

All-New Production Set For 1971 Rodeo

Goodwill ambassadors for the State of Texas are Tommy and Beverly Steiner, stock producers for this year's Top O' Texas Rodeo scheduled here for August 4-7. They were officially commissioned as such by Texas' popular governor John Connally during his administration a few years ago.

It has been estimated that Steiner's rodeos are seen by more than a million persons each year in some two dozen cities across the nation, plus millions of other viewers who see Steiner rodeo productions frequently on local and national television.

Stock for Steiner rodeo productions is quartered at two ranches near Texas' capital city, Austin. Former governor Connally is an accomplished horseman who has ridden some of Steiner's beautiful show horses on public occasions.

Both of the Steiners are active in rodeo production, Tommy with the stock and competitive events, and Beverly with costumes, lighting, and her stirring presentation of the colors which precedes all Steiner-produced performances.

With new grandstand and other new facilities, plus new producers and top specialty acts, this year's rodeo promises to be an outstanding event, according to rodeo officials.

Youths Found Sniffing Glue In Local Park

Local police are cracking down on complaint-causing incidents in Central Park in an effort to break up large groups of teenagers that have reportedly been instigating disturbances in the area.

An officer, acting on a tip by an unidentified source last night, arrested four youths reportedly sniffing glue. The officer found paper bags containing glue and rags stashed in a park restroom and brought the teenagers, all 18 and under, to the station.

Three boys were later turned over to their parents and David Jenkins, 18, 921 Buckler; and Charles Swift, 17, address unknown, were jailed on charges of vagrancy.

Both pleaded not guilty to vagrancy charges this morning in Municipal Court before Judge Don Lane. Bonds were set at $50 each.

Thunderclouds Storm Across Panhandle Area

Thunderclouds stormed across the Texas Panhandle Thursday and early today, stirring up dust but yielding little needed rain.

The South Plains of West Texas remained in a severe thunderstorm watch during the pre-dawn hours, as the unstable conditions continued to create new storms.

Tornadoes were reported in the Clarendon-Amarillo area and in the Canadian-Childress vicinity, but they struck rural countryside and no damage was reported.

Hager To Speak At A.A. Meeting

Martin Hager, Minister of First Presbyterian Church and executive secretary of the Suicide Prevention-Crisis Information set-up in Pampa, will be guest speaker at the Action Group of Alcoholics Anonymous' regular meeting at 4 p.m. Sunday in the west part of Fellowship Hall in First Baptist Church. The entry door to the meeting place is 200 N. Ward St.

A spokesman for the A.A. Action Group said Hager is the first outside speaker for the new organization which had its initial meeting last Sunday with more than 30 present.

The spokesman added that from time to time others would be asked to speak on current topics that relate to self-improvement by the individual.

Street Seal-Coating To Start On Monday

Seal-coating of Pampa streets will start early Monday morning, City Engineer Jerry Harris said today.

The first day area to be seal-coated will be north of 23rd St. and east of Perryton Pkwy.

Residents in that section of the city are asked to have the streets cleared of parked cars so seal-coating equipment can be operated.

VOTE EXPECTED TODAY State Solons Agree On Redistricting Plan

AUSTIN (UPI) — Legislators have agreed on a congressional redistricting plan that siphons urban votes to flesh out rural districts and protects all incumbents except John Dowdy and two others.

Both houses of the legislature were expected to approve the redistricting plan today, finish all their other pending business and adjourn the special session at 6 p.m. The session was called at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

Five House and five Senate conferees worked in a wrenching nighttime meeting Thursday to agree on the plan. Both Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, working in shirtsleeves, and House Speaker Gus Mutscher, dressed in a tuxedo, worked with the conference committee.

The final compromise plan endangers only incumbents Bob Price of Pampa, a Republican; Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls, a Democrat; and John Dowdy of Athens, a Democrat indicted by a federal grand jury on bribery and perjury charges. But either Price or Purcell should remain in Congress however, since their districts were joined in the plan. Dowdy's district was paired with that of Democrat Wright Pat-man of Texas in such a fashion to insure a Patman victory over Dowdy if such a matchup came to pass.

The compromise create three districts with no incumbents. One is in East Texas (most of which was Dowdy's old district), the second is in the center of Houston and Fort Worth and includes all of Denton County.

The plan still siphons off urban areas to help rural congressmen.

The northeastern tip of Dallas County goes into the district of Ray Roberts, a Democrat from McKinney.

The leader...any way you look at it.

Cadillac for 1971. It could well be your best car buy, any way you look at it.

Styling. It's a carefully created combination of styling continuity and contemporary flair.

Comfort. A longer wheelbase and new suspension system mean an even smoother ride.

Performance. The proven 472-cubic-inch V-8 is amazingly responsive—on regular gasoline or no-lead and low-lead fuels.

Luxury. In the incredible quietness inside, in the beautiful standard appointments and in the many features you can order. Choice. The first Cadillac luxury you enjoy. There are nine models from which to choose.

Value. A Cadillac traditionally returns a larger portion of original investment than any other car built in the land. Cadillac is the leader—any way you look at it. And now is the time to look at it—at your authorized Cadillac dealer's showroom.

Cadillac is doing something about traffic safety, but some things only you can do. You might be surprised by the scope of our involvement in advancing the cause of safety.

Did you know, for instance, that Cadillac was the first to install safety glass in its cars? And introduced the triple braking system?

Today you can see evidence of the magnitude of our concern. The 1971 Cadillac incorporates a host of recent safety developments, including an energy absorbing steering column, Padded instrument panel, Seat belts for all passenger positions. Side-Guard steel beams in the doors.

And the work goes on. But all our efforts will not be enough, unless you do your share.

Here are five ways you can help. 1. Always use your seat and shoulder belts. 2. Make sure your car is in good running order. 3. Never drive when you're tired or under the influence of alcohol. 4. Support driver, training and uniform traffic codes and enforcement. 5. Drive defensively. Please. Will you do your part?

62nd State Legislature Will Go Down In History As One Of Least Productive Sessions

AUSTIN (UPI)—The 62nd legislative session will probably be remembered longer for what it failed to do than what it accomplished.

Bitter feuds and political infighting produced one of the most rancorous and least productive sessions in the state's recent history.

Gov. Preston Smith had to call the lawmakers into special session just to complete mandatory jobs such as congressional redistricting, court-ordered changes in election laws and adoption of taxes on liquor by the drink.

Major accomplishment of the 140-day regular session was the adoption of a record $7.1 billion budget and passage of a record shattering tax bill of more than $600 million. Smith had to submit five pages of corrections on the hastily prepared spending bill to the special session, however.

Year of Welfare
And even at that the lawmakers left part of the financial task unfinished. The two-year spending bill includes funds for only one year of welfare. Another special session will be needed next year to appropriate additional money for welfare and probably to raise as much as $200 million more taxes to cover the cost.

Other unfinished business at the close of the 140-day session: —Revision of the state's 112-year-old patchwork penal code never even got a vote in either house. Action on the revision—which top scholars and prominent attorneys spent years preparing—will now have to wait another two years.

—Abortion law reform got no action despite a federal court ruling declaring the state's 1925 statute unconstitutional. Failure to act on this means the state will be left without any law to regulate abortions—even the conditions under which they are performed—unless the U.S. Supreme Court reverses the lower court ruling.

Marijuana Bill Dies
—Lessening of penalties for first time marijuana users was rejected by the House, never voted on by the Senate. Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes came out in favor of the move last year but quietly let it die during the session.

—Welfare reforms proposed an interim senate study committee never even got out of the senate.

—A proposed constitutional amendment to raise the ceiling on welfare spending from $90 to $115 million died in the House in the closing hours of the session—apparently because House Speaker Gus Mutscher mistakenly thought the matter could be acted on in a special session.

Beauty Out Window
—Highway beautification was scuttled in the closing days of the session when the House rejected a compromise with the Senate on how to comply with new federal regulations requiring billboards to be set back and junkyards screened along interstate highways. Failure to comply with the federal requirements could cost the state $25 million a year in matching money.

—Changes in the minimum school fund allocation formula were killed in House committee. The changes were designed to equalize aid to needy and wealthy districts and head off court suits by big city school districts unhappy over the fact that many wealthy small school districts get a higher percentage of state aid under the present plan.

—Proposals for the state to take over complete funding of the minimum school foundation program never got out of either house. Sponsors had said that if the state paid 100 instead of 80 per cent of the minimum program, local districts would be able to give property owners relief on ad valorem taxes.

—An amendment to the state constitution to lower the voting age to 18 died when House and Senate sponsors refused to accept each other's bills. The House passed its version, the Senate passed its; but neither voted on the other's. (Lawmakers did vote to ratify the U.S. constitutional amendment to allow 18 year olds to vote, however.)

—A proposal for state aid to parochial schools never got out of committee but one to give parents who pay tuition to send their students to parochial school a tax break was talked to death in the closing days of the regular session.

—Also filibustered to death was a compromise on comparative negligence plan to take the place of the state's contributory negligence policy.

The governor vetoed similar legislation earlier in the session charging it would cause sharp hikes in insurance rates to permit anyone involved in an auto accident to seek damages based on his proportionate share of fault for the mishap.

Some Other Failures
In addition to the failure to act on a number of items, the 62nd Legislature was marked by failures of another kind.

This was supposed to have been the year that urban liberals ended rural conservatives' longstanding control of the Senate. But liberals were unable to maintain unity and lost their battle to enact a corporate profits tax by a 16-15 vote.

As a result, the brunt of the multi-million dollar tax bill will be borne by consumers in the form of higher sales taxes, and increased levies on cigarettes, beer, liquor and automobiles beginning July 1. The main increase in business taxes will be a hike in the franchise tax.

The 62nd session also saw rural representatives beat back a coalition of urban liberals and Republicans in a blood letting redistricting battle. The House redistricting plan added new dimensions to the word "gerrymandering" and will virtually wipe out most of the "Dirty 30" who have consistently opposed Mutscher and his key lieutenants.

Under Court Attack
The plan is already under court attack and unless it is struck down could preserve rural domination of the House for another decade.

Senators failed to act at all on redrawing their districts during the session. (See LEGISLATURE, Page 10)

No Red Meat With DES Residues Reaches Consumers, Tests Show

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, this week, said American consumers need not worry that the beef they buy may contain residues of the growth-promoting feed additive Diethylstilbestrol (DES).

Commenting on recent inquiries to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Lyng said: "USDA's tests show that no red meat containing detectable levels of DES residues has reached the consumer."

"The Meat and Poultry Inspection Program of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service is now conducting a broader, statistically designed survey—which will involve 6,000 meat animal samples—to maintain an accurate picture of the incidence of DES residues," he said.

Assistant secretary Lyng emphasized that no residues have been found in any samples checked for DES in 1971. He said that only one sample checked positive for DES in 1970. Even though the liver of that one animal showed a slight residue, no detectable residue was found in the muscle tissue from which steaks and roasts are produced.

"Recent reports that 100,000 to 150,000 meat animals containing DES residues may have been marketed last year are based on an invalid assumption that the few animals tested there were a cross-section of all meat animals marketed in the United States. They were not."

Most of them were suspect to start with—picked from herds where we thought the producers might not have followed the Food and Drug Administration's requirements to withdraw the drug 48 hours before slaughter."

Lyng indicated that the current testing program, employing a newly-developed laboratory technique, will permit more samples to be processed with greater efficiency. Developed by laboratory personnel of the Meat and Poultry Inspection Program, in association with the pharmaceutical industry and the Food and Drug Administration, the new procedure cuts sample analysis time from 2 weeks to less than 2 hours.

Lyng pointed out that in addition to USDA's improved residue sampling program—the livestock industry is taking steps to prevent drug residue problems. He said USDA is finding increasing evidence that the certification program, sponsored by the American Association, the Animal Health Institute, and several other industry organizations, is effective. The program emphasizes the educating of the producers in the safe use of animal drugs and requires a certification that meat animals are withdrawn from drugs within FDA-specified time periods prior to slaughter.

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 17 years. We have a lovely family, but if you use my letter in your column, please do not mention their ages or what sex our children are.

I love my husband with all my heart and the thought of infidelity has never crossed my mind. Three months ago, I accidentally found out that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in her mid-20s. He is 46. I caught him flat-footed, so there was no denying it. He was terribly upset at having been caught, claimed he loves me, and it will never happen again. I am so broken up over this. I cannot tell you the agony I have suffered.

I am considered a very good-looking woman and would have no trouble at all doing to him what he did to me. This is the only way I know of hurting him like he has hurt me, so he will know what I have gone thru. I know two wrongs don't make a right, but at least we will be even.

Is there a better solution?

LOVED AND LOST
DEAR LOVED: There must be, because there couldn't be a worse one! Don't kid yourself. Should you have a fling and announce it to your husband, he wouldn't suffer as you did. Men tend to view such things with far less emotion than women. (My mail shows 50 women to one man agonizing over an unfaithful mate.) If you love him, forgive him. And if you really want to hurt him, love him to death. He'll feel like the world's biggest heel.

Lota Pounds Off Presents Award To Mrs. White

Lota Pounds Off TOPS Club which meets at Central Baptist Church reported 12 members attended the session and presented the fruit basket to Mrs. Omer White for a 4 1/2 pound loss.

The pig award was given to Mrs. Randue Schulz. The club reported a weekly loss of 14 1/2 pounds and a 7 1/2 pound gain.

Those attending were Mmes. Omer White, Leon Brown, Tom Fick, Archie Chisum, Gene Hinds, Floyd George, Randue Schulz, Tom Rodgers, Elmer Williams, Fred Hutchens and Miss Jeanna Hinds.

DEAR ABBY: We have a son and a daughter whom we try to treat equally in all things.

Our daughter, who is a few years older, did not want to go to college. After graduating from high school she worked for a year and then got married.

Our son chose to go to college, and we are paying for his college education. Is our daughter legally or morally entitled to the money we saved on her college education because she didn't go? She thinks she is entitled to cash in the same amount of money we are spending on her brother's education.

JUST CURIOUS
DEAR CURIOUS: If you had offered your daughter either the cash or a college education, and she chose the cash, she would be entitled to the cash. Since you offered her only a college education and she turned it down, she is entitled to nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I am not saying this to brag, but I am the favorite relative in a family where there is a lot of backbiting and petty fighting going on. A niece of mine invited me to attend the christening of her baby. She told me that I am the only aunt she is inviting, so if anybody in the family asks how come I went to the christening I should say that I just happened to drop in at my niece's house unexpected that morning and she invited me to the christening on the spur of the moment.

I don't like lying, Abby, but I don't want to hurt my niece's feelings as she thinks it's an honor for me to be the only aunt at her baby christening. What would you do?

FAVORITE AUNT
DEAR AUNT: I'd tell her that I appreciate the honor, but if I had to lie in order to accept it, I would have to decline.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything I should think a wife would be tickled pink to be able to go through her husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners or putting the washables into the machine. Most women have to wait until their husbands are asleep before they can get into their pockets.

EASY TO DIGEST

What makes a meat easy to digest? Short fibers rather than long fibers are a big factor, making the meat easy to chew. Chicken is a short-fibered meat, according to the National Broiler Council, appropriate or many diets, including those for children and elderly people who may have difficulties with their teeth.

LOW SALT STAPLE

Chicken is a staple in the no-or low-salt diet because of its congenial way of taking on delicious flavors minus salt and creating satisfying dishes.

Tarragon, lemon, marjoram are examples of flavors that blend well with the delicate flavor of chicken, according to the National Broiler Council test kitchen.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration...

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. BRYAN HALLIBURTON THINGS WHICH CANNOT BE SHAKEN

We live in a day when the Christian faith is under fire. Never before in history has the attack been quite so fierce or is the truth of revelation the enemy's devices so subtle and devastating, for not only is the truth of revelation assailed from without the churches, but it is assailed even more tragically from within. There are those who profess the Name of Christ who nevertheless undermine the structure of belief and would if they could, demolish the entire edifice. The faith once delivered to the saints is being tested to the foundations.

Not unnaturally there are those who, like Eli of old, tremble for the ark of God. They wonder whether the Church can survive the mortal storm. It seems like an unprotected island in a swirling sea of secularism, liable to be submerged. But we have only to look again at the reassurances of the Word to regain our Christian confidence. God will not allow His people to be swamped. Not even the gates of Hades itself can prevail against the true Church of Christ, founded on the rock of His own Person. We can take courage amidst all the confusion of our time, since if God is for us nothing and nobody can be effectively against us. We are witnessing the disintegration of "those things that are shaken" in these turbulent days, so that "those things which cannot be shaken may remain" (Hebrews 12:27.)

We are told not only that what God has built will not be disturbed: it cannot be disturbed. It is impossible to overturn His work. God does not pursue His designs in vain. As Gamaliel was quick to recognize, it is wasted effort to erect road blocks in God's path. "If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought," he told the Sanhedrin, when the Christian way was up for discussion. "But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it: lest haply ye be found even to fight against God." (Acts 5:38-39.)

Amidst all the discouragements of our time, there are at least some signs that man at length is beginning to realize his predicament and seek a remedy. Dr. Martin Niemoller suggested this in a meeting held in London not long ago. "As human beings," he said, "we cannot save ourselves. We can create things, but we cannot master them. So the Christian remnant today is looked at from outside with a kind of sceptical hope. Can the Christian faith be the way out of this deadly dilemma? Is the Christian message, which in the past has proclaimed good tidings, really a message that brings relief to a generation which has over estimated its possibilities and its strength?"

As believers, we are persuaded that the Gospel is God's answer in this as in any age. Despite the lowering clouds of doubt and criticism, it is our task to declare God's Word without pulling any punches. If ever there was need for a quite uncompromising message from the Church surely it is today. Nothing less than the fullness of Christ can match this desperate hour. He abides, "the same yesterday, and today, and for ever" (Hebrews 13:8).

Audie Murphy Different From Other Stars

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Audie Murphy was different from other movie stars. Murphy called it play-acting. Others called themselves artists.

He had been "To Hell and Back"—the title of his autobiography—and the makeup box was kid stuff compared to an ammo box.

"Acting is just a living with me. I'm not kidding myself. If it weren't for the medals I wouldn't be in Hollywood," he said once.

Murphy did not take his World War II heroics nor his designation as America's most decorated soldier seriously. Of killing, wounding or capturing 240 German soldiers and collecting 24 medals, he said, "I did what I had to do, like everybody else."

But the past clung to Murphy's name. Ironically it was during the Memorial Day weekend—the holiday designated for remembering America's warriors—that death finally caught up with the most honored of them all on a Virginia mountainside.

A sharecropper's boy in the hardpan country near Kingston, Tex., Murphy grew up with a sharp instinct for honor in the traditional sense, and quick vengeance for enemies.

On his return from Europe's war, his early acting as a contract player at Universal Studios was wooden and stemming from a brawl with a dog trainer over a fee. This year he was charged with possessing illegal blackjacks, but the charges were dropped after he argued he had authority to have them as a special officer, with two law enforcement agencies.

Pamela Murphy took the news of her husband's death sadly but calmly.

"It's terrible, after all Audie's been through in his life, to have it end this way," she said.

Murphy's latest picture has yet to be released. Its title: "A Time For Dying."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—A lengthy steel strike could disrupt the current economic recovery "and lay threadbare the mantle of confidence with which the stock market has so laboriously clothed itself over the past year," Spear and Staff, Inc. believes. However, Spear says the present reaction is "characterized as much by digestion of gains as by indigestion over current events" and should not be allowed to obscure the market's basic uptrend.

"We are dismayed by the amazing complacency many investors feel towards the current decline," the Dines Letter says. The uniform comment, the newsletter says, apparently is that the correction is "normal and expected." But it adds, "We think this decline will not end until there is some general alarm, and until there is a substantial increase for example in odd-lot short selling."

The averages are showing signs of firmness after four weeks of their intermediate decline, TPO Inc. says. Although there are no concrete signs the correction is leveling out, the firm feels there is a "strong possibility" some averages may level out during the next three to four weeks. "With volume at a low point, the list oversold and near support and the odd-lot still heavily on the sell side the balance of indicators are weighing heavier in favor of the bulls," TPO believes.

Reynolds & Co. feels "some time next month" the stock market could start a "modified return to a performance phase rather than concentration on blue chips and proven growth stocks." Reynolds adds "recent preoccupation with new products having real or imagined efficacy for the eyes, teeth and for heart conditions; are a manifestation of what may be an emerging new phase."

Drunkenness Has Become 'Grave Problem' In Mexico

By ARTHUR GOLDEN
MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Drunkenness has become a matter of serious government concern in Mexico—"a grave problem," says Dr. Rafael Velasco, federal public health director.

"In the current moment," Velasco said, "alcohol represents an obstacle for our development, just when the nation needs the complete productivity of all its men of an active age."

A recent federal study of 550 adults in Mexico City, classified 50 as "excessive drinkers." Another study listed one of 83 adults in the capital as "practically an invalid because of abuse of alcohol."

Velasco said 64 per cent of all crimes of violence in Mexico "occur under the influence of alcohol. This speaks eloquently of the high social danger from immoderate drinking in our country."

A criminal court judge demanded recently the prohibition of all liquor advertising from Mexican television. He said reducing the temptation to consume alcohol would probably lower the number of cases he hears.

Drinking has been a problem in Mexico since before the Spanish conquest in 1521. Fr. Bernardino de Sahagun, the Spanish missionary-historian, noted that the Aztecs were convinced anyone born under the astrological "sign of the Rabbit" would never stay sober.

Drinking of pulque, fermented juice of the maguey plant, began as a solemn religious rite. But Di Sahagun said its popularity and use spread throughout the Aztec realm, to the point where drunken priests and noblemen were executed as examples for the rest of the population.

Part of the modern-day problem is that alcohol is a cheap diversion in a country where the average annual income is under $600. Some brands of beer cost the equivalent of 12 cents a bottle. Pulque is 10 cents a quart.

Bars do an elbow-to-elbow business on weekends, which are also the peak crime periods.

Velasco said studies have shown that Mexican laborers and small businessmen are in the majority among hard-core alcoholics, and that alcoholism poses a serious threat to Mexico's booming economic growth rate, currently one of the highest in Latin America.

"A country in development cannot permit itself such waste," he said. "The situation calls for decided public and private action to lower these figures."

Texans In Favor Of Jail Sentence For Drunk Drivers, Survey Shows

Respondents in a state-wide survey were overwhelmingly in favor of mandatory jail sentences and driver license suspension for drunk drivers, a chemical test law to determine DWI guilt, and for increasing the penalty for possession of LSD.

The survey was made by Don Cates, attorney for Texas Alcohol Narcotics Education (TANE).

Those responding to the survey were also in favor of the "no-knock" bill which would authorize peace officers to break any door or window without giving notice when armed with proper warrants. The question on which respondents were most evenly divided was on lowering the penalty for first offense possession of marijuana. There were 1,043 in favor of lowering the penalty, and 1,386 against.

Survey questionnaires were mailed to 71,000 people across the state. Responses totalled 2,538.

Results were: Senate Bill 68, which authorized the use of chemical tests of blood, etc., to determine the intoxication of the driver, for, 2,425; against, 46; no opinion, 15. The bill has passed the Texas house of Representatives and is ready for Senate Action.

Senate Bill 214, sets punishment for DWI which would mandatorily include driver's license suspension and minimum jail sentence and no probation, for, 2,387; against 83; no opinion, 34. The bill is awaiting Senate committee action.

House Bill 371, which authorizes peace officers to break any door or window without giving notice — "no-knock" search warrant provision, for, 1,628; against, 716; no opinion, 156. It has passed out of a House committee and is awaiting House floor action.

House Bill 549, which makes the penalty for first offense possession of cannabis (marijuana) a misdemeanor rather than a felony, for, 1,043; against, 1,386; no opinion, 58. It is awaiting House committee action.

House Bill 875, which makes the penalty for first offense possession of LSD a felony rather than a misdemeanor, for, 2,203; against, 238; no opinion, 35. The bill has passed out of committee and is ready for House floor action.

Western Beef Firms Executive Reports Profitable Operations

AMARILLO — Howard A. Foster, Chairman of the Board, Western Beef, Inc., reported continuing profitable operations as previously predicted. Net earnings for the second quarter were $97,533 as compared to a $147,045 loss for the same quarter last year. This represented an earnings per share of 10 cents compared to a 15 cent per share loss in last year's second quarter. Revenues amounted to $9,192,706 for the second quarter as opposed to $12,055,399 for the same period last year. For the six months ended April 30, 1971, the company achieved net earnings of $184,677 which equals 19 cents per share as compared to a loss of $102,026 or 10 cents per share loss for the same period in 1970.

our feedlots through the remainder of the year."

"In recent months Western Beef, Inc.'s management has reduced expenses and improved the company's liquidity. Efforts are now being directed to enhance the company's relationship with the financial community and investing public, and the company is now listed with the National Association of Securities Dealers."

All divisions of the company reported improvements over the previous year, particularly the packing division which for the year to date shows a slight profit as opposed to a $117,000 loss last year. While still operating at a loss, the grain division has materially reduced that loss from last year. Management is concentrating on finding other uses for excess storage capacity and is optimistic that this division will be at break-even point by year end. The feed yard division, the most profitable activity of Western Beef, has improved its position from last year principally because of increased occupancy rates. At April 30 the occupancy rate was about 95 per cent or approximately 120,000 cattle on feed. During the first six months of the year, the feedlots have shipped to packinghouses 112,832 head of cattle. This represents a 6.63 per cent increase over the same period last year.

Howard Foster said, "Another bright spot in Western Beef Cattle Fund, Inc., which is in the process of forming its next limited partnership in cattle feeding on or about July 1. Because of the change in economic conditions and the general increase in interest by the investing public, we believe the successful sale of these limited partnership interests will aid in maintaining or increasing the occupancy rates of Legislature ...

(Continued From Page 3) ing the regular session and ran into legal problems about whether they had given up the right to do so in a special session. Perhaps the biggest blot on the record of the 62nd Legislature, however, is the reaction to the stock manipulation scandal that involved Mutscher and his chief aides, as well as the governor and his longtime ally and state Democratic party chairman Dr. Elmer Baum. Lawmakers adopted a code of ethics in the closing minutes of the session but it was too little, too late to untarnish the public's view of everyone connected with the scandal or siding with its participants. No Stock Inquiry Mutscher consistently won large margins of support to put down challenges to his control of the House. He even blocked proposals for an investigation into the scandal until mid-session and then appointed two of his closest supporters to make the inquiry. No report was ever made of the investigation. Senators forced Smith to recall Baum's nomination to the State Banking board. But that move served mainly to get Baum off the hook on answering hostile questions in public about his role in the stock deals. A senate investigating committee did come up with a series of bills to regulate state bank operations such as led to the stock scandal.

Baylor: Possibly Key To NBA Championship

By JOE ST. AMANT
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Egin Baylor looks like a mighty good bet today to become head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers, the key man in their quest for an elusive National Basketball Association championship.

It seems likely that Baylor has already come to terms with Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke, Formal announcement of his selection could be made within a matter of hours.

One source said the announcement would be "a blockbuster" and Baylor could certainly come under that category. He would be following in the trail blazed by Bill Russell, black coach of the Boston Celtics.

If he can get more mileage out of his surgery-scarred legs, Baylor would be a player-coach.

Always supremely popular with the fans, this would enhance his value as a gate attraction, a factor not to be overlooked.

Cooke, a most successful sports entrepreneur and a millionaire who no longer is motivated solely by financial considerations, wants desperately to win an NBA title with the Lakers. That is why he fired Coach Joe Mullaney Thursday, a man who like other Laker coaches came close but could not win the league championship. Mullaney's record in two seasons was 94-70 and he made the playoffs both times.

At 36, Baylor may not be through as a player although he sat out most of last season recovering from surgery for repair of a torn Achilles tendon in his right foot.

Even if he is through after 13 years as an NBA superstar, he still could be the best choice as coach of the Lakers.

He is well respected by his fellow players, a fast man with a quip who can take the wind out of a stuffed-shirt's sails. He can be figured to handle his team mate Wilt Chamberlain, who is in the superstar category, who has had trouble with Laker coaches.

The third Laker superstar, Jerry West, can be calculated to give his all under any coach. He's that kind of man and that kind of player.

Signs began to point to Baylor as the next Laker coach a week ago when he was mentioned as a prospect for the vacated job at the University of Washington.

He admitted he had been approached but did not indicate a decision.

He may have used the Washington offer as a lever on Cooke with the tacit approval of Fred Schaus, general manager and former Laker coach.

'Golden Bear' Protege' Evident In Melnyk Play

CARNOSTIE, Scotland (UPI)—Steve Melnyk, part of America's four-man delegation in today's quarter-finals of the British Amateur Golf Championships, shows noticeable pleasure when likened to the great Jack Nicklaus.

And what golfer would not? "I've played a lot with Jack," he said with obvious pride and there was considerable satisfaction by the way he added: "And I outdrew him as often as he did me."

Melnyk certainly bears considerable physical resemblance to the "Golden Bear" and even as Jack's famous "floating elbow" action at the top of his backswing.

The Georgia-born amateur stands 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs an admitted 230 pounds. Melnyk, who now lives in Jacksonville, Fla., and is a public relations executive with an insurance firm, has awed the galleries with his power hitting during this ancient championship, even though on occasion it has brought him trouble.

During Thursday's fifth round victory over British Walker Cup player David Marsh, the 24-year-old 1969 U.S. Amateur Champion virtually carried the 360-yard par-four 11th with his tee shot. His ball landed in a greenside trap and he had to scramble for a half in four.

The giant American smiled and said, "I aimed for that trap. I didn't think I could get that far."

On various other occasions the big, burly fellow's strength has cost him dearly. Several times this week he has blown a comfortable lead, by blasting into the Barry Burn, a six foot wide stream that meanders across several fairways and should have been out of distance.

The championship lost seven seeded players in Thursday's fourth and fifth rounds, which provided the last 16 for today's program of quarter and semi-final matches.

One of those to fall was Melnyk's Walker Cup teammate John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., but the British squad suffered much more. Home captain Mike Bonallack, who was bidding for his fourth straight title, was bundled out along with five of his squad.

The other Americans to survive Thursday's play were Tom Kite of Austin, Tex., Jim Simons of Butler, Pa., and 49-year-old Dr. Ed Updegraff—drawn against Melnyk today—of Tucson, Ariz.

SHAVING STROKES

By Frank Beard

2—Beat Weight Drift
You want to shift your weight to your right and then back during the golf swing, but many weekend players overdo it and disrupt their balance.

You only want to ease a little over half your weight to the right on your backswing. That applies to the follow-through, too. Don't lunge through the ball. Think about keeping your weight on the insides of your feet.

A good practice gimmick is to guard against swaying by propping a couple of door wedges under the outsides of your feet. I've bought them at the friendly neighborhood hardware store, cheap.

A second approach—and you can take this one onto the course with you—is to flex your knees toward each other as you address the ball. That encourages a good weight shift without going to excess.

Safe Boating Quiz

Q. Boat A is backing up. According to the Rules of the Road, which has the right-of-way? Boat A or Boat B?

A. When a boat is being backed up, the stern temporarily becomes a bow and normal Rules of the Road apply. In this case, Boat B, approaching from the right, takes precedence. It's up to Boat A to turn right and pass astern of Boat B.

BELMONT EXACTA BETS

NEW YORK (UPI)—There will be exacta betting on the Belmont Stakes Saturday and the regulation prohibiting entries in exact races has been waived.

In the event that the Johnny Camp-trained entry of Jim French and Good Behaving finishes first and second, the exacta payoff will be made on the winner and the third place horse.

MAYFIELD SIGNED

NEW YORK (UPI)—Kendall Mayfield, a 32.1 points per game scorer for Tuskegee Institute last season, signed a pro contract Thursday with the New York Knicks for the National Basketball Association.

Canonero II, Declared Ready Willing 'And Raring To Go

NEW YORK (UPI)—Canonero II's trainer, Juan Arias today declared the Kentucky Derby-Preakness Stakes winner in perfect health and ready for a new challenge—a chance to sweep the Triple Crown classics in the Belmont Stakes Saturday.

Throughout racing history only eight horses have been able to win all three classics and it has been 23 long years since Citation, the last of them, turned the trick in 1948.

Eleven 3-year-olds were expected to start in the 1½-mile race, the longest and most taxing test in the Triple Crown series.

Also scheduled to be entered in the Belmont Stakes today were Jim French, Good Behaving, Bold Reason, Epic Journey, Hibinder, Purse Finder, Royal J D, Salem, Twist The Axe and Pass Catcher.

Only Jim French and Bold Reason have gone all the way with Canonero. Jim French was second in the Kentucky Derby and third in the Preakness while Bold Reason was third at Churchill Downs and fifth at Pimlico. Twist The Axe had a crack at Canonero in the Kentucky Derby, finishing fifth. Royal ID was seventh in the Preakness.

The other six Belmont Stakes starters challenge Canonero for the first time and their trainers were counting upon the longer difference.

None of the starters have raced over the grueling 1½ miles and it's the difference "that is so difficult to overcome when going for the Triple Crown," said veteran trainer John Gaver. He won the race for the third time with Stage Door Joanne three years ago, but he does not have a starter this year, nor does Elliot Burch, another three-time Belmont Stakes winning trainer, who pointed out:

"We do not run many races at 1½ miles in the United States and it's a new experience for the starters. By and large, it's the horse that is bred to go 1½ miles that gets the job done."

Canonero had an edge on his rivals in the Kentucky Derby. The colt, who cost $1,200 as a yearling and will be sold for $4 million after the Belmont, raced twice at 1½ miles in Caracas, winning once. The Preakness was decided at 13-16 miles and now Canonero is faced with 1½ miles for the first time, as are all the others.

"He is ready," said Arias, who discounted any ill effect from the two problems the colt has had since he won the Preakness three weeks ago—a skin rash and an infected foot. The skin rash has disappeared along with some hair and the infection has been out of the hoof and the area has responded to treatment.

Arias, following the same procedure he used at Churchill Downs and Pimlico, took Canonero into the paddock and the Winner's Circle on Thursday afternoon. The colt was full of spirit and groom Juan Quintero had all he could do to hold him.

This time Jim French will have a running mate in Good Behaving, who was made a supplementary nomination to the Belmont Stakes at a cost of $5,000. Good Behaving, winner of three stakes this spring, originally was not eligible for classics.

Johnny Campo, who trains both horses, said, "There is nothing wrong with either of my horses. Both worked well for the Belmont Stakes."

John Jacobs, trying Epic Journey in a stakes race for the first time, is counting heavily on breeding to get the colt he trains home.

"Epic Journey is the only starter whose sire and dam have produced Belmont winners. Hall To Reason sired Hall to All, the 1965 winner, and Luquillo produced High Echelon, who won for me last year," he said.

Chicago's Ken Holtzman Pitches First No Hitter

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Left-hander Ken Holtzman of the Chicago Cubs pitched the first no-hitter of the 1971 season Thursday night and at the same time became the first pitcher in Cub history to throw two in a career.

The 25-year-old lefty was rewarded with a standing ovation by the 23,111 fans at Riverfront Stadium here and an instant $1,500 pay raise from General Manager John Holland.

Using almost nothing but fastballs, Holtzman swept through the faltering Cincinnati Reds 1-0 with only 106 pitches and hardly a scare. He served up four walks and six strikeouts.

His first no-hitter was on Aug. 19, 1969, against the Atlanta Braves in Chicago.

"I wasn't as nervous this time," said Holtzman. "You have to have a lot of luck to pitch a no-hitter. Even when there aren't any tough players. I got the breaks tonight."

"I went almost exclusively with my fast ball the last five innings," he added. "I think I threw only about two curves during that span."

Holtzman, remembering his other no-hitter, said he believed his teammates were more calm Thursday night.

He said that first time second baseman Glenn Beckert was so nervous "that he barely threw out Hank Aaron to end the game."

A fine play this time by Beckert helped preserve the no-hitter when the Reds' Tony Perez bounced a seventh inning ground ball just to the right of second base.

"An easy play when you're on this Astro turf," said Beckert shrugging off the compliments. "Of course a faster runner than Perez might have made that play a little closer at first."

The only other near scare of the game was an attempted bunt by Johnny Bench in the seventh. The ball rolled fair about three fourths of the way down the base line, finally curving out by inches.

"If the ball had stayed fair, it would have been a hit," pointed out Holtzman. "There's no question about that."

The victory was only his third in nine decisions this year and Holtzman admitted, "I needed this game."

"I've been getting some tough breaks," he said. "Maybe it'll turn me around. And the Cubs needed a series like this. Maybe it'll turn the team around."

The win gave the Cubs a sweep of a three game series with the Reds and came after the Chicago team had lost 10 of its last previous 13 games.

Cow-Calling Becoming Lost Art?

By ALETHA DAVIS
 Cow-calling is becoming a lost art... or so says the lamenters of the changing times. Gone are the days when a community pasture was used for everybody's milch cows. Every old Bossy wore a bell whose tone could be determined by her owner. Approaching a community cow herd, owners would stand quietly to pick up the tones of their bell, then began to "whoop," yodel or whatever call each employed to alert the family cow to come to the edge of the herd.

Later cowboys supplementing range grass with loads of cake hauled first in wagons behind teams of mules, and more recently, (like the late 1940s) in pickups, began calling the range cows.

Cow-calling is an art. Not just anybody can alert groups of cattle grazing under a hill that it's chow time. With a wide open pasture as a stage cow-feeding time became a favorite pastime for cowboys. (And cowgals too... Thelma Hopkins of Pampa could bring in a herd with the best of them... and probably still could if she had time off from her present bank job!

Some old timers will tell you a "whoop-up" is the best way, others will stand up and holler "yip-yip-yip" brings the bunch. Tones vary from a whiney wail to a solid yell. The rebels in the old Miami area employed a very near to "rebel yell" to bring the mosseys to the feed ground.

With the years gone by, a lazier (or quieter) breed of cowman appeared. Somebody sometimes noticed that a honk on the pickup horn (really meant to signal the dumper that the vehicle was going to move) brought distant grazers to the feed area. So... the horn began to replace the cowboy's voice as a dinner bell.

Now elaborate wiring and intricate ideas are hot-wired on many vehicles used to transport feed to the pasture. Most popular is a low-pitched "ooga" horn wired up so a push button sets off the eerie noise that seems to be music to the ears of the bovines. Music or not, they quit grazing and rush to the pick-up in a real race for first place at the trough.

One Archer County rancher, not wishing to conform to the establishment and rebelling in a special cowboy way, uses a siren to call the feeders. There's something about using a siren on the Texas law books. Something about it being illegal to employ sounds used on emergency vehicles on private conveyances. The rancher grins, and says cows don't know the law. At any rate, when it's feedin' time on the Wineglass spread, the siren breaks the clear morning hour and cattle come to feed.
