

Lieutenant Governor's Report

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN—Bryan Adair, a research associate with the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas at Austin, has recently completed a survey of Texas housing data with some interesting results. This historical review indicates that the state has made significant advances in comfort and convenience during the past four decades. Between 1880 and 1940, a rural-to-urban migration trend of about 6 percent per decade was established, but with the outbreak of World War II this trend changed dramatically. In 1940, 45.4 percent of the state's population was urban based, while, in 1950, 59.8 percent lived in urban areas, a change of 14.4 percent or more than double the previous sixty-year trend. In 1950, the urban/rural ratio of Texas was almost identical to that of the nation, while, only ten years before, 11 percent fewer Texas inhabitants lived in towns and cities of 2,500 or greater population. The dramatic shift between 1940 and 1950 was continued at an even greater rate during the 1950s. By 1960, Texas had an urban concentration about 10 percent greater than that of the nation as a whole. Since 1960, the state has maintained the greater concentration, but the lead has not been increased appreciably. The dramatic shift in urban concentration in Texas between 1940 and 1960 is indicative of a radical transformation of the state's economy. In 1940, the economy depended heavily on the marketing of agricultural and petroleum products.

But, the increased production required by the war demonstrated the economic potential of the state. Along with this transformation in the economy came significant improvements in standards of housing. In 1940, only 55.6 percent of Texas home units had running water in the house; in the nation, the figure was 69.9 percent. By 1970, 97.4 percent of all home units in the state had running water; in the nation, the percentage was 97.5. Housing in both the nation and the state has improved in the areas of health, sanitation, convenience, and comfort.

families. Nationally, the percentage of owner-occupied homes gradually dropped between 1890 and 1940, but since then the percentage has increased almost 20 percent. There have been similar but more dramatic changes in Texas since the 1930s.

By 1950, Texas home ownership had surpassed that of the nation, and, by 1960, 64.8 percent of all homes in the state were owned by their occupants. Even with the shift to apartments during the late 1960s, the proportion of owner-occupied homes in Texas remained constant, indicating that the portion of renter-occupied, single-family housing fell.

The changes in tenure of homes in the state closely paralleled the increasing urbanization of the state. Both are related to the increased industrialization stimulated largely by the war and by the favorable business environment of the state.

likely to be found in the more concentrated urban areas. This was largely true in both Texas and in other states. But in Texas, the growth in urban centers occurred after the institutionalization of the automobile into the society.

The availability of private transportation allowed the expansion of single-family housing into the suburbs, which were the primary growth areas in the years following World War II.

During the past forty years, the concentration of single-family dwellings in Texas has varied between 80 and 90 percent of the total, while the national average has varied between about 66 and 76 percent.

In Texas, there was a significant expansion of single-family units in the suburbs during the fifties and early sixties, but after 1966 the number of multifamily units authorized for construction increased rapidly. Many new families, rather than renting or purchasing old, single-family homes, moved directly into new apartments.

The proportion of multifamily dwellings in Texas was about the same in 1940 as in 1970; however, the character of multifamily housing involved may be somewhat different. In 1970 most of the occupants of multifamily housing lived one family to a unit, while in 1940 it was far more common for a large home, originally designed for single-family occupancy, to contain two or more nuclear

Q. I've been using some of your counseling guides and you seem to rely very heavily on "goals." How can we plan for goals when it seems to take all our income just to pay our bills?

A. The feeling that you are spending all your income just "paying bills," suggests that you need goals. You have to plan to get the most out of your money in terms of what is most important to you. Singles or families should decide what they want most, and then see if they could give up other less important things in their spending patterns to get the things they really want. If they can't, they dismiss the idea as impossible for now, and plan for some goal they can reach.

Establishing attainable goals ends the feeling of being forever trapped in bills without ever getting anything worthwhile out of your earnings. Each year you feel a year older and no better off and it is discouraging. Goals, however, give you a sense of having some choices as to how you spend your money and the attainment of a desired goal, gives a real feeling of satisfaction.

Most of us don't feel there is any "fat" in our spending patterns, but there are certainly some things more important than others. That's where goals come in. I might be happy to cut down on lunches to save enough for a power saw, and a family may choose to do without a second car so they can have a nice vacation each year.

Bigger goals, like college for the youngsters, a new home, or adequate retirement income, are almost impossible in these days, unless there has been some goal tending done, and money saved from less important spending to make these dreams come true.

Dr. Carl F. Hawver, Executive Vice President of the National Consumer Finance Association, is a widely recognized counseling expert in family money and credit management.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
I read your letter about the working and non-working mothers with interest. I usually am not the type of person to respond to these things, but in this case I felt compelled to write as I myself have been on all sides of the issue. I worked for 3 years full time as a professional nurse in the nursing education department of a facility serving mentally handicapped persons. At the time I had one small child. For 2 years after that I stayed home completely and now I have two more children and have recently started working two nights a week on the hospital ward of this same facility. I must point out that when I worked full time it was indeed a stimulating and most fulfilling job. When I quit to raise a family I found at first I was quite depressed--then I started looking at my new role with curiosity. During those two years I rediscovered my lost arts of cooking and sewing and I have discovered many new arts such as gardening, canning, refinishing and reupholstering furniture. During these two years my husband and I bought a big old dilapidated house and this opened a world of decorating and designing to me. Because of this house and my freedom from a job I learned to hang wallpaper, put on aluminum siding, how to refinish and repaint woodwork, some carpentry and believe it or not I've even done some minor plumbing. Presently, working two non-consecutive nights a week hasn't deprived me of being a fulltime mother and housewife. The point I want to make is that I think it is time for people to realize that a woman who stays home, with her family, is certainly as liberated, interesting and fulfilled as the woman who works. When I first quit working I resented being called just a housewife--now I say it proudly. "Women's Lib" has done good as far as job discrimination and equal pay, but at the same time it has inadvertently made many women feel guilty because they feel more freedom and fulfillment staying home. My answer to the sister-in-law who wants to know which woman is doing the most for her family is this--as long as a woman is happy and contented with her role, she is doing the best that she can for her family and they most certainly will appreciate her for all that she is.

J.F.--Ja.
Answer:
Thanks J.F. for an interesting letter.

States Eligible For More Bicentennial Funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) has announced the availability of an additional $40,000 per state in matching grant money for support of projects and programs for the nation's Bicentennial.

This is the fourth, and last, increment of $40,000 non-appropriated grants that have been provided each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

awarded through State Bicentennial Commissions which will also monitor the grants. Projects to be supported may be conducted directly by the State Commissions or by state or local government agencies or non-profit organizations.

Wealth Of Nations

Two hundred years ago this week a most significant event occurred in England that would have a major impact on thought and economic policy in America and the rest of the world for the next two hundred years.

Smith suggested that the government role in business should be eliminated. Instead of serving nationalistic interests the businessman should be totally free to pursue his own self-interest which, according to Smith, would be to make a profit.

Smith argued that there were natural laws that governed economic activity. A major one was the law of supply and demand.

proponent of laissez faire even though it never fully followed Smith's principles. American businessmen were ardent foes of government regulation, but the great majority of them continued to look to the government for various types of assistance.

In the same way residents of the Spanish Southwest took little notice of Smith's work. They too lived in the grip of the Spanish mercantile system.

GreenUpYourLawn

COLLEGE STATION -- About this time of the year lawns need a boost to get them in shape for the spring season just around the corner.

A turfgrass specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service suggests three operations that can get a lawn off to a good start - scalping, fertilizing and applying a weed killer.

"Scalping a lawn in later winter serves to revitalize it and promote spring and summer plant growth," points out Dr. Richard Duble.

"Begin the operation by lowering the blade of your lawnmower one-half inch below the normal setting. Then mow the lawn in two directions that are at right angles to each other. Remove the clippings after each mowing."

Duble also recommends keeping the lawnmower blade lowered until mid-summer.

"After scalping the lawn, apply a complete fertilizer (one containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium) to promote leaf and root growth," advises the Texas A&M University System specialist. "Use one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. This is equal to 12 pounds of an 8-8-8 fertilizer or eight pounds of a 12-4-8 fertilizer. Repeat the application in the fall."

For a dark green lawn, Duble suggests applying nitrogen every 60 days at the rate of one pound to 1,000 square feet. Monthly applications of iron chelate or iron sulfate during the spring and summer promote a healthy color in St. Augustine grass lawns.

"To keep crabgrass or other unsightly weeds from appearing, apply a preemergence herbicide (weed killer) containing benefin, dacthal or bensulfide early in the spring," says Duble. "Combinations of herbicides with fertilizers are available and convenient to use but should only be used according to instructions on the label. Formulations containing atrazine should not be applied around trees or shrubs," he cautions.

"Proper maintenance is essential for a healthy lawn, and these practices will give new life to a dormant, weedy lawn," notes Duble.

He advises combatting the problem by selecting pecan scab resistant varieties. Many new varieties are being released by the USDA Pecan Station at Brownwood which have resistance to pecan scab. Old varieties such as Desirable or Stuart also have resistance. Of the two, Desirable is the preferred variety.

Of the new USDA varieties, Choctaw and Cheyenne have the highest level of resistance to pecan scab. Sioux, Caddo and Shawnee can be grown in most areas with only limited spray applications.

Additional information on pecan scab resistant varieties adapted to your county is available at the county Extension office. Selecting disease resistant varieties now will save on expensive fungicide applications later on and will result in more high quality pecans.

The world is his who can see through its pretension.

MULESHOE CHAPTER Order Of DeMolay CELEBRATES

The 57TH Anniversary Of DeMolay International MARCH 14-21

Every bit of advertisement is needed in order to make DeMolay w Week successful.

WHAT MAKES DEMOLAY DIFFERENT?

DeMolay is different from any other young group, since it is a unique fraternal youth organization. It is a selective organization, open only to the finest young men. It has a ritual that allows the members to understand better the things that lie ahead of them, and to prepare for responsible, adult citizenship.

WHAT THE ORDER OF DEMOLAY IS

Building better citizens out of teenage boys is the goal of the Order of DeMolay, the Muleshoe youth organization chartered in 1967. DeMolay isn't only in Muleshoe, but world-wide, with over 3 million members.

The organization was named for Jacques DeMolay, the last Grand Master of the Knights Templar, who was burned at the stake by King Phillip of France on March 18, 1314, as a martyr to loyalty and toleration.

Today, members of DeMolay strive to carry on the fine ideals for which DeMolay gave his life -- loyalty and service to God and fellow man.

Frank Land, the founder of the Order, served as the Secretary General for DeMolay until his death on November 8, 1959. By 1920, the Kansas City Chapter had grown to 3,000 members, and chapters were soon instituted from coast to coast and in several foreign countries. Today there are over 2,300 active DeMolay chapters and nearly three million boys have taken their obligations at the DeMolay altar.

DeMolay membership is open to any boy of good character who is between the ages of 13 and 21. Although DeMolay chapters are sponsored only by Masonic bodies or individual Masons, it is not necessary that a boy be a son or a relative of a Mason to belong to DeMolay.

The Order of DeMolay is a non-profit corporation with the International Headquarters located in its own four-story building in Kansas City, Missouri. Under the guidance of the Grand Secretary, a small office staff acts as the clerical and administrative group to maintain a central office of record and promote the growth and development of the organization.

The youth movement is governed by an International Summit, on page 10

WHAT IS DEMOLAY? DeMolay is a fraternal youth organization that is run by its own members. Through the members planning their own activities, they not only have a great time, but also learn to develop their leadership abilities.

WHO SPONSORS DEMOLAY? DeMolay chapter is sponsored by a recognized group of Masons in a community. Masonry is the oldest men's fraternity in the world. Such sponsorship enables DeMolay to have dedicated adult leadership and the use of Masonic buildings to house DeMolay activities.

WHO MAY JOIN? The basic requirements are that a young man must be between the ages of 13 and 21, believe in God, be of good character and reputation, and be recommended by two chapter members and a Master Mason.

WHO'S IN DEMOLAY? Lots of fellows, many of whom you already know, who a few months or years ago were making the same decision on joining. Many a young man has started the road to success through the influence and development of his personal abilities in a DeMolay chapter. Sr. DeMolays are found as successful leaders in all walks of life. People like Walter Cronkite, John Wayne, Senator Mark Hatfield, Chet Huntley, Walt Disney, Harmon Killebrew, and Fran Tarkenton were all DeMolays in their youth. As a DeMolay member, you instantaneously acquire thousands of "Brother DeMolays" in every state in the U.S. and in eleven other countries. You also acquire a common tie with nearly 3 million Sr. DeMolays located throughout the world. There is a new tomorrow...with DeMolay today!

THE NAMESAKE OF THE ORDER

It has been more than 650 years since Jacques DeMolay, the last Grand Master of the medieval Knights Templar, died as a martyr to truth and fidelity, but today the ideals for which he gave his life are being perpetuated by young men the world over who are members of the Order of DeMolay.

Nearly three million youths that have been inducted into the Order since its founding have added new lustre and meaning in DeMolay's name by dedicating themselves, as he did, to the virtues of reverence, loyalty, and chivalry.

Jacques DeMolay has provided an historic heritage for the young organization. In the 14th Century as the Knights Templar grew in might, prestige, and wealth, and the popularity of the crusades declined, the Order incurred the jealousy and enmity of Phillip the Fair, King of France.

Phillip ordered the arrest of DeMolay and the other Templars and had their properties and riches confiscated. Failing through torture to get DeMolay to reveal the identity of other leaders and the location of supposedly hidden treasures, Phillip had him burned at the stake in Paris when DeMolay refused to denounce the Order.

Proving that fate sometimes has a hand in many things, some 605 years later, on the anniversary of the death of DeMolay, nine Kansas City, Missouri, boys met in the office of Frank S. Land, urging him on in his idea of forming a new youth group. The young boys liked the idea of organizing a club that would give them the inspiration and guidance that no other organization offered.

As they discussed their desires and needs, it was mentioned that a name must be selected. Whereupon, the boys asked Mr. Land to recite some names that would be in keeping with their

Scholarship Programs Attract Top Students

LUBBOCK -- Two new scholarship programs designed to attract top academic students from throughout the Southwest were approved this week by the Texas Tech Ex-Students Association.

The Association Executive Board adopted a program to offer 1976 valedictorians from the 1,152 Texas public high schools scholarships to Texas Tech University. Scholarships also will be available to valedictorians from high schools in surrounding states, Ex-Students Association officials said.

Glen Cary, Dallas, Ex-Students Association president, stated that the new program will supplement scholarships the association already is awarding. In 1975 the association began a campaign to recruit all-round outstanding students. The new program now will provide funds for attracting outstanding academic students.

The association also will provide additional funds for the prestigious National Merit Scholarship Program. Students receiving these scholarships rank in the top 4,000 high school seniors in the nation. In 1971 the association provided $22,000 for this effort.

There are 76 valedictorians in the freshman class at Texas Tech this year. "and we expect this number to increase substantially because of these scholarships," Cary said. "Ex-Students throughout the state are being asked to contact top students."

"We must realize this is the most ambitious program that has ever been initiated to attract academically excellent students. However, we realize that if

Texas Tech is to achieve its proper position as a major university in the nation, it must appeal to these very top students.

"To attract them the university must have scholarships to offer," Cary said. "The association is just trying to do its part to help."

In 1975 the association staff personally contacted approximately 2,300 high school seniors about attending Texas Tech. In addition, ex-students also participated in more than 40 "College Night" programs in the eastern part of Texas.

Cary said both of these recruiting programs conducted in 1975 are being continued and expanded in 1976. Mailings have gone to more than 45,000 ex-students asking them to recommend one or two top high school seniors or juniors to attend Texas Tech.

"We are asking them to suggest not only first-ranking academic students but also all-round outstanding ones," he said. "These students will then be contacted by the Ex-Students Association staff and the admissions staff at Texas Tech."

"This new program is one of a series of scholarship activities through which the Ex-Students Association has contributed to development of an outstanding student body," said Dr. Glenn E. Barnett, executive vice president of Texas Tech. "The university is extremely grateful for all the help it has received, and undoubtedly this new program will reach more quality people than any other effort in which the Ex-Students Association has been involved."

"Support of this nature is one element which has put Tech among the universities of excellence in the United States. We look forward to having a number of these outstanding high school students on our campus beginning next year. The guidance of President Cary along with the Board and Executive Director Wayne James in moving this program ahead is deeply appreciated."

Awarding of scholarships and recruiting will not be the only projects in 1976, Cary said. "We expect to continue the association's other support of the university and to conduct a strong campaign for gifts to the Texas Tech Loyalty Fund to finance these activities."

Loyalty Fund trustees met with the Texas Tech Ex-Students board in Dallas to map plans to raise funds to underwrite activities and scholarship and recruitment programs.

New Interest In GrapeArbors

COLLEGE STATION -- As settlers pushed across the frontier of Texas, they used the grape vine for supplying the family with wholesome food and attractive landscape arbors. Modern Texans are again turning to the grape vine for the same uses and enjoyments, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Grape varieties adapted for arbors in Texas include Black Spanish and Champanel. In East Texas the muscadine grape is well adapted while the Thompson seedless is an excellent variety for grape arbors in western areas.

A grape arbor can be located in small areas. A cubic yard of soil and several hours of direct sunlight are all that grapes need. If possible, place grapes about six feet apart in well-drained soil. Train a strong shoot to an overhead trellis. As canes begin to develop on the trellis, they will produce berries.

Prune back all of the canes each winter to force new growth. If new growth is not stimulated, grape production will be limited.

Grapes are usually harvested in early August from Texas arbors. However, the arbor will provide an excellent landscape accent for the entire season.
