Humphrey Bows Out As Candidate

... CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), a Roman Catholic, shattered the religious issue as a significant factor in the 1960 campaign today by trouncing Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) in the West Virginia Democratic presidential primary. Humphrey immediately bowed out as a candidate for the White House.

The convincing victory increased the 42-year-old Kennedy's already long lead in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and may have clinched the prize for him.

The West Virginia primary vote does not bind the state's 25 vote delegation to the Democratic National Convention. Unpledged delegates were elected separately in the same primary. Kennedy's victory in fact may have greater impact outside than inside West Virginia as the returns are read by Democratic leaders who have been uneasy about the nomination of a Catholic for the presidency.

Humphrey, a Congregationalist, congratulated his rival for "a significant and clear cut victory," and announced he was no longer a candidate for the nomination and said he would seek reelection next fall to the Senate from his home state of Minnesota. The first was his second in a two-man contest with the Massachusetts senator, coming five weeks after Kennedy defeated him in the Wisconsin primary.

With incomplete returns reported from 54 of the state's 55 counties, Kennedy led in 48, some of them with virtually no Catholic population. Of 10 counties listed as having no Catholics, Humphrey led in only three.

Although he had been conceded gains in the final days of the campaign, Kennedy had been the underdog — in part because of the religious issue and in part because supporters of other Democratic presidential possibilities, not in the West Virginia primary, were prepared to vote for Humphrey. Kennedy thus could interpret his victory as a triumph over the entire field of Democratic contenders.

With obvious reference to advance appraisals suggesting that religious prejudice would hurt him here, Kennedy said in a statement: "Despite all that has been written about the people here, after traveling to every corner of the state and meeting you, I had no doubt that you would cast your vote on the basis of the issues and not on any religious prejudices."

"West Virginia has tonight given me a major boost toward the Democratic nomination for president."

Later at an early morning news conference Kennedy, obviously referring to his faith, said "other issues" than the real ones had been raised but he thought "they were buried in the soil of West Virginia. He also asserted that his victory was "a great surprise" to him.

Only last Saturday, he was saying that he would be lucky to get 40 per cent of the vote. Humphrey had made no extravagant claims but had said that he expected to win.

But when the returns began to roll in, Kennedy seized the lead and held it in all types of communities — the coal camps in the south, the farm country and the cities.

Reds Threaten Drastic Action Next Time

Security Of U.S. May Be Involved

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia warned today that if any more U.S. planes are detected over Soviet territory the Kremlin will take "more drastic action" perhaps involving the security of the United States.

A radio Moscow broadcast, repeated the shooting down of an American reconnaissance plane over Russia on May Day.

"The Soviet Union, like any self-respecting country, is not going to stand by and let this kind of thing happen again," the broadcast said.

"If these American flights over our territory do not cease, the Soviet Union will be compelled to take more drastic action and the security of the United States will be in jeopardy."

Today's edition of the Communist organ Pravda assailed Secretary of State Christian A. Herter for his declaration that U.S. reconnaissance flights will continue until satisfactory arrangements for the prevention of surprise attack can be made.

The government organ Ivestia charged that U.S. bases in Turkey, Norway and Pakistan are being used as active springboards for armed provocations and diversionary escapades.

Ivestia said foreign governments which join the United States in "aggressive alignments" should realize what they are doing.

Meanwhile, Soviet airmen were rushing preparations for a press showing at which the wreckage of the American U-2 reconnaissance plane — and perhaps its pilot — would be put on display.

Informed sources said Russian and foreign newsmen would be invited to Chess Hall in Gorki Park — probably later today — to see the wreckage. It was not immediately certain whether Francis G. Powers, 30-year-old pilot of the U-2, also would be present.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev had indicated earlier that Powers would appear at a news conference here soon.

Rogers To Speak At Legion Meeting

AMARILLO—Congressman Walter Rogers of Pampa and Marshall Formby of Plainview, will be the principal speakers at the opening banquet of the American Legion's annual spring convention at the Herring Hotel here, Saturday and Sunday.

Registration will open Saturday at 8:30 a.m. in the lobby of the hotel.

Rogers and Formby will speak that night at the banquet in the Crystal Ball Room.

Ike To Make Statement On U.S. Spy Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower may make his first public statement today about the shooting down of an American spy plane in Russia and its international implications.

The President scheduled a news conference. The fact that he decided to go ahead with the question-and-answer session indicated he was willing to talk about the spy plane incident.

Reporters were loaded with questions and the subject appeared certain to dominate the press conference unless Eisenhower himself cut off the discussion of it.

Among the more likely questions: "What effect will the incident have on the Big Four summit conference, which opens Monday in Paris?"

"Will the President go ahead with his scheduled visit to Russia next month in view of the Soviet tirades against this country?"

"How far will the United States go to back up its pledge to defend allied nations who allow American reconnaissance planes to use their airfields?"

"Just how extensive are American espionage activities behind the Iron Curtain and how much control does the President have over them?"

"Does the President have information indicating the U.S. plane may have landed because of mechanical difficulties instead of being shot down by a super-rocket as Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev claims?"

"What efforts will be made to aid the American pilot, Francis G. Powers, who the Russians said will be 'brought to account'—presumably to trial on espionage charges?"

The United States warned Russia Tuesday that it would use any force necessary to defend its allies if they become targets of a Russian attack for permitting U.S. intelligence flights from their bases.

Khrushchev has threatened to launch rocket attacks on any allied bases in Europe and Asia that are used for spy flights. He aimed his threat at Pakistan, Norway and Turkey, which the Russians said were involved in Powers flight plans.

Accused Wants To Testify College Boy On Trial For Murder

COLUMBUS, Miss. (UPI) — A tall and handsome college boy, whose trial for murder has attracted an audience of pony-tailed coeds, offered today to take the witness stand and account for 12 minutes of his time on the morning his beautiful, blonde neighbor was garrotted with a coat hanger.

But defense attorneys said they were undecided about calling Jon Mattox, 20, to testify in his own behalf. News of the defense testimony yet has indicated where Mattox was at 10:27 a. m. on the Sunday morning of Jan. 31 when Mrs. Gene Cain Tate, 31, was alone at her fashionable home.

Mrs. Tate's body was found at 10:35 a. m. in the garage. She had been strangled with a scarf and a coat hanger. The state contends that Mattox, a physics major at Mississippi State University, killed her for breaking off an alleged backyard romance of two years standing.

Mrs. James Mattox, the defendant's mother, testified Tuesday her son was standing on the steps of their home at 10:39 a. m. when she returned from Sunday school. She said he "appeared normal—the same old Jon."

Mrs. Tate's mother had left her daughter at 10:27 a. m. The victim's husband and three sons were at Sunday school. When her body was found, doctors said she had been dead at least 10 minutes.

The trial took on a collegiate atmosphere as defense attorney Jesse Stennis called several of Mattox' classmates to the stand as character witnesses. He also questioned them closely about the testimony of coed Sarah Grayson, 19, who said Mattox told her he planned to kill his married paragon with a coat hanger because "she has done me wrong."

Next came the ambush-wounding of Theodore (Pap) Parker and the wounding of his wife, Ethel. These events touched off at least three killings.

But the exact cause of the battle between the Parker and Harris clans is not known. The code of the hills — a dead silence — was cloaked the mystery.

An underlying cause of the trouble is a tendency on the part of the mountain people to make their own laws and settle differences with guns rather than words.

In an effort to explain the feud, concept some cite the ambush of Pap Parker. More than 10 years the critically wounded man told officers this story:

Commission Meeting Is Postponed

The city commission will hold its weekly meeting at 3 p.m. Thursday in City Hall.

The meeting was supposed to be held Tuesday, but was postponed because Commissioners Leon Holmes and Jack Vaughn had to attend a service station owners' convention at Austin.

The commission will approve monthly bills for both the city and the library, and have the third reading of ordinance No. 539.

This ordinance permits pay-TV showing of movies on television sets in Pampa.

Officials said doubts over Khrushchev's story began with two points:

—Skepticism that the pilot, Francis G. Powers, parachuted from 65,000 feet, the altitude Khrushchev gave. Although authorities said a jump from that height was feasible, they seemed to have reason to believe Powers bailed out at a much lower altitude. The Russians themselves first said the plane was only five miles up.

The "fragile" construction of his plane, the Lockheed U-2. Officials said the plane is "almost a glider" and would have been completely demolished by a rocket blast. If the Russians hit the plane, it is believed it more likely was a regular anti-aircraft shell that might have disabled the U-2.

Officials said both the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the State Department acted in "good faith" when they first said that the plane was on a weather mission from Turkey and might have crossed the Soviet frontier accidentally because of oxygen equipment failure.

Sources said Secretary of State Christian A. Herter was given to believe this version was correct. They noted that the White House, while issuing no statement itself, authorized the State Department and NASA to issue their statements.

In Tennessee Hills Bloody Feud Is Revived

DAISY, Tenn. (UPI) — Rifle shots are being heard again on Daisy Mountain, and some officers fear the bloody Harris-Parker feud that claimed four lives a decade ago is being revived.

Charlie Harden, 46, and his wife were driving near the railroad depot here Sunday night when a barrage of bullets ripped into their car. Harden was wounded in the left arm.

Mrs. Harden, whose first husband, Raymond Bell, was killed in the feud in 1950, is a member of the Parker family. The Harden home was destroyed by fire several weeks ago.

The bitter feud of Daisy Mountain, 18 miles north of Chattanooga, may have started with the murder in 1948 of 81-year-old John Landgraf who had retired to his cabin on the mountain with a mail carrier's pension.

Next came the ambush-wounding of Theodore (Pap) Parker and the wounding of his wife, Ethel. These events touched off at least three killings.

But the exact cause of the battle between the Parker and Harris clans is not known. The code of the hills — a dead silence — was cloaked the mystery.

In an effort to explain the feud, concept some cite the ambush of Pap Parker. More than 10 years the critically wounded man told officers this story:

"I guessed it," Mrs. Rebecca Blaede, wife of electronics technician Nathan Blaede, of Clearbrook, Minn., said jubilantly Tuesday night. "We all talked about where they might be, and I said we hadn't heard for so long that I bet they were sailing around the world."

A gold-braid ceremony was scheduled today at State Pier in the Thames River to honor the ship's company including six technicians who made the trip on the same route Ferdinand Magellan's expedition took 440 years ago.

The crew was awarded a Presidential Citation today. Tuesday Beach, who formerly was President Eisenhower's naval aide, was decorated by his boss at the White House with the Legion of Merit. Then the skipper was returned in a helicopter to the Triton for the last leg of the voyage to the big Atlantic sub base here.

The Triton stayed submerged except for two "broachings" — partial surfacings — once to transfer a critically ill radarman to the cruiser Macon off Uruguay and once off Cadiz, Spain, in a tribute to Magellan who sailed from that port on Aug. 10, 1519.

Magellan's voyage took three years and 27 days. Of the five ships that sailed under his command, only one returned to Spain on Sept. 6, 1522.

Chester Radamir John R. Poole, of Colchester, Conn., who was taken ill during the trip, was returned to the Triton by small boat today so he could come home with his shipmates.

Triton Crew Gets Heroes' Welcome

By JACK V. FOX United Press International

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI) — A proud crew of 177 underways Magellans came home today in the nuclear submarine Triton to a heroes' welcome and to 130 wives who finally found out where their husbands have been the last 83 days.

The men of the Triton had been around the world submerged on a 31,500-mile voyage of tremendous strategic importance, a feat coming at a time when a boost to American prestige and morale was most welcome.

All but 47 of the Triton's crew are married and their wives had been without word since the world's largest sub sailed Feb. 16. Not until Capt. Edward L. Beach opened his sealed orders at sea did the crew know their historic mission.

"I guessed it," Mrs. Rebecca Blaede, wife of electronics technician Nathan Blaede, of Clearbrook, Minn., said jubilantly Tuesday night. "We all talked about where they might be, and I said we hadn't heard for so long that I bet they were sailing around the world."

'If I Had My Gun' Earl Long Slugs UPI Newsmen

Editors Note: One of Earl K. Long's first acts as a private citizen, after yielding the office of governor of Louisiana to Jimmie Davis Tuesday, was to poke UPI newsmen Ken Sinner in the jaw.

By KEN SINNER United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — I had been told that I would find Louisiana politics exciting, but I didn't expect to be slugged by Gov. Earl K. Long my second day on the job in Baton Rouge.

I chose a bad time to introduce myself to Long. It was only minutes after he had watched Jimmie Davis' inauguration, ending Long's term as governor.

He was talking to some friends on the front porch of his apartment near the Capitol.

He took one glaring look at me standing with an inaugural "press" card pinned to my coat and stopped his conversation today.

leap from his chair and hit me with his fist.

I'm sure he swung as hard as he could, but he's 64 and didn't do much damage to my jaw. The blow, as well as the surprise, spun me around against the porch railing. Long grabbed me by the shoulders as if he wanted to take another poke.

But his friends pulled him off and pinned his arms. One of them told me quickly that Long was upset and that I'd better go. I was glad to oblige.

Long screamed obscenities throughout the excitement, cursing me for invading the privacy of his home, although I had gotten no further than his front porch when he started swinging.

"I was down the stairs in the courtyard, with Long still bellowing vile oaths, when he mentioned 'If I had my gun...' That remark put wings on my heels.

"I'd still like to meet him some day."

'A Fantastic Plot'

By DONALD MAY United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. intelligence officials have pieced together considerable evidence that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's story of shooting down an American spy plane is not completely correct.

Official sources said the administration is coming more and more to the conclusion that the plane was not downed with one shot of a "remarkable rocket" from 65,000 feet as Khrushchev claimed, but probably lost altitude through mechanical failure and came within range of lower level anti-aircraft guns.

These sources said the most probable theory is that a fragment of anti-aircraft fire damaged the plane and the pilot either landed or parachuted from a lower level.

Then, officials speculated, Khrushchev concocted a "fantastic plot" to trap the United States into denying the reconnaissance mission by implying with the rocket story that the pilot was dead.

The explanation fitted in with one given by Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.), one of a group of congressional leaders briefed on the plane incident by administration officials.

Cannon said the plane apparently "developed some unforeseen and unavoidable mechanical or physiological defect."

Negroes Win In Nashville

By United Press International

An important round in the fight to lower segregation barriers in the South was won Tuesday when Negroes ate with whites at six lunch counters in Nashville, Tenn. stores.

The agreement to begin gradual integration of lunch counters at dime, drug and department stores in Nashville came after a month of secret negotiations between merchants and Negro leaders.

During the past three months, more than 150 persons were arrested in connection with anti-segregation demonstrations in the Tennessee capital. Merchants felt newspaper and radio and television publicity about the demonstrations was hurting sales and producing a racial stalemate, so they agreed for and won a news blackout on the negotiations.

In return for the gradual integration plan, Negro leaders agreed not to attempt to eat in department store dining rooms or make any integration attempts during the Saturday shopping rush until the plan has worked for some time.

Despite the victory in Nashville, Negroes faced mounting opposition in Alabama where Gov. John Patterson vowed that he will resist federal agents who seek to inspect Wilcox County voting records.

Patterson said Atty. Gen. William Rogers' charges of discrimination against Negro voters in Wilcox were "deliberate fabrications." He maintained that public officials of Alabama "treat all citizens fair and impartially."

Rogers said FBI agents would ask voting registrars in Wilcox County to open their records to inspection under the powers granted in the new civil rights law.

With obvious reference to advance appraisals suggesting that religious prejudice would hurt him here, Kennedy said in a statement: "Despite all that has been written about the people here, after traveling to every corner of the state and meeting you, I had no doubt that you would cast your vote on the basis of the issues and not on any religious prejudices."

Brick Pile Falls On Five

FERRIS, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 150 tons of bricks on the inside of a kiln at a Ferris brick company toppled on five workmen Tuesday, killing one of them.

All five of the Negro workmen had to be pulled out of the rubble. Ben Stewart, 34, Ferris, was killed instantly. The other four men—Willie Dell Richard, Charlie Jackson and Claude Ward, all of Ferris, and Fred Brown, Corsicana—were cut and bruised, but are expected to recover.

T. C. Hooker, vice president and general manager of the company, said about one-third of the wall, or about 75,000 of the four-pound bricks, fell.

Hooker couldn't give an immediate cause for the accident, but said the heat from the kiln might have caused the wall to expand and buckle.

Reds Say Khrush Set To Negotiate

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet diplomatic sources said today Premier Nikita Khrushchev is prepared to negotiate "on a businesslike basis" at this month's Paris summit meeting despite the recent plane incident.

They indicated, however, there has been no change in Khrushchev's stand on major issues such as the Berlin problem — on which he stands firm in his threat to conclude a separate peace with Communist East Germany unless the Western Allies agree to other arrangements on his terms.

Killeen Group Eyes Coronado Inn Design

Ten business and professional men from Killeen were here today, studying the design and operation of the new Coronado Inn. The group met with Stu Kines and George Scott at a breakfast at the hotel this morning. The central Texas city recently completed a campaign for a new community hotel, similar to Coronado Inn. Construction is scheduled to begin in the near future. Prior to today the group had inspected hotels in Nacogdoches and Borger. Those in the group were Ted Connell, A. J. Hall, K. L. Kirkpatrick, Cleo W. Bay, A. H. Curtis, R. J. Smith, Paul Goode, A. B. Craig, F. W. Baumann Jr. and Ben Norman.

Ferguson Service Set Wednesday

Funeral services for Walter Elmer Ferguson of Miami will be held 2 p. m. Friday in First Christian Church, Miami. Mr. Ferguson died 1 a. m. this morning in Highland General Hospital. He was born Dec. 23, 1869 in New York City. As a young man, he was employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in New York City and Chicago. He moved from Chicago to Amarillo, where he met and married Leuna White in 1914. From Amarillo, he moved to Higgins, where he operated a restaurant for 10 years. In 1926, he moved to Miami and continued in the restaurant business. He had resided there until his death. He was a member of First Christian Church, Miami. Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. James P. Lowery of Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Tom Shower of Concord, Calif.; three sons, C. W. Ferguson of Riverton, Wyo., Fred and Charlie Ferguson, both of Pampa; 12 grandchildren. Interment will be in Higgins Cemetery.

Shultz Wins Harvester's Sousa Award

Gary Shultz, a senior band member at Pampa High School, won the John Phillip Sousa award and received a $100 check at the annual band banquet in the school cafeteria Tuesday night. The Harvester Band is one of the eight high school bands invited to play at the 14th annual National Band Clinic at Chicago in December. In honor of this a hand-painted mural of the Chicago skyline was draped behind the speaker's table. A setting of dolls, dressed in green uniforms and representing each band member, served as decorations. Rev. Leon Hill, minister of the Amarillo Baptist Church, was guest speaker at the fete. Mayor Ed Myatt served as master of ceremonies. Dinner music was provided by Maxine Milliron, and Joe Whitten, music director of the First Baptist Church, presented vocal selections. A special musical program was presented by Bill Austin of the Baldwin Music Co.

Washington, D.C. Full Of Theater Arts Practitioners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the field of drama, the nation's capital has only two legitimate theaters and, as far as the police and I know, no illegitimate ones. Compared with some other cities, this might appear to be a meager display of the performing arts, but it does not necessarily mean that we have a dearth of dramatics. We have other forms of theatrical activities that are not found elsewhere. For instance, we have Everett McKinley Dirksen. As the only practicing U.S. senator with cello strings for vocal cords, Dirksen is honored by concert lovers because his speeches sound like chamber music. On occasions when, in the course of his duties as Senate Republican leader, he is called upon to lament over some Democratic misdemeanor, his tonal quality has been favorably compared to the Budapest String Quartet. I think, however, that Dirksen's true forte lies in theater. This is especially true on certain Tuesday days when he gives two matinee performances that can almost invariably be classified as show-stoppers. If the President is in residence on Tuesday, the Illinois senator joins a troupe of GOP congressional leaders that calls at the White House. Afterwards, he and Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.), his counterpart in the House, get up a tandem act, otherwise known as a briefing, for the benefit of newsmen. At least it is supposed to be a tandem act. As often as not, Dirksen and Halleck create the illusion that they are peddling in different directions. Dirksen then returns to the Senate, where he is cleared, conducts another press briefing among the left-overs. It is on these occasions, with no Halleck around to upstage him, that Dirksen's star really shines. Gesticulating over a butter plate, possibly waving a soup spoon for emphasis, Dirksen is in his element. The table cloth is his curtain, the bread baskets his footlights. For 15 minutes or so, he soliloquizes about the legislative program while reporters take notes amid the cake crumbs. Those by the mellifluous outpouring then who have not been mesmerized by the mellifluous outpouring then ask questions. How can Dirksen say that the President has made a "good case" for a bill when Congress obviously has no intention of passing it? Read The News Classified Ads.

New Mexico's Dems OK Solons

By JACK WILKINSON United Press International ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — New Mexico Democrats stamped a thumping vote of approval on their congressmen and administration-backed candidates in primary balloting Tuesday and set the stage for a November rematch between Gov. John Burroughs and Edwin L. Mechem. Mechem as expected swept easily to the Republican nomination and prepared another bid for a fourth term. Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, considered an odds-on-choice to win nomination to a third term, polled even more than expected, drawing 70,713 votes with returns two-thirds complete. Reps. Thomas G. Morris and Joseph M. Montoya also scored heavier victories than anticipated. Montoya beat off an early challenge in returns by T. E. (Gene) Lusk and defeated the State Senate leader handily. Morris, showing against Calvin Horn, was perhaps the real surprise of the primary—Morris broke fast and had built up a 20,000 vote lead by this morning. Bursey conceded to Burroughs after the two transplanted Texans had fought a nip-and-tuck battle. It was the second straight primary in which Bursey lost to Burroughs, with the victory margin this time likely to be considerably less than the 13,000 votes of 1958. The Republican "big five" team swept the field. Mechem polled about 41 over Paul Robinson. Tom Bolack won the lieutenant governor nomination by an equal margin and William F. Colwell was chosen to face Anderson with a near 2-1 edge over Joe Rendon. U.S. representative candidates Edward V. Balcolm and John D. Robb were uncontested. One important sidelight of the primary picture was the Democrats' apparent disarray for personal endorsements by the state's senior senator, Dennis Chavez. Chavez had urged victory for Lusk over Montoya and Bursey over Burroughs. Chavez long has been a kingmaker in New Mexico, especially the northern half.

Failure to prosecute has been a pattern in the feud throughout the years, and only a few convictions were obtained in the numerous shootings. The unwritten law almost as old as these hills which calls for an eye for an eye could be invoked again. If it is, fresh blood may be spilled on Daisy Mountain.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*) — discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name "Preparation H." WASHINGTON (UPI)—There are Ten Commandments and an eleventh.

The eleventh commandment is—don't get caught.

Caught is a word which scarcely conveys the meaning of what happened to the U.S. government when an American spy was somewhat brought down and taken away from an airplane miles above the Soviet Union.

"Entrapped would be a better word for it. Nikita S. Khrushchev baited his trap skillfully. An American airplane had been spotted and shot down. It had scientific equipment and was far inside the borders of the U.S.S.R. The U.S. government gulped the bait like a hungry trout.

Our side said the airplane was a stray. Its pilot probably incapacitated by failure of his oxygen equipment, its mission weather and atmosphere observations. Nothing more.

The trap closed instantly with K's evidence of espionage. A talkative pilot, his equipment, what purported to be his pictures of Soviet military installations.

The evidence was sufficient to compel the United States to change its story. And there went another commandment because the first explanation of pilot Francis G. Powers' mission surely shattered that one about bearing false witness.

What happens now is anybody's guess. There will be some questions asked. Why, for example, was a married man accepted for such duty as was assigned to pilot Powers? Was the pilot, in truth, under orders to take his own life if that were the only alternative to seizure by the cold war enemy?

If so, why did he not do so? Was the ejection seat of his airplane triggered to a bomb which would have destroyed the airplane?

he had pressed the ejection button. If so, why did the pilot fail to make use of that device? Who chose Powers for his mission? Who ordered Powers to take off?

In this political capital the incident is examined in relation to its impact on presidential politics.

If the incident maintains its proportions as the most incredible official goof since Pearl Harbor, the impact will be considerable. Politicians pray for an exploitable issue. It looks like the Democrats have one.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon will suffer for that, if suffering there is to be. Peace and prosperity are the issues upon which the Republicans are maneuvering to campaign in this election year.

Validity of the peace issue will depend very much in next autumn's presidential campaign on the intensity and temperature of the cold war.

The summit conference and Eisenhower's scheduled visit to the Soviet Union will determine largely how readily U.S. voters will accept the campaign argument that it is to the Republican Party that the nation must look for a guarantee of peace.

Economist Shivers At U.S. Stockpile

NEW YORK (UPI)—An economist looks at our $6 billion accumulation of assorted materials—our strategic stockpile—and concludes in effect that we have a bear by the tail and can't let go.

He says it wouldn't be worth anything in a nuclear war. But, he adds, a mere mention of disposal sends shivers through the markets.

Bruce Netichert, holds it is too much to expect that anything will be done "until the realities of the nuclear age are recognized" with out equivocation in our strategic and political thinking.

"In the meantime, the strategic stockpile remains a costly (maintenance and administration cost $19 million a year) anacronism and a potentially dangerous investment of economic policy."

Netichert, economist with Resources for the Future, Inc., writes his views in the current issue of Challenge magazine, published by the Institute of Economic Affairs of New York University.

The strategic and critical materials stockpiling act of 1948 was passed as a result of World War II experience which demonstrated the strategic vulnerability of this country in the area of raw material supply, Netichert points out.

In the course of operating the stockpile the goals were surpassed, and eventually the pile was forced to accept vast amounts of metals delivered under the defense production act.

Foreign purchases of minerals often were paid for in barter with surplus farm products. But minerals production opposed this method. Also the sale was used as a price support plan and this, says Netichert, was a glaring mistake.

As originally set up the stockpile was designed to hold a quantity sufficient to meet a five-year deficit. Later this was cut to three years but not less than six months.

This three-year criterion is seen as a belated recognition of the new age of nuclear possibilities.

"It is difficult to avoid the conclusion," says Netichert, "that the stockpile as now constituted is simply unnecessary in a nuclear war."

"If anything is to be stockpiled, it should be finished products that would be so desperately needed for rehabilitation and reconstruction."

Prisoners Threaten Hunger Strike

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—Fifty-two white persons detained under South Africa's emergency regulations have threatened to begin a hunger strike Thursday unless they are brought before a court or released.

The 31 men and 21 women were picked up by police acting under the broad powers assumed by the government after the outbreak of race riots in March. Another 1,300 persons, most of them Negroes, also are being held.

The women petitioned Justice Minister Francois Erasmus for trial or release and the men decided to join their hunger strike in sympathy.

"Seven of us have husbands also detained and on the outside there are 19 parentless children," the petition said. "The remainder have 15 children now without their mothers' care."

Parliament Tuesday heard plans for two reforms in government regulation of the natives.

M. C. D. de Wetzel, minister of native affairs, said natives still would be required to carry identification pass books, but he hopes "to evolve a better spirit in which the policy can be applied."

A special committee also introduced a bill liberalizing liquor laws for blacks and persons of mixed blood.

Children's Natural Curiosity Is Vital Needs Direction: Child Specialist

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editors

NEW YORK (UPI)—A child is a scientist. But the trouble is getting him to grow up and in one, says an official of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Paul E. Blackwood, specialist for elementary science in the department, said that children are naturally curious—which any parent must know from the numerous "why mommy?" and "why daddy?" which he or she hears from the time baby talks. The catch is to nurture this curiosity, said Blackwood. "Just as curiosity is vital, but it isn't enough. Curiosity needs direction. A parent shouldn't discourage a child who asks questions; nor, on the other hand, should he overwhelm him with complicated answers."

The process of growing up is an experiment in itself, said Blackwood. "It is human to explore—to reach, touch, taste and smell."

Blackwood, a former teacher, said parents and teachers alike encourage this exploration—to let the children on trips to museums, to other places, to "find out" it is too bad," he said, "that the most of us the only way of high school science is dissecting lab."

Blackwood, a tall, scholarly man in his early 40's, is a graduate of Kansas State University.

Training in the physical, biological and chemical sciences. He taught high school in Kansas for three years and for three was chairman of the science area at State University, working with teachers of kindergarten through the 12th grade to improve science instruction.

Now, with the government, his job is much the same but on a national level. I talked with

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a woman who, at age 50, thinks she is a writer? She lets the dishes pile up in the sink and sits up until two and three in the morning typing. She has been writing a "romantic novel" for three years. She let me read some of it and, Abby, it is positively filthy! She says that's what it takes to get a book sold these days.

DEAR ABBY: My friend and I were discussing something and it turned into sort of an argument, and we want you to settle it for us. If a man and a woman were married and then divorced, and then they married each other again which wedding anniversary should they celebrate? Their first or their second?

DEAR ARGUING: If they have children, they should celebrate the anniversary of their first wedding. Otherwise, celebrate the anniversary of the marriage that "look."

DEAR ARGUING: Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-agers Want To Know," send 25 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

DEAR LONG SUFFERING HUSBAND: No wife should pursue a hobby at the expense of her family, but if she is interested in writing professionally, she should take a course in creative writing and learn the fundamentals. Only a mountain of shocking pink rejection slips will discourage a budding writer, and sometimes it's easier to move a mountain.

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with the answer you gave "CURIOUS" who wanted to know what the churches did with all their money. I am personally acquainted with a minister who makes $10,000 a year. He pays no rent, and his congregation provides him with a new automobile every year. He gets a discount on everything he buys because he is a clergyman. And people consider it an honor to invite him for free meals.

I know of many small country churches where they can't keep a minister over a year because "The Lord" is always calling him to go to some larger church where there's more money.

NO FOOL: To shop from the rack is an art. To tell successfully whether a dress you see on the hanger will look well on you, you must have either a naturally clever eye or a lot of training. So don't refuse to try on a dress suggested by a saleswoman. She has seen the dress on others. You haven't.

DEAR ABBY: My friend and I were discussing something and it turned into sort of an argument, and we want you to settle it for us. If a man and a woman were married and then divorced, and then they married each other again which wedding anniversary should they celebrate? Their first or their second?

DEAR ARGUING: If they have children, they should celebrate the anniversary of their first wedding. Otherwise, celebrate the anniversary of the marriage that "look."

DEAR ARGUING: Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wedding day radiance is no accident; it's planned. The wise bride-to-be has a permanent month before the big day. She has her hair styled then, too. She schedules her fittings for her gown well ahead of time. She allows time in her hectic pre-wedding schedule for sufficient rest. And she indulges in all of the little luxuries that rightfully belong to a bride.

Here, she lightly perfumes her bath water with her favorite scent (left). Seated at her bathroom vanity table, she massages warm soapsuds over neck and face to float away the grime that digs into pores. Because she has done her beauty homework well, she looks the way a bride should look (right) on her wedding day. She's beautiful.

Wedding Day Radiance No Accident When Bride Does Beauty Work Early

By ALICIA HART Newspaper Enterprise Beauty Editor

your bath, you'll feel tension slip away. If you're wise, you won't decide on a drastic change in your hair style for your wedding day. A slight change is enough. On that day you want to look your best. And you don't want to find a stranger staring back at you from your mirror.

But regardless of style, your hair must glow with life and beauty. Brush it regularly every day, from the crown of your head "out" to the roots, and shampoo it frequently.

If you plan to have a permanent wave for our wedding day, don't wait until the last minute.

Make sure that you wash your face and neck at least three times a day. Massage warm soapsuds into your skin with strong upward motions, removing every trace of grime. Then rinse well, splash with cool water and pat dry.

Your nightly bath should be one of sheer luxury. Sprinkle oil into a nearly full tub of warm water, and while you relax in

School Bells Ring Science Bells To Bring Kids Into Space Age

By MARY KAY FLYNN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (NEA) — If seven-year-old Charles Slaughter grows up to be a scientist, it may be because he was exposed to "stardust" in the classroom while his generation was being ushered in with the space age.

He is completing his third year of science study in school. Combining this experience with a deonair flar for public speaking, he was a big hit as commentator-chairman for his second-grade class exhibit at the National Science Teachers convention and Greater Kansas City Science Fair here.

The exhibit, "Light Bounces," "Light Bends," one of nearly 2,000 projects displayed at the fair, took first place in the physical science section of the primary division.

Charles astounded — and sometimes confounded — his audiences of all ages with comprehensive answers to questions not in the script. He ended his remarks with a convincing grin and the comment: "And we have fun with the experiments."

The youngster's next-door teacher at the convention was Tommy Marx, 6, whose kindergarten class was exhibiting a "many-hands-made" paper mache "earth" with a hula hoop representing its orbit.

Not at all surprised at the adventurous enthusiasm with which his scholastic charges tackle science learning, is Msgr. Henry Gardner, superintendent of schools of the Catholic Archdiocese of Kansas City, Kan. He observed: "The grade school pupils love science. Coordinated science courses were introduced in grades one through eight in the schools of the archdiocese four years ago.

Doctor Glenn O. Blough, author of more than 30 science books for children who interviewed pupils at the science teachers' convention, agrees that the interest and aptitude of elementary pupils in science are boundless.

"Keep up with our children to keep up with Russia," the author-educator suggests as an apt slogan for the space race.

Doctor Blough, professor of education at the University of Maryland, believes that "children are ready for science earlier than some people thought," and the accelerated emphasis on science education in the elementary grades is creating a vital need for a planned curriculum in science.

"Junior high school programs will have to adjust to the influx of youngsters into the seventh grade with six years of science behind them," he commented.

The trend to introduce science courses in elementary school, beginning with grade one, on a statewide basis and in individual cities, was reflected in new teaching materials displayed at the NSTA convention.

A leading scholastic magazine will bring out a section emphasizing science for first graders. At the convention, industry exhibited new visual education aids for the elementary classroom. A soft drink company offered a complete elementary science laboratory with paper materials for experiments and demonstrations.

EVA LYNNE KOLICH, 7, demonstrated while Charles Slaughter confounds and astounds his audience with answers not in the script for their second grade exhibit, "Light Bounces, Light Bends."

Obvious Risks Assumed by Spectators

The outlook wasn't very bright for the home team with the score tied, two opposing players on base and only one out. "Spec" Tator, a rabid fan, leaned forward on his seat in the left field bleachers. The pitcher got his signal, the ball sped toward the plate.

Then came two sharp cracks. The first was the bat on the ball. The second was the ball on Spec's head. Spec was seriously injured.

To recover damages for his injuries and medical bills, Spec filed suit against the baseball club. He charged it with negligence in failing to put a wire screen in front of the bleachers where he sat and in failing to warn him that batted balls might come into those bleachers and injure him.

But the court said, "No" to Spec. He had chosen to sit in the un-screened bleachers in preference to sitting behind a screen where the tickets cost more. Therefore he had "assumed the risk" of being hit by a batted or thrown ball during the playing of the game. No recovery was allowed.

In such cases, the courts say that the spectator is an invitee to whom the invitor (the ball club) owes the duty to exercise ordinary care to render the premises reasonably safe for him.

"But," say the courts, "the invitor is not an insurer of the safety of the invitee" neither is the invitee protected against all hazard, nor relieved of all duty to himself for his own safety. And to the extent that the duty of self-protection rests upon the invitee, the duty of the invitor to protect is reduced."

The same rules as to "assumption of risk" are applied to most places of amusement and amusement devices. A swimmer must anticipate that a diving board will be wet and slippery. A person who rides on an amusement device and sees flying sparks takes the chance that a flying spark may strike his eye.

And one who goes upon a revolving floor device for the purpose of being thrown from it, accepts the dangers inherent in the sport so far as they are obvious.

On the other hand, if the danger is not apparent or obvious, the operator of the device has a duty to warn the rider or spectator. It is SOUND DROWNS OUT PAIN—Madeline Coubre blissfully undergoes work on her teeth at a dental convention in San Francisco. Secret of the work is in the earphones and the control box in her hands. Dr. Wallace Gardner of Cambridge, Mass., claims that sound blocks the reception of pain in the brain. Instead of feeling pain, Madeline heard a waterfall.

Lefors Personals

LACKS CONFIDENCE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—The Democratic party "lacks confidence" in Southern and hence will not nominate Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas as its presidential candidate, Interior Secretary Fred Seaton said Tuesday night.

SENTECE NAZI

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—Walter Schultz, former Bavarian health director, was sentenced to four years in prison Tuesday for assisting in Hitler's program to promote the "master race" by employing euthanasia.

Schultz, 66, was found guilty by the court of pronouncing 120 crippled children unfit and 250 mental patients incurable. The children and the mental patients were all put to death.

Networks Give Summer Audiences Dose Of Oldies

NEW YORK (UPI) — As Ed Sullivan was saying the other day, "the TV industry feels the summer audience is 'way down so they say, 'the heck' with it, let's put on a re-run."

He added: "I want to start a brushfire in the opposite direction. I say the audience goes away when it has nothing new to watch. If you supply fresh programs, you keep your audience right through summer."

Sullivan supports his claim with impressive statistics that show audience fallout is not as severe for his show as it is where summer repeats are the diet. Since I'm on Ed's side in this matter, I'm happy to pass along his views.

To support his campaign to make TV a 12-month-a-year business instead of the current eight-month deal, Ed has taped 10 all-new shows for his July-through-September Sunday night CBS-TV hour.

"We taped them in the spring because, for one thing, it gave us a wider choice of stars. More performers are in town, or available," Ed said. However, this advance japing means he won't be able to book sports heroes who are bound to crash the sports page headlines in the months ahead. How does he feel about this handicap?

That was a decision we had to make. When you weigh the two attractions — the star performer and the athlete — you decide in favor of the entertainer on the entertainment show. Sure, I'd like to have both, but it won't hurt the ratings because we'll have the stars," Sullivan explained.

Although he opposes re-runs in principle, Ed's brushfire doesn't extend to a point where he favors burning all previously-used tapes and films.

Shows of exceptional merit, such as Monday night's repeat of "Another Evening With Fred Astaire," deserve more than one airing, Ed said.

As a matter of fact, even Sullivan will be repeating a few programs. On Aug. 28, he re-runs the Takarazuka dancers of Japan; on Sept. 18, his Peabody Award-winning Moscow show, and on Sept. 25, the all-star circus show.

"Repeating shows by popular demand isn't the same as running away from the show and putting on indifferent re-runs week after week."

While his taped shows are running, Ed probably will undergo an ulcer operation in July. After that, he'll slowly get back to his activities, which now include production of a filmed anthology series dealing with highlights in his newspaper career, and the seeking-out of capital gains deals. "Now that I have the freedom to branch out, I'm taking advantage of it," Sullivan said.

There's a world tour in the offing, too. "We'll keep taking our TV cameras to interesting places. But," he added, "don't ask me to spell out my plans for next season. I want to keep a few secrets from the competition."

The Channel Swim: While CBS-TV's "Twilight Zone" withdrew an episode titled, "The Mighty Casey" because it starred the late Paul Douglas, another CBS-TV series, "The Edge of Truth" on July 20. The drama was a "Studio one" presentation first seen in April, 1958.

Six new full-hour "Zorro" episodes are being filmed for ABC-TV's "Walt Disney Presents," with Guy Williams again in the starring role.

Another fall returnee is "The Lawless Years," starring James Gregory, which goes into a Thursday night slot on NBC-TV. James Cagney visits "The Jack Paar show" next Monday.

Patrick O'Neal, who starred in the "Dick and the Duchess" series a couple of years ago, has landed the leading role of Dr. Dan Coffee in CBS-TV's "DX: Unknown," formerly called, "Diagnosis Homicide," the full-hour mystery summer series that replaces "The Garry Moore Show" starting Tuesday, July 5.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE ROAD HAZARDS YOUR GUARANTEE COVERS...

NEW YORK (UPI) — Probably the single factor which is bothering investors the most is the pressure on profit margins indicated in many of the first quarter earnings reports, according to Amott, Baker & Co.

This firm, however, does not believe that pressure on profit margins will be a serious earnings deterrent in the remaining quarters of 1960.

Standard & Poor's "stock of the month" is Johns-Manville Corp., a company that appears to be moving to a higher profit level. Earnings are expected to run between 4 million and 4.25 million dollars this year, up from 3.73 million dollars in 1959 with a hike in the dividend a good prospect. SP recommends the issue for its fair return and price appreciation possibilities.

Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis notes that Pepsi-Cola Co. is selling at only about 17 times estimated earnings which represents a substantial discount from potential valuation. In time, the firm thinks, Pepsi should become more widely accepted as a good quality growth issue.

The International Statistical Bureau says that while Georgia-Pacific does not appear to be an outstanding bargain, the stock has disappointed few of its holders over the past several years. ISB continues to regard it as an excellent long term capital gains play.

The News

By United Press International
LONDON — The conservative Daily Mail, commenting on the American plans that was shot down over Russia: "Both America and Russia have been playing this game. Khrushchev is better at it."

POUND, Va. — Oliver Powers, father of Francis G. Powers, the American pilot captured by the Russians, recalling what his son said after his first plane ride, when he was 14: "I like it up there. It does something to you. It gives you something."

CORINTH, Miss. — Danny Falcker 23, discussing what it was like to be stranded on a sandbar overnight with three girls in bathing suits, aged 21, 18 and 8: "It wasn't the deal it may sound like. We were very cold, hungry, thirsty, tired and sleepy."

NEW YORK — The Stock Exchange firm of Francis I. DuPont & Co., noting the present attitude of Americans toward borrowing money for leisure spending: "Credit spending has become not only moral but patriotic."

WASHINGTON — A Census Bureau spokesman, disclosing that the bureau expects a number of cities to complain that they have a higher population than census figures show: "The Census Bureau wants to present honest and accurate figures but we are going to collide with local pride if they are not up to the usual optimistic expectations."

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — Former President Truman, asked what office President Eisenhower will get in the "former presidents' club" of which Herbert Hoover is president and Truman is secretary: "He'll have to be the treasurer. He's the richest one among us."

LOS ANGELES — Deputy Dist. Atty. Fred N. Whicello, a prosecutor at the murder trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tresselt, filling out a state accident compensation form for a callous he developed on a vocal cord when delivering final arguments: "How accident happened: talked too long and too loud, forcing voice, causing damage to vocal cords."
