changes, with nine, followed by Lubbock, Plainview and Seymour, with eight each. Abilene and Amarillo districts had four changes each.

United Methodist ministers are assigned by Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt of the New Mexico and Northwest Texas Annual Conference to appointments at the Conference's various churches each year.

Theme of the meeting was "The Church Aflame: Kindled by Grace." About 1,000 persons, including clergy, lay delegates, alternates and spouses, attended the meeting, which ended Thursday. Eleven elders and six deacons were ordained in special services Wednesday.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: The ransomed of the Lord will return. They will enter Zion with singing; everlasting joy will crown their heads. Gladness and joy will overtake them, and sorrow and sighing will flee away. (Isaiah 51:11 NIV)

A typical Christian, my imagination often toys with thoughts of what Heaven will be like when I get there.

Usually my heavenly reverie occurs on the heels of disappointment or disaster and at a time I'm longing for a way out of this world's ugliness. However, a recent spiritual mountain peak experience set my mind whirling with thoughts that excited me as nothing else has.

The experience itself isn't important, for I've experienced many others, just as have all Christians. It was the same type of high you feel when looking out across a breathtaking landscape and knowing Adam must have felt this way when God presented him with the Garden of Eden.

Or the feeling that swells within you at the sound of musical praise lifted with such sincerity it could break your heart. Or the exhilaration experienced in the wake of answered prayer. Or the moment alone with the Lord in which His presence is so near and clear your heart accelerates, and you see spots before your eyes, and you know you're on holy ground.

These moments sustain us, but we're powerless to sustain them. Each spiritual high is followed by the disappointing realization we can't hold such consummate adoration but fleetingly.

From such an occasion blossomed a vision of Heaven which I hope is true. I believe Heaven holds in store for us a perfect understanding of God's praiseworthiness and a perfect capacity to sustain our praise for eternity!

What a glorious future!

Dr. Mike Riggins and family

New Life Worship Center to host counselor services

New Life Worship Center, 318 N. Cuyler, will host Dr. Mike Riggins at the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services Sunday.

Dr. Riggins ministers to the spiritual and psychological needs of individuals, families and groups. He combines the mental, emotional and spiritual perspective to address the issues of broken relationships and emotional problems.

His experience and training allows him to deal with the whole scope of the problem and bring spiritual and mental strength to combat the psychological stresses of everyday life, leading to what has been called a practical, real approach to mental, emotional and spiritual health results.

Licensed in both fields of pastoral counseling and professional counseling, Riggins also brings the life experience of his family. He and his wife Sarah have two sons, Christopher and Jeremiah.

Pastor John Farina and the congregation invite the public to attend both special Sunday services.

Jehovah's Witnesses to have Amarillo district conventions

AMARILLO - Two district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held this month in Amarillo as part of a series of 120 district conventions scheduled for the summer in the United States and Bermuda.

The Amarillo conventions, to be held at the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum, will be held June 16-19 and June 23-26.

Frank K. Barr, manager of the two Amarillo conventions, said the four-day seminars would attract 10,000 delegates from West Texas, western Oklahoma, southwestern Kansas and eastern New Mexico.

Barr said the theme of the convention is "Divine Justice," with attention to be directed at many of the serious problems confronting humanity, especially the alarming breakdown of the family unit in modern society.

"History reveals the futility attached to seeking human remedies to problems that require divine solutions," he said.

"The program will highlight the wisdom and work required to succeed in meeting the challenge of our times and help build strong spiritual values into the family structure," he added.

A feature of the 1988 conventions will be the presence of hundreds of missionaries serving in foreign fields to share in program parts.

"We will hear reports from throughout the world that will help us to see the situation worldwide and the progress being made by our ministerial activity in 210 lands," Barr said.

Mormon black membership on the rise

ACCRA, Ghana — Ten years ago, blacks couldn't be ordained to the priesthood in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and, consequently, the black membership was relatively sparse.

That all changed on June 9, 1978, when then-church President Spencer W. Kimball announced a revelation, stating that henceforth "every faithful, worthy man in the church may receive the holy priesthood."

Following the announcement of the revelation and the new policy, Joseph Freeman was the first black to be ordained to the church's priesthood after the ban was lifted.

Now he guides his white brethren through the rituals at the Denver, Colo., Temple, once denied him because of his race.

Ten years later, the black membership is definitely on the increase, although the church doesn't know precisely how many blacks are on the rolls — there is no place for race membership on the forms gathered at headquarters.

But there is at least one part of the world where virtually all of the Latter-day Saints are black. That place is West Africa.

In the past 10 years, more than 13,000 have come into the church in the black African countries of Nigeria and Ghana. There are some 100 congregations in those two countries, and all of the bishops and other ecclesiastical leaders are native Africans.

"Mormon missionaries did not come to West Africa until 1978, some 500 years after Christianity was first introduced here," said Dr. Emanuel Abu Kissi, who is among the "pioneers" of the church in Ghana.

"Those who now hear the Mormons' side of the story wholeheartedly embrace the church and sometimes ask why did it not come sooner," he said.

"We are growing, but we want to grow cautiously," he said.

The Accra physician, whose first exposure to the church came in the 1970s when he was in England taking final surgery examinations, said the church has a special appeal to the well-educated in his country, but is also attracting those from other educational and cultural strata.

"The educated people have come to us quickly," Kissi said. "But the church is not just a church for educated people. It is for everyone, and it is appealing to many others as well."

While most of the black African growth of the church in the past 10 years has been concentrated in Ghana and Nigeria, missions have recently been opened in Liberia, Zaire and the Mascarene Islands. Efforts are also under way to get official recognition in Kenya, Sierra Leone and the Ivory Coast.

The Latter-day Saints have had a presence in South Africa for many years. Most of the 15,000 members there are white, but black membership has increased during the past decade. A mission also has recently been established in Zimbabwe.

Outside of Africa, the church is experiencing healthy growth in the West Indies, where there is a considerable black population. There are now some 28,000 Latter-day Saints spread throughout Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Jamaica, Barbados and other Caribbean islands.

Meanwhile, black membership has also increased in places like London, in the southern states and in large metropolitan areas of the United States, as well as in other parts of the world, including South America.

In fact, Brazil provided the first black mission president in the church, and Colombia the first black stake (comparable to a diocese) president.

The first 10 years of full fellowship for blacks in the church have, as Dr. Kissi mentioned, brought steady but orderly growth in black membership. There is every indication that the next 10 years will bring more of the same.

Radical students attempt to reach North Korean border

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Radical students attacked riot police with firebombs and clubs today as they battled to reach the North Korean border for reunification talks with students from the communist north.

Police in the center of Seoul chased thousands of screaming students trying to reach the main train station to take trains to the border. About 5,000 bottled up by police in Yonsei University tried to force their way out. "We fight for unification," students chanted as they tried to break through police lines to make their way to the border 30 miles north of Seoul.

Police hit by firebombs screamed with pain as they were enveloped in orange flames in the fighting around Yonsei. Students wielding wooden and iron clubs beat troopers trying to ward off blows with shields. Both sides pelleted each other with rocks and bricks.

Black police armored cars fired volley after volley of choking tear gas into the charging students, and police martial arts squads counterattacked. Students tried to immobilize the vans with firebombs and clubs.

Police arrested more than 500 students in various parts of Seoul, and about 40 students who managed to reach Imjingak at the edge of the Demilitarized Zone along the border were immediately detained.

Police battled several thousand students who held demonstrations to support the reunification march in the provincial cities of Taejon, Iri, Chunju, Chonan and Kongju. Troopers fired tear gas to drive protesters back into college campuses as students hurled firebombs and rocks.

Protesters at one point dragged a 20-foot baseball backstop to the main gate at Yonsei to deflect exploding gas bombs fired by police. But riot troopers attacked and dragged it away.

Radical students called for the march to force reunification of the communist north and the pro-Western south. Radicals claim the United States enforces partition of the Korean peninsula to rule the south, and the protests were vehemently anti-American.

"Yankee go home" and "Skin the Yankees," screamed the students.

About 60,000 riot police in green combat fatigues and helmets were deployed in Seoul and on roads leading to the border to block the march, banned by the government as a national security risk.

Fighting erupted around Yonsei today when students attempted to march out after a rally at which speakers called for reunification and denounced the United States.

"We call for struggle of the masses for unification and against dictatorship," a speaker shouted as cheering students waved red, blue and black anti-government and anti-U.S. banners.

Radical leaders said two representatives were sent to slip past police blocks and reach the border truce site of Panmunjom to meet with the northern delegates. The heavily-militarized border is off limits to all civilians.

Family to honor artist with show

An art show and reception honoring the work of Hazel Wilson of Pampa is set for 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday, at the Lovett Memorial Library. Hosting the event are her children, Kay Wilson of Scotsdale, Ariz., and Jerry and Susie Wilson of Pampa.

Mrs. Wilson's interest in art developed after she reached her 70th birthday, following her retirement from teaching the piano for 40 years. She enrolled in an art class taught by Dord Fitz, well-known Panhandle artist, instructor, and gallery owner. Mrs. Wilson has also studied water color with Michael McCullough of Amarillo and oils under the Rev. John Waller who helped her with a large baptistry painting.

Although she has received several invitations for a "one-man" showing of her work, Mrs. Wilson, 87, has declined, saying she thought it too much of an effort due to her age and because the paintings are not to be sold.

More than 30 of her works in oils, pastels and watercolors are to be displayed at the reception. A portrait of her husband, Ramon Wilson, a former Gray County auditor, may be of interest to some of Pampa's older residents.

The reception and showing are open to the public.

State society to meet in Amarillo

Texas State Genealogical Society has set its summer meeting in Amarillo, June 24-25, with Dr. Don E. Carleton of the University of Texas and Dr. Bobby Weaver of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, as guest speakers.

Persons who wish to apply for a certificate must be a direct descendant of a person who lived in one of the counties of West Texas prior to 1901. Only members of the Texas State Genealogical Society may apply.

West Texas area includes the following counties and all counties west: Clay, Jack, Palo Pinto, Erath, Hamilton, Coryell, Lampas, Burnet, Blanco, Kendall, Bandera, Medina, Frio, Le Salle, Webb and Zapata.

For more information about the state meeting or membership contact TSGS Amarillo, 2313 Lakeshore Drive, Cleburne, 76031. Membership is $18 per year.

Speakers for the two-day event are Dr. Carleton, director, Barker History Center at the University of Texas, Austin, and Dr. Weaver, assistant director, National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, Oklahoma City.

Dr. Carleton is to speak on genealogy research resources available at the Barker Texas History Center. He was the founding director of the Houston Metropolitan Research Center and is a senior lecturer at the Department of History, University of Texas, Austin. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Houston.

Dr. Weaver is to speak on the Texas Newspaper Project at the Panhandle Plains Museum, Canyon, and on settlement patterns in West Texas from 1850-1910. He was the chief curator and archivist for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, receiving his degree from Texas Tech University.

Paying for college

AUSTIN — Economic hard times and dwindling family savings may keep many graduating Texas seniors from the college ranks this fall, but they don't have to, says the Texas State Teachers Association.

The association announced this week that it is distributing a free guide for students and their families, entitled "Paying For College." The brochure outlines various assistance programs, including scholarships, grants, low-interest loans, work programs and private funding sources.

Free copies of "Paying for College" are available by writing TSTA Communications, 316 W. 12th St., Austin, 78701.

Dad breaks daughter's heart

DEAR ABBY: When I was a teenager, I got pregnant. I didn't tell (or marry) the baby's natural father. I married my high school sweetheart when my daughter was a year old. My husband adopted her, and has been a wonderful father to her ever since.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

I never kept anything from "Libby" — she has known about her natural father for years. When she turned 18, she wanted to meet him, so I reluctantly contacted him. ("Steve" is now married, a family man and very well-to-do.)

Steve was a little leery at first, but when he saw Libby, he could not deny that he was her father. They got to know each other, and Libby grew to love him very much. Steve said he wanted to make up for lost time and pay for Libby's college education, and wanted her to have his name, so he asked for her birth certificate, adoption papers, etc., which we gladly gave him.

After Libby enrolled in college, they sent Steve a bill for tuition. He called the college, denied being her father and refused to pay it! Libby was heartbroken — not because of the money, but because he had built her hopes up, then rejected her. Steve said his wife was jealous and gave him an ultimatum — and he had to choose his wife. I have wanted to write to him and his wife and tell them what I think of them, but my better judgment prevailed. However, I want the legal papers he took and never returned. Some can be duplicated and some cannot. What should I do?

CONFUSED IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR CONFUSED: You should advise this poor excuse for a man that if he does not return the legal papers at once, you will turn the matter over to an attorney. Then follow through.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I was barred from a local establishment that I've been going to for years (12). This pub has been a meeting place for myself and friends for such a long time. It has a "Cheers" atmosphere — you know, "a place to go where everybody knows your name." It hurt me when I was asked not to enter simply because a guy who entertains there is an old boyfriend. He told the manager (who is his brother) that he feels uncomfortable when I'm there. He left me 1 1/2 years ago. I never even talk to this guy, let alone hassle him. So why after 1 1/2 years is he having me barred?

I can't seem to get a straight answer and I really don't understand, but it's very embarrassing to know all my friends know I'm an "undesirable."

BARRED AND HUMILIATED

DEAR BARRED: If your presence at the pub makes your former boyfriend uncomfortable, it's his problem, and he's very unfair to have you barred from the establishment for that reason. However, since his brother is the manager, where the manager calls the shots — unfair as it is — there is nothing you can do about it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a brother who lives in Connecticut. For the last several years (I've lost count), this brother has called me up to remind me (as if I needed to be reminded) to send flowers to our mother for Mother's Day and put his name on the card. He always says he'll send a check — but he never does.

This year, he called again to remind me to put his name on the card. I did as he asked, and so far, no check.

This tightwad has more money than I have. Any suggestions?

SOFT TOUCH
IN ARIZONA

DEAR SOFT TOUCH: Drop your brother a line and tell him that you put his name on the card, and now you'd like to see it on a check. (P.S. And make it retroactive.)

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

Be seen in all the right places.

No matter where you are, when you're wearing Lee Leen jeans you'll be seen in all the right places. They fit right in stone-washed or frosted indigo. You have nothing to hide.

Lakers even score Defensive pressure thwarts Pistons

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Defense had done plenty for the Detroit Pistons. This time, it did them in.

They returned home today painfully aware that they don't have a monopoly on that precious basketball commodity. The Lakers have some of it, too.

Los Angeles clamped down on Detroit's many offensive weapons Thursday night, forced bad shots and turnovers and evened the NBA finals at one game each with a 108-96 victory.

The Lakers broke a string of eight straight games in which the Pistons held an opponent under 43 percent shooting and five straight games in which Detroit allowed fewer than 100 points.

"You have to credit their aggressive defense," Pistons' Coach Chuck Daly said. "I thought they had the same type of aggressiveness we had in the first game."

In Detroit's 105-93 opening victory Tuesday night, the Lakers hit just 39.8 percent of their shots. Meanwhile, Detroit's Adrian Dantley made 14 of 16 shots and had 34 points, while Vinnie Johnson was seven for 11 and scored 16 points. In the second game, Dantley made five of 10 shots and had 19 points, while Johnson was three for 14 and managed just eight points.

The Pistons sank 57.5 percent of their shots in the opener but just 43.5 percent Thursday night. The Lakers were able to run after rebounding Detroit misses more than they did in the first game.

Several times, the Pistons were forced to fire up desperation heaves to beat the 24-second clock as the Lakers used a trapping defense.

"We tried to get them to shoot when they didn't want to," Lakers' forward A.C. Green said.

"We finally did what we were supposed to do in the first game," Lakers' guard Magic Johnson said. "We double teamed and rotated and got to the open man... We never let Vinnie and AD (Dantley) get into their rhythm."

Vinnie Johnson and Dantley hope to change that in the third game of the best-of-seven series Sunday, when it switches to the Pontiac Silverdome for the next three games.

"We knew what we had to do in Game 2, now we have to take it to Detroit," Los Angeles guard Byron Scott said.

"We didn't play well at all, but we still had an opportunity to win the game," Vinnie Johnson said. "If we come out with the same intensity back home, we should be fine."

Magic Johnson, recovering from the flu, had 23 points and 11 assists in 42 minutes.

Los Angeles was led by James Worthy with 26 points and Scott with 24. The Lakers committed just nine turnovers.

Dantley had 19 points and Isiah Thomas 13 to lead the Pistons.

Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had trouble with his sky hook, but one bad miss resulted in a disputed call that was a big help to the Lakers.

The Lakers were ahead 97-92 when the sky hook from the right side went far. Television replays showed it barely nicked the rim. The timekeeper correctly reset the 24-second clock when Worthy came up with the ball.

But referee Jess Kersey blew his whistle with 1:35 left in the game and said later he didn't think the ball hit the rim and, as a result, the 24-second clock shouldn't have been reset.

Had it not been reset, the Lakers likely would have committed a 24-second violation. But because they had the ball when it was reset, Kersey gave the ball to the Lakers, who got the next two points and took a 103-92 lead.

After Worthy got the ball, his pass was stolen by Detroit's Dennis Rodman, who was ahead of the field for an apparent easy layup. Had Kersey seen the ball hit the rim and not blown the whistle, Rodman likely would have made the score 97-94.

Pistons' guard Isiah Thomas is surrounded by Lakers.

Follett bows out

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

"It was a good show, but a dirty movie," commented Follett coach Dan McGhee, in reference to the Panthers' 10-6 loss to Maud Thursday in the Class 1A state baseball semifinal in Austin.

Call this movie "Almost Paradise." The Panthers went to Austin undefeated and returned home with a "1" in the loss column — so close but yet so far.

Early on, it looked as though the Panthers might take this one. They owned a 6-2 lead going into the fifth, but that's when Maud made its move, scoring three runs in the fifth inning and five in the sixth.

Jeff Beard, 7-0 going into Thursday's game, went the distance on the mound for Follett. He struck out seven, giving up seven hits and six walks.

Winning pitcher Joey Missildine proved that it is just as difficult to hit him as it is to pronounce his name. Missildine gave up a lone hit, a single rapped by Brent Boone, while delivering a Class 1A state tournament record 15 strike outs. This victory brings him to 14-2 on the season.

Missildine had some trouble controlling his pitches, however, allowing nine bases on balls. "We scored more on his (Missildine's) walks than on our hitting," said McGhee. "We could have hit the ball a little better."

Follett had a couple of excellent plays, including a sacrifice fly by Eric Bourquin to score Shawn Jergenson, and a perfectly executed double play.

But seven fielding errors and the oppressive heat combined to make it tough on the Panthers.

"It was a good ballgame," McGhee said, "but we made some errors, and they cost us. It was so hot, we almost burned up out there. We're used to the cooler Panhandle weather. We looked good for a while, but we tired out by the end of the game."

Several of the Panthers' 14 players competed in track this spring, thus delaying the start of the baseball season and making it considerably shorter.

McGhee, who has coached in Follett for five years, credited the loss to a lack of experience. "With only eight games this season, we didn't have the confidence we needed. And we didn't hit as well as we should have. Our experience hurt us more than anything."

McGhee hopes to arrange an earlier and longer season next year. And this year's showing gives him the confidence to say, "We're a young team, and we'll be back next year."

In the other Class 1A semifinal game, Apple Springs defeated Crawford 10-7. Maud and Apple Springs squared off this morning at 8:30 for the state championship title.

Smashes single

Benny Horton of First Presbyterian smashes a single in Thursday's game against First Assembly, First Presbyterian, which has a 5-2 record, won the men's church league softball contest 18-13.

Lefors to offer Smith head job

Lefors superintendent of schools W. Earl Ross said this morning in a telephone interview that the Lefors Independent School District would offer Curtis Smith a contract to take over the head football and head boys' basketball coaching responsibilities at Lefors High School.

Smith, who was to be contacted this morning, would take over the duties of Johnny Crim, who resigned after one year in Lefors.

Smith has spent the last two years as assistant football and head basketball coach in Patton Springs, south of Silvertown near Guthrie. Prior to Patton Springs, he coached at River Road and Allison. Smith has eight years of coaching and teaching experience.

Canyon eliminated

AUSTIN (AP) — Brenham pitcher Jon Peters, whose consecutive win streak earned national attention this spring, rallied his team at the plate to give the Cubs a chance to defend their 4A state championship.

Brenham beat Canyon 6-4 in a 4A semifinal game at the UIL state tournament Thursday as Peters, a junior righthander, extended his winning streak to 42 consecutive games and improved his 1988 record to 14-0.

After Sean Cooper hit an inside-the-park home run to knot the score in the seventh, it was Peters, a .324 hitter, who ignited his team in the eighth with a leadoff single on a hanging curveball.

OCAW rallies past Keyes

Optimist roundup

OCAW came from behind to defeat Keyes Pharmacy 18-13 in Minor Bambino League play Thursday night at Optimist Park.

Top hitters for OCAW were Bryan McCormick, a double and two singles; Dylan Ozzello, a triple and two singles; and Thad Born, a single.

Top hitters for Keyes were Jeremy Miller, double and single; Curtis Wilson, a double; Adam Brooks, a triple; Brandon Skidmore and Clinton Smillie, one single each.

Ozzello was the winning pitcher. He struck out six, walked nine and allowed six hits.

Warner-Horton Supply has lifted its league record to a perfect 6-0 in the 13-15 year old girls' softball league.

Warner-Horton defeated Downs 27-17 for its sixth triumph Wednesday at Optimist Park.

Rhonda Been was the winning pitcher, moving her mound record to 2-0. Katrina Downs took the loss for Downs.

Been helped her own cause by leading the hitting attack with four singles, scoring three runs and driving in nine.

Meredith Horton and Kristen Becker each had three hits, Tracy Trotter and Candy Stanton had two hits apiece, Misty Tomas and April Epperson, one hit each.

Three hitters for Downs had singles, Katrina Thompson, Diana Pulse and Susan Wood. Sixteen base on balls and five errors by Warner-Horton accounted for Downs' 17 runs.

With half of the games played, Warner-Horton leads the league, closely followed by Randy's Food with a 5-2 record.

The two teams play at 8 p.m. tonight and Randy's will be looking for revenge since Warner-Horton gave them their first loss 15-12 early in the season.

Randy's was the team picked to win it all with Warner-Horton playing a spoiler role because of their youth. However, Warner-Horton has been the league's surprise team.

In a Babe Ruth 13-year old league game played earlier this week, Mitch Spence pitched a no-hitter as the Lions Club blanked First National Bank 21-0.

Spence struck out five and walked two in the no-hit victory.

Justin Johnson led the Lions 11-hit attack with three hits, including a double. Will Winborne, Gary Frazier and Spence had two hits each. Tyler Kendall and Jason Johnson had one hit each.

In Major League Bambino action Thursday, Dean's Pharmacy downed Rotary 11-1 and Dunlap Industrial defeated Duncan Insurance 15-2.

Dean's, now 5-0 in second-half play and 11-1 overall, closed out Rotary in four innings.

Winning pitcher was Jason Downs, who allowed three hits while striking out six and walking one.

Jeremy Morris was Dean's top hitter with a double and single. Chris Brawley, Brandon Scott, Michael Hunt, Greg Moore and Jason Bowles had one base hit each while Justin Westbrooks and Justin Morris each had a double.

Devin King's homer in the first inning was Rotary's only run. King also had a double as did Jeff McCormick.

Dunlap Industrial staged a two-out 9-run rally in the bottom of the second inning and went on to bury Duncan Insurance.

Greg McDaniel started the rally with a single, stole second and came home on Duane Nickelberry's RBI. Justin Long singled, followed by Andy Elsheimer's home run. Three walks then left the bases loaded for Seth Heiskell, who drove in all three runners with a double to right field.

For Dunlap, McDaniel and Justin Long each had two singles and Nickelberry's three singles, while Elsheimer added two singles to his homer.

Elsheimer picked up the win, allowing four hits while striking out nine with no walks as Dunlap improved its record to 4-1 in the second half and 8-3 overall.

For Duncan, everyone named Jason got hits: Jason Jones, Jason Warren and Jason Soukup, joined by Rene Armentariz.
