Moonmen Probe Mountains, Rille

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientists got their first look at the moon's Apennine Mountains and Hadley Rille on Saturday through Apollo 15's color television camera. They were intrigued by possible layering in the rille's far side and a curious sharp-edged rock amid the rounded, hummocky terrain.

And like almost everyone else, the lunar experts were impressed with the stark beauty of the lunar landscape pictured by the camera on the astronauts' Rover.

The view of the 15,000-foot-high mountains and the 1,200-foot-deep rille or canyon confirmed for the lunar experts their expectations that the visit by astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin will yield data that could bring a quantum jump in knowledge about the moon's evolution.

"The knowledge we get from this mission will at least equal and perhaps exceed what we've learned from all the past missions combined," said Dr. Robin Brett, chief of the geochemistry branch at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The scientists said the apparent layering in the far side of the rille, described by the astronauts and clearly visible on television, didn't seem to favor any particular theory about how the gorge originated.

"So far we've seen nothing to either support or reject a theory of rille formation," Brett said. "We didn't expect one. That will have to wait for the high resolution photography and study of samples taken on the edge of the rille."

But the layering, if it exists, could be very important to understanding how the mare or lunar plain on which the astronauts landed was formed.

"We would be getting a cross-section down through several hundred feet and looking into the historical record of processes that formed the mare," he said. "Perhaps we could see if this material is volcanic—it might be a series of lava flows that built up on top of one another."

The sharp-edged rock near a crater a few feet across was particularly intriguing because such rocks usually are associated with younger craters on the geological time scale. It contrasted with the rounded, dusty nature of the area typical of old lunar regions that have been ground up by eons of bombardment by meteorites.

"The important question is one of how did the rock get there," Dr. S.A. Zist of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said. "If it was dredged up from underneath the surface by the event that created the crater, the rock implies there is good solid rock near the surface and near the edge of the rille."

"If that's the case, it could be an important clue to the formation of the rille."

The rock also represented the first closeup look at a lunar surface rock that had a "track," a groove in the soil behind it and a bank of soil in front giving the appearance the object had been pushed along by some force.

Rocks with tracks first were photographed from lunar orbit, but they hadn't been seen before by a moon landing party, Zist said.

What might account for the track and the movement of the rock, if indeed it moved isn't known, Zist said. Photographs and samples of the rock might give the answer.

Rail Strike Poses Little Threat To Food Stores

Local food store managers said late yesterday food distribution to Pampa retail centers would not suffer adverse effects here unless the rail strike is prolonged.

According to the managers questioned by the News, most of the food in Pampa stores arrives by truck. Unless the strike continues long enough to deplete foods stored in distribution centers, little or no effect is expected here.

One manager said the major shortage would probably come in the produce department. Fresh produce shipped interstate is not being moved from the field. However, Rio Grande Valley produce will still arrive by truck, they said.

Communists' Promise Has String Attached

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong has promised for the first time to identify all its U.S. war prisoners as soon as the United States sets a deadline for the total withdrawal of its troops from Vietnam.

The undertaking was given by the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, in an interview with the Associated Press Friday.

She also sharply criticized William J. Porter, newly appointed chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, for what she called the "unheard-of-savagery" of the pacification program in South Vietnam under his direction.

Mrs. Binh declined during the 75-minute interview in her suburban residence to comment directly on President Nixon's attempt to improve U.S. relations with China. But she said that insofar as Nixon wants to engage the Chinese leaders in a discussion of a Vietnam settlement, his forthcoming trip to Peking will be pointless.

She accused the Nixon administration of ignoring the seven-point peace plan she presented to the Paris talks on July 1, and said outgoing U.S. negotiator David K. T. Bruce indulged in "time-wasting maneuvers" to avoid serious discussion of the plan. The first of the seven points, which she said could be implemented separately, calls for a total U.S. withdrawal by Dec. 31, together with step-by-step release of military and civilian prisoners held by both sides.

Asked why the Viet Cong, unlike Hanoi, has never published a list of its American prisoners, Mrs. Binh replied, "If Mr. Nixon wants to settle the problem of the prisoners, he only needs to set a deadline for the withdrawal of his troops."

"Then he will have not only the list, he will have their liberation."

She was asked whether the Viet Cong intended to produce a list of the American prisoners as soon as a withdrawal date was announced.

"Yes, this is certainly something U.S. officials said their figures, now a month old, indicate that 500 American servicemen are missing in South Vietnam, many of them assumed to be held in Viet Cong camps." (See VC, Page 122)

Nixon said achieving and keeping peace is not easy but "we are dedicated to this position."

The President also said that here at home the people on farms and small communities have not been getting their share of progress and prosperity and the better things of life.

"I can tell you today," he said, "we in Washington are determined to help you change the way to build a better country as to discover again the grace and beauty of this heartland of America so that people, instead of moving out, will move back here and develop it again."

UP TO MIDNIGHT
Planned Nationwide Walkout By Steelworkers Uncertain

WASHINGTON, AP — The AFL-CIO United Steel Workers Union reportedly agreed Saturday night to a 24-hour extension of contracts to continue considering steel industry offers covering 350,000 workers.

An all-night Friday bargaining session boosted the offer of nine big steel firms from their original proposal which a union official described as "sturdy" and "completely unacceptable."

However, the reported improvement in the industry's proposal, one source said "it could still go either way" after a settlement or a strike.

The steel companies already were banking blast furnaces in preparation for a possible shutdown. Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, announced its furnaces will remain shut down all week.

Harold F. Miller, general manager of the Bethlehem plants in Bethlehem, Pa., said the firm "has no alternative but to commence an orderly shutdown so that the facilities are fully protected in the event a strike materializes."

He also said, "Since the company will incur substantial expenses because of the shutdown and in order to bring operations into balance the facilities will remain down for the week beginning Aug. 1."

Three Youths Jailed On Burglarly Charges

Combined efforts of county and state officers have resulted in the arrest of three Pampa youths in connection with the $1,500 burglary of the Peppermint Lounge and J. J. Barber Shop, 715 S. Broadway, early last Monday.

Timothy E. Russey, 17, Steve Young, 19, and Louston L. Smith, 18, all of Pampa, were held on burglary counts by the 31st District Court.

While being questioned in the Dallas department at the county court house, one of the trio jumped out of a second window in an effort to escape.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said Timothy Russey was captured a short time later by City Patrolman Bob Franklin.

All three youths were in county jail Saturday. Judge Grainger McElhany set bond on Young and Samuels at $2,500 each. Russey's bond was fixed at $500 because of the escape attempt.

Sheriff Jordan said the Peppermint Lounge and barber shop were vandalized and looted of approximately $1,500 worth of merchandise in the July 26 burglary.

The loot included two television sets, tape recorder, cigarettes, beer, wine, barbershop equipment and vending machine products.

Heavy damage was done to the vending machines, along with other vandalism in the lounge. Sheriff Jordan said.

The sheriff added that most of the stolen articles had been recovered.

Texas Ranger Bill Baten, assistant chief George Wallace and J. J. Ryzman, investigator with the Pampa police department, enlisted the aid of local skin divers late yesterday in an attempt to recover more of the items which had allegedly been thrown into City Lake at Recreation Park by the suspects.

Wallace said last night hair spray, a coat and an ice chest were recovered by the divers.

DIRECT CALLS CHEAPER

Telephone Rates To Change Sept. 1

DALLAS — An adjustment of long distance telephone rates, which features a new reduced rate for Direct Distance Dialing and increased rates for operator-assisted calls within Texas, has been announced by southwestern Bell.

Scheduled to go into effect Sept. 1, the adjustment should increase gross revenue by about two per cent, or $15 million annually. H. D. Schodde, vice president for Southwestern Bell operations in Texas, said the after-tax result will be an increase of $7 million in net operating revenue.

"That amount should assist the company in maintaining its earnings in the range of 5.3 per cent on the value of its property in Texas," Schodde said.

and July 4th — also have been added to the list of days on which reduced rates apply for DDD calls.

We've been able to avoid making an adjustment on intrastate rates due to improved technology," Schodde said.

However, the high cost of borrowed money and increased operating costs, including taxes and wages leaves us little other choice now than to place the new rates in effect. We hope customers will take advantage of the reductions which we're offering in this package to keep their individual costs as low as possible.

Comparing previous rates with those which will go into effect Sept. 1, Schodde pointed out that an evening three-minute station-to-station call under previous rates for a distance of 300 miles would have been 85 cents. The same call under the new customer dialed rate would be 66 cents.

Schodde also noted that a call after 11 p.m. anywhere in Texas would cost 22 cents or less under the new one-minute initial rate period.

Under previous rates, a three-minute person-to-person daytime call up to 300 miles would have been $1.70. Under the new rates, the same call would be $2.30.

The new DDD rate will be available in towns which are not equipped for DDD when station-to-station calls are placed by providing the operator with the Area Code and complete telephone number, and when the operator is not required to provide any additional assistance.

State Solon Begins Challenge Of Houston Redistricting Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A Republican lawmaker from Midland begins his state district court challenge here Monday of the House redistricting plan that eliminates his district.

Rep. Tom Craddock, a member of the "Dirty 30," originally filed his suit in Midland, but the defendants, including Gov. Preston Smith, got the case transferred to Austin.

The "Dirty 30" is a group of House liberals and Republicans that opposed Speaker Gus Mutscher and the "establishment" during this year's legislative session.

Only five of the "dirty 30" capped injury under Mutscher's redistricting bill. Several of them criticized the speaker for what they called a deliberate and vindictive attempt to punish them with the bill by forcing them to run against each other or against other incumbents.

Craddock's suit contends that the bill violates the Texas Constitution because it eliminates his district and splits Midland County between two other districts.

The state constitution says when a county lacks the population to constitute a separate district by itself, it shall be joined to contiguous counties until it reaches the necessary size.

An attorney general's opinion in 1965 held that this provision requires "that counties be kept intact and their boundaries not be violated."

This opinion was specifically upheld by a three-judge federal court Craddock's suit says.

The state has answered that this requirement is secondary to the U. S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote rule. It says ties may be split if that is the only way to achieve the correct population balance between districts.

Craddock's suit says 19 counties were split under the House bill and that it was necessary to split only one of them — one of the three counties adjacent to Bowie County (Texas) — to come within the 9 per cent deviation between the largest and smallest districts in the House redistricting bill.

(Federal courts have held deviations of as much as 6 per cent to be too great under the one-man, one-vote rule.)

Midland County has a population of 66,433. Division of the state's 11,196,730 population by the 150 House seats shows the perfect district would have a population of exactly 74,645.

Midland County is thus split and placed in two representative border of Texas on the way to Abilene, 187 miles northwest of Midland, and yet, Midland is only 9,212 persons short of the ideal number of 74,645," Craddock's suit says.

prison camps in the jungles along the Vietnamese-Cambodian border. The total includes a score of Americans who disappeared in Cambodia during the U.S. incursion there last year.

Through intelligence and other sources, the United States has firm information that eight or nine of the nearly 600 missing in action in South Vietnam were captured alive. Nothing is known of the fate of the remainder. Hanoi published a list last December of the 330 American prisoners it claims to hold. The United States lists 783 air-crew members missing over North Vietnam. The Viet Cong has never explained its failure to publish a similar list.

Mrs. Binh's voice took on a hard edge when she turned to Porter, who is due to take over the U.S. delegation in late August.

Porter, until now ambassador to South Korea, served as deputy ambassador in Saigon from mid-1965 to 1967 and was in charge of the pacification program seeking to eliminate the Viet Cong political infrastructure.

"We know something about Mr. Porter," Mrs. Binh said. "He dealt with the pacification plan and political questions, and I can tell you that the Vietnamese people consider the pacification program to have been conducted with military and political means of unheard-of savagery. This is what we know about Mr. Porter."

She was asked whether she held Porter personally responsible for any excesses of the pacification program.

"What we know of Mr. Porter is that as long as he directed this policy he was responsible for it," she replied.

70 Oil 12 Gas Wells Completed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission reported Saturday that 70 oil wells and 12 gas wells were completed during the past week in Texas.

That raised the total oil well completions for the year to 2,632, compared with 2,692 a year ago, and gas well completions to 687, compared with 837 in the year 1970.

The commission said 215 wells were plugged, including 57 dry holes.

Four wildcat gas wells were drilled — one each in the Corpus Christi, Kilgore, Houston and Pampa Districts. Two wildcat oil wells were drilled — one in the Corpus Christi District and one in the San Antonio No. 2 District.

Congress Moves To Cut Off U.S. Aid To Greece

WASHINGTON (AP) — A showdown has been slated in Congress next Tuesday on cutting off all American aid to the military government of Greece. The floor fight is set for the day U.S. Ambassador Henry J. Tasca returns from Athens for closed-door questioning before a House subcommittee that has been critical of the junta's rule. The House Foreign Affairs Committee already has voted to eliminate all $118 million in proposed aid to Greece until the junta restores democratic government. A move to restore the aid is expected when the House takes up the $3.3-billion foreign aid authorization bill Tuesday. Three of five congressmen who talked with top Greek rulers during visits to Athens last week say the cutoff could imperil American use of key military bases in the NATO nation. "Our action, if we pursue this course, could very well alienate a very important NATO ally," said Rep. Ray Blanton, D-Tenn., one of the congressmen who conferred with Premier George Papadopoulos. The foreign aid package contains a hedge that would allow Greek aid to be continued at the current $60-million-a-year level if President Nixon certifies it is in the "overriding requirements of the national security." An embargo on U.S. arms aid imposed after the junta seized control in 1967, was lifted last fall. Meeting with Papadopoulos were Reps. Brock Adams, D-

Wash.; Peter N. Kyros, D-Maine; Gus Yatron, D-Pa., and Blanton. Their trip to Athens was paid by a Greek fraternal group, the Penepirotic Federation of America and Canada, which already had invited the congressmen to attend its convention in Greece before the cutoff question arose in the Foreign Affairs Committee. Blanton quoted Premier Papadopoulos as saying his country is moving toward full constitutional government. But he said the junta strongman added, "We will not be dictated to from the outside." Kyros said Papadopoulos cautioned, "The Greeks have long known how to go it alone." Kyros, a Greek-American, said he doesn't know how he will vote on the aid, since he favors a faster move toward free elections in Greece, but recognizes the country's importance to U.S. security in the Middle East. Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., who made a separate 12-day trip to Greece, said the junta has brought more stability and progress to the nation. With No. 2 strongman Stylianos Pattikos at his side, Hanna issued a statement in Athens saying Greek elections were solely a Greek issue. He called it a mistake for the House to move toward American interference in Greek internal political affairs.

Fusion Reactors Possible By End Of This Century

LUBBOCK (AP)—Give physicists another five years of hard scientific research, and they're likely to solve the complicated problems involved in producing thermonuclear fusion — the virtually pollution free power source derived from elements found in water. Then engineers and technologists can take over and solve mechanics of producing the power economically. "By the turn of the century," according to one British scientist, "The cost of producing energy by fusion reactors and by atomic fusion breeder reactors should be in the same ballpark."

Congress Urged To Live Up To Responsibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unofficial House panel probing the Pentagon papers has heard repeated testimony that Congress abdicated its responsibility to maintain a check and balance on the president's handling of foreign affairs. One House member suggested Congress be abolished if it could not live up to its responsibilities. And another said the American public should be informed Congress is not doing its job. The testimony came during a three-day hearing called by 17 antiwar congressmen to probe the 47-volume Pentagon papers and what they showed about the government's inner workings. The documents traced origins of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. Jonathan Mirsky, a Dartmouth professor and co-director of the East Asia Center, told the panel Congress doesn't know about important foreign-policy decisions because it doesn't want to accept the responsibility accompanying that knowledge. "It's not that you have a need to know," he said. "It's that you don't want to know. What you really need is a desire to know. And you might not want to stay in Congress any more if you knew" the results of the policy, he added. Daniel Ellsberg, a former Defense Department researcher who says he leaked the war documents to newsmen, said Congress should press the executive department for details of the Cambodian and Laotian invasions. "When will Congress decide it has the need to know what planning went on in the Cambodian invasion or the Laos invasion?" he asked. "There's no question there was great deception." Ellsberg, who helped prepare the Pentagon papers and is under indictment after being accused of possessing copies, said Congress bears responsibility for the Vietnam war but not as much as the President. "The responsibility of those lied to is not as great as those doing the lying," he said. The former Rand Corp. employee suggested Congress consider impeaching officials who refuse to disclose information on foreign policy or those who lie about foreign affairs. He urged consideration of impeachment proceedings against Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and the secretaries of the Army and Air Force. "Congress has in effect signed over its responsibilities," he said, adding "congressmen seem to almost act out this role of helplessness and are not serving their constituents." Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., told the panel people should say: "If Congress can't be a meaningful institution, 'Go home, or be abolished.'"

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — A four-engine plane, carrying singer-pianist Ray Charles, the Raylettes and the Ray Charles orchestra, was forced to land at the Florence Municipal Airport Thursday evening. The plane, a Viscount with 26 persons aboard, was virtually filled with smoke when it landed. However, there was no sign of fire. The smoke came from a melting battery in a compartment beneath the passenger cabin, the airport manager, Tommy Griffin, said.

U.S. Broke Up Attempted Coup Against Ngo Dinh Diem In 1960

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States broke up an attempted military coup against the late South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem by threatening to break relations and cut off economic aid if rebels shelled the Saigon palace, former U.S. ambassador Elbridge Durbrow said today. The retired career diplomat said the incident took place Nov. 11-12, 1960, three years before Diem and his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, were deposed and killed in another coup. Durbrow said Diem had been giving serious consideration to U.S. requests that he name his brother an ambassador or send him abroad for some assignment. Diem probably would have done this, Durbrow said, if it had not been for the unsuccessful coup attempt headed by Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi. Nhu had become a "public-relations detriment to the Diem regime, the former ambassador said. The coup caused Diem to change his whole position and tighten things up very much around the country and he obviously felt he had to have his brother's advice in this operation," Durbrow said in a radio broadcast sponsored by the American Security Council. At the time of the coup, Durbrow said, he did everything he could to help Diem and "I might have kept him from being bumped off."

Wall Street Chatter

By JOHN HENRY AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Small daily price changes and consistently sluggish trading made the stock market a study in slow motion during the past week.

Over the course of the week the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined a mere 0.73 to 887.78. Daily trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange never exceeded 12.6 million shares.

"There is a total lack of interest, people aren't responding to good or bad news," said one broker last Friday.

Observers noted that developments generally regarded as favorable, such as President Nixon's proposed visit to Communist China and a continuing ter earnings, failed to spark any sustained rally.

On the other hand, the news that the Nixon administration's economic plan had been dealt setback in the form of a sharp rise in the cost of living in June had no visible negative impact on the market.

At least some observers attributed the market's lethargic attitude to the cautious attitude of investors whose uncertainty about the direction of the economy prompted them to retreat to the sidelines.

Market indicators behaved as follows over the past week: The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined 0.73 to 887.78. The Associated Press 60-stock average lost 0.6 to 119.0. The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 commons slipped 0.15 to 54.82; and the American Stock Exchange index declined 0.17 to 25.44.

Israel Pressured Into Agreement Reopening Canal

Middle East Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco conferred with Premier Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban in Jerusalem today launching a new attempt by the Nixon administration to pressure Israel into an agreement reopening the Suez Canal.

Arab leaders meanwhile gathered in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, to condemn King Hussein of Jordan for his successful crackdown on the Palestinian guerrillas. Tripoli radio reported that the Libyan strongman, Col. Muammar Kadafi, would demand collective military intervention to "prevent Hussein by force from liquidating the Palestine guerrilla movement."

Reliable sources in Jerusalem said Sisco and Eban reviewed American and Israeli policy positions before meeting with Mrs. Meir.

Sisco is likely to meet stiff opposition as he attempts to prod Jerusalem leaders into concessions toward a partial settlement which would reopen the war-block canal.

Mrs. Meir's Cabinet, which has not been altogether pleased with America's peace-seeking tactics, was in a no-concessions mood, informants said.

Sudan's President, Jaafar el Numairi, decided at the last moment not to attend the Arab summit, but the Middle East News agency said he would send a high-ranking representative. Numairi regained power July 22 after a coup and said he was too busy with events at home to attend the summit.

Expert Says Atomic Energy Essential To ManKind

By GLENN T. SEABORG Chairman, Atomic Energy Commission For the Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — I have been asked what lies ahead for nuclear energy and what my concerns might be for its future development to meet our energy needs.

Let me begin by stressing those needs. Contrary to much that is being said today—and notwithstanding much that we might do to use our energy more efficiently and wisely—we are going to use an enormous amount of that energy in the years and decades ahead. In particular we are going to see an increasing demand for electricity which is our most versatile means of using energy and can be our cleanest.

The reasons for this continued growth of electric power are inevitably tied to our growing population, the rising expectation of that population—particularly those of it for whom the American Dream is still far from a reality—and the need of more, not less, power to clean up our environment and keep it that way.

I have no doubts that nuclear power will be needed to supply an increasing share of our electric power. For environmental, economic and energy resources reasons we simply will not be able to get along without this shift toward nuclear power. And it must be a well-planned and well-managed transition in which the highest priority is given to environmental and safety considerations.

I believe that at present we are pursuing such transition. Of course there has been criticism of the development of nuclear power—some of it justified—but all things considered, our advances in nuclear energy have been remarkable. And it is indeed unfortunate that many who are critical of the atom do not understand it better and do not evaluate it on a comparative basis with other source of energy.

Today we know we must rectify this situation. We must, at considerable cost, buy back a health environment and we must do this at the same time that we advance our man-made, urban-industrial environment.

This is directly related to the cost of energy and particularly to the cost of electricity which has always been considered an energy "bargain."

If we are going to generate the large amounts of electricity we will need in the future—regardless of which resources we use—and do so with a minimum impact on our environment the cost of electricity is bound to rise.

This will be true in order to clean up fossil fuels, to assure the safest and most efficient use of nuclear resources, to reduce the thermal effects of all power generation, to site plants in more acceptable locations and to manage the long-distance transmission of their electricity in a more efficient and aesthetic manner.

The public must realize that it is going to be expensive, for example, to desulfurize coal and oil, to gasify coal, to develop untapped energy sources such as geothermal heat and solar energy and new conversion systems such as MHD, to site plants at coastal "power parks" or on off-shore islands, if this proves feasible, and to place high-voltage transmission cable underground.

It is also going to be costly carry out the necessary developments in the nuclear field to see the success of a commercial breeder reactor and eventually full-scale controlled fusion.

Our most immediate need is to move ahead rapidly to the commercial introduction of the Liquid metal-cooled Fast Breeder Reactor (LMFBR). Such a timely introduction of this type of nuclear system will have widespread advantages—in many ways it will be essential to our overall energy picture.

The LMFBR will effect tremendous efficiencies in the use of our natural nuclear fuels, it will reduce the environmental and thermal effects of nuclear power and it will significantly reduce the cost of nuclear power as we approach an era—the turn of the century—when supplies of fossil fuels will be much tighter and perhaps more than half of the nation's primary energy source will be going into the generation of electricity.

The government and private industry will have to share the cost of breeder development—to bring our breeder program, already making great strides, to its successful fruition.

Beyond this, of course, is the hope that we will eventually see controlled fusion first be proved feasible in our laboratory and then be advanced through the necessary development stages to become a full-scale commercial source of power.

When this happens we will have achieved the ultimate source of power able to supply man's needs for millions of years. But unfortunately, this achievement is not "just around the corner" as some would have us believe.

In my opinion, it may be 30 years or more before controlled fusion will be developed to the point where it is our major source of power. And this is one reason why we must have breeder reactors on the line. To gamble either on the major use of fossil fuels or the full-scale success of controlled fusion could lead us into a global energy crisis of incredible proportions.

In the years to come, we must move ahead wisely with an overall energy plan that considers all aspects of energy technological possibilities, social and economic factors, environmental demands and human needs.

Energy, an enormous amount of it—is going to be essential to our survival and we are going to have to devote our best talent and considerable effort and resources to making it available where and when we need it and in ways compatible with other needs of life. I am confident that we can—and will—be able to succeed in this difficult task.

I am grateful for the opportunity I have had to play a small role in the development of nuclear energy. I will look forward—and continue to work toward—its future development, for I think we have seen only the beginning of the Nuclear Age.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Chancery Court Judge Nedlitz has issued a temporary injunction prohibiting Tennessee Ernie Ford Foods, Inc., from further use of the entertainer's name or likeness.

For Ford has filed suit charging that the Nashville-based food franchise company failed to live up to a contract and owes him $125,000 in royalties.

In his suit Ford says he notified company officials last March that they had defaulted on their contract and that he wished to terminate their agreement. Ford says the company agreed to pay him, but has failed to do so.

Cowboys Trade Thomas For Three Patriot Stars

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League traded their holdout running star, Duane Thomas, to the New England Patriots Saturday for Carl Garrett and two other players. The Cowboys also picked up the Patriots' No. 1 draft choice next season in the trade.

Garrett was the American Football League's rookie of the year in 1969 and Thomas was the National Football League's offensive rookie of the year last season.

Thomas demanded Thursday that the Cowboys trade him to some other team.

The former West Texas State running back then said Friday he would report to the Cowboys' training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif., but changed his mind six hours later.

Thomas blasted the Cowboys in a new conference in Dallas last week. He called head coach Tom Landry "a plastic man, no man at all," and club president Tex Schramm "dishonest."

Thomas' agent, Chuck DeKeado, said Friday he was dropping the controversial running back because "I have a reputation to worry about."

"I'm breaking off all relationship with Duane," DeKeado said. "I'm handling people like Mel Renfro and Jethro Pugh and I have a reputation to worry about," he said.

The Patriots also acquired Halver Hagen, a 6-5, 255-pound offensive lineman who was the Cowboys' third-round draft pick two years ago, and wide receiver Honor Jackson, a rookie from Pacific picked ninth in the draft.

Garrett, from New Mexico Highlands, had a sensational rookie year when he gained 691 yards for a 5.1 average and led the league in kickoff returns. Garrett played high school football in Denton, Tex.

He had problems last year, however, as did the rest of the Patriots, who won only two games. He gained 272 yards on 88 carries for a 3.1 average, scoring four touchdowns.

Thomas, the Cowboys' No. 1 pick last year, gained 803 yards last season on 151 carries for a 5.3 average, scoring five touchdowns.

The No. 1 draft choice the Patriots traded had been acquired from the Los Angeles Rams in compensation for Phil Olsen. The Patriots' original 1972 No. 1 pick went to the Minnesota Vikings in the Joe Knapp acquisition.

Pamcel Youth Clinic Closes With Smiles

The Pamcel Junior Golf Clinic ended with seven smiling faces as five boys and two girls won trophies in a graduation tournament held Saturday morning at the Pamcel Golf Course.

Steve Hopkins won the senior boys division and Randy Juenger placed second. In the Junior Boys division Danny Williams took top honors while Mark Epperson and Gerg Christner placed third.

The two girls taking home top honors in the girls division of the proposed annual affair were Connie Cornett and Cynthia Williams.

A total of 31 participants entered the golf clinic held Monday through Friday, July 26-30 and 26 entered the tournament wrapping up the session.

The golf clinic taught the basic principles of golf stressing golf etiquette and rules of play. Tournament Director Roger Dickson said, "The clinic and tournament was sponsored by the Pamcel Golf Club and we are hopeful that it will be held on an annual basis."

Members contributing to the clinic were: Ed Juenger, Dave Dameron, Bill Prince, Monte Fleming, Irwin Williams and Bill Ellis. Helping the girls were: Sheryl Grady, June Dameron, Marjorie Fritsch, Betty Ellis and Mrs. Tommy Williams.

Golfers From Tri-State Area Arrive In Pampa

Senior golfers from a wide area started arriving in town Saturday for the Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament which opens at the Pampa Country Club Monday and runs through Friday.

Approximately 175 golfers are expected, according to J.R. Brown secretary of the Senior Golfers Association.

Practice rounds will begin Monday, with qualifying rounds scheduled for Tuesday. Match play will be held Wednesday and Thursday, with the finals on Friday.

The Association's annual banquet will be held Tuesday evening at the Pampa Country Club with Don Land serving as master of ceremonies and entertainment provided by "that Band With Dixieland." Mayor Mlo Carlson will extend the city's official welcome.

Roy Lester, of Tulsa, Okla., is president of the association; Al Warner of Wichita, Kansas, first vice president; F. B. Martin, Amarillo, second vice president; and J. R. Brown, Amarillo secretary.

Last year's champion was "Spec" Goldman of Dallas who won with a round of 70, one under par. Goldman has won the tourney three times and needs one more win to tie the record of four victories won by Red Gober of Austin and J.R. Brown of Amarillo. It is rumored he will be trying this year.

Local golfers serving in the board of directors of the association include: R. A. Baker, L. P. Clarke, Kyle Hall, Mark Heath, F. F. Kennedy, Haskell Maguire, Fred Neslage and Wiley Reynolds.

Mrs. Mark Heath of Pampa, is chairman of social functions during the week; and Jewett Scarbrough, chairman of the Sports Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of special prizes for the tournament.

A group of Top O' Texaps will be on hand to greet the visiting golfers at a reception Monday evening at the Country Club.

State Park Suggested For Canadian River

"The Land Office has no jurisdiction over hunting or fishing, our jurisdiction is over the riverbed," were the opening statements of Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong during a Friday session with Pampa area hunters and landowners.

Armstrong visited Pampa after a Thursday conference in Borger with people interested in the opening or closing of the Canadian Riverbed to the public for hunting.

A helicopter tour by Armstrong and General James U. Cross of the Parks and Wildlife Commission gave both state offices an insight into the dispute between landowners and hunters.

According to Armstrong, the problem, in his opinion, was "The matter of an engineering decision and not a cutbank-to-cutbank interpretation accepted by many people. It is up to the Land Commission to determine the boundaries of the Canadian River."

"There is a special problem in the Panhandle and the Canadian based on the erection of a man-made structure (Sanford Dam) and the blocking of the natural flow of the Canadian River. Ownership of land in and along the river is determined by the natural flow of the river. It is my principle responsibility to see that the state does not lose land. I would like to point out that here is like to point out that there is no statute of limitation for state property."

When asked about fences

across the Canadian, Armstrong pointed out the Land Commission has no authority to lease land for the purpose of grazing. "There is no state-owned riverbed land leased for grazing in Texas — I don't have that authority. I consider the riverbed land here public land, and it's my frank opinion that this land belongs to the public."

"Although nobody holds grazing leases at this time, there are obviously cattle grazing in the riverbed — I saw them and we've got to resolve this problem."

"I don't consider it proper to put fences across state property, just as I wouldn't think it proper to put a fence across another man's land." Armstrong mentioned he had seen one fence across the riverbed and bulldozed areas signifying future construction of fences.

Pampa Little Leaguers Advance To State Play

Pampa's American League All-Stars came charging from behind to outlast the Levelland Little Leaguers 5 to 2 Friday night to win a playoff spot in the state tournament August 10.

Fifteen Little League teams will be represented in the tournament which will be hosted in Waco.

The team will continue to practice in Pampa this next week before traveling to the tourney. Manager Joe Skinner and coach Harley Knutson want to keep the team in shape for the upcoming tournament and will have them ready to play when the Aug. 10 game arrives.

The state tourney is a single elimination affair and if Pampa should lose their first game will be eliminated from further competition. A victory will send the young Pampans into action August 12 and in order to win the tourney they will have to win a total of four games. This will be a great test of pitching strength and the locals have shown in past efforts that pitching is their greatest strength.

The team will leave Pampa August 9 and stay on campus at TSTL Representing District One, the Pampa All-Stars will have officials from Little League Headquarters at Williamsport, Pa. in attendance during the tournament.

In Friday's game the Americans had been trailing since the second inning when they caught up and passed Levelland by scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. At the time the locals were trailing two to one. Both of Levelland's runs were unearned.

Pampa scored their markers by getting two hits sandwiched around two errors and a hit batter. Rick Moore scored the tying run from third base when second baseman Teddy Bayse let a drive by Mike Knutson get past. This left runners on second and third when Tommy Washington came to bat.

Washington slammed a two-line pitch off the right field mail sending in both runners. He later scored on an error by the pitcher. This brought about the final score of 5-2.

Gary Bolch, Pampa's fireballing right hander had been moving down the opposition with the exception of the second inning when he lost the plate and walked two batters who scored on an assortment of wild-pitches and passed balls.

Bolch only gave up one safety. This occurred in the first when Brad Woods smashed the ball to Mark Ebencamp. The ball went to Ebencamp's right and he was unable to make a play on it. Because of the way the ball was hit and its difficulty in being fielded, the officials ruled a hit, otherwise Bolch would have had a no-hitter.

Bolch's pitching was superb as he put down the hard hitting visitors with only the one safety, struck out eleven, the last four batters fell on strikeouts, and walked four.

Mark Hill, the losing pitcher, gave up five runs on five hits and committed two errors. Coming into the Friday battle with Pampa, Hill had been averaging 8 strikeouts per game. His only strike-outs in Friday's game came in the first inning when he retired the first two batters.

Members contributing to the clinic were: Ed Juenger, Dave Dameron, Bill Prince, Monte Fleming, Irwin Williams and Bill Ellis. Helping the girls were: Sheryl Grady, June Dameron, Marjorie Fritsch, Betty Ellis and Mrs. Tommy Williams.

The Pamcel Golf Club will be hosting the Pamcel Open

Mary Ann Stockstill, Ken R. Gill Wed In Double-Ring Candlelight Rite

Mary Ann Stockstill and Ken Randall Gill exchanged wedding vows Friday evening in the sanctuary of St. Matthews Episcopal Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Stockstill, Pampa, and Bill Stockstill, east of city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Gill of Miami.

The Rev. Sam Hulsey read double-ring service before a background of candles and greenery. Spiral candelabra entwined with salal foliage flanked the altar. Tree candelabra surrounded the bridal party. Tall gold urns of white chrysanthemums completed the setting.

Mrs. Michael Cates, vocalist, sang "Thanks Be To Thee" and "Whither Thou Goest." Jerry Whitten, organist, played tradition processional and recessional selections.

BRIDE

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, David Stockstill, wore a formal length gown of candlelight peau-de-soie and Alencon lace.

The shallow scooped neckline featured a narrow bow of Alencon lace over-layered with English net, giving a sheer yoke effect.

The Empire bodice and part of the bishop sleeves were fashioned from Alencon. Peau-de-soie cuffed the wrist-length sleeves which closed with tiny buttons.

Scattered lace motifs added accent to the a-line skirt of peau-de-soie. The full detachable chapel train was appliqued with lace. Bows added back interest at the waistline. A matching candlelight veil of imported illusion fell from a mantilla-type headpiece. Lace appliques edged the chapel veil, and the bride carried a cascade of bouquet gardenias.

ATTENDANTS

Bridal attendants were identically dressed in gowns of candlelight georgette. High Victorian necklines were designed of Venise lace interlaced with moss green velvet ribbon. Long bishop sleeves ended in cuffs of lace.

The empire bodices featured triple rows of lace and moss green velvet ribbon extended around the Empire waistlines. Softly gathered columned skirts accented the formal gowns. Bouquets of green salal fashioned in single foliage flowers completed the ensembles.

Outdoor Dining Tent Makes Cookouts Fun

A real summertime pleasure is an outdoor dining nook for leisurely Sunday breakfasts, informal luncheons, cook-out suppers. Every house should have one—if you can't build one on, you can sew one up.

The design involves a simple frame, covered with fabric and attached to the outside wall of the house with eye-hooks and cup-hooks.

The fabric walls are held taut by wooden battens slipped through casings, and the whole business can be easily dismantled.

It works best if you have an outside corner to brace it, but it can be done on a flat outside wall. Choose an attractive, lightweight fabric in a coordinated print and solid, such as a multi-purpose Fortrel-cotton which is durable press with soil-release finish.

The side wall of this dining tent is 8 feet high at the back, 9 feet along the floor from front to back and 6 feet high at the front. To make the side wall, join two 34-inch strips of fabric, adding 4-inch hems at the bottom and along the slanted edge of the top. Slide 1-inch by 1-inch battens through the hems. Attach battens to house with eye-hooks and cup-hooks.

To furnish your tent, lay a flush door over a couple of sawhorses to make a table; use army cots for seating. Cots may be covered in coordinated fabric; place mats and napkins pick up colors of print.

Naturally, the two cots may be used for sleeping, thus turning the dining tent into a guest room.

Secure fabric cover to house

Sew up an outdoor dining tent, with Riverdale's Fortrel/cotton fabric draped over a simple frame and secured to the side of the house. Cheaper and prettier than a new addition.

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

By BETTY CANARY

I was late for a lunch appointment the other day because a neighbor girl gave me some dandelions. Such a gift quite naturally meant returning to the house in order to find a pin for my lovely corsage.

I apologized to my friends for my tardiness, shared my neighbor's gift, and the four of us agreed unanimously that there's truly no end to the ways of being loved.

Somebody once said, "Only the aware are grateful." Thinking about my dandelions should help when I feel neglected, unloved or alone. They'll remind me to become more aware of what I've already been offered on a lonely day.

It's possible we spend too many hours regretting that no grand gestures have come our way lately. We sign for the lifelong avowals, the big proofs, the magnificent gifts. We too often overlook the small gestures of love certainly of little or no material value.

Gestures of love certainly include an emerald bracelet on a birthday and a trip to England on a tenth anniversary.

Gestures of love are also:

A four-year-old offering dandelions.

The boy at the supermarket who always remembers how you like your frozen items packed.

A daughter bringing coffee to you on the patio.

The newsboy placing your paper behind the screen door.

A smile shared with the bus driver while two children hunt for correct change.

A rehearsal dinner was given at Furr's Cafeteria by the bridegroom's parents.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Freddy Upshaw, Abilene; Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Fox, Austin; Mrs. Albert Wallis, Austin; G. W. Wells, of California; Cindy Virgen, of California; Mr. and Mrs. Billy King, Mr. and Mrs. David Pitt, Mr. and Mrs. Scott McDowell and Patricia, all of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brownfield, Ronda and Karen, Lefors and Wanda Caldwell, Dallas.

POLLY'S POINTERS Bleach Turns Disaster Into Decorative Item

DEAR POLLY—Quite by accident I have the most attractive bathroom rug. Some bleach was spilled on my avocado green throw rug and since it could not be dyed, I duplicated the bleach spot by making more. The bleach was put in a squeeze bottle with a very small opening, then run all over the rug in a clover design and zigzag lines. I could keep track of the design I was doing as the bleach immediately removed the color. I rinsed the bleach out well and dried the rug. My green rug has gold designs all over it and the original spots are lost in the pattern.

—MRS. V.

GIRLS—That is real ingenuity when a disaster can be turned into a decoration.

—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have just finished some furniture and would like to know if anyone can tell me how to remove the shine from this new varnish to make the finish look old.

—CLARA

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is a suggestion to the manufacturers of electric beaters that hang up. I would like to see hooks attached on the side to hold the cord securely.

—JOY

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. E.A. and Linda who wanted to make toys out of milk cartons can make nice square blocks. For one block, use two cartons cut off at the same height. Insert the open end of one into the open end of the other and have a perfect block without using any tape. They are a tight fit and will stay together permanently so there is no danger of losing the rocks or whatever is put inside for noise.

—MRS. A.L.P.

DEAR POLLY—The ladies who wanted to make toys from milk cartons can make a doll bed by cutting out one side. By cutting open one side in each, these cartons could be used for rooms to make a doll house. The boys can use them for garages if the tops are cut off. Also they could be used to make building blocks for building forts, a playhouse and such. For this, cut off the pouring section and then stack them. Since they are fairly light in weight the cartons could be stapled together at the open ends. To make a doll chair, cut off the top, then cut down each edge of one side until it will fold upward for securing with staples. Cut off the two sides, leaving just the back; cut off half of each of the two sides to make arms or just leave the sides on.

—MRS. W.W.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem D. Waggoner

Couple Celebrates Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lem D. Waggoner of Pampa were honored by their children at a luncheon and a reception to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. The luncheon was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner.

The reception was held that evening in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Max Gibson, of 716 Magnolia.

Mrs. Gibson presented her mother with a yellow orchid corsage. Scott Martin, a grandson, presented his grandfather with a yellow rose boutonniere.

The home was decorated with white wedding bells and streamers and a large floral arrangement of yellow carnations and yellow mums.

Welcoming guests and assisting with the guest register was Mrs. Marian Waggoner, a daughter-in-law from San Diego, Calif.

Piano music was played for the reception by Mrs. Elsie Hall. A white linen and lace cloth with gold bows covered the serving table which was enhanced by yellow roses and crystal appointments.

The tiered wedding cake was decorated with white doves and roses and topped with golden wedding bells and was served by their granddaughter Dana Martin. Mrs. Fred Martin assisted with serving the punch.

Miniature gold rice bags were distributed as favors to guests and family members.

Upon leaving the reception, the couple discovered their grandchildren had decorated their car with a "Just Married 50 years ago" sign. Gold streamers and a string of gold-painted cans inscribed with names of their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren were attached to the car.

Grandchildren assisting in the decorating were Gary Gibson, Theresa Patty, David and Stephen Waggoner, and Dana and Scott Martin.

Mrs. Waggoner was born in Lynchburg, Tenn. His wife, Ruby Ows Waggoner, was born in Coleman, Okla. They were married in Canadian in 1921 and have lived in Pampa 21 years. They are owners and operators of the Star Motel.

Their children are Mrs. Max Gibson of Pampa, Mrs. Fred Martin of Pampa, Lem Waggoner Jr., of San Diego, Calif.; and Billy Don Waggoner of Pampa. They have 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis has declined public comment on the marriage of his 20-year-old daughter, Christina, to a 47-year-old Hollywood real estate man. But an unidentified relative says he was angry.

A spokesman for Onassis refused to accept questions for Onassis on the marriage, saying he couldn't be bothered on family affairs. Greek newspapers said Onassis was completely unaware of Christina's links with the man she married Tuesday in Las Vegas, Joseph Bolker. At the time, the 65-year-old Onassis received the news, he and his wife Jacqueline were on his private island Skorpios preparing to celebrate Mrs. Onassis' 42nd birthday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Television talk show host Johnny Carson has withdrawn a suit in which he sought to prohibit early morning window washing activities which disturbed his slumber.

A spokesman for the cooperative where Carson has a $375,000 apartment would say Wednesday only that an amicable settlement of the dispute had been reached. Carson was not available for comment.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon. The bridegroom's parents live in another state. We met only once when the couple announced their engagement.

I wrote a nice letter to the bridegroom's mother asking her to please hold the number of her guests down to 200 as that was all we could afford. (I kept my own list down to 200.) She sent me a list of 226 saying she couldn't possibly trim her list because they "owed" so many people. This just burned me up, so I wrote back telling her again that she would have to trim her list as we were paying for the wedding and the reception and we could afford to entertain only 400 guests and not one more! She wrote again saying she could leave out only two people — and that was final!

The wedding invitations must go out soon. I have to choose: To trim my own list to 176 so she can have her 224, or to simply "trim" her list myself and let the chips fall where they may. Would I be justified in doing that in view of her uncooperative attitude?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE DEAR MOTHER: The woman in incredibly unreasonable and piggish but don't trim her list yourself unless you want to start World War III. If it would be a hardship for you to entertain more than 400, either trim your list, or ask her to pay for any guests over her allotted 200. If she refuses, then you're stuck.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me save what is left of my marriage. My husband has placed all of his love and attention at the feet of our eldest son. He favors this son so obviously that the others are pushed in the background. Joe provides well for his family, but I need some love and affection, too. I find myself jealous of my own son and it's a terrible feeling.

Please tell me what to do. I am seriously considering leaving my husband and his "favorite" first-born carbon copy child, and take my other children with me.

I feel like a piece of furniture around here. Our sex life is gone too because of this resentment I harbor.

UNWANTED AND UNLOVED DEAR UNWANTED: You will need a trained, impartial third party to make your husband see the light. Your clergyman or a family counselor. Leaving your husband should be the last thing to consider, not the first.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and have been engaged to this guy for two months. Last year my mother forbade me to even speak to him so I've been lying to her, saying I haven't been seeing him.

He will be leaving for the service soon and has asked me to marry him. I told him my parents wouldn't let me and we'd have to wait until I was 18. He said he couldn't wait that long — that we could be married in secret and no one would know.

I told him it wouldn't work as I couldn't live with him. He said he would be sure not to get me pregnant so I wouldn't have to worry about my parents finding out.

I am deeply in love with him, and want to marry him but I don't want to lie to my parents as I love them, too. What should I do?

HAVING TROUBLE DEAR HAVING: Don't let your boyfriend talk you into anything. A guy who encourages a girl to lie to her parents sounds like bad news. Cool it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GOT A HUNCH": Put your affairs in order and don't dwell on it. If you outlive your hunch, you can always change your will.

BETROTHED

Dennis Godwin and Chuck Sheddard were vocalists.

One large cathedral candleabra flanked by gladiola baskets decorates the church as a candles lighted each chapel window. Large white bows with flowers were placed on each pew.

iced in white and decorated with rosebud trim of light pink. Mrs. Danny Longwell assisted at the punch service as Mrs. Charles Brummett served cake and Mrs. Jerry Longwell registered guests.

For the honeymoon to Corpus Christi, the bride traveled in a three-piece pink suit with white accessories, and white orchid corsage.

The couple will make their home at 2126 N. Banks. The bride attended Texas Woman's University and taught school in Midland. The bridegroom attended Texas Tech and is associated with the Data processing department of Cabot Corporation.

Color Rinse Offers Hair Temporary Aid

NEW YORK (NEA)—Summer brings sun, waters, picnics and outdoor sports. It also brings faded, dried-out hair from too much of the beach scene and too few trips to your friendly beauty salon. It's the time when do-it-yourself first aid for ailing locks becomes a must. So, when you're away on holiday, carry your hair "insurance" with you. The best choice is a temporary hair coloring with conditioner built in. One color rinse, originally developed 10 years ago as the first non-peroxide refresher for bleached blondes, now comes in shades from the whitest of white to the blackest of black. It's a snap to use — no measuring, mixing, timing or rinsing. Just flow the instant color from the self-applicator bottle onto freshly shampooed, towel-dried hair and comb it through. It includes a wave set and a creme rinse. And it is claimed to stay through heat and high water until you shampoo it out. At a recent charity "do" in New York sponsored by Roux Laboratories for Irvington House, an affiliate of the New York University Medical Center, prominent socialites proved their faith in Fanci-ful rinse by using it on their hair to tie in with the title of the charity ball — Bal Rouge et Noir. Such luminaries as Mrs. Alan J. Lerner, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Worsham Rudd (Julia Meade) turned out with either red or jet-black hair. And the changes were often so startling that friends had to be reintroduced to friends. But nobody minded. They knew it would all come out in the wash. So for summertime touch-ups, why not try a temporary color rinse? You'll find your own hair shade if you don't want a complete change. Let the breeze play through your hair. Get it wet. And don't hide it under a confining scarf. You don't have to.

At the recent Bal Rouge et Noir, sponsored by Roux for Irvington House, Mrs. Worsham Rudd (Julia Meade) Fanci-fully rinsed her hair from strawberry blond to black. The hairdo is by Leonardo de Vega of Charles of the Ritz (left). Mrs. John Norwood (Ruth Hovemeyer) went from streaky blond to Barely Pink. Her coiffure was done by Lupe.

Child's First Two Years Are Rapid Growth Time

PRINCETON, N.J. (SpI) — From the time a baby is born until he is two years old, he makes his most rapid physical, mental and verbal advances, declares Jean Piaget, eminent Swiss psychologist. During the first four months, he discovers his own being by seeing, hearing, touching and tasting things — all sensory experiences. At four to eight months, he begins to become aware of and interested in objects outside his own body. His waking hours are dedicated to discovering the world about him. As he gets he establishes an understanding of cause, effect and time, for example, he knows that if he pulls a string, a bell will ring or a light will light — and that's delightful! As he approaches 24 months he stands and can walk and talk, and this is an important time of "practice play," as well as a time of wear and tear on Mother's endurance. He wants to exercise his powers of seeing, hearing, touching and handling things. With this in mind, Mother and Dad should take on an extra dose of patience and understanding and baby-proof the house, apartment or a special part of a room so that he can play with moving toys, fitting, matching and pounding toys that will challenge developing muscles and curiosity, and satisfy his rapidly developing learning powers. He needs to know about his environment. In fact, according to Dr. Bruno Bettelheim of the education, psychology and psychiatry departments of the University of Chicago, "the child who cannot affect his environment gives up and loses the will to learn." "The more a child sees, hears and touches, the more he will want to see and hear and learn in later life. The toddler learns through activity. Restricting a head start," points out Frank Caplan, a former teacher in early childhood education. "Parents should try varying the baby's static environment by changing the things he does daily," says Caplan in a creative toy free catalog. "Let him watch the motion of live animals and people outside a window; let him follow a mobile that flickers or makes sounds. Take him on a walk around the house. Introduce him to new sounds and reassuring voices, both the parents' own and those of recordings. Vary the texture of the things he touches." For example, an Inquarium made of leak-proof heavy vinyl which hangs on the bars of a crib or play pen allows the child to watch colorful fish, snails or flowering plants. A crawler toy on casters has a smooth contoured body that keeps a baby, even as young as eight weeks, comfortably "cradled" as he moves about and investigates his whereabouts. After the infant and toddler stage, from age two to seven, children throw themselves wholeheartedly into role playing. This is the time of confidence - building and great drive "Look how tall a building I can build!"; of exploring the community around him (as in block cities); of thinking through family relationships (with dolls and doll play). Petit Frere, a doll new to this country, is a life size cuddly baby boy doll with anatomically correct sex features.

Sharon Kidd, Nicholas Albus Say Vows In Catholic Church

Sharon Kay Kidd was united in marriage with Nicholas J. Albus in a double-ring ceremony in the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church with the Rev. W. J. Dunker, C.M., assistant pastor, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kidd, 117 Neel Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Albus, 1301 E. Foster. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal, floor-length wedding gown of nylon organza and Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta which His brother Thomas also assisted with lighting the candles. His sister, Leslie Albus, was flower girl. The ceremony was performed amid a setting of spiral candelabras and greenery. Pedestal arrangements of mixed white flowers flanked the wedding party. Pews of honor were noted with white satin bows and greenery. Tracy Cary, organist, played the theme from "Love Story," and "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Lord's Prayer." Eonita Reimer was vocalist.

MRS. NICHOLAS L. ALBUS ... nee Sharon Kay Kidd

was designed with high neckline, empire waistline, Juliet sleeves and semi A-line silhouette. Chantilly lace enhanced the neckline, sleeves, bodice and skirt of the gown. Wide satin ribbon enhanced the waist. A detachable wattleau train of nylon organza and Chantilly lace complimented the gown. She wore an imported illusion veil with a border of matching Chantilly lace which fell from a coil of lace, seed pearls and sequins and carried a cascade bouquet of white orchid, stephanotis, and sweetheart roses.

Vicki Ramming

ATTENDANTS Matron of honor was Mrs. Mark Callahan who wore a royal blue high-waisted, floor-length gown and carried a nosegay of white feathered carnations, with red, white and blue streamers. The maid of honor, Christine Laycock, wore a flame red high-waisted gown of floor-length and carried a nosegay of white feathered carnations and red, white and blue streamers. Bridesmaid, Jan Snell wore floor-length royal blue, high waisted gown and carried the same type of flowers. Harlan Feese of Canyon assisted as best man with Mike Albus and Anthony Albus, brothers of the bridegroom, as groomsmen. Ushers were John Albus, Mike and Anthony Albus, the bridegroom's brothers.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS Pre-nuptial events were a shower sponsored by Mrs. R. W. Laycock, Mrs. Duane Howe, Mrs. Lewis Holmes, Mrs. Gene snell, Jan Snell and Belinda Howe; a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. R. W. Laycock and Christ Laycock, and a rehearsal dinner by the bridegroom's parents. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bichsel, White Deer; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bichsel, White Deer; Mr. and Mrs. George Bichsel, Perryton; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Berryman, Green Valley, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks, Clarendon; Donnie Kidd and Jana Werner, both of Denver, Colo.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Gia Scala, 37, has been fined $125 and placed on two years, probation in connection with an altercation involving a parking lot attendant. Municipal Judge Irwin J. Nebron imposed sentence Monday after Miss Scala pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace last April in a dispute over a 50-cent fee.

Rho Eta Members Attend Convention

Three members of Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, Mrs. Tommy Hill, president, Mrs. Ron Cline, vice-president, and Mrs. Randy Phillips, ways and means chairman, recently returned from a four day visit to Dallas where they attended the Beta Sigma Phi State Convention, Carnival of Fun in '71. Among other activities slated during the convention, the Rho Eta representatives were present for forums designed to introduce members to new ideas. They also attended the Grand assembly where a check for more than $7000 was presented to the Pediatrics Hematology Laboratory in San Antonio to aid in further research in the field of children's blood diseases. It was announced that the laboratory had been selected as service project for a second year. Campaigning for the 1973 convention was held with the city of McAllen being chosen. The 1972 convention will be held in Amarillo. At the end of the convention, Mrs. Vivian Argubright, guest representative from the International Office of Beta Sigma Phi, Kansas City, Mo., spoke on Life, Learning and Friendship. The Dallas chapter presented the closing ritual. Approximately 850 members representing chapters throughout the state attend the convention. Other representatives from Pampa included Mrs. Jack Vaughn and Mrs. James Trusty of Preceptor Chi.

Panhandle Water County Agents Join Fight Against VEE

By FELIX RYALS

Several years ago this column carried the news that a number of cities on the Ohio River in Ohio were using water for municipal use that had already been used by upstream cities. The upstream cities used the water, passed it on through their sewage plants and discharged the treated sewage water back into the Ohio River, with the next downstream city again using the water.

To be able to do this each city must have treatment and sewage plants that operate with 100 per cent efficiency. To insure this the water must be monitored constantly.

The federal water pollution control agencies have been applying constant pressure during the past two years on cities and industrial complexes in an effort to keep the rest of the streams and waterways from becoming polluted cesspools as is the current condition of the Hudson and Potomac Rivers on the Eastern Seaboard.

TWDB Stream Study

The Texas Water Development Board in an effort to head off impending federal intervention has been pushing studies to completion that would provide the know-how to keep Texas streams clean. The Water Development Board has just completed the study and is ready to make it available for use over the entire state. In today's column we are carrying a portion of the study: "How much pollutant load, both natural and man-made, can a stream absorb and yet maintain water quality at a level suitable for its designated uses? If the answer to this question could be accurately predicted, then a means would be available to help determine both the quantity and quality of water that will be available to provide for the State's future water needs. Reasoned personnel of the Texas Water Development Board and its consulting firm, Frank K. Masch and Associates, also steps might then be taken by the appropriate State agencies to alleviate or eliminate any waste discharges that exceeded the maximum amount the stream can absorb.

They devised a mathematical modeling system known as QUAL-1 that uses a computer to simulate a stream system and to evaluate the effects of a given waste loading upon that system. The models analyze temperature, biochemical oxygen, and conservative minerals (those that don't break down or decompose through biological activity) of any given rate of stream discharge as it passes through the simulated stream system.

The modeling system was tested for accuracy and dependability by applying it to a segment of the San Antonio River basin for which sufficient and reliable field-collected data were available. Although the models are both practical and reliable right now, further testing and verification will continue to improve and refine them.

The results of these research efforts are described in a highly technical new publication, "Simulation of Water Quality in Streams and Canals," that will be of interest mainly to water quality specialists and a discussion of the theory behind them, along with numerous examples of typical computer print-outs.

The computer model will be made available to all agencies and entities involved in managing water quality and aquatic environments. In cooperation with the Texas

COLLEGE STATION — A recent Texas Technological University graduate, Becky Dunlap, has joined the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to serve as specialist in clothing.

In making the announcement, Director John E. Hutchison said the specialist will provide leadership in Extension clothing program development in Districts 4, 6 and 10. She will be stationed at Texas A&M University.

Miss Dunlap, an honor graduate, received her B.S. degree in home economics education and her M.S. degree in clothing and textiles from Texas Technological University. At Tech she was a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Honor society; Phi Upsilon Omicron, national home economics honorary; and was on the Dean's List. She also was a teaching assistant in the department of clothing and textiles.

Water Quality Board and other interested State and local agencies, the Water Development Board intends to use models primarily for simulating the quality of water in storage and conveyance systems and in evaluating river basins in Texas. This will help predict the quantity and quality of water the supplies that will be of future municipal, industrial, and agricultural needs, for management of the coastal bays and estaries, and for other necessary and beneficial uses."

These studies and models should be of great value to cities here in the Panhandle area that discharge their sewage treated effluent into small streams. Harry P. Burleigh, the news Executive Director of the Texas Water Development Board is fast convincing everyone that retirement from the Bureau of Reclamation has not changed his image as a man of action. Cities needing his help may contact him at the Texas Water Development Board in Austin.

Texas Brands And Marks Slated For New Recording

FORT WORTH — All brands and marks on Texas livestock must be rerecorded with County Clerks after August 30, 1971, according to a new law passed during the last session of the Texas Legislature, reports Frank H. Lewis, President of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Producers will be given a six-month period (Aug. 30, 1971 through Feb. 29, 1972) in which to register these brands and marks and the location on the animal which they are currently using, he added. After this time, any unrecorded brand will be available for use on a "first-come" basis.

The law further states that all such brands and marks must be rerecorded every 10 years. Each County Clerk records for his given county only, so many producers may need to record their brands in additional counties if their operations are extensive.

The owner shall have the right during this six-month period to file the mark and brand now recorded in his name. In the event it cannot be determined from the records who first recorded the brand and mark in the county, then the person who has been using such mark and brand the longest shall have the right to have the brand and mark recorded in his name.

It should be noted that it is illegal to brand livestock without first properly recording the brand with the County Clerk in the county in which livestock are held.

When the brand or brands are recorded, the location on the animal on which the brand is to be applied must be designated. If the brand is to be applied to more than one location on the animal, it must be recorded and each additional location for the brand on the animal shall constitute a separate recording of that brand.

There is no limit to the number of brands and-or marks which may be recorded in a county by a person as long as require of this law governing the recording and rerecording of livestock brands are met. Minors may have marks or brands separate from that of the father or guardian, which must be recorded or rerecorded as provided by the new law.

The County Clerk of each county shall have this act established in some newspaper of general circulation in the county for a period of 30 days. The act shall be published on the effective date, Aug. 30, 1971, and thereafter for 30 days.

It is the obligation of the County Clerk to assure that no more than one brand of a kind be recorded on the same location of the animal in each county. Therefore, no two in a county may record the same brand in the same location. It is also the responsibility of the County Clerk to make certain that in recording any brand for a person, that the part of the animal on which the brand is to be placed be designated. Failure to do so is punishable by a fineable offense of not less than $10 or more than $50. (Article 1486 P.C.)

The law as outlined above applies to all counties in the state of Texas and shall take precedence over any special statutes heretofore applying to individual counties pertaining to recording and rerecording of brands.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Laws Are No Guarantee

"Make no laws whatever concerning speech, and speech will be free," so spoke Voltaire on one aspect of liberty. Then he gave the reason: "So soon as you make a declaration on paper that speech shall be free, you will have a hundred lawyers proving that 'freedom does not mean abuse, nor liberty license,' and they will define and define freedom out of existence."

There is a line of thought in that statement that applies to matters other than speech. At the present, a group of Californians are preparing an initiative petition to limit property taxes to one per cent of the market value. This is called the Jarvis Amendment.

There is no mystery to the initiative process. It has been done thousands of times before. One of the steps is to submit the measure to the attorney general of California so that he can give an accurate legal title.

Backers of the Jarvis Amendment have taken that step. But on this occasion, Attorney General Evelle Younger refuses to give the necessary title. Of course, he offers an explanation. In effect, Younger says that the 1970 session of the Legislature enacted a law that requires all initiative petitions to be submitted to the State Department of Finance and to the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee in order that they may estimate any increase in state costs that will result if the initiative carries at the polls.

Attorney General Younger claims that he did send the proposed amendment over to the State Department of Finance and to the Joint Budget Committee, but they didn't send it back. Therefore, he says, "My hands are tied, I can't give you a title."

It so happens the California Constitution has a passage (Article IV, Section 1) that states: "The legislative power of this State is vested in the California Legislature which consists of the Senate and assembly, but the people reserve to themselves the powers of initiative and referendum."

That seems to be perfectly clear. That seems to say to any thinking person that the Legislature cannot enact tricky legislation that has the effect of denying exercise of the initiative and referendum process. That seems to say, by all reason that if some combination of bureaucrats hold up an initiative measure beyond a reasonable time, then the other public officials connected with the processing should go ahead as though the bureaucrats had given their answer and that answer was silence.

So Attorney General Younger really can't hide out behind the misdeeds of other bureaucrats. He has a positive responsibility to uphold the constitution of the state. The trouble is, he doesn't do what he is supposed to do. Instead, he abets the other bureaucrats. He joins them when they thumb their collective nose at the electors.

The only conclusion we can come to is that perhaps Voltaire is right. If the constitution did not expressly mention the right of initiative, the electors might still have it. The substance is this: the moment a statute is enacted, a freedom is repealed.

Brisk Gold Business

In spite of government rules, individuals are doing a brisk business in gold. Trading has reached a level that the West Coast Commodity Exchange has set up a futures market. The government, as may be expected, objects to that, and the U.S. Treasury insists that the law does not permit trading in gold or gold futures as proposed.

The question is, why does the government believe that dealing in gold is harmful?

We think the answer lies in two often-overlooked facts of life. First, business is simply an exchange of commodities and services. Second, the object of business is to exchange commodities and services that are wanted less for commodities that are wanted more. Gold and silver are the ultimate in commodities because, whether one can explain it or not, most people want them. Anybody, therefore, who can control gold or silver has great power. But these metals exist in such great quantities that it is almost impossible for any private group to retain control. However, if some combination of men can get the government to pass laws that prohibit the mining, refining and trading of new gold, they have a chance of gaining a near-monopoly on the existing supply of the world's most coveted commodity.

So we have two theories to choose from: A. Gold is harmful and should be kept from the individual. B. Some group of individuals wanted control of the gold supply and used the government to serve their purpose.

Marvelous, Just Marvelous

No doubt Mr. Nixon's mentor, Henry Kissinger, was accurate when he described Red China boss man Chou En-lai as an intelligent, subtle person who serves marvelous food.

But there is such a thing as being accurate without being honest. Dr. Kissinger's description did not go far enough. He might have explained how this intelligent subtle being with the high-on-the-hog-menu got to be No. 1 boy in the blood-thirstiest regime in modern history.

We wonder why the scholarly doctor, a Jewish refugee from Germany, did not go on to elaborate his inner feelings as he sat down to smack his lips over "marvelous food" with a two-legged beast who had out-Hittlered Hitler.

Al Capone was famous for his gourmet banquets, too. One of his favorite tactics was to bat the brains of his guests out as they ingested his hospitality. The difference with Chou is that he did not waste "marvelous food" on the victims of his slaughter.

The thought of a civilized American sipping tea and breaking bread with the bloody-handed Chou is enough to turn the stomach of an alligator. But when that individual purports to be a representative of the American people, the offense is of such magnitude that it must be disclaimed. "Marvelous food," Dr. Kissinger says. We do not believe that he could have spoken two words that better express the official contempt over the grave conduct of most Americans have for Mr. Nixon's abrupt alteration of this country's long-standing policy.

"Marvelous food" — a marvelously revealing phrase! We hope the U.S. is not the next dish.

How 'Feds' Take Over The Cities

By JAMES A. HALEY U.S. Congressman

The wholly unabashed, piteous pleadings by the nation's major cities for huge chunks of federal funds to bail them out of financial binds provide ample new proof of the adage that "the chickens" always come home to roost.

There can be no doubt in anyone's mind that the Big Cities are in desperate circumstances which are growing more critical by the day — and because tens of millions of our citizens live and-or work in these teeming population centers, there can be little doubt that some way must be discovered to help them.

But my basic point is that the troubles of the cities have been brought upon them by themselves. Their troubles, in my opinion, stem almost entirely from their belief in the false premise that it is possible to get something of value for nothing.

That belief has led the cities (and they are, unfortunately, not alone) into establishing scores of costly programs totally beyond the ability of their own taxpayers to support — establishing those programs with an eye to acquiring millions and millions of dollars in direct federal grants and in federal matching grants.

The matching grants have been the core of the problem. To get more and more of these federal millions, the cities have had to put up more and more of their own tax revenues to provide the required matching funds. This has led to increasing local taxes, and now in the cities concerned, those taxes have risen near the point of being confiscatory.

Meanwhile, the federally supported or federal aided programs have become a part of the way of life of the cities and, like most welfare-state, dog-good types of government programs, have become virtually impossible to abandon — to abandon so that local tax revenues could be diverted into paying for the real necessities of local government, such as security, sanitation and health, street and utilities maintenance, basic education, and the like.

Thus, when the pinch comes, when those who perform the really essential services of local government demand higher wages to offset the steadily increasing pressure of inflation (inflation, incidentally, caused in great part by free-handed government spending at all levels), the cities are unable to meet those demands, as we have seen, for example, in what has been happening in New York City at large.

It is at this point that the chickens come home to roost — and that the mayors of the Big Cities come, hat-in-hand, to Washington to beg for further federal largesse, never seeing that they are making their municipalities wards of the Federal Government and thus contributing to further centralization of federal power, which already is at a dangerous level.

To a lesser extent, but also at an unsafe level, are the problems of the states and the smaller subdivisions of local government. They, too, have fallen in the past quarter-century or so for the "something for nothing" theory — hospitals, schools, parks, streets, post offices, and what have you, at what appears to be no cost or at most, half-price. And, like the cities, the states and the counties and the townships are coming to Washington to beg for federal handouts.

And this is what revenue sharing is all about.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Prof. Clark stimulates discussion whenever he teaches a Bible Class. Notice the underlying motives Jesus had in mind when he couched his moral precepts in stories (parables). The McGuffey Readers followed this example till the "sight-reading" faddists sabotaged our schools for an entire generation.

CASE R-524: Prof. A. W. Clark used to be principal of a leading high school at Hammond, Indiana.

Since retirement, he has often taught the Bible Class which Mrs. Crane and I attend every Sunday when we are at our Indiana farm home.

Recently a discussion developed as to why Jesus routinely used parables. And the class decided that it was to clarify many of his more abstract theological and philosophical points.

For Christ's parables were merely everyday cases from real life which dramatically illustrated his points.

But there was another far-reaching purpose in the parables. Remember, in those days few people could read or write!

And it is common knowledge that you can recall a story much better than a series of proverbs or moral maxims or even the famous Ten Commandments.

Jesus, thus "packaged" his new ethics so that ignorant listeners could easily pass his message along to others.

So he realized that if he couched his major points, as by the use of the Good Samaritan to epitomize world brotherhood, then even the youngsters in the crowd would remember and rebroadcast the story.

This superb psychological strategy has often been ignored during the past generation by our grammar schools.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

"The Pill" Better than Rhythm. Dear Dr. Lamb—My husband and I are in our early 20s. Because he is still in school, pregnancy is quite undesirable. We've been married a year and a half. For the first year, we used temperature rhythm. Now I'm using the Pill, which I take for 21 days and am off for seven days. My doctor told me that to be sure of avoiding pregnancy, we should abstain for those seven days while I'm not taking the Pill (during menstruation). This is no better than rhythm. We still must abstain! My friends say my doctor is overcautious. Must we abstain now? I'm so confused.

Dear Reader—If you wanted to be absolutely sure, you could abstain all the time. In truth, most physicians do not think it is necessary to abstain during the seven-day period you are not taking the Pill.

The birth-control pill works by taking it regularly 20 or 21 days in succession (depending on type) and then stopping the pill seven days, for the menstrual period. By using the pill regularly in this manner, ovulation is prevented. The hormone in the pill that prevents this is similar to the natural hormone the woman produces during pregnancy, to prevent additional ova from being released and causing multiple pregnancies.

The Pill is considerably better than the rhythm method in preventing pregnancy. There is quite a bit more irregularity of the menstrual cycle than is often appreciated. One study points out that about 30 per cent of women are sufficiently regular to use the rhythm method satisfactorily as a means of birth control. The birth-control pills make a woman regular.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a brother who is an alcoholic. He has an ulcer and two years ago started having epileptic seizures. This happens only after he has been drinking for a month or so. He will not seek medical help. What I would like to know is why this happens only when he stops drinking. Could these seizures be fatal if he does not get help? Also, what could I do to help?

Dear Reader—It is possible that your brother's convulsions are from epilepsy, but they may well be what we call "Rum fits" or alcoholic epilepsy. These usually occur within 48 hours after stopping alcohol and often precede the development of delirium tremens, a dangerous development in the long road of alcoholism.

The body develops a physiological dependence on alcohol and heavy drinkers have to have the alcohol gradually removed. Stopping alcohol in a person who really drinks a lot should be accomplished under a physician's supervision because of this problem.

Whatever the court decisions, the reaction to the TIMES' first three installments has been harsh and revelations will have far-reaching political implications. The documents put former President Lyndon Johnson in a bad light, along with his administration. Johnson, the documents tend to show, fed the escalation of the war to the American people in doses.

But regardless of the outcome of the TIMES' litigation the true issues of the war in Asia remain unresolved. Essentially they boil down to the question of whether our commitment was necessary to keep Vietnam from falling to the communists. Also, we must consider our involvement as a confrontation with a foe that had the power to sap our strength since we didn't totally mobilize and win the war. That dissipation of our strength is coming home to roost now. Russia is outstripping us in strategic weapons and if the trend isn't reversed soon we will find ourselves at the mercy of the Soviet Union. Vietnam will have become a moot question.

State Dept. Turning Other Check To Egypt 'Renegotiating' Loans

WASHINGTON—If ever there was a graphic instance of "turning the other cheek," it is what's quietly happening between this country and Egypt. Despite President Anwar Sadat's frequent furious fulminations against the U.S., almost invariably containing wholly false accusations and insular misrepresentations, the State Department is unobtrusively—

(1) "Renegotiating" $140 million in U.S. loans on which Egypt has been in default since 1967—when President Nasser curtly broke off relations after spouting a pack of later-admitted lies. "Renegotiation" is bureaucratic gobbledegook for, in effect, doing nothing. In actuality, "renegotiation" merely consists of extending payment on the $140 million of defaulted loans.

(2) Permitting Egypt to continue shipping into the U.S. quantities of Petroleum, textiles, and extra long-staple cotton all of which this country has in abundance and does not need to import. Last year, this trade was worth $40 million to Egypt, and apparently will be even larger this year. The textiles and extra long-staple cotton enter the U.S. under a 1963 trade agreement which the State Department has secretly extended a number of times—the latest in September 1970 for another year. No announcement has ever been made about this. State Department officials justify this covert action on the ground "it is useful to the U.S."

The $140 million in defaulted loans consists of $80 million from the Commodity Credit Corporation; $30 million from the Export-Import Bank; and $30 million from the Agency for International Development (AID).

In addition to these overdue debts, the U.S. has some $600 million in counterpart funds in Egypt.

That is the second highest amount of counterpart funds held by the U.S. India with more than $1 billion tops the list, with Communist Poland third with around $500 million. The U.S. owns upwards of $3 billion in foreign currencies in 83 countries. Counterpart funds, accumulated in payment for surplus foods and other supplies, cannot be used outside the country of origin.

The immense amount of counterpart funds in Egypt is largely the result of hundreds of millions of dollars of U.S. wheat and other food shipments during the Kennedy Administration—when the late President was assiduously wooing Nasser.

A considerable part of the defaulted loans also were made during this period. The State Department's policy of favoring Egyptian long-staple cotton is long-standing.

This despite the fact that U.S. growers are capable of producing as much of this high-grade cotton as is needed here. It is grown in Arizona, California, New Mexico and Texas and exclusion of Egyptian imports would add an estimated $20 million to U.S. agricultural income.

Yet in 1968, when Congress, after long and tenacious State Department opposition, passed a bill barring shipments of Egyptian extra long-staple cotton, President Johnson vetoed the legislation—at the State Department's behest after Congress adjourned.

There is no state Department explanation as to why the millions of dollars paid Egypt for its lucrative export trade here are not applied to servicing the defaulted loans.

That's just one more State Department mystery of the many that abound in that bureaucratic labyrinth. Cairo Flashes. Egypt will soon undergo a new change of name. As a result of the "union" with Libya and the Sudan, the official name will be revised to the arab republic of Egypt instead of United Arab Republic, product of Nasser's ill-fated "union" with Syria and Iraq. How long the latest "union" will prevail is anyone's guess. It almost disintegrated last week in the short-lived military coup in Khartoum. The Egyptian air force has the highest accident and casualty rate in the world.

contemplated by the Army on a reservation near Milan, Tenn., had to be called off because of "loud and vehement pressure from these elements."

Pressed to name them, Smith cited the "Humane Society." estimate these losses at more than 100 in the past year. All the planes are Russian MIG-17s, MIG-21s and Sukhoi-7s and Sukhoi-11 bombers. This excessive toll accounts in large measure for Russia's continued heavy shipments of combat planes to Egypt. Foreign experts attribute Egypt's high accident rate to three causes: (1) poor training and inexperience of Egyptian pilots in handling the high-performance Soviet planes; (2) grossly inadequate maintenance and supervision (planes are rarely checked out before flown, and commanders exercise little direction of crews and aircraft); (3) virtually non-existence of safety measures and programs. These deficiencies and short comings are in glaring contrast to the record of the Israeli air force, which has one of the lowest accident rates and is considered on par with the best as a combat organization.

Spreading The Word. With obvious glee, Peking is doing its part to make sure the Russian people are kept well informed of all developments relating to President Nixon's plans to visit Red China.

While the government-controlled Soviet radio and press are communicating little about this momentous matter, the official Peking radio is beaming frequent news and commentaries to Russia in Russian. The Chinese broadcasts are clearly for the purpose of spreading word of what is transpiring to Russian listeners.

Significantly, the first of these Peking broadcasts was beamed at Russia 20 minutes after President Nixon's announcement—and long before the Chinese people were told of it.

Going, Going..... In the past five years, there has been a 25 percent increase in the number of "endangered species" listed annually by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

In 1967, 78 species were rated as in danger of extinction. Now—mammals, birds, reptiles and fish.

Pollution of soil and water with DDT, mercury and other substances is responsible in most cases for the inability of species to maintain "stable population."

The Bureau is stepping up its investigation of the effect on wildlife of heavy metals, acids and chemical compounds. In addition to 120 monitoring stations for mercury the Bureau is establishing 28 stations for lead monitoring.

Aging Bureau director Spencer Smith told a House Appropriations Sub-committee that eight species of wild birds have been found to be dying out because DDT has reduced their ability to lay eggs with shells hard enough to allow hatching. Topping the list is the familiar brown pelican. That brought an intriguing question from Julia Hansen, D.—Wash., chairman.

"Is there any way whereby the shells of blackbird eggs could be thinned?" she asked. "Considering the number of hungry people in the world, the annual loss of grain to blackbirds, it's highly desirable that blackbirds be eliminated or drastically reduced."

Smith heartily agreed. He told the committee there are approximately 340 million blackbirds in the U.S., with 674 major roosts. Illustrative of the damage they cause, he cited "Ohio's corn crop losses of between $2 million and $4 million annually; Michigan growers of cherries and blueberries suffer losses of up to $2 million; California vegetable crops suffer damages of more than $2 million; and Mississippi and Arkansas rice growers are out a pocket around $2 million a year due to blackbirds."

Yet despite these costly damages, Smith declared "certain groups" are threatening legal action to prevent the Bureau from going through with plans to reduce the blackbird population.

U.S. Treaty Holds Out Against

By LEN DAVIS

Genocide is a new name for an old crime.

Literally, the word means the international destruction of national, racial, religious or ethnic groups.

Genocide is the most ghastly crime man has yet perpetrated; unfortunately its victims are many and its history as old as civilization itself.

The mass extermination of people began many centuries before the persecution of the early Christians and has ignominiously proceeded down to the atrocities committed by the Nazis during World War II.

It was the systematic slaughter of a reported six million Jews that led the United Nations General Assembly in 1948 to condemn genocide as a crime under international law. Although 75 nations have ratified the UN convention — an international agreement or treaty — the United States is still a holdout.

Recently, however, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the treaty by a vote of 10-4. A two-thirds vote by the entire Senate is now required for ratification.

The history of ratification efforts is lengthy. In 1950, President Truman submitted the Genocide Convention to the Senate for ratification. Public opposition was so strong that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took no action.

A year later, then Sen. Richard M. Nixon made the following statement:

"The major objection to the treaty is that its provisions would not apply to the persecution of political minorities in the Soviet Union. In addition, the treaty, in its present form, grants far more power to the international organization (the UN) than the United States should agree to. . . you can be sure that in view of these objectionable features; I shall continue to oppose the Genocide Treaty in its present form."

After President Eisenhower's election, there was renewed effort for Senate ratification; but, again, the public said "no." In 1953, Eisenhower's Secretary of State (John Foster Dulles) said the Genocide Convention "could better be considered at a later date."

For 13 more years the Convention lay dormant in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Then on May 12, 1966, Arthur J. Goldberg — former U.S. Ambassador to the UN — told the American Jewish Committee that the Johnson administration would press the Senate for immediate ratification of the Convention. Johnson did not press hard, and public opposition remained strong.

In December 1969, a liberal group within the American Bar Association (ABA) urged the association — which had opposed the Convention for 20 years — to reverse its stand. But it remained firm, claiming the treaty is "full of holes" and would really do nothing to prevent genocide.

On Feb. 19, 1970, President Nixon reversed his 1951 position and urged the Senate to ratify the Convention. Liberals are hopeful that Nixon has enough conservative image to overcome conservative opposition.

Urging the ABA to recommend ratification of the Genocide Treaty, former Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, on Feb. 23, 1970, said:

"I remind you, remember who is looking at you. The world is looking at you. Consideration of the treaty has been delayed primarily because critics have raised questions over definitions and sovereignty.

The treaty defines genocide as the commission of various acts — killing, causing bodily injury or mental harm, efforts to bring physical destruction, trying to prevent births and transferring children "with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnic, racial or religious group."

The treaty further specifies that genocide may be committed by "rulers, public officials, or private individuals" whether in wartime or peacetime and that their crimes are to be adjudicated in the state where such acts were allegedly committed.

However, if a government systematically disregards the rights of its own people, the treaty provides for extradition of the accused.

The possibility of U.S. citizens standing trial in foreign countries or of U.S. officials being accused of committing genocide against the blacks, American Indians or Alaskan natives has created more opposition to the treaty. It is now generally conceded, as it was in 1950, that special implementing legislation will have to be enacted before the document is finally approved.

In committee, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., proposed as a reservation that U.S. citizens could not be extradited to another country to stand trial for alleged acts of genocide unless the Secretary of State determined the citizen would be guaranteed all the constitutional rights of an accused under U.S. laws. The committee rejected Cooper's proposal 7-4-6.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., has stated that any implementing legislation will spell out that U.S. courts could exercise jurisdiction in genocide cases, even when the alleged crime is committed outside the United States. This would negate part of Article VII of the Convention, which suggests the use of an international penal tribute for those states accepting such jurisdiction.

Existing law provides for extradition only when there is a treaty in force between the United States and another government.

Congress, in addition, will have to provide for the punishment of the crime under the treaty.

Such legislation is now being drafted and, according to Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., should enhance the treaty's chance of passage. Fulbright is one of the leading proponents of ratification of the Genocide Convention.

It is doubtful, however, that the ABA — leading opponent of the treaty — will reverse its role.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., the Senate's most outspoken critic of the treaty, has agreed wholeheartedly with the ABA's assessment. Ervin has also expressed alarm over the possibility of U.S. citizens being subject to foreign or domestic prosecution "for ill-defined crimes with ill-defined legal safeguards."

The decision on when to bring the treaty to the Senate floor rests with Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who would probably withhold it if he thought it would be subject to a filibuster, or would fail to obtain the required two-thirds vote.

Opponents of the treaty point out that all Communist nations in the UN voted for the Genocide Convention in 1948; and all have ratified it.

The ABA warned the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in March that authorities in Hanoi have charged members of the U.S. armed forces with genocide (bodily harm), and that prisoners of war would be in an even more precarious position — were the treaty ratified — since the POWs are already in the hands of the enemy. The ABA points out that approval of the treaty by the United States "would consummate Hanoi's right to prosecute POW's for acts of genocide."

Radical groups such as the Black Panthers, the International Association of Democratic Lawyers, and the World Federation of Trade Unions have accused the United States of genocide in Vietnam.

A petition already has been submitted to the United Nations, charging the U.S. government with genocide against Negro people by such leaders as Paul Robeson, Rev. Ralph Abernathy, William Patterson and Bobby Seale. Their charges are "inactive" unless the U.S. ratifies the genocide treaty.

Since this treaty states that the charges of genocide could be leveled for physical or mental harm, and its definition of "mental harm" is far reaching, U.S. citizens could find themselves deprived of freedom of speech.

Rep. John G. Schmitz, R-Newport Beach, is against ratification "for this reason and others."

"The Solicitor General has stated publicly," said Schmitz, "that the treaty should not be ratified, and that if it were it would take precedence over the vital Connally (the late Sen. Thomas) reservation which gives the United States the right to withhold from the World Court cases which come within its domestic jurisdiction."

"This is a right well worth preserving," Schmitz added. He explained that the genocide treaty "does not protect economic and political groups."

"Communist governments do not murder people for 'national, ethnic, racial or religious' reasons, but for what they call political and economic crimes," said Schmitz. "Hence, the murders are not genocide, as defined in the Genocide Convention."

The upshot is that the UN treaty to outlaw genocide exempts Communist governments — which actually do exterminate whole groups of people. It is easy to see, therefore, why Communist governments support the Convention. It in no way affects their bloody pogroms; but it could, if the U.S. becomes a party to it, give Communists — and all other America-haters in foreign lands — the color of international law for intervening in our domestic affairs.

What could happen if the Senate ratifies the Genocide Convention and the courts declare it supreme law in the United States?

Suppose a Negro (or any other person identifiable as belonging to a "national, ethnic, racial or religious group") is duly tried, convicted, sentenced and executed for committing a heinous crime in one of our states where there is capital punishment. This killing could be considered an international crime, according to provisions in the Genocide Convention.

Article IV of the Convention says that public officials can be prosecuted for genocide.

Article III says that complicity in genocide is punishable.

Consequently, every law enforcement official who had anything to do with the arrest and detention of the executed criminal; every person who gave information that helped police find and arrest the criminal; every witness against him; the judge and jury of the trial court that found him guilty; the prosecuting attorney and his assistants; all participating members of any appellate court that denied the criminal's appeal or affirmed his conviction; the governor who signed the order of execution; persons who participated in the official act of execution — all could be accused of the international crime of genocide.

Suppose a Black Panther is convicted of crime and sentenced. All private persons and public officials who participated in his (or her) arrest, trial and incarceration could be accused (under Provision (b) of Article 11 of the Genocide Convention) of having caused, or helped cause, "serious bodily or mental harm" to a member of "a national, ethnic, racial or religious group."

Perhaps one of the best examples involves Miss Angela Davis, the black militant and avowed Communist charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy as the result of an unsuccessful escape attempt by convicts in which four persons were killed, including a judge.

Criticizing Communists and other agitators (domestic or foreign) who create criminal anarchy and try to incite racial civil war in the United States also could be construed as genocide (causing "mental harm") — if the agitators were identifiable as members of a group protected by the Genocide Convention.

Some 20 states have sterilization laws, giving the courts authority to order sterilization of lawbreakers who are feeble-minded or otherwise unfit for procreating normal children.

All officials acting in accordance with the terms of these laws could be charged under Provision (d) of Article 11 of the Genocide Convention with "imposing measures intended to prevent births" within one of the groups protected by the Genocide Convention.

The same charges could be brought against all who help provide birth control instruction, devices or medicines to members of such groups.

The Genocide Convention not only prohibits killing of members of a group, but also bans whatever causes "serious bodily or mental harm" to members of the group, and imposes "measures intended to prevent births within the group."

It appears that any form of compulsory abortion or birth control would be in violation of the Genocide Convention.

Both the Convention and laws for or against abortion are efforts by government to regulate the lives of the people, to coerce individuals to conform to the ideas of others as to what one group believes is right and proper.

Opponents of ratification state that when the United States enters into international agreements involving Communist powers, the agreements bind this country to a course of action, but have no effect on Communist nations, because Communists never honor their treaty obligations.

The record shows that not once in 38 years has a Communist nation honored an important treaty commitment to the United States.

By subverting the United States' constitutional system, international social compacts or conventions — presented under the auspices of the UN — could do even more long-range harm to this nation than the disarmament treaties which hamstringing the country in the realm of national defense.

Under the constitutional doctrine cited by the Army in its "white paper" on the Lt. William L. Calley case (Calley was found guilty of premeditated murder and sentenced to life imprisonment for killing 22 Vietnamese civilians in My Lai in 1968), a treaty to which the U.S. is party becomes supreme law of the land, overriding (where there is conflict) local, state and federal laws; all state constitutions, and the U.S. Constitution itself.

(The Army referred, in its white paper, to the Geneva Conventions — international agreements on the behavior of armies and treatment of prisoners in times of war. It stated that the Conventions "carry equal force with laws enacted by Congress" and constitute part of the "supreme law of the land" in the United States because they were ratified by the Senate as formal treaties. The United States is therefore bound, the Army said, to observe and enforce all provisions of the Geneva Conventions, whether the enemy honors the treaties or not.)

It follows then that when the U.S. Government becomes a party to UN conventions and treaties, it illegally substitutes — for the U.S. Constitution — documents written by international Communists and socialists, transferring authority over the American people from their own governments to international agencies.

The UN and its various commissions have written numerous conventions which would nullify constitutional government in the United States.

If universally signed, the terms of the Genocide Convention could politically disarm every nation on earth, neutralize armies and leave U.S. citizens unprotected against the UN "police force."

Ratification of the Genocide Convention would be one more giant step toward the point of no return for the people of the United States — the point whence they could never return to the constitutional system which is the keystone of our national greatness, prosperity, freedom and independence.

GENOCIDE

Genocide Convention Foes And Pros In Senate

NIXON'S FOR IT

President Richard M. Nixon took 19 years to change his mind about the Genocide Convention.

In 1951, as a senator, he voiced opposition to the treaty on the grounds that "it grants far more power to the (UN) than the United States should agree to."

On Feb. 19, 1970, Nixon made the following statement:

"I believe we should delay no longer in taking the final convincing step which would reaffirm that the United States remains as strongly opposed to the crime of genocide as ever."

"By giving its advice and consent to ratification of this Convention," Nixon continued, "the Senate of the United States will demonstrate unequivocally our country's desire to participate in the building of international order based on law and justice."

of genocide is inconsistent with the real meaning of the term; so a public official or private individual would be subject to prosecution and punishment for genocide if he intentionally destroys a single — repeat single — member of one of the specified groups.

8. The duty and power to prosecute and punish criminal homicides, assaults and batteries and kidnappings covered by the Convention would be transferred from the states — which have always had such duty and power with respect to these crimes — to the federal government.

9. Since the federal jurisdiction would depend upon whether the homicide was committed with genocidal intent, every unlawful homicide would apparently be within the jurisdiction of BOTH the federal and state governments, insofar as the external circumstances of the slaying was concerned. An acquittal of the charge in one court would not bar a second prosecution — based on the same facts — in the other court, and a person could be placed in jeopardy twice for the same offense.

10. The Convention would impose upon the United States the duty to prosecute and punish public officials and other individuals who cause "mental harm to members" of the group covered by the treaty.

11. The provisions of the Convention would immediately supersede all state laws and practices inconsistent with them, and nullify all provisions, all acts of Congress and all prior treaties inconsistent with them.

12. The convention imposes the duty to punish any one who deliberately inflicts "on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part."

Not everyone agrees with Ervin.

Proxmire, for example, believes the United States "should be one of the strongest supporters of the UN's human rights agreements."

In a letter to The Register, Proxmire wrote:

"I am a firm believer in complete civil rights for all people regardless of religion, nationality, ethnic group, or race. Civil rights certainly include the right of existence."

On April 24, 1970, during a hearing before Church's subcommittee, Proxmire declared as "clearly specious" officials with genocide against Negro Americans under Article III of the Genocide Convention.

"A more recent attempt to bring charges of genocide against the United States in the United Nations," he said, "took place last fall."

"A group with substantial Communist membership, calling itself 'The Emergency Conference to Defend the Right of the Black Panther Party to Exist,' organized a massive petition campaign charging 'serious bodily and mental harm' to its members."

"and conditions of life calculated to bring about physical destruction."

the fear that if America became a party to the treaty American citizens could be tried in foreign courts on charges of genocide.

"Right now, with no treaty in force," said Proxmire, "an American citizen in the physical territory and/or control of a foreign nation can be charged and tried for any offense from shoplifting to robbery, to espionage, to murder, even to genocide. The Genocide Treaty does not alter this, and does not expand the jurisdiction of foreign courts in any way whatsoever."

"It is equally specious," he continued, "to say that the treaty allows American prisoners of war to be tried on charges of genocide. An enemy power can charge an American prisoner of war with any crime it chooses to trump up. The Genocide Treaty will not alter this. It will create no new hazard for our fighting men. And American military men stationed on foreign soil will still be protected by the specific status of forces agreement we have with that particular country."

"To even imply that ratification of the Genocide Convention would adversely affect our fighting men now prisoners of war in North Vietnam is patently absurd," said Proxmire.

"Such an argument," he added, "is merely a blatant appeal to blind emotion with no basis in reality."

Proxmire said another argument against ratification "is that U.S. accession to the Genocide Treaty would allow some radical groups in the United States to charge that genocide was being committed against them by the police, government officials, or private citizens."

"At the moment, our laws provide for the crime of murder to be tried and investigated in the local jurisdiction in which it is alleged to have occurred. And those accused of the crime are tried under local laws," he said.

"Ratification of the Genocide Convention would do nothing to change this, although ratification together with the passage of implementing legislation would, of course create a new federal course of action."

"It would simply add an additional jurisdiction in which these cases would be tried," Proxmire explained.

He said that ratification would not mean that Americans would be haled before an international penal tribunal and tried there.

"Ratification will do nothing to create a new cause of action in foreign courts," said Proxmire.

"Senate failure to debate and ratify the Genocide Convention," he said, "can only be construed by our enemies as evidence that we have indeed something to fear."

"Certainly we do not," he added.

SEN. WM. PROXMIRE

SEN. SAM ERVIN

Schmitz Calls Genocide Convention 'Worthless'

of our basic constitutional rights.

"It must not be passed," said Schmitz.

In elaborating upon his stand, Schmitz said it becomes apparent that should the treaty be approved by the Senate "the implications for our entire judicial process would be staggering."

"Take the case of Angela Davis, a Negro Communist currently being tried in California for complicity in the shotgun murder of Judge Harold J. Haley.

"If the Genocide Convention were in effect and Miss Davis were to be found guilty and have the maximum sentence imposed," said Schmitz, "the judge who sentenced her, the jury who found her guilty, the police officers who arrested her, and all the other officials involved in the case, could theoretically be brought before the World Court and charged with the crime of genocide."

"Although this might seem far-fetched," continued Schmitz, "charges of even greater scope have been levied against the United States in the past."

"In 1951, a Communist front group charged the President of the United States, the Supreme Court, the Attorney General, the Department of Justice and 11 states and their officials with genocide against Negro Americans under Article III of the Genocide Convention.

"A more recent attempt to bring charges of genocide against the United States in the United Nations," he said, "took place last fall."

"A group with substantial Communist membership, calling itself 'The Emergency Conference to Defend the Right of the Black Panther Party to Exist,' organized a massive petition campaign charging 'serious bodily and mental harm' to its members."

"and conditions of life calculated to bring about physical destruction."

"Although the facts do not coincide with the charges leveled," Schmitz added, "it is obvious that the danger of having the United States charged under the provisions of the convention is more than theoretical."

Schmitz pointed out that should the North Vietnamese Communists succeed in their efforts to subjugate the rest of Southeast Asia "the Communists could not be held accountable under the Genocide Convention for exterminating the million or more South Vietnamese people currently on the North Vietnamese liquidation list."

"This killing would be done for political reasons," Schmitz explained, "a provision of the 'Convention the Soviet Union was careful to have removed from the treaty."

The Newport Beach congressman mentioned three other points which, he said, "weigh heavily against the approval of the treaty by the Senate."

"The 'mental harm' clause in the treaty opens the door for serious abridgement of our first amendment right of free speech."

"And the convention has no statute of limitations and no prohibitions against double jeopardy," he added.

District Conservationist Reports Environmental Study

SERVATIONIST — Reducing wind erosion and handling feedlot wastes were two environmental problems being discussed at a conservation workshop in Lubbock this week, reported Mickey Black, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service.

Sponsored jointly by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and Texas Tech University, the meeting was held on the Texas Tech campus July 28-29. Other items on the agenda include a study of the effect of agricultural chemicals on cropland and ways to restore depleted grasslands under semi-arid conditions.

The workshop is designed to provide an exchange of knowledge and expertise between researchers, conservationists, professors, and other specialists. Special attention is being given to conservation problems as they affect the High Plains and rolling Plains of Texas.

Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, Dean of Agriculture, Texas Tech University; M.J. Spears, Deputy State Conservationist for SCS; and Dr. H.E. Dregne, Chairman of the Department of Agronomy, Texas Tech, addressed the opening session.

Hippie Teenagers Alleging 'Dummer Busis' On Turnpikes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Some say you just can't get rested or as they now say busted even by trying.

That's what a hippie high school pupil, a civil liberties lawyer and seven reporters tried to do this week in a test of alleged harassment of long-haired drivers on certain roads by state police.

The bust, as the jargon goes, was a hummer.

The nine of us, with locks ranging from long to longer, jumped into a decorated Volkswagen camper and drove along 150 miles of roads in New Jersey where, according to the American Civil Liberties Union, long-haired youths are constantly subjected to illegal searches, mostly for drugs.

Our only bad experience came in Seaside Heights where three subteners stole some of the psychedelic stickers carried in hopes of attracting the police.

The idea for Tuesday's expedition came from Stephen Nagler, executive director of the New Jersey ACLU. He wanted us to see what his organization's clients have charged in state and federal suits: that young, hippie-looking drivers in old cars or vans are constantly being searched for no other reason than their appearance.

The ACLU has been on the case since last December when it went to the aid of about 40 young people who claimed they had been illegally searched.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Shaw ruled the federal courts didn't have jurisdiction and Nagler appealed to the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia. No decision has been issued.

In a non-ACLU case later New Jersey's second highest court ruled in favor of a beard-

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Nixon's decision to visit mainland China has had "a profound and positive effect on every ambassador at the United Nations," Ambassador George Bush says.

Bush, who heads the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, said the general feeling among U.N. ambassadors now is that "Peking will be coming to the United Nations."

Asked whether the two-China States would adopt a two-China policy with the mainland and Formosa, Bush replied that that was one option open to the President.

He predicted considerable diplomatic jockeying once the U.S. policy toward mainland sometimes. "China is a n- nounced. He de- declined to speculate on what that policy would be.

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fernando Chavez, son of farm labor leader Cesar Chavez, has won his bid for conscientious objector status in the draft.

U.S. District Court Judge M.D. Crocker ruled Thursday that Chavez was entitled to the status and directed his acquittal on a charge of refusing induction into the armed forces.

Chavez, 22, a political science student at the University of California in Los Angeles, said the verdict reaffirmed his belief in the power of nonviolence.

The youth and his father, director of the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, both testified Wednesday concerning the family's belief in nonviolence.

Radio & TV
By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Godfrey Cambridge is a people-watcher and the people he watches often turn up in the characters he plays.

Cambridge stretched across the table and said, "I've seen these guys who come through my life. I've seen the guys who chew cigars and never take their hat off."

"I have to pattern my characters after people I know or people I've observed," he said. "I'm responsible for what goes on that screen. I've got to do my homework."

Cambridge, who shed 165 pounds in recent years, settled back into his chair and took another sip from the big, icy glass of orange juice.

"In a two-part show for NBC's 'Wonderful World of Disney,' he plays Willie Dorsey, a man he describes as a 'loveable rascal who manages by hustling and who makes it on his wits.'"

"I patterned Willie after two guys I know," Cambridge said. "One is a handyman. He's got a college degree, but he says to heck with it, I don't feel like teaching. So he's a handyman with an unlisted phone number and he's really found his satisfaction."

"And I patterned the role after an acquaintance I'll call Shifty. This guy always carries a Chicago bank roll—a 350 bill wrapped around a wad of ones. He says he never has change to pay for anything and he's always taking me over the coals."

Cambridge plays a veteran who uses his mustering out pay to buy a service station—but doesn't have enough money left to stock any gas. He has to talk his customers out of buying gas.

For his role as Grave Digger Jones in "Cotton Comes to Harlem" he spent 16-hours-a-day at the 28th Precinct in Harlem watching policemen and accompanying them on calls.

"In 'Cotton' I never took off my hat. I picked that up from one of the detectives," he said. "I asked him why and he said 'I was because he was always going in and out of places.
