Joe Dan Tarter and Sherrie Seaton each showed two barrows under the Parmer County 4-H banner.

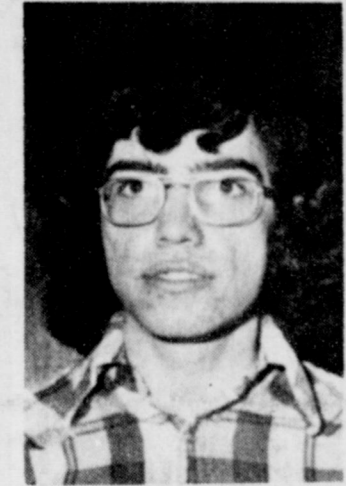

Joe Dan had a winning day on Wednesday, February 11 by showing the Reserve Grand Champion barrow over all breeds and crosses. He started off the morning by winning the heavyweight other Pure Breeds class with his 244 pound Poland

China. In this class Joe Dan was showing against other Poland Chinas, Spots and Chester Whites. Next came the breed champion drive where the barrow was named Champion other Pure Breeds.

That afternoon in the final drive the barrow was named Reserve Grand Champion of the show. Joe Dan also showed the third heavyweight Duroc. Sherrie Seaton's heavyweight Poland China was third, behind the champion. Sherrie also showed the second medium-weight Hampshire. Mike Windham's heavyweight Hampshire placed sixth. Damrons Host Board Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Damron of Muleshoe entertained members of the State Pharmaceutical Board Friday night for dinner in their home. Saturday the Board will have dinner at the Hilton Inn in Lubbock to honor past board members.

Joe Arnet, secretary of the board, from Austin, explained that the board members are appointed by the Governor every two years. He said the function of the board is to be a consumer protection agency as far as drugs and pharmaceuticals are concerned. The board examines the recent grads to see if they are qualified to serve the public.

Arnet pointed out that the board policies their own organization to see that they give the public first quality medication and fresh medication and to see that their colleagues obey the laws.

According to Arnet, the board reciprocates pharmacists from other states and see that they are qualified to serve the people of Texas. Every year the board must re-license pharmacists and pharmacies and pharmaceutical manufacturers in Texas. Arnet

Chamber Board Approves Budget

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture Board of Directors met at noon Thursday at the Corral Restaurant to approve the budget presented to them by Ken Henry, chairman of the budget committee.

There was some discussion on the Membership Breakfast scheduled to be held February 26, 1976 at 6:30 a.m. at the Corral.

It was noted during the meeting that the recent Chamber of Commerce Banquet ended at a $20 loss, which was the closest they have ever come to breaking even in the history of the Chamber, according to Tommy Black, executive director.

The local Chamber of Commerce will coordinate a security seminar in conjunction with the local law enforcement personnel. The speaker will be from Mesquite, Texas. It will be a one-day seminar and will cost each person attending $5. Ed Cox and Delbert Berry attended such a seminar not long ago and pointed out that it will cover items as shoplifting, stolen credit cards and internal pilferage, and hot checks. The seminar will be scheduled within the next 30-45 days according to

Farmers Union Claims School Tax Is Unfair

Texas Farmers Union has announced that it is organizing a statewide panel to develop tax policy to assure the equitable distribution of the tax burden in supporting public education. According to the statewide farm organization, the present system of supporting public schools with property taxes imposes an unfair burden on farmers, ranchers and the rural communities.

The Texas Farmers Union Board of Directors, meeting in Waco last Saturday, approved the appointment of a 9-member School Tax Alternative Study Panel, which will be composed of one farmer from each of the nine organized districts in Texas Farmers Union. The committee will have its first meeting in Waco the end of March for the purpose of organizing itself and to begin the process of gathering information.

"Farmers, ranchers and the economies of the rural communities are being damaged by the unfair tax load which is being imposed on them by the present system of financing the public schools. Rural people are being obligated far beyond their ability to pay in support of their public schools, and the sources of wealth that should be tapped to support public education are being left untouched," Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman said.

Rotarians Honor Wives

Muleshoe Rotarians honored their wives at their annual Sweetheart Dinner February 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall.

The members and their guests were entertained by the Baker's Dozen, a musical group from Levelland.

Each of the wives received a box of candy.

Since its beginning, $699,400 went to boys in the dairy scramble. This has covered 3,400 heifers.

Of the 388 boys who compete this year, only half will be winners.

The calf scramble is the fourth event at every rodeo performance. Twenty-four boys will take part in the beef scrambles, competing for 12 heifers and 28

Good Security Habits Protect Against Crime

"Protecting businesses against crime is largely a matter of developing good security habits," remarked Wayne Holmes of the Muleshoe Police Department crime prevention unit during a discussion on general methods for cutting down crimes against commercial establishments.

"One of the best actions a businessman can take is to talk with other managers and proprietors in his neighborhood and get them involved in crime prevention," Holmes said. "If they all take proper security measures, the area will get to be known as an unprofitable place for criminals."

Holmes stressed the importance of participating in Operation Identification by engraving business equipment with the proprietor's driver's license number or with a special number provided by Muleshoe Police Department and displaying a decal indicating that everything valuable is marked. Items engraved with Operation Identification numbers are easily traced and therefore difficult to sell. Markers and instructions are available at Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

"In addition," Holmes cautioned, "whoever locks up at night should check to see that no one's hiding in the building."

"If a place does get robbed or burglarized," he concluded, "whoever is in charge should

In other action, the Farmers Union Board adopted a strong resolution opposed to deregulation of gas and condemned the votes of Texas congressmen who, according to the resolution, "have chosen to support the gas companies to the detriment of the consumers in their districts." The Board also unanimously adopted a resolution supporting the traditional Farmer-Elected Community Committeeman System. It applauded the U.S. Senate-passed resolution supporting the system.

Finally, the farm organization questioned the proposed Fort Hood expansion. The resolution stated that the facts must prove imperative need to justify the disruption of so many families. Farmers Union supports the "Our Lands - Our Lives" coalition that is representing the owners of land adjoining the military base.

They are also working on a new program, the DIU Program, Diversion Investigative Unit. Both programs have been very successful. Arnet said. DIU is made up of representatives from the Board of Pharmacy, Medical Board, Federal Drug Enforcement Agency and the Department of Public Safety, in Austin.

The primary purpose of the program is to try to discover and ascertain where diversion of drugs is occurring in the health profession.

Important Agri Meet Monday

Bailey County Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley says there will be a "real exciting, informative, educational meeting for Bailey County Farmers on a variety of important agricultural topics," Monday, February 23 at 7 p.m. in the community room of the Muleshoe State Bank. The public is encouraged to attend and hear the following speakers:

Dr. Roland Smith, grain marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service from Texas A&M University. He will be here to speak on the grain situation of the world and how he predicts the future of grain sorghum, corn and wheat for the 1976 crop growing season;

Marvin Sartin, farm economist at Lubbock, who will be speaking on the value of economics for the farm corn dryers;

Leon New, area irrigation specialist at the Lubbock station, who will speak on the value of economics for an alternate energy source for irrigation systems;

Dr. Pat Morrison, agronomist from Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University whose topic will be greenbug resistant grain sorghums for the 1976 growing season.

Any farmer needing additional information should contact their local Extension Agent's office. "I hope we have a good turnout to hear these fine men talk about what I feel like are some hot topics that farmers need to be making decisions on for the 1976 year," Tanksley said.

FDA ON ALCOHOL

The Food and Drug Administration has scrapped a 35-year-old agreement with the Treasury Department and said it will order the alcohol industry to put on the label what is in beer, wine and liquor.

Public Hearings Set For Month Of February

Four days of public hearings are scheduled in February on the new child care licensing law that went into effect in Texas on January 1.

The meetings will be conducted by the State Department of Public Welfare (DPW) which is charged with issuing child care standards, licensing child care facilities, and monitoring performance of the facilities.

Churches Sponsor Rally

Evangelist James Robison of Fort Worth, Texas, will be preacher for a one-night evangelistic rally in the Muleshoe High School Auditorium, March 11, 7:30 p.m.

The rally, sponsored by various area churches, is expected to draw an attendance of 900 persons. The meeting is open to the public and other churches, according to J.E. Meeks, Pastor of First Baptist Church and chairman for the meeting.

Sharing the program spotlight with Robison will be other members of his evangelistic team including gospel singer John McKay, organist Rickey Craig, and pianist Rick Jackson. Guest soloist will be Mrs. Jeanne Rogers. She is a regular performer on the evangelist's weekly television program, "James Robison Presents," as well as soloist for many crusades.

Robison's half-hour, syndicated TV show, "James Robison Presents," is carried over Channel 11, Lubbock, each Sunday morning at 8:30.

At 32, Robison has preached his simple gospel message face-to-face to some six million people. Since he began preaching at the age of 18, he has preached in more than 400 crusades. During 1975 he conducted some 20 crusades. A few of the cities and areas where crusades were held were Mobile, Alabama; Anderson, South Carolina; Greenville, South Carolina; Crossville, Tennessee; Salisbury, North Carolina; Lawton, Oklahoma; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Atlanta, Georgia; and McAllen, Texas.

Robison has rapport with young people and speaks to some 200,000 high school students each year on such subjects as personal responsibility, youth problems and moral character.

A number of teens have told Robison that they were on drugs, but that the message of Christ changed their lives. Having faced many of the same problems teens face today, Robison easily identifies with young people. They know he cares.

McKay, 42, a graduate of North Texas University, Denton, Texas, has been a member of the Robison Evangelistic team since 1965. "Why would God choose us for this ministry when there are countless others who are far more capable, who have much better personalities for this kind of work?" McKay believes the answer lies in the very advice he gives to the young people who often gather around him after a service, asking how they might get started on a successful career in evangelistic music. "Start where you are," he tells them, "by making yourselves available to the Lord. He'll do the rest."

pretations of the law and concern of child care facility operators over the present standards, we are setting up public sessions whereby anyone involved may testify." DPW Commissioner Raymond W. Vowell said.

Vowell emphasized that the new standards "are not set in concrete," and that public testimony is desirable for testing the practicability of the provisions. He said the standards are subject to review, and indicated that if enough interest is shown at the February hearings, more such sessions may be held across the state.

The law adopted in the last session of the legislature establishes new licensing standards, dictates accountabilities, and authorizes provisional licenses for facilities.

It applies different standards to different kinds of care, Vowell said, and the hearings will be built around these divisions:

24-Hour Child Care Facilities: February 19, at 9 a.m. and addressing all such facilities.

Day Care Facilities, February 19, at 2 p.m. (excluded from these hearings are schools, both with kindergartens and above, and kindergartens and nursery schools.)

Schools, Kindergarten and Above, February 20 at 9 a.m.

Kindergartens and Nurseries, February 18 at 9 a.m.

All the hearings will be conducted in Room 411 of the DPW offices in the John H. Reagan Building in Austin.

Floyd Stumbo of Lubbock is a member of the 15-member DPW Child Care Advisory Committee.

The new law is a legislative improvement because it clarifies and extends the provisions of its predecessor," Vowell said, "but like its predecessor it mandates that child care facilities must be licensed by the state."

To be licensed, a facility must comply with minimum standards that cover such areas as the competency and number of child care workers, activities of the children, discipline, naps and rest periods, sanitation and health, fire safety, nutrition, and adequacy of buildings, grounds and equipment.

Vowell said the standards were developed through cooperative efforts by parents, DPW staff, facility operators and other child care experts.

Under the old statute, licenses were permanent unless revoked. The new law dictates that licenses will be re-issued every two years. Unlike the previous statute, the new law provides fines for noncompliance. Anyone operating or advertising an unlicensed facility may be fined and also subject to criminal penalties.

The law authorizes provisional licenses for facilities which are moving, changing ownership or not currently operating, if such a technicality is the only reason the facility is ineligible for a regular license. Provisional licenses are valid for six months and are non-renewable.

The new legislation applies to day care and 24-hour care, as well as to special care for children with special problems.

"Day care" refers to out-of-home care of children under 14 for part of the day. Under the previous statute, all day care facilities caring for more than six children were considered day care centers.

There was one set of standards for centers of greatly varying sizes. Now there is the Group Day Care Home, which cares for seven through 12 children and has its own set of standards.

For fewer than seven children, the new law introduces the concept of registration. Previously, all these facilities were considered commercial boarding homes and were licensed accordingly.

The new law says that when care is in the caretaker's own home, the facility must be registered with DPW instead of licensed. A special set of minimum standards must be met.
The Registered Family Home is not regulated as strictly as licensed facilities, Vowell said. "More responsibility is left to the parents."

When day care for fewer than seven children is neither in the children's nor the caretaker's home, the facility is categorized as a Family Day Home and must be licensed.

The new licensing law also applies more extensively to 24-hour child care facilities. These are foster-type facilities which provide full-time residences for children.

I know Valentine Day has already past, but I think the following little verse, by Ben Burroughs, should apply to our loved ones every day of their lives.

Unceasing as the stars that shine -- unflinching as the dawn my love for you will never end -- but will go on and on -- enduring as the ocean waves -- that beat upon the shore -- as sure as there is the sun and moon -- I'll love you evermore -- because I want your tenderness -- I need your loving smile -- you make my life a joyful thing -- for you are so worthwhile -- undying as the Heaven's blue -- eternal as a prayer -- my love for you will always be -- through stormy skies or fair -- and if you feel the same as I -- our bond of love won't sever -- for like all things that God condones -- it will go on forever."

Advantages Of Glass Cookware

COLLEGE STATION -- What's the "cookware world" coming to? Cooking in glass, Mrs. Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist, says. "Cooking utensils made of a white glass-ceramic substance are designed to use in the oven, under the broiler and on top of the range -- and are pretty enough to go to the table for serving," she noted. Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. She explained that foods bake faster in glass ovenware than in shiny metal pans because the glass holds the heat instead of reflecting it. "When baking in glass, reduce the oven temperature at least 25 degrees unless the recipe states that temperature has been written for glass." Also, glass cookware has no carry-over of food flavors or odors, no discoloration, and is easy to clean because its surface is smooth and nonporous. It doesn't rust or pit from foods. "Spot cooling weakens the glass and increases the chance of breakage. To avoid this cool hot dishes before adding liquids, handle a hot dish with a dry cloth, and do not set a hot dish on a wet or cold surface," the specialist advised.

Glassware is easy to keep clean if it's greased well before having food put into it. If the dish is quite full, the top edges and handles also should be greased before putting into the oven.

SWAPPING VALENTINES . . . The Goodwill Children had their Valentine party last Friday morning. The children swapped valentines with each other. Afterwards, refreshments of punch and cookies, shaped like hearts, were served to everyone.

Sincerity is a pleasing and vanishing virtue. The happiest people are often the simplest people. Equality is something for other people to share. You can best be somebody by always being yourself.

Must File Statement If Seeking Financial Aid

AUSTIN -- Persons seeking financial aid to attend The University of Texas at Austin have been urged to meet application deadlines and file the required Family Financial Statement.

The deadline for summer 1976 financial aid is February 15 and, for the 1976-77 academic year, it is March 1.

Awards made through the UT Office of Student Financial Aid fall into two categories, explained Susan K. Groves, student development specialist. Gift aid, which includes grants and/or scholarships is the first category. The second is self-help funds which include the College Work-Study Program, Full-Time Summer Employment and long-term loans.

The amount offered as a financial aid award, plus the student's resources and, if dependent, those of his or her parents, cannot exceed the educational budget determined by the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Kitchen Project

Rose and Rosebud Future Homemakers have recently completed a Tupperware sales project; and with the proceeds, much needed storage items in tupperware were purchased for the homemaking department. A large salad bowl, gallon containers, and many small refrigerator storage containers, were selected for the Homemaking Department.

A new Centennial Cookbook is available from FHA members as well as a Canning and Freezing Book published by homemaking teachers. If you consider canning and freezing and wish to have a complete book on the subject, you may contact any member.

Gift-aid funds and College Work-Study funds are of a limited nature and priority on these funds goes to students who apply on or before the application deadline," said Ms. Groves.

She explained that persons who do not meet application priority deadlines for the 1976 summer session and the 1976-77 academic year may still apply for financial aid, provided adequate time exists for the Financial Aid Office to process the financial aid application. Aid awarded to late applicants will be within the limitation of available funds, she added.

In order to meet financial deadlines, a student entering the University for the first time may apply for financial aid before he or she is officially admitted. Awarding of aid is contingent on admission to UT Austin.

Ms. Groves emphasized that to be considered for any financial aid award at UT Austin, applicants must file a Family Financial Statement, available from high school counselors and the UT Office of Student Financial Aid.

The Family Financial Statement (FFS) must be filed with the American College Testing

Program (ACT) in Iowa City each year a student seeks financial help. As soon as the FFS is processed by ACT, a Student Financial Aid Report (SFAR) will be mailed to the applicant with an Institutional Data Sheet (IDS). On receipt of the IDS, the student must complete all the items on the sheet and send it to the UT Office of Financial Aid.

The University of Texas code number, 4240, must be included on all ACT forms.

The Parent's Confidential Statement (PCS) or Student Financial Statement (SFS) filed with the College Scholarship Service will be accepted as an alternate to the Family Financial Statement of ACT. However, students who utilize the PCS or the SFS must complete and return an IDS which will be mailed to them from the University before their application will be considered complete.

Mrs. Smith is the NHS sponsor. The group saw the play entitled "See How They Run." It was a family comedy and the antics of the characters kept everyone laughing.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:
This letter is not meant to excuse anyone for their wrong doing. Nor to try to shift the blame to anyone. But this is one time in a long list of events that this thing could have been legally stopped.

The consequences of the liberalization and unfairness of the District Judge, County (Bailey) Attorney and "milktoast" lawyers. But for a few minutes of time and a short trip to a doctor's office for facts - a string of tears and heartache could have possibly been averted. The anguish of a young couple having their week-old baby snatched from them. To say nothing of the tears and frustration of the family of the accused - which will also result in the uprooting of two precious little girls - who can't understand why mother can't come home and why "daddy" and "grandparents" are letting them be taken away to another home.

These people (District Judge, County attorney, lawyers) should really be patting each other on the back, if a moment of notoriety is what they enjoy.

I said all that to say this - In November 10, 1975, there was a paper filed on me for support "IN THE INTEREST OF AN UNBORN CHILD". We went before the District Judge who would only hear one side of this case. "Everything has two sides". Not according to this judge. The officials would not order positive proof of pregnancy. The judge says "I don't want to hear anything. Your responsibility is the support of your wife during this pregnancy." I had not shirked that responsibility nor was that my intention. But IF my payment for support was stemming from "the interest of an unborn child", I was certainly entitled to have that proof. Especially when I had two negative reports from the doctor which was completely ignored.

When our District Judges and county attorneys can try a case before it comes to the court room, our courts are in a sad state of deterioration....

Dear Editor:

My heart and emotions grumbled at the person who kidnapped the infant John Paul Norris. The media reported the tragedy properly! I praise them for giving equal time showing the joy of the baby's return. They even let God get a little credit - truly thousands prayed for the baby's safe return.

I'm sure that all feared further tragedy! Years before, people wondered if anything good could come out of Nazareth! As I traveled through Texas and noticed a statue of a mule in the town square. I often chuckled and wondered could anything good come out of a two whose name was "Muleshoe." Now we know!

The law enforcement reviewed all kinds of accolades. But I write to make known my tribute of praise to the alertness, devotion and greatness of the "Common Man!" Some did get involved! They were not paid, bribed, coerced or rewarded with anything more than "This is the right thing to do." Loving and living right in action has its own sufficient reward.

The action of those "Muleshoetics" declared the mysterious greatness of America - "She's great to the extent her People are good." What a challenge to all the rest of us to cherish the rewards that come from holding the sacred values of Loving and doing the "right thing."

The victory was a victory of the human spirit over complacency, over greed, over cynicism - Viva la Love! Viva la "ordinary citizen!" Viva la Spiritual values!

Sunday, my message is "With God's Help I Can!" I want to salute the more than 350 Singles in our church and declare a faith big enough for all! See you then - how about inviting a Single to come along with you!

Love,

Double digit doses of the bitter pill of inflation can have one curative effect. It makes all of us more aware of the importance of money.

That's, stating something pretty obvious, but also it can be extremely complex. We all need money, it is the universal medium of exchange in a free economic society. Because it is a universal medium of exchange, none of us can get along without it. Money, too, is something of a benchmark of our success in our jobs, trades or professions. Many measure how well they are doing in life by the amount of money they earn.

There are many aspects of money, as it moves through the financial and banking system, that have a substantial impact on everyone. Aspects that many of us are unaware of, or don't completely understand.

Some aspects are on the wave of the future, and are fascinating in the implications they may have on our lives. Many decisions and regulations made by state and federal agencies can have a substantial impact on how much you receive on your savings, or how much you will pay for your next financed automobile.

In the ensuing weeks, we will be discussing in this space some of the less understood, but extremely important, aspects of money and its management. Whatever the topic, when you read it here... you can BANK on it!

"The more you know about our business, the more we can help you!"

Inspectors Supervise Cattle Scabbies Dip

State livestock inspectors may now supervise the treatment of cattle affected with or exposed to psoroptic cattle scabbies, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

This, and other changes in the scabbies eradication program have been announced today by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

Under earlier regulations, only federal livestock inspectors could supervise dipping operations, APHIS officials explained. Use of both state and federal inspectors will facilitate treatment of cattle.

Other new provisions in the regulations are:
-Cattle being shipped interstate must be shipped within 10 days after they are inspected.

-When cattle are moved from infested or exposed premises, all vehicles or other means of conveyance and bills of lading must carry the notation - "cattle exposed to scabbies."

-Cattle may be certified for interstate shipment only when they have been dipped according to the directions for the permitted pesticide used.

Scabbies is caused by tiny, parasitic mites that puncture the skin of cattle and feed on body fluids released from the wounds. The mites are spread by contact between animals. They are killed by dipping in USDA-approved pesticides. Mites cause economic losses by damaging the hide of animals, and reducing food efficiency. They do not, however, affect the wholesomeness of meat.

These changes announced February 5, 1976 were first proposed October 14, 1975. Thirty days were allowed for interested persons to comment. No negative comments were received, APHIS officials said. The new regulations will become effective, upon publication in the Federal Register on February 6, 1976.

Aptitude Exam Set

LEVELLAND -- An aptitude exam for prospective vocational nurses will be given on March 1 and 15 at South Plains College.

The test is a requirement of all those who plan to enter the SPC School of Vocational Nursing. The test will cover five areas - general academic ability, spelling, natural science, judgment in practical nursing situations and personal adjustment.

There is a $1 test fee for the exam, which will be given at 12:45 p.m. on both days in the SPC Administration Building. The 27-week vocational nursing pilot program has been approved and accredited by the Texas Education Agency and the Texas State Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners. Graduates will be eligible to take the state board licensure test, qualifying them to practice as licensed vocational nurses (LVNs).

Buy Garden Seed Wisely

COLLEGE STATION -- When the time comes to plant your garden, avoid spending your hard earned money on bargain seed, cautions the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A prime rule for success in home gardening is to get the best seed you can. You may have to shell out a few extra pennies, but the added cost will pay off in better yields and better spirits at year's end. Because seed, like used cars, varies in quality from dealer to dealer, buying from a reputable seed dealer is advised. The best dealers offer treated seed to protect young seedlings from attack from soil borne diseases and insects.

Regardless of where you buy seed, be sure the percentage of germination is marked on each package or seed bin. This tells you what percentage of the seed is viable or capable of living and growing. For best stands, buy seed that is at least 80 percent viable.

Another important thing to look for when buying garden seed is "date of testing." This refers to the age of the seed and if it was carried over from last season. To be on the safe side, buy seed with a recent testing date. Of course, buying seed of recommended varieties is important for a successful garden. You may want to try new varieties on a small scale, but do not discard an old variety for something untried.

Seed left over from last year is probably safe to use, provided it was stored in a cool place in an airtight container. If you are uncertain about the age or variety of seed, throw it away and buy new seed for this year's garden.

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

There is a need to look back occasionally to get our bearings for the future. Past experiences often guide future action. What has proved good and profitable in the past will often prove to be the same in the days ahead. Serving God and our country through our churches and through civil and community service has always elevated us as a people and contributed to our image as a free and just country. We will not go wrong in adhering to these practices.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

4-H Youth Keying On Teen Programs

COLLEGE STATION -- Just what is it that makes teenagers tick? What are their needs and desires? How can teenagers become more effectively involved in community activities?

These are some of the questions that a group of Texas teenage 4-H members have been pondering for some time. Their goal is to find some workable solutions through the 4-H program already active in their particular counties.

The teen 4-Hers, who represent Orange, Waller and Bexar Counties and who have been involved in programs for teens, recently participated in a special workshop at Texas A&M University to explore additional ideas for working with teenage youth.

"The workshop was conducted as an open forum at which the teenagers spoke freely about their own county situations, problems and opportunities," pointed out Dr. Warren Mauk, 4-H and youth specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H. "The session provided for a lot of brainstorming and allowed the youth to share ideas as well as to express their personal feelings on a multitude of matters."

The workshop is a part of a special effort called the Penn-Tex Project -- a joint undertaking between Pennsylvania and Texas to determine more effective programming for teenage youth.

With 4-H and youth specialists and county Extension agents from the respective counties serving as group leaders, the youth began sorting out concerns and then airing goals and desires -- not only their own but those which they believed to be commonly held by other teenagers.

Among key concerns, according to Mauk, were the need for more community activities and facilities for youth, more guidance from public school officials, the lack of enthusiasm shown by many of today's youth, the need for better government and law enforcement, and the need for someone to confide in. The youth also expressed concern that today's society is placing too much emphasis on material things and that many communities are reluctant to make changes for the better. Drugs and the lack of understanding and communication between youth and their parents and other adults were also identified as key areas of concern.

Another key part of the workshop dealt with both positive and negative factors that influence the participation of teenagers in community programs. Such areas as activities, facilities and adult involvement were explored with regard to the affects they might have on youth involvement.

"Following this detailed analysis of their own local situation, the 4-Hers then set about evaluating ideas for increasing teenage involvement and devising plans for implementing those that seemed most promising," explained Mauk.

In addition to projects in various sports and arts and crafts, the teenagers in the three counties have also engaged in such activities as mock-marriages to learn about married life and its commitments and work-a-day projects to learn about particular careers. The youth have also organized picnics and other outings as well as educational trips to museums and planetariums.

"Our experience with these teenagers has been that they are sincere individuals who have all the common wants and desires but who also have a genuine concern about the community and the country in which they live," pointed out Mauk. "They want to contribute to society, to improve their livelihood as well as the livelihood of others around them. They place a high value on openness, understanding and high morals in adults and feel a definite need for more guidance and supervision."

According to Mauk, the teenagers who participated in the workshop are now putting into practice many of the ideas they discussed. They will gather at Texas A&M again in March to review their programs and to take a further look at how to more effectively implement programs for teenagers like themselves.

Ag Credit Improving In Texas

COLLEGE STATION -- Texas farmers and ranchers may find money more available and cheaper this year, believes Dr. Wayne Hayenga, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In a recent survey of bankers, Hayenga found that interest rates have gone down in the past six months and that many lenders are actively soliciting new farm and ranch loan accounts.

"The survey shows that Texas agricultural finance conditions are good," says Hayenga. "Lending institutions are lending more money to more farmers and ranchers."

In the past six months the interest rate on feeder cattle loans was down from 9.32 percent to 9.17 percent, while interest on real estate loans dropped from 8.63 percent to 8.58 percent and interest on operating loans decreased from 9.13 percent to 9.01 percent.

Almost 70 percent of the lenders surveyed expect interest on long-term real estate loan rates to stay the same over the next six months and 62 percent expect short-term interest rates to remain stable also.

Almost 30 percent of the lenders are serving more borrowers and more than 50 percent report an increase in average loan size. Sixty-five percent are actively soliciting new farm and ranch loan accounts and only seven percent expect a shortage of funds in the next six months, points out the Texas A&M University System economist.

"Demand for short-term loans is expected to increase in the future while long-term loans demands should increase," says Hayenga. Thirty-two percent of the lenders expect to issue fewer long-term loans in the future while 44 percent expect an increased demand for short-term loans.

"The survey also shows that fewer borrowers are contracting part of their crops," says the economist. Lenders report that only a third of their borrowers contracted a portion of their crops as compared with almost 40 percent who contracted crops last May.

Sixty-five percent of the lenders prefer farmers to contract one-third or one-half of their crops while six percent require marginal borrowers to contract part of their crop.

"Most lenders," says Hayenga, "expect farm and ranch earnings to stay about the same in the coming months. However, they expect spending to increase."

Garden Requires Planning

COLLEGE STATION -- The success of a vegetable garden depends largely on the amount of planning that goes into it, says Sam Cotner, a horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. And the time to start planning is now.

"The first step in planning a garden," says Cotner, "is selecting a site. Locate the garden in an area that gets plenty of sun and has loose, fertile and well-drained soil. Try to avoid poorly drained areas, rocky ledges or soil infested with Johnsongrass and other weeds."

The closer the garden is to the house, the easier it will be to check regularly and to bring in vegetables," points out Cotner. "Regular checking is important to detect insects and disease problems and to determine the need for watering. It's also handy to have the garden located near a water outlet."

The Texas A&M University System horticulturist recommends a garden size of about 20 feet by 20 feet for an average size family.

"After deciding on the garden's location, select the vegetables you want to plant. The only things limiting the type of vegetables you plant are space and soil conditions," notes Cotner.

The next step in garden planning is to make a diagram of the garden and prepare an information chart. The chart should tell such things as the kinds of vegetables to be planted, the distance between rows and plants, the amount of fertilizer to be used, the time of planting and any other information that might be helpful.

"Set up goals and deadlines and stick to them," advises Cotner.

Detailed gardening information is available at any county Extension office to help you "Grow your own groceries."

Round Hay Bales Pose Safety Problem

COLLEGE STATION -- One of the fastest moving trends in farm mechanization is the swing to large round bales for hay handling. Dr. Gary S. Nelson of the Texas Agricultural Extension believes that most new ideas bring new challenges for accident prevention, and 1,000 pound hay bales are no exception.

"Some accidents have resulted from operators being drawn into the baling machine while in operation, but the more frequent accidents involve handling the bale after its ejection to the ground," points out Nelson, an agricultural safety engineer.

He cites recent accidents involving three fatalities and one serious injury that exemplify two serious types of handling hazards involving the large round hay bales. "Two of the accidents were overturns while bales were being transported in modified front-end loaders. The other two occurred when bales rolled down the arms of elevated loaders onto the operators on their tractors."

Many overturns of loader-equipped tractors have been blamed on over-loading the bucket. This transfers weight from the rear to the front axle, making it easy for the tractor chassis to rotate sideways if the rear tire hits an object or drops into a hole. To compensate for this problem, Nelson advises operators to ballast the rear of their tractors with enough weight to keep the rear wheels on the ground.

"Operators must recognize that tractor stability changes when a big bale is being lifted as opposed to lifting the same weight of gravel," explains Nelson. "With big bales, the center of gravity of the lift is higher and more forward -- like sliding back on a children's teeter-totter. The same weight that has been handled with ease by the conventional loader can now seriously over-balance the tractor."

The engineer recommends that operators transport the large bales with equipment which utilizes the rear attachment points of a tractor. Special low clearance trailers that pick up bales directly from the ground also reduce risk.

"Even with a well-balanced tractor, caution is still needed in handling these heavy, bulky loads," emphasizes the Texas A&M University System engineer. "The tractor must be operated on nearly level ground. On uneven ground, transport the bale in the baler until it can be dropped at a safe location. Never release a bale on a slope where it can roll its way into trouble."

When transporting a bale with a tractor, keep the load close to the ground, cautions Nelson. Avoid the temptation to improve visibility by raising the load high enough to see under the bale. Also recognize that at even less than maximum height, a tractor loader becomes especially susceptible to upset while turning, even on level ground. "So keep the load low and the speed slow."

The engineer also calls for extra caution when more than one person is around the baler. The rear gates can be hydraulically opened or closed by the operator before a bystander can react to get out of the way. "If you are the bystander, stay clear. If you are the operator, make sure that everyone is clear before activating any controls."

"Any machine designed to gather in bulky material such as hay and compress it to firm density can do the same to unwary human operators. Balers carry warnings to shut off all power before servicing or clearing the machine. This warning is critical," emphasizes Nelson. "Other common sense safety pointers such as leaving guards in place and keeping hands out of moving parts apply just as they do with other machines."

YMCA Holds Dog Class

The Clovis YMCA is sponsoring a Dog Obedience Training Class which began Tuesday, February 17, 1976 at 6:45 p.m. The course will be for eight weeks and will meet from 6:45 to 8:30 p.m.

Lonnie Leslie is instructing the course and will teach heeling with about turns, sitting, sit-station, come and go to heel position, coming when called, lying down, down stay, sitting from a down position, standing at heel, stand-stay, and stand for examination.

Leslie is owner and trainer of the top Doberman Obedience dog in New Mexico, A'Dobie Dawn CDX. "Dobie" was the highest scoring Doberman for the past two years at the Rio Grande Kennel Club show in Albuquerque. This Doberman has won five first places and many other trophies at AKC shows.

A minimum of ten participants must be enrolled to initiate the courses. All dogs must be six months or older and have their shots. The fees are $18 for YMCA members and $20 for non-members.

For Rent

You're doing without a Zimmatic center pivot. Saving your hard-earned capital for other improvements. Don't want to borrow right now. But it's costing you money every year you wait. Two ways. First, you're losing the extra crop production you get under irrigation. Second, inflation is at work. Boosting prices, dropping the value of your dollars.

Why not rent a Zimmatic under our new lease plan? Let the system pay for itself and put some extra money in the bank for you at the same time. Our rates are reasonable. You can include freight, installation, pump... other "above ground" items in one flexible package, tailored to your needs. Why wait to irrigate? It's just costing you money. Greenbug Resistant Sorghums Available

COLLEGE STATION -- Seed of sorghum hybrids that resists the attack of menacing greenbugs are now available to producers in Texas, and other sorghum producing states.

"Greenbugs are small green aphids that have been a thorn in the side of Texas sorghum growers for the past eight years," points out Dr. Mike McWhorter, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Not only have the tiny pests reduced sorghum yields substantially, but some have developed a resistance to common insecticides that provided successful control in previous years."

The greenbug threat to the sorghum industry brought about a diligent search by scientist of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to find plant sources that would ward off greenbug attacks. The greenbug resistant factor was uncovered in poor agronomic types and used to develop greenbug resistant parental lines of acceptable agronomic quality.

"Enough seed of the new hybrids should be available from commercial companies to plant four to five million acres of sorghum this year in Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma," notes McWhorter.

"Result demonstrations by the Extension Service in some 57 counties will play a major role in providing educational information about the new greenbug resistant hybrids to producers," adds the Texas A&M University System entomologist. "These demonstrations will be established in all major sorghum producing areas of Texas. They will feature a number of the hybrids normally grown in the particular areas, with the aim being to demonstrate the concept of greenbug resistance. Field days are planned to highlight the demonstration findings."

Taking a further look at the newfound greenbug resistant trait in these sorghums, McWhorter explains that the word "resistant" is a general term applied to a plant that is inherently damaged or infested less than another hybrid when grown under the same conditions. "Greenbugs will likely infest these new sorghums but will inflict less damage as long as other environmental factors are kept intact. In other words, under normal environmental conditions, greenbugs will not reduce yields of these new sorghums. This allows for the fact that beneficial insects play an important role in the overall performance of greenbug resistant hybrids. If insecticides are applied, then the environmental conditions will be changed and the advantages of resistant sorghums may be jeopardized."

McWhorter emphasizes the point about the new hybrids tolerating greenbug attacks simply to alert producers to the fact that there may be greenbugs on plants from this new seed if, in fact, there are greenbugs in the vicinity. "It's important that producers realize that greenbugs will not back away from these new resistant hybrids. They may still infest the plants but the plants will resist their attack."

The resistance mechanisms bred into the new hybrids are generally threefold: (1) tolerance -- the plants will tolerate greenbug attacks, (2) antibiotics -- the plants affect the life cycle of greenbugs that feed on them, causing certain abnormalities, reducing reproduction and increasing mortality, and (3) non-preference -- the greenbugs simply do not like these new sorghums as well as those without the resistant trait.

According to McWhorter, the new greenbug resistant sorghums can have a big economic as well as ecological impact on Texas agriculture. "Sorghum yields have been significantly reduced by greenbugs in certain areas, and these new hybrids should help reduce such losses. Just as important is the fact that the new hybrids will hopefully reduce the widespread use of insecticides to control greenbugs. This should reduce production costs as well as allow beneficial insects to thrive and to function as nature has intended."

Greenbug resistant sorghums are a tremendous breakthrough and fit well in an overall pest management program. It is now up to producers themselves to make them work.

Cut Imports Or Explain Reason Why

AUSTIN -- The head of the state's largest livestock organization says foreign beef imports will continue breaking the back of the Texas cattle industry as long as President Ford refuses to use remedies available to him.

T.A. Cunningham of Goliad, president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, called on the President and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "to cut imports or explain why they let the beef industry go broke."

The 100,000-member Cattlemen's Association, largest group of its kind in both Texas and the nation, was organized in 1974 when it became evident that American agriculture was becoming a pawn in U.S. foreign policy.

Cunningham pointed out that a 1964 meat import law gives the President authority to reduce imports at any time without waiting for the law's import quotas to go into effect automatically when imports reach a maximum allowable of 1.1 billion pounds a year.

Cunningham said that imports continued to increase last year while the President and Butz "sat back and waited on voluntary restraints which didn't work and State Department agreements which didn't materialize."

"I say it's time to take the State Department out of family farming and ranching," the I.C.A. president said.
