AREA

PAMPA — Pampa High School chemistry students will celebrate Mole Day tonight from 5 to 6:15 p.m. in the PHS Library.

The mole is an important measurement unit for chemical equations, so the students are "celebrating Mole Day to promote an awareness of and to generate an enthusiasm for chemistry," explained PHS chemistry teacher Beth Shannon.

A number of activities are planned, including a "mole-in-one" contest, pin the nose on the mole and a "mole-athon" relay race. Thematic refreshments such as Tootsie moles and Rice Krispie marshmoley treats will be provided.

Shannon recently was recognized by Phillips Petroleum for her creative classroom teaching techniques, including the Mole Day celebration.

BORGER — Wheeler and Canadian High School marching bands will perform in area competition in Lubbock this Saturday after receiving division I ratings Oct. 21 in Borger.

The two were among 35 in competition in classes 1A through 4A.

Also receiving division I ratings were Boys Ranch, West Texas High School, Stratford, Wellington, Perryton, Hereford, Dumas, Randall, Borger and Canyon.

The Pampa band received a II rating, as did Shamrock, White Deer and Panhandle.

PAMPA — Horace Mann Elementary School Boosters will sponsor their annual carnival and stew supper tomorrow evening.

The stew supper will run from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, with the carnival running from 6 to 9 p.m.

A cake walk, an engraving booth and a dart throw are among the booths and games offered at the carnival.

A raffle chance will also be offered for 11 items, including a bicycle, a stereo and a pair of in-line skates.

The carnival takes place at Horace Mann.

PAMPA — Three Gray County towns received $215,821.87 in sales tax rebates this month from the state comptroller's office.

Lefors received $468.84, McLean received $1,827.11 and Pampa received $213,525.72, according to the office of John Sharp, state comptroller.

Total payments to Lefors to date are $6,142.07, off 2.4 tenths of a percent from last year. McLean has received $18,222.18, up 8.1 percent from last year.

Pampa has received $2,140,618.65, off 2.46 percent from last year.

Clinton, Yeltsin talks marred by Bosnia and NATO

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — In the sunny splendor of the Hudson Valley, President Clinton and Russian President Boris Yeltsin today set out to revive the "spirit of cooperation" that carried their nations to victory in World War II.

But differences over Bosnia and NATO expansion limited expectations of success.

Meeting at the home of wartime President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the two leaders gazed toward the Catskill Mountains while Yeltsin, marveling at the scenery, assured: "We are planning here peace not war."

"Can we do it?" Yeltsin said. There was no reply from Clinton, who entertained his guest with a brief history of how the young FDR went sledding down into the valley.

"It is a beautiful place," Yeltsin said. "I am sure in a place like this there will be nothing we can't resolve."

Clinton greeted Yeltsin as the Russian leader stepped from a helicopter. They shook hands and hugged. And together they chatted their way to the Roosevelt home for their talks.

"I don't know how at this landscape there could be plans of war," the Russian leader said as he sat alongside Clinton on wooden-twig chairs set at an angle to catch the best view of the valley below. "Do you come here often?" Yeltsin asked politely.

"No," Clinton replied. "It is a beautiful place," Yeltsin said. "It was a good idea to have our meeting here."

Asked if they could solve their differences over Bosnia, the Russian leader said he would discuss the divisive issue with Clinton and that "very difficult problems" were involved.

Trying to take the edge off the disagreement, White House press secretary Mike McCurry said they were concentrating on achieving a peace accord in the former Yugoslav republic. "First things first," he said.

It was their ninth in a series of meetings that began in April 1993 in Vancouver, Canada.

The selection of Hyde Park contributed a symbolic touch, and the chairs Clinton and Yeltsin sat in to overlook the landscape had been used during World War II by Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Clinton also entered today's meeting predisposed to a compromise on provisions of a 1990 treaty calling for reductions in NATO and former Warsaw Pact tanks, artillery, aircraft, helicopters and armored vehicles by mid-November.

The idea is to ease limits on Russia's northern and southern borders so it can deal more easily with secessionist movements. Also, national security adviser Anthony Lake suggested Sunday that the Russians may play a civilian role alongside U.S. and other ground troops under NATO command.

Counting the change

Renda Johnston counts out the change during the live auction of the Country Fair Saturday night. Johnston won the chance to roll as many coins as possible before the live auction ended. The Country Fair is the main fund-raiser event for the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Chamber Executive Director Nanette Moore said Chamber officials were still busy today totaling up the funds raised from admissions, auctions and drawing ticket sales.

Pampa couple named WT Parents of the Year

Benny and Kerrick Horton of Pampa were named West Texas A&M University Parents of the Year Saturday during celebration of the school's Parents' Day 1995.

In their nomination essay, the Hortons' children, Meredith and J.B., wrote, "Our parents are loving, supporting and kind and want us to do well in academics, but they also support us by coming to all our tennis matches. No matter how far away our matches are, they are there."

"On Sept. 28, the WTAMU tennis team traveled to Grand Junction, Colo., for the Rolex tournament. They (our parents) met the team in the parking lot of the tennis courts at 5 a.m. and took all of the teams' luggage, checked into the hotel and went with us to practice."

Both Meredith and J.B. are members of the WTAMU tennis team.

Benny is also volunteering as an assistant tennis coach and supports the team by watching matches and coaching between games.

Meredith, a junior social worker, and J.B., a sophomore business major, invited their parents to Parents' Day without letting them know about the honor they would receive.

The university has named Parents of the Year since 1978.

Red Ribbon Week rally

Katie McKandless, member of the board of Drug Free Youth in Texas at Pampa High School, told a small gathering of her peers Saturday why she chooses to be drug free: "The main reason I'm drug free is, I want to be in control of myself ... It's not in my morals and in my standards ... and it's illegal." She spoke at the Red Ribbon Week rally in front of City Hall.

Defense attorneys say Selena was victim of tragic accident

HOUSTON (AP) — Slain Tejano singer Selena was the victim of a tragic accident and not a murder, defense attorneys said today in closing arguments as the murder case against Yolanda Saldívar headed to a jury.

"There's no question Yolanda Saldívar acknowledged the tragedy, the tragic loss of Selena, and all of us share in that community of grief," defense lawyer Fred Hagans said.

"Time and time again, consistently unrehearsed, ... she said, 'This was an accident. I didn't intend to hurt her.'"

Mark Skurka, the Nueces County assistant district attorney, said that Ms. Saldívar "took the gun out, cocked the hammer, pulled the trigger and killed her. What could be a worse way to die than to be shot in the back in a cowardly manner?"

"Selena left her mark on the world," he continued. "The defendant left her mark on Selena with a bullet hole in the back."

Hagans, showing the jury how easy it was to fire the pistol used in the shooting and noting how Ms. Saldívar was inexperienced with guns, several times pulled the trigger as he spoke.

learned was tragic," he said, describing the trigger action as requiring "virtually no pressure."

Judge Mike Westergren, who moved the case to Houston because of publicity in Corpus Christi, gave attorneys for the former Selena fan club president and Nueces County prosecutors up to 90 minutes each for their final remarks.

The jury today was given a single murder charge to consider against Saldívar.

Attorneys for both sides, in working with the judge on the charge, could have agreed to instructions that would have allowed conviction on something less than murder, like manslaughter or negligent homicide, and thus ensure a less severe sentence.

Still, even with a conviction, Saldívar, who has no prior criminal record, could emerge from the case with as little as probation. She also could get up to a life prison term.

Before court started this morning, about 25 fans held signs and chanted in support of Selena in the most vocal demonstration since the trial began three ago.

"Guilty, guilty, guilty," one sign read. Another, with a reference to the recent Simpson trial in California, said: "O.J. got away, Saldívar won't."

Saldívar, 35, who rose from Selena fan club founder to manager of the singer's boutiques, was charged with the March 31 fatal shooting of the 23-year-old Grammy-winning singer.

Defense attorneys said evidence presented over seven days of prosecution testimony doesn't prove the state's case that Saldívar deliberately shot Selena to death in Room 158 at the Corpus Christi Days Inn.

The defense wound up its case quickly, calling just five witnesses whose testimony lasted all of three hours.

The defense has claimed Saldívar shot Selena by accident but that the Corpus Christi police who questioned her left that out of her written confession, which Westergren allowed into evidence.

After the shooting, Saldívar held police at bay in a 9 1/2-hour standoff outside the motel, holding a gun to her head and swearing that she wanted to kill herself.

"It just went off. I didn't mean to do it. I didn't mean to kill anybody," she moaned.

Wilson School to launch HOSTS program

A new student mentor program designed to advance math skills will officially kick off Tuesday morning at Wilson Elementary School.

The Help One Student To Succeed (HOSTS) program will open with a ribbon cutting at 10 a.m., followed by speeches from Pampa Mayor Bob Neslage and Pampa ISD Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr.

Students will also perform during the ceremony.

The program allows volunteer mentors from the community to work with an individual student using materials and activities provided by HOSTS instructor

Teresa Dyson. Each mentor volunteers 30 minutes or more a week.

The kids "love that one-on-one" attention, according to HOSTS teacher Teresa Dyson.

A number of mentors have already been working with students for the past three weeks.

Mentors follow a four-step procedure each week. Dyson said, including flash cards, math vocabulary, problem solving and a hands-on project.

"It's fun math," she said.

Dyson and an aide run the Wilson HOSTS lab four days a week.

The two teach students on Mondays and are seeking volunteers for Tuesday through Thursday.

Wilson's HOSTS program is the only of its kind in Pampa. Amarillo has 1,500 mentors in six schools, Dyson said.

The one-on-one attention that at-risk students receive through HOSTS not only helps them advance in their math skills, but the students also demonstrate improved self-esteem, attendance, discipline and motivation, according to information provided by Dyson.

For more information or to volunteer to become a mentor, contact Dyson at 669-4976.

One ticket in Galveston matches Lotto Texas numbers

AUSTIN (AP) — One ticket bought in Galveston correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $4 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 8, 11, 16, 25, 26 and 42.

There were 141 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,216. There were 7,689 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $81. And there were 125,375 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $4 million.

Health-care trends cast public hospital futures into uncertainty

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — University Medical Center opened in 1978 as a destination for sick indigents and a teaching hospital for the Texas Tech School of Medicine.

Now with an estimated $100 million in reserves, the county's 365-bed hospital could find itself leased to a private health-care provider. The board governing UMC intends to solicit proposals.

The Amarillo Hospital District, meanwhile, voted last month to sign a non-binding letter of intent to pursue the sale or lease of Northwest Texas Hospital. Negotiations are expected to wrap up by January.

These concurrent moves in two West Texas cities illustrate the pinch for taxpayer-funded hospitals trying to survive amid rising costs and competitiveness.

"The future of all hospitals is uncertain, (but) public hospitals have some added challenges," said UMC president and chief executive officer Jim Courtney.

"Typically they are the hospitals that provide most of the unsponsored care, the completely unfunded care. That's a pretty big load," said Courtney, who also serves as chairman of the Texas Association of Public and Non-Profit Hospitals.

Data from the Texas Hospital Association show 393 hospitals in the state two years ago. The public owned 157 of those facilities, including 119 public hospitals in rural areas, according to the organization in Austin.

Jim Houdek, senior vice president of health care economics for THA, said the industry's emerging emphasis on outpatient treatment has helped lead public hospitals back to a role focusing on the indigent, rather than on patients able to pay.

Houdek and other observers say that cuts in Medicare and Medicaid could contribute to a whittled-down number of public hospitals in the future.

"Those that are sitting next to or near large urban tertiary care hospitals have a dilemma," Houdek said. "Is there a continuing role for them, and what is it?"

Public hospitals should evaluate how their missions stack up against the marketplace outlook, the observers said. If necessary, get out.

"It would be irresponsible for the board of a public hospital to ignore the opportunity to no longer provide the brick and mortar, if indeed that was going to be a burden to the community," Houdek said.

A study by an Illinois consulting firm valued Lubbock's UMC at $40.7 million but predicted a depreciation. The study recommended a lease or merger for the debt-free hospital.

The Amarillo City Commission still must approve the sale or lease of Northwest Hospital to Universal Health Services.

Joshua Nemzoff, a Nashville, Tenn., negotiator of the Amarillo deal, said Universal would agree to care for qualified indigent patients in exchange for a reduced purchase price. He linked the Amarillo and Lubbock situations.

"These are two public districts... that have made a decision that perhaps they don't need to be in the hospital business anymore," Nemzoff said.

Some public hospitals across the country "are realizing, very accurately so, that they can take care of the indigent population by acting more as an insurer or a provider," he said.

But Dr. Ron Anderson, president and chief executive officer of Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, urged public hospitals not to change governance prematurely.

Anderson pointed to the role taxpayer-funded facilities play in medical research and education.

J.D. Clay of Shamrock, having his blood pressure checked by Pat Gray of Amarillo College, is one of more than 100 who came to the Shamrock American Legion Post for the Veteran's Administration Medical Center Health Fair Saturday.

Large crowd shows up for Veteran's Administration Health Fair in Shamrock

SHAMROCK — More than a 100 people showed up for a Veteran's Administration Health Fair held in conjunction with an American Legion convention in Shamrock.

"This is the first time we've had a health fair here with our district convention," said Charles Walker, commander of the Shamrock American Legion post. "We've had a good turnout."

Joe Mingus of Higgins, district commander of the American Legion, said the VA Medical Center from Amarillo has had health fairs in conjunction with American Legion conventions in other locations.

"This is the first time we've done it here at Shamrock," Mingus said.

Steve Shamlin with the Amarillo VA Medical Center said more people attended than they had expected.

"A lot of times, veterans in the area have trouble getting into Amarillo," Shamlin said. "This gives us a chance to get out and help them."

Shamlin said the health fair provided an excellent opportunity for veterans to get their VA patient data cards, have their blood pressure checked and get their blood sugar and cholesterol checked. A representative from the Texas Veteran's Land Board was also on hand to provide information on veteran's programs that the state provides.

Saturday's health fair was only one aspect of the district convention, post officials said. While the health fair was held from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, the district convention, hosted by Shamrock's American Legion Post 68, continued through Sunday.

A banquet was held Saturday night and a luncheon was held at noon Sunday, officials said. Business meetings also were held Sunday.

Texans grapple with gun law, confusion persists

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans who obtain licenses to carry a concealed handgun may find that obtaining the permit is a cinch compared with knowing where it applies.

The permits take effect Jan. 1, but the public affairs director for the Texas State Rifle Association said he fears that law-abiding permit holders may break the law inadvertently by carrying a handgun into a prohibited place.

"My advice to those who have obtained the permit is to be doubly careful — to look for signs on doors and windows of any public place you go in," Morris Johnston said.

The Austin American-Statesman reported Sunday that a review of Texas' new concealed firearms law identified some apparent conflicts.

For example, concealed firearms will be forbidden in bars, but they may be allowed in bar areas of restaurants that do not prohibit carrying. Also, a gun that is allowed inside a hotel may be illegal when carried into the hotel bar.

Employers may prohibit guns in the workplace, but customers and other visitors may be allowed to carry them unless the employer has prohibited them.

Counties and cities may prohibit concealed guns inside their government buildings. However, it is unclear whether that rule applies to people with state handgun permits. Carrying is prohibited in all federally owned or operated buildings.

Handgun carrying may be permitted in a city-owned park but not in a county-owned park.

"I think it is a hassle. People will get tired having to take that extra step to avoid any risk. Probably after a little while, they'll just not carry, and that defeats the purpose of the law," Johnston said.

The Texas attorney general has tried to clarify things through legal opinions.

One drew the distinction between the authority of cities and counties to regulate firearms in their parks. The same opinion also said transit authorities could prohibit carrying on their buses.

Another said cities and counties had the authority to ban concealed handguns from their buildings. A third confirmed that business owners also could prohibit carrying by posting a sign.

"I just hear a lot of people saying, 'Gosh, is it going to get to the point where we can't take it any place?'" said Diane Lawson, who teaches a training course to prospective permit holders in Austin.

License plates offer multitude of messages

DALLAS (AP) — Three chiropractors in Texas are so proud of their alma mater, they've put it on their license plate.

On the other end of the spectrum from Parker College of Chiropractic, 5,770 Aggies have vanity Texas A&M University license plates.

The Texas A&M University tag has led the pack since the collegiate plate program began in 1990, raking in $650,000 in proceeds through the $30 annual special fee. The large selection of college plates includes schools from around the state, with more than 12,000 plates issued this year providing more than $300,000 for scholarships.

Texas Tech is the second most popular collegiate plate, with 1,603; University of Texas, 1,596; University of Houston, 727; and Baylor University, 355, according to the Texas Department of Transportation.

The standard plate given to Texas motorists is "The Lone Star State" design, but a growing list of specially designed plates are available at an annual cost of $3 to $40.

Columbia crew taps into new computer chat line

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It was bound to happen. Chatting in cyberspace has come to outer space.

Astronauts circling Earth aboard shuttle Columbia are able to carry on a computer chat with ground controllers through a hook-up that provides nearly simultaneous two-way communications.

"This is a pretty slick tool," astronaut Michael Lopez-Alegria said after trying out the system for an hour Sunday while working through a simulated shuttle valve problem.

The new system, which is still being evaluated, consists simply of an adapter to the shuttle's existing communications system that plugs into an on-board laptop computer.

It's designed to help engineers on the ground give more explicit instructions to astronauts when on-board equipment needs repair or adjustment.

During the test, Mission Control's Daniel Bursch beamed up a detailed diagram of the valve and then walked Lopez-Alegria through a repair simulation step-by-step.

The astronaut, in turn, was able to ask questions by tapping them into his computer. Answers from the ground popped up seconds later, complete with yellow arrows on the diagram to highlight the area in question.

Television evangelist takes page from Oprah's book

EULESS, Texas (AP) — The format now seems omnipresent on television: a panel of apparently down-home folks discussing the unlikely situations into which they've stumbled.

But a new wrinkle is being ironed into the daytime talk show field.

Nationally known Euleless evangelist James Robison is adopting the format that worked for Phil Donahue and Oprah Winfrey to religious television.

The syndicated Life Today with James Robison premieres Oct. 30, replacing his existing Life Today, which for years offered the standard fare of TV ministers: film footage of foreign missions, guest speakers and inspirational messages.

Robison, 52, who has been preaching in stadiums and on television for 30 years, said he is trying to reach people who had never before dreamed of watching a television evangelist.

"I want to reach people who are not being reached. And many religious programs do not reach the general public," Robison said.

During a recent taping, William Murray, son of atheist activist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, was criticized by the audience for, as one woman said, "bad-mouthing your mother."

That launched a debate of honor and forgiveness, right and wrong and the proper interpretation of the Fourth Commandment that children honor their parents.

On future shows, Robison hopes to tackle racial strife and to define love. "And I'd love to talk to people who are angry at church leaders," Robison said.

But the show won't be a pri-ent sideshow of people whose appeal lies in "being worse off than we are," he said. Life Today with James Robison will provide "solid, real answers for real-life circumstances," Robison said.

If the exchanges on the new show get a little testy in the process, "people will see how a Christian handles confrontations," Robison said. "We want to create something people will watch."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Lucas deserves economics prize

Robert Lucas, the recipient of the Nobel Prize in economics, is noteworthy for taking common-sense knowledge, putting it into a coherent theory that can be tested and proving that people in general are usually smarter than the bureaucrats and academics who try to manipulate them. You can fool some of the people some of the time, says his theory of "rational expectations," but eventually they catch on and you can't fool them any more.

Lucas applied that insight most specifically to the Keynesian faith in inflation as an engine of economic growth, which lured policy-makers from the 1940s through the 1970s and still holds all too many in thrall. The Keynesians believed that economic growth, and especially employment growth, could be fueled by government spending and inflation. Lucas holds that when governments keep inflating the money supply, people eventually catch on and adjust their behavior accordingly. They spend less and invest less, which leads to slower economic growth and fewer jobs in the long run.

Bottom line? Government has much less ability to bring about beneficial economic results than many theorists had hoped, but a large capacity to do mischief.

The Swedish Academy, which awards the Nobel Prizes, acknowledges that Lucas is right: "Experience during the 1970s and 1980s has shown that higher inflation does not appear to bring about a permanent increase in employment."

In a news conference, Lucas criticized Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's tendency to adjust Fed policy every time there's a blip in the economy. "The U.S. economy is in excellent shape," he said. "Inflation is low and the government is not trying to do things that it isn't capable of doing." But Greenspan's attempts at micro-management leave him cold: "I still can't make any sense out of Fed Chairman Greenspan's pronouncements," he said.

Maybe that's because there isn't much sense in them. This latest Nobel Prize serves as a tribute to the University of Chicago, which has thrived by stubbornly keeping its standards high and its focus on academic excellence during a time when many universities have been "dumbing down" their offerings. This is the eighth Nobel in Economics won by professors at Chicago, and scholars at the university have won the economics Nobel five of the last six years. All told, the university has had 65 students, researchers or faculty members win Nobel Prizes in a variety of fields over the years.

The prize is also a recognition that the best work in economics these days is coming from people who are skeptical about the ability of government to improve the economy and are interested in studying why free, private markets are so much more effective in improving the standard of living and the equitable distribution of wealth.

And the word is that Robert Lucas is not only a scrupulous scholar but a fine teacher as well. Congratulations.

Is 'homework' a dirty word?

They try to make it more fun. They try bribery with extra recess time or candy. They promise not to count it toward the final grade. But nothing seems to work. Kids are not doing their homework.

So says a report in The Washington Post, reinforcing a series of teacher surveys conducted in the last few years. "Homework is a dirty word," one teacher told the Post. And parents, she added, seem to be unwilling to stand over their children and command them to do it.

A suburban Washington high school teacher estimated that in a class of 30 students, about six or seven would turn in homework assignments that they had actually completed. The rest either turned nothing in or copied another student's.

Defenders of American public education typically shift blame for the poor performance of students to parents. If parents would support what goes on in the classroom, the argument goes, if they would require their children to do their homework, scores would rise, and outcomes would improve.

There is certainly truth in this judgment. Parents are less inclined to support teachers — whether in matters of discipline or academics — than they once were.

But is that the whole picture? Teachers also point to the number of two-earner couples as part of the problem. Parents are so tired when they get home at 6:00 or 7:00 in the evening that they don't have the energy to supervise homework.

Perhaps, though, there is always time for the priorities in life. My parents both worked throughout my childhood — and my mother cared for her own aged mother. But when she got home at 5:00 or 5:30, she would ask us about our day, and then insist that homework be finished before we were allowed to watch television. If that meant time ran out for TV before bedtime, so be it.

Ask educators what's wrong with American education, and you'll get a thousand different descriptions of decaying families (which is certainly a problem), the changing economy (which is irrelevant to declining academic standards — indeed the changing economy calls for tougher standards), and lack of funds (ridiculous).

As Arthur Laffer has observed, "Some people prefer complicated error to simple truth."

One of the simple truths that teachers rarely mention is that schools are demanding less and less of children. In his book Inside American Education, Thomas Sowell describes the "dumbing down" of the public school curriculum. He cites a well-known history textbook that was revised for use by high school students. Words like "spectacle" and "admired" were eliminated as "difficult." Contrast that with the McGuffey's Readers, in widespread use a few generations ago. McGuffey's First Reader, for example, contained diacritical marks to indicate the pronunciation of vowels and the emphasis of syllables. McGuffey's Third Reader contained words like "benighted" and asked questions like "What is this species of composition called?" McGuffey's Fourth Reader included selections from Longfellow and Hawthorne.

These texts were for the masses, Sowell stresses, not the elites. Their use was so widespread between the years 1836 and 1920 that they sold 122 million copies, second only to the Bible in sales.

The high standard of McGuffey's Readers was just one example of what was once expected of youngsters. Sowell also cites an eighth-grade graduation test given to Kansas students in the early years of this century that required them to spell words like "elucidation" and "animosity" and required them to define "zenith" and "panegyric." They were also required to find the interest earned on a $900 note, at 8 percent, after two years, two months and six days.

Today, many high school students do less than 15 minutes of homework per night. And the trend continues into college. According to the Chronicle of Higher Education, only 27 percent of college freshmen had checked a book out of the library in 1990!

Why must teachers resort to bribery and subterfuge to get kids to consider homework? Because there is pressure from administrators not to give too many failing grades.

The result? Very few kids are flunked out — and the system as a whole is failing.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1995. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 23, 1944, during World War II, the Battle of Leyte Gulf began. The Japanese navy, unable to halt American landings on the island of Leyte, suffered the staggering loss of 34 ships in the battle.

On this date:
In 1864, forces led by Union Gen. Samuel R. Curtis defeated Confederate Gen. Sterling Price's army in Missouri.

In 1910, Blanche S. Scott became the first woman to make a solo, public airplane flight, reaching an altitude of 12 feet in a park in Fort Wayne, Ind.

In 1915, 25,000 women marched in New York City, demanding the right to vote.

In 1942, during World War II, Britain launched a major offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein in Egypt.

Tribute to J. Evetts Haley — R.I.P.

The supposition — cheerfully relayed by my brethren of the mass media — is that the world is wild for Harry Truman on account of his venom and vinegar and his fearlessness in speaking his mind.

Well, maybe. But, that said, what do you say about the fearlessness of the Truman contemporary who stalked into the office of political boss George Parr — architect of Lyndon Johnson's crooked 1948 victory for U.S. Senate — looked him in the eye and declared: "Mr. Parr, I'm J. Evetts Haley, and I'm running for governor of Texas. If I'm elected, it will be my pleasure to lock you up?"

True story. And here's another concerning the same candidate: Asked by an Amarillo television interviewer what he would do for wheat farmers, J. Evetts Haley replied abruptly: "If you want illegal handouts of tax money, don't vote for me. I will use my influence not in seeking more federal aid for you but in trying to stop what you already got." Of course, he never got the chance.

Why, on such a showing, isn't the world wilder for Haley than for Harry, who, after all, never instructed a large group of voters to buzz off? It's the difference in the way we lionize politicians on the one hand while, on the other hand, assigning subordinate status to everyone but talk-show hosts and pro quarterback.

J. Evetts Haley of Midland, Texas, one of modern America's greatest non-fiction writers — now dead at 94 — was a politician only for the sake of telling politicians as a class where they could get off. The Psalmist's injunction — "O put not your trust in princes" — was the Haley creed.

William Murchison

Well, in what, then, could you rely on if not laws, regulations, political polls and, yes, undisguised handouts? On something infinitely wiser, Haley argued: on the old virtues of the old dispensation. On honor, obligation, religion, duty, manners, family and that liberty which no civilized man confuses with license. How faded all this may seem, like Victorian wallpaper. Honor. Obligation. Who worries about such baubles nowadays? With J. Evetts Haley's passing, maybe no one does — a chilling thought indeed. The last Victorian has left us. It's darker and lonelier around here than one might have foretold.

Haley's extraordinary literary corpus — centered on the cattle industry of the frontier Southwest — was a hymnal of praise to the old truths flouted by the new times.

He celebrated cattlemen like Charles Goodnight, builders like George W. Littlefield, law-upholding gunfighters like Jeff Milton. All were the old-fashioned type: men of honor who were brave and resourceful — not whiners or finger-pointers.

The crust of civilization isn't very thick, J. Evetts Haley, like many before him, had observed. To have civilization, you have to fight for it and then defend it against counterattacks. His heroes were fighters who happened also to be gentlemen and ladies. Old sense of both words.

The apostles of political correctness, who have charge of college campuses, depict American history as a series of white-perpetrated rapes and robberies. Haley stood against such tomfoolery even before it came our way. Perhaps, on the intellectual winds of our wacky century, he smelled its approach. In any case, he presented us models of heroism and virtue with which to face down the PC crowd.

Not sufficiently appreciated, perhaps, is that J. Evetts Haley wrote with the majesty and swell of an organ: an old-fashioned organ, if you please. The richness of his prose — which deserves to be studied in high schools and college writing classes — rebukes the plabum that passes these days for non-fiction.

They buried him not on the lone prairie but in the family plot in Central, Texas, his life lived but his work unfinished. When will we know it's finished? Perhaps when a politician — a real live one — storms into a mighty citadel of power, stares the occupant of the throne in the eye and, in the name of the old virtues, the old truths, tells the so-and-so to skedaddle.

"What's happening around here besides leaves?"

Time to nominate Outrageous Personage

The Seventh Annual Outrageous Personage of the Year is off a rip-roaring start.

It hasn't even been officially open until now, and already a score of nominations have come in. We at the Spear Foundation, which co-sponsors of the competition with the Association of Sagacious Pundits, are fairly generous in our interpretation of some of the rules, so all nominations which were postmarked Jan. 1 or after will be accepted.

We continue to thank our muses, moreover, that we thought up a contest which is fueled by such an inexhaustible resource as Outrageous Personages. OPs are like pokeweed when you think about it. The stuff grows faster than you can cut it down.

1. The Outrageous Personage contest seeks to cast the spotlight upon the most absurd, asinine, goofy, inane, preposterous or ridiculous individuals to strut across the public stage in a given year. The judging is done by the SF, a tiny but tough think tank that struggles to stay competitive with its much larger counterparts in Washington. The prizes, handsome statues of small snakes, are provided by ASP. That is why the OP contest is sometimes referred to as the ASP Awards.

In the interest of full disclosure, I acknowledge that I, Joseph Spear, am the founder and executive director of both organizations, which explains why I must decline all nominations of myself. It just isn't seemly to accept your own award.

2. Nominees are accepted for their specific outrageous acts, not their general behavior. You don't like Bill Clinton's approach to Medicare, I don't care. You think Andre Agassi looks like he's been working on a chain gang, I say go climb a ylang-ylang. We need particulars.

3. No foreign nations, please. We are awash in domestic OPs. No need to send our ASPs abroad.

4. Groups are not eligible. If they were, I'd give the OP to the media who covered O.J. and declare the contest over.

5. OPs from all walks of life — famous, infamous and unfamous — are eligible. We admit we are biased toward well-known personalities because it's more fun to poke fun at people we all know something about. But please don't let that stop you.

6. This is Joe's game and Joe writes the rules. No guff, please, about what's fair or whatever. You don't like it, I'm sure there's a low rent OP contest in Bora Bora or someplace that will let you dictate the procedure. Go play in that one.

So who has been nominated so far? The list is full of family names, people who have popped up on our charts many times in the past seven years and few who have won before. They include: Bill Clinton (third place, 1993, and fifth place, 1994); Newt Gingrich (fourth place, 1991; fifth place tie, 1992; third place, 1994) Parson Pat Robertson (third place, 1992; Obnoxious ASP co-winner, 1994) and Jesse Helms (Obnoxious ASP, 1993; OP of the Year, 1994)

Other nominees for the current contest include: — Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., for writing to the White House and demanding to know "as a member of the new Committee on Government Reform and Oversight," whether stamps used for First Cat Socks' mail were being paid for with public funds.

— House Majority Leader Dick Armey, for referring to homosexual Congressman Barney Frank as a "fag" and then blaming his "stumbled word" on the cup of coffee he missed that morning.

— Johnnie Cochran, O.J. Simpson's black attorney, for his disgusting exploitation of the race card in Simpson's defense.

— Mark Fuhrman, the former Los Angeles police detective and star witness in the O.J. trial, for his disgusting racism and for lying under oath. If I were an L.A. taxpayer, I'd try to get a lawsuit going to annul his retirement benefits.

Comrade Fidel Castro returns amid cheers to Harlem

NEW YORK (AP) — When Fidel Castro visited Harlem in 1960 as a young, charismatic revolutionary in battle fatigues, Selma Sparks was there to cheer him on.

Thirty-five years later, the Cuban president's black beard has turned mostly gray, and so has Sparks' hair. And when Castro returned to Harlem Sunday night — again in his military uniform — Sparks was there.

"I'm just glad I lived to see him come to Harlem a second time," said Sparks, 64, as she emerged from the Abyssinian Baptist Church. "It was thrilling, exciting."

Although Castro repeatedly brought the enthusiastic crowd of 1,200 to its feet — once with an offer to send Cuban doctors into needy American neighborhoods — he has been conspicuously snubbed at several official events tied to the United Nations 50th anniversary.

As the leader of the only Communist country in the western hemisphere, Castro was not invited to President Clinton's gala dinner tonight at the New York Public Library, nor to Mayor Rudolph Giuliani's welcoming banquet for the diplomats last Saturday.

"I was a demon," he said sarcastically. "It is really incredible that history is repeating itself in this way," Castro said. "It's as if we were in the days of the Cold War. It may be cold out, but there's no longer a Cold War."

Today, Castro was reportedly scheduled to address scholars and other experts on Cuba in a closed-door session at the Council on Foreign Relations, a prestigious research center. Before his visit ends Tuesday, he planned to meet with business leaders and media executives. Specific plans were not available for security reasons.

On Sunday, Castro got a standing ovation when he talked about how his country supported black South Africans under apartheid and railed against the trade ban.

"We will never change, because we were right,"

Castro told the wildly cheering audience inside the church. The throng at times chanted "Fidel, si," and "We Want Cuba!"

The dictator was just as relaxed earlier Sunday in an interview with CNN's Bernard Shaw. Asked what he would say if he were to meet with House Speaker Newt Gingrich and conservative Sen. Jesse Helms — two of his most outspoken critics — Castro said he would offer them some Cuban cigars and rum.

In a speech Sunday at the United Nations, Castro said: "We lay claim to a world without ruthless blockades that cause the death of men, women and children, youths and elders, like noiseless atom bombs."

By the time he arrived at the church, he had changed out of his suit and into his trademark soldier's uniform.

"The last time I went to Harlem I was wearing my fatigues. How can I go to Harlem dressed in a business suit?," he said.

When he visited in 1960, Castro, then 35, had been in power for just a year. He left the Shelburne Hotel in midtown Manhattan after the proprietors complained that he and his aides had run up $10,000 in damage — cigar burns in the rugs, empty rum bottles in the halls and live chickens brought in to be cooked on hotplates.

Castro moved to the Theresa. While throngs waited outside for a glimpse, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev dropped by to introduce himself.

This time, Castro is staying at the Cuban Mission to the United Nations, but he stopped at the hotel, now an office building, and got out of his limousine for a quick look around on the way to the church.

Castro's speech was organized by the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organizing, which has long advocated lifting the embargo. The church, which has welcomed world leaders ranging from Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie to Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert, takes no official position on Castro's politics and the trade embargo.

O.J. has party for daughter at Michael Jackson's ranch

NEW YORK (AP) — O.J. Simpson held a birthday party for his daughter at Michael Jackson's Neverland Ranch, two days before he went to Florida for a golf trip, the Daily News reported today.

His children, Sydney, who turned 10, and Justin, 7, frolicked at Jackson's lavish private amusement park on his estate near Santa Barbara, Calif., on Oct. 15, according to the newspaper.

The pop singer and his wife, Lisa Marie Presley, were not at home.

The children were ecstatic when they returned home to their grandparents, Louis and Juditha Brown. "They were so excited. It was all they could talk about," a family source told The News.

The Browns were granted temporary custody after their daughter, Nicole, and her friend Ron Goldman were slain June 12, 1994. Simpson was acquitted Oct. 3 in the double-slaying.

On Sydney's actual birthday, Oct. 17, Simpson flew to Florida to reunite with his girlfriend Paula Barbieri.

The Browns threw their own birthday party for Sydney on Sunday, the News reported, inviting the young daughters of Faye Resnick and Kris Jenner — both friends of their slain daughter.

Jackson and Simpson share the same lawyer — Johnnie Cochran Jr. Cochran represented Jackson when he was faced with child molestation charges, negotiating a multi-million dollar settlement with one alleged victim.

Average pump prices drop 1 1/2 cents per gallon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline pump prices nationwide dropped an average of 1 1/2 cents per gallon in the past two weeks, mostly because demand is falling, an industry expert said.

The average price for all grades of gasoline, including taxes, was 117.32 cents per gallon, a 1.59-cent drop from the Oct. 6 average of 118.91 cents, said Tribby Lundberg, publisher of the twice-monthly Lundberg Survey.

The survey of 10,000 gasoline stations was taken Friday.

"The drop is due to supply and demand," Lundberg said Sunday. "There's a summer overhang in the overall supply that exceeds seasonally shrinking demand."

At self-serve pumps, the average per-gallon price was 110.37 cents for unleaded regular, 120.61 cents for mid-grade unleaded regular, 128.96 cents for premium unleaded and 110.93 cents for leaded regular.

At full-serve pumps, the average per-gallon price was 148.78 cents for unleaded regular, 157.89 cents for mid-grade unleaded regular, 164.63 cents for premium unleaded and 150.20 cents for leaded regular.

Charlie Wilson expected to announce he won't seek reelection

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Good-Time" Charlie Wilson may be saying goodbye.

Charlie Wilson, the fun-loving, flamboyant Democrat who has represented East Texas' 2nd Congressional District with a unique brand of rakish charm since 1973, was expected to announce today that he won't seek reelection next year.

The 62-year-old Lufkin Democrat privately has told colleagues that it's time to explore new horizons and make some money in the private sector.

A liberal Democrat with a rigid hawkish bent, Wilson has made his mark in the areas of defense and foreign policy, while providing ample fodder for the gossip mills.

Sitting next to Mildred at the Thursday luncheon is Ann Loter, Meals on Wheels director.

Air traffic control center back to full service

FORT WORTH (AP) — A new, up-to-date power system and radar systems at the Fort Worth Air Route Traffic Control Center is up and running with no apparent glitches.

The upgrade came Sunday, one day after the center's primary radar was returned to service after its second failure in a week.

"It took place with no problems," said Roland Herwig, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration's Aeronautical Center in Oklahoma City.

The primary system was repaired and switched back on about 5 a.m. Saturday, after being out of service since 10:30 a.m. Friday, center officials said.

The return from the backup to the primary system went smoothly and the radar was working well, the National Air Traffic Controllers Association local at the Fort Worth center said.

The Friday failure came three days after the Fort Worth center's first complete blackout of its radar screens, which lasted 12 minutes after a midday power failure on Tuesday.

A momentary power outage at the center shut down the main and backup radar systems, leaving about 300 aircraft flying blind over the five-state area for about 12 minutes. There were no near-collisions; air traffic controllers kept aircraft separated by tracking the aircraft on paper and directing pilots by radio, officials said.

Friday's breakdown of the primary radar was believed to have been a delayed reaction to Tuesday's power outage, said Charlie Bono, the FAA's air traffic manager at the center. An electrical arch shot through the computer and radar screens when the Tuesday breakdown occurred, applying stress to the aging system, he said.

Club news

The regular business meeting of Altrusa International Inc. of Pampa was held on Monday, Oct. 9, 1995 at 12 noon in the Biarritz Club of Coronado Inn.

President Becky Holmes called the meeting to order with the Altrusa Grace and the Pledge of Allegiance.

Thirty members were present. There was no illness reports. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as read. The Treasurer's Report was given by Jeanne Mitchell in the absence of Daisy Bennett. Sandy McCoy read the correspondence.

The Accent was presented by Mary McDaniel on the purpose, structure and benefits of District Conference.

The following committee reports and announcements were given:

President Becky Holmes reminded members that it was not too late to plan to attend District Conference Oct. 20-22. She announced that scheduled events include a Halloween costume dinner Friday, free bus tours of the Capital Saturday morning, a Denim & Diamond Lunch Saturday, and a formal banquet Saturday evening.

Louise Bailey announced that a sign-up sheet was being circulated to volunteer to help furnish refreshments for the Pampa Sheltered Workshop Open House scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 26. Louise encouraged all Altrusans to attend the Open House if possible.

Leona Willis reported on the completion of the yearbooks.

Brenda Tucker asked that articles for the newsletter be turned in to her this week due to District Conference.

Wings of Service were presented to Leona Willis and Mayda King for their work on the yearbook.

The Brag Angel was passed by Judy Rutledge.

With no further business, the meeting was adjourned with the Altrusa Benediction.

The next meeting of Altrusa will be at 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 23, in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

AFL-CIO convention begins its first contested election since merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Donahue and John Sweeney, who share Irish roots, New York pasts and a desire to control the labor movement, battle for the top job this week in the first contested election since the AFL merged with the CIO four decades ago.

As the AFL-CIO convention opens today, Sweeney claims to lead the incumbent Donahue with 55 percent of the votes to be cast Wednesday. But Donahue, who took over after Sweeney helped oust former President Lane Kirkland, is lobbying for more support from construction unions.

"You know the carpenters have moved. We're going to continue to pick up steam," Donahue told several hundred supporters Sunday night, referring to last week's jump of the 380,000-member United Brotherhood of Carpenters from Sweeney's side. "The only count that matters is on Wednesday."

He hoped to persuade more unions in the federation's construction trades to switch, particularly the 352,000-member Laborers International Union.

But Sweeney supporters said they still led by nearly 2 million votes and that Donahue was making little headway with other unions.

Sweeney carried himself Sunday as if the race were already decided, telling hundreds of boisterous supporters in a hotel meeting room that "the winds of change are rattling the shutters" of AFL-CIO headquarters.

"This is not about who heads up the AFL-CIO," said Sweeney, president of the Service Employees International Union. "It's about where the AFL-CIO is headed."

Whatever the outcome, the 13.3-million-member federation will be led by a man with deep union ties who promises to make the institution a more active agent on behalf of working people.

Donahue, 66, earned his first union card operating an elevator in a Manhattan department store. Sweeney, 61, got one tending graves in suburban New York.

Both men, who are longtime friends, pledge to intensify organizing efforts, work harder to defeat politicians who oppose workers' issues, and open up the AFL-CIO hierarchy to more women and minorities.

There is a sense of urgency in the labor movement about changes needed. Unions represent just 15 percent of all non-farm workers, down from a peak of 34.7 percent in 1954. And declining rolls have meant declining influence.

Sweeney and a coalition of large unions forced Kirkland to resign in August, saying he had failed to effectively defend workers or support organizing efforts during his 16-year tenure.

When Donahue succeeded Kirkland, he installed Barbara Easterling as the first female secretary-treasurer and began building a $20 million organizing fund to beef up labor's dwindling ranks.

Sweeney's coalition applauded these moves, but said they were right out of his campaign book and remained committed to electing Sweeney.

During the election of officers, union leaders cast votes weighted to their union's membership. Although more of the 78 affiliated unions back Donahue, the support of large unions such as the Teamsters and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees give Sweeney control of 55 percent of the vote.

Thornberry opposes sending American troops into Bosnia

WASHINGTON — Rep. Mac Thornberry of the 13th Congressional District said the administration cannot justify its action to put U.S. troops into Bosnia.

The Secretary of State, Secretary of Defense and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff testified last week before the National Security Committee, of which Thornberry is a member, to explain the president's plan to put 25,000 American troops in Bosnia.

"None of them could identify a national security interest which requires U.S. ground troops in Bosnia, and none could answer the tough questions or convince me as to what vital national interests are at stake and why American blood should be spilled in Bosnia," Thornberry said. "Bosnians have been killing each other for centuries."

Thornberry said that while America cannot shirk its responsibility as the leader of the free world, it must be on U.S. terms, and American peacekeepers should not be sent to a place where no reliable and sustainable peace exists.

Man Is Conscientious Objector In Battle of Thank-You Notes

DEAR ABBY: My purpose in writing you today is to play devil's advocate on behalf of the 8-year-old nephew of "To Bestow or Not to Bestow."

The nephew may have good reasons for not writing thank-you notes, unrelated to childish scrawls or unsophisticated manners. Like most men, he is already becoming suspicious of the motives of others, realizing that accepting a gift creates obligations that he may be unwilling or unable to take on.

I have not written a thank-you note for more than 20 years. The last one I wrote, to my mother-in-law, was so obviously contrived and painful that she replied with a gracious thank-you for the thank-you note; then she went on to say that I was relieved from writing further thank-you notes.

It is not that I don't know better. I do. My mother strove mightily to make me write thank-you notes. When I was in college, my grandmother sent me a check for $25, which my mother refused to pass on to me until I wrote a thank-you note. Nearly 30 years later, that check remains uncashed. The embarrassment it has caused my mother was worth considerably more than $25. One should never threaten children — especially when the threat is more painful to the parent than it is to the child.

the devil's advocate, but intelligent people have the right to disagree. Accepting a gift does create an obligation — the obligation to express appreciation for the time and thought that went into sending it. It needn't be anything fancy. It can be as simple as, "Dear ( ), Thank you for remembering my birthday. Your thoughtfulness is appreciated."

In thank-you notes, as in bestowing gifts, it's the thought that counts.

DEAR ABBY: I never dreamed I would be writing to Dear Abby, but I just read a letter in your column that caught my eye. A reader said, "I am retired, but I am not idle." That sounded like my life.

I was in business for 45 years, retired at 62 and loafed around for seven years. I went to too many cocktail parties and drank more than I should have. So I went back to work selling vacuum cleaners door-to-door at the age of 69! It was the kind of work I had done (and enjoyed) all my life.

At 80 years old, I quit, because driving 80 to 100 miles a day around the Twin Cities was stretching my luck.

My children said, "Thank God you quit working!" Well, two weeks after I quit the vacuum cleaner business, I went to work for Walmart as a greeter. I meet a lot of nice people, keep in contact with the outside world and do something that makes me feel wanted.

Everyone should have a reason to get up in the morning! I feel blessed. You may use my name.

CARL W. WAGENER, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR CARL: I hope your letter inspires other seniors to follow your healthy example. You are indeed blessed.

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1995

In the year ahead, you will be in one of the strongest cycles you've ever enjoyed. Outside influences will help you to finally make some positive changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Two wise and loving friends will be instrumental in helping you resolve a complicated matter. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail 52-75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You possess a profound sense of compassion and prefer helping others more than you enjoy gratifying yourself. Your good deeds will not go unnoticed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take a break from your regular routine by doing something fun. However, be sure to include an old friend you've neglected recently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your hard work is finally paying off! You will soon receive compensation from something long overdue in accordance with past efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your wisdom and reliability will be of great value to friends. They will be impressed with your imaginative solutions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Much can be accomplished in a collective endeavor today if you take charge. Only relevant parties should be aware of your involvement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The management of a group project will be facilitated if you bond with a strong ally. Unified efforts produce the best results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stick with familiar methods when trying to achieve a personal goal. Try not to cut corners, and avoid using new procedures.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Business and pleasure will blend well today. It may be mutually beneficial to mingle socially with potential clients.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Success indicators look strong, so go ahead and make the changes you've been considering. New developments will prove beneficial to friends and colleagues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A meeting of minds will be possible with an associate who has been unreasonable. Take advantage of this opportunity to restate your case.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Using your talent, knowledge and resourcefulness to help others may help you realize personal goals.

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — The annual Harvester Midnight Madness basketball event is scheduled for Oct. 27, starting at 11:30 p.m. in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Besides the intrasquad scrimmage for the Pampa boys basketball team, some mystery entertainment has been planned.

The public is invited to attend.

Practice begins Tuesday.

FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Pampa hosts Randall at 7:30 Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

Pampa is 2-0 in District 1-4A play and 5-1 for the season. Randall is 2-1, 5-2.

GOLF

HEREFORD — The Pampa High boys' golf team shot a 308 in triangular-dual matches last weekend at John Pitman Golf Course.

Mike Smith led Pampa with a 73, followed by Phil Everson 74, Brian Brauchi 80, Bryan Rose 81, and Shawn Hurst 84.

"I was real pleased with Mike Smith. He's going to be a great addition to our team if he continues to play well," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough.

Pampa had the top score of the 11 teams playing in the triangular-dual at Hereford.

The Pampa boys finished the fall golf season.

The Pampa girls, led by Shelbie Allison's 90, shot a 379 to defeat Hereford (380) and Plainview (423) in the triangular.

Other Pampa scores were Melinda Randall 91, Melissa Gindorf 97, Alison Persall 101, and Heather Mitchell 107.

The Pampa girls close out the fall season next weekend at Borger.

AUTO RACING

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Jeff Gordon and Dale Earnhardt may be the only people who didn't think the Winston Cup championship was a done deal when Gordon led by 302 points with four races remaining.

"I'm not the one who said this thing was over with," Gordon said Sunday after a frustrating 20th-place finish in the AC-Delco 400 — combined with Earnhardt's eighth consecutive top-10 finish — cut his margin to just 162 points with two races remaining.

"This is Winston Cup racing," the 24-year-old Gordon said. "We're racing Dale Earnhardt, and those guys are real tough."

While Ward Burton was winning his first Winston Cup race in the event at North Carolina Motor Speedway, Earnhardt, a seven-time series winner and the two-time defending champion, was the catalyst of one of the stranger episodes in recent NASCAR history.

It looked like the championship race might be all but over, despite Gordon's problems, when an inspector thought he saw only four of the required five lug nuts on one of Earnhardt's tires during a late pit stop and reported it to the control tower.

NASCAR ordered Earnhardt back into the pits where, upon closer inspection, it was found that all the lug nuts were in place, but one of them was a darker color than the others.

After some consultation with his top officials, Bill France Jr., president of NASCAR, ordered a caution flag waved in order to put Earnhardt, who fell from sixth to 14th with the extra stop, back among the leaders.

"What we tried to do is put them back where they were before all this started," France said. "We didn't want to cost somebody or influence the championship one way or another. We want it decided on the race-track."

Glavine, Lopez lift Braves past Indians

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — After two games, here's what the World Series boils down to: The best hitting team in baseball has met its match.

The Cleveland Indians can't hit the Atlanta Braves.

The big, bad Tribe has managed all of five runs, three of them unearned. They've had almost the same number of broken bats as hits. There have been no clutch hits. All those ninth-inning comebacks they managed to pile up in the regular season haven't happened in this series.

That oldest of cliches, good pitching beats good hitting, has never been so true. "I guess there's a reason why everybody says that. There has to be a reason to prove that theory, and I think this series hasn't been any different," said Tom Glavine, who got the victory in Atlanta's 4-3 win in Game 2 Sunday night by holding the Indians to three hits over six innings.

Atlanta's bullpen gave up three more hits and surrendered an unearned run, but with a runner on second and two outs in the ninth, Mark Wohlers got Carlos Baerga to pop up to third to end the game, leaving Albert Belle on deck at the finish for the second straight night.

"Thank God I didn't have to face Albert Belle. Not that I wouldn't relish the challenge, but I'm glad the game ended on that pitch," Wohlers said.

It was the ninth win in 10 postseason games for the Braves, who haven't lost since Oct. 6.

The Indians, who hit .291 with 207 home runs in the regular season, are 8-for-64 at the plate in the World Series.

History isn't on their side either. Of the 27 times a team has lost the first two games of the World Series on the road, only four times has it come back to win the title.

"It's going to be as big a challenge as we've faced all year long, but that doesn't mean I'm concerned whether our team will show up to play. I think we will," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said.

If the Indians manage to lose Game 3 Tuesday night, they'll have this fact to deal with: Never has a team come back from a 3-0 deficit in the postseason. Not in the league championship series. Not in the World Series. Never.

"We are a team that can win four in a row. That is our challenge and we can do it," said Kenny Lofton, who has done all he could to spark the Cleveland offense with four stolen bases and three of his team's five runs.

Cleveland took a 2-0 lead on Eddie

Murray's second-inning home run, but the Braves tied it in the third on a sacrifice fly by Chipper Jones and an RBI single by Dave Justice.

Javier Lopez hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth off Dennis Martinez to break a tie and give Atlanta a 4-2 lead, and manager Bobby Cox then turned to his bullpen, which had been the Braves' biggest weakness in the 1991 and 1992 World Series.

This time, it wasn't easy and wasn't pretty, but Greg McMichael, Alejandro Pena and Wohlers managed to hold the lead.

McMichael and Pena allowed five of the nine runners they faced to reach base in the seventh and eighth innings. But when the big outs were needed, Atlanta got them.

McMichael got two quick outs in the seventh before Lofton singled, stole second and scored when left fielder Mike Devereaux misplayed a slicing line drive for a two-base error. A wild pitch put Omar Vizquel on third and a walk put Baerga on first, but Belle fouled out to the catcher on an 0-2 pitch from Pena to end the inning.

"It was a huge play, you bet," Cox said. "Earlier this season, when I was with Boston, he hit a homer off me. This was my revenge," Pena said.

In the eighth, Manny Ramirez had a one-out single but was picked off first by Lopez on a pitch to Jim Thome, who eventually walked. Cox summoned Wohlers and pinch-hitter Paul Sorrento flied out to center to end another threat.

"It's a big difference being up 2-0," Glavine said. "By no means is this over, but this is the best position we could possibly be in."

The scene now shifts to Jacobs Field for the first World Series game in Cleveland in 41 years. John Smoltz will pitch for Atlanta against Charles Nagy on Tuesday night.

Cox said he will decide today whether to use Greg Maddux, who held Cleveland to a season-low two hits in Game 1, in Game 4 Wednesday night. If not, Steve Avery will start.

"It was a huge win tonight," Chipper Jones said. "It assures us that no matter what happens in Cleveland, we can come back here to the Chop House where we've played well all season. Everyone is sky-high."

Everyone but the Indians, who didn't face a pitching staff like Atlanta's all year.

If they're going to make this series tight, they'll have to overcome that old, overused but accurate adage: Their good hitting will have to humble that good pitching.

Defensive play

White Deer defender Andy Phillips (61) goes after a Groom ballcarrier during last weekend's District 1-1A football action. The Bucks won, 18-8, for their first victory of the season. This Friday night, White Deer hosts Wheeler while Groom is at Sunray.

NFL has one unpredictable Sunday

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Sports Writer

From replacements to retreats, the NFL encountered one unpredictable Sunday.

Vince Evans, the grandpa of the league at 40 years old and subbing for Jeff Hostetler, threw for 335 yards and two touchdowns as Oakland beat Indianapolis 30-17.

Elvis Grbac filled in nicely for the injured Steve Young, throwing two touchdown passes to help San Francisco to a 44-10 rout of the St. Louis Rams.

Brett Maxie, finding new life with expansion Carolina, intercepted two passes in the Panthers' 20-3 victory over New Orleans.

And Marcus Allen keeps churning out yards, gaining 121 and scoring his 100th career touchdown in Kansas City's 21-7 win over Denver.

Losers also made a strong showing, with Jacksonville (3-5) and Carolina (2-5) winning — the first time pro football expansion teams won on the same day — along with the New York Jets (2-6) and Washington Redskins (3-5).

With the season just about at the halfway point, there's a three-way tie for first in the NFC West (49ers, Rams and Falcons), Green Bay and Chicago are tied in the NFC Central and Dallas leads the East.

In the AFC, Buffalo (5-1) entering tonight's game against New England leads the East, with Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh tied in the Central at 3-4 and Kansas City (7-1) leading the West with the league's best record.

But the watchword on Sunday was "old."

As in: "The old 49ers are back," William Floyd said after San Francisco (5-2) bounced back from a loss to the Colts last week with a vengeance.

As in: "I feel renewed. I feel quick. My competitive juices are just as intense as when I was 22 years old," Evans said after the second-best day of his 16-year career — 23 of 35 for 335 yards and two long TD passes. "There was definitely a fire inside, I was definitely geared up for it."

Or: "This year is like a rebirth year for me. This is something really special," said Maxie, who was dropped by the Saints before hooking on with the Panthers.

And let's not forget Darrell Green, who was booed in regulation but cheered like a hero after his 7-yard interception return 3:49 into overtime lifted Washington over Detroit 36-30.

Elsewhere Sunday, it was the New York Jets 17, Miami 16; Chicago 35, Houston 32; Jacksonville 23, Cleveland 15; Atlanta 24, Tampa Bay 21; San Diego 35, Seattle 25, and Green Bay 38, Minnesota 21.

On Thursday, it was Cincinnati 27, Pittsburgh 9.

Arizona, Dallas, Philadelphia and the New York Giants had the week off.

Raiders 30, Colts 17

At Oakland, Calif., the Raiders (6-2) returned to the big play, with Evans hitting Raghbi Ismail with TD passes of 73 and 46 yards. Also, rookie Napoleon Kaufman returned a kick-off 84 yards for another score.

The Colts (4-3) entered the game off victories against the Rams, Dolphins and 49ers, but Jim Harbaugh (17 of 25 for 202 yards) was unable to overcome the Raiders' big plays. Marshall Faulk had TD runs of 7 and 9 yards for Indianapolis.

49ers 44, Rams 10

At St. Louis, Ken Norton Jr. gave Grbac all the help he needed by returning two interceptions for TDs. Young remains out with a shoulder injury.

"You have certain days where you can't do anything wrong," Norton said. "It was one of those days today. No question about it, we wanted to come out and make a statement."

The 49ers intercepted Chris Miller four times as the Rams fell to 5-2.

Panthers 20, Saints 3
At Clemson, S.C., Maxie's interceptions came in the third quarter and helped offset a poor outing by Kerry Collins (8 of 21 for 48 yards). The Panthers (2-6) have won two in a row, while the Saints fell to 1-6. Jim Everett (27 of 48 for 241 yards) was intercepted four times.

Chiefs 21, Broncos 7

At Denver, a snowstorm that covered the yard-markers at halftime forced John Elway to try gloves, but Steve Bono and Allen fared much better. Bono ran for one TD and passed for another, and Allen became only the fourth player in NFL history to rush for 100 TDs. Allen rushed 21 times for his 121 yards. Denver is 4-4.

Redskins 36, Lions 30, OT

Green intercepted Scott Mitchell's pass and gave the Redskins a stunning win. Eddie Murray forced OT with a 39-yard field goal with four seconds left. The Lions (2-5) have not won in the nation's capital in 60 years, losing all 18 games they have played in Washington, their last road victory in the series coming in 1935 when the Redskins were based in Boston. The Redskins (3-5) have won 17 straight overall against the Lions, the longest current streak in the NFL.

"I was able to jump in there and make what most people think is the greatest play in the world," Green, a 13-year veteran said. "But I know as a cornerback, it was just something that worked out good for me. All I know is I was doing what I was supposed to do."

Jets 17, Dolphins 16

At East Rutherford, N.J., the Dolphins (4-3) are defenseless — and offenseless — without Dan Marino (knee), who is expected back next week against Buffalo. The Jets broke a four-game losing streak as Johnny Mitchell, who fumbled a series earlier to help Miami take the lead, provided the winning points by catching a 3-yard TD pass from Bubby Brister with 13:05 to play.

It was the Jets' first fourth-quarter touchdown in 12 games, dating to Nov. 20, 1994.

Canadian rallies to defeat Clarendon

CLARENDON — Canadian came from behind to defeat Clarendon, 21-12, in a District 2-2A clash Friday night.

Clarendon was leading, 12-0, in the first quarter before Canadian started making its comeback. Phillip Childress scored on a 3-yard run to make the score, 12-6, at halftime.

Canadian scored 15 third-quarter points as Daniel Hilton tallied on a 1-yard run and Richard Blanco caught a 35-yard TD pass from Kevin Zenor.

Hilton was Canadian's leading rusher with 135 yards on 27 carries. Zenor completed 6 of 14 passes for 76 yards.

Lorenzo Moore led Clarendon in rushing with 72 yards on 18 carries.

Clarendon led in total offense, 267-174, and first downs, 14-7.

Canadian is now 2-0 in district play and 5-1 for the season. Clarendon is 1-1 and 5-2. The Wildcats, who are going for their fourth straight district title, have now won 14 district games in a row.

Canadian hosts Memphis in more district action Friday night.

Canadian and Panhandle are tied for the district lead while Memphis is tied for third with Clarendon.

Waldorf wins Texas Open

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As Duffy Waldorf was savoring his Texas Open victory, his first on the PGA Tour, young Texas golfer Justin Leonard was smiling along with him.

Leonard finished six strokes behind Waldorf to earn $118,800 for second place and qualify for this week's $3 million Tour Championship at Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.

"It's going to be a lot of fun," said the 23-year-old Leonard, a 1994 University of Texas graduate.

Waldorf shot a 7-under-par 65 Sunday to win the $1 million Texas Open. His 20-under total earned him $198,000 and was the lowest under par total for a PGA event his year.

"I just kind of hung in there, and it worked out great," Waldorf said. "My putting and chipping were good."

Waldorf had held a slim lead since Friday and was one stroke ahead of Jay Don Blake entering the final round. Midway through the front nine Blake faltered and Leonard became Waldorf's biggest threat.

Leonard started the day three strokes back and moved to within two after he birdied the par-4 5th. Even with three more birdies in the round, Leonard never moved any closer to Waldorf.

With birdies on 13 and 17, Waldorf upped his lead while Leonard bogeyed 16 and 17.

"It just got away from me the last three holes. But I don't have anything to hang my head about," Leonard said. "The bogeys I made at 16 and 17 didn't really cost me anything but pride."

Leonard, who had a final-round 68 and a 14-under-par total of 274, said there simply was no catching Waldorf, who played "incredible."

"It's just a tribute to him and how well he played," Leonard said.

Leonard moved from 33rd to 24th on the PGA Tour money list. The top 30 get to play in the Tour Championship.

Loren Roberts, the first-round leader who was 31st on the money list, finished in a tie for third at 8-under 280 with John Mahaffey and John Morse and earned $57,200. That was enough to move him to 28th.

Jeff Sluman and Hal Sutton were 29th and 30th on last week's money list. They were bumped to 31st and 32nd.

Waldorf's winnings give him $525,622 for the year, but he started the week 54th on the list and moved up only to 35th.

The final round was played on yet another blustery day at La Cantera Golf Club, the site of the tournament for the first time. The wind never seemed to interfere with Waldorf's play.

"The first time I stepped on this course I felt I can play this course, I can make five or six birdies a round," he said.

Blake shot a 5-over 77 Sunday and finished at 281. Blake looked like the likely third-place finisher through most of the back nine, but he made a 9 on the par-5 16th when it took him four shots to get out of a bunker.

Armed with his lucky hat signed by friends and family, Waldorf said he set out Sunday trying to remain calm and concentrate on his game without worrying about what other golfers were doing.

"I knew I couldn't just kind of coast in," he said. "I knew I had to play a good round."

Waldorf's previous best finishes on the PGA Tour came in 1992 when he was second in two events and earlier this year when he tied for second at the United Airlines Hawaiian Open.

At last he knows the feeling of winning, of "being the best — of that week," he said. "No one else beat me this week."

Sherman player suffers neck injury

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A Sherman football player who suffered a neck injury during a game against Wichita Falls Hirschi remained hospitalized.

Trenell Walker, a freshman defensive back, was listed in stable condition in intensive care late Sunday at Wilson N. Jones Hospital in Sherman, said a hospital supervisor.

Walker was immobilized and removed from the field midway in the first half Friday night after running into a teammate while trying to tackle Hirschi rusher Quenten Malone.

Northwestern on amazing run

By The Associated Press

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

The Northwestern football team no longer is a surprise. Nor is Southern Cal when the Trojans play at South Bend.

Those two facts of football life continued to hold true on Saturday as the eighth-ranked Wildcats continued their amazing run this college season and the Trojans continued their less-than-amazing performances against Notre Dame.

"Definitely, we're in a bowl game," Northwestern safety William Bennett said after Saturday's 35-0 victory over Wisconsin. "We showed everyone we're for real. Where we're placed at the end of the season doesn't matter to me."

With a 6-1 record, the Wildcats have met the minimum requirement for their first bowl since 1949 and only their second postseason trip. Wildcats coach Gary Barnett is not assuming anything, however. "I think we have to win seven to be assured of a bowl, and even then I'm not sure about that," Barnett said.

Barnett, in only four seasons, has produced Northwestern's first winning season since 1971.

The No. 13 Trojans, meanwhile, continued their futility against the No. 12 Fighting Irish with a 38-10 loss at Notre Dame Stadium. The Irish are 12-0-1 over the Trojans in the last 13 games.

"I'm very disappointed. It hurts," said receiver Keyshawn Johnson, who scored Southern Cal's only touchdown. "But it's something we have to get past."

Kansas continued to be another good story in college football. The once-lowlly Jayhawks improved to 7-0 after a 38-17 victory over No. 23 Oklahoma.

The other schools with unblemished records are not as surprising. No. 1 Florida State beat Georgia Tech 42-10 to go 7-0. No. 2 Nebraska defeated No. 14 Kansas State 49-25 to 7-0. No. 3 Florida remained at 6-0 after a week off, and No. 4 Ohio State went to 7-0 with a 28-0 victory over Purdue.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 7 Colorado 50, Iowa State 28; No. 9 Michigan 34, Indiana 17; No. 10 Oregon 26, Washington State 7; No. 11 Auburn 34, Western Michigan 13; No. 15 Texas 17, No. 20 Virginia 16; No. 16 Penn State 41, No. 25 Iowa 27; No. 17 Washington 31, Arizona 17; No. 18 Alabama 23, Mississippi 9; No. 19 Texas A&M 24, Baylor 0; No. 21 Syracuse 22, West Virginia 0; No. 22 Texas Tech 31, Rice 26, and No. 24 UCLA 42, Stanford 28.

No. 1 Florida St. 42, Ga. Tech 10

At Tallahassee, Danny Kanell threw for four touchdowns and broke his own school record for completions, going 41-of-51. Its running game all but stopped by the nation's best rushing defense, Florida State went to the arm of Kanell, who passed for 302 yards.

Andre Cooper and E.G. Green each caught two of Kanell's scoring passes.

No. 2 Nebraska 49, No. 14 Kansas St. 25

At Lincoln, Tommie Frazier threw for a career-high four touchdowns and Nebraska ran its string of consecutive victories over Kansas State to 27.

Through three quarters, the Wildcats (6-1) had 6 points, minus 4 yards rushing and 128 total yards.

No. 4 Ohio St. 28, Purdue 0

At Columbus, Terry Glenn set a school record with two touchdowns catches and Bob Hoying passed for three scores for Ohio State.

Glenn's catches of 7 and 12 yards gave him 12 touchdown receptions this season, breaking the mark of 11 by Cris Carter in 1986 and Joey Galloway last season.

No. 6 Kansas 38, No. 23 Oklahoma 17

The Jayhawks scored three fourth-quarter touchdowns to pull away from the Sooners and win at Norman, Okla., for the first time since 1975. They used a grind-it-out running game, a few passes and some big plays on defense to make Oklahoma fullback Jerald Moore's career-high 219 yards rushing inconsequential.

Mark Williams threw three touchdown passes and Dorian Brew made two huge interceptions, including one he returned for a touchdown.

No. 7 Colorado 50, Iowa St. 28

At Ames, Lendon Henry ran for three touchdowns and the defense added two scores for Colorado (6-1). Colorado was favored by 24 points and expected little more than a tune-up for next Saturday's Big Eight showdown with Nebraska.

Instead, the Buffaloes had to battle back from a 28-27 fourth-quarter deficit.

No. 8 Northwestern 35, Wisconsin 0
At Evanston, Northwestern clinched its first winning season in 24 years and knocked Wisconsin out of the poll with seven turnovers.

Northwestern got its first shutout since 1986 and ensured its first winning season since going 7-4 in 1971.

No. 9 Michigan 34, Indiana 17

At Bloomington, Amari Toomer returned a punt for a touchdown, caught a 38-yard pass to set up a second score and tossed a key completion on a third scoring drive in the first half for Michigan (6-1).

Indiana fumbles led to a touchdown and field goal.

No. 10 Oregon 26, Washington St. 7

At Eugene, Isaac Walker and Paul Jensen returned interceptions for Oregon touchdowns. Oregon (6-1) struggled on offense most of the game against the Cougars' fast, aggressive defense, but the two big defensive plays allowed the Ducks to avenge their only Pac-10 loss during their march to the Rose Bowl last season.

No. 11 Auburn 34, W. Michigan 13

At Auburn, Robert Baker's 47-yard punt return set up a short touchdown run that erased any doubt in Auburn's victory.

Baker spun over the middle of the field and raced to the Broncos' 4-yard line, allowing Stephen Davis to go in from the 1 and putting the Tigers three TDs ahead. Auburn is 5-2.

No. 12 Notre Dame 38, No. 13 Southern Cal 10

At South Bend, Marc Edwards ran for three touchdowns and threw for a 2-point conversion as the Irish pounded Southern Cal.

Notre Dame (6-2) ran for 191 yards and four TDs against the Trojans (6-1).

No. 15 Texas 17, No. 20 Virginia 16

At Austin, Phil Dawson kicked a 50-yard field goal into a stiff wind for Texas (5-1-1) as time expired. Virginia fell to 6-3. Dawson had missed from 52 and 57 yards earlier in the game.

Nation's murder rate down for third straight year

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of homicides in the United States fell in 1994 for the third straight year, the government announced today.

The homicide rate fell 8.2 percent, from 10.5 homicides per 100,000 people in 1993 to 9.7 in 1994, the National Center for Health Statistics said. The number of homicides fell from 25,470 in 1993 to 23,730 in 1994.

Some of the nation's largest cities, including Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles, already have noted downturns in their murder rates. And New York is expected to end this year with 48 percent fewer killings than its record high 2,245 in 1990, according to the research center.

The national center didn't speculate as to the cause of the falling homicide rate, but police attribute the drop in part to a higher profile on the streets by law enforcement officers in high-crime areas.

"When you look at the crimes, many are gang or drug related," said Lt. John Dunkin, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department. "These are things that can be attacked by law enforcement efforts."

Hopefully, it's putting officers out on foot beats, getting the community involved and interceding programs for young people. But you certainly don't want to overlook to some extent it's cyclic," he added.

The south bureau of the police department, covering one quarter of Los Angeles and one of the highest crime areas, has seen a drop in homicides of about 22 percent to 225 for the past year, according to Dunkin.

Early indications suggest the drop in the homicide rate continued nationwide through March 1995 as well, the center said. From 1987 through 1991, the homicide rate had risen by 5 percent a year.

The drop in homicide rates in 1994 meant that it fell from 10th to 11th among the leading causes of deaths in the United States overall. The leading cause of death in America is heart disease.

Homicide remains the second leading cause of death among young people ages 15 to 24, according to the research center, with the most common cause accidents, particularly involving motor vehicles. Homicide is still the third leading cause of death among children ages 5 to 14, the center reported, with accidents No. 1 and cancer No. 2.

The center's annual summary of births, marriages, divorces and deaths also showed a 9 percent increase in deaths from AIDS, from 38,500 in 1993 to 41,930 in 1994. That increase, however, was less than the 15 percent jump the previous year.

AIDS is the eighth leading cause of death in the United States, and the leading cause among those ages 25 to 44.

Life expectancy in the United States increased in 1994 to 75.7 years at birth, up from 75.5 in 1993, the center also reported.

The number of births fell 1 percent, from 4,039,000 in 1993 to 3,979,000 in 1994. That birth rate was the lowest since 1978.

The marriage rate increased slightly from 9 per 1,000 in 1993 to 9.1 in 1994, but was still below the rate from 1965 to 1992.

There was a slight increase in the number of divorces, but the rate remained the same at 4.6 per 1,000 people.

Elizabeth Wade, a kindergarten student at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Day School, enjoys a hot dog at the Coney Island. Elizabeth and her other classmates are learning what each letter of the alphabet can stand for, such as "H" for hot dogs and "I" for ice cream. The children are coming along very well in their studies, teachers say.

Environmental Protection Agency's Superfund program found lacking

HOUSTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency's Superfund program has spent billions of dollars over the last decade and a half but has cleaned only a fraction of the worst toxic waste sites, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Fourteen of the 29 Superfund sites in Texas are in the Houston area, the newspaper reported Sunday. Three are in Texarkana, two in Fort Worth and two in Bridge City. The others are in Amarillo, Crystal City, Grand Prairie, Hempstead, Karnack, Odessa, Point Comfort and Waskom. One has been proposed in Dallas.

Superfund spending has topped $26 billion and the program is taking well over a decade to clean each site under its supervision.

An additional $9.5 billion has been committed to cleanups, bringing total available Superfund resources to $35.6 billion.

Earlier this month, EPA administrator Carol Browner acknowledged the need for changes and announced 20 new reforms.

"The Clinton administration believes that Superfund is broken and needs to be fixed," she said. "That's why we've worked for two years on administrative reforms to make Superfund faster, fairer and more efficient."

"Superfund is horribly broken," agreed George Baker, director of Superfund Reform 95, an industry-funded lobbying group. "In the private sector, if you spent more than $30 billion over 15 years and had less than 5 percent of your job done, you would be fired."

Since the program began, 1,290 toxic sites have made the Superfund list. Only 82 have been deleted, most following relatively little or no cleanup activities.

Superfund, which became law in December 1980, created a trust fund to pay for cleanup at abandoned sites and mandated private cleanups at sites where responsible parties can be identified.

Congress made polluters of toxic sites subject to a strict set of liabilities. Private parties who contributed to polluting a Superfund site can be forced to pay for cleanup even if the waste disposal was a legal and accepted practice at the time and regardless of how long ago the dumping occurred.

The $26 billion spent to date has been about split between the EPA and potentially responsible parties.

Not everyone involved in Superfund is critical of the program.

Dick Sloan, an Arco Chemical project manager at the French Limited Superfund site near Crosby, said the program may be costly but works well for companies that accept responsibility for contaminating a site and step forward voluntarily to clean it up.

Sloan said the EPA has been willing to consider virtually all options in choosing cleanup remedies.

"As long as we can demonstrate that it is effective and protects the public's safety, we can usually win their approval," Sloan said. "For companies that tend to be recalcitrant, they may have a different picture of the program."

Pollard appeals to high court for Israeli citizenship

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jonathan Pollard, serving a life term in a U.S. prison for his work as an Israeli spy, has appealed to the Israeli Supreme Court for citizenship, his lawyer said today.

Pollard, arrested in 1985, applied for Israeli citizenship this year in the hope that it could improve his chances for parole. But the government turned down his request, saying Israel does not normally grant citizenship to Jews until they immigrate.

Pollard filed the appeal on Sunday, citing a statute that grants citizenship to Jews who have done a service for Israel, regardless of where they live, said his lawyer, Larry Dub.

Dub said Israel has granted citizenship to Jews abroad in the past, including Soviet dissidents who were not permitted to leave the Soviet Union in the 1970s and '80s.

Israeli legislators have submitted a bill under which Pollard would be granted citizenship, Dub said.

Palestinians reach Syria after eleven day odyssey

LATAKIA, Syria (AP) — More than 250 Palestinians expelled by Libya sang and cheered today as they arrived in the Syrian port of Latakia, ending an 11-day odyssey through the Mediterranean.

The jubilant Palestinian men, women and children lined the decks of the Fayza Express as it docked after a 16-hour trip from Cyprus. Many waved portraits of Syrian President Hafez Assad, whose government agreed to give them sanctuary.

Another Syrian vessel, the naval training ship Al-Assad, left Cyprus for Latakia today with another 340 deportees.

The Palestinians were among more than 650 who were deported from Libya on Oct. 13 aboard the ferry Countess M.

The ferry first headed for Syria, but authorities refused to let it dock. It then sailed to Larnaca, Cyprus, anchoring on Tuesday and waiting until Syria relented under international pressure and agreed to take in all passengers carrying Syrian documents.

Though some of the Palestinians were elated to be heading for Syria, others resent the Damascus government, which has long been at odds with the PLO. They fear they will face more trouble in Syria.

Larnaca port officials said 43 Palestinians remained aboard the Countess M. Thirteen have Jordanian papers and will be flown to Amman. The others carry papers from various Arab countries, and the Cypriot government was negotiating with those countries to take them in.

Maxene Andrews, one of famed World War II Andrews Sisters, dies of heart attack at 79

NEW YORK (AP) — Maxene Andrews, part of the Andrews Sisters trio whose "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" and other hits gave a syncopated, jitterbugging soundtrack to the World War II era, has died of a heart attack. She was 79.

Ms. Andrews, of Auburn, Calif., died early Saturday at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis, Mass., after suffering a heart attack while on vacation. She had bypass surgery in 1982.

Her sister Laverne died in 1967 and sister Patty is the lone survivor of one of the most successful singing groups ever, with 19 gold records and sales of nearly 100 million recordings.

From their rolled hairdos and slim suits to their perfectly blended voices, the Andrews Sisters offered a vision of American innocence treasured on the home front and by servicemen abroad during the war years.

"I think it was our time," she said in her last interview, given Sept. 15 to The Associated Press. "I think when your time is due, if you're not prepared, you're going to miss it and if you are prepared, it is going to happen." Their memorable harmonies included "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," "Beat Me Daddy Eight to the Bar," "Winter Wonderland," and "Rum and Coca Cola."

Maxene Andrews stirred memories earlier this year when she sang "America the Beautiful" to thousands of veterans who gathered in Honolulu to mark the 50th anniversary of V-J Day.

Many of those veterans had mobbed the Andrews Sisters when they performed at military posts and hospitals overseas during the war.

"It was like something you can't imagine, 5,000 to 10,000 soldiers out there and they're all whooping and whistling," she recalled during the interview in her New York apartment. "We loved bounce numbers. The soldiers liked them. They said they made them happy. That was our job."

Ms. Andrews was recognized for her service in 1987 with the Pentagon's highest civilian honor, the Medal for Distinguished Public Service.

At the height of their popularity in the 1940s, the Andrews Sisters appeared in 16 films, including "Buck Privates" and "In the Navy," with Abbot & Costello, "Hollywood Canteen," with a host of stars, and "Road to Rio," with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. They also had their own radio show, "Eight-to-the-Bar Ranch."

Born in Minneapolis, Maxene Andrews went on the road with her sisters in the early 1930s. They scored their first hit, "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," in 1937.

While several reference books give her birthdate as Jan. 3, 1918, publicist Greg Waskul said she was actually born in 1916, and that there has been considerable confusion over the sisters' birthdates.

After her first sister died and the group broke up, Maxene Andrews went on to teach speech and drama. She retook the stage with sister Patty in 1974, starring in "Over Here" on Broadway.

She underwent quadruple bypass surgery in 1982, then went on to release her only solo album in 1990. Her memoir of World War II, Over Here, Over There, was published in 1993.

Public Notice

Pursuant to the Public Utility Regulatory Act of 1995 §§3.2532, 3.453, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., (SWBT) has filed two applications for a new Local Access Service Tariff to allow:

- 1) Holders of a Service Provider Certificate of Operating Authority (SPCOA) to resell SWBT's local exchange service to the SPCOA's end user customer, and, 2) Local Service Providers (LSPs) to resell SWBT's new usage sensitive local connection (USLC) in the provisioning of their local exchange service to their end users. These services will enable LSPs to offer local exchange service to their end user customers.

Persons who wish to comment on or intervene in this proceeding concerning these tariffs should notify the Commission by November 28, 1995 in writing and refer to SOAH Docket Nos. 473-95-1209/473-95-1210 and Docket Nos. 14658/14659.
